(At the last shouts of Crowd, the Secretary of the Duma, Tchelkalov, appears on threshold of the convent door.)

THE POLICE OFFICIAL: (running towards the Crowd). Silence! . . . Arise! . . . Listen!
(The Crowd arises)

TCHELKALOV: (advancing towards the Crowd, removes his cap in greeting). Moscovians! Boris remains inflexible.
In vain the earnest appeal of Boyars and of the patriarch!
Boris the throne declines.
Great is the sorrow of Russia's people, Moscovians!
The entire realm suffers and laments!
The Lord beg, implore Him
That he grant
The favor sought to Russia—
Enlighten with wisdom
The mind of Boris the Great!

GUIDES OF PILGRIMS: (Boys, from behind the scenes). On earth great is your Glory, god Creator!
Glory! Glory! to the Heavenly Power!
Glory to the elect Saints! To Russia Glory!

THE CROWD: (murmuring). The elect of Heaven! The elect of Heaven!

PILGRIMS: (from behind scenes).
God's angel proclaimed it!
Draw up, black clouds,
From our Holy Russia!
(The Pilgrims enter, leaning on the shoulders of their guides. They are attired in long cloaks, with hoods, and wear many amulets. They also carry long staffs for support. The Crowd opens a passage for them and greets them with sincere devotion).

GUIDES AND PILGRIMS: (in sonorous tones). The dragon crush,
The twelve-headed hydra, with wings . . .
Shapeless beast of disorder and sin!
Through all the realm proclaim it
For his good!

Per il suo ben!
(Distribuiscono amuleti al popolo.)
Indossate abiti sacri . . .
Dei miracol, gli iconi portate
In processione, colle sante Vergini, Per incontrar Boris!
(Si dirigono verso il convento. Il canto s'estingue gradatamente.)
Ed or cantiam la gloria al Dio possente!
Grand'è la gloria tua, Dio creator! . . .
(Il sipario cala lentamente.)

SCENA II.

Una cella, nel convento del Miracolo. Pimenn scrive all'incerto chiarore d'una lucerna. Grigori dorme.

PIMENN: (Interrompendo di scrivere). Ancora un fatto . . . ancora una leggenda, E la cronaca sarà finita.
Compiuta avrò quest'opra, che Dio legò
Al peccator!
(Interrompendo di scrivere)
Da molt'anni
Dio me rese testimon degli eventi . . .
Forse un dì, un monaco sapiente,
Troverà l'opra mia, umil, ignota,
E come me, al chiaror d'una lucerna,
Scuotendo la polver secolare,
Trascriverà i veritier miei detti!
Che la novella stirpe moscovita,
Impari così la storia del passato.
(Rimane pensoso.)
Carico d'anni, sento la primavera . . .
I dì passati in me tumultan
Come i marosi dell'oceàn! . . .
Jeri ancor, tutto vivea pieno d'eventi . . .
Ed oggi invece . . . calma e silenzio!
Il giorno sorge già, e la fiamma s'estingue.
(Scrive.)
Ancora un fatto . . . ancora una leggenda . . .

CORO DI FRATI: (nell'interno).
Dio potente e giusto,
Ascolta i servi tuoi,
Che qui t'imploran.
Scaccia, Signor lo spirito maligno
Lontan da'figli tuoi!

GRIGORI: (svegliandosi). Sempre quel sogno!
Tre volte il sogno istesso! . . .
M'atterrisce l'incubo orrendo! . . .
E 'l vecchio
Non riposa, e senza tregua scrive . . .
Il sonno, gli occhi suoi, nemmen sfiorò!
Oh! come ammir quel monaco sì umil.

(They distribute amulets among the crowd)
Put on sacred garments . . .
These images, the icons wear
In procession with the Blessed Virgins,
To meet Boris!
(They go towards the convent, the chant dying away gradually.)
And now sing Glory to God Almighty!
Great is your Glory, God Creator!
(The curtain descends slowly.)

SCENE II.

A cell in the Convent of Miracles. Pimenn is writing by the uncertain light of a lamp. Gregory is asleep.

PIMENN: (ceasing to write). One more fact . . . another legend,
And the chronicle is done.
This work completed then, which God bequeaths to him who sins.
(Ceasing to write)
For many years
God made me witness these events . . .
Who knows? some day a learned monk
May find my humble work, unknown,
And, as I have done, by the light of a lamp,
Brushing the secular dust away,
My truthful sayings shall transcribe,
So the new Muscovite race may learn
The history of the past.
(Remains thoughtful.)
Burdened with years, I feel the spring . . .
The days long gone, stir within me,
Like billows of the ocean! . . .
But yesterday, a busy, bustling life,
Today, calm and silence!
The day already dawns and the flame sinks low!
(He writes.)
One more fact . . . another legend . . .

CHORUS OF MONKS: (from within). God, potent and just,
Hear your servants
Who here implore you.
Banish the evil spirit, Lord,
Far from your sons!

GREGORY: (awaking). Ever that dream!
Three times, the same vision!
It terrifies me, horrible nightmare . . .
And the aged man
Rests not, but writes unceasingly . . .
Sleep has not touched his eyes!
That humble monk, how admirable,
When surges through his mind the Quand'il passato sorge nel suo spirto,

Calmo e sublime, egli registra i fatti.

PIMENN: Alzato gia?

GRIGORI: (avvicinandosi a Pimenn e salutandolo profondamente). O, padre amato, mi benedici.

PIMENN: (se alza e lo benedice).
Di Dio la santa benedizion,
Ti segua ovunque, ed anche in Ciel!

I FRATI: (nell'interno). Perchè, o Signore, ci abbandonasti Tu?
(Pimenn siede. Grigori si alza esclamando.)

GRIGORI: Tu scrivesti senza chiuder ciglio;
Ma 'l sonno mio fu ognor turbato
Da sogni diabolici, orrendi.
M'ascolta. Per una scala angusta
M'arrampicai e scorsi,
Da quell'altezza, Mosca! . . . Un formicaio . . .
Il popol giù, furente, m'oltraggiava,
E segnandomi a dito mi beffava! . . .
L'onta e 'l terror m'invaser . . .
Io caddi dalla torre . . . e mi svegliai! . . .

PIMENN: Arde il giovanil tuo sangue . . .
Dei digiunar . . . hai d'uopo di pregar . . .
I pensier, in corrotte vision
Si trasforman. Anch'io, quand'una sera Lascio nel sonno addormentar lo spirto,
Senz'innalzar al Ciel la mia preghiera,
Perdo 'l riposo, e la notte è turbata . . .
Vedo allor degli osceni convivi . . .
Le lotte, le battaglie,
E le follie commesse nella mia gioventù!

GRIGORI: Brillanti furon i tuoi prim'anni!
Ti battesti da eroe sotto Kazàn,
E le truppe nemiche respingesti.
Del Zar Terribil, lo splendore hai visto . . .
Ma io, novizio dall'infanzia,
Vivo nella mia cella, frate umìl!
Oh . . . voglio anch'io gustar questi piacer . . .
L'ebbrezza di battaglie e dei festin! . . .

PIMENN: Non pianger, no! . . . s'abbandonasti
Il mondo! Oh, credi a me . . .
Da lungi ci seduce il suo fulgor,
E l'amor delle donne ci lusinga . . .
Oh, pensa, figlio, allo splendor dei Zar! . . .
Son sì possenti e invece . . .
Oh, ben sovente, essi abbandonan past,

Sublime and calm, he chronicles his facts!

PIMENN: Awake already?

GREGORY: (approaching Pimenn and bowing low). Oh, beloved father, your blessings.

PIMENN: (rising and blessing him). God's holy blessing Rest on you, even unto Heaven!

THE MONKS: (within). Why, Lord, did you abandon us?
(Pimenn seats himself; Gregory rises exclaiming:)

GREGORY: You did write, with eyes that rested not;
My sleep was ever troubled
By a diabolical dream—most terrible!
Hear me. On a narrow stair
I climbed and saw,
From a height, Moscow—as an ant's nest!
The raving crowd below abused me,
And, their fingers pointing, jeered me.
Shame and terror invading my soul,
I fell from the tower . . . and awoke.

PIMENN: Aflame is your youthful blood
From fasting . . . You need prayer.
Thoughts, in corrupted visions,
Transform themselves. So I—
When I allowed my mind to sink to slumber,
No prayer to Heaven raised,
My rest is lost, my night disturbed.
Then rise before me sinful scenes convivial,
And fights and battles,
The follies of my youth.

GREGORY: Brilliant your early years,
When under Kazàn you were hero
And you overcame the enemy's troops.
You have seen the terrible Tzar's splendor.
But I, at infancy a novice,
Live in my cell a humble monk!
Ah! . . . I, too, wish to taste these joys—
The thrilling scenes of battle and of banquets.

PIMENN: Lament not! . . . You gave up
The world! Oh, believe me . . .
From afar its dazzle tempts us,
And woman's love allures.
Think, my son, of the splendor of the Tzars,
So powerful they are, and yet,
Oh, often, they leave behind them,
The scepter and the royal purple,

Lo scettro e l'àurea porpora,
La fulgida corona,
Per l'aspro saio del frate,
Cercando in un convento
E pace e calma . . . In questa cella, (Allor viveva qui Santo Cirillo Il Giusto), io vidi qui lo Zar!
Pensoso e buon, Ivan, lo Zar Terribil,
Avea per noi parole di clemenza . . .
E vidi ne' suoi occhi ognor severi,
Per il rimorso le lagrime brillar.
Lo Zar piangea . . .
(è assorto in un profondo pensiero.)
Suo figlio, il Zar Teodoro,
Le sue stanze trasformò
In tristi celle . . . Un vero chiostro . . .
Il Ciel amò quel Zar amato e buon!
Sotto 'l suo Regno, la Russia intera
Visse taranquilla; e quand'anche per lui
L'ora suonò, un gran miracolo vidi compir.
La stanza sua s'empì d'un acre odor . . .
E 'l bianco volto come un sol splendè . . .
Oh, non avrem più mai, simile Zar!
Ed il Ciel ci punì! Come Signor
Noi ci siam dati, un regicida infame!

GRIGORI: (Siedendosi accanto al tavolo di Pimenn). Da molti . . . da molt'anni,
O, padre, io vo' saper,
L'età ch'avea lo Zarevic sgozzato.

PIMENN: Avrebbe l'età tua.
(Grigori, erge tutta la persona con fierezza, poi siede ancora umilmente, sullo sgabbello.) Ei regnerebbe . . .
Ma Dio non l'ha voluto!
Coll'orrendo delitto di Boris lo Zar,
Il mio sunto stasera io vo' finir.
Frate Grigori!
Tu sei un dotto . . . ami la scienza . . .
Ebben, ti lego l'opra mia . . .,
Scrivi senza indugiar; ma fedelmente,
Tutto quello che hai visto e che vedrai.
E guerra e pace è il regno degli Zar,
Le profezie del Ciel ed i presàgi . . .
(Alzandosi lentamente.)
Io, figliuol mio, di calma ho d'uopo!
(S'ode, in lontananza, il rintocco delle campane, che suonano il mattutino.) Suona già il mattutin. Veglia, Signor, Sui figli tuoi.
(A Grigori)
Dammi il baston.

The golden crown,
For the rough garb of monks,
Seeking in the privacy of a convent
Rest and peace . . . In this cell
When St. Cyril the Just lived here
I saw here that Tzar! . . .
Thoughtful and good, Ivan the terrible Tzar,
For us had words of clemency;
And I saw in his stern eyes
The tears of remorse he felt.
That Tzar was weeping . . .
(He becomes absorbed in deep thought.)
His son, Tzar Theodore Transformed his room
Into two dismal cells . . . a true cloister . . .
Heaven loved that Tzar, the good, the adored!
Under his rule all Russia
Lived in peace; and when for him too
The hour struck, a great miracle I saw accomplished.
His room was filled with a sharp, acrid odor,
But his pale face shone like the sun.
Oh, never shall we have such a Tzar!
Heaven has punished us! As Lord
We have now an infamous regicide!

GREGORY: (seating himself near Pimenn's table). For many . . . many years,
Oh, Father, I've longed to know
What age the butchered Tzarovitch was.

PIMENN: He would be your age.
(Gregory springs impetuously to his feet, and resumes his position on the stool humbly.)
And on the throne;
But God willed it otherwise!
With the horrible crime of Boris, the Tzar,
Before night shall end my theme.
Brother Gregory,
You are learned . . . . You love science . . .
Well, to you I bequeath my labors.
Write, delay not, but write truthfully
All that you have witnessed and shall see,
Both war and peace and the ruling of that Tzar,
Heaven's prophecies and presages.
(Rising slowly.)
I, my son, need rest.
(In the distance the tolling of bells is heard, calling to matins.) Matins already! Lord, watch
Over your sons.
(To Gregory)
Hand me the staff.

I FRATI: (coro interno). Accordaci la grazia, Dio clemente,
O, buon Signor!
Padre che rengi su noi
Eterno e giusto!
(Pimenn s'allontana con raccoglimento. Grigori l'accompagna fino alla porta poi ritorna ed esclama.)

GRIGORI: (sulla soglia). Boris!
Boris! tutti a te s'inchinan . . .
Nessun osa lagnarsi
Della sorte crudel di quel fanciul . . .
Eppur qui, nella sua cella un frate,
Svela l'orrendo tuo misfatto . . .
E la giustizia dei mortal, quaggiù . . .
Ti colpirà . . . e il ciel ti punirà . . . . (Cala la tela.)

SCENA III.

La piazza, fra le due cattedrali della Assunzione e degli Arcangeli. Il sacrato della prima è alla destra, quello della seconda si scorge in distanza, rimpetto agli spettatori. Sulla piazza, il popolo inginocchiato. Le campane suonano a distesa, in segno di festa. La Processione. Le Guardie. I figli dei Boiardi. Gli Streltzi. Tchelkalov, con bastone dello Zar, poi ancora degli Streltzi. Vengono poscia i Boiardi, i diaconi, etc., etc. La Processione attraversa la scena, passando fra la folla, ed entra nella Cattedrale dell'Assunzione. Gli streltzi si dispongono in fila sul sacrato.

IL PRINCIPE CHOUÏSKY: (dall'alto del Sacrato della Cattedrale dell'Assunzione). Salve a te, Zar Boris Theodorovich!

IL POPOLO: (alzandosi). Salute ed ogni ben al nostro Zar!

IL PRINCIPE CHOUÏSKY: Gloria!
(Entra nella Cattedrale.)

IL POPOLO: Gloria al bel sol del vasto ciel! Gloria!
Sia gloria al nostro Zar, a Zar Boris! Gloria!
(La processione ritorna dalla Cattedrale, preceduta dalle trombe degli Streltzi.) Lungo regno al buon Zar!
Festa è per te, popol di Russia,
Glorifica il tuo buon Zar!

I BOIARDI: (dal Sacrato). Evviva lo Zar Boris Theodorovich.

IL POPOLO: (inchinandosi). Viva lo Zar!
(Tchelkalov e i boiardi seguono la processione, e si dispongono, descrivendo un mezzo cerchio, fra i sacrati delle due cattedrali.)

MONKS: (chorus within). Grant us grace,
Merciful God,
Oh, good Lord,
Father who rules over us,
Eternal and just!
(Pimenn walks away absorbed in thought. Gregory accompanies him to the door, then returns and exclaims:)

GREGORY: (on the threshold).
Boris! Boris! All bow before you,
None dares complain
Of that boy's sad fate . . .
But here, in his cell, a monk
Discloses your horrible misdeeds . . .
And the justice of mortals here below
Shall strike you . . . and Heaven shall punish! . . .

SCENE III.

The Square between the two cathedrals of the Assumption and of the Archangels. The churchyard of the first is at right, that of the second in the distance facing the audience. In the Square the people are kneeling. The bells are ringing loudly. The procession. Guards. Sons of the Boyars. The Streltzi guards. Tchelkalov, with the staff of the Tzar, then more Streltzi. Then follow in order the Boyars, the deacons, etc. etc. etc. The Procession crosses the stage, passing through the crowd, and enters the Cathedral of the Assumption. The Streltzi arrange themselves in files in the churchyard.

PRINCE SHOUISKY: (from elevated ground of the Cathedral of the Assumption). Hail to you, Tzar Boris Theodorovich!

THE CROWD: (rising). Health and all good to our Tzar!

PRINCE SHOUISKY: Glory!
(He enters the Cathedral.)

THE CROWD: Glory to the fair son of the vast sky! Glory!
Glory be to our Tzar, our Tzar Boris!
Glory!
(The procession returns from the Cathedral, preceded by the Trumpeters of the Streltzi.) Long reign to the good Tzar!
This is a festal day for you, O people of Russia!
Glorify your good Tzar!

THE BOYARS: (from the Churchyard). Long live the Tzar, Boris Theodorovich!

THE CROWD: (bowing). Long live the Tzar!
(Tchelkalov and the Boyars follow the procession and arrange themselves, making a semicircle between the churchyards of the two Cathedrals.)

IL POPOLO: Sia gloria in Russia a Zar Boris!
Gloria, gloria al buon Zar!
Gloria! gloria! gloria!
(Boris, appare sul sacrato. Chouisky è dietro lui, e fa segno al popolo di tacere.)

BORIS: (i figli suoi: Teodoro e Xenia, lo seguono). Trist'è 'l mio cor! . . .
La tema incessante
Dell'arcano nefasto,
Mi rode l'alma!
(In estasi.)
Santo defunto! O, mio avo regal!
Tu vedi dal Ciel le lagrime nostre . . .
Invia la tua santa benedizion
Su me, sul Regno . . .
Oh, rendimi buon e giusto come te,
E 'l mio tron felice sia!
(Abbassa il capo.)
Or salutiam i defunti Sovran
De la Russia!
(con regale maestà.)
Il mio popol avrà la sua festa!
Tutti! dal boiardo al povero mendico,
Tutti entreran; tutti! è il Zar che invita!
(Boris entra nella cattedrale.)

IL POPOLO: Ogni ben! lunga vita al buon Zar,
E gloria al bel sol del vasto ciel!
Gloria! gloria!
Sia gloria in Russia a Zar Boris!
Gloria! gloria! gloria! ed ogni ben!
(Fra le ovazioni entusiastiche, Boris esce dalla Cattedrale e si dirige ai suoi appartamenti. Il velario s'abbassa, fra le grida del popolo:)
Gloria! Gloria! . . .
(Le campane suonano a distesa.)
(Cala la tela.)

FINE DELL'ATTO I.

ATTO II.

SCENA I.

Una locanda, alla frontiera della Lituania.

L'OSTESSA: (raccomoda una vecchia scarpa, cantarellando).
Io presi un anitrotto blù e ner;
Anitrotto, tu sei bel
E t'ammiro con piacer.
L'anitrotto gentil voglio affidar
All'acqua dello stagno,
Degli alberi al ripar.
Vola, vola . . . amato augel . . .
Deh, vola là . . . nel ciel . . .
Ma ritorna nell'ostel
Io vo' carezzar con tutt'il mister,
Le tue piume variopinte . . .
Piccol mio, blù e ner.
(voci nelle quinte)
Deh, vien, t'appressa. A me ti vo' vicin;

THE CROWD: Glory be in Russia to Tzar Boris!
Glory, glory to the good Tzar!
Glory! Glory! Glory!
(Boris appears in the Churchyard. Shouisky is behind him and signals the people to be silent).

BORIS: (his son Theodore and his daughter Xenia following him).
Sad my heart!
The unceasing fear
Of that heinous secret
Gnaws at my soul!
(Ecstatically.)
Saintly dead, Oh, royal ancestor,
You behold from Heaven our tears.
Send your blessing
On me and on my reign;
Oh, make me good and just as you,
And my throne make happy.
(Bowing his head.)
Now let us salute the dead sovereigns Of Russia.
(With royal majesty.)
My people shall have their feast!
All! from the Boyars to the beggar,
All shall enter; all!
It is the Tzar who invites!
(Boris enters the Cathedral.)

THE CROWD: All hail! Long life to the good Tzar,
And glory to the fair son of the vast sky! Glory! Glory!
Glory be in Russia to her Tzar Boris!
Glory! Glory! Glory! All hail!
(Amid the enthusiastic ovation, Boris comes out of the Cathedral and takes his departure. The curtain descends amid the shouts of the populace.)
Glory! Glory!
(The bells ring jubilantly.)
(Curtain.)

END OF ACT I.

ACT II

SCENE I.

An Inn on the frontier of Lithuania.

INNKEEPER: (a woman). (Fixing an old shoe and singing to herself). I caught a duckling all blue and black Duckling you are fine,
I love you well.
The gentle duckling will I trust
To the water of the pond,
Under the shade of the trees.
Fly, fly . . . dear birdy,
Oh, fly away, there . . . to the sky . . .
But come back to your home again.
I wish to fondle your gaudy feathers,
My little one, blue and black.
(Voices behind the scenes)
Oh, come I pray you, come

Deh, baciami la bocca,
Bacia e mordimi, piccin!
(Risa squillanti, ed il frastuono di conversazioni nelle quinte.)
Chi va là?
(guardando)
Son de'viandanti! . . .
Qui entrar potete.
(Le risa e le conversazioni cessono.)
Olà! . . . Taccion? . . .
Nessun! Più nessun!
(ritorna a cantarellare.)
Oh ti vo' . . . mi bacia ancor,
Augel mio buono e gentil . . .
T darò tutto 'l mio cor!
Deh, vienmi a rallegrar . . .
Ti vuol la vedovella . . .
Vien; non farla più penar!

MISSAIL E VARLAAM: (nelle quinte). Oh, voi . . . cristiani . . .
Buona gente . . . fedeli . . .
Oh dateci per innalzar,
Un tempio al buon Signor!
Dio dal ciel vi pagherà! . . .

L'OSTESSA: (alzandosi). Grazia, Signor! . . . .
Dei santi eremiti!
Che stolta sono stata;
Mi feci tentar dal peccato!
(guardando dalla finestra)
Son dessi . . . eccoli . . . qui Gli inviati del Signor!
(Apre la porta. Varlaam a Missaïl entrano seguiti dal falso Dimitri sotto il nome di Gregori, vestito da contadino. L'Ostessa li saluta umilmente.)

VARLAAM: All'ostel sia pace, o donna.

L'OSTESSA: In che posso io servir,
Quei santi pellegrini?

MISSAIL: Offrir puoi ciò che tu hai.

VARLAAM: (urtando Missaïl col gomito). Un po' di vin . . .

L'OSTESSA: Con piacer, buon pellegrin!
Or or lo porterò
(via)

VARLAAM: (osserva Grigori, che è seduto al tavolo pensoso). Oh camerata, scaccia la tristezza.
Alfin raggiungi il grande tuo desir.
La frontiera potrai oggi varcar.

GRIGORI: Sicuro non sarò in Lituania.

VARLAAM: A che ti può servir la Lituania?
Noi due, il buon Missaïl e io, povero fratel,
Dopo la fuga dal monaster,
Ce la passiamo ben.

To me; I would have you near;
Oh, kiss me, please, upon the lips,
Kiss and bite me, little one!
(A burst of laughter and conversation behind the scenes.)
Who is there?
(Looking)
They are travellers!
Here, you may enter!
(The laughter and conversation cease.)
Hola! . . . they are silent.
No longer there!
(Begins to sing again.)
Oh, I want you to kiss me again,
My birdy, so good and gentle . . .
I shall give you all my heart,
Oh, come, gladden me,
The little widow wants you,
Come; make her suffer no more.

MISSAIL AND VARLAAM: (from behind the scenes).
Oh . . . Christians . . .
Good folks . . . faithful ones . . .
Oh, give us alms to raise A temple to the Holy Lord!
God from Heaven shall repay you!

THE INNKEEPER: (rising). Mercy! O Lord,
They are saintly hermits!
How foolish I have been
In yielding to sin!
(looking out of the window)
It is they . . . here they are . . .
The messengers of the Lord!
(She opens the door. Varlaam and Missail enter, followed by the false Dimitri dressed as a peasant and under the name of Grigory.—The Innkeeper greets them humbly.)

VARLAAM: To the inn be peace, O woman!

THE INNKEEPER: How can I serve
These holy pilgrims?

MISSAIL: Offer what you have.

VARLAAM: (nudging Missail). A little wine.

THE INNKEEPER: Willingly, good pilgrims!
Anton, you shall have it. (She goes out.)

VARLAAM: (observing Grigory who is seated at the table). Oh, comrade, drive dull care away . . .
At last, you attain your earnest wish.
You shall cross the frontier today.

GRIGORY: Only in Lithuania shall I feel safe.

VARLAAM: How can Lithuania help you?
We two, good Missail and I, poor brother,
After our flight from the cloister.
We fare quite well.

O in Russia, o in Lituania,
Felice sempre son, quand'ho del vin.

L'OSTESSA: (entra, e depone alcune bottiglie di vino sul tavolo).
A voi, fratelli, vi porto del buon vin.

VARLAAM: Ecco il buon vin!

VARLAAM E MISSAIL: Grazie, gentile ostessa,
Che Dio ti colmi de'suoi favor!

VARLAAM: (canta, con una bottiglia in mano). Quand'ero a Kazàn la città bella, Il terribile Zar si trastullava . . .
Ma pei Tartari la stella, sul lor cielo non brillava.
Ei li bruciò . . . vadan al diavol!
Nella notte il mio buon Zar,
Circondò, strinse Kazàn . . .
E sotto il fiume la mina fe' saltar,
Lo Zar Ivàn!
I Tartari in città passeggian fieri . . .
Vorrebbero scacciar gli Zar alteri;
I Tartari crudel! (beve)
Allora il Zar terribil s'offuscò
E, curvo 'l capo sulla spalla, gridò:
"Miei cannonier or a voi tocca . . .
Mettete la miccia nella bocca
Dei tremendi barril!"
Con far spavaldo il cannonier marciò,
Ed accese pian pian il cer sottil . . .
Il barril micidial su stesso girò . . .
Nelle, mine presto, ruzzolò
E poi scoppiò! . . . (beve)
I Tartari gridaron dal dolore . . .
E fuggiron pel terrore! . . .
Zar Ivan domò tutti i ribelli . . .
La carne lor fu ridotta a brandelli!
(beve)
Quand'ero a Kazàn la città bella . . .
Eh! . . .
(a Grigori)
Il tuo labbro è chiuso ancor?
Per chi palpita il tuo cor?

GRIGORI: Mah! . . . chi sa! . . .

MISSAIL: Oh! è affar tuo! . . .

VARLAAM: No certo il mio, buon camerata!
Viva la nosta cara ostessa! (beve)
(a Grigori)
Ascolta ben . . .
Quand'io bevo i sobrî non mi piaccion.
Ama l'ebbrezza e non la temperanza.
Imitar mi vorrai? Vien qui . . . m'abbraccia.
Non vuoi? Sta ben! . . . Al diavol va! . . .

Either in Russia or Lithuania,
I am always happy where there is wine.

INNKEEPER: (entering and setting wine bottles on the table). To you brethren, I bring good wine.

MISSAIL: Behold the good wine!

VARLAAM AND MISSAIL:
Thanks, gentle hostess,
God's wealth of favors be with you!

VARLAAM: (singing with a bottle in his hand). When I was in the fair City of Kazàn,
The terrible Tzar passed his time in sport . . .
But the Tartar's star
Illuminated not their sky.
He burnt them . . . to the devil let them go!
At night my good Tzar Surrounded Kazàn, closing in . . .
And beneath the river sprang a mine, Tzar Ivan!
The Tartars in the city proudly strutted,
They would the haughty Tzars repel;
The cruel Tartars!
(He drinks.)
Then frowned the terrible Tzar
And shouted, cocking his head:
"My gunners, it is your turn . . .
Apply the fuse to the mouth
Of the terrible casks!"
With boldish mien went forward the gunner.
And with care the taper lighted . . .
Turned on itself the murderous cask . . .
And bounding into the mine
There it burst! . . .
(He drinks.)
With pain the Tartars shrieked . . .
And terror-stricken fled! . . .
Tzar Ivan subdued the rebels . . .
And tore their flesh to shreds!
(He drinks.)
When in Kazàn, that city fair . . . Hey! . . .
(To Grigory.)
Still shut are your lips?
For whom throbs your heart?

GRIGORY: Well! . . . who knows! . . .

MISSAIL: Oh! it is your own concern! . . .

VARLAAM: Not mine certainly, good comrade!
Long live our hostess!
(He drinks; to Grigory.)
Listen carefully . . .
When I drink, the sober ones I like not.
Love ebriety, not temperance.
Would you copy me?
Come . . . embrace me.
You will not? It is well! . . . Go to the devil!

GRIGORI: Puoi ber, senza perder la ragion.
Padre Varlaam . . .

VARLAAM: La region? A che far?
Non m'abbisogna, veh!
(incrocia le braccia sulla tavola, e s'addormenta cantarellando.)
È il buon uomo . . .
È il buon uomo . . .
Un gentiluomo!
Un uomo!
(s'assopisce)

GRIGORI: Ove conduce, ostessa, quel sentier?

OSTESSA: In Lituania.

VARLAAM: (sonnecchiando).
Egli è un uomo . . .
Un gran buon'uomo . . .
È proprio un gentiluomo
Un'uomo! . . .

GRIGORI: Di, ostessa, ed è lontana?

OSTESSA: No, compar, essa è vicina;
Oggi stesso vi sarai.
Ma in guardia alle barriere

GRIGORI: Che barriere?

OSTESSA: Un colpevole fuggì,
Ed arrestano i viandanti . . .
Per poi trafugarli.

GRIGORI: E che?! . . . La mia speme
Per sempre svanì? . . . .

VARLAAM: (sonnecchiando) È il meschin,
Preso dal vin,
E stiaccia un sonnellin . . .

GRIGORI: Ma non sai chi cercan? . . .

OSTESSA: Un mariuol . . . non so ben . . . od un brigante.
Ma gli arcier non ci lascian più in pace!

GRIGORI: Si?

OSTESSA: Ma credi tu ch'arrestino i ladron?
Nemmen per sogno . . .
Poichè l'altro cammin posson varcar . . .
Ma senti ben . . .
Svoltar devi a sinistra,
Per questo sentier.
Va' verso la cappella di Tchekan,
In riva al fiume;
E di là sei nel Khlopino,
Poscia a Zaitzevo.
Allor anche una bimba
Ti potria condur.
Ma sai, questo spionaggio è una tal piaga
Per l'infelice popol . . .
Ed anche più per noi, povere ostesse! . . .

VARLAAM: (stirandosi). È il buon uomo . . .
E fa toc-toc . . .
(Si batte alla porta.)

GRIGORY: You may drink without losing your reason, Father Varlaam . . .

VARLAAM: Reason? For what? I need it not, see!
(He crosses his arms over the table and goes to sleep, singing in low tones.)
It is the good man . . .
It is the good man . . .
A gentleman!
A man!
(He falls asleep.)

GRIGORY: Hostess, where leads that path?

INNKEEPER: Into Lithuania.

VARLAAM: (drowsily). He is a man . . .
A great good man . . .
And truly a gentleman!
A man! . . .

GRIGORY: Tell me, hostess, is it far?

INNKEEPER: No, my friend, near it is;
Even today you can be there.
But be careful at the barriers.

GRIGORY: What barriers?

INNKEEPER: A culprit has escaped,
All travellers are arrested . . .
And then spirited away.

GRIGORY: Alas! . . . So has my hope
Forever vanished? . . .

VARLAAM: (drowsily). So is the wretch,
Caught by the wine,
Snatching a little nap . . .

GRIGORY: But do you know whom they seek?

INNKEEPER: A scoundrel . . . I know not rightly . . . or a brigand.
But the bowmen leave us no peace!

GRIGORY: So?!

INNKEEPER: But do you think they will catch the thieves?
Not even in their dreams . . .
For they can use the other road . . .
Now hear me carefully . . .
You must turn to the left,
When following this path.
Go to the chapel of Tchekan,
Rising on the river's banks;
And from there to Khlopin,
Then on to Tzaitzevo.
After that even a child
Could lead you.
But certainly this spying is indeed a plague
For the unhappy people . . .
And for us, poor hostesses, much more so! . . .

VARLAAM: (stretching himself). It is the good man . . .
Who goes: toc, toc . . .
(A knock is heard at the door.)

Più forte ancor . . . toc, toc, toc, toc! (i colpi si ripetono con maggior violenza.)	Louder yet . . . toc, toc, toc, toc! (The knocks are repeated with greater force.)
OSTESSA: Ma cos'è quel rumor? (va verso la finestra e guarda al di fuori) Son proprio quegli infami! Ancor dessi! . . . son gli arcier! (i poliziotti entrano tacitamente, ed osservano i vagabondi.)	INNKEEPER: But what's all this racket? (goes to the window and looks out.) In very truth it is those rascals! They again! . . . It is the bowmen! (Soldiers enter in silence and observe the vagrants.)
VARLAAM: È il buom uomo . . . È il buon uomo! Un gentiluomo! (i poliziotti si collocano dietro le spalle di Varlaam.)	VARLAAM: It is the good man! . . . It is the good man . . . A gentleman! (The soldiers go and stand behind Varlaam.)
L'UFFIZIALE: Chi siete voi?	THE OFFICER: Who are you?
VARLAAM E MISSAIL: (spaventati, rispondono umilmente). Poveri frati ed umil religiosi . . . Facciam la quèstua, nelle città e nei borghi.	VARLAAM AND MISSAIL: (they are frightened and answer humbly). Poor friars and humble churchmen . . . Collecting alms throughout the land.
L'UFFIZIALE: (a Grigori). E tu? . . . Chi sei tu?	THE OFFICER: (to Grigory). And you? . . . who are you?
VARLAAM E MISSAIL: È un camerata.	VARLAAM AND MISSAIL: He is a comrade.
GRIGORI: (con studiata indifferenza). Presso il gran borgo io vivo . . . I monaci accompagno . . . Dopo, io rincaso . . .	GRIGORY: (with studied indifference). I live near the great town . . . I accompany these monks . . . And shall return home after . . .
L'UFFIZIALE: (agli arcieri). Non c'è da far col giovin! Tentiam i frati . . . Hum! (tossendo) (poi s'avvicina alla tavola.) O, miei padri, e la questua come andò?	THE OFFICER: (to the bowmen). Nothing to be gained from the youth! We'll try the monks . . . Ahem! (Coughing) (He approaches the table.) Well, fathers, how did the begging fare?
VARLAAM: Oh! . . . mal figliuol . . . mal! I fedeli amano l'or . . . Lo rinserran . . . lo nascondan . . . E più nulla pel Signor . . . È grande l'ingiustizia! Trionfa la nequizia . . . Chiedi e chiedi . . . prega e prega . . . Ma nulla ti von dar, O un misero copec! Noi, pel dolor, all'osteria veniam! Oh . . . sicur! . . . è del mondo la fin . . . Proprio la fin! . . .	VARLAAM: Oh! . . . Badly, my son . . . badly! The faithful love their gold . . . They hoard it . . . they hide it . . . And nothing for the Lord! . . . Great is the injustice! And iniquity triumphs . . . Beg and beg . . . pray and pray . . . But with nothing they part, Not even a paltry Kopek! We, in sorrow, seek the inn! Oh indeed! . . . it is the end of the world! . . . Truly the end! . . .
OSTESSA: (quasi supplicando l'uffiziale). Signor, abbi pietà della tua serva.	INNKEEPER: (almost imploring the officer). Good sir, have pity on your servant.
VARLAAM: (mentre l'uffiziale scruta il suo volto). Oh, di' su . . . perchè su me fissi i tuo occhi?	VARLAAM: (as the officer scrutinizes his face). Oh, speak out . . . why inspect me so closely?
L'UFFIZIALE: Ascolta, Aliokha, dammi l'editto, Sei tu che l'hai. (prende la carta) (a Varlaam) Or leggi. Da Mosca un erètico fuggì, Grichka Otrepiev. Di . . . non sei tu?	THE OFFICER: Here, Aliokha, give me the edict, you have it. (He takes the paper. Then to Varlaam.) Now read: A heretic has escaped from Moscow, Grishka Otrepiev. Are you he? . . . Answer! . . .
VARLAAM (umilmente). Ignoro . . .	VARLAAM: I know not . . .
L'UFFIZIALE: Hum! Lo Zar ordinò d'arrestarlo Vivo o morto . . . Non comprendi ancor?	THE OFFICER: Humph! The Tzar orders his arrest Alive or dead . . . Do you not understand?
VARLAAM: No, figliuol.	VARLAAM: No, my son.
L'UFFIZIALE: E sai tu legger?	THE OFFICER: Do you know how to read?
VARLAAM: No, figliuol, Iddio non m'insegnò!	VARLAAM: No, son, God taught me not!
L'UFFIZIALE: Allor, i'editto guarda.	THE OFFICER: Then, look at the edict.
VARLAAM: (respingendolo). Ma che vuoi tu?	VARLAAM: (repulsing him). But what do you want?
L'UFFIZIALE: Ebben . . . l'erètico, il ladron sei tu!	THE OFFICER: Well . . . the heretic, the thief, it is you!
VARLAAM: Olà! quest'è un error, messer!	VARLAAM: Heydey! a mistake, master!
OSTESSA: (a parte). O, Signor! . . . imboscano persino gli eremiti.	INNKEEPER: O, Lord! . . . they even entrap the hermits.
L'UFFIZIALE: Eh? Chi di voi sa legger?	THE OFFICER: Hey? Which of you can read?
GRIGORI: (avvicinandosi all'Uffiziale). Io . . . se tu vuoi.	GRIGORY: (approaching the officer). I . . . if you wish.
L'UFFIZIALE: Stà ben. Leggi allor lentamente. (dandogli l'editto.)	THE OFFICER: (handing him the edict). It is well. Then read slowly.
GRIGORI: (leggendo). "Dal convento del Miracolo, un indegno novizio, Grigori, detto Grichka Otrepiev, tentato dallo spirito maligno, osò turbar i santi religiosi, con sacrilegi ed empie seduzioni. Il brigante evase in Lituania. Lo zar ordina d'impadronirsi" . . .	GRIGORY: (reading). "In the convent of Miracles, a worthless novice, Grigory, by name Grishka Otrepiev, tempted by the evil spirit, dared perturb the holy men of God, with sacrilegious and wicked allurements. The brigand escaped into Lithuania . . . The Tzar orders that he be captured . . ."
L'UFFIZIALE: Ed impiccarlo!	THE OFFICER: And hung!
GRIGORI: Ma non è scritto ciò . . .	GRIGORY: But it does not say so here . . .
L'UFFIZIALE: Tu menti. Il senso bisogna capir. Leggi: "arrestar e impiccarlo."	THE OFFICER: You lie . . . The sense must be understood. Read: "arrest him and hang him."
GRIGORI: "E impiccarlo . . . l'età sua . . . (guardando Varlaam) l'età sua . . . cinquant'anni . . . barba tutta bianca . . . ventre tondo . . . e naso rosso . . ."	GRIGORY: "And hang him . . . his age . . . (looking at Varlaam) his age . . . fifty years . . . beard completely white . . . round of paunch . . . a red nose . . ."
L'UFFIZIALE: (agli arcieri). A voi . . . è lui! legatel bene!	THE OFFICER: (to the bowmen). Here you . . . it is he! bind him fast! (All hurl themselves upon Varlaam who repulses them violently.)
VARLAAM: (tutti si slanciano su Varlaam, che li respinge bruscamente). Alt! (stringe i pugni, pronto a battersi) Restate quieti . . . cattivi figliuoli . . . son tutte istorie . . . queste . . . Un ladro io? . . . io . . . Grichka?! Alt! No, basta la burla . . . bench'io legga appena . . . conosco ben le lettere . . . e leggerò . . . leggerò trattandosi della forca . . . (legge sillabando) "E l'e . . . e	VARLAAM: Halt! (he clinches his fists, prepared to fight). Keep back . . . evil brood . . . these are all lies . . . these . . . I, a thief? . . . I . . . Grishka? Stand! Enough of this farce . . . even if I can scarcely read . . . letters I know well . . . and I will read . . . because of the gallows I will read . . . (he reads by syllables) "And his a . . . a . . age, his age . . . twenty years"—Twenty and

. . . tà . . . e l'età sua . . . vent'anni . . ." Venti e non cinquanta? . . . Vedi tu?! . . . (Grigori rincula fino alla porta, colla mano destra sotto la giubba) "di taglia media . . . capelli rossastri . . . sul naso . . . un porro . . . alla fronte idem . . . ed il braccio sinistro . . . più corto del destro . . ." (avvicinandosi furtivamente a Grigori). Ma Grichka sei tu! (Grigori agita il coltello e fugge dalla finestra.)

TUTTI: (colpiti, pietrificati dallo stupore). È lui! fermate . . . arrestate! . . .
(Passato il momento di stupore, corrono tutti alla porta e continuano a gridare nelle quinte.) Fermate il ladron! l'arrestate! . . .
(Cala la tela.)

SCENA II.

Gli appartamenti del Zar Boris al Kremlino a Mosca. A sinistra un globo terrestre su d'una piccola tavola, alla quale Teodoro è seduto, leggendo "Il Libro del Gran Disegno". A destra, un tavolo da lavoro, accanto al quale siede Xenia. Vicino ad essa, su d'uno sgabello, lavora la Nutrice. Verso il proscenio un'ampia poltrona. Di fronte un orologio a carillon e a figure movibili.

XENIA: (stringendo fra le mani un medaglione, col ritratto del suo fidanzato, piange). Oh! . . . egli morì . . .
E là sotterra, riposa il mio ben . . .
Lontan dalla sua Xenia! . . .
Tu dormi dol, sotto la fredda pietra,
E non vedi 'l mio strazio . . . non odi i miei lai!
I lai di chi t'ama, e langue per te! . . .

LA NUTRICE: Basta! . . . Cessa, mia graziosa Zarevna.
Non painger più . . . tergi le ciglia . . .

XENIA: Il cor si spezza, e soffro tanto! . . .

LA NUTRICE: Ti calma, o cara.
Lagrime di fidanzati
Le asciuga il sol come la brina.
La terra è così vasta. Un bel garzon,
Snello e gentil, conoscerai,
E quello che morì tu scorderai!

XENIA: No, mia nutrice,
No! l'amo ancor, e sempre l'amerò.

LA NUTRICE: E che? L'hai visto appena, e vuoi morir per lui?
Languiva una donzella
Perchè amava un bel garzon . . .
Ma quel furbo si celò.
E anche lei si consolò.

not fifty? . . . Do you see?! . . . (Grigory retreats to the door, his right hand under his blouse); "of middle height . . . reddish hair . . . on the nose . . . a wart . . . on the forehead ditto . . . and the left arm . . . shorter than the right . . ."
(approaching Grigory stealthily) You are Grishka! (Grigory brandishing a knife escapes by the window.)

ALL: (stricken motionless by surprise). It is he! stop him! . . . seize him! . . .
(Recovering from their surprise all rush to the door and continue their shouts from behind the scenes.)
Stop the thief! arrest him! . . .
(Curtain.)

SCENE II.

Apartments of the Tzar in the Kremlin at Moscow. At left a terrestrial globe, on a small table at which Theodore sits, reading "The Book of the Great Drawing." At right, a worktable, beside which Xenia is seated. Close by her, on a stool, the nurse is busy at work. Near front of stage a large arm-chair. At rear a musical clock, with automatic figures.

XENIA: (holding a medallion portrait of her betrothed; weeping). Oh! . . . he died . . .
Beneath the sod rests my beloved . . .
Far from his Xenia! . . .
You sleep alone, under the cold stone,
And do not see my pangs . . . nor hear my grieving!
The grief of her who loves you and who languishes for you!

THE NURSE: Enough! . . . Come, my graceful Tzarevna.
Weep no more . . . Dry your lashes . . .

XENIA: My heart is breaking and I suffer.

THE NURSE: Calm yourself, dear one,
Tears of those betrothed
By the sun are dried like frost.
So vast the earth, some handsome youth,
Gentle and slender, you shall know,
And the one that died you shall forget!

XENIA: No, my nurse, No! I love him still and always shall.

THE NURSE: What? you scarcely saw him and will die for him!
Once a maiden languished
Because she loved a handsome lad.
But the artful rogue vanished.
Yet even she consoled herself.

O, colomba, scaccia la tristezza,
E non pensarci più.
Senti la mia canzon:
(S'avvicina a Xenia.)
Un moscon legna tagliava,
E pei re l'acqua tirava.
La pulce saltellante
Gli faceva da aiutante.
Plan! Guinge un farfallon,
Nel giardin del Pope Illon—
Ei comincia a svolazzar
Ed il fieno a mangiucchiar—
S'arrabbia il moscon
Con far da padron,
E prende un ramoscel
Per scacciare quel ribel.
Sventura pel moscon . . .
Lancia male il suo baston,
E le reni si spezzò,
Mentre l'altro via volò!
Ma in suo soccorso, lesta,
Corse la pulce mesta . . .
Sul dorso gli saltò
E con slancio l'aiutò.
La piccina si svenò
E al moscon si confessò
Che per lei ella spirò . . .
Ed in ciel se ne volò!

TEODORO: Oh, com'è strana la tua canzon . . .
Dopo le nozze, tu suoni a morto? . . .

LA NUTRICE: Mio Zarevic,
Ne sai tu, dunque, delle più gaie?
Pazienza avrò con te. Ivan, lo Zar terribile,
Ce ne diede lezion quando regnò.
Canta—

TEODORO: O, cara, io t'assicuro . . . tu canterai con me!
(Teodoro incita la Nutrice a giuocare—Girano in tondo e, battendo le mani, cercano d'essere i primi a darsi un colpo.)
Odi la fola: ò bella.
Una gallina fece una vitella . . .
E fece un uovo il porcellin.
Seria novella
Pe' sciocchi e pe' bambin.
(si alza, si colloca rimpetto alla Nutrice e, mentre canta, batte le mani, un colpo per ogni battuta di musica.)
Tu—ru, tu—ru, mio pulcin,
Dove porti tu quel gran?
Certamente ben lontan . . .
A Kieff te n'andrai
E sull'alber volerai . . .
Ma là un gufo troverai.

TEODORO E LA NUTRICE: S'ei fa l'occhiolin
Quì svolazza l'uccellin . . .
Zin zin, biricchin!
Facciam insiem zin zin . . .
Contenti danziam,
Orsù tutti invitiam,
Danzar noi vogliam.

O, dispel your sorrow, my dove,
And think no more of it.
Listen to my song!
(Approaching Xenia.)
A big fly was cutting wood
And drawing water for the king.
A jumping flea assisted him.
Then softly came a butterfly,
From out Pope Illon's garden.
Fluttering about he flew
And munched the hay as he did . . .
The big fly angry grows,
With lordly mien,
He takes a little twig
To chase the rebel.
Disaster for the big fly, though . . .
His stick he badly throws
And broken is his back,
While the other flew away!
But nimble to his succor
Ran the grieving little fly,
Jumped upon his back
And helped him ardently.
The little one bled soon to death,
Confessing to the bigger fly
That she died for him.
Then she flew away to heaven!

THEODORE: Oh, how funny is your song . . .
After the wedding you toll the bells.

THE NURSE: My Tzarovitch, you
Know then some gayer ones?
Patience I shall have for you, Ivan the terrible Tzar
This lesson taught us when he ruled.
Sing —

THEODORE: Oh, I assure you, dear . . . you shall sing with me!
(Theodore urges the Nurse to play. They move around in a circle, clapping their hands, each trying to strike the other first.) Hear this fable; it is rich.
A hen bore a calf . . .
And the little pig laid an egg.
A serious novel
For children and ninnies.
(He gets up, places himself before the nurse, and as he sings claps his hands, a stroke for every measure of the music.)
Too — roo, too — roo, my chick,
Where do you take that grain,
To a distance surely . . .
To Kiev you shall go
And fly on the tree . . .
But there you will find an owl.

THEODORE AND THE NURSE: He winks his eye.
Here flutters the bird . . .
Zin, zin, urchin,
Let's say together: Zin, zin . . .
And contentedly dance,
Come now, all we invite,
We will dance!

TEODORO: Del diacon, nel cortil,
È rinchiuso un passerin . . .
Un nibbio ei non è; ma un uccellin gentil . . .
Ha il becco lungo, bianco, ed è carin.—
Per visitar l'amico egli partì.

LA NUTRICE E TEODORO: (si congiungono a poco a poco). E il gufo gli disse pian pian:
"Il gran, falciato si batte ogni dì . . .
Il diacono e sua moglie, or or si batteran!"
Il fuoco al grano s'appiccò
E 'l diacon s'arrabbiò.
Invaso dal terror
Nel granaio penetrò,
Con l'ansia in fondo al cor . . .
Ma le orecchia si scottò! . . .

TEODORO: Per il festin
I bei pasticcin.
Arrivano i signor;
Son già sul piatto d'or.
Gli arcier, giunti da lontan,
Mangion, bevon . . . con baccon!
Una vacca ed un bue si mangia l'uffizial
E seicento fagian,
Per saziar l'epa infernal! Khliost! . . .
(Dà un colpo alla Nutrice.)

LA NUTRICE: (scorge Boris e lo saluta a bassa voce.) Ah!
Mio sovran, perdona.
Io vecchia son e tanto timorosa . . .

BORIS: (a Xenia). Mia Xenia! O, povera colomba!
Appena fidanzata, e già vedova! . . .
Tu piangi sempre . . . senza tregua?

XENIA: O, Sovrano, che l'amar mio pianto
Non ti rattristi.
Il mio dolor è ben sì poca cosa,
Di fronte al tuo soffrir.

BORIS: (accarezzando i capelli di sua figlia). Oh, figlia mia! o, mia colomba! . . .
Raggiungi nel terem le tue compagne.
Distrar ti dei . . . ti dei divertir.
(Xenia e la Nutrice escono—Boris segue sua figlia, affettuosamente, collo sguardo triste.)
Va, figlia mia!
(A Teodoro.)
E tu, figliuol che leggi?
Un atlante?

THEODORE: In the deacon's yard
A little sparrow is engaged.
Not a hawk he is; but a gentle fledgling . . . With a long, white bill, and he's a dear.
To visit a friend he went away.

THE NURSE AND THEODORE: (they come closer by degrees).
And the owl said softly, softly:
"The great harvest is threshed every day . . .
The deacon and his wife, each other will thrash very soon."
The grain took fire,
The deacon grew angry,
Attacked by terror,
He went into the granary,
Rage deep in his heart.
But his ears got scorched.

THEODORE: To the banquet set
The lords arrive;
Nice little cakes
Are ready on golden plates.
The bowmen, who come from afar,
Eat and drink . . . with uproar!
A cow and an ox the officer eats,
And pheasants six hundred too,
To fill his great big paunch!
Khliost! . . .
(He gives the Nurse a tap.)

THE NURSE: (catching sight of Boris and greeting him in a low voice).
Ah!

BORIS: (to the Nurse). What's that? A great hawk threatens the little ones?

THE NURSE: My Sovereign, forgive me.
I am an old woman and timorous . . .

BORIS: (to Xenia). Oh, my daughter! my dove! . . .
Scarcely betrothed, and yet a widow!
You weep constantly . . . no truce to your grief?

XENIA: Oh, my Sovereign, let not my bitter weeping Distress you.
So small a thing is my pain
Compared with your grief.

BORIS: (stroking his daughter's hair). Oh, my daughter! my dove! . . .
Go join your girlfriends in the terem:
You must divert yourself . . . amuse yourself.
(Xenia and the Nurse go out. Boris looks affectionately but sadly at his daughter.) Go, my daughter!
(to Theodore)
And you, what are you reading, my son —
An atlas?

TEODORO: La carta di Moscovia,
Da un punto all'altro il Regno.
Guarda: là Mosca e Novgorod,
Quì Kazàn, Astrakàn . . .
Ed il Mar Caspio.
Poi di Perm le folte boscaglie
E laggiù . . . la Siberia!

BORIS: Sì . . .sì . . . sta ben, figliuol.
D'un batter d'occhio, come dall'alto,
Tu puoi contemplar l'intero regno.
Frontiere, fiumi e città . . .
Impara ben. Verrà un giorno . . .
Chi lo sa . . ., ben presto,
Un dì t'apparterrà tutto l'imper.
Studia, fanciul.
(Si dirige verso la poltrona—Prende delle pergamene, che si trovano sulla tavola, e le scorre distrattamente.)
Ho il poter supremo!
Da cinque anni già, stringo lo scettro,
E l'alma cerca ognor la dolce tregua.
Invan tutti i maghi mi predisser,
Un regno lungo, savio e tranquil . . .
Ahimè! più nulla non mi seduce!
Nè gloria nè gli evviva . . .
Più nulla, mi può sedur!
(Inclina il capo pensoso.)
Nella famiglia, invan cercai la gioia . . .
Io preparai le nozze di mia figlia,
Della mia Xenia, la pura colomba . . .
Il suo fidanzato morì!
La man implacable di Dio pesò
Sull'alma mia nefanda,
E l'avvenir m'appar sì tetro,
Senza più traccia di speme!
Il cor si spezza e soffre . . .
L'anima mia s'esalta . . .
Io tremo . . . io fremo . . .
E pavento sventure! . . .
Per soffocar gli atroci rimorsi
Ai Santi innalzai le preci mie.
Nel fulgor del mio grande poter illimitato,
Io, Zar di Russia, mendicai il pianto che consola!
Maledizione! Tutti cospiran . . .
Ovenque insidie . . . e mine misteriose . . .
Grandi flagel . . .e peste e carestia!
Come animal gli affamati accrescon,
E 'l Regno inter piange e soffre!
Di questi mali orrendi, di cui il Cielo
Pel mio delitto, su me pesò,
Il popol me solo accusa!
E'l nome sacro di Boris L'esecran tutti!
Da me 'l sonno sfuggi . . . e nelle tenebre,
L'insanguinato fanciul chiede pietà!
Gli occhi atterriti . . . colle manine
Invocar grazia . . .
Ma non ottenne grazia! . . .
Vedo ancor la piaga orrenda . . .
Sento 'l rantol d'agonia . . .
(Cade accasciato sulla poltrona.)

THEODORE: The map of Moscow,
From one end of the realm to the other,
See: there Moscow and Novgorod,
Here Kazan, Astrakan . . .
And the Caspian Sea.
The Perm's thick woods . . .
And yonder . . . Siberia!

BORIS: Yes . . . yes . . . It is well, my son.
At a glance, as from above,
The entire realm you may contemplate,
Frontiers, rivers and towns . . .
Note them well . . . It may happen some day . . .
Who knows? . . . it may be soon,
All the Empire belongs to you!
Study, my boy.
(He walks towards the armchair, picks up some papers on the table and scans them distractedly.)
I have the supreme power!
For five years I have held the scepter.
And my soul still seeks sweet peace.
The magicians in vain foretold me:
"A long, wise and tranquil reign" . . .
Alas! Nothing attracts me more!
Nor glory nor applause . . .
Nothing can seduce me now!
(bowing his head thoughtfully)
Within my family I've sought in vain for joy . . .
I prepared my daughter's nuptials . . .
My Xenia's, my pure dove . . .
Her lover died!
God's implacable hand weighed
Over this nefarious soul of mine,
And the future appears so dark,
With no trace of hope!
My heart is rent and grievous . . .
My soul is vexed . . .
I tremble . . . I fret . . .
And disasters fear! . . .
To smother my atrocious remorses
I raised my prayers to the Saints.
Amid the splendor of my boundless power,
I, Tzar of Russia, for soothing tears implored!
Curses! All conspire . . .
Plots everywhere . . . and mysterious mines . . .
Great scourges . . . and pest and famine!
Like beasts, the famished multiply,
And the whole realm weeps and suffers!
These awful ills that Heaven,
For my crime, sends down on me,
My people ascribe to me alone!
And Boris's sacred name
Is loathed by all!
Sleep has flown from me . . . and in the dark,
That bleeding boy cries out for pity!
With looks terrified . . . with his little hands
He pleads for mercy . . .
But he obtained no mercy! . . .
I still see the ghastly wound . . .

Oh, dio! abbi pietà di me!

LE NUTRICI: (nelle quinte). Ei! Pst! Ei! Pst! Pst! Ei . . . Ei! . . .

BORIS: Qual frastuono!
(A suo figlio.)
Va a veder che cos'è ciò!

LE NUTRICI: (nelle quinte). Pst! Pst!

BORIS: (al Boiardo della Corte, che entra.) Ah: che rumor . . .
Che vuoi tu?

LE NUTRICI: (nelle quinte). Pst! Pst! Pst!
Ehi! . . . Ma fa mal! . . . Pst! Pst!

BORIS: Parla, alfin!

IL BOYARDO DELLA CORTE: Mio nobile Sovran,
Verso te viene il Prence Chouïsky Tutt'umil . . .

BORIS: Chouïsky? Può entrar,
(Con ironia)
Felice io sono di vedere il Prence . . .
M'alletta l'ascoltar . . .

IL BOIARDO DELLA CORTE: (a bassa voce, all'orecchio di Boris).
Ier sera venne un servo di Pouchkine,
Der denunziar Mstislawski, il Prence,
Ed altri boiardi—
Questa notte si videro in secreto . . .
Da Cracovia giunse un corrier con . . .

BORIS: (interrompendolo).
S'arresti!
(Il boiardo esce.)
Sì . . . Prence Chouïsky!
(A Teodoro che entra.) Ebben?

TEODORO: O, padre mio, Sovran . . .
Io non so se deggio turbar
Lo spirto tuo per una celia . . .

BORIS: Sì, sì, fanciul, racconta . . .
dimmi tutto . . .
(Accarezza suo figlio.)

TEODORO: (si siede sulle ginocchia di Boris). Il nostro pappagal
Popignka, faceva il ciarlon
Colle nutrici, che di lui ridevan,
E dava a loro il picciol capo
Chiedendo le carezze e i pasticcin . . .
La nutrice Nastia gli rifiutò i suoi baci.
Popignka s'irritò e "sciocca" la chiamò.
La balia, arrabbiata, lo prese pel collo . . .
Popignka, grindando, drizzò le sue piume . . .
Le donne lo calman, gli danno de dolci,
E poi, tutte in coro, gli chiedon perdon.

I still hear the death rattle of agony . . .
(He falls crushed into the armchair)
Oh, God! have pity on me!

THE NURSES: (from behind the scenes). Hey! Pst! Hey! Pst! Pst! Hey! Hey!

BORIS: (to his son). What an uproar!
Go see what it is.

THE NURSES: (from behind the scenes). Pst! Pst!

BORIS: (to the Court Boyar who enters). Ah! what a noise! . . .
What do you want?

THE NURSES: (from behind the scenes). Pst! Pst! Pst!
Hey! . . . But he hurts! . . . Pst! Pst!

BORIS: Speak!

THE COURT BOYAR: My noble Sovereign,
Prince Shouisky comes to you,
Most humbly . . .

BORIS: Shouisky? Let him enter,
(with irony)
I am glad to see the Prince . . . I like to hear him . . .

THE COURT BOYAR: (whispering in Boris's ear). Came last night a servant of Pouchine,
To denounce Prince Mstislawsky
And other Boyars —
Tonight they met secretly . . .
A courier has arrived from Cracow with . . .

BORIS: (interrupting) Let him be arrested!
(The Boyar goes out.)
Yes . . . Prince Shouisky!
(To Theodore who enters.) Well?

THEODORE: O, my father, my Sovereign . . .
I know not if I should trouble
Your mind with a trifling matter . . .

BORIS: Yes, yes, my boy, speak . . .
tell me all . . .
(Fondles his son.)

THEODORE: (seating himself on Boris's knees). Our parrot Popignka was chattering
With the nurses, who made sport of him;
He held out to them his little head
Begging caresses and cakes . . .
The nurse, Nastia, refused him her kisses.
Popignka, much provoked, called her 'silly'.
In anger the nurse caught him by the neck . . .
Shrieking, Popignka bristled his feathers . . .
Then the women to soothe him, gave him sweets,
And all in chorus asked his pardon.
But no . . . Popka is unrelenting . . .

Ma no . . . Popka non vuol . . .
Imbronciato cela il becco sotto l'ala . . .
Sgrida la nutrice, poi l'ingiuria,
E a tradimento, piomba sulla donna . . .
E si mette a beccar . . . e la vuol atterrar.
S'allarmano le altre e, con paura,
Gridan, cercando farlo entrar ne la gabbia.
Popka più fier . . . volle tutte beccar.
Sì, mio Sovran, da ciò venne il baccan! Fu Popka che turbò i gravi tuoi pensier.
Sì . . . tutto dissi, o nobil padre mio!

BORIS: (accarezza suo figlio con grande amore).
Oh, figlio! figliuol sì caro al mio cuor!
con qual'arte e con qual grazia
M'hai tutto raccontato.
Oh, come tu sai bene, senz'orpel,
Dettagliare un fatto sì banal.
La tua saggezza appar ed i tuoi studï.
La scienza coltiva.
Oh, se avessi la gran gioia
Di vederti regnar,
Di saperti Zar di Russia!
Oh, come tosto,
Sdegnando il mondó inter,
Per questo gaudio
Ti darei lo scettro grave! . . .

CHOUÏSKY: (entrando). Salve! o, nobil Sovran!

BORIS: (al Principe Chouïsky).
Ah, glorioso ciarlatan,
Ed abil condottier d'insana folla . . .
Capo ribel dei boiardi infedel,
Nemico del trono, dello Zar,
Vil mentitor, tre volte spergiur,
Adulator, ipocrita,
Fabbricator d'ostia, vestito da boiardo, . . .
Buffon!

CHOUÏSKY: Zar, è grave . . .
Apporto nuove che ti turberan . . .

BORIS: Parli delle azion d'antichi amici tuoi
Tutti in disgrazia,
Che il segreto corrier ti fe' conoscer?

CHOUÏSKY: Sì, Sovran.
Un impostor si fa credere Zar.
Il Re, il papa, credon tutti a lui.

BORIS: (turbato, si solleva dalla poltrona). Ma sotto qual nome, si cela il traditor?
Qual nome assume l'impostor?
Qual nome?! . . .

CHOUÏsky: Il tuo trono, Zar, è incrollabil.
Pei tuoi favor, pel zel, per il tuo core,

Under his wing he sulkily hides his beak.
He scolds the nurse, then abuses her,
And swoops down treacherously on the woman . . .
Pecking at her, bearing her down . . .
The others in alarm, with frightened cries,
Try to lure him to his cage.
Popka, with increasing fury, tries all to bite.
Yes, my Sovereign, this caused the bustle!
Popka it was who disturbed your serious thoughts.
Yes . . . that is all, my noble father!

BORIS: (caressing his son with intense feeling).
Oh, son! my son, beloved of my heart!
With what art and grace
You have related all.
How well you know, without artifice,
To tell minutely this simple fact.
Your wisdom is seen and your studies.
Knowledge seek and cherish.
Oh, could I but know the joy
Of seeing you wisely rule,
As Russia's Tzar!
Oh, how readily,
Scorning the entire world,
For this one happiness
I would yield to you the weighty scepter! . . .

SHOUIKY: (entering). Hail, noble Sovereign!

BORIS: (to Prince Shouisky). Ah, glorious charlatan,
And able leader of a crazy crowd . . .
Rebellious chief of faithless Boyars,
Enemy of the throne and of the Tzar,
Base liar, thrice a perjurer,
Hypocritical flatterer;
Baker of wafers, dressed-up Boyer . . .
Buffoon!

SHOUISKY: Tzar, it is grave . . .
I bear news that shall trouble you . . .

BORIS: The deeds of your old friends you mean . . .
All in disgrace,
Who did the secret messenger disclosed to you?

SHOUISKY: Yes, my Sovereign;
An impostor claims to be the Tzar.
The King, the Pope, all believe in him.

BORIS: (disturbed, rises from the armchair). But under what name does the traitor hide?
What name assumes the impostor?
What name? . . .

SHOUISKY: Your throne, Tzar, is unshaken.
By your favors, your zeal and your heart

Conquidere sai tu l'alma di tutti,
E son devoti alla tua maestà!
Ma bench'io soffra, Zar, o nobil mio sovran,
Benchè tutt'il mio cor si schianti dal dolor,
Per certo io tacer non oserò,
Che se il mariuol, contando sull'audacia,
Arriva a penetrar nel Regno tuo,
Verso Dimitri il popol correrà,
Sedotto da quel nom, ch'egli risorge! . . .

BORIS: (con terrore). Dimitri!
(A suo figlio)
Ci lascia, zarevic . . .

TEODORO: O, Sovran, permettimi ch'io resti presso te.
Conoscer vo' il periglio che mina il tuo poter!

BORIS: Oh, no . . . no . . . mio figliuol! . . .
Zarevic, Zarevic, devi obbedir!
(Boris conduce suo figlio, poi chiude la porta e ritorna a Chouïsky.)
Noi tosto agirem—
Che il Regno sia cinto di barriere,
E sott'alcun pretesto, niun varcherà le mura.
Agisci.
(Ferdinando Chouïsky, che stà per uscire.)
No . . . attendi ancor . . . Chouïsky.
Hai tu, per caso, inteso dir
Che dei fanciulli uccisi, sorgan dal loro avel
Per conturbar gli Zar? Gli Zar leggittimi, Eletti dal popolo?! . . .
Zar, consacrati dal gran patriarca?! . . .
(Scoppia a ridere di un riso selvaggio)
Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah! . . .
Di . . . ridi?! . . .
(Afferrando Chouïsky pel collo).
Ah! no ridi più . . . eh?! . . .

CHOUÏSKY: Perdona, Zar, potente sovran . . .

BORIS: Prence, dimmi: il dì che si compì
L'empio delitto; quand'il fanciul . . .
Perì tragicamente . . .
Dimmi: il fanciul . . . era ben . . . era Dimitri?

CHOUÏSKY: Sì!

BORIS: Vassili Ivanovitch,
Per il Cristo divin
Io ti scongiuro, mi svela tutto quel che sai!
Io son buon . . . tu lo sai ben . . .
Ma se ti vuoi celar . . . oh, guai a te! . . .
Inventerò un martir così crudel
Ch'Ivan istesso, trasaliria d'orror
Ne la sua tomba! . . . Rispondi a me! . . .

CHOUÏSKY: La tua disgrazia io temo e non la morte!
Nel tempio d'Ouglitch, dinanzi al popol,

To conquer the soul of all you know;
All are devoted to your majesty!
But even should I suffer, Tzar, my sovereign,
Even should my heart burst with aching,
I dare not keep silent now.
If that knave set food within your realm,
Towards Dimitri all will hasten,
Led by that name which he revives.

BORIS: (in terror). Dimitri!
(To his son)
Leave us, Tzarevitch . . .

THEODORE: Oh, Sovereign, let me remain near you,
I would know the dangers which menace your power!

BORIS: Oh, no . . . no . . . my son! . . .
Tzarevitch, Tzarevitch, you must obey me!
(Boris leads away his son, then closing the door, he returns to Shouisky.)
We shall act at once . . .
Let the entire realm be guarded,
Under no pretext must a single person pass the walls.
See to it.
(Stopping Shouisky)
No . . . wait . . . Shouisky.
Have you, perhaps, heard it said
That murdered boys from their graves would rise
To harass the Tzars? The rightful Tzars,
By the people elected?! . . .
Tzars anointed by the great Patriarch?! . . .
(He bursts into wild laughter)
Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah! . . .
Say . . . you laugh?! . . .
(Grasping Shouisky by the neck)
Ah! you laugh no more . . . eh?! . . .

SHOUISKY: Pardon, Tzar, powerful Sovereign . . .

BORIS: Prince, tell me: the day which saw
That frightful crime committed; when the boy . . .
Perished so tragically . . .
Tell me: the boy . . . was surely . . . Dimitri?

SHOUISKY: Yes!

BORIS: Vassili Ivanovitch,
By Christ Divine,
I beg you, tell me all you know!
I am good . . . you know well . . .
But if you seek to conceal . . . Oh, woe to you!
I will invent a torment so cruel
That Ivan himself would shrink in horror
Within his grave! . . . Answer me!

SHOUISKY: I fear your displeasure, not death!
In the church of Uglitch, before the people,

A lungo contemplai quel piccol morto.
Intorno a lui giacean ben trenta corpi
Informi e orrendi . . . sangue e poltiglia . . .
E da quei corpi sprigionava il lezzo!
Ma il viso del figliuol del Zar Ivan,
Era intatto . . .
Intorno al collo una piaga rossastra . . .
E su le labbra ancor si disegnava
Il sorriso gentil d'un cherubin . . .
Parea dormir placidamente,
Stanco, nella sua culla, le braccia in croce,
Stringendo nella man un ninnolo infantil!

BORIS: Oh! . . . oh . . . taci!
(Fa segno a Chouïsky di allontanarsi. Il Principe esce, gettando uno sguardo furtivo a Boris. Lo Zar ricade, accasciato, sulla poltrona.)
Oh, soffocai! . . . il respir mi mancò . . .
Com'onde agitate, il sangue
Battè le tempia, senza cessa . . .
Oh, fragil coscienza! tu vuoi l'espiazion! . . .
(La scena s'oscura; la pendola suona.)
Sì, basta . . . lo so . . . lo so . . . basta
Ch'una piccola macchia l'offuschi
E l'alma s'infiamma . . .
E 'l cor s'empie di pena!
Io soffro tutte le morti! . . .
Ed il rimorso, come un martel,
Ognor batte al mio cervel . . .
La strozza si serra . . . si serra . . .
La ragion perdo . . . vacilla . . .
Vedo il fanciul . . . di sangue intriso . . .
Là . . . laggiù . . . chi muovesi colà?! . . .
Ei vien verso me . . . ancor . . .
Ei trasal . . . geme . . . ed implora . . .
Va . . . va . . . va via! . . .
(Scaccia lo spettro)
Non son'io . . . no . . . l'assassin! . . .
No, no, fanciul! . . . non io . . . non io . . .
Ma il popol fu . . .
Va . . . fanciul!
(Nasconde il volto fra le mani e, affranto, cade in ginocchio innanzi alla poltrona, quasi biascicasse un'orazione.)
O, Signor! . . . abbi tu pietà del peccator . . .
Proteggi di Boris l'alma colpevol!
(Cala la tela.)

FINE DELL'ATTO SECONDO.

Long I gazed upon that tiny corpse;
Around him lay fully thirty bodies,
Shapeless and ghastly . . . blood and mire . . .
And from those bodies the stench released itself!
But the face of Tzar Ivan's son
Was undisfigured . . .
Around the neck a reddish wound . . .
And the lips still bore
The gentle smile as of a cherub . . .
He seemed to slumber placidly, tired out, in his cradle, his arms crossed,
Holding a childish toy in his hands!

BORIS: Oh! . . . oh . . . no more!
(He bids Shouisky retire. The Prince goes out, casting a furtive glance at Boris. The Tzar drops again into the armchair, crushed.)
Oh, I choked . . . breath failed me . . .
As though the blood, like tossing waves,
Throbbed at my temples endlessly . . .
Oh, frail conscience! you claim atonement! . . .
(The scene darkens, the clock strikes.)
Yes, enough . . . I know it . . . I know enough!
For a little stain to tarnish it;
And my soul seethes within me . . .
And my heart is filled with pain! . . .
I suffer all deaths.
And remorse, like a hammer,
Beats ever on my brain . . .
The throttle closes . . . closes . . .
My reason I am losing . . . it totters . . .
I behold the boy . . . bathed in blood . . .
There . . . yonder . . . Who stirs there!? . . .
He approaches me . . . again
He shudders . . . groans . . . and implores . . .
Go . . . Go . . . get away from here!
(Chasing the specter)
I am not . . . not . . . the assassin!
No, no, boy . . . not I . . . not I . . .
But the people were . . . Go . . . boy!
(He conceals his face in his hands and, broken, drops on his knees before the armchair, as if mumbling a prayer.)
O Lord . . . have mercy on the sinner . . .
Protect the guilty soul of Boris!
(Curtain.)

END OF ACT TWO.

ATTO III.

SCENA I.

I castello di Mnichek. Un giardino. Una fontana. La scena è rischiarata dai raggi della luna.

IL FALSO DIMITRI: (esce dal Castello, quasi sognando). "Stasera alla fontana". Voce divina!
De qual delizia mi sogghioghi l'alma!
(S'avvicina alla fontana)
Verrai tu, al mio dolce appel?
Ah! sei tu del mio cor tutta la speme! . . .
No . . . non scordar colui che tanto ti ama . . .
Tu vedi le sue pene, e 'l suo soffrir . . .
Deh, vieni a consolar la mia tristezza,
Col tuo sorriso angelico e divino . . .
Marina! Marina!
Rispondi . . . oh . . . rispondi!
Oh, vien . . . vien . . . io t'attendo! . . .
T'attendo quì. Rispondi . . . Son'io che ti chiamo . . .
No . . . non v'è alcun! . . .

RANGONI: Zarèvic!

DIMITRI: Ancor tu?!
L'ombra mia che mi persegue!

RANGONI: Augusto e valoroso Zarevic,
Son quì, perchè m'inviò mia figlia Marina.

DIMITRI: Marina?

RANGONI: La figlia spiritual che Dio mi diè.
Desidera sappiate
Che un malesser la tormenta,
Causato dall'amor che la strugge . . .
E ch'ella quì verrà.

DIMITRI: Oh, se il vero tu dicessi . . .
Oh, se Satàn non fosse,
Che t'inspira questi detti . . .
Con me io condurrei la mia colomba in Russia,
Con me l'innalzerei al tron dei Zar,
Offuscando il mondo inter col suo splendor.
Vil diavol!
Il fondo del mio cor tu vuoi certo penetrar,
E menti per strapparmi il grande arcan.
Marina non mi ama!

RANGONI: Io mento? . . . Mentire a te, Zarevic.
A te sol, notte e dì pensa Marina,
E soffre ognor per te.
Nella calma della notte
Ella sogna il tuo valor . . .
Se 'l tuo cor non vacillasse . . .
Se sapesse il suo martir . . .
Ciò che divora per l'ipocrita invidia,

ACT III.

SCENE I.

The Castle of Michek. A Garden. A Fountain. The scene is lighted by the moon.

THE FALSE DIMITRI: (coming from the Castle, almost dreamily). "Tonight at the fountain." Divine voice!
With what joy have you overcome the soul?
(Approaching the fountain)
Will you come at my sweet call?
Ah! you are my heart's one hope!
No! . . . forget not him who loves you . . .
You behold his pain and suffering . . .
Oh! come, console my sadness,
With your smile divine and tender.
Marina! Marina!
Answer . . . Oh, answer!
Oh, come . . . come . . . I await you!
I await you here. Answer . . . it is I who call you.
No . . . no one is there! . . .

RANGONI: Tzarevitch!

DIMITRI: You again?!
My shadow pursuing me!

RANGONI: August and valiant Tzarevitch,
Here I am, sent by my daughter Marina.

DIMITRI: Marina?

RANGONI: The spiritual daughter whom God gave me.
She wishes you to know
How tormented she is by unrest,
Caused by the love which consumes her . . .
And that she shall come here.

DIMITRI: Oh, if you would speak the truth . . .
Oh, if it were not Satan who Inspires in you these words
I would take my dove with me to Russia,
To raise her with me to the throne of the Tzars,
To dazzle the entire world by her splendor.
Vile tempter!
You seek to enter into the depths of my heart,
And lie to snatch from me the great secret.
Marina does not love me!

RANGONI: I lie? . . . lie to you, Tzarevitch?
Of you alone, Marina thinks night and day,
And ever suffers for you.
In the quiet of the night
Of your valor she dreams . . .
If your heart would not waver . . .
If it would know her affliction . . .
And what she endures from the de-

Di color che la circondan,
E fanno allusion a segreti convegni,
A scambio di carezze!
Oh se ciò tu comprendessi . . .
Dubbio alcun più non avresti,
Nè per me, nè per Marina!

DIMITRI: Non più! Cessa il tuo biasmo!
A lungo io domai la fiamma ardente.
Dell'amor mio sublime! . . .
(con tono cupo)
Marina non ha più nulla a temer . . .
Piegherò il lor ardir . . .
Di quelle donne sventerò le trame,
E dei raggiri lor io riderò,
Poi, al cospetto, delle dame altere, l'amor mio dischiarerò, Marina!
(Con slancio)
A' piedi suoi mi getterò implorando
D'ascoltar l'amor mio . . .
D'esser mia sposa e Zarina!

RANGONI: (fra sè). Che Sant'Ignazio ti protegga!

DIMITRI: Tu che il mondo diserti;
Tu che rifuggi le gioie della vita,
Esperto sei nell'arte di tentar . . .
Oh, ascoltami ben! Per tutto ciò che t'è sacro, Per l'eterna salute, io ti scongiuro,
Da lei, deh mi conduci e lascia che l'ammiri . . .
Che le dica i miei strazi e le mie pene . . .
Poi, chiedi a me tutto quel che vuoi!

RANGONI: Umil frate che medita, prego per tutto, E penso a Dio e agli orrendi castighi, che'l suo giusto furor ci serbò,
Per il dì del giudizio final!
Io son la tomba!
Che m'importa de' tesor che tu m'offri?
Però, se Dimitri a Dio s'inspira,
Se esaudisce il mio desir,
Ei vorrà che io lo segua,
Che non lo lasci mai,
Ch'io conosca i suoi pensier . . .
Che vegli su di lui . . . che lo protegga!

DIMITRI: Sì; starò sempre con te,
Se mi fai veder Marina!
Vo' ammirarla . . . vo' parlarle!

RANGONI: Ti cela, Zarevic.

DIMITRI: E perchè?

RANGONI: La folla dei magnati scorgerà la tua presenza.
Deh, va . . . Zarevic . . . ten prego; ti salva!

ceitful envy
Of those who surround her,
Who hint at secret meetings,
Of caresses there exchanged!
Oh, if you could understand . . .
Then never a doubt would you encourage,
Either of me or of Marina!

DIMITRI: No more! Cease your censure.
Full long I've smothered the flame
Of my love sublime! . . .
(in a gloomy voice)
Nothing more must Marina fear . . .
Their impudence I shall crush . . .
The plots of those women I shall expose,
And at their trickery I shall laugh.
Then, even before the haughty ladies,
I shall declare my love to Marina!
(With heat)
At her feet I shall fall imploring
That she listen to my love . . .
And be my spouse and Tzarina!

RANGONI: (to himself). May Saint Ignatius protect you!

DIMITRI: You who deserted the world;
You who fled the joys of life,
An expert in the tempter's art . . .
Oh, hear me well! By all that is sacred to you.
By your eternal salvation, I conjure you,
To lead me to her that I may admire . . .
And tell her of my suffering and pains . . .
Then ask whatever you wish from me!

RANGONI: A humble, meditating friar, I pray for all:
I think of God and of the awful penance
That His just wrath reserves for us,
On the day of final judgement!
As the grave am I!
What care I for the treasure you offer?
But if Dimitri is inspired by God
And if he seeks to grant my wish,
Then he will need me as companion;
Never to leave him for an instant,
To know all his surging thoughts . . .
To watch over him . . . to protect him!

DIMITRI: Yes; I shall always be with you,
If you show me Marina!
I must admire her . . . I must speak to her!

RANGONI: Conceal yourself, Tzarevitch.

DIMITRI: Why?

RANGONI: The approaching magnates would see you.
Pray, go . . . Tzarevitch . . . I beg you; save yourself.

DIMITRI: Che vengan. Li accoglierò
Secondo il lor rango ed il merto . . .

RANGONI: Stà in guardia, Zarevic; se tu quì resti, Tu rischi di perder Marina!
T'invola . . . m'ascolta! (Una folla d'invitati esce, dal castello. Avanti a tutti è Marina, che dà il braccio ad un vecchio signore polacco. Gli invitati attraversano la scena, a coppie.)

MARINA: (al suo cavaliere) Il vostro amor mi lascia indifferente;
I vostri giur, per me, son frasi vane;
E mai fede non avrò ne'vostri accenti.
(passano nel giardino.)

I CAVALIERI: Vincerem la Moscovia in un sol di!
Faremo prigionier i Moscoviti,
E di Boris annienterem le truppe!

LE DAME: Su Mosca piombate d'un tratto;
Catturate quel perfido Zar! . . .
(passano nel giardino.)

I CAVALIERI: (rientrando nel castello). I vili Moscoviti
Pei Polacchi son oltraggio!

LE DAME: Marina è bella . . . ma forse
A noi, non può giovar!

MARINA: (dall'alto della scalinata agli invitati) Del vin! del vin! del vin! ospiti miei!

GLI OSPITI: In onor dei prodi Mnichek,
Beviam il vin, e viva la divina Mnichek!
Gloria a la corona di Marina!
(nelle quinte)
Viva! viva! viva!
(Marina e gli ospiti entrano nel castello.)

DIMITRI: (entra in scena correndo). Il vil gesuita m'ha sì fortemente Stretto fra le grinfe,
Che appena potei, da lontano,
Gettar su Marina un sol guardo! . . .
Offuscato restai dal divino fulgor
Degli occhi suoi . . .
Il cor mio s'infrangeva,
E per elle sentiva il desir,
D'essere sol! Come bramava
D'allontanar quel frate falso ed ipocrita!
Declamò senza cessa dei discorsi,
Delle frasi imprudenti! . . .
Ed io . . . io scorsi nel giardin Marina
Che dava il braccio ad un nobil messere:
Vidi la bella prodigar sorrisi . . .
Sentii la frasi dolci ed amorose,
E che accettò di diventar sua sposa!
La sposa di colui . . . d'uno sventato . . .
Quand'il destin le offre l'amor mio;
La gloria . . . lo scettro . . .
La corona di Moscovia!

DIMITRI: Let them come. I shall receive them
As their merit and rank befit . . .

RANGONI: Be on guard, Tzarevitch: if you remain here,
You may lose Marina!
Fly now . . . Follow my advice!
(A company of guests comes from the Castle. At their head walks Marina, leaning on the arm of an old Polish gentleman. The guests cross the stage in couples.)

MARINA: (to her escort). Your love leaves me indifferent.
To me your oaths are vain expressions,
And never shall I trust in your tones.
(Both pass into the garden.)

THE KNIGHTS: We shall vanquish Moscow in a single day!
The Moscovites make prisoners
And the troups of Boris annihilate!

THE LADIES: Fall upon Moscow with a single stroke;
Capture that perfidious Tzar.
(They enter the garden.)

THE KNIGHTS: (reentering the castle). The vile Moscovites
Are hateful to the Poles!

THE LADIES: Marina is beautiful, but, perhaps,
She cannot be of use to us.

MARINA: (from the top of the guest stairs).
Some wine! some wine! My guests!

THE GUESTS: In honor of gallant Mnichek,
Let us quaff the wine, and long live his lady!
Glory to the crown of Marina!
(From behind the scenes)
Viva! Viva! Viva!
(Marina and the Guests enter the Castle.)

DIMITRI: (rushing in). The base Jesuit has Kept me so securely within his clutches,
That scarcely could I throw from afar
Even a single glance at Marina! . . .
I was blinded by the divine splendor
Of her eyes . . .
My heart was bursting within me
And, for her, I felt the wish
To be alone! How I longed
To have that monk, false and deceitful, leave me!
Without rest he declaimed long speeches
And impudent phrases! . . .
And I . . . I in the garden Marina beheld,
Leaning on the arm of a noble lord;
The fair one I saw squandering her smiles . . .
I heard sweet and amorous phrases,
And her consent to be his spouse!
The spouse of him . . . a witling . . .
When fate offers her my love;

No.. non più! . . . Riprenderò l'usbergo fulgido . . .
La spada ed il cimier!
Poi sul destrier . . . alla testa . . . nell'accanita mischia!
Sì; alla testa con lor . . . con i miei prodi . . .
Contro lo Zar Boris,
E vittorioso avrò
Il tron degli avi miei!

MARINA: (entrando). Dimitri . . . Zarevic . . . Dimitri

DIMITRI: È lei Marina!
(Va ad incontrarla)
Tu, mia regina, o angel di beltà!
Oh, l'attesa fu lunga e tanto triste . . .
Quand'il cervel si trazia,
Da gelosia corroso,
Il cor, invaso dai tormenti, ottenebra il pensier,
Ed esecra l'amor . . . la sua regina!

MARINA: Stà ben . . . tutto io so!
Non dorme più! Notte e giorno
Sogna all'amor e vive per Marina!
No! . . . da te qui venni
Per parlarti di cose ben gravi e non d'amor
Sol, tu puoi, se ti piace,
Frèmere e spasimar d'amor per me!

DIMITRI: Marina!

MARINA: No! s'anco, per amor mio,
La vita tua tu m'offiri,
Muto 'l mio cor sarà!
Quando a Mosca, entrerai come Zar?

DIMITRI: Io Zar? Marina, ho lo spavento in cor!
Di Zar il nome, del tron il fulgido splendor,
Di schiavi vili e adulator lo stuolo,
In te spensero l'amor . . .
E l'ardente desio d'abbandonarti
Alle dolci carezze,
Alla mia tenerezza,
E all'estasi adorata di questa mia passion?

MARINA: Or via, finiam!
Oh, degli innamorati, conosco ben l'adagio:
"Un tugurio ed il tuo cor, e felici noi sarem."
Ascolta ben, Zarèvic; pel tuo frivolo amor,
Potrai tu sceglier, fra tante Moscovite,
Una bella dagli occhi di foco! . . .

DIMITRI: Oh, no . . . sei tu! tu sol che desiro!
L'angelo mio sei tu! . . . tu, l'amor mio!
Abbi pietà del profondo dolor . . .
Non mi cacciar da te!

MARINA: Per te, Marina non è che un amante . . .
Un trastul!
Ebben no! Solo il tron dei Zar,
La lor corona sol, potran tentarmi!

And glory . . . the scepter . . .
The crown of Moscow!
No . . . enough! . . . I shall wear again the shining hauberk . . .
The sword and helmet!
Then on the charger . . . leading . . . in the savage tussle!
Yes! at the head . . . of my brave warriors . . .
Against the Tzar Boris,
And victorious I shall receive
The throne of my forefathers!

MARINA: (entering). Dimitri! . . . Tzarevitch . . . Dimitri

DIMITRI: It is she, Marina!
(Moving to meet her)
You, my queen, an angel of beauty!
Oh, how long the waiting and how sad!
When the mind is torn apart,
Corroded by jealousy, the heart, tormented, dims the thought
And curses love . . . its queen!

MARINA: It is well . . . I know it all.
He sleeps no more! Night nor day
He dreams of love and lives but for Marina!
No I came to you
To speak of things the gravest, but not of love.
Alone, you may if it please you,
Rave and pine of love for me!

DIMITRI: Marina!

MARINA: No! Even if you gave your life
In love for me,
Heedless my heart shall be!
When shall you enter Moscow as its Tzar?

DIMITRI: I, a Tzar? Marina, fear fills my heart!
The name of Tzar, the throne's effulgent splendor,
Vile slaves and crowds of flatterers
Have slain all love in you . . .
And, with it, the ardent longing, yes, to yield yourself
To sweet caresses,
To my tender love for you
And to the raptures of my passion!

MARINA: Come, let's end this!
I know well the lovers' adage:
"A hut and you, and happy we shall be!"
Listen, Tzarevitch; for your foolish love
You shall choose among the many Moscovites
A fair one with eyes of fire!

DIMITRI: Oh, no! It is you!
I wish for you alone!
You are my angel,
You, my love!
Have pity on my sorrow,
Drive me not from you!

MARINA: For you Marina is but mistress . . .
A plaything!
No! Only the throne of the Tzars,
And their crown can tempt me!

DIMITRI: Tu ferisci 'l mio cor, crudel polacca . . .
Gli acerbi detti tuoi, lo fan penar!
Guarda . . . mi prostro ai tuoi piè . . .
Umil imploro l'amor da te . . .
Deh! . . . alimenta questa fiamma!

MARINA: (sarcastica). No, mio tenero amoroso . . .
Non ti prostrar . . . ti leva!
Povero martir! mi fai pietà!
Ti compiango perchè soffri . . .
Perchè d'amor, tu langui per Marina . . .
Notte e dì sogni di lei . . .
E non pensi a la corona . . .
E non pensi più a Boris! . . .
Va . . . vagabondo!

DIMITRI: Marina! taci!

MARINA: Va, salariato! va . . . servo vil!

DIMITRI: Oh, Marina!
Hai tu il diritto di rinfacciarmi
Tutto quel che soffersi nel passato?
Tu menti! sì, menti, polacca! . . .
Io son lo Zar!
Con me dei combattenti accorron . . .
Domani all'alba io vo' partir con essi,
E capo lor sarò!
Sul Kremlino da prodi piomberem,
Per conquistar il tron degli avi miei;
Con qual gioia di te mi riderò!
Oh, in quel dì le lagrime di duol tu verserai,
Per lo scettro perduto! Umile
Allor ti vedrò ed implorante,
Al piedi del mio trono nel Kremlin;
Ma tutti, al mio comando, della stolta
Polacca rideran!

MARINA: Rideran! . . .
O, Zarevic, t'imploro!
Sii clemente . . . perdona i detti miei!
Me l'inspirar non l'odio;
Ma la speme nel tuo fato!
Ti desiro la gloria e 'l poter . . .
Credi a me . . . ti seguirò
Io t'amo!
O, mio prode, Marina fedel ti sarà!
Ma pensa . . . pensa a te . . .
Il tron t'attende già . . .
Correr tu dei laggiù nel tuo Kremlin!

DIMITRI: Marina!
Cessa di fingere il santo amor . . .
Strazii indicibili mi fai soffrir!

MARINA: Oh, t'amo, prode guerrier,
Il mio signor sei tu!

DIMITRI: Oh, ripetimi, Marina,
Deh, repeti quegli accenti!
Solo il tuo fascin mi può inebbriar!

DIMITRI: You wound my heart, cruel lady of Poland . . .
Your words are as shafts to my heart!
See . . . I kneel at your feet,
Humbly before you I plead for your love,
Oh, nourish this flame in my bosom!

MARINA: (sarcastically). No! my tender love-swain!
Kneel not there . . . arise!
Poor martyr, you make me pity you!
Because you suffer so . . .
Because of love you languish for Marina . . .
Night and day you dream of her . . .
And you think not of the crown,
Nor think of Boris!
Worthless one, leave!

DIMITRI: Marina! Say no more!

MARINA: Go, hireling! Leave! Vile serf!

DIMITRI: Oh, Marina!
Have you right to reproach me thus
For all that I have suffered in the past?
You lie, yes, lie, Lady of Poland!
I am that Tzar! . . .
Around me soldiers gather
And tomorrow, at dawn, I join them,
And I'll be their chief!
We shall fall upon the Kremlin, like heroes,
To conquer the throne of my forefathers;
And the day that sees me Tzar
With what joy I shall laugh at you!
Oh, on that day your tears shall flow
For the lost scepter.
You'll be humble!
Then shall I see you there imploring
At my throne in the Kremlin;
But at my command, all shall laugh
At the foolish Lady of Poland!

MARINA: They shall laugh!
Oh, Tzarevitch, I implore you!
Be merciful . . . forgive my speech!
Not hate inspired me
But my trust in your destiny!
I wish for you both glory and power . . .
Believe me . . . I shall follow you . . .
I love you!
Oh, my valiant, Marina shall be true to you!
But think . . . think of yourself . . .
The throne awaits you;
Make haste to the Kremlin!

DIMITRI: Marina! Cease to feign a holy love . . . You cause me indescribable pangs!

MARINA: Oh, I love you, brave warrior.
You are my lord!

DIMITRI: Oh, repeat to me, Marina,
Do repeat those words!
Your charm alone can enrapture me!

MARINA: (si getta a' suoi ginocchi). O, mio Zar!

DIMITRI: Vien, Marina, il mio perdon ricevi,
Fra le braccia del tuo sposo!
Egli t'attende.

MARINA: Mio signor, tu mi rendi la speme!
Son tua! conquistator!
(s'abbracciano.)
(Rangoni attraversa la scena e, al momento in cui s'abbracciano, s'arresto soddisfatto della sua vittoria.)

GLI OSPITI: (nelle quinte) Viva! viva! viva!
(Cala la tela).

SCENA II.

La foresta di Kromy. A destra, degli spettatori, un pendio da cui comincia la strada, che attraversa la scena. In lontananza, si scorgono le mura della città. Sulla vetta del pendio, un grosso tronco d'albero. Rimpetto gli spettatori, la foresta. È notte. All'alzarsi del sipario, nelle quinte s'odono delle grida selvaggie di vagabondi. Essi sbucano, in folla, dal pendio, e invadono la scena. Conducono il boiardo Khroutchov legato, colle vesti lacere, ed il capo scoperto.

I VAGABONDI: Sia tratto qui, e adagiatel sul tronco, fratelli!
Così.
(fanno sedere il prigioniero sul tronco)
Piochè vuol urlar, curar noi dobbiam
La nobil sua strozza!
L'imbavagliam!
(Imbavagliano Khroutchov con lembi di vesti, e lo legono al tronco con una cinghia.)
Amen!
(Accendono dei fuochi.)

GLI UOMINI: Che, fratelli . . .
Senza scorta, quel boiardo vorreste lasciar?
Noi protestiam! Egli è certo un grand'uom!
Lo Zar Boris rubò 'l tron e la corona,
Ed ei rubò al ladron!
Eh! . . . rendiamogli gli onor,
Che meritò questo cialtron!
Eh! . . . vio . . . Fomka, Epihan, in guardia là!
(Due uomini armati di staffile, escono dalla folla, e si mettono acconte Khroutchov.)

LA FOLLA: Amen!

LE DONNE: Ma che dite voi di ciò?
Si dice che 'l boiardo,
Una bella ancor non abbia . . .
Ma sarà ver?
Senz'un amante
Il boiardo è un alvear
Privo di miel—

MARINA: (throwing herself at his knees). Oh, my Tzar!

DIMITRI: Come, Marina, my pardon receive,
In the arms of your spouse.
He awaits you.

MARINA: My Lord, you give hope again!
I am yours! O conqueror! (They embrace.) (Rangoni, crossing the stage at the very moment they embrace each other, stops, enjoying the triumph of his victory.)

THE GUESTS: (from behind the scenes). Viva! Viva! Viva!
(Curtain.)

SCENE II.

The Forest of Kromy. At right of audience a slope, where starts a road crossing the scene. In distance the walls of the city. At top of slope, the large trunk of a tree. Facing the audience, the forest. It is night. As the curtain goes up, from behind the scenes the wild shouts of the Vagrants are heard. They rush down the slope into the scene, invading it. They bring the Boyar Khroutchov with them, bound, his dress torn and his head bare.

VAGRANTS: Bring him here, lay him on the trunk, brothers! There!
(They compel the prisoner to sit on the trunk.)
Since he wishes to shout, then we must cure
The noble's throttle! Let us gag him!
(They gag Khroutchov with bits of torn clothing and bind him to the trunk with a strap.)
Amen!
(They light fires.)

THE MEN: What, brothers . . .
Without an escort would you leave that Boyar?
We protest! Surely, a great man he!
The Tzar Boris stole the throne, the crown
This one stole from the robber!
What say? . . . Let's render him honors
Deserved by the scoundrel!
Eh? . . . Here . . . Fomka, Epihan, on guard here!
(Two men carrying whips detach themselves from the crown and stand at the side of Khroutchov.)

THE CROWD: Amen!

THE WOMEN: What do you think of this?
It is said that the handsome Boyar
Has no lady love . . .
Shall this be true?
Without a mistress
The Boyar a beehive resembles

Afimia, colomba,
A quanto dicon,
Tra poco avrai cent'anni!
Sicura ne sei tu?
T'avanza, mio tesor, vers'il boiardo.
(Una vecchia, gemendo e tossendo, si dirige verso Khroutchov.)

UOMINI E DONNE: T'avanza! ah, ah, ah, ah, ah!
Amen! A lui rendiam gli onor!

GLI UOMINI: Eh, voi . . . donne; cominciate?!

LE DONNE: (si dispongono in mezzo cerchio, attortorno al boiardo). Il bel falco batte l'ali?
È un corsier che caracolla?
È il boiardo, gran messer,
Che pensa e che reflette notte e dì?

TUTTI: (salutando il boiardo). Gloria, gloria al gran boiardo, Gloria al suo Zar Boris; gloria!

VOCI DI UOMINI: Eh, donne! il buon boiardo ha perduto 'l suo frustin!
Invece del baston . . . lo staffil!
(metteno uno staffilo fra le mani del boiardo)
Va ben . . . continuate . . .

LE DONNE: Il buon boiardo pensa notte e dì
Per contentar lo Zar,
Come potrà batter a morte,
La brava gente ed i cristian!

TUTTI: (salutando). Gloria a questo buon boiardo, Gloria al suo Zar Boris!
Gloria!
(si avvicinano tutti al boiardo)
Ei sempre ci colmò de'suoi favor!
(lo salutano)
Per non sporcar di fango i tuoi calzar,
Ti facevi portar dai nostri figli!
(lo salutano ancora)
Ed a suon di staffil li commandavi!
Sia Gloria al gran boiardo, gloria al suo Zar Boris!
Gloria! gloria a te!
(lo salutano profondamente.)
(A destra, sulla strada, accorre l'Innocente. Ha sul capo un elmo di latta. Egli è incatenato: i suoi peidi son nudi, ed ha in mano un sandalo di vimini.)

I BIRICCHINI: Trrr . . . elmo di latta! elmo di latta!
Trrr . . . elmo di latta!
U—liù, liù, liù, liù, liù, liù . . . trrr . . .
(Qualche uomo e qualche donna, minaccia i biricchini, che si tacciono).

L'INNOCENTE: (siede su di un sasso e canta, dondolandosi, ed accomodando il suo sandalo).
Luna bianca
Il gatto piange!
Innocente sta tranquil . . .

Wanting in honey . . .
Afinia, my dove,
By what they say
Soon a hundred you shall be,
You know it well.
Approach, my treasure, come to the Boyar! (An old woman, groaning and coughing, moves towards Khroutchov.)

MEN AND WOMEN: Go on! ah, ah, ah, ah, ah,
Amen! Let's render him honors!

THE MEN: Hey, . . . women, begin!

THE WOMEN: (disposing themselves in a semicircle around the Boyar). The fine hawk beats its wings?
And a courser prances?
And the Boyar, mighty lord,
Thinks, and reflects, both night and day?

ALL: (saluting the Boyar). Glory, glory to the great Boyar, Glory to his Tzar Boris; glory!

MEN'S VOICES: Hey, women! the good Boyar has lost his switch.
Instead of his stick . . . the whip!
(Placing a whip in the Boyar's hands)
Good! . . . now go on! . . .

THE WOMAN: The good Boyar thinks night and day
To please the Tzar,
How he may beat to death
Good folks and honest Christians.

ALL: (saluting). Glory to this good Boyar, Glory to his Tzar Boris!
Glory!
(All approach the Boyar)
He always overwhelmed us with his favors!
(Saluting)
So as not to soil your boots
You forced our sons to carry you!
(Again saluting)
And you gave orders with the whip!
Glory to the great Boyar, Glory to his Tzar Boris, Glory! Glory! to you!
(Saluting profoundly).
(From right, on the road the Simpleton rushes in. He wears a tin helmet. He is in rags; his feet are bare and he carries a sandal of osier.)

THE URCHINS: Trr . . . tin helmet! tin helmet!
Trr . . . tin helmet!
Oo . . .lyoo, lyoo, lyoo, lyoo, lyoo . . . trr . . .
(Some of the men and women threaten the Urchins who become silent.)

THE SIMPLETON: (seats himself on a rock and sings, swaying from side to side and fixing his sandal).
White moon
The cat is weeping!
Simpleton be tranquil . . .

Pensar devi all'orazion.
T'ador, mio Signor . . .
T'amo Gesù!
Notte serena . . .
Splende la luna!

I BIRICCHINI: (con simulato rispetto). Viva . . . viva! all'Innocente
Sion resi grandi onor!
Salutaci pian pian . . .
Ti leva l'elmo . . . egli è pesante!
(dando dei colpi sull'elmo di latta)
Zin! zin! zin! campanon!

L'INNOCENTE: Non sapete ch'ho un copec?

I BIRICCHINI: Fa veder . . . sei tu in error!

L'INNOCENTE: (toglie dall'elmo un copec e lo mostro ai ragazzi).
Veh!
(I Biricchini emettono un fischio di canzonatura, che imita il suono di "vuit"; gli strappono dalle mani il copec e fuggono.)

L'INNOCENTE: (piange, ed i suoi gridi si confondono col canto di Varlaam e Missaïl.) Ah, ah, ah, han rubato all'innocente!
Ah, ah, ah! il pover mio copec! ah, ah, ah, ah!

VARLAAM E MISSAIL: (nelle quinte). Luna e sol non brillan più!
Tutti gli astri si son spenti . . .
Trema e sussulta o, terra,
Pel misfatto di Boris!
(L'Innocente sistende sulla pietra e finge dormire. La folla ascolta il canto e si dirige da quel lato.)
Strane bestie erran ovunque,
Inseguendo alati mostri,
Che i fanciul von divorar,
Per l'atroce delitto di Boris!
(il canto s'avvicina)
Di Zar Boris i servi,
Senza pietà torturan nè mercede,
Inspirati dai demoni impuri,
In onor del buon regno,
Del Sàtana Boris!

LA FOLLA: Quei vecchi giungon da la città,
Han dell'ardir, se canton le colpe dello Zar . . .
Le torture de' miser che langon.

VARLAAM E MISSAIL: Misero popol che geme e soffre,
E si contorce sotto la verga di quell'àpostata!
Dello staffil infam del regicida,
Alla gloria del suo mortal peccato!

LA FOLLA: Haïdà!
Nel popol s'accende l'ardir
Si ridesta 'l suo furor;
Il sangue cosacco s'infiamma nel cor!
Oh, da te noi siam invasi, o santa

You must think of prayer.
I adore you, my Lord . . .
I love you, Jesus!
Serene night . . .
The moon shines!

THE URCHINS: (simulating respect). Viva . . . viva! to the Simpleton.
Be paid great honors.
Salute us gently, gently . . .
Take off your helmet . . . it is heavy!
(Striking on the tin helmet.)
Zin! zin! zin! big bell!

THE SIMPLETON: Don't you know I have a kopeck?

THE URCHINS: Let's see . . . You are mistaken!

THE SIMPLETON: (taking a kopeck from the helmet and showing it to the boys).
See!
(The Urchins whistle mockingly, imitating the sound 'vooit". They snatch the kopeck from his hands and run away.)

THE SIMPLETON: (he weeps, and his cries become confused with the song of Varlaam and Missail.)
Ah, ah, ah, they have robbed the Simpleton!
Ah, ah, ah! my poor kopeck! Ah, ah, ah!

VARLAAM AND MISSAIL: (from behind the scene). Sun and moon shine no more!
All the stars are spent . . .
Tremble and start, oh, earth,
At the misdeeds of Boris!
(The Simpleton stretches himself on the rock and feigns sleep. The crowd listens to the song and moves toward it.)
Strange beasts are roving everywhere,
Winged monsters pursuing,
Which seek the children to devour,
For Boris's atrocious crime!
(The song draws near)
Boris's minions unmercifully torture,
By the foul demons inspired,
In honor of the excellent reign
Of Boris the Devil.

THE CROWD: Those old men come from the city.
They are bold thus to sing the Tzar's guilt . . .
The tortures of wretches who languish . . .

VARLAAM AND MISSAIL:
Wretched people who suffer and moan,
And squirm beneath that apostate's rod,
The infamous whip of the regicide,
To the glory of his mortal sin!

THE CROWD: Haida! The people are incited to boldness,
Their courage awakens again;
The Cossack blood in their hearts kindles.
Oh, blessed strength, by you we are forza!

O, tu, forza vigorosa,
Forza immortal, possente, forza vendicativa!
Forza terrificante!
I nostri fratel, non devi tradir . . .
Aiutali a lottar . . .
Aiutali a pugnar . . .
Con ardor a lottar . . . con ardor a pugnar!
Tu li eccita a pugnar! . . .
Haïdà! . . .

VARLAAM E MISSAIL: Accettate, buona gente,
Per vostro amato Zar,
Accettate colui che 'l Ciel salvò
Dalle man lorde dell'assassin!
Accetta, popol, come Zar,
Dimitri il figliuol, del zar Ivan!

LA FOLLA: Del popolo l'ardir già si destò implacabil!
Invadici, forza, invadi il nostro cor!
Forza, che tutto fa espiar!
Notte e dì del zar Bòris i servi,
Torturan uomini giusti;
Li tagliano, li strazian . . .
Li assassinan con furor!
Morte! morte! morte a Boris . . .
Al regicida morte!

LOVITZKI E TCHERNIAKOWSKY: (nelle quinte). Domine, Domine, salvum fac Regem, Regem Demetrium Moscoviæ,
Salvum fac, salvum fac Regem Demetrium
Omnis Russiæ . . . Salfum fac. Salvum fac
Regem Demetrium!

VOCI NELLA FOLLA: Ancor costor! Che cosa voglion qui?
Son dei lupi gli ululati.
(accorrono a sinistra, per affrontare i gesuiti)
Sono neri quei demon!

LOVITZKI E TCHERNIAKOWSKY: Domine, Domine, salvum fac, salvum fac!

VARLAAM: (a Missaïl). Dei corvi la vil razza!
Vengon qui come noi per acclamano lo Zarevic!
Impedir lo dobbiam, Missaïl!

MISSAIL: Impediamol!

LOVITZKI E TCHERNIAKOWSKY: (entrano).Domine, Domine, salvum fac Regem Demetrium Moscoviæ.

MISSAIL: (alla folla). Morte alla razza nera!

LA FOLLA: Haïdà! A morte!
Morte ai vampir!
Ai maghi! agli stregon!

VARLAAM: Dal pino si sprigioni l'alma lor!
E cantino le lodi sulle foglie!
(la folla si precipita sui gesuiti e li lega) urged!

O vigorous strength,
Immortal strength, potent, avenging strength,
Strength terrifying!
You must not betray our brethren . . .
Help them to struggle . . .
Help them to fight . . .
To struggle with ardor . . . with ardor to fight.
You incite them to fight! . . .
Haida! . . .

VARLAAM AND MISSAIL: Good folks, accept
As your beloved Tzar,
Accept whom Heaven saved
From the assassin's hands stained!
Accept, people, as your Tzar,
Dimitri, Tzar Ivan's son!

THE CROWD: Already the people's boldness implacably wake!
O strength possess us, our hearts possess
Strength to force atonement!
Night and day Tzar Boris's minions
Torture our righteous men;
They pinch, they tear them . . .
They slay them with fury!
Death! death! death to Boris . . .
To the regicide death!

LOVITZKI AND TCHERNIAKOWSKY: (from behind the scene). Domine, Domine, salvum fac Regem, Regem Demetrium Moscovæ,
Salvum fac, salvum Regem Demetrium
Omnis Russia . . .Salvum fac. Salvum fac
Regem Demetrium!

VOICES AMID THE CROWD: Still these! What do they seek here?
They howl like wolves.
(They rush to the left to meet the Jesuits.)
They are black those demons!

LOVITZKI AND TCHERNIAKOWSKY: Domine, Domine, salvum fac, salvum fac!

VARLAAM: (to Missail). The vile tribe of ravens,
Here they come, like we, to acclaim the Tzarevitch.
We must stop them, Missail!

MISSAIL: Let us do so!

LOVITZKI AND TCHERNIAKOWSKY: (entering) Domine, Domine, salvum fac Regem Demetrium Moscovæ.

MISSAIL: (to the crowd). Death to the black brood!

THE CROWD: Haida! Death!
Death to the vampires!
The magicians, the sorcerers!

VARLAAM: In the pine tree let their souls be unfettered!
Amid the foliage let them chant their praises.
(The crowd rushes at the Jesuits and binds them.)

Stringete ancor!
Non si debbon muover più,
Nè indur gli altri in tentazion!

LOVITZKI E TCHERNIAKOWSKY: Sanctissima Virgo,
Juva, juva,
Servos tuos! (3 volte di seguito.)

LA FOLLA: Haïdà! la sul pino!

LOVITZKI E TCHERNIAKOWSKY: Sanctissima Virgo, juva servos tuos, Servos tuos!
(La folla trascina i gesuiti nella foresta. S'odono i clamori delle trombe, e compariscono sulla scena dei cavalieri, avvolti in candidi mantelli, che portano delle torcie. Processione di truppe di Dimitri. I vagabondi invadono la scena.)

VARLAAM E MISSAIL: (nelle quinte). Gloria allo Zarevic, figlio d'Ivan Che Dio i conservò!
(bis!)

LA FOLLA: Gloria allo Zarevic!
Dio per noi lo conservò!
Lo conservò per noi!
(bis!)
(La folla, Varlaam, Missaïl e i gesuiti, si agitano sulla scena. Il falso Dimitri, entra montando un cavallo, tenuto per la briglia, da due guerrieri.)

LA FOLLA: Viva e governi Dimitri Ivanovitch!
Gloria! gloria! gloria! gloria! gloria!

IL FALSO DIMITRI: (a cavallo). Noi, Dimitri Ivanovitch,
Per volontà di Dio, di Russia Zarevic,
Forte dell'eredità degli avi,
Noi offriam al nostro, popol,
Straziato dal falsario,
Aiuto e libertà!

KHROUTCHOV: O Signor, nobil Zarèvic!
Sia gloria a te!
(salutandolo profondamente)

DIMITRI: Vien, boiardo col tuo Zar, il nemico ad affrontar . . .
Entrerem nella mia patria . . .
Là nel santo Kremlin!
(Dimitri s'allontana, montando il pendio a destra. Tutti, ad eccezione dell'Innocente, lo seguono.)

LA FOLLA: Gloria! gloria! gloria! a te!
Sia gloria ognor a Dimitri Ivanivitch!

LOVITZKI E TCHERNIAKOWSKY: (seguono Dimitri). Gloria Deo! Gloria! (Nelle quinte s'ode il rintocco funebre delle campane. Da lungi un bagliore d'incendio. La scena si vuota.) and binds them.)

Draw tighter the cords! They must stir no more.
Nor lead others into temptation!

LOVITZKI AND TCHERNIAKOWSKY: Sanctissima Virgo,
Juva, juva,
Servos tuos!
(3 times in succession.)

THE CROWD: Haida! On the pine tree over there!

LOVITZKI AND TCHERNIAKOWSKY: Sanctissima Virgo, juva servos tuos, Servos tuos!
(The crowd drags the Jesuits into the forest. Trumpets are heard and horsemen appear, wrapped in white cloaks and carrying torches. Procession of troops of Dimitri. The Vagrants invade the stage.)

VARLAAM AND MISSAIL: (from behind the scenes). Glory to the Tzarevitch, Ivan's son, Whom God preserve!
(Bis)

THE CROWD: Glory to the Tzarevitch!
God kept him safe for us!
He guarded him for us!
(Bis)
(The crowd, Varlaam, Missail and the Jesuits move about the stage. The false Dimitri enters riding a horse whose bridle is held by two soldiers.)

THE CROWD: Long live and rule Dimitri Ivanovitch!
Glory! glory! glory! glory!

THE FALSE DIMITRI: (on horseback). We, Dimitri Ivanovitch,
By God's will Tzarevitch of Russia,
Strength inheriting from his forefathers,
Offer to you our people,
Tortured by the usurper,
Aid and liberty!

KHROUTCHOV: O Lord, noble Tzarovitch!
Glory to you!
(Saluting him profoundly.)

DIMITRI: Come, Boyar, with your Tzar, the enemy to meet . . .
We shall enter my fatherland . . .
There in the holy Kremlin!
(Dimitri retires, climbing the slope at right. All follow him, except the Simpleton.)

THE CROWD: Glory! glory! glory to you!
Glory ever to Dimitri Ivanovitch!

LOVITZKI AND TCHERNIAKOWSKY: (following Dimitri). Gloria Deo! Gloria!
(From behind the scenes is heard the mournful tolling of bells. From afar the glow of a conflagration is seen. The stage is empty-ing.)

L'INNOCENTE: (si guarda attorno, poi siede sui sasso e canta dondolandosi) Scorga l'amaro pianto!
Piangi . . . piangi . . . alma infelice!
Il nemico qui verrà,
Tanto sangue colerà . . .
Ed il fuoco struggerà!
(la tela cala lentamente)
Oh, terror! oh . . . terror! . . .
Lascia sgorgar il pianto,
Misera plebe! . . .
(Cala la tela).

SCENA III.

(Il palazzo angoloso del Kremlino. Banchi ad ogni lato. A destra una porta sul gran scalone. Alla sinistra gli appartamenti dello Zar. A destra, presso la rampa, una tavola coll'occorrente per scrivere. Verso sinistra, il posto dello Zar. Seduta straordinaria della Duma dei Boiardi.)

I BOIARDI: (una parte di essi). Su, Boiardi, incominciam. Chi parla?

ALTRE VOCI: Voi pe' primi parlerete!

ALCUNI: Ma la nostr'opinion esposta è già!
(a Tchelkalov)
Scrivi: Andrea Mikhailovitch:
(Tchelkalov siede alla tavola.)

PRIME VOCI: Arso sia vivo lo scellerato!

TERZE VOCI: Ma pria bisogna arrestar quel maledetto!
Poi . . . l'arderete!

PRIME VOCI: Giusto!

QUARTE VOCI: Non totalmente ancor!
(Man mano che espongono la loro opinione, i boiardi s'alzano, poi salutano e si rimettono a sedere)

SECONDE VOCI: Calmatevi! dobbiam parlar!

PRIME VOCI: Pria di tutto si deve arrestarlo,
Poi sia appeso e flagellato!

SECONDE VOCI: Si giustizi e s'esponga il suo corpo
Al corvi famèlici!

TERZE VOCI: Indi bruciarlo, avanti al popol,
Sulla pubblica piazza, e maledir le sue ceneri
Per ben tre volte! . . .

QUARTE VOCI: E sparpagliar le sue ceneri,
Fuor delle mura, a' quattro venti!

TUTTI: Dello spergiur la traccia, sparisca sulla terra,
E s'alcun lo difende, anch'ei dovrà perir!
Il corpo suo sarà messo alla gogna

THE SIMPLETON: (gazing around, then seating himself on the rock, he sings, swaying his body) Let bitter tears flow.
Weep . . . weep . . . unhappy soul!
The enemy here shall come,
So much blood shall flow,
And the fire shall destroy . . .
(The curtain is slowly lowered.)
Oh, terror! oh, terror! . . .
Allow your tears to flow,
Wretched people!
(Curtain.)

SCENE III.

The angular palace of the Kremlin. Benches on every side. At right a door leading to the grand staircase. At left the Tzar's apartments. At right, near footlights, a table on which are writing materials. Towards left, the place set apart for the Tzar. Special session of the Duma of Boyars.

THE BOYARS: (some of them). Now, Boyars, let us begin. Who speaks?

OTHER VOICES: You first shall speak!

SOME ONE: But our opinion is already given!
(To Tchelkalov.)
Write: Andrey Mikailovitch.
(Tchelkalov seats himself at the table.)

FIRST VOICES: Let the scoundrel be burned alive!

THIRD VOICES: But first the villain must be arrested!
Then . . . you can burn him!

FIRST VOICES: Right!

FOURTH VOICES: Not exactly!
(As they express their opinion in turns, the Boyars rise, salute and resume their seats.)

SECOND VOICES: Be calm! We must speak!

FIRST VOICES: Before all, he must be arrested,
Then be hanged and scourged!

SECOND VOICES: Let him be executed and his body exposed
To famished ravens.

THIRD VOICES: Then burn him, before the people,
On the public square, and cursed be his ashes,
Three times accursed!

FOURTH VOICES: And scatter his ashes,
Outside the walls, to the four winds!

ALL: Let all trace of the perjurer be blotted from the earth,
And should one defend him, let him too perish!
His body shall be put into the pillory.

. . .
E dovunque sarà proclamato quest'editto:
"In tutti i borghi, in tutte le chiese, su tutti i borghi, in tutte le chiese, su tutti i crocevia e piazze . . .
(lunga pausa)
che genuflesso il popol al Ciel innalzi le sue preghiere, a finchè risparmi la patria nostra . . ."

QUALCHE BOIARDO: Ma Chouïsky qui ci obliò! Benchè complotti, Senza lui non possiam nulla finir.

CHOUISKY: (entrando). Degnate perdonarmi,
Se alquanto indugiai. Oh, scusate mio ritardo.

I BOIARDI: Ecco il Prence Chouïsky.

CHOUISKY: (ai boiardi che lo circondono). L'altra sera,
Mi congedai dal Zar col cuor straziato.
Perchè io mi tormento pel suo spirto . . .
Da uno spiraglio, allor, volli mirar . . .
Oh, boiardi! quale spettacol truce!
Pallido . . . la fronte di sudor intrisa . . .
Le man tremanti,
Lo Zar balbettaava frasi strane sconnesse . . .
Ed il suo sguardo incuteva terror!
Ròso da un arcano dolor,
Borìs, il martire, piangeva! . . .
Poi, livido, girò gli occhi a sinsitra . . .
Con orrendi gridi d'angoscia . . .
E all'ombra di Dimitri egli parlò,
Cacciando invan da lui l'orrido spettro.

I BOIARDI: No, tu menti!

ALTRI BOIARDI: Che?! . . .
(Boris entra, cercando restare inosservato)

CHOUISKY: (continuando). "Va, dicev'egli, va, va, va! va, fanciul!"

BORIS: Va, va, va, fanciul!

I BOIARDI: (scorgono Boris). O, Signor! . . . o, Dio del Ciel! che gli angel ci proteggan!

BORIS: (avvicinandosi alla rampa). Va! va!
Io l'uccisor? oh, no! no!
No . . . assassin! egli vive!
E Chouïsky che il falso guirò
Squartato sarà!

CHOUISKY: (facendo il segno della croce su Boris). Che la grazia del Ciel vegli su te!

BORIS: (padroneggiandosi, si dirige verso il luogo riservato allo Zar e dice ai boiardi). Vi feci qui venir, che ho d'uopo di vostri consigli.

And everywhere let this edict be proclaimed:
"In all towns, in all churches, in all squares and crossways . . .
(Long pause.) that kneeling, the people may raise to Heaven their prayers that our country be spared . . ."

SOME OF THE BOYARS: But Shouisky has forgotten us. Although in the plot, Nothing without him we can accomplish.

SCHOUISKY: (entering). Pray forgive me
If I delayed a while. Oh, excuse my lingering.

THE BOYARS: Behold, Prince Shouisky!

SHOUISKY: (to the Boyars who surround him). The other night, I took leave of the Tzar with sorrowful heart,
For I was worried about his mind. I decided to look through a hole . . .
Oh, Boyars! what a harrowing sight I beheld!
Pallid . . . his brow bathed in sweat . . .
His hands trembling,
The Tzar stammered strange, disjointed phrases—
And his gaze inspired terror!
Assailed by some hidden grief,
Boris, the martyr, was weeping! . . .
Then livid, he turned his eyes to the left . . .
With agonizing cries,
And to Dimitri's ghost he spoke,
Vainly chasing the terrible specter.

THE BOYARS: No, you lie!

OTHER BOYARS: What?! . . .
(Boris enters, seeking to remain unseen.)

SHOUISKY (continuing). "Go," he said to him, "go, go, go, go, boy!"

BORIS: Go, go, go, boy!

THE BOYARS: (perceiving Boris). O, Lord! . . . O, God in Heaven! angels protect us!

BORIS: (coming down front). Go, Go!
I the murderer? oh, no! no!
No . . . assassin! he lives
And Shouisky who falsely swore Shall be quartered!

SHOUISKY: (making the sign of the cross over Boris). Let Heaven's grace watch over you!

BORIS: (assuming a lordly demeanor, moves towards the place reserved for the Tzar and addressing the Boyars). Here I bade you assemble, for I need your counsel.

In tempo sinistro di disgrazia, boiardi,
Da voi cerco rifugio.

CHOUISKY: Oh, mio sovran,
Fa che lo schiavo indegno
Pronunzi qualche accento!
Là, davanti al gran scalon,
Un vegliardo ti chiede il favor
Di essere introdotto al tuo cospetto!
Buon consiglier e giusto, di vita impeccabil,
Egli ti vuol svelar un gran mister!

BORIS: Sta ben. L'aspetto qui.
(a parte)
Questo santo, forse,
All'affranto spirto porterà
Un dolce riposo.
(Pimmen, entra — si ferma e guarda fissamente Boris.)

PIMMEN: Un frate umìl,
Che mai curò le discussion mondane,
Qui vien ad apportar la luce!

BORIS: (turbato). Oh, svelami, buon vecchio
Quel mister . . .
Tutto puoi dir.

PIMMEN: Nel mister della notte
Da me venne un pastor, un venerando vecchio,
Che un arcano nefasto mi svelò:
"Dall'infanzia," fu questo 'l suo dir,
"Ero cieco, nè conobbi mai
La notte e 'l dì! Invan tutto provai L'erbe, gli incanti, e i filtri!
Invan bagnai le mie pupille
Con l'acqua attinta alle sorgenti sante!
Nulla giovò . . . e m'ero rassegnato.
Ne' sogni miei non scorgevo alcun contorno,
Nè forme . . . ma sol i canti e i suon! . . .
Una notte sognai
Una voce infantil che mi chiamò distintamente —
(Boris si turba sempre più)
Padre, lèvati . . . và . . .
Và nella città d'Ouglitch,
Visita la nostra cattedral,
E di sulla mia tomba un'orazion,
Perchè io son Dimitri, il Zarevic . . .
(Boris si dizza e si asciuga la fronte)
Dio m'accolse fra gli angeli
Ed or mi manda qui Per compier de' miracol!"
Mi destai e lo volli obbedir;
E col mio nipotin là mi recai.
Orato avevo appena sulla tomba,
Che d'una santa gioia
L'anima mia s'invase . . .
Le mie spente pupille s'aprir . . .
Vid'il sol, la tomba . . . e il mio piccin! . . .

In sinister times, when misfortune threatens,
I seek a refuge through you.

SHOUISKY: Oh, my Sovereign,
Permit your unworthy slave
To speak a word!
There waiting, at the great staircase,
An old man begs of you the favor
Of admission to your presence!
A counsellor, good and just, and of a blameless life,
He seeks to disclose to you some great mystery!

BORIS: It is well. I await him here.
(Aside)
This saint, who knows?
To my oppressed spirit may bring Sweet repose.
(Pimenn enters, stops and gazes fixedly at Boris.)

PIMENN: A humble monk, who cared never for worldly strife,
Here comes to shed the light!

BORIS: (troubled.). Oh, good old man, make known to me that mystery . . .
All that you can say.

PIMENN: In the secret of the night
A shepherd came to me, a venerable man.
Who to me disclosed a heinous mystery:
"From childhood,"—thus he spoke,
"I have been blind, and know not
Night and day! All in vain I tried . . .
Herbs, charms and philters!
In vain I bathed my eyes
With water from the holy founts! . . .
Nothing availed . . . I became resigned.
I perceived no outline in my dreams,
Nor shapes . . . but only sounds and songs! . . .
One night I dreamed
Of a childish voice that called me distinctly—(Boris becomes more and more troubled.)
Father, arise . . . . go . . . .
Go into the city of Ouglitch, visit our cathedral there,
And a pray offer at my tomb,
For I am Dimitri, the Tzarevitch . . .
(Boris sits up and wipes his brow.)
God among his angels took me
And now sends me here
To accomplish miracles!"
I awoke and decided to obey him;
And with my little nephew there went.
Hardly had I prayed over the tomb,
Than a saintly joy
Filled my soul . . .
My blind eyes were opened . . .
I beheld the sun, the tomb . . . my little one! . . .

BORIS: (mettendosi una mano sul cuore). Oh, manco . . . ahimè! aiuto! . . .
(Cade nelle braccia dei boiardi, che si consultano. Gli uni, vanno a cercare dei soccorsi, altri si disperono. Boris sviene.)

BORIS: (riprendendo i sensi). Mio figlio . . . l'erede! . . .
Al chiostro . . . Frate! . . .
(i Boiardi lo fanno sedere.)
(Chouïsky, corre a cercare lo Zarevic. Una parte dei boiardi va a cercare il patriarco del Convento dei Miracoli. Soltanto cinque boiardi, rimangono attorno allo Zar. Teodoro entra correndo e si getta nelle braccia di Boris.) BORIS: Lasciateci . . . sol vo' restar.

(i boiardi escono)
Addio mio figlio, io muoio . . .
E tu, ben presto, regnerai.
Non cercar come il trono acquistai . . .
Non sei responsabil . . . tu sei lo Zar leggittimo . . .
Erede mio, il mio primogenito.
Figliuol! caro figliuol amato!
Diffidaa de' consigli dei boiardi ribelli,
Segui accortamente il lor complotto in Lituania.
I traditor devi punir! punir senza pietà!
Rendi giustizia al popol tuo con probità . . .
Difendi sempre la nostra religion,
E onora tutti i santi protettor.
Difendi la mia Xenia o figlio mio! . . .
L'aiuto suo devi essere tu sol!
Ama Xenia, la pura colomba . . .
(con unzione, di una voce che man mano s'affievolisce)
O, Signor, o mio Dio!
Vedi'il mio pianto.
O, grazia, grazia! . . . pel figlio del gran peccator!
La tua clemenza imploro—
(appoggia le mani sul capo di Teodoro e lo bendice)
Dalle celesti e angeliche vie
Oh, versa i tuoi favor sui figli miei,
Candidi, buon e dolci!
Angel del ciel custode, presso il trono divin . . .
Coll'ali vostre proteggete l'erede mio,
Da ogni tentazion . . . lo proteggete . . .
(stringe suo figlio contro il suo petto e l'abraccia. S'ode il funebre rintocco delle camapane)
Dio è il suon funebre!

CORO: (interno). Deh! lagrimate tutti . . .
Egli si spegne!
Son chiuse le sue labbra.
Lo spirt s'invole Piangete . . .
Alleluja!

BORIS: Funesti laì! Frate, un umil frate! Nel chiostro va lo Zar.

BORIS: (his hand on his heart)
Oh, I faint . . . ah me! help . . .
(He falls into the arms of the Boyars who take counsel. Some go in search of help, others are in despair. Boris faints.)

BORIS: (regaining his senses). My son . . . the heir! . . . to the cloister . . . Monk! . . .
(The Boyars persuade him to sit.)
(Shouisky rushes off for the Tzarevitch. Some of the Boyars go in search of the Patriarch of the Convent of Miracles. Only five Boyars remain around the Tzar. Theodore rushes in and throws himself into Boris' arms.)

BORIS: Leave us . . . I would be alone.
(The Boyars go out.)
Farewell my son, I die . . .
And you soon shall rule.
Seek not to learn how I gained the throne . . .
You are not accountable . . . you are the rightful Tzar . . .
My heir, my firstborn.
Son! dear son, beloved!
The advice of the rebel Boyars distrust,
Follow warily their plot in Lithuania.
You must punish the traitors! punish mercilessly!
Render strict justice to your people.
Defend ever our holy religion,
And honor all our patron saints
Shield my Xenia, O my son! . . .
You alone must protect her! . . .
Love Xenia, my pure dove . . .
(In tones that grow weaker by degrees.)
O Lord, O my God!
Behold my weeping.
Oh, mercy, mercy! . . . to the son of the great transgressor.
I implore your clemency
(He lays his hands on Theodore's head and blesses him.)
From celestial and angelic paths
Oh, pour your favors over my children,
Truthful, good and sweet!
Angel custodian of Heaven, near the divine throne . . .
With your wings protect my heir
From all temptation . . . protect him . . .
(He presses his son to his bosom. The mournful tolling of bells is heard.)
God! it is the funeral knell!

CHORUS: (within). Alas! weep all . . .
His life is passing!
Closed are his lips.
The spirit wings its flight.
Weep . . .
Hallelujah!

BORIS: Mournful lamentations.
A monk, a humble monk!
To the cloister goes the Tzar.

TEODORO: (piangendo). Padre mio, ti calma! . . .
Il Ciel t'aiuterà . . .

BORIS: No, l'ora mia suona già . . .

CORO: (interno). Innanzi gli occhi miei, muore un fanciul . . .
Io singhiozzo . . . piango . . .
Ei sussulta . . . si dibatte . . .
Ed invoca il mio soccorso!
Per lui non c'è più speme!

BORIS: Signor! Signor . . . abbi pietà!
Pietà! oblia la colpa mia . . .
O, tetra morte, gli artigli tuoi son aspri! . . .
(entrano i boiardi e la processione)

THEODORE: (crying). My father, calm yourself! . . .
Heaven shall aid you . . .

BORIS: No, already my hour strikes . . .

CHORUS: (within). Before my eyes a boy is dying!
I sob . . . I weep . . .
He shudders . . . he quivers . . .
And invokes my aid!
For him there is no hope.

BORIS: Lord! Lord . . . have mercy!
Mercy! forgive this deed of mine . . .
O, frightful death, sharp are your claws!! . . .
(The Boyars and the procession enter.)

BORIS: (alzandosi di soprassalto). Ah, fermativi! son Zar ancor . . .
Io son lo Zar!
(appoggia la mano sul cuore e ricade sulla poltrona)
Oh muoio! . . . Dio . . . mi perdona! . . .
(ai boiardi, accennando il figlio)
Lui!
È il vostro Zar! . . .
Oh, grazia . . . grazia! . . .
(perde i sensi)

I BOIARDI: (col capo abbassato, come in un mormorio). Ei muor!
(Cala la tela.)

FINE.

BORIS: (getting up). Ah, stop! I am still Tzar . . . I am the Tzar!
(He places his hand on his heart and again drops into the armchair.)
Oh, I die! . . . God . . . forgive me!
(To the Boyars, pointing to his son.)
He!
He is your Tzar! . . .
Oh, mercy . . . mercy! . . .
(Boris dies.)

THE BOYARS: (with bowed heads, almost in a murmur). He dies!
(The curtain falls.)

END.

Contes D'Hoffmann (1881)

Tales of Hoffmann

MUSIC BY JACQUES OFFENBACH ■ LIBRETTO BY JULES BARBIER & MICHEL CARRÉ

This three-act opera with a prologue and an epilogue, set to a libretto by Jules Barbier and Michel Carré (based on three stories by Ernst Theodor Amadeus Hoffmann), premiered at the Opére-Comique in Paris on February 10, 1881. The Prologue takes place in Master Luther's beer cellar in Nuremberg. Councillor Lindorf, who represents evil, intercepts a note sent to the poet Hoffman by a beautiful opera singer, Stella, requesting that they meet. The students in the beer-cellar ask the poet if he has ever experienced true love. He answers with the following stories encapsulating four different incarnations of evil. In the first, Hoffmann becomes the student of Spalanzani, a physicist, so that he may be close to Olympia, who he believes to be the physicist's daughter, although in actuality, she is a mechanical doll that was built by Spalanzani and Coppelius, his strange partner. Nicklausse, Hoffmann's friend, warns him of danger, but his attempt are useless. Hoffmann is smitten. During a ball he tells Olympia that he loves her. She sings and dances beautifully. But when she goes to her room we hear the sound of machinery splitting apart. Coppelius, one of Lindorf's incarnations, enters with the broken doll. Hoffmann realizes that he has been duped. In the next tale, we are in an exquisite gallery near the Grand Canal in Venice. Hoffmann is love with Giulietta this time, who is completely dominated by the evil Dapertutto, yet another of Lindorf's incarnations. Having captured the reflection of Schlemil, her lover, for Dapertutto, she is about to capture that of Hoffmann. Nicklausse tries once again to warn his friend, who remains deaf to his pleas. Schlemil possesses the key to Giulietta's room. Hoffman challenges him to a duel and kills him. He takes the key and goes to her, only to find that she has left with another lover. We are now in Munich at the house of Crespel, a lute-maker. Hoffmann is in love with his daughter, Antonia. She sings beautifully, but her father tells her that her singing could kill her, just as it did her mother. Dr. Miracle, the fourth incarnation of Lindorf, enters and conjures up the spirit of Antonia's mother, who encourages her to continue singing. He accompanies her on the violin; she is unable to resist and sings until she collapses, utterly spent, and dies. The epilogue takes place back in the beer cellar. Hoffmann has decided that Stella is deluding him. The opera ends as he drowns his memories of her in drink.

■ PREMIER ACTE	■ ACT ONE
SCÈNE PREMIÈRE	SCENE I
Intérieur d'une taverne allemande. Au fond, à droite, en pan coupé, grande porte donnant sur la rue. A gauche, en pan coupé, une fenêtre à petits vitraux. Dans le millieu un large enfoncement rempli de tonneaux symétriquement rangés autour d'un tonneau colossal surmonté d'un petit Bacchus tenant une banderole qui porte cet exergue: Au Tonneau de Nuremberg. Au-dessus des tonneaux s'étagent des rayons garnis de flacons de toutes formes. Devant le grand tonneau, un petit comptoir. Portes latérales, sur le premier plan, à gauche, un grand poêle; à droite, une horloge de bois et une petite porte cachée dans la boiserie. Cette boiserie s'étend sur la muraille, tout autour de la salle à hauteur d'homme. Çà et là, des tables et des bancs.	Lotharios' Tavern Interior of a German Tavern. In the back, to the right, a large door, leading to the street. On the left, a window with small panes. In the middle a large recess filled with casks symmetrically arranged around a colossal cask with a small Bacchus on the top, holding a label with the inscription: A tonneau de Nuremberg. Above the casks there are shelves with flasks of every description. Before the large cask, a small counter. Side doors, in the foreground, to the left a large stove; to the right a wooden clock and a small door hidden in the wainscoting. This wainscoting extends all around the room, the height of a man. Here and there tables and benches.
ESPRITS	SPIRITS.
Il fait nuit; la scène est éclairée par un rayon de lune.	(It is night. The stage is lighted by a moon beam.)
LES ESPRITS DE LA BIÈRE: Glou! glou! glou! glou! je suis la bière.	THE SPIRITS OF BEER: Glou, glou, glou, glou, I am beer!
LES ESPRITS DU VIN: Glou! glou! glou! glou! je suis le vin.	THE SPIRITS OF WINE: Glou, glou, glou, glou, I am wine.
TOUS LES ESPRITS ENSEMBLE: Glou! glou! glou! nous sommes Les amis des hommes; Nous chasson d'ici Langueur et souci. Glou!	ALL THE SPIRITS TOGETHER: Glou, glou, glou, we are The friends of man; We drive Languor and care from here. Glou!
LINDORF: (entrant, suivi d'Andrès). Le conseiller Lindorf, morbleu! C'est moi qui suis Le conseiller Lindorf! . . . Ne craine rien et me suis. N'as-tu pas pour maitresse La Stella, cette enchanteresse?	LINDORF: (enter, followed by Andrés) Counselor Lindorf, zounds, it is I Who am the counselor Lindorf! Fear not and follow me. You have, do you not, for your mistress, Stella—that enchantress?
ANDRÈS: Oui.	ANDRÉS: Yes.
LINDORF: Qui vient de Milan . . .	LINDORF.: Who comes from Milan . . .
ANDRÈS: Oui.	ANDRÉS: Yes.
LINDORF: Traînant sur ses pas Nombre d'amoureux, n'est-ce pas!	LINDORF.: Who always is followed By numerous lovers?
ANDRÈS: Oui.	ANDRÉS: Yes.

LINDORF: C'est à l'un d'eux, je gage, Que tu portes ce message?	LINDORF.: I wager that to one of these You are bringing this message!
ANDRÈS: Oui.	ANDRÉS: Yes.
LINDORF: Je te Pachète.	LINDORF.: I'll buy it!
ANDRÈS: Bon.	ANDRÉS: Very well.
LINDORF: Dix thalers!	LINDORF.: Ten dollars!
ANDRÈS: Non!	ANDRÉS: No.
LINDORF: Vingt! Trente! . . . (Andrès ne rèpond pas.—A part.) Parlons-lui sa langue. (Levant sa canne.) Quarante!	LINDORF.: Twenty! Thirty! . . . . (André does not answer.—Aside.) I know what will get him. (Lifting his cane.) Forty!
ANDRÈS: Oui! . . .	ANDRÉS: Yes.
LINDORF: (lui donnant de l'argent et prenant la lettre). Donne, et va-t'eu au diable.	LINDORF.: (giving him the letter and taking the money.) Give it, and go to the devil!
ANDRÈS: Oui! oui! (Il sort.)	ANDRÉS: Yes, yes! (Exit.)
LINDORF: (regardant la suscription de la lettre). Voyons: 'pour Hoffmann', bon . . . . . je m'en doutais! ô femmes Voilà les maitres de vos coeurs! Les heureux vainqueurs! Un poète! . . . un ivrogne! . . . enfin! passons! . . . (Il ouvre la lettre, en tire une petite clef et lit.) 'Je t'aime! . . . 'Si je t'ai fait souffrir, si tu m'aimes toi-même, 'Ami, pardonne-moi, 'Cette clef t'ouvrira ma loge, souviens-toi! . . . ' (A lui-même.) Qui, l'on devient digne d'envie, Quand, brisé par l'amour, on porte aux cabarets Et ses espoirs et ses regrets! Voilà ce qu'il vous faut! . . . Eh bien! non, sur ma vie! (Il regarde sa montre.) Deux heures devant moi! . . . Si j'ai bonne mémoire, C'est dans ce cabaret, qu'avec de jeunes fous Hoffmann vient deviser et boire! Surveillons-le jusqu'au moment du rendez-vous!	LINDORF.: (looking at the address of the letter) 'For Hoffmann', very well . . . I thought as much! Oh, women You are the masters of our hearts! And we Are the fortunate winners of your souls! A poet! a drunkard! but let us read on! (He opens the letter, takes out of it a little key and reads) 'I love you! If I made you suffer, if you love me, My friend, forgive me, This key will open my house, remember! (Aside.) Yes, one is worth of envy, When, broken by love, one brings to the wine-shop One's hopes and regrets! But such is one's lot! Still, that shall not be! (He looks at his watch.) Two hours before me! If I have a good memory, It is in this tavern, that with some young scamps, Hoffmann is coming to chat and to drink Let's watch him till the time of his rendez-vous!
LUTHER: (entrant, suivi de ses garçons.) Vite! vite! qu'on se remue! Les brocs! les chopes, les quinquets! Les toasts vont suivre les bouquets Et souhaiter la bienvenue A cet astre du firmament! Vivement, garçons, vivement! (Les garçons achèvent de préparer la salle. La porte du fond s'ouvre: Nathanael, Hermann, Wolframm, Wilhelm et une troupe d'étudiants entrent gaiement en scène.)	LUTHER: (entering, followed by the waiters) Lively, lively, get you busy! The jugs, the glasses and the lamps! The toasts will follow the bouquets, And give a merry welcome, To this star of heaven! Waiters, lively, lively! (The waiters finish preparing the room. The door in the back opens. Nathanael, Hermann, Wolfframm, William and a band of students enter gaily.)
CHOEUR DES ÉTUDIANTS: Drig! drig! drig! maître Luther Tison d'enfer, Drig! drig! drig! à nous ta bière, A nous ton vin, Jusqu'au matin Remplis mon verre, Jusqu'au matin Remplis les pots d'étain!	CHORUS OF STUDENTS: Drig, drig, drig, master Luther, Spark of Hades, Drig, drig, drig, for us more beer, For us your wine, Until morning, Fill my glass, Until morning, Fill our pewter mugs!
NATHANAEL: Luther est un brave homme; Tire lan laire! C'est demain qu'on l'assomme; Tire lan la!	NATHANAEL: Luther is a brave man, Tire, lan, laire, Tomorrow we'll crush him, Tire, lan, la!
LE CHOEUR: Tire lan la! (Les étudiants frappent les gobelets sur le tables.)	CHORUS: Tire, lan, la! (the students tap their glasses on the tables.)
LUTHER: (allant de table en table avec les garçons et servant les étudiants.) Voilà, messieurs, voilá!	LUTHER: (going from table to table with the waiters and serving the students) Here, gentlemen, here.
HERMANN: Sa cave est d'un bon drille; Tire lan laire! C'est demain qu'on la pille Tire lan la!	HERMANN: His cellar is a goodly spot, Tire, lan, la! Tomorrow we'll devast it, Tire, lan, la!
LE CHOEUR: Tire lan la! (Bruit de gobelets.)	CHORUS: Tire, lan, la! (knocking of glasses.)
LUTHER: Voilà, messieurs, voilá!	LUTHER: Here, gentlemen, here.
WILHELM: Sa femme est fille d'Ève; Tire lan laire; C'est demain qu'on l'enlève; Tire lan la!	WILHELM: His wife is a daughter of Eve, Tire, lan, laire, Tomorrow we'll abduct her, Tire, lan, la!
LE CHOEUR: Tire lan la!	CHORUS: Tire, lan, la!
LUTHER: Voilà, messieurs, voilà!	LUTHER: Here, gentlemen, here.
LE CHOEUR: Drig! drig! drig! maître Luther Tison d'enfer! Drig! drig! drig! à nous la bière, A nous ton vin! Jusqu'au matin Remplis mon verre! Jusqu'au matin Remplis les pots d'étain! (Les étudiants s'assoient, boivent et fument dans tous les coins.)	CHORUS: Drig, drig, drig, master Luther, Spark of Hades! Drig, drig, drig, for us more beer. For us your wine Until morning. Fill my glass Until morning. Fill our pewter mugs! (Students sit drinking and smoking in all the corners.)
LUTHER: Eh bien! Stella?	LUTHER: What about Stella?
NATHANAEL: Vive Dieu! mes amis, la belle créature! Comme au chef-d'oeuvre de Mozart Elle prête l'accent d'une voix ferme et sûre! C'est la grâce de la nature, Et c'est le triomphe de l'art! Que mon premier toast soit pour elle! Je bois à la Stella!	NATHANAEL: Long live the fair creature! How She lends the tone of a voice firm and sure to the master-pieces of Mozart! She is grace itself, She's the triumph part! May my first toast be to her! I drink to Stella.
TOUS: Vivat! à la Stella!	ALL: Hurrah! for Stella!
NATHANAEL: Comment Hoffmann n'est-il pas là Pour fêter avec nous cette étoile nouvelle! Eh! Luther! . . . ma grosse tonne! Qu'as-tu fait de notre Hoffmann.	NATHANAEL: And Hoffmann is not here To drink to this new star? Luther, my goodly vat, What have you done with our Hoffmann?
HERMANN: C'est ton vin qui l'empoisonne! Tu l'as tué, foi d'Hermann! Rends-nous Hoffmann!	HERMANN: Your wine poisoned him, You've killed him, faith of Herrmann, Give us back Hoffmann.

TOUS: Rends-nous Hoffmann!	ALL: Give us Hoffmann.
LINDORF: (à part). Au diable Hoffmann!	LINDORF.: (aside) To the devil, Hoffmann.
NATHANAEL: Morbleau! qu'on nous l'apporte Ou ton dernier jour a lui!	NATHANAEL: Let them bring him to us Or your last day has dawned.
LUTHER: Messieurs, il ouvre la porte, Et Niklausse est avec lui!	LUTHER: Gentlemen, he comes. (He opens the door, and Nicklausse is with him.)
TOUS: Vivat! C'est lui!	ALL: Hurrah, it is he.
LINDORF: (à part). Veillons sur lui.	LINDORF.: (aside) Let's watch him.
HERMANN: (d'un air sombre). Bonjour, amis!	HOFFMANN: (entering, with sombre voice) Good day, friends.
NICKLAUSSE: Bonjour!	NICKLAUSSE: Good-day.
HERMANN: Un tabouret! un verre! Une pipe! . . .	HOFFMANN: A chair, a glass, A pipe . . .
NICKLAUSSE: (railleur). Pardon, seigneur! . . . sans vous déplaire, Je bois, fume et m'assieds comme vous! . . . part à deux!	NICKLAUSSE: (mocking) Pardon, my lord, without displeasing, I drink, smoke and sit like you . . . . for two.
LE CHOEUR: C'est juste! . . . Place à tous les deux!	CHORUS: He's right . . . a place for both of them.
Hoffmann et Nicklausse s'assoient; Hoffmann se prend la tête entre les mains.	Hoffmann and Nicklausse sit down, Hoffmann has head in his hands.
NICKLAUSSE: (fredonnant). Notte a giorno mal dormire . . .	NICKLAUSSE: (humming) Notte a giorno mal dormire . . .
HOFFMANN: (brusquement). Tais-toi, par le diable! . . .	HOFFMANN: (brusquely) Shut up, in devil's name.
NICKLAUSSE: (tranquillement). Oui, mon maître.	NICKLAUSSE: (quietly) Yes, master.
HERMANN: (À Hoffmann). Oh! oh! d'où vient cet air fâché?	HERRMANN: (to Hoffmann) Oh, oh, from where comes this ill temper?
NATHANAEL: (à Hoffmann). C'est à ne pas te reconnaître.	NATHANAEL: (to Hoffmann) It's as if one did not know you.
HERMANN: Sur quelle herbe as-tu donc marché?	HERMANN: On what thorn have you trod?
HOFFMANN: Hélas! sur une herbe morte Au souffle glacé du nord! . . .	HOFFMANN: Alas, on a dead herb With the iced breath of the north.
NICKLAUSSE: Et là, prés de cete porte, Sur un ivrogne qui dort!	NICKLAUSSE: And there by this door, On a drunkard who sleeps.
HOFFMANN: C'est vrai! . . . Ce coquin-là, pardieu! m'a fait envie! A boire! . . . et, comme lui, couchons dans le ruisseau.	HOFFMANN: True . . . that rascal, by Jove, I envy him. A drink. Like him, let's sleep in the gutter.
HERMANN: Sans oreiller?	HERMANN: Without pillow.
HOFFMANN: La pierre!	HOFFMANN: The flags.
NATHANAEL: Et sans rideau?	NATHANAEL: Without curtains.
HOFFMANN: Le ciel!	HOFFMANN: The sky.
NATHANAEL: Sans couvre-pied?	NATHANAEL: Without foot-covers?
HOFFMANN: La pluie!	HOFFMANN: The rain.
HERMANN: As-tu le cauchemar, Hoffmann?	HERMANN: Have you a nightmare, Hoffmann?
HOFFMANN: Non, mais ce soir Tout à l'heure, au théâtre . . .	HOFFMANN: No, but tonight, A while since, at the play . . .
TOUS: Eh bien?	ALL: Well?
HOFFMANN: J'ai cru revoir. Baste! . . . à quoi bon rouvrir une vieille blessure? La vie est courte! . . . Il faut l'égayer en chemin. Il faut boire, chanter et rire à l'aventure, Sauf à pleurer demain!	HOFFMANN: I thought to see again . . . The deuce . . . why reopen old wounds? Life is short. Enjoy it while we can. We must drink, sing, laugh, as we may, Leave the weeping for tomorrow!
NATHANAEL: Chante donc le premier, sans qu'on te le demande; Nous ferons chorus.	NATHANAEL: Then sing the first without asking, We'll be the chorus.
HOFFMANN: Soit!	HOFFMANN: Agreed!
NATHANAEL: Quelque chose de gai!	NATHANAEL: Something gay
HERMANN: La chanson du Rat!	HERMANN: The song of the Rat!
NATHANAEL: Non! moi, j'en suis fatigué. Ce qu'il nous faut, c'est la légende De Klein-Zach? . . .	NATHANAEL: No, for me, I'm tired of it. What we want is the legend Of Klein-Zach . . .
TOUS: C'est la légende de Klein-Zach!	ALL: It is the legend of Klein-Zach.
HOFFMANN: Va pour Klein-Zach! Il était une fois à la cour d'Eysenach Un petit avorton qui se nommait Klein-Zach! Il était coiffé d'un colbac, Et ses jambes faisaient clic, clac! Clic, clac! Voilà Klein-Zach!	HOFFMANN: Here goes for Klein-Zach! . . . Once at the court of Eysenach A little dwarf called Klein-Zach, Was covered with a colbac, And his legs they went clic, clac! Clic, clac, There's Klein-Zach.
LE CHOEUR: Clic, clac! . . . Voilà Klein-Zach!	CHORUS: Crick, crack, There's Klein-Zach.
HOFFMANN: Il avait une bosse en guise d'estomac; Ses pieds ramifiés semblaient sortir d'un sac, Son nez était noir de tabac, Et sa tête faisait cric, crac, Cric, crac, Voilà Kelin-Zach.	HOFFMANN: He had a hump in place of stomach, His webbed feet seemed to burst a sack, His nose was with tobacco black, And his head it went crick crack, Crick, crack. There's Klein-Zach.
LE CHOEUR: Cric, crac, Voilà Klein-Zach!	CHORUS: Crick, crack, There's Klein-Zach.
HOFFMANN: Quant aux traits de sa figure . . . (Il semble s'absorber peu à peu dans son rêve.)	HOFFMANN: As for the features on his face. (He becomes absorbed.)
LE CHOEUR: Quant aux traits de sa figure? . . .	CHORUS: As for the features on his face.
HOFFMANN: (très lentement). Quant aux traits de sa figure . . . (Il se lève). Ah! sa figure était charmante! . . . Je la vois, Belle comme le jour où, courant après elle, Je quittais comme un fou la maison paternelle Et m'enfuis à travers les vallons et les bois! Ses cheveux en torsades sombres Sur son col élégant jetaient leurs chaudes ombres. Ses yeux, enveloppés d'asur, Promenaient autour d'elle un regard frais et pur Et, comme notre char emportait sans secousse Nos coeurs et nos amours, sa voix vibrante et douce	HOFFMANN: (very slowly) As for the features . . . (He rises.) Oh her face was charming . . . I see it, Fine as the day, running after her, I, like a fool, left the house paternal, And fled there on to woods and vales Her hair, in sombre rolls, On her neck threw warm shades, Her eyes of enveloping azure, Cast about glances fresh and pure. And as our car without shock or tremor Carried our loves and hearts, her vibrant voice and sweet, To the heavens that listened, threw the conquering cry, And the eternal echo resounded in

Aux cieux qui l'écoutaient jetait ce chant vainqueur
Dont l'éternel écho résonne dans mon coeur!

NATHANAEL: O bizarre cervelle!
Qui diable peins-tu là! Klein-Zach?..

HOFFMANN: Je parle d'elle.

NATHANAEL: (lui touchant l'épaule). Qui?

HOFFMANN: (sortant de son rêve). Non! personne! . . . rien!
mon esprit se troublait!
Rien! . . . Et Klein-Zach vaut mieux, tout difforme qu'il est! . . .
Quand il avait trop bu de genièvre ou de rack
Il fallait voir flotter les deux pans de son frac,
Comme des herbes dans un lac! . . .
Et le monstre faisait flic, flac! . . .
Flic, flac!
Voilà Klein-Zach!

LE CHOEUR: Flic, flac!
Voilà Klein-Zach!

HOFFMANN: (jetant son verre).
Peuh! . . . cette bière est détestable!
Allumons le punch! grisons nous!
Et que les plus fous
Roulent sous la table.

LE CHOEUR: Et que les plus fous
Roulent sous la table!
(Mouvement général. On éteint les lumières. Luther allume un immense bol de punch; une lumière bleuâtre éclaire la scène.)
Luther est un brave homme,
Tire lan laire,
Tire lan la,
C'est demain qu'on l'assomme,
Tire lan laire,
Tire lan la,
Sa cave est d'un bon drille.
Tire lan laire,
Tire lan la,
C'est demain qu'on la pille,
Tire lan laire,
Tire lan la.

NICKLAUSSE: A la bonne heure, au moins! voilà que l'on se pique
De raison et de sens pratique!
Peste soit des coeurs langoureux!

NATHANAEL: Gageons qu'Hoffmann est amoureux!

HOFFMANN: Amoureux . . . Le diable m'emporte
Si jamais je le deviens! . . .

LINDORF: (à mi-voix). Eh! eh!
l'impertinence est forte;
Il ne faut jurer de rien!

HOFFMANN: (se retournant).
Plaît-il?
(Reconnaissant Lindorf.)
Quand on parle du diable,
On en voit les cornes! . . .

my heart.

NATHANAEL: Oh strangest brain!
Who are you painting! Klein-Zach?

HOFFMANN: I speak of her . . .

NATHANAEL: (tapping him on the shoulder) Who?

HOFFMANN: (coming out of his dream)
Nobody . . . nothing, my spirit is dullish.
Nothing. Klein-Zach is better, malformed as he is!
When he drank too much gin or arrack,
You should see his coat-tails flap,
Like grasses in a lake,
And the monster went flick, flack!

CHORUS: Flick, flack,
There's Klein-Zach.

HOFFMANN: (throwing away his glass) Peuh! . . . this beer is detestable,
Let's light up the punch and drink;
And may the light-headed
Roll under the table.

CHORUS: And may the light-headed
Roll under the table.
(General commotion.)
(The lights go out, Luther fires an immense punch bowl; a bluish light illuminates the stage.)
Luther is a brave man,
Tire lan laire,
Tire lan la.
Tomorrow we'll crush him,
Tire lan laire,
Tire lan la.
His cellar is a good spot,
Tire lan laire,
Tomorrow we will make it hot.
Tire lan laire,
Tire lan la.

NICKLAUSSE: Very good, indeed.
At least we are pruned
With reason and practical sense!
Away with languorous hearts.

NATHANAEL: Let's wager that Hoffmann's in love.

HOFFMANN: In love? May the devil take me
If ever I should fall in love.

LINDORF.: (softly) What! his impertinence is great;
One must never swear!

HOFFMANN: (turning around) I beg your pardon?
(Recognizing Lindorf.)
Talk of an angel
And you hear its wings flutter.

NICKLAUSSE: Pardon,
La perruque! . . . chaste don
D'une épouse trop aimable!

LE CHOEUR: Respect aux maris!
Ne les raillons pas!
Nous serons un jour dans le même cas!

NATHANAEL: Ta maîtresse est donc un trésor
Que tu méprises tant les nôtres?

HOFFMANN: Ma maîtresse? . . . (A part.)
Oui, Stella!
Trois femmes dans la même femme!
Trois âmes dans une seule âme!
Artiste, jeune fille, et courtisane! . . .
(Tendant la main vers la droite.)
Là! . . .
(Haut.)
Ma maîtresse? . . . . Non pas!
diets mieux, trois maîtresses,
Trio charmant d'enchanteresses
Qui se partagèrent mes jours!
Voulez-vous le récit de ces folles amours? . . .

LE CHOEUR: Oui, oui!

NICKLAUSSE: Que parles-tu de trois maîtresses?

HOFFMANN: Fume! . . .
Avant que cette pipe éteinte se rallume
Tu m'auras sans doute compris,
O toi qui dans ce drame où mon coeur se consume (Railleur.)
Du bon sens emportas le prix!
(Tous les étudiants vont reprendre leurs places.)

LUTHER: (rentrant en scène).
Messieur, on va lever le rideau.

NATHANAEL: Qu'il se lève!
C'est là notre moindre souci!

LINDORF: (à part). Avant que l'opéra s'achève,
J'ai le temps d'écouter aussi.
(Luther va reprendre sa place à son comptoir.)

LE CHOEUR: Écoutons! il est doux de boire
Au récit d'une folle histoire,
En suivant le nuage clair
Que la pipe jette dans l'air!

HOFFMANN: (s'asseyant sur le coin d'une table). Je commence.

LE CHOEUR: Silence!

LINDORF: (à part). Dans une heure, j'espère, ils seront à quia!

HOFFMANN: Le nom de la première était Olympia!
(Le rideau tombe, pendant qu'Hoffmann parle à tous les étudiants attentifs.)

SCÈNE DEUXIÈME

Olympia

NICKLAUSSE: Pardon me!
My wig! The kind gift
Of a too kind wife.

CHORUS: Homage to husbands! Let us not mock them!
Some day we all will be in their boots.

NATHANAEL: Then your mistress is such a treasure
That you despise so much our own?

HOFFMANN: My mistress?
(Aside.)
Yes. Stella!
Three women in one woman!
Three souls in a single soul!
Artist, unmarried, and courtesan!
(Pointing to the right.)
There!
(Aloud.)
My mistress, no, no, say rather three,
Charming trio of enchantresses.
Who are dividing my days.
Would you like the story of my crazy loves? . . .

CHORUS: Yes, yes!

NICKLAUSSE: What are you saying of three mistresses?

HOFFMANN: Smoke! . . .
Before this dead pipe is relighted
You will have comprehended,
You who in this play where my heart was consumed (Jesting.)
In good sense took the first prize!
(All the students go to their places.)

LUTHER: (coming in) Sire, the curtain is going to rise.

NATHANAEL: Let it rise! We care least about that.

LINDORF.: (aside) Before the opera is over,
I, too, have time to listen.
(Luther again takes his place at the counter.)

CHORUS: Listen. It is nice to drink,
To the telling of a crazy tale,
While following the fragrant cloud,
That a pipe throws in the air.

HOFFMANN: (sitting on corner of table) I begin.

CHORUS: Silence.

LINDORF.: (aside) In an hour, I hope, they'll be nonplussed. .

HOFFMANN: The name of the first was Olympia . . .
(The curtain falls as Hoffman is speaking to the attentive students.)

SCENE II

Olympia

Un riche cabinet de physcien donnant sur une galerie dont les portes sont closes par des tapisseries; portes latérales fermées également par des portières. le théâtre est éclairé par des bougies.)	A richly furnished physicist's study, opening into a gallery, the doors of which are closed by portieres; side-doors likewise closed by portieres. The stage is lighted by candle-light.
SPALANZANI: (seul, il tient la portière de droite soulevée.) Là! dors en paix. Eh! Eh! . . . sage, modeste et belle, Je rentrerai par elle Dans les cinq cents ducats que la banqueroute Du juif Élias me coûte! Rests Coppélius dont la duplicité Pour avoir de moi quelque somme, Peut réclamer des droits à la paternité, Diable d'homme! . . . Il est loin, par bonheur!	SPALANZANI: (alone, raises the portiere on the right) There, sleep in peace. Ah, ah, good, modest and beautiful, Through her I will win The five hundred ducats which the bankruptcy Of the Jew Elias costs me! There remains Coppelius, whose deceit, In order to get a sum from me, Can claim the rights of paternity, The deuce of a man! But luckily he is far away!
Spalanzani, Hoffmann, puis Cochenille et les Laqais	Spalanzani, Hoffmann, then Cochenille and the lackeys
SPALANZANI: (voyant entrer Hoffmann). Ah! bonjour . . . enchanté! . . .	SPALANZANI: (seeing Hoffmann come in) Ah, good day, charmed to see you!
HOFFMANN: Je viens trop tôt, peut-être?	HOFFMANN: I have come too early, perhaps?
SPALANZANI: Comment donc, un élève . . .	SPALANZANI: Why, a pupil—
HOFFMANN: Indigne de son maître.	HOFFMANN: Unworthy of his master.
SPALANZANI: Trop modeste, en vérité! Plus de vers, plus de musique, Et vous serez en physique Professeur de faculté. Vous connaîtrez ma fille, un sourire angélique, Olympia vaut très cher! . . .	SPALANZANI: Too modest, indeed! No more verse, and no more music, And you will be Professor of physics at the University. You shall know my daughter, she has an angelic smile. Physics is everything, my dear! Olympia is worth a goodly price!
HOFFMANN: (à part). Quel rapport la physique a-t elle avec sa fille?	HOFFMANN: (aside) What relation has physics with his daughter?
SPALANZANI: (appelant). Holà! hé! . . . Cochenille! (Cochenille paraît.) Fais allumer partout . . .	SPALANZANI: (calling) Come here, Cochenille! (Cochenille appears) Turn on all the lights!
COCHENILLE: (bégayant) Et . . . le champagne.	COCHENILLE: (stammering) And—the champagne?
SPALANZANI: Attends! Suis-moi. (A Hoffmann.) Pardon, mon cher, je reviens dans l'instant. (Ils sortent.)	SPALANZANI: Wait! Follow me! (To Hoffmann.) Pardon me, dear friend, I'll return in an instant. (Exit.)
HOFFMANN: (seul). Allons! Courage et confiance Je deviens un puits de science! Il faut tourner selon le vent. Pour mériter celle que j'aime, Je saurai trouver en moi-même L'étoffe d'un savant, Elle est là . . . Si j'osais! . . . (Il soulève tout doucement la portière de droite.) C'est elle! . . . Elle sommeille! . . . Qu'elle est belle! . . . Ah! vivre deux! . . . N'avoir qu'une même expérance, Un même souvenir! Partager le bonheur, partager la souffrance, Partager l'avenir! . . . Laisse, laisse ma flamme Verser en toi le jour! Laisse éclore ton âme Aux rayons de l'Amour! Foyer divin! . . . Soleil dont l'ardeur nous pénètre Et nous vient embraser! . . . Ineffable désir où l'on sent tout son être Se fondre en un baiser. Laisse, laisse ma flamme Verser en toi le jour! . . . Laisse éclore ton âme Aux rayons de l'Amour! (Il soulève de nouveau la portière; Nicklausse paraît.)	HOFFMANN: (alone) Come! Courage and confidence; I become a well of science. I must turn with the wind that blows, To deserve the one I love. I shall know how to find in myself The stuff of a learned man. She is there . . . if I dared. (He softly lifts the portiere.) It is she! She sleeps . . . how beautiful! Ah! live together . . . both in the same hope, The same remembrance Divide our happiness and our sorrow, And share the future. Let, let my flame Pour the light in you, Let your soul open To the rays of Love. Divine hearth! Sun whose ardor penetrates And comes to kiss us. Ineffable desire where one's whole being Melts in a single kiss. Let, let my flame, etc., etc. (He again raises the portiere; Nicklausse appears.)
NICKLAUSSE: Pardieu! . . . J'étais bien sûr de te trouver ici! . . .	NICKLAUSSE: By Jove, I felt sure you'd be here.
HOFFMANN: (laissant brusquement retomber la portière) Chut! . . .	HOFFMANN: (letting portiere fall) Chut.
NICKLAUSSE: Pourquoi? . . . C'est là que respire La colombe qui fait ton amoureux souci, La belle Olympia? . . . Va, mon enfant! Admire!	NICKLAUSSE: Why? It is there that breathes The dove who's now your amorous care, The beautiful Olympia? Go, my child, admire!
HOFFMANN: Oui, je l'adore!	HOFFMANN: Yes, I adore her!
NICKLAUSSE: Attends à la connaître mieux.	NICKLAUSSE: Wait to know her better.
HOFFMANN: L'âme qu'on aime est aisée à connaître!	HOFFMANN: The soul one loves is easy to know.
NICKLAUSSE: (railleur). Quoi? d'un regard? . . . par la fenêtre?	NICKLAUSSE: (teasing) What? by a look . . . through a window?
HOFFMANN: Il suffit d'un regard pour embrasser les cieux!	HOFFMANN: A look is enough to embrace the heavens.
NICKLAUSSE: Quelle chaleur! . . . Au moins sait-elle que tu l'aimes?	NICKLAUSSE: What warmth! . . . At least she knows that you love her.
HOFFMANN: Non!	HOFFMANN: No.
NICKLAUSSE: Écris-lui!	NICKLAUSSE: Write her.
HOFFMANN: Je n'ose pas.	HOFFMANN: I don't dare.
NICKLAUSSE: Pauvre agneau! Parle-lui!	NICKLAUSSE: Poor lamb! Speak to her.
HOFFMANN: Les dangers sont les mêmes.	HOFFMANN: The dangers are the same.
NICKLAUSSE: Alors, chante, morbleu! pour sortir d'un tel pas!	NICKLAUSSE: Then sing, to get out of the scrape.
	HOFFMANN: Monsieur Spalanzani doesn't like music.
NICKLAUSSE: (riant). Oui, je sais! Tout pour la physique! . . . Une poupée aux yeux d'émail Jouait au mieux de l'éventail Auprès d'un petit coq en cuivre; Tous deux chantaient à l'unisson D'une merveilleuse façon, Dansaient, caquetaient, semblaient vivre.	NICKLAUSSE: (laughing) Yes, I know, all for physics! A doll with china eyes Played cleverly with a fan, Nearby a little cock in brass; Both sang in unison In a marvelous way, Danced, gossiped, seemed to live.
HOFFMANN: Plait-il? Pourquoi cette chanson?	HOFFMANN: Beg your pardon. Why this song?

NICKLAUSSE: Le petit coq, luisant et vif, Avec un air rébarbatif, Tournait par trois fois sur lui-même; Par un rouage ingénieux, La poupée, en roulant les yeux, Soupirait et disait: Je t'aime!	NICKLAUSSE: The little cock, shining and smart, With a very knowing air, Turned three times on himself; By some ingenious wheels, The doll in rolling its eyes Sighed and said: 'I love you.'
COPPÉLIUS: C'est moi, Coppélius! . . . doucement prenons garde! (Apercevant Hoffmann.) Quelqu'un . . .	COPPELIUS: It is I, Coppelius! Gently! Take care! (Noticing Hoffmann.) Someone—
NICKLAUSSE: (se retournant). Hein! . . .	NICKLAUSSE: (turning around) What—
COPPÉLIUS: Qu'est-ce donc que ce monsieur regarde? (Regardant par-dessus l'épaule d'Hoffmann.) Notre Olympia! . . . fort bien . . .	COPPELIUS: What is the gentleman looking at? (Looking over Hoffmann's shoulder.) Our Olympia! very well!
NICKLAUSSE: (à part). Leur Olympia?	NICKLAUSSE: (aside) Their Olympia?
COPPÉLIUS: (À Hoffmann). Jeune homme, (Elevant la voix.) Eh!. monsieur! (voyant qu'Hoffmann ne répond pas, lui frappant sur l'épaule.) Il n'entend rien! Monsieur!	COPPELIUS: (to Hoffmann) Young man, (raising his voice.) Eh, young man! (Seeing that Hoffmann does not answer, strikes his shoulder.) He does not hear! Sir!
HOFFMANN: Plait-il?	HOFFMANN: I beg your pardon?
COPPÉLIUS: Je me nomme Coppélius, un ami De monsieur Spalanzani. (Hoffmann le salue.) Voyez ces baromètres Hygromètres, Thermomètres, Au rabais, mais au comptant. Voyez, vous en serez content. (Vidant à terre son sac rempli de lorgnons, lunettes et lorgnettes.) Chacun de ces lorgnons rend noir comme le jais, Ou blanc comme l'hermine, Assombrit, Illumine, Éclaire, ou flétrit Les objets. J'ai des yeux, de vrais yeux, Des yeux vivant, des yeux de flamme, Des yeux merveilleux Qui vont jusques au fond de l'âme Et qui même dans bien des cas En peuvent prêter une à ceux qui n'en ont pas. J'ai des yeux, de vrais yeux vivants, des yeux de flamme. J'ai des yeux, De beaux yeux! Oui! Veux-tu voir le coeur d'une femme? S'il est pur ou s'il est infâme! Ou bien préfères-tu le voir Le voir tout blanc quand il est noir? Prends et tu verras Ce que tu voudras. Prenez mes yeux, mes yeux vivants, mes yeux de flamme, Mes yeux qui percent l'âme. Prenez mes yeux!	COPPELIUS: My name Is Coppelius, a friend Of Mr. Spalanzani. (Hoffmann bows to him.) See these barometers, Hydrometers, Thermometers, At a reduction, but for cash. I'm sure you will like them. (Emptying on the ground his bag filled with eyeglasses, spectacles, and opera glasses.) Each one of these spectacles makes black as jet Or white as ermine, Darkens, Brightens. Lights up or dullens Objects. I have eyes, real eyes, Bright eyes, eyes of flame, Marvelous eyes, Which go to the depth of the soul And which even, in many cases Can give one to those who have not any. I have eyes, true living eyes, eyes of flame. I have eyes, Beautiful eyes! Yes! Do you wish to see the heart of a woman? To see if it is pure or base? Or else do you prefer to see, To see it white when it is black? Take and you shall see All you wish to see. Take my eyes, my living eyes, my eyes of flame, My eyes which pierce the soul. Take my eyes!
HOFFMANN: Dis-tu vrai?	HOFFMANN: Are you telling the truth?
COPPÉLIUS: (lui présentant un lorgnon.) Voyez!	COPPELIUS: (giving him an eye glass) Look!
HOFFMANN: Donne!	HOFFMANN: Give it!
COPPÉLIUS: Trois ducats!	COPPELIUS: Three ducats!
HOFFMANN: (soulevant la portière et regardant). Dieu puissant! quelle grâce rayonne Sur son front!	HOFFMANN: (raising the portiere and looking) God all powerful! what grace Shines on her face!
COPPÉLIUS: Trois ducats.	COPPELIUS: Three ducats.
HOFFMANN: Cher ange, est-ce bien toi?	HOFFMANN: Dear angel, is it you?
COPPÉLIUS: (faisant retomber la portière). Trois ducats!	COPPELIUS: (letting the portiere drop) Three ducats!
HOFFMANN: Ah! pourquoi me ravir cette image De bonheur et d'amour? (Nicklausse donne les ducats à Coppélius.)	HOFFMANN: Ah, why to take from me This image of happiness and love? (Nicklausse gives the ducats to Coppelius.)
SPALANZANI: (entrant en se frottant les mains, puis apercevant Coppélius). Hein! Vous?	SPALANZANI: (enters, rubbing his hands, then noticing Coppelius) What, you?
COPPÉLIUS: Ce cher maître! . . .	COPPELIUS: Dear master!
SPALANZANI: Morbleu! Il était convenu . . .	SPALANZANI: Zounds! It was agreed—
COPPÉLIUS: Rien d'écrit . . .	COPPELIUS: Nothing was written—
SPALANZANI: Mais . . .	SPALANZANI: But—
COPPÉLIUS: Chimère! . . . L'argent sur vous pleuvra dans peu Je veux tout partager.	COPPELIUS: Nonsense! Money will soon pour on you— I want to share all.
SPALANZANI: Ne suis-je pas le père D'Olympia?	SPALANZANI: Am I not The father of Olympia?
COPPÉLIUS: Pardon, elle a mes yeux.	COPPELIUS: Pardon me, she has my eyes.
SPALANZANI: Plus bas! . . . (A part.) Bien lui prend que j'ignore Son secret. Mais j'y pense, oui! (Haut.) Voulez-vous encore Cinq cents ducats? qu'un écrit de vous m'abandonne Ses yeux, ainsi que toute sa personne, Et voici votre argent sur le juif Élias.	SPALANZANI: Not so loud! (Aside.) He thinks I don't know His secret. But I certainly do! (Aloud.) Do you want Five hundred ducats more? So that a written statement Might give me her eyes, likewise the rest of her person, And here is your money drawn on the Jew Elias.
COPPÉLIUS: Élias?	COPPELIUS: Elias?
SPALANZANI: Une maison sûre.	SPALANZANI: A very reliable house.
COPPÉLIUS: (écrit sur ses tablettes). Allons, c'est dit.	COPPELIUS: (writes in his notebook) Very well, that is agreed.
SPALANZANI: (Ils échangent leurs papiers). Donnant, donnant! Ce cher ami! (Ils s'embrassent.)	SPALANZANI: (They exchange papers.) A fair exchange! My dear friend! (They embrace.)
HOFFMANN: (bas, à Nicklausse). Quel marché peuvent-ils conclure?	HOFFMANN: (aside, to Nicklausse) What bargain are they making now?
COPPÉLIUS: Ce cher ami!	COPPELIUS: My dear friend!

SPALANZANI: (à part). Va, maintenant!
Va te faire payer!

COPPÉLIUS: A propos, une idée,
Mariez donc Olympia!
(Montrant Hoffmann.)
Le jeune fou que voilà,
Ne vous l'a donc pas demandée?
Quel nigaud!

SPALANZANI: C'est jeune!

COPPÉLIUS: Oui, vous l'avez endormi.

SPALANZANI: (l'embrassant). Ce cher ami!

COPPÉLIUS: (même jeu). Ce cher ami.
(Il sort en ricanant.)

SPALANZANI: (à Hoffmann). La physique, mon cher! . . .

HOFFMANN: Ah! . . . c'est une manie.

COCHENILLE: (paraissant au fond). Monsieur, voilà toute la compagnie.

LE CHOEUR DES INVITÉS: Non, aucun hôte, vraiment,
Ne recoit plus richement!
Par le goût, sa maison brille!
Tout s'y trouve réuni.
Cà, monsieur Spalanzani,
Présentez-nous votre fille.
On la dit faite à ravir,
Aimable, exempte de vices.
Nous comptons nous rafraichir
Après quelques exercices.
Non, aucun hôte vraiment
Ne recoit plus richement!

SPALANZANI: Vous serez satisfaits, messieurs, dans un moment.
(Il fait signe à Cochenille de le suivre, et sort avec lui par la droite. Les invités se promènent par groupes en admirant la demeure de Spalanzani. Nicklausse s'approche d'Hoffmann.)

NICKLAUSSE: (à Hoffmann). Enfin, nous allons voir de près cette merveille Sans pareille!

HOFFMANN: Silence! . . . la voici! . . .

Entrée de Spalanzani conduisant Olympia. cochenille les suit Curiosité générale.)

SPALANZANI: Mesdames et messieurs,
Je vous présente
Ma fille Olympia.

LE CHOEUR: Charmante!
Elle a de très beaux yeux!
Sa taille est fort bien prise!
Voyez comme elle est mise!
Il ne lui manque rien!
Elle est très bien!

SPALANZANI: (aside) Go now!
And get your money!

COPPELIUS: By the way, an idea, Marry off Olympia!
(Pointing to Hoffmann.)
Has not that young madman
Asked you yet for her hand?
What a fool!

SPALANZANI: He is young!

COPPELIUS: Yes, you have put him to sleep.

SPALANZANI: (kissing him) My dear friend!

COPPELIUS: (does the same) My dear friend!
(He goes out laughing.)

SPALANZANI: (to Hoffmann)
Physics, my dear!

HOFFMANN: Ah, that is a mania.

COCHENILLE: (appearing in the rear of the room) Sir, here is the whole company.

CHORUS OF GUESTS: No, no host, really,
Receives more richly!
Good taste shines through your house!
Everything here matches.
No, no host, really,
Receives more richly.
Now, Mister Spalanzani,
Present your daughter to us.
They say that she is charming,
Lovable, free from all vices.
We count upon refreshing ourselves
After some exercise.
No, no host, really,
Receives more richly.

SPALANZANI: You will be satisfied, gentlemen, in a moment.
(He beckons to Cochenille to follow him, and goes out with him at the right. The guests walk about in groups admiring Spalanzani's home. Nicklausse approaches Hoffmann.)

NICKLAUSSE: (to Hoffmann) At last we shall more nearly see this marvel Without equal!

HOFFMANN: Silence . . . she is here!

Enter Spalanzani conducting Olympia. Cochenille follows them. General surprise.

SPALANZANI: Ladies and gentlemen,
I present to you
My daughter Olympia.

THE CHORUS: Charming.
She has beautiful eyes!
Her shape is very good!
See how well apparelled!
Nothing is lacking!
She does very well!

HOFFMANN: Ah! qu'elle est adorable!

NICKLAUSSE: Charmante, incomparable!

SPALANZANI: (à Olympia). Quel succès est le tien.

NICKLAUSSE: (en la lorgnant)
Vraiment elle est très bien.

LE CHOEUR: Elle a de très beaux yeux
Sa taille est fort bien prise
Voyez comme elle est mise,
Il ne lui manque rien.
Vraiment elle est très bien.

SPALANZANI: Mesdames et messieurs, fière de vos bravos,
Et surtout impatiente
D'en conquérir de nouveaux,
Ma fille, obéissant à vos moindres caprices,
Va, s'il vous plaît . . .

NICKLAUSSE: (à part). Passer à d'autres exercices.

SPALANZANI: Vous chanter un grand air, en suivant de la voix, Talent rare!
Le clavecin, la guitare,
Où la harpe, à votre choix

COCHENILLE: (au fond du théâtre, en voix de fausset). La harpe! . . .

UNE VOIX DE BASSE: répondant dans la coulisse à la voix de Cochenille). La harpe! . . .

SPALANZANI: Fort bien! . . . Cochenille,
Va vite nous chercher la harpe de ma fille!
(Cochenille entre dans l'appartement d'Olympia).

HOFFMANN: (à part). Je vais l'entendre . . . ô joie!

NICKLAUSSE: (à part). O folle passion!

SPALANZANI: (à Olympia).
Maîtrise ton émotion,
Mon enfant!

OLYMPIA: Oui!

COCHENILLE: (rentrant en scène avec une harpe). Voilà!

SPALANZANI: (s'asseyant auprès d'Olympia et plaçant sa harpe devant lui.) Messieurs, attention!

COCHENILLE: A . . . attention!

LE CHOEUR: Attention.

OLYMPIA: (accompagnée par Spalanzani.—De temps à autre sa voix faiblit, Cochenille lui touche l'épaule et l'on entend le bruit d'un ressort). Les oi-seaux-dans-la-char-mille,
Dans-les-cieux-l'astre-du-jour,
Toute-parle-à-la-jeune-fil-le
D'a-mour!
D'a-mour!
Voi-là

HOFFMANN: Ah, how adorable she is!

NICKLAUSSE: Charming, incomparable!

SPALANZANI: (to Olympia) What a success is yours!

NICKLAUSSE: (taking her all in)
Really she is handsome.

THE CHORUS: She has beautiful eyes,
Her shape is very good,
See how well apparelled,
Nothing is really lacking,
She does very well.

SPALANZANI: Ladies and gentlemen, proud of your applause,
And above all anxious
To conquer more,
My daughter obedient to your least caprice
Will, if you please . . .

NICKLAUSSE: (aside) Pass to other exercises.

SPALANZANI: Sing to a grand air, following with the voice,
Rare talent
The clavichord, the guitar,
Or the harp, at your choice!

COCHENILLE: (at the rear) The harp!

BASS VOICE: (in the wings, answering Cochenille's voice) The harp!

SPALANZANI: Very good, Cochenille!
Go quickly and bring my daughter's harp!
(Cochenille enters Olympia's apartment.)

HOFFMANN: (aside) I shall hear her . . . oh joy!

NICKLAUSSE: (aside) Oh, crazy passion!

SPALANZANI: (to Olympia) Master your emotion, my child!

OLYMPIA: Yes.

COCHENILLE: (coming in, bringing a harp) There!

SPALANZANI: (sitting beside Olympia and putting the harp before him) Gentlemen, attention!

COCHENILLE: Attention!

THE CHORUS: Attention!

OLYMPIA: (accompanied by Spalanzani. From time to time her voice grows weak. Cochenille touches her shoulder and the sound of a spring is heard) The birds in the bushes,
In the heavens the orb of day,
All speak to the young girl
Of love, of love!
There!
The pretty song,

La-chan-son-gen-tille,
Voi-là
La-chan-son-d'O-lym-pia!
Ha!

LE CHOEUR: C'est la chanson d'Olympia!

OLYMPIA: Tout-ce-qui-chante-et-ré-sonne
Et-sou-pire-tour-à-tour-,
É-muet-son-coeur-qui-fris-sonne
D'a-mour!
Voi-la!
La-chan-son-mi-gnon-ne
Voi-là
Voi-là
La-chan-son-d'O-lym-pia.
Ha!

LE CHOEUR: C'est la chanson d'Olympia.

HOFFMANN: (à Nicklausse). Ah! mon ami! quel accent! . . .

NICKLAUSSE: Quelles gammes! . . .
(Cochenille a enlevè la harpe et tout le monde s'est empressé autour d'Olympia qui remercie tour à tour de la main droite et de la main gauche. Hoffmann la contemple avec ravissement. Un laquais vient dire quelques mots à Spalanzani.)

SPALANZANI: Allons, messieurs! . . . la main aux dames! . . .
Les souper nous attend! . . .

LE CHOEUR: Le souper! . . . Bon cela! . . .

SPALANZANI: A moins qu'on ne préfère
Danser d'abord! . . .

LE CHOEUR: (avec énergie). Non! . . . non! . . . le souper! . . . bonne affaire, Ensuite on dansera.

SPALANZANI: Comme il vous plaira! . . .

HOFFMANN: (s'approchant d'Olympia). Oserai-je? . . .

SPALANZANI: (intervenant).
Elle est un peu lasse;
Attendez le bal.
(Il touche l'épaule d'Olympia).

OLYMPIA: Oui.

SPALANZANI: Vous voyez, jusque-là
Voulez-vous me faire la grâce
De tenir compagnie à mon Olympia?

HOFFMANN: O bonheur!

SPALANZANI: (à part, en riant).
Nous verrons ce qu'il lui chantera.

NICKLAUSSE: (À Spalanzani).
Elle ne soupe pas?

SPALANZANI: Non!

NICKLAUSSE: (à part). Ame poétique!
(Spalanzani passe un moment derrière Olympia. On entend de nouveau le bruit d'un ressort qu'on remonte. Nicklausse se retourne).
Plaît-il?

SPALANZANI: Rien! la physique! . . . ah! monsieur! la physique.
(Il conduit Olympia à un fauteuil et l'y fait asseoir; puis il sort avec les invités.)

COCHENILLE: Le-e souper vou-ous attend.

LE CHOEUR: (avec un enthousiasme croissant). Le souper, le souper, le souper nous attend!
Non, aucun hôte vraiment,
Ne reçoit plus richement!

HOFFMANN: Ils se sont éloignés enfin! . . . Ah! je respire! . . . .
Seuls! seuls tous deux!
(S'approchant d'Olympia).
Que j'ai de choses à te dire,
O mon Olympia! . . . Laisse-moi t'admirer! . . .
De ton regard charmant laisse-moi m'enivrer.
(Il touche légèrement l'épaule d'Olympia).

OLYMPIA: Oui.

HOFFMANN: N'est-ce pas un rêve enfanté par la fièvre?
J'ai cru voir un soupir s'échapper de ta lèvre! . . .
(Il touche de nouveau l'épaule d'Olympia).

OLYMPIA: Oui.

HOFFMANN: Doux aveu, gage de nos amours,
Tu m'appartiens, nos coeurs sont unis pour toujours!
Ah! comprends-tu, dis-moi, cette joie éternelle
Des coeurs silencieux? . . .
Vivants, n'être qu'une âme, et du même coup d'aile
Nous élancer aux cieux!
Laisse, laisse ma flamme
Verser en toi le jour!
Laisse éclore ton âme
Aux rayons de l'amour!
(Il presse la main d'Olympia avec passion; celle-ci, comme si elle était mue par un ressort, se lève aussitôt, parcourt la scène en différents sens et sort enfin par une des portes du fond sans se servir de ses mains pour écarter la tapisserie. Hoffmann se lève et suit Olympia dans ses évolutions.)
Tu me fuis? . . . qu'ai-je fait? . . . Tu ne me réponds pas? . . .
Parle! . . . t'ai-je irritée? . . . Ah! . . . je suivrai tes pas!
(Au moment où Hoffmann va s'éloigner à la suite d'Olympia, Nicklausse paraît à l'une des portes opposées et l'interpelle.)

There!
The song of Olympia,
Ha!

THE CHORUS: It is the song of Olympia!

OLYMPIA: All that sings and resounds
Has its sighs in turn,
Moves its heart that trembles
With love,
There.
The little song,
There, there,
The song of Olympia,
Ha!

THE CHORUS: It is the song of Olympia.

HOFFMANN: (to Nicklausse) Ah, my friend, what an accent.

NICKLAUSSE: What runs!
(Cochenille has taken the harp and all surround Olympia who thanks them with the right hand and the left. Hoffmann looks at her with rapture. A servant speaks to Spalanzani.)

SPALANZANI: Come, gentlemen! your arms to the ladies,
Supper awaits you!

THE CHORUS: Supper! That's good . . .

SPALANZANI: Unless you would prefer To dance first.

THE CHORUS: (with energy) No! no! the supper . . . good thing . . .
We'll dance after.

SPALANZANI: As you please . . .

HOFFMANN: (approaching Olympia) Might I dare . . .

SPALANZANI: (interrupting) She is a bit tired,
Wait for the ball.
(He touches Olympia's shoulder.)

OLYMPIA: Yes.

SPALANZANI: You see. Until then
Will you do me the favor
To keep company with my Olympia?

HOFFMANN: Oh happiness!

SPALANZANI: (aside, laughing) We'll see what kind of a story he'll give her.

NICKLAUSSE: (to Spalanzani) Won't she have supper?

SPALANZANI: No.

NICKLAUSSE: (aside) Poetic soul!
(Spalanzani goes behind Olympia for a moment. Noise of a spring is heard again. Nicklausse turns around.)
What did you say?

SPALANZANI: Nothing, physics! ah, monsieur, physics!
(He conducts Olympia to a chair and seats her, then goes out with guests.)

COCHENILLE: The supper a-awaits you.

THE CHORUS: (with increasing enthusiasm) Supper, supper, supper awaits us!
No, really, no host
Receives more richly!

HOFFMANN: They are at last gone.
Ah, I breathe!
Alone, alone, the two of us!
(approaching Olympia)
I have so many things to say,
Oh my Olympia! Let me admire you!
With your charming looks let me intoxicate myself.
(He touches her shoulder.)

OLYMPIA: Yes.

HOFFMANN: Is it not a dream born of fever?
I thought I heard a sigh escape your lips!
(He again touches her shoulder.)

OLYMPIA: Yes.

HOFFMANN: Sweet avowal, pledge of our love,
You are mine, our hearts are united forever!
Ah! understand you, tell me, this eternal joy
Of silent hearts.
Living, with but one soul and with same stroke of wing,
Rush up to heaven!
Let, let, my flame
Show you the light of day!
Let your soul open
To the rays of love.
(He presses Olympia's hand with passion; she, as if she were moved by a spring, rises suddenly, rushes about the stage in every direction and finally goes out by one of the rear doors without using her hands to push aside the portieres. Hoffmann rises and follows Olympia in all her movements.)
You escape me? . . . What have I done?
You do not answer? . . .
Speak! Have I wounded you? Ah!
I'll follow your steps!
(At the moment when Hoffmann goes out after Olympia, Nicklausse appears at one of the opposite doors and calls him.)

NICKLAUSSE: Eh! morbleu! modère ton zèle! Veux-tu qu'on se grise sans toi? . . .	NICKLAUSSE: Here, by Jove, moderate your zeal! Do you want us to drink without you?
HOFFMANN: (avec confusion). Nicklausse! . . . je sus aimé d'elle . . . Aimé, Dieu puissant! . . .	HOFFMANN: (half crazy) Nicklausse, I am loved by her. Loved! By all the gods.
NICKLAUSSE: Par ma foi! Si tu savais ce qu'on dit de ta belle!	NICKLAUSSE: By my faith, If you knew what they are saying of your beauty!
HOFFMANN: Qu'en peut-on dire? Quoi?	HOFFMANN: What can they say? What?
NICKLAUSSE: Qu'elle est morte.	NICKLAUSSE: That she is dead.
HOFFMANN: Dieu juste! . . .	HOFFMANN: Great Heavens!
NICKLAUSSE: Ou ne fut pas en vie.	NICKLAUSSE: Or is not of this life.
HOFFMANN: (avec ivresse). Ange que l'envie Suit en frémissant, Justice éternelle! Nicklausse! . . . Je suis aimé d'elle! . . . Aimé! . . . Dieu puissant! . . . (Il sort rapidement; Nicklausse le suit.)	HOFFMANN: (exalted) Angel whom envy Follows with trembling, Eternal justice! Nicklausse! I am beloved by her! Loved! By all the gods. (Exit hastily. Nicklausse follows him)
COPPÉLIUS: (entrant, furieux, par la petite porte de gauche) Voleur! . . . brigand! . . . quelle déroute! . . . Elias a fait banqueroute! . . . Va, je saurai trouver le moment opportun Pour me venger . . . Volé! . . . moi! . . . je tuerai quelqu'un. (Les tapisseries du fond s'écartent. Coppélius se glisse dans la chambre d'Olympia, à droite.)	COPPELIUS: (enters, furious, by the small door on the left) Thief! brigand! what a tumble! Elias is bankrupt! But I shall find the opportunity To revenge myself . . . robbed! . . . Me! I'll kill somebody. (The portieres in the rear are drawn open. Coppelius slips into Olympia's room on the right.)
SPALANZANI: Voici les valseurs.	SPALANZANI: Here come the waltzers.
COCHENILLE: Voici la ritournelle!	COCHENILLE: Here comes the round dance.
HOFFMANN: C'est la valse qui nous appelle.	HOFFMANN: The waltz that calls us.
SPALANZANI: (À Olympia). Prends la main de monsieur, mon enfant . . . (Lui touchant l'épaule.) Allons! . . .	SPALANZANI: (to Olympia) Take the hand of the gentleman, my child. (Touching her shoulder.) Come.
OLYMPIA: Oui. (Hoffmann enlace la taille d'Olympia et ils commencent à valser. On leur fait place et ils disparaissent par la gauche. Le Choeur les suit des yeux. Spalanzani cause sur le devant de la scène avec Nicklausse.)	OLYMPIA: Yes. (Hoffmann puts his arm around Olympia's waist and they begin to waltz. Way is made for them and they disappear by the left. The chorus follows them with their gaze. Spalanzani talks in the foreground to Nicklausse.)
LE CHOEUR: Elle danse! En cadence! C'est merveilleux, Prodigieux! Place! place! Elle passe, Elle fend l'air Comme un éclair! (Pendant ce Choeur, Hoffmann et Olympia ont repassé en valsant dans le fond de la galerie et ont disparu par la droite. Le mouvement de la valse s'anime de plus en plus.)	THE CHORUS: She dances! In cadence. It's marvelous, Prodigious, Room, room, She passes Through the air Like lightning. (During the chorus, Hoffmann and Olympia have passed, dancing, into the rear of the gallery and disappeared by the right. The movement of the waltz becomes more and more animated.)
LA VOIX D'HOFFMANN: (dans la coulisse). Olympia! . . .	THE VOICE OF HOFFMANN: (outside) Olympia!
SPALANZANI: (remontant la scène). Qu'on les arrête! . . .	SPALANZANI: Stop them!
LE CHOEUR: Qui de nous les arrêtera? . . .	THE CHORUS: Who of us will do it?
NICKLAUSSE: Elle va lui casser la tête! . . . (Hoffmann et Olympia reparaissent et redescendent en scène en valsant de plus en plus vite. Nicklausse s'élance pour les arrêter.) Eh! mille diables! . . . (Il est violemment bousculé et va tomber sur un faureuil en tournant plusieurs fois sur lui-même.)	NICKLAUSSE: She will break his head. (Hoffmann and Olympia re-appear on the stage waltzing faster and faster. Nicklausse rushes to stop them.) A thousand devils! (He is violently struck and falls in an arm chair turning around and around a few times.)
LE CHOEUR: Patatra! . . .	THE CHORUS: Patatra! . . .
SPALANZANI: (s'élançant à son tour). Halte là! (Il touche Olympia à l'épaule. Elle s'arrête subitement. Hoffmann, étourdi, va tomber sur un canapé. Spalanzani continue en se retournant vers les invités.) Voilà. (A Olympia.) Assez, assez, ma fille.	SPALANZANI: (rushing in in turn) Halt! (He touches Olympia on the shoulder. She stops suddenly. Hoffmann, exhausted, falls on a sofa. Spalanzani continues turning to the guests.) There! (To Olympia.) Enough, enough, my child.
OLYMPIA: Oui.	OLYMPIA: Yes.
SPALANZANI: Il ne faut plus valser.	SPALANZANI: No more waltzing.
OLYMPIA: Oui.	OLYMPIA: Yes.
SPALANZANI: (à Cochenille). Toi, Cochenille Reconduis-la. (Il touche Olympia qui se tourne vers la droite.)	SPALANZANI: (to Cochenille) You, Cochenille, Take her back. (He touches Olympia, who turns toward the right.)
COCHENILLE: (poussant Olympia). Va-a donc! . . . Va! . . .	COCHENILLE: (pushing Olympia) Go on, go!
OLYMPIA: Oui. (En sortant, lentement poussée par Cochenille). Ha! ha! ha! ha! ha! ha! ah!	OLYMPIA: Yes. (Going out, slowly, pushed by Cochenille.) Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!
LE CHOEUR: Que voulez-vous qu'on dise? C'est une fille exquise! Il ne lui manque rien! Elle est très bien! (Olympia sort par la droite, suivie de Cochenille.)	THE CHORUS: What can we possibly say? She's an exquisite girl, She lacks nothing. She does very well! (Olympia goes out followed by Cochenille.)
NICKLAUSSE: (d'une voix dolente, en montrant Hoffmann). Est-il mort? . . .	NICKLAUSSE: (dolorous voice, pointing to Hoffmann.) Is he dead?
SPALANZANI: (examinant Hoffmann). Non! en somme, Son lorgnon seul est en débris. Il reprend ses esprits.	SPALANZANI: (examining Hoffmann) No! in fact His eye glass is broken. He is reviving.
LE CHOEUR: Pauvre jeune homme!	THE CHORUS: Poor young man!
COCHENILLE: (dans la coulisse). Ah! (Il entre en scène, la figure bouleversée.)	COCHENILLE: (outside) Ah! (He enters, very agitated.)
SPALANZANI: Quoi?	SPALANZANI: What?
COCHENILLE: L'homme aux lunettes! . . . Là!	COCHENILLE: The man with the glasses . . . there!

SPALANZANI: Miséricorde! Olympia! . . .

HOFFMANN: Olympia!.
(Spalanzani va pour s'élancer. On entend dans la coulisse un bruit de ressorts qui se brisent avec fracas.)

SPALANZANI: Ah! terre et cieux! Elle est cassée! . . .

HOFFMANN: (se levant). Cassée! . . .

COPPÉLIUS: (entrant par la droite et éclatant de rie). Ha! ha! ha! ha!
oui . . . Fracassée! . . .
(Hoffmann s'élance et disparaît par la droite. Spalanzani et Coppélius se jettent l'un sur l'autre et se prennent au collet.)

SPALANZANI: Gredin!

COPPÉLIUS: Voleur!

SPALANZANI: Brigand!

COPPÉLIUS: Païen!

SPALANZANI: Bandit!

COPPÉLIUS: Pirate!

HOFFMANN: (apparaissant, pâle et épouvanté). Un automate! un automate!
(Il se laisse tomber sur un fauteuil, Nicklausse cherche à le calmer. Eclat de rire général.)

LE CHOEUR: Ha! ha! ha! la bombe éclate!
Il aimat un automate!

SPALANZANI: (avec désespoir). Mon automate!

TOUS: Un automate!

LE CHOEUR: Ha! ha! ha! ha!

ACTE DEUXIÉME

Giulietta

A Venise. Galerie de fête dans un palais, donnant sur le grand canal. Eau praticable au fond pour les gondoles. Balustrade, escaliers, colonnes lampadaires, lustres, coussins, fleurs. Portes latérales sur le premier plan, plus loin de larges portes ou arcades en pans coupés, conduisant à d'autres galeries.

Hoffmann, Pitichinacchio, Jeunes Gens et Jeunes Femmes; Laquais, puis Giulietta et Nicklausse.

Les hôtes de Giulietta sont groupés debout ou étendus sur des coussins. Tableau brillant et animé.)

GIULIETTA et NICKLAUSSE:
(Dans la coulisse). Belle nuit, ô nuit d'amour,
Souris à nos ivresses,
Nuit plus douce que le jour,
O belle nuit d'amour!

SPALANZANI: Mercy! Olympia! . . .

HOFFMANN: Olympia! . . .
(Spalanzani rushes out. Sound of breaking springs with much noise is heard in the wings.)

SPALANZANI: Ah, heaven and earth, she is broken!

HOFFMANN: Broken!

COPPELIUS: (entering by the right and bursting with laughter) Ha, ha, ha, ha, yes. Smashed!
(Hoffmann rushes out and disappears by the right. Spalanzani and Coppelius go at each other, fighting, and seize each other by the collar.)

SPALANZANI: Rascal!

COPPELIUS: Robber!

SPALANZANI: Brigand!

COPPELIUS: Pagan!

SPALANZANI: Bandit!

COPPELIUS: Pirate!

HOFFMANN: (appearing, pale and terror stricken) An automaton, an automaton.
(He falls into an armchair. Nicklausse tries to calm him. General laughter.)

THE CHORUS: Ha, ha, ha, the bomb has burst,
He loved an automaton.

SPALANZANI: (despairingly) My automaton.

ALL: An automaton.

THE CHORUS: Ha, ha, ha, ha!

ACT TWO

Giulietta

In Venice. A gallery, in festival attire, in a palace on the Grand Canal. In the rear, water accessible to gondolas. Balustrade, stair case, lamp-posts, chandeliers, cushions, flowers. Side doors in the foreground, further large doors or arcades opening out on other galleries.

Hoffmann, Pitichinaccio, young men and women, lackeys, then Giulietta and Nicklausse.

The guests of Giulietta are in groups, standing or reclining on cushions. Brilliant and gay picture.

GIULIETTA AND NICKLAUSSE:
(in the wings) Oh soft night, oh night of love,
Smile on our serene bliss,
All the stars that shine above
Surround the heaven's queen!

Le temps fuit et sans retour
Emporte nos tendresses!
Loin de cet heureux séjour,
Le temps fuit sans retour
Zéphyrs embrasés
Versez-nous vos caresses;
Zéphyrs embrasés.
Donnez-nous vos baisers.
Belle nuit, ô nuit d'amour,
Souris à nos ivresses,
Nuit plus douce que le jour,
O belle nuit d'amour!
(Guiletta et Nicklausse entrant en scène, venant lentement de la galeries du fond.)

HOFFMANN: Et moi, ce n'est pas là, pardieu! ce qui m'enchante!
Aux pieds de la beauté qui nous vient enivrer
Le plaisir doit-il soupirer?
Non! . . . Le rire à la bouche,
On boit, on rit, on chante.
(Les Mmes, Schlemil, puis Dapertutto.)

SCHLEMIL: (entrant en scène). Je vois qu'on est en fête. A merveille, madame!

GIULIETTA: Comment! . . . Mais je vous ai pleure trois grands jours.

PITICHINACCHIO: Dame!

SCHLEMIL: (à Pitichinacchio). Avorton!

PITICHINACCHIO: Holà!

GIULIETTA: (les calmant). Calmez-vous!
Nous avons un poète étranger parmi nous.
(Présentant Hoffmann.)
Hoffmann!

SCHLEMIL: (de mauvaise grâce). Monsieur!

HOFFMANN: (ironique). Monsieur!

GIULIETTA: (à Schlemil). Souriez-nous, de grâce.
Et venez prendre place
Au pharaon!

LE CHOEUR: Vivat! Au pharaon!
(Guiletta, après avoir invité du geste tout le monde à la suivre dans la salle de jeu, se dirige vers la sortie. Hoffmann va pour offrir sa main à Guilietta, Schlemil intervient vivement.)

SCHLEMIL: (prenant la main de Giulietta qui essaie de le calmer). Morbleu!

GIULIETTA: (aux invités). Au jeu, messieurs, au jeu!

LE CHOEUR: Au jeu! au jeu!
(Tout le monde sort, moins Nicklausse et Hoffmann.)

NICKLAUSSE: (à Hoffmann). Un mot! . . . J'ai deux chevaux sellés; au premier rêve
Dont se laisse affoler mon Hoffmann, je l'enlève.

Time flies without return,
Forgetting our tenderness!
Far from I'll ever burn,
In lonely strait and stress.
Passioned zephyrs
Soft are your kisses.
O soft night, oh night of love,
Smile on our bliss serene:
All the stars that shine above
Surround the heaven's queen.
(Giulietta and Nicklausse enter, coming slowly from the gallery in the rear.)

HOFFMANN: For me, by Jove, that is not what's enchanting!
Does pleasure sigh at the feet of the beauty who give us joy?
No, with laughing mouth no sorrows are descanting.
The same; Schlemil, then Dapertutto

SCHLEMIL: (entering) I see all is joy. Congratulations, madame.

GIULIETTA: What! Why, I've wept for you for three whole days.

PITICHINACCIO: Good.

SCHLEMIL: (to Pitichinaccio) Microbe!

PITICHINACCIO: Hola!

GIULIETTA: Calm yourselves!
We have a strange poet among us.
(Presenting.) Hoffmann!

SCHLEMIL: (with bad grace) Monsieur!

HOFFMANN: Monsieur!

GIULIETTA: (to Schlemil) Smile on us, I beg,
And come take your place
At pharoah!

THE CHORUS: Bravo! To pharaoh!
(Giulietta after having invited by a gesture all to follow her, goes toward door. Hoffmann comes up to offer his hand to Giulietta. Schlemil comes between.) SCHLEMIL: (taking Giulietta's hand and trying to calm her) By heavens!

GIULIETTA: (to the guests) To the game, gentlemen, to the game!

THE CHORUS: To the game, the game!
(All go out except Hoffmann and Nicklausse.)

NICKLAUSSE: (to Hoffmann)
One word! I have two horses saddled.
At the first dream
That Hoffmann permits himself, I carry him off.

HOFFMANN: Et quels rêves, amais, pourraient être enfantés
Par de telles réalités?
Aime-t-on une courtisane? . . .

NICKLAUSSE: Ce Schlemil, cependant . . .

HOFFMANN: Je ne suis pas Schlemil.

NICKLAUSSE: Prends-y garde, le diable est malin.
(Dapertutto paraît au fond.)

HOFFMANN: Le fût-il,
S'il me la fait aimer, je consens qu'il me damne.
Allons!

NICKLAUSSE: Allons!
(Il sortent.)

DAPERTUTTO: (seul). Allez! . . . pour te livrer combat Les yeux de Giulietta sont une arme certaine.
Il a fallu que Schlemil succombât . . .
Foi de diable et de capitaine!
Tu feras comme lui.
Je veux que Giulietta t'ensorcelle aujourd'hui.
(Tirant de son doigt une bague où brille un gros diamant et le faisant scintiller.)
CHANSON
Tourne, tourne, miroir où se prend
l'alouette,
Scintille, diamant, fascine, attire-la . . .
L'alouette ou la femme
A cet appât vainqueur
Vont de l'aile ou du coeur;
L'une y laisse sa vie et l'autre y perd son âme.
Tourne, tourne, miroir où se prend
l'alouette.
Scintille, diamant, fascine, attire-la.
(Giulietta paraît et s'avance, comme fascinée, vers le diamant que Dapertutto tend vers elle.) DAPERTUTTO: (passant la bague au doigt de Giulietta). Cher ange!

GIULIETTA: Qu'attendez-vous de votre servante?

DAPERTUTTO: Bien, tu m'as deviné,
A séduire les couers entre toutes savante,
Tu m'as déjà donné
L'ombre de Schlemil! Je varie
Mes plaisirs et te prie
De m'avoir aujourd'hui
Le reflet d'Hoffmann!

GIULIETTA: Quoi! son reflet!

DAPERTUTTO: Oui!
Son reflet! . . . Tu doutes
De la puissance de tes yeux?

GIULIETTA: Non.

DAPERTUTTO: Qui sait? Ton Hoffmann rêve peutêtre mieux (Avec dureté.)
Oui, j'étais là, tout à l'heure, aux écoutes, (Avec ironie.)
Il te défie . . .

GIULIETTA: Hoffmann? . . . C'est bien! . . . dès aujourd'hui
J'en ferai mon jouet.
(Hoffmann entre.)

DAPERTUTTO: C'est lui!
(Dapertutto sort après avoir baisé la main de Giulietta.)
(Hoffmann traverse le théâtre, salue Giulietta et fait mine de s'éloigner.)

GIULIETTA: (à Hoffmann) Vous me quittez?

HOFFMANN: (reilleur) J'ai tout perdu . . .

GIULIETTA: Quoi! . . . vous aussi! . . .
Ah! vous me faites injure
Sans pitié, ni merci.
Partez! . . . Partez! . . .

HOFFMANN: Tes larmes t'ont trahie.
Ah! je t'aime . . . fût-ce au prix de ma vie.

GIULIETTA: Écoute, et ne ris pas de moi.
(Elle enlace Hoffmann de ses bras et prend un miroir qui est sur la table)
Ce que je veux, c'est ta fidèle image
Qui reproduit tes traits, ton regard, ton visage,
Le reflet que tu vois sur le mien se pencher.

HOFFMANN: Quoi! mon reflet? quelle folie!

GIULIETTA: Non! . . . car il peut se détacher
De la glace polie
Pour venir tout entier dans mon coeur se cacher.

HOFFMANN: Dans ton coeur?

GIULIETTA: Dans mon coeur.
C'est moi qui t'en supplie,
Hoffmann, comble mes voeux!

HOFFMANN: Mon reflet?

GIULIETTA: Ton reflet. Oui, sagesse ou folie,
Je l'attends, je le veux!

HOFFMANN: Extase! ivresse inassouvie,
Étrange et doux effroi!
Mon reflet, mon âme et ma vie A toi, toujours à toi!
A toi, toujours à toi!

GIULIETTA: Si ta présence m'est ravie,
Je veux garder de toi
Ton reflet, ton âme et ta vie,
Ami, donne-les-moi!
(Les mêmes, Schlemil, Dapertutto, Nicklausse, Pitichinaccio.)

GIULIETTA: (vivement) Schlemil!
(Schlemil entre siuvi de Nicklausse, Dapertutto, Pitichinaccio et quelques autres invités.)

HOFFMANN: And what dream ever could be born
By such relations?
Does one love a courtezan?

NICKLAUSSE: Yet this Schlemil, depends

HOFFMANN: I am not Schlemil.

NICKLAUSSE: Take care, the devil is clever.
(Dapertutto appears at back.)

HOFFMANN: Were it so,
If he makes me love her, may he damn me,
Come!

NICKLAUSSE: Let us go.
(They go out.)

DAPERTUTTO: (alone)
Yes! . . . to fight you.
The eyes of Giulietta are a sure weapon,
It needed that Schlemil fail,
Faith of captain and soldier,
You'll do like him.
I will that Giulietta shall use sorcery on you.
(Drawing from his finger a ring with a big glittering diamond, and making it sparkle.) Turn, turn, mirror, where the lark is caught,
Sparkle, diamond, fascinate, draw her..
The lark or the woman
To this conquering bait
Comes with wing or with heart;
One leaves her life, the other her soul,
Turn, turn, mirror where the lark is caught.
Sparkle, diamond, fascinate, attract her.
(Giulietta appears and advances fascinated toward the diamond that Dapertutto holds towards her.)

DAPERTUTTO: (placing the ring on Giulietta's finger) Dear angel!

GIULIETTA: What do you await from your servant?

DAPERTUTTO: Good, you have divined
At seducing hearts above all others wise,
You have given me
The shade of Schlemil! I vary
My pleasures and I pray you
To get for me today
The reflection of Hoffmann!

GIULIETTA: What! his reflection!

DAPERTUTTO: Yes.
His reflection! You doubt
The power of your eyes?

GIULIETTA: No.

DAPERTUTTO: Who knows? Your
Hoffmann dreams, perhaps better.
(Severely.)
Yes, I was there, a while back, listening.
(With irony.)
He defies you . . .

GIULIETTA: Hoffmann?
Well! . . . From this day forward,
I'll make him my plaything.
(Hoffmann enters.)

DAPERTUTTO: It is he!
(Dapertutto goes out after having kissed the hand of Giulietta.)
(Hoffmann crosses the stage, bows to Giulietta and pretends that he is leaving.)

GIULIETTA: (to Hoffmann) You leave me?

HOFFMANN: (mockingly) I have lost everything.

GIULIETTA: What? you too . . .
Ah, you do me wrong.
Without pity, without mercy,
Go! . . . Go! . . .

HOFFMANN: Your tears betrayed
you.
Ah! I love you . . . even at the price of my life.

GIULIETTA: Listen and don't laugh at me.
(She takes Hoffmann in her arms and takes a mirror which is on the table.)
What I want is your faithful image,
To reproduce your features, your look, your visage,
The reflection that I see above me bend.

HOFFMANN: My reflection? What folly!

GIULIETTA: No! for it can detach itself
From the polished glass
And come quite whole in my heart to hide.

HOFFMANN: In your heart?

GIULIETTA: In my heart. It is I who begs you
Hoffmann, give me my wish.

HOFFMANN: My reflection?

GIULIETTA: Your reflection. Yes, wisdom or folly,
I await, I demand.

HOFFMANN: Ecstasy, unappeased
bliss,
Strange and soft terror,
My reflection, my soul, my life
To you, always to you!

GIULIETTA: If I lose your presence,
I would keep of you
Your reflection, your soul, your life;
Dear one, give them me.
(Above. Schlemil, Dapertutto, Nicklausse, Pitichinaccio.)

GIULIETTA: (suddenly) Schlemil!
(Schlemil enters followed by Nicklausse, Dapertutto, Pitichinaccio and other guests.)

SCHLEMIL: J'en étais sûr! Ensemble!
(Il remonte, s'adressant aux invités.)
Venez, messieurs, venez,
C'est pour Hoffmann, à ce qu'il semble,
Que nous sommes abandonné.
(Rires ironiques.)

HOFFMANN: (presque parlé) Monsieur!

GIULIETTA: (à Hoffmann) Silence!
(Bas.)
Je t'aime, il a ma clef.

PITICHINACCHIO: (à Schlemil) Tuons-le.

SCHLEMIL: Patience.

DAPERTUTTO: (s'approchant d'Hoffmann) Comme vous êtes pâle!

HOFFMANN: Moi!

DAPERTUTTO: (lui présentant un miroir) Voyez plutôt!

HOFFMANN: (stupéfait, en regardant le miroir) Ciel!

NICKLAUSSE: (à Hoffmann) Quoi?

HOFFMANN: (avec une sorte d'effroi) Mon reflet!
(Courant à deux grandes glaces alternativement.)
J'ai perdu mon reflet!

NICKLAUSSE: (en montrant Giulietta ironiquement) Pour madame.

TOUS: (moins Hoffmann et Nicklausse, en riant, d'une voix étouffée) Ha! ha! ha! voyez son effroi.

NICKLAUSSE: Ah! viens, fuyons ces lieux où tu perdras ton âme.

HOFFMANN: (éperdu) Non! non! je l'aime. Laisse-moi!

HOFFMANN: Hélas! mon coeur s'égare encore,
Mes sens se laissent embraser,
Maudit l'amour qui me dévore,
Ma raison ne peut s'apaiser.
Sous ce front clair comme une aurore
L'enfer même vient me griser.
Je la hais et je l'adore
Je veux mourir de son baiser.

GIULIETTA: Mon bel Hoffmann, je vous adore,
Mais n'ai point l'âme à refuser
Ce diamant aux feux d'aurore
Qui ne me coûte qu'un baiser.
Car je suis femme et j'adore
Ce qui me fait plus belle encore
Pour vous griser.
Poète, il faut vous apaiser.

DAPERTUTTO ET PITICHINACCIO: Pauvre Hoffmann, l'amour encore
Vainement vient t'embraser;
Ta belle au regard d'aurore
Nous a vendu son baiser.

SCHLEMIL: I was sure of it! Together!
(He comes up addressing the guests.)
Come, gentlemen, come,
It is Hoffmann, it seems to me
That we have abandoned.
(Ironic laughter.)

HOFFMANN: Monsieur!

GIULIETTA: (to Hoffmann) Silence!
(Aside.)
I love you, he has my key.

PITICHINACCIO: (to Schlemil) Let us kill him.

SCHLEMIL: Patience!

DAPERTUTTO: (approaching Hoffmann) How pale you are!

HOFFMANN: I?

DAPERTUTTO: (showing him a mirror) Just look!

HOFFMANN: (amazed) Heavens!

NICKLAUSSE: (to Hoffmann) What?

HOFFMANN: (somewhat terrified) My reflection!
(Running alternately to two mirrors.)
I lost my reflection!

NICKLAUSSE: (pointing ironically to Giulietta) For madam.

ALL: (except Hoffmann and Nicklausse, laughing in a choking voice) Ha, ha, ha, behold his fright!

NICKLAUSSE: Ah, come, let us flee from this place
Where you will lose your soul.

HOFFMANN: (in despair) No! no!
I love her, leave me!

HOFFMANN: Alas, my heart still wanders,
My senses are on fire.
Cursed be the love which consumes me,
My reason will not be calmed,
Hell itself intoxicates me.
I hate and adore her.
I wish to die of her kiss.

GIULIETTA: My beautiful Hoffmann, I adore you,
But have not the heart to refuse
This diamond bright as the dawn,
Which costs me but a kiss.
For I am a woman, and adore
That which makes me fairer still
To turn your head
Poet, you must calm yourself.

DAPERTUTTO AND PITICHINACCIO: Poor Hoffmann, love still Vainly comes to consume you;
Your beauty fair as the dawn,
Has sold us her kiss
For the coquette adores herself;

Car la coquette s'adore;
Un bijou qui peut encore
L'embellir et nous griser
Vaut bien pour elle un baiser.

SCHLEMIL: (en touchant la garde de son épée) Ce poète j'abhorre
Aurait bientôt son baiser
Sans ce fer clair et sonore
Dont je sais fort bien user.
Un fol amour te dévore?
Je suis là pour t'apaiser.
Tu prétends qu l'on t'adore,
C'est bon, nus allons causer.

NICKLAUSSE ET LE CHOEUR: Hélas! son coeur s'enflamme encore!
Par elle il s'est laissé griser.
L'amour le brûle et le dévore.
Rien ne pourra l'apaiser.
La perfide qu'il adore
Prend les coeurs pour les briser.
Fuis la belle au front d'aurore,
Car on meurt de son baiser.
(On entend un chant de gondoliers.)

GIULIETTA: Écoutez, messieurs,
Voici les gondoles,
L'heure des barcarolles
Et celle des adieux!
(Schlemil reconduit les invités jusqu'au fond de la scène. Giulietta sort par la gauche après avoir jeté un dernier regard à Hoffmann qui la suit des yeux. Dapertutto reste au fond de la scène. Nicklausse, voyant que Hoffmann ne le suit pas, revient à lui et lui touche l'épaule.)

NICKLAUSSE: Viens-tu?

HOFFMANN: Pas encore.

NICKLAUSSE: Pourquoi?
Bien, je comprends! adieu!
(A part.)
Mais je veille sur toi.
(Il salue Schlemil et sort.)

SCHLEMIL: Qu'attendez-vous, monsieur?

HOFFMANN: Que vous me donniez certaine clef que j'ai juré d'avoir.

SCHLEMIL: Vous n'aurez cette clef, monsieur, qu'avec ma vie!

HOFFMANN: J'aurai donc l'une et l'autre.

SCHLEMIL: C'est ce qu'il faut voir!
En garde!

DAPERTUTTO: Vous n'avez pas d'épée
(lui présentant son épée)
Prenez la mienne!

HOFFMANN: (prenant l'épée) Merci!

CHOEUR: (dans la coulisse qui se termine au baisser du rideau)
Belle nuit, ô nuit d'amour!
Souris à nos ivresses,
Nuit plus douce que le jour, O belle nuit d'amour!

A jewel which can still Beautify her and turn our heads
Is sure worth a kiss to her.

SCHLEMIL: (grasping the hilt of his sword) This poet whom I detest,
Would soon have his kiss
Without this shining steel
Which I know how to wield.
Does a mad love consume you?
I am here to calm it.
You pretend you are adored,
That's good, we shall see.

NICKLAUSSE AND CHORUS: Alas, his heart is still enflamed!
He let his head be turned by her.
Love burns and consumes him.
Nothing can calm him.
The false one whom he adores
Takes hearts to break them.
Flee from the beauty fair as dawn.
For one dies from her kiss.
(The singing of gondoliers is heard.)

GIULIETTA: Listen, gentlemen,
Here come the gondolas,
The hour of barcaroles
And of farewells!
(Schlemil conducts the guests to the rear of the stage. Giulietta goes out at the left after having cast a last glance at Hoffmann who follows her with his gaze. Dapertutto remains at the rear of the stage. Nicklausse, seeing that Hoffmann does not follow him, comes back to him and taps him on the shoulder.)

NICKLAUSSE: Are you coming?

HOFFMANN: Not yet.

NICKLAUSSE: Why? Very well. I understand, Good-bye. (Aside.)
But I'll watch over him.
(He bows to Schlemil and goes out.)

SCHLEMIL: What do you wait for?

HOFFMANN: That you give me a certain key
I've sworn to have.

SCHLEMIL: You shall have this key, sir,
Only with my life.

HOFFMANN: Then I shall have have one and the other.

SCHLEMIL: That remains to be seen. On guard!

DAPERTUTTO: You have no sword,
(Presenting his sword.)
Take mine!

HOFFMANN: (taking the sword) Thank you.

CHORUS: (in the wings, until the curtain falls) O soft night, night of love,
Smile on our serene bliss,
When the stars that shine above
Greet the heavenly queen!

(Hoffmann et Schlemil se battent; après quelques passes, Schlemil est blessé à mort, et tombe. Hoffmann jette son épée, se penche sur le corps de Schlemil et lui prend une petite clef pendue à son cou. Hoffmann s'élance dans l'appartement de Giulietta, Pitichinaccio regarde Schlemil avec curiosité et s'assure qu'il est bien mort. Dapertutto ramasse tranquillement son épée et la remet au fourreau, puis il remonte vers la galerie . . . Giulietta paraît dans une gondole; au même moment rentre Hoffmann.)

HOFFMANN: Personne . . .

GIULIETTA: (riant) Ha! Ha! Ha!
(Hoffmann se retourne vers Giulietta et la regarde avec stupeur.)

DAPERTUTTO: (à Giulietta)
Qu'en fais-tu maintenant?

GIULIETTA: Je te l'abandonne!

PITICHINACCHIO: (entre dans la gondole) Cher ange!
(Giulietta le prend dans ses bras.)

HOFFMANN: (comprenant toute l'infamie de Giulietta) Misérable!

NICKLAUSSE: Hoffmann! Hoffmann! Les sbires!
(Nicklausse entraîne Hoffmann.—Giulietta et Dapertutto rient.)

(Hoffmann and Schlemil cross swords. After several passes, Schlemil is mortally wounded and falls. Hoffmann throws away his sword, leans over the body of Schlemil and takes from it a small key which hung on the neck. Hoffmann rushes into the apartment of Giulietta. Pitichinaccio looks Schlemil over carefully and makes sure that he is dead. Dapertutto calmly picks up his sword and puts it into the scabbard, then he goes back to the gallery. Giulietta appears in a gondola. Hoffmann comes in at the same time.)

HOFFMANN: No one.

GIULIETTA: (laughing) Ha! ha! ha!
(Hoffmann comes up toward Giulietta and looks at her in a stupor.)

DAPERTUTTO: (to Giulietta)
What will you do with him now?

GIULIETTA: I'll turn him over to you.

PITICHINACCIO: (entering the gondola) Dear angel.
(Giulietta takes him in her arms.)

HOFFMANN: (comprehending the infamy of Giulietta) Vile wretch!

NICKLAUSSE: Hoffmann! Hoffmann—the police!
(Nicklausse drags Hoffmann away.—Giulietta and Dapertutto laugh.)

■ ACTE TROISIÈME

Antonia

A Munich chez Crespel. Une chambre bizarrement meublée. A droite, un clavecin. A gauche, canapé et fauteuil. Violons suspendus au mur. Au fond, deux portes en pan coupé. Sur le premier plan, à gauche, une fenêtre en pan coupe formant un enfoncement et donnant sur un balcon. Soleil couchant. Au fond, entre les deux portes, un grand portrait de femme accroché au mur.

ANTONIA: (seule. Elle est assise devant le clavecin et chante) Elle a fui, la tourterelle, Elle a fui loin de toi!
(Elle s'arrête et se lève.)
Ah! souvenir trop doux! image trop cruelle! . . .
Hélas! à mes genoux, je l'entends, je le vois! . . .
(Elle descend sur le devant de la scène.)
Elle a fui, la tourterelle,
Elle a fui loin de toi! . . .
Mais elle est toujours fidèle
Et te garde sa foi.
Bien-aimé, ma voix t'appelle,

■ ACT THREE

Antonia

At Munich, at the home of Crespel. A room furnished in a bizarre fashion. To the left a couch and arm-chair. Violins hung on the wall. In the rear two doors. In the fore-ground, at the left, a window forming a recess and opening out on a balcony. Sunset. In the rear, between two doors a large portrait of a woman hanging on the wall.

ANTONIA: (alone. She is seated at the clavichord) She has fled, the dove
She has fled far from you!
(She stops and rises.)
Ah, memory too sweet, image too cruel!
Alas at my knees I hear, I see him!
(She walks to the front of the stage.)
She has fled, the dove,
She has fled far from you;
She is faithful ever,
And she keeps her troth.
Beloved, my voice calls you,
All my heart is yours.

Tout mon coeur est à toi.
(Elle se rapproche du clavecin et continue debout, en feuilletant la musique.)
Chère fleur qui viens d'éclore, Par pitié, réponds-moi, Toi qui sais s'il m'aime encore, S'il me garde sa foi! . . .
Bien-aimé, ma voix t'implore. Que ton coeur vienne à moi! . . .
(Elle se laisse tomber sur la chaise qui est devant le clavecin.)

CRESPEL: (entrant brusquement et courant à Antonia) Malheureuse enfant fille bien-aimée
Tu m'avais promis de ne plus chanter.

ANTONIA: Ma mère s'était en moi ranimée;
Mon coeur en chantant croyait l'écouter.

CRESPEL: C'est là mon tourment.
Ta mère chérie
T'a légué sa voix, regrets superflus!
Par toi je l'entends.
Non . . . non . . . je t'en prie.

ANTONIA: (tristement) Votre Antonia ne chantera plus! . . .
(Elle sort lentement.)

CRESPEL: (seul)
Désespoir! . . . Tout à l'heure encore
Je voyais ces taches de feu
Colorer son visage, Dieu!
Perdrai-je l'enfant que j'adore?
Ah! cet Hoffmann . . . C'est lui
Qui jeta dans son coeur ces ivresses . . .
J'ai fui
Jusqu'à Munich . . .

CRESPEL: Toi, Frantz, n'ouvre à personne.

FRANTZ: Vous croyez . . .

CRESPEL: Où vas-tu? . . .

FRANTZ: Je vais voir si l'on sonne.
Comme vous avez dit . . .

CRESPEL: J'ai dit: n'ouvre à personne!
(Criant.)
A personne! Entends-tu, cette fois?

FRANTZ: Eh! mon Dieu!
Je ne suis pas sourd!

CRESPEL: Bien! que le diable t'emporte!

FRANTZ: Oui, monsieur, la clef sur la porte.

CRESPEL: Bélître! Ane bâté!

FRANTZ: C'est convenu.

CRESPEL: Morbleu.
(Il sort vivement. Frantz va refermer la porle et redescend.)

FRANTZ: (seul) Eh bien! Quoi! toujours en colère!
Bizarre! quinteux! exigeant!
Ah! l'on a du mal à lui plaire
Pour son argent . . .
Bon si je chantais quel tapage,
Je chante pitoyablement;

(She approaches the clavichord again, remains standing and fingers the music.)
Dear flower but now open,
In pity answer me,
You that knows if still he loves me,
If he keeps his troth.
Beloved, my voice implores you.
May your heart come to me.
(She falls in a chair which is in front of the clavichord.)

CRESPEL: (entering suddenly and rushing up to Antonia) Unhappy child, beloved daughter,
You promised to no longer sing.

ANTONIA: My mother in me lived again;
My heart while singing thought it heard her.

CRESPEL: There is my torment.
Your loved mother
Left you her voice. Vain regrets!
Through you I hear her. No, no, I beg . . . you

ANTONIA: (sadly) Your Antonia will sing no more!
(She goes out slowly.)

CRESPEL: (alone) Despair! A little while again
I saw those spots of fire
Mark her face. God!
Must I lose the one I adore?
Ah, that Hoffmann . . . It is he Who put this craze in her heart. I fled Far as Munich . . .

CRESPEL: You, Frantz, open to nobody.

FRANTZ: (false exit) You think so . . .

CRESPEL: Where are you going?

FRANTZ: I'm going to see if anybody rang.
As you said . . .

CRESPEL: I said, Open to nobody.
(Shouting) To nobody! This time do you hear?

FRANTZ: Good Heavens! we're not all of us deaf?

CRESPEL: All right! The devil take you!

FRANTZ: Yes, sir, the key is in the door.

CRESPEL: Idiot! donkey!

FRANTZ: It's agreed then

CRESPEL: Zounds!
(He exists quickly. Frantz goes to shut the door and comes back.)

FRANTZ: (alone) Well! What! angry always!
Strange, peevish, exacting!
One would think that one pleased him
For his money . . .
Of course, one can't have every-

Mais je danse agréablement,
Je me le dis sans compliment.
Corbleu! la danse est à mon avantage,
C'est là mon plus grand attrait,
Et danser n'est pas commode.
Tra la la! Tra la la!
(Il danse. Il s'arrête.)
Près des femmes le jarret
N'est pas ce qui me-nuirait.
Tra la la! Tra la la!
(Il tombe.)
Non! c'est la méthode.
(Hoffmann entre par le fond, suivi de Nicklausse.)
FRANTZ, HOFFMANN, NICKLAUSSE.

HOFFMANN: (paraît à la porte du fond) Frantz! . . . C'est ici!
(Il descend en scène, touchant l'épaule de Frantz.) Debout, l'ami.

FRANTZ: Hein! qui va là?
(Il se relève surpris.)
Monsieur Hoffmann!

HOFFMANN: Moi-même! Eh bien, Antonia?

FRANTZ: Il est sorti, monsieur.

HOFFMANN: (riant) Ha! ha! plus sourd encore
Que l'an passé? . . .

FRANTZ: Monsieur m'honore
Je me porte bien, grâce au ciel.

HOFFMANN: Antonia! . . . Va! . . . fais que je la voie!

FRANTZ: (souriant) Très bien! . . . Quell joie
Pour monsieur Crespel!
(Il sort.)

HOFFMANN: (s'asseyant devant le clavecin et s'accompagnant)
C'est une chanson d'amour
Qui s'envole,
Triste ou folle
Tour à tour! . . .

ANTONIA: (entrant précipitamment en scène) Hoffmann! . . .

HOFFMANN: (se relevant et recevant Antonia dans ses bras) Antonia! . . .

NICKLAUSSE: (à part) Je suis de trop; bonsoir.
(Il s'esquive.)

ANTONIA: Ah! je le savais bien que tu m'aimais encore!

HOFFMANN: Mon coeur m'avait bien dit que j'étais regretté!
Mais pourquoi nous a-t-on séparés?

ANTONIA: Je l'ignore.

HOFFMANN: Ah! j'ai le bonheur dans l'âme!
Demain tu seras ma femme.
Heureux époux
L'avenir est à nous!
A l'amour soyons fidèles!
Que ses chaines éternelles
Gardent nos coeurs
Du temps même vainqueurs!

thing.
I sing pretty badly,
But dance agreeably,
And I do not flatter myself;
Dancing shows off my advantages.
It is my one great attraction,
But dancing isn't easy.
Tra la la, tra la la!
(He dances and stops.)
With women the shape of my leg
Would do me no harm,
Tra la la, tra la la!
(He falls.)
No, it is the method.
(Hoffmann enters followed by Nicklausse.)

HOFFMANN: (appears in the rear door) Frantz! This is it.
(He comes to the front of the stage, tapping Frantz on the shoulder.)
Up, my friend!

FRANTZ: Hey, who's there?
(Rises, surprised.)
Monsieur Hoffmann!

HOFFMANN: Myself. Well, Antonia?

FRANTZ: He's gone out, sir.

HOFFMANN: (laughing) Ha, ha, deafer yet
Than last year . . .

FRANTZ: Monsieur honors me,
I am very well, thanks to heaven.

HOFFMANN: Antonia! I must see her.

FRANTZ: (smiling) Very well! what a joy
For monsieur Crespel!
(He goes out.)

HOFFMANN: (sitting before the clavichord and accompanying himself) A song of love
Flies away,
Sad or gay;
It takes its turn . . .

ANTONIA: (entering suddenly) Hoffmann! . . .

HOFFMANN: (standing up and receiving her in his arms.) Antonia!

NICKLAUSSE: (aside) I am one too many, good night.
(He exits.)

ANTONIA: Ah, I well knew that you loved me still.

HOFFMANN: My heart told me that I was regretted,
But why were we separated?

ANTONIA: I do not know.

HOFFMANN: I have happiness in my heart;
Tomorrow you'll be my wife!
Happy couple.
The future shall be ours!
To love let's be faithful,
That her eternal chains,
Keep our hearts
Conquerors even against time!

ANTONIA: Ah! j'ai le bonheur dans l'âme!
Demain, je serai ta femme!
Heureux époux,
L'avenir est à nous!
Chaque jour, chansons nouvelles!
Ton génie ouvre ses ailes!
Mon chant vainqueur
Est l'écho de ton coeur!

HOFFMANN: (souriant) Pourtant, ô ma fiancée,
Te dirai-je une pensée
Qui me trouble malgré moi?
La musique m'inspire un peu de jalouise,
Tu l'aimes trop!

ANTONIA: (souriant) Voyez l'étrange fantaisie!
T'aimé-je donc pour elle, ou l'aimé-je pour toi?
Car toi tu ne vas pas sans doute me défendre
De chanter, comme a fait mon père?

HOFFMANN: Que dis-tu?

ANTONIA: Oui, mon père à présent, m'impose la vertu Du silence.
(Vivement.)
Veux-tu m'entendre?

HOFFMANN: (à part) C'est étrange! . . . Est-ce donc . . .

ANTONIA: (l'entraînant vers le clavecin) Viens lá, comme autrefois.
Écoute, et tu verras si j'ai perdu ma voix.

HOFFMANN: Comme ton oeil s'anime et comme ta main tremble!

ANTONIA: (le faisant s'asseoir devant le clavecin et se penchant sur son épaule) Tiens, ce doux chant d'amour que nous chantions ensemble.
(Elle chante, accompagné par Hoffmann.)
C'est une chanson d'amour
Qui s'envole
Triste ou folle
Tour à tour;
C'est une chanson d'amour.
La rose nouvelle
Sourit au printemps.
Las! . . . combien de temps
Vivra-t-elle?

ENSEMBLE: C'est une chanson d'amour
Qui s'envole,
Triste ou folle
Tour à tour.
C'est une chanson d'amour.

HOFFMANN: Un rayon de flamme
Pare ta beauté.
Verras-tu l'été,
Fleur de l'âme?

ENSEMBLE: C'est une chanson d'amour
Qui s'envole
Triste ou folle
Tour à tour.
C'est une chanson d'amour.
(Antonia porte la main à son coeur et semble prête à défaillir.)

ANTONIA: I have joy in my heart!
Tomorrow I'll be your wife,
Happy couple,
The future is ours!
Each day new songs,
Your genius opens its wings,
My conquering song
Is the echo of your heart.

HOFFMANN: (smiling) Still, of my affianced,
Shall I speak my thought?
That, spite of myself, troubles me,
Music inspires a little jealousy,
You love it too much!

ANTONIA: (smiling) See the strange fantasy!
Did I love you for it, or it for you?
For you are not going to forbid me
To sing, as did my father.

HOFFMANN: What say you?

ANTONIA: Yes, my father at present imposes the virtue Of silence.

HOFFMANN: (aside.) It is strange . . . can it be? . . .

ANTONIA: (drawing him to the clavicord) Come here as before;
Listen, and you'll see it I've lost my voice.

HOFFMANN: How your eye lights up, your hand trembles.

ANTONIA: (making him sit down before the clavichord and leaning on his shoulder) Here, the soft song of love we sang together.
(She sings, accompanied by Hoffmann.)
It is a song of love
That flies off
Sad or joyful,
Turn by turn,
It is a song of love,
The new rose
Smiles on the Spring.
Ah! how long will it be
That it lives?

TOGETHER: It is a song of love
That flies off, etc., etc.

HOFFMANN: A ray of flame
Matches your beauty.
Will you see the summer
Flower of the soul.

TOGETHER: It is a song of love,
That flies off
Sad or joyful,
Turn by turn.
It is a song of love.
(Antonia puts her hand to her heart.)

HOFFMANN: Qu'as-tu donc?

ANTONIA: (mettant la main à son couer) Rien.

HOFFMANN: (écoutant) Chut!

ANTONIA: Ciel! mon père!
Viens! . . . viens! . . .
(Elle sort.)

HOFFMANN: Non! je saurai le mot de ce mystère.
(Il se cache dans l'enfoncement de la fenêtre, Crespel paraît.)

CRESPEL, HOFFMANN caché, puis FRANTZ.

CRESPEL: (regardant autour de lui) Non, rien! J'ai cru qu'Hoffmann était ici.
Puisse-t-il être au diable!

HOFFMANN: (à part) Grand merci!

FRANTZ: (entrant, à Crespel) Monsieur!

CRESPEL: Quoi?

FRANTZ: Le docteur Miracle.

CRESPEL: Drôle! . . . infâme!
Ferme vite la porte!

FRANTZ: Oui, monsieur, médecin . . .

CRESPEL: Lui! médecin? Non, sur mon âme,
Un fossoyeur, un assassin!
Qui me tuerait ma fille après ma femme.
J'entends le cliquetis de ses flacons dans l'air.
Loin de moi qu'on le chasse.
(Miracle paraît subitement. Frantz se sauve.)
(Le mêmes, Miracle.)

MIRACLE: Ha, ha, ha, ha!

CRESPEL: Enfin!

MIRACLE: Eh bien! me voilà! c'est moi-même,
Ce bon monsieur Crespel, je l'aime!
Où donc est-il?

CRESPEL: (l'arrêtant) Morbleu!

MIRACLE: Ha, ha, ha, ha!
Je cherchais votre Antonia!
Eh bien! ce mal qu'elle hérita
De sa mère? Toujours en progrès? chère belle!
Nous la guérirons. Menez-moi près d'elle.

CRESPEL: Pour l'assassiner! . . . Si tu fais un pas,
Je te jette par la fenêtre.

MIRACLE: Eh! là! tout doux! Je ne veux pas
Vous déplaire.
(Il avance un fauteuil.)

CRESPEL: Que fais-tu, traître?

MIRACLE: Pour conjurer le danger,
Il faut le connaître.
Laissez-moi l'interroger.

HOFFMANN: Why, what is the matter?

ANTONIA: (doing the same again) Nothing.

HOFFMANN: (listening) Chut.

ANTONIA: Heavens, my father!
Come, come . . .
(She goes out.)

HOFFMANN: No! I must know the last word of this mystery.
(He hides in the recess of the window. Crespel appears.)

CRESPEL, HOFFMANN hidden, then FRANTZ

CRESPEL: (looking about him) No, nothing. I thought Hoffmann was here.
May he go to the devil!

HOFFMANN: (aside) Many thanks!

FRANTZ: (entering, to Crespel) Sir.

CRESPEL: What?

FRANTZ: Doctor Miracle.

CRESPEL: Infamous scoundrel,
Quickly close the door.

FRANTZ: Yes, sir, the doctor.

CRESPEL: He, doctor? No, on my soul,
A grave digger, an assassin!
Who would kill my daughter after my wife.
I hear the jingle of his golden vials,
Let him be chased from me.
(Miracle suddenly appears. Frantz runs away.)
(Above. Miracle.)

MIRACLE: Ha, ha, ha, ha!

CRESPEL: At last!

MIRACLE: Well, here I am! It's myself.
This good monsieur Crespel, I like him,
But where is he?

CRESPEL: (stopping him) Morbleu!

MIRACLE: Ha, ha, ha, ha!
I sought for your Antonia.
Well, this trouble she inherited
From her mother? Still progressing, dear girl.
We'll cure her. Take me to her.

CRESPEL: To assassinate her . . . If you make one step
I'll throw you out of the window.

MIRACLE: There now softly, I do not wish to Displease you.
(He advances a chair.)

CRESPEL: What do you, traitor?

MIRACLE: To minimize the danger,
One must know it.
Let me question her.

CRESPEL ET HOFFMANN: L'effroi me pénètre.

MIRACLE: (la main étendue vers la chambre d'-Antonia) A mon pouvoir vainqueur Cède de bonne grâce! . . .
Près de moi, sans terreur,
Viens ici prendre place, Viens!

CRESPEL ET HOFFMANN:
D'épouvante et d'horreur
Tout mon être se glace.
Une étrange terreur
M'enchaine à cette place, J'ai peur.

CRESPEL: (s'asseyant sur le tabouret du clavecin) Allons, parle, et sois bref!
(Miracle continue ses passes magnétiques. La porte-de la chambre d'Antonia s'ouvre lentement. Miracle indique par ses gestes qu'il prend la main d'Antonia invisible, qu'il la mène près de l'un des fauteuils et la fait s'asseoir.)

MIRACLE: (indiquant l'un des fauteuils et s'asseyant sur l'autre) Veuillez vous asseoir là!

CRESPEL: Je suis assis!

MIRACLE: (sans répoundre à Crespel) Quel âge avez-vous, je vous prie?

CRESPEL: Qui? moi?

MIRACLE: Je parle à votre enfant.

HOFFMANN: (à part) Antonia?

MIRACLE: Quel âge? . . .
(Il écoute.)
Vingt ans!

CRESPEL: Hein?

MIRACLE: Le printemps de la vie! . . .
(Il fait le geste d'un homme qui tâte le pouls.)
Voyons la main! . . .

CRESPEL: La main? . . .

MIRACLE: (tirant sa montre) Chut! Laissez-moi compter.

HOFFMANN: (à part) Dieu! . . . suis-je le jouet d'un rêve?
Est-ce un fantôme?

MIRACLE: Le pouls est inégal et vif, mauvais symptôme?
Chantez! . . .

CRESPEL: (se levant) Non, non, tais-toi! . . . ne la fais pas chanter! . . .
(La voix d'Antonia se fait entendre dans l'air.)

MIRACLE: Voyez, son front s'anime et son regard flamboie;
Elle porte la main à son coeur agité.
(Il semble suivre Antonia du gest, la porte de la chambre se referme brusquement.)

CRESPEL: Que dit-il?

CRESPEL AND HOFFMANN: Terror penetrates me.

MIRACLE: (his hand extended toward Antonia's room) To my conquering power,
Give way with good grace.
Near me without terror
Come take your place.

CRESPEL AND HOFFMANN: With fright and with horror
All my being is cold;
A strange terror
Chains me to this place.
I'm afraid.

CRESPEL: (seating himself on the music-stool) Come, speak and be brief.
(Miracle continues his magnetic passes. The door of Antonia's room opens slowly. Miracle indicates by gestures that he takes the hand of Antonia, invisible, and leads her to one of the arm chairs and makes her sit down.)

MIRACLE: (pointing out one of the chairs and sitting on another) Please sit there.

CRESPEL: I am seated.

MIRACLE: (paying no attention to Crespel) How old are you, please?

CRESPEL: Who, I?

MIRACLE: I am speaking to your child.

HOFFMANN: (aside) Antonia.

MIRACLE: What age?
(He listens.)
Twenty!

CRESPEL: What?

MIRACLE: The Spring of life.
(He appears to feel the pulse.)
Let me see your hand! . . .

CRESPEL: The hand.

MIRACLE: (pulling out his watch) Chut! let me count.

HOFFMANN: (aside) God! am I the plaything of a dream?
Is it a ghost?

MIRACLE: The pulse is unequal and fast, bad symptom. Sing.

CRESPEL: (rising) No, no, don't speak . . . don't have her sing.
(The voice of Antonia is heard.)

MIRACLE: See her face brightens, her eyes are on fire;
She carries her hand to her beating heart.
(He follows Antonia with his gestures. The door of her room closes quickly.)

CRESPEL: What is he saying?

MIRACLE: (se levant et remettant un des fauteuils en place) Il serait dommage, en vérité,
De laisser à la mort une si belle proie!

CRESPEL: Tais-toi! . . .
(Il repousse violemment l'autre fauteuil.)

MIRACLE: Si vous voulez accepter mon secours,
Si vous voulez, sauver ses jours,
J'ai là certain flacons que je tiens en réserve.
(Il tire plusieurs flacons de sa poche et les fait sonner comme des castagnettes.)

CRESPEL: Tais-toi! . . .

MIRACLE: Dont il faudrait . . .

CRESPEL: Tais-toi! Dieu me préserve
D'écouter tes conseils, misérable assassin! . . .

MIRACLE: Dont il faudrait, chaque matin . . .

MIRACLE: Eh oui! je vous entends!
Tout à l'heure! un instant!
De flacons! pauvre père,
Vous en serez, j'espère,
Content!

CRESPEL: Va-t'en! va-t'en! va-t'en!
Hors de chez moi, Satan!
Redoute la colère
Et la douleur d'un père!
Va-t'en!

HOFFMANN: (à part) A la mort qui t'attend,
Je saurai, pauvre enfant,
T'arracher, je l'espère!
Tu ris en vain d'un père,
Satan!

MIRACLE: (continuant toujours avec le même flegme) Dont il faudrait . . .

CRESPEL: Va-t'en!

MIRACLE: Chaque matin . . .

CRESPEL: Va-t'en! . . . (Il pousse Miracle dehors, par la porte du fond et la referme sur lui)
Ah! le voilà dehors et ma porte est fermée!
Nous sommes seuls enfin,
Ma fille bien-aimée!

MIRACLE: (rentrant par la muraille) Dont il faudrait chaque matin . . .

CRESPEL: Ah! misérable!
Viens! . . . viens! . . . Les flots puissent-ils t'engloutir
Nous verrons si le diable
T'en fera sortir! . . .

CRESPEL: Va-t'en! Va-t'en! Va-ten!
Hors de chez moi, Satan!
Redoute la colère
Et la douleur d'un père, Va-t'en!

MIRACLE: (rising and putting one of the chairs in its place) It would be a pity truly
To leave to death so fine a prey!

CRESPEL: Shut up!
(He violently pushes the other armchair.)

MIRACLE: If you will accept my help,
If you would save her days,
I have there certain vials I keep in reserve.
(He takes vials from pocket which he makes sound like castanets.)

CRESPEL: Shut up!

MIRACLE: Of which you should . . .

CRESPEL: Shut up! Heaven preserve me
From listening to your advice, miserable assassin.

MIRACLE: Of which you should, each morning . . .

MIRACLE: Why, yes, I hear you.
A while ago, an instant
These vials, poor father,
You will be then, I hope,
Satisfied.

CRESPEL: Be off, be off, be off!
Out of this house, Satan,
Beware of the anger
And the sorrow of a father.
Be off!

HOFFMANN: (aside) From the death that awaits you
I shall know, poor child,
How tear you away, I hope!
Laugh in vain at a father,
Satan!

MIRACLE: (continuing with same coolness) of which you should . . .

CRESPEL: Be off!

MIRACLE: Each morning . . .

CRESPEL: Be off!
(He pushes Miracle out through the back door and closes the door.)
Ah, he's outside and my door is closed!
We are at last alone,
My beloved girl!

MIRACLE: (walking through the wall) Of which you should each morning . . .

CRESPEL: Ah, wretch,
Come, come, may the waves engulf you!
We'll see if the devil
Will get out.

CRESPEL: Be off, be off, be off!
Out of this house, Satan!
Beware of the anger
And the sorrow of a father.

HOFFMANN: (à part) A la mort qui t'attend,
Je saurai, pauvre enfant
T'arracher, je l'espère!
Tu ris en vain d'un père, Satan!

MIRACLE: Dont il faudrait . . .

CRESPEL: Va-t'en!

MIRACLE: Chaque matin . . .

CRESPEL: Va-t'en!
(Il suit Miracle qui sort à reculons en faisant sonner ses flacons. Ils disparaissent ensemble.)
(Hoffmann seul, puis Antonia.)

HOFFMANN: (redescend en scène). Ne plus chanter! hélas!
Comment obtenir d'elle
Un pareil sacrifce?

ANTONIA: (paraît). Eh bien?
Mon père, qu'a-t-il dit?

HOFFMANN: Ne me demande rien,
Plus tard tu sauras tout; une route nouvelle
S'ouvre à nous, mon Antonia! . . .
Pour y suivre mes pas, chasse de ta mémoire
Ces rêves d'avenir, de succès et de gloire
Que ton coeur au mien confia.

ANTONIA: Mais toi-même?

HOFFMANN: L'amour tous les deux nour convie,
Tout ce qui n'est pas toi n'est plus rien dans ma vie.

ANTONIA: Tiens donc! voici ma main!

HOFFMANN: Ah! chère Antonia!
Pourrai-je reconaître
Ce que tu fais pour moi?
(Il lui baise les mains.)
Ton père va peut-être
Revenir, je te quitte . . . à demain!

ANTONIA: A demain!
(Hoffmann sort. Antonia le regarde s'éloigner. Après un moment, elle redescend en scène.)
(Antonia, puis Miracle.)

ANTONIA: (allant ouvirir une des portes latérales). De mon père aisément il s'est fait le complice!
Allons, les pleurs sont superflus,
Je l'ai promis, je ne chanterai plus.
(Elle se laisse tomber sur un fauteuil.)

MIRACLE: (surgissant tout à coup derrière elle et se penchant à son oreille). Tu ne chanteras plus?
Sais-tu quel sacrifice
S'impose ta jeunesse, et l'as-tu mesuré?
La grâce, la beauté, le talent, don sacré,
Tous ces biens que le ciel t'a livrés en partage,
Faut-il les enfouir dans l'ombre d'un ménage?
N'as-tu pas entendu, dans un rêve

HOFFMANN: (aside) From the death that awaits thee
I shall know, poor child,
How tear thee away, I hope!
Laugh in vain at a father,
Satan!

MIRACLE: Of which you should . . .

CRESPEL: Get out!

MIRACLE: Each morning . . .

CRESPEL: Get out!
(He follows Miracle who goes out backwards making his bottles sound.)
(Hoffmann, alone, then Antonia)

HOFFMANN: (coming down) To sing no more! How obtain from her Such a sacrifice?

ANTONIA: (appearing) Well?
What did my father say?

HOFFMANN: Ask me nothing;
Later you'll know all; a new road
Opens for us, my Antonia! . . .
To follow my steps dismiss from your memory
These dreams of future success and glory
I have confided your heart to mine.

ANTONIA: But yourself?

HOFFMANN: Love calls to both of us,
All that is not you is nothing in my life.

ANTONIA: Very well! Here is my hand!

HOFFMANN: Ah dear Antonia, shall I appreciate
What you do for me?
(He kisses her hands.)
Your father will perhaps return.
I leave you . . . until tomorrow.

ANTONIA: Until tomorrow.
(Hoffmann goes out. Antonia watches him depart. After a moment she comes back.)
(Antonia, then Miracle.)

ANTONIA: (opening one of the doors) He has easily become the accomplice of my father,
But come, regrets are superfluous,
I promised him. I shall sing no more.
(She falls in a chair.)

MIRACLE: (appearing suddenly behind her and leaning over her ear) You will sing no more. Do you know what a sacrifice
He imposes on your youth, and have you measured it?
Grace, beauty, talent, sacred gift;
All these blessings that heaven gave for your share,
Must they be hid in the shadow of a household?
Have you not heard, in a proud dream,

orgueilleux,
Ainsi qu'une forêt par le vent balancée,
Ce doux frémissement de la foule pressée
Qui murmure ton nom et qui te suit des yeux?
Voilà l'ardente joie et la fête éternelle
Que tes vingt ans en fleur sont près d'abandonner,
Pour les plaisirs bourgeois où l'on veut t'enchaîner
Et des marmots d'enfants qui te rendront moins belle!

ANTONIA: (sans se retourner).
Ah! quelle est cette voix qui me trouble l'esprit?
Est-ce l'enfer qui parle ou Dieu qui m'avertit?
Non, non, ce n'est pas là le bonheur, voix maudite,
Et contre mon orgueil mon amour s'est armé;
La gloire ne vaut pas l'ombre heureuse où m'invite
La maison de mon bien-aimé.

MIRACLE: Quelles amours sont donc les vôtres
Hoffmann te sacrifie à sa brutalité;
Il n'aime en toi que ta beauté,
Et pour lui, comme pour les autres,
Viendra bientôt le temps de l'infidélité! . . .
(Il disparaît.)

ANTONIA: (se levant). Non, ne me tente plus! . . . Va-t'en, Démon! . . . Je ne veux plus t'entendre.
J'ai juré d'être à lui, mon bien-aime m'attend.
Je ne m'appartiens plus et ne puis me reprendre;
Et tout à l'heure encore, sur son coeur adoré.
Quel éternel amour ne m'a-t-il pas juré! . . . Ah! qui me sauvera du démon, de moi'même? . . .
(regardant le portrait de sa mère.)
Ma mère! O, ma mère!
Je l'aime! Je l'aime!

MIRACLE: (reparaît derrière Antonia.) Ta mère? . . . Oses-tu l'invoquer? . . .
Ta mère? Mais n'est-ce pas elle
Qui parle par ma voix, ingrate, et te rappelle
La splendeur de son nom que tu veux abdiquer?
(Le portait s'éclaire et semble s'animer. C'est le fantôme de la mère qui apprait à la place de la peinture.) Ecoute! . . .

LA VOIX: Antonia?

ANTONIA: Dieu! . . . ma mère! ma mère!

Like unto a forest by the wind moving,
Like a soft shiver of the pressing crowd,
That murmurs your name and follows you with its eyes?
There is the ardent joy and the eternal festival,
That the flower of your years is about to abandon,
For the middle class pleasures where they would enchain you,
And the squalling children who will give you less beauty!

ANTONIA: (without turning round) Ah, what is this voice that troubles my spirit?
Is it Hell that speaks or Heaven that warns me?
No! happiness is not there, oh cursed voice,
And my love had armed me against my pride;
Glory is not worth the happy shade that
The house of my beloved offers me

MIRACLE: What loves can now be yours,
Hoffmann sacrifices you to his brutality,
He only loves in you your beauty,
And for him as for the others,
Soon will come the time of infidelity.
(He disappears.)

ANTONIA: (rising) No, do not tempt me! go away,
Demon! I will no longer listen.
I have sworn to be his, my beloved awaits me,
I'm no longer my own and I can't take myself back;
And a few moments since, on his heart adored
What eternal love did he not pledge me;
Who will save me from the demon, from myself?
(Looking at the portrait.)
My mother, my mother, I love her.

MIRACLE: (reappears behind Antonia) Your mother? Dare you invoke her?
Your mother? But is it not she?
Who speaks by my voice, ingrate, and recalls to you
The splendor of the name that you would abdicate?
(The portrait lights up and becomes animated. It is the ghost of the mother which appears in the place of the painting.)
Listen.

THE VOICE: Antonia!

ANTONIA: Heavens! . . . my mother, my mother!

LE FANTOME: Cher enfant que j'appelle
Comme autrefois,
C'est ta mère, c'est elle,
Entends sa voix!

ANTONIA: Ma mère!

MIRACLE: Oui! oui! c'est sa voix, l'entends-tu?
Sa voix, meilleure conseillère,
Qui te lègue un talent que le monde a perdu!

LE FANTOME: Antonia!

MIRACLE: Écoute! Elle semble revivre
Et le public lointain de ses bravos l'enivre!

ANTONIA: (se levant). Ma mère!

LE FANTOME: Antonia!

MIRACLE: Reprends donc avec elle! . . .
(Il saisit un violin et accompagne avec une sorte de fureur.)

ANTONIA: Oui, son âme m'appelle
Comme autrefois!
C'est ma mère, c'est elle,
J'entends sa voix!

LE FANTOME: Cher enfant que j'appelle
Comme autrefois,
C'est ta mère, c'est elle!
Entends sa voix!

ANTONIA: Non! assez! . . . Je succombe!

MIRACLE: Encore!

ANTONIA: Je ne veux plus chanter.

MIRACLE: Encore!

ANTONIA: Quelle ardeur m'entraîne et me dévore?

MIRACLE: Encore! Pourquoi t'arrêter?

ANTONIA: (haletante). Je cède au transport qui m'enivre!
Quelle flamme éblouit mes yeux! . . .
Un seul moment encore à vivre,
Et mon âme s'envole aux cieux!

LE FANTOME: Cher enfant que j'appelle etc.

ANTONIA: C'est ma mère, c'est elle, etc.

ANTONIA: Ah!
(Elle vient tomber mourante sur le canapé. Miracle s'engloutit dans la terre en poussant un éclat de rire. le fantôme disparaît et le portrait reprend son premier aspect.)
(Antonia, Crespel, puis Hoffmann, Nicklausse, Miracle et Frantz.)

CRESPEL: (accourant) Mon enfant! . . . ma fille! . . . Antonia! . . .

THE GHOST: Dear child whom I call,
As I used to do,
It is your mother, it is she,
Listen to her voice.

ANTONIA: Mother!

MIRACLE: Yes, yes, it is her voice, do you hear?
Her voice, best counsellor,
Who leaves you a talent the world has lost!

THE GHOST: Antonia!

MIRACLE: Listen! She seems to live again,
And the distant public by its bravos fills her bliss.

ANTONIA: Mother!

THE GHOST: Antonia!

MIRACLE: Join with her.
(He seizes a violin and accompanies her with a sort of madness.)

ANTONIA: Yes, her soul calls me
As before;
It is my mother, it is she
I hear her voice.

THE GHOST: Dear child whom I call
As I used to do;
It is your mother, it is she;
Listen to her voice.

ANTONIA: No, enough, I cannot!

MIRACLE: Again.

ANTONIA: I will sing no more.

MIRACLE: Again! Why stop?

ANTONIA: What ardor draws and devours me?

MIRACLE: Again! Why stop?

ANTONIA: (out of breath) I give way to a transport that maddens,
What flame is it dazzles my eyes
A single moment to live,
And my soul flies to Heaven.

THE GHOST: Dear child whom I call, etc., etc.

ANTONIA: It is my mother, it is she, etc., etc.

ANTONIA: Ah!
(She falls dying on the sofa. Miracle sinks in the earth uttering a peal of laughter. The phantom disappears and the portrait takes on again its former aspect.)
(Antonia, Crespel, then Hoffmann, Nicklausse, Miracle and Frantz.)

CRESPEL: (running in) My child . . . my daughter . . . Antonia! . . .

ANTONIA: (expirante). Mon père! . . .
Ecoutez! c'est ma mère
Qui m'appelle! . . . Et lui . . . de retour . . .
C'est une chanson d'amour . . .
Qui s'envole . . .
Triste ou folle . . .
(Elle meurt.)

CRESPEL: Non! . . . un seul mot! . . . un seul! . . . ma fille . . . parle-moi.
Mais parle donc! . . . Mort exécrable! . . .
Non! . . . pitié! . . . grâce! . . . Éloigne-toi!

HOFFMANN: (entrant précipitamment). Pourquoi ces cris?

CRESPEL: Hoffmann! . . . ah! misérable!
C'est toi qui l'as tuée! . . .

HOFFMANN: (courant à Antonia). Antonia!.

CRESPEL: (courant avec égarement). Du sang!
Pour colorer sa joue! . . . Une arme, Un couteau! . . .
(Il saisit un couteau sur une table et va pour s'élancer sur Hoffmann.)

NICKLAUSSE: (entrant en scène et arrêtant Crespel). Malheureux! . . .

HOFFMANN: (à Nicklausse). Vite! . . . donne l'alarme! . . .
Un médecin! . . . un médecin! . . .

MIRACLE: (paraissant). Présent!
(Il s'approche d'Antonia et lui tâte le pouls) Morte!

CRESPEL: (éperdu). Ah! Dieu, mon enfant! ma fille!

HOFFMANN: (avec désespoir). Antonia!
(Frantz est entré le dernier et s'est agenouillé prè d'Antonia.)

EPILOGUE

Stella

Même décoration qu'au premier acte.
Hoffmann, Nicklausse, Lindorf, Nathanael, Hermann, Wilhelm, Wolframm, Luther. Les Étudiants. On retrouve tous les personnages dans la situation où on les a laissés à la fin du premier acte.

HOFFMANN: Voilà quelle fut l'histoire
De mes amours
Dont la mémoire
En mon coeur restera toujours.

LUTHER: (entrant). Grand succès, on acclame
Notre prima donna.

ANTONIA: (expiring) My father!
Listen, it is my mother
Who calls me. And he . . . has returned . . .
It is your mother, it is she;
Flies away,
Sad or joyful . . .
(She dies.)

CRESPEL: No . . . a single word . . . just one . . . my child . . . speak!
Come, speak! Execrable death!
No! pity, mercy . . . go away!

HOFFMANN: (coming hurriedly)
Why these cries? . . .

CRESPEL: Hoffmann! . . . ah wretch!
You killed her!.

HOFFMANN: (rushing to Antonia) Antonia!

CRESPEL: (rushing up beside himself) Blood to color her cheek.
A weapon, A knife! . . .
(He seizes a knife on a table and attacks Hoffmann.)

NICKLAUSSE: (entering and stopping Crespel) Unhappy man!

HOFFMANN: (to Nicklausse)
Quick! give the alarm;
A doctor . . . a doctor! . . .

MIRACLE: (appearing) Present!
(He approaches Antonia and feels her pulse) Dead!

CRESPEL: (crazy) Ah, God, my child, my daughter!

HOFFMANN: (despairingly) Antonia!
(Frantz is the last to enter and kneels near Antonia.)

EPILOGUE

Stella

The Tavern.
Hoffmann, Nicklausee, Lindorf, Nathanael, Hermann, Wilhelm, Wolfram, Luther, Students.
The various personages are in the same position they were in at the end of First Scene First Act.

HOFFMANN: There is the story
Of my loves,
And the memory
In my heart will always remain.

LUTHER: (entering) Great success, they applaud
Our prima donna.

LINDORF: (à part). Il n'est plus à craindre . . . à moi la diva!
(Il s'esquive.)

NATHANAEL: Qu'a de commun Stella?

NICKLAUSSE: (se levant). Ah! je comprends! trois drames dans un drame Olympia . . . Antonia . . . Giulietta . . .
Ne sont qu'une même femme:
La Stella!

LE CHOEUR: La Stella!

NICKLAUSSE: Buvons à cette honnête dame!

HOFFMANN: (furieux, brisant son verre). Un mot de plus et sur mon âme Je te brise comme ceci! . . .

NICKLAUSSE: Moi, ton mentor?
Merci! . . .

HOFFMANN: Ah! je suis fou! . . . A nous le vertige divin
Des esprits de l'alcool, de la bière et du vin!
A nous l'ivresse et la folie,
Le néant par qui l'on oublie

LE CHOEUR: Allumons le punch! . . . grisons-nous!
Et que les plus fous
Roulent sous la table.
Luther est un brave homme,
Tire lan laire, tire lan la!
C'est demain qu'on l'assomme
Tire lan laire, tire lan la!
Sa cave est d'un bon drille,
Tire lan laire, tire lan la!
C'est demain qu'on la pille!
Tire lan laire, tire lan la!
Jusqu'au matin
Remplis mon verre,
Jusqu'au matin
Remplis les pots d'étain!
(Les étudiants entrent en tumulte dans la salle voisine. Hoffmann reste comme frappé de stupeur.)

LA MUSE: (paraissant). Et moi?
Moi, la fidèle amie
Dont la main essuya tes yeux?
Par qui la douleur endormie
S'exhale en rêve dans les cieux?
Ne suis-je rien? Que la tempête
Des passions s'apaise en toi!
L'homme n'est plus; renais poète!
Je t'aime, Hoffmann! appartiens-moi!
Des cendres de ton coeur rechauffe ton génie,
Dans la sérénité souris à tes douleurs,
La Muse adoucira ta souffrance bénie,
On est grand par l'amour et plus grand par les pleurs!
(Elle disparaît.)

HOFFMANN: (seul). O Dieu! de quelle ivresse embrases-tu mon âme, Comme un concert divin ta voix

LINDORF.: (aside) He is to be feared no more. The singer for me!
(Exit.)

NATHANAEL: What does Stella have to do with it?

NICKLAUSSE: (rising) Ah, I understand! Three dramas in one drama, Olympia, Antonia, Giulietta are only one woman:
Stella!

THE CHORUS: Stella!

NICKLAUSSE: Let us drink to that good lady!

HOFFMANN: (furious, breaking his glass) One word more and by my soul
I will break you like that!

NICKLAUSSE: I, your mentor?
Thank you!

HOFFMANN: Ah, I am mad. For us the craze divine.
The spirits of alcohol, of beer and of wine,
For us intoxication,
Chaos where we forget.

THE CHORUS: Light up the punch, we'll get drunk;
And may the weakest
Roll under the table;
Luther was a goodly man,
Tire lan laire, tire lan la,
Tomorrow we'll crush him!
Tire lan laire,
Tire lan la.
His cellar is a good spot,
Tire lan laire.
Tomorrow we will make it hot.
Tire lan laire.
Tire lan laire.
Until morning
Fill my glass,
Until morning
Fill our pewter mugs.
(The students tumultuously go in the next room. Hoffmann remains as if in a stupor.)

THE MUSE: (appearing in an aureole of light) And I? I, the faithful friend, Whose hand wiped your tears?
By whom your latent sorrow
Exhales in heavenly dreams?
Am I nothing? May the tempest
Of passion pass away in you!
The man is no more; the poet revives!
I love you, Hoffmann! be mine!
Let the ashes of your heart fire your genius,
Whose serenity smiles on your sorrows,
The Muse will soften your blessed sufferings,
One is great by love but greater by tears.
(She disappears.)

HOFFMANN: (alone) Oh God! what ecstasy embraces my soul,
Your voice has moved me like a concert divine,

m'a pénétré,
D'un feu doux et brûlant mon être est dévoré,
Tes regards dans les miens ont épanché leur flamme,
Comme des astres radieux,
Et je sens, ô Muse aimée,
Passer ton haleine embaumée
Sur mes lèvres et sur mes yeux!
(Il tombe, le visage sur une table.)

STELLA: (allant vers Hoffmann). Hoffmann endormi! . . .

NICKLAUSSE: Non! . . . ivre-more! . . . Trop tard, madame!

LINDORF: Corbleu!

NICKLAUSSE: Tenez, voilà le conseiller Lindorf qui vous attend. (Stella prend son manteau des mains d'Andrès et le jette sur ses épaules; puis elle s'eppuie sur le bras de Lindorf, s'arrête au bout de quelques pas pour regarder Hoffmann, détache une fleur de son bouquet et la jette à ses pieds. Hoffmann la suit des yeux avec une sorte de stupeur. Pendant cette scène muette, les étudiants chantent en frappant bruyamment des gobelets sur les table.)

LE CHOEUR: Jusqu'au matin
Remplis mon verre!
Jusqu'au matin
Remplis les pots d'étain!

FIN

With soft and burning fire my being is devoured,
Your glance has suffused its flame in mine,
Like radiant stars.
And I feel, beloved Muse,
Your perfumed breath flutter
On my lips and on my eyes!
(He falls face on table.)

STELLA: (approaching slowly) Hoffmann? asleep . . .

NICKLAUSSE: No, dead drunk. Too late, madame.

LINDORF.: Corbleu!

NICKLAUSSE: Oh, here is the counsellor, Lindorf, who awaits you. (Stella takes his mantle from the hands of Andrés and throws it over his shoulders; then she leans on Lindorf's arm, stops after several steps to look at Hoffmann, takes a flower from her bouquet and throws it at his feet. Hoffmann follows her with his gaze in a sort of stupor. During this dumb show, the students sing noisily, clicking their glasses on the table.)

THE CHORUS: Until morning
Fill my glass,
Until morning
Fill our pewter mugs!

END

Manru (1901)

MUSIC BY I.J. PADEREWSKI ■ LIBRETTO BY ALFRED NOSSIG

This three-act romantic opera, set to a libretto by Alfred Nossig, premiered at the Court Theatre in Dresden on May 29, 1901. The story takes place in the Tatra Mountains, located between Hungary and Galicia. In a village set in the mountains, Hedwig is grieving over her daughter, Ulana, who has run away with Manru, a gypsy. Ulana appears in the village and comes to her mother's cottage in order to seek her forgiveness for running off. Hedwig promises that she will grant this if Ulana forsakes Manru forever, but Ulana steadfastly refuses to do this. Finally, her mother drives her away, cursing her as she goes. Ulana then asks Urok, a dwarf who is known to be a sorcerer, to assist her—Urok has often proclaimed his love for her. She is able to get a magic potion from him which will enable her to win back Manru's love, as Manru already desires to return to his previous life with the gypsies. Ulana is singing a lullaby to her baby in a hut located in the mountains. Manru is torn between his love for her and his desire to go back to his people. Urok enters, and Manru hears beautiful violin music in the distance. It is Jogu, the Gypsy fiddler, playing music which Manru recognizes. Hearing this music, he is overcome, and he runs from the hut and disappears into the forest. Jogu tries to persuade Manru to rejoin their band and become their chief, and he also tells him that Asa, the beautiful Gypsy maiden, is in love with him. In the middle of this Ulana enters and is able to persuade Manru to return with her to their hut, where she gives him a drink of the magic potion. The potion works temporarily, and Manru is once again in love with Ulana. Near a lake in the mountains, Manru is wandering in the moonlight. He hears voices he does not recognize and, becoming tired, falls sound asleep underneath the trees. He is discovered there by the band of Gypsies. Asa, who is amongst them, recognizes him at once and beseeches Oros, the chief of the Gypsies, to forgive him and welcome him back into the band. Oros refuses to do so and, as he discovers that his people are ready to forgive Manru, he leaves the Gypsies in a rage. Asa persuades Manru to become the Gypsy chief in Oros' place. Urok appears all of a sudden and begs Manru not to desert Ulana and their baby, but Manru finally caves in to Asa's charms and goes away into the mountains with the Gypsies. Ulana is told of this and becomes crazed with grief. She throws herself into the lake and is drowned. Manru and Asa are walking together arm-in-arm down a mountain path when they are suddenly confronted by Oros. Oros and Manru engage in a fight, during which Oros throws Manru in the abyss and regains his position as Gypsy chief.

■ ERSTER AUFZUG	■ ACT I
(Dorf im tatragebirge. Die Bühne stellt eine offene, von Stangen umgebene Tanzwiese dar. Rechts und links sind Bauernhütten angedeutet, darunter die Hedwig's mit einer Bank und einem kleinen Blumengärtchen. Hinter den Hütten Tannenwälder. Im Hintergrunde das Tatragebirge im Abendsonnenschein.)	(A Village among the Tatra Mountains. A dancing-green surrounded by poles. Right and left, peasants' huts are indicated, among them that of HEDWIG; a bench in a small flower-garden. Back of the huts a pine forest. In the background, the Tatra Mountains. Sunset.)
ERSTE SCENE	SCENE I
HEDWIG EIN MÄDCHEN AUS DEM CHOR ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR DER LANDMÄDCHEN. (Die Mädchen treffen Vorbereitungen zum Erntefeste, indem sie aus Laub und Blumen Guirlanden winden und dieselben mit Bändern an die Stangen Knüpfen. Fröhliche Bewegung auf der Bühne; nur Hedwig sitzt traurig sinnend vor ihrer Hütte.)	HEDWIG. A MAIDEN OF THE CHORUS. FIRST AND SECOND CHORUSES OF COUNTRY MAIDENS. (The maidens adorn the green for the harvest festival, winding garlands and fastening them to the poles. Merry activity on the stage; HEDWIG sits lost in sad thought in front of her hut.)
HEDWIG: Aus der Höh' Stürzt ein Habicht mit sich'rem Fall, Dunkel und jäh, Fasst ein Täubchen mit scharfer Krall'; Täubchen mein, Täubchen klein, Ach, sahst Du Dich nicht vor!	HEDWIG: From on high Darts a hawk with his hungry maw; Never a cry As he seizes with a cruel claw. — Pretty dove, Dainty love, Ah! why were you not on guard?
ERSTER CHOR DER LANDMADCHEN: Tra la la la!	FIRST CHORUS: Tra la, la, la!
ZWEITER CHOR DER LANDMADCHEN: Windet den Kranz, Schmücket die Wiese zum Tanz!	SECOND CHORUS: Maidens, advance, Garnish the green for the dance!
HEDWIG: Hatt' ein Kind, Ein Zigeuner, ein Zaub'rer kam; Mein Herzblut rinnt, Seit der Habicht mein Täubchen nahm. Töchterlein, Täubchen mein, Ach, dass ich Dich verlor!	HEDWIG: The child was mine, But a conjuring Gypsy neared; Now I pine away, alone For my dove disappeared with the hawk! Pretty love, Dainty dove, Why did you leave my ward?
ERSTER CHOR: Tra la la la!	FIRST CHORUS: Tra, la, la, la!
ZWEITER CHOR: (indem er dem ersten die Guirlanden zuwirft). Rasch und behend Fasst es am anderen End'! Ihr Faulen heran! Greifet zu, bindet an! Nur gewandt!	SECOND CHORUS: (Throwing the garlands to the first.) Bravo! The end Now to the next pole extend! You dawdlers, disband; Up and work! Lend a hand! Deftly done!
ERSTER CHOR: (die Guirlanden auffangend und an die Stangen Knüpfend). Jetzt ist es zierlich gespannt!	FIRST CHORUS: (Catching the garlands and fastening them to the poles.) Lovelier garland there's none!

ERSTER AND ZWEITER CHOR: Tra la la la!

HEDWIG: Töchterlein, Säugte
Dich dazu meine Brust,
Dass Du in Pein Einem Heiden gehören musst!

ZWEITER CHOR: Wie einer Maid
Macht ihr aus Blumen ein Kleid!

ERSTER CHOR: Tra la la la!

HEDWIG: Töchterlein, wärst Du heir, Freude käm' mit Dir!

ERSTER CHOR: Tra la la la!
Rasch und behend!
Bald ist die Arbeit zu End'!

ZWEITER CHOR: Bänder her!
Von den rothen noch mehr!
Rasch und behend, Bald ist die Arbeit zu End'!

ZWEITER CHOR: Wenn de Abendröthe Kömmt, den Himmel zu erhellen —

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Weil der Sonne gold'ner Schild im dunklen Wald versinkt, Dann ertönt die Hirtenflöte und die Heerden Schellen, Ach, Freut Euch!
Nach langer Pein kommt endlich Lust und Wonne!
Tra la la la!

ZWEITE SCENE

DIE VORIGEN — UROK.
(Urok springt plötzlich auf die Bühne; ein zerlumpter, buckliger Wicht mit grossem, struppigem Kopf, und absichtlich angenommenem, blödem Gesichtsausdruck.)

UROK: Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!
(Die Mädchen stieben erschrocken auseinander.)

ERSTER CHOR: Ach, Urok!

ZWEITER CHOR: Uhu!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Drachenei!

UROK: Hi, hi!
Ist mir einerlei!

ERSTER CHOR: Urok!

ZWEITER CHOR: Natter!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Teufelsbrei!

UROK: Hi, hi!
Mir ist's einerlei!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Unhold! — Natter!

EIN MÄDCHEN: Waldswerg!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Kröte, Giftpilz! — Waldzwerg!
Uhu! — Uhu! — Uhu.

HEDWIG: Was suchst Du da?

FIRST AND SECOND CHORUS: Tra, la, la, la!

HEDWIG: Oh Daughter Once you did lie upon my breast!
What fate condign Let a pagan invest your heart?

SECOND CHORUS: With blossoms bright Now is the meadows bedlight!

FIRST CHORUS: Tra la la!

HEDWIG: Oh Daughter, If you where here, You'd bring Joy and cheer!

FIRST CHORUS: Scarcely begun,
Soon will our labor be done!

SECOND CHORUS: Ribbons ho!
Bring more ribbons of red!
Scarcely begun, Soon will our labor be done!

SECOND CHORUS: When the setting sun, red-glowing, Fills the sky with blushes —

FIRST AND SECOND CHORUS: And his golden disk, still growing, Sinks behind the trees, — Cattle's lowing, Shepherds' piping, gushes over the landscape.
Now list! the sound of vesper bells
Comes floating on the breeze!
Soon the harvesters will All seek their ease.
Tra, la, la, la . . . . !

SCENE II

HEDWIG. MAIDENS. UROK.
(UROK rushes in on the scene; a ragged hunchback, with an abnormally large and frowsy head, and an assumed expression of idiocy.)

UROK: Ha! ha! ha! ha! ha!

FIRST CHORUS: Ah, Urok!

SECOND CHORUS: Screech owl!

BOTH CHORUSES: Dragonspawn!

UROK: He! he!
All is one to me!

FIRST CHORUS: Urok!

SECOND CHORUS: Viper!

BOTH CHORUSES: Devil's own!

UROK: He! he!
All is one to me!

BOTH CHORUSES: Demon!
Viper!
Paddock!
Screechhowl!
Screechhowl!

HEDWIG: What do you seek here?

UROK: Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!
Alles singt und lacht!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Weil's uns Freude macht!

UROK: Selbst das Mütterlein
Möchte lustig sein!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Darf heut' lustig sein!

UROK: Und Ulna dort Trauert und verdorrt!

ZWEITER CHOR: Ha, ha!
Seht!
Ulana's Bote!

ERSTER CHOR: Ha, ha, ha! Ulana's Bote!

HEDWIG: Für mich ist sie eine Todte!

UROK: Eine Todte—eine Todte . . . !
Eine Todte sah ich ziehn,
Die fand keine Ruh';
Ich fragt' die arme Seel':
Was jammersst du?
Ach! stöhnt die Arme,
Ach, dass sich Gott erbarme!
Allzu lang' schon währt
Der Verdammung Pein;
Zu meiner Mutter Herd'
Führt mich hinein!

ZWEITER CHOR: Ha, ha, ha!

EIN MÄDCHEN: Die arme Seel'!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Welch' Litanei!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Ha, ha, wie heisst,
Sag's doch, der Geist?
Wie heisst der Geist?

UROK: Ulana, Deine Todte
Aechzt solch' Litanei!
Doch mir, meiner Treu,
Mir ist's einerlie!

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Ha, ha, ha! Ulana heisst
Der arme Geist!
Ulana! Ha, ha, ha!

HEDWIG: Und wenn es mir auch das Herz zerreisst,
Ich weiss meine Pflicht:
So lang' sie die Frau des Zigeuners heisst,
Kenn' ich sie nicht!

UROK: Mutter!
Gieb nach!

HEDWIG: Nein, nie!
(Ab in die Hütte.)

DRITTE SCENE

DIE VORIGEN OHNE HEDWIG.

ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Ha, ha, ha, ha!

EIN MÄDCHEN: Der kommt schön an!
Das ist der Zigeunerin ihr Galan!
Lässt Manru sie sitzen, so kommt er dran!

UROK: Ha! ha!
Hear them laugh and sing!

BOTH CHORUSES: Now we have our fling!

UROK: Even our worthy Dame
Must exclaim with joy!

BOTH CHORUSES: And with little blame!

UROK: While your child so far away.
Keeps you from joy!

SECOND CHORUS: Ha! ha!
Behold!
Ulana's pleader.

HEDWIG: She's dead — idle interceder!

UROK: Interceder — for a spectre?
Yet a ghost passed me while
I was Vainly seeking rest. I asked the question.
"What do you want?
"Ah!" sighed the ghost,
"Hear what I request: Long too long I'm kept From my hearth and home — Oper a haven to me, And I'd roam No more!"

SECOND CHORUS: Ha! ha! ha!

A MAIDEN: A solemn shade!

BOTH CHORUSES: A mournful Dame!
Ha! ha! her name!
Who was the jade?
Out with her name!

UROK: Your daughter, dead to you, Breathed such doleful plaints!
And yet by all the saints, 'Tis all one to me!

BOTH CHORUS: Ha! ha! ha!
Ulana was the grievous ghost!
Ulana!
Ha! ha! ha!

HEDWIG: And though my heart is consumed with grief,
I know my duty The while she remains in the home of the thief, May the pain and woe be Hers.

UROK: Mother, relent!

HEDWIG: Never! no! no!
(HEDWIG enters the hut.)

SCENE III

UROK. THE MAIDENS.

BOTH CHORUSES: Ha! ha! ha! ha!

A MAIDEN: A pretty mess!
He is the Romany bride's new beau!
When Manru grows weary, Their love he'll bless!

ERSTER CHOR: Ihr Galan!	FIRST CHORUS: Her beau!
ZWEITER CHOR: Hahahaha!	SECOND CHORUS: Ha! ha! ha! ha!
UROK: Mit eurem Gethu! Seid den Staub nicht werth Von Ulana's Schuh!	UROK: Unworthy are you To loose the latchets Of Ulana's shoe!
EIN MÄDCHEN: Weil sich die Burschen um sie nicht scheeren, Lässt sie sich von dem Waldzwerg verehren!	A MAIDEN: Since our good fellows cast off the beauty, Happy is she in the forest-imp's duty.
UROK: Wer Euch nicht passt, Verliert nicht viel, Doch Ulana lasst Mir aus dem Spiel! Am Ende . . . es ist nichts dabei, Denn mir ist Alles einerlei!	UROK: Your favor lost, none will deplore, But do not mention Ulana any more! Yet why should I be angry? For is it not all the same to me?
EIN MACHEN: Alles einerlei!	A MAIDEN: "All the same to me!"
UROK Welch' Aefferei!	UROK: A poor cukoo!
ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Du bist der Galan!	BOTH CHORUSES: Her gallant new beau —
ERSTER CHOR: Und bald kommst Du dran!	FIRST CHORUS: Shall soon have a show!
UROK: Du Papagei!	UROK: A parrot too!
ZWEITER CHOR: Freu' Dich, Du Unhold!	SECOND CHORUS: Rejoice, sweet Paddock —
ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Freu' Dich, Du Unhold! Lang' wird's nicht dauern!	BOTH CHORUSES: Rejoice, sweet Paddock, Haste to your loving,
UROK: Dummes Geschrei!	UROK: Trumpery trash!
ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Denn ein Zigeuner kann nicht verbauern!	BOTH CHORUSES: A gypsy never give up roving.
ERSTER CHOR: Wie Schön!	FIRST CHORUS: A bad!
ZWEITER CHOR: Uhu!	SECOND CHORUS: Screech owl!
ERSTER CHOR: Wie fein!	FIRST CHORUS: A mad!
ZWEITER CHOR: Uhu!	SECOND CHORUS: Screech owl!
ERSTER CHOR: Wie lieb!	FIRST CHORUS: A bad!
ZWEITER CHOR: Ach, wie fein!	SECOND CHORUS: Ah how mad —
ERSTER CHOR: Ach!	FIRST CHORUS: Ah!
ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Wie fein!-Wie lieb! Ein Herzensdieb Der Uhu! Ist fort der Mann, Sogleich kommt dran Der Uhu!	BOTH CHORUSES: A bad, a mad, A gallant lad — The screech owl! When Manru grows weary He will their love bless! The screech owl!
UROK: Stets dieselbe Rederei!	UROK: Rubbish!-Nonsense!-Puerile trash!
ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Ach, zum Altar Mit dir, Fürwahr, Wie flög' sie! Berückt, ach!	BOTH CHORUSES: Give up the search; Ah, hasten with me to church. Caress me!
UROK: Dummer Singsang!-Blöd' Geschrei! Rück mir nicht so auf den Leib! Weg von mir, du ekles Weib!	UROK: Silly sing-song, senseless chaff! Out of my way! Leave my sight! Be off you hideous fright!
ERSTER UND ZWEITER CHOR: Beglückt, ach! (ULANA erscheint in der Ferne.)	BOTH CHORUSES: Come, take me! (ULANA appears in the distance.)
EIN MÄDCHEN: Seht, da naht sie selbst, die Arme!	A MAIDEN: See it is she herself approaching!
ERSTER CHOR: Wahrlich, eine Todte schier!	FIRST CHORUS: Ghastly pale! she seems a ghost!
ZWEITER CHOR: Seht!-Seht! In ihrem Harme Was sucht sie beim Feste hier?	SECOND CHORUS: See!-See! On mirth encroaching: She is lost amid pleasure.

VIERTE SCENE	SCENE IV
DIE VORIGEN — ULANA.	AS BEFORE. ULANA.
ZWEITER CHOR: Frau Zigeunerin!	SECOND CHORUS: Gay Gitana!
ULANA: Was höhnet Ihr Mich arme, unselige Frau?	ULANA: Why torture me, a heartbroken, poor outcast?
UROK: 's ist Deine Schuld!	UROK: The fault was yours.
ULANA: Ach, weint mit mir Bitt're Thränen, Denn mein Schicksal ist zu rauh!	ULANA: I fear your hate! Ah! hapless my fate! My tears are falling fast.
UROK: Trag's mit Geduld!	UROK: Do not repine.
EIN MÄDCHEN: Wahrlich, glücklich bist Du nicht!	A MAIDEN: Hapless woman, wretched one!
ERSTER CHOR: Ja, glücklich ist sie nicht!	FIRST CHORUS: Aye, hapless is her fate!
EIN MÄDCHEN: Das frische Gesicht —	A MAIDEN: How sad her decline!
ERSTER CHOR: Ja, glücklich ist sie nicht!	FIRST CHORUS: Aye, hapless is her fate!
EIN MADCHEN: Die ros'gen Wangen — Vergangen!	A MAIDEN: The roses cherished, Have perished.
ERSTER CHOR: (mitleidig). Die ros'gen Wangen — Vergangen!	FIRST CHORUS: (compassionately). The roses cherished, Have perished!
ZWEITER CHOR: (spottend). Vergangen!	SECOND CHORUS: (mockingly). Have perished!
UROK: Vergangen!	UROK: Have perished!
ULANA: Ihr Bösen, sagt, Hab'ich jemals Euch Leid's gethan?	ULANA: Oh wicked ones! What evil have I done to you?
ZWEITER CHOR: (spottend). Ha, ha, ha, ha! Tralalala! - La	SECOND CHORUS: (mockingly). HA!ha!ha!ha! Tra, la, la, la! La, la, la, la!
UROK: (den ULANA hilfesuchend anblickt.)	UROK: (to whom Ulana had cast a look for help).
UROK: Mich geht's nichts an!	UROK: To me all's one!
ULANA: Vergeblich klagt Die Verstossene, Und der arme, ach, der gemiedene Mann!	ULANA: In vain the plaints of one desolate; Vain all her pleas for her vilified mate!
ZWEITER CHOR: (spottend). Tralalala! Der arme Mann! Der gemiedene Mann!	SECON CHORUS: (mockingly). Tra la, la, la! The unhappy man! Thrice unhappy man!
UROK: Der Herzensmann!	UROK: The precious man!
ZWEITER CHOR: Der arme Mann! —Ha, ha, ha, ha!	SECOND CHORUS: The unhappy man! HA, ha, ha, ha!
UROK: Ja, der süsse Mann!	UROK: Yes, the precious man!
ULANA: Und böhnt Ihr noch so sehr, Ich lieb'ihn immer mehr!	ULANA: You prove my constancy — Your jeers awake my love a new.
ERSTER CHOR: Wenn er nur lohnt die Liebe!	FIRST CHORUS: Your love shall be requited.
ZWEITER CHOR: Ach nein!	SECOND CHORUS: Ah, no!
EIN MÄDCHEN: Wenn er nur treu Dir bliebe!	A MAIDEN: Never your heart be blighted!
ZWEITER CHOR: Ach nein!	SECOND CHORUS: Ah, no!
ULANA: Wer liebt, der kann nicht treulos sein!	ULANA: A true love could not treat me so.
ZWEITER CHOR: Ach nein! Lang' wird's nicht dauern —	SECOND CHORUS:Ah, no! It will soon be over.
ERSTER CHOR: Denn ein Zigeuner kann nicht verbauern!	FIRST CHORUS: Never a gypsy, but always a rover.

ZWEITER CHOR: (umringt spottend ULANA). Ist der Mond am Himmel voll Dann wird der Zigeuner toll!

ERSTER CHOR: Ha, ha, ha, ha!

UROK: Zu bunt wird die Geschicht'!

ULANA: (beschützend).
Nein, nein, das duld' ich nicht!

ZWEITER CHOR: Schau, Schau!

UROK: Nein, nein, das duld' ich nicht!

ZWEITER CHOR: Ist der Mond am Himmel voll, Dann wird der Zigeuner toll.
Lässt die Frau und lässt das Kind
Und entläuft geschwind, geschwind!

ULANA: Haltet ein!
Haltet ein!
Ach, singet nicht, Ach, singet nicht,
Was Herzen bricht!

UROK: Macht Ihr mir den Schädel heiss, Sag' ich Jeder, was ich weiss!

ZWEITER CHOR: Schau, schau, fürwahr, Ein Liebespaar!

UROK: Sag', was nächtlich winkt und grüsst, Was da flüstert, kost und küsst!

ZWEITER CHOR: Ach, seht den Schmerz!
Welch' Ritterherz!
Kennt keinen Scherz!

ERSTER CHOR: Lasst sein!
Lasst sein!

ZWEITER CHOR: Wie leib, wie fein!

ERSTER CHOR: Lasst sien!
Lasst sein!
Genug der Pein!
(Die MÄDCHEN entfernen sich, indem der) (ERSTE CHOR den ZWEITEN fortdrängt.)
Tralalala . . .

ZWEITER CHOR: (im Abgehen).
Ist der Mond am Himmel voll, Dan wird der Zigeuner toll!
Hei, juchhei!
(Die MÄDCHEN zerstreuen sich im Hintergrunde; manche knüpfen noch Guirlanden an die Stangen oder Hütten an.)

FUNFTE SCENE

ULANA. UROK. (Im Hintergrunde der CHOR, sich allmälig verlierend.)

ULANA: Weh mir, ach weh!
Denn meine Qual Ist ihnen Spott!

ERSTER CHOR: Tralalala!

ULANA: Wohin ich geh',
Folgt mir überall
Der Hohn der Welt
Wie eine Strafe von Gott!

SECOND CHORUS: (forming a ring around ULANA, mockingly).
When the full moon floods the night Errant grows the gypsy wight.

FIRST CHORUS: Ha, ha, ha, ha!

UROK: (protecting ULANA). Their malice, manifest, is too cruel for jest.

SECOND CHORUS: Behold!

UROK: It is too cruel for jest.

SECOND CHORUS: When the full moon floods the night, Errant grows the gypsy wight.
Burns his soul with longings wild,
The forsakes he wife and child.

ULANA: Cease your song!
Cease your song!
Ah why should you prolong my grief?

UROK: Do not drive the game too far, Lest you unbar my malice.

SECOND CHORUS: Give heed!
Beware!
A loving pair!

UROK: Secrets many I might tell, — Meetings, kissing in the dell —

SECOND CHORUS: How sad the plight!
What courteous knight Is not contrite?

FIRST CHORUS: Refrain!
Refrain!

SECOND CHORUS: How sweetly kind!

FIRST CHORUS: Refrain!
Refrain!
Enough of pain.
(The maidens leave the stage, the first chorus forced off by the second.)
Tra, la, la, la!

SECOND CHORUS: (while going).
When the full moon floods the night, Errant grows the gypsy wight!
HA, hurrah! (The maidens disperse in the background; some continue to fasten garlands to the poles and huts.)

SCENE V

ULANA. UROK. (The chorus in the background gradually dispersing.)

ULANA: Ah me!
Alas!
My dire sufferings turn to scorn!

FIRST CHORUS: Tra, la, la, la!

ULANA: Each fond desire Is a pricking thorn; All mankind jeers, Ah me! how God's vengeance sears!

UROK: Schau mich nur an!
Bin auch nicht besser d'ran!
Du hast's gewollt!
Es ist Dein Lohn;
Die Wahrheit sprachen sie, nicht Hohn!

ULANA: Zur Mutter wollt' ich still mich schleichen, Durch all' mein Leid ihr Herz erweichen; Vor uns'rer Hütte, ach, Trifft mich die Schmach!

UROK: Der Mutter Herz willst Du erweichen?
Ha, ha!
Eh' werden Deine Haare bleichen!
Vor einer Weile sprach ich sie da.

ULANA: Und zürnt sie auch in ihrem Schmerz, Ich glaub' an's Mutterherz!

UROK: Ja, glaub' nur, glaub'!

ULANA: Voll Hoffnung klopf' ich an die Thür, Denn mir sagt Gott, dass ich sie rühr'!

UROK: Ja, klopf' nur, klopf'!
(ULANA klopft an die Thür HEDWIG'S.)

SECHSTE SCENE

Die VORIGAN. An der Schwelle der Hütte erscheint HEDWIG. (Beim Anblick ULANA'S macht sie eine abwehrende Bewegung.)

ULANA: Mutter!
Meine Mutter!
Siehst Du nicht Dein Kind?

HEDWIG: Ich hab' zu viel geweint — mein Aug' ist blind!

ULANA: Reich ware die Saat — ich kam zum frohen Fest, Um dir zu sagen —

HEDWIG: (freudig). Dass Du ihn verläss't?

ULANA: Dass Deine Kinder hungrig sind . . .

HEDWIG: Zigeuner leben von Luft und Wind!

ULANA: Mutter!
So giebt es nichts, sag', das Dich rührt?

UROK: Rühr' lieber den, der Dich verführt!

ULANA: Einsam leb' ich und verlassen Mit dem Mann, den Alle hassen; Fern von dieser theuren Hütte, Fern von meiner Kindheit Sitte!
Täglich schlaf' ich, Qual im Innern, Unter Thränen ein —

UROK: Wie süss muss Liebe sein!

ULANA: Täglich weckt des Kindes Wimmern Mich zu neuer Pein!

UROK: Du hast ja Dein Zigeunerlein!

UROK: But gaze on me!
I suffer sorely with you!
It was your wish—this your return,
And truthful are those words that burn.

ULANA: A mother's heart would soon enfold me, If only her loving eyes could behold me!
Before her gentle face I meet disgrace.

UROK: Your hope is in vain!
She'll not receive you,
Ha, ha!
She will nevermore forgive you!
Such were her words a moment since.

ULANA: Even though I must feel her rage, I may engage a mother's love.

UROK: Engage!
Engage!

ULANA: With hopeful heart I'll near the door; A gracious God may restore love.

UROK: Go, stubborn one! in vain implore!
(ULANA knocks at the door of HEDWIG's hut.)

SCENE VI

ULANA, UROK, HEDWIG. (The last appears at the door of her hut; seeing ULANA she makes a repelling gesture.)

ULANA: Mother!
Darling mother!
Do you not
See your child?

HEDWIG: Through grief my eyes are blind To her exiled!

ULANA: Rich were the fields—
The joyous harvest-home Have lured me here.

HEDWIG: Have you come alone?

ULANA: Yes, faint with hunger, sick with care.

HEDWIG: Gypsies and vagabonds live on air!

ULANA: Mother!
What word can move you?
Great is my offense!

UROK: Turn to him Who stole you away!

ULANA: Lonely, sad, I sit in sorrow, I borrow nothing but grief and pain,
Manru hunted by vile slander, I must wander from childhood's home; Nights are filled with bitter weeping, Nothing can bring me rest.

UROK: (A Gypsy's love is best!)

ULANA: Morning finds me keeping vigil By my babe's poor nest.

UROK: A Gypsy babe upon your breast!

ULANA: Mutter, ach, vergieb den Deinen, Lass Dein Kind nicht geh'n, Menschen bettelnd anzuweinen, Gott und den Tod zu fleh'n!	ULANA: Mother! Ah, forgive your children, Do not turn them away! Save them from the curse of begging,— God for death to pray!
UROK: Glaub's nicht, Mütterlein!	UROK: Dame, believe her not!
ULANA: Sieh, Mutter, wie ich elend bin!	ULANA: See, mother, see my misery.
HEDWIG: (nach innerm Kampfe, gerührt, zu ULANA). Seh' ich Dich So in Elend und bitt'rer Pein, Fasst Mitleid mich, Es soll Alles vergessen sein. Töchterlein, Sei wieder mein! Lass den Zigeuner zieh'n!	HEDWIG: Sad the sight; Unhappy one, in bitter plight. I pity you— All your sins shall be forgiven Cease to pine— You are my daughter— Leave your gypsy mate.
UROK: Lass ihn zieh'n!	UROK: Leave your mate!
ULANA: Ich sollt' ihn verlassen, den theuren Mann?	ULANA: Abandon him, my lover, so gentle, mild?
UROK: Lass ihn zieh'n!	UROK: Let him go!
ULANA: Ich sollte flieh'n meines Kindes Vater? Zeigt mir die Frau, die dass kann!	ULANA: Take leave of him, the father of my child? There never was such wife— Nevermore!
HEDWIG: Bringe mir Auch Dein Kind — das Zigeunerkind!	HEDWIG: Bring to me, too, the child! The gypsy child.
UROK: Thu's für das Kind!	UROK: Do it for the child.
ULANA: Dank weiss ich Dir. Nur wenn wir mit Manru zusammen sind!	ULANA: You shall earn thanks only. So long as Manru and I are one.
HEDWIG: Welch' starrer Sinn! Blick um Dich! Sieh Dein Vaterhaus! Deine Wiege steht d'rin. Zur Firmung gingest Du hier heraus! Sieh dor im Grün Die Rosen blüh'n, Die Du einst selbst gepflanzt!	HEDWIG: O willful child! Glance around— this Is your childhood home. Here your cradle was found; To first communion you went from here; Here, in the close, There blooms your rose, Brightening all with its cheer.
UROK: Sieh den Platz, Wo Du so oft getanzt!	UROK: See the green Where you were seen so often!
HEDWIG: Bleib bei mir, mein Herz, mein Kind!	HEDWIG: Stay with me, my love, my own.
ULANA: Nur wenn wir mit Manru zusammen sind!	ULANA: No! Unless my Manru and I are one.
HEDWIG: Ein Heide, ein Landstricher hier im Haus? Eh' tragt Ihr mich auf den Friedhof hinaus!	HEDWIG: A Pagan, a vagabond here at home! I would sooner be borne to the graveyard.
ULANA: Mutter, er liebt mich! Vergieb! Vergieb!	ULANA: Mother! He loves me! Forgive! Forgive!
HEDWIG: Verblendete! Kurz währt Manru's Lieb'! Schon sah ich Zigeuner am Berge zieh'n — Manru wird flieh'n!	HEDWIG: You'll find such love seldom lives The Gypsies are stirring, full soon they'll rove; Manru will flee.
ULANA: Ist's wahr? Sie wollen ihn zwingen?	ULANA: Is it true? And will they compel him?
UROK: Ha, ha! Wenn sie nur vorübergingen, Fürwahr! Er liefe mit!	UROK: In fleeing none will excel him— A chance is all he needs.
HEDWIG: Solang' es Zeit ist, kehr' zurück!	HEDWIG: The way is open. Come, return.
UROK: Folg' ihrem Ruf, es ist Dein Glück!	UROK: Be not deceived by fleeting joy.
ULANA: Vergebens! Er ist der Herr meines Lebens!	ULANA: In vain do you now employ your arts—
HEDWIG: So geh' von meiner Schwell, geh'!	HEDWIG: Away, then, from my threshold! Go!
ULANA: Mutter!	ULANA: Mother!
	HEDWIG: Go!
UROK: Ja, fleh' nur, fleh'!	UROK: Now plead your woe!
HEDWIG: Für immer — höre wohl mein Wort — Sind wir geschieden!	HEDWIG: Forever—mark before you go, you're banished from here!
ULANA: Mutter!	ULANA: Mother!
HEDWIG: (an der Schwelle). Geh! (Ab in die Hütte.)	HEDWIG: (on the threshold). Go! (Exit into the hut.)
ULANA: (sich ihr auf den Knieen nachschleppend). Mutter! — Mutter! — Mutter!	ULANA: (dragging herself on her knees after Hedwig). Mother! Mother! Mother!

SIEBENTE SCENE

SCENE VII

ULANA. UROK. (Gegen das Ende, MÄDCHENCHOR hinter der Bühne.)	ULANA. UROK. (Toward the close CHORUS OF MAIDENS behind the scenes.)
ULANA: (sinkt vernichtet zusammen). Ach! . . . Fort! . . . Fort! . . .	ULANA: Ah, go away!
UROK: Auf mein Wort, Du hast es recht weit gebracht!	UROK: Come, confess! You've cooked up a pretty mess.
ULANA: Weh mir! Wohin ich blick', ist Nacht!	ULANA: Woe's me—The way is pitiless!
UROK: (nähert sich, versucht sie aufzurichten). Nur sacht! Nur sacht! Ich hab's Dir prophezeit: Nicht hier winkt Rettung Deinem Leid. Doch ist der wahre Freund nicht weit . . . Noch hast Du Alles nicht verloren!	UROK: (approaches ULANA and attempts to raise her.) Repress your grief I foretold the outcome: But there is still more to unfold! See! would you behold a true friend? You may still see in me none other!
ULANA: Weh mir! Mir flucht, die mich geboren! Ich darf der Hütte nicht mehr nah'n, Den Bäumen, die mich wachsen sah'n! . . . Und jene Hoffnung, die ich still gehegt —	ULANA: Woe's me! My mother's malediction! My childhood home I'll see no more Wander free within its garden; All hopes are faded; none remains, not one!
UROK: Sie log! wie's zu geschehen pflegt! Doch sprich! Bist du denn ärmer wie zuvor? Hast ja den Fürst der dich erkor— Und mich!	UROK: Hope lied again, as she so often has done. But speak! Are you more wretched than before? The prince is yours , what more do you want? And I!
ULANA: Manru! Ja! Manru ist mir geblieben, Hab alles geopfert für sein lieben! Ach! bliebe mir nur Seine Seele für ewig treu, Hielt er den Schwur, Gäb' ich freudig Heimath und Jugend Und kennte keine Reu'. Doch er, einst so gut mit mir, Er irrt nun für und für, Im Wald, am Weg.	ULANA: Manru! Yes, Manru still is my treasure! For him I gave my love's full measure! Ah! If I knew That he were constant, that he were true! If I could know, faithful ever he to his vow — Then no more would I feel rue! But he, once the soul of love, Now roves Through woods and meadows!

UROK: Nicht doch! Er liebt dich ja, dein Mann, Und läuft er wie ein toller Hahn Zur Zeit auf allen Wegen, Und guckt sich blind, Wo die schwarzen Schönen sind. Wen kann das erregen? Ha, ha! Das nenn ich Muth! Sie glaubte dem Zigeunerblut!	UROK: And yet in him you feel secure, Although he roves over field and groves, Over forest, mountain, meadow, — Fain to descry where the dark-skinned beauties lure. Who should borrow trouble? Upon my word, She trusted in her Gypsy lord!
ULANA: Zigeunerblut—	ULANA: (listening, pondering). Her Gypsy lord?
UROK: Zur Bande zieht es ihn zurück'!	UROK: He will find his old companions!
ULANA: Wie rette ich mein Glück?	ULANA: (heedless of UROK'S words; lost in her own thought). Woe! gone is peace of mind!
UROK: Ohn' Treu, ohn' Lieb' Gehorcht er blindlings seinem Trieb.	UROK: His love has grown cool, Blind impulse is his only rule! The Gypsy thief is stealing — Your youth and charms Wife and child arouse no feeling!
ULANA: Mein Gott! Mein Gott!
UROK: Der Tagedieb, er stiehlt dein junges Leben. Frau und Kind sind ihm nur Ketten.
ULANA: Nur Eines kann mich retten.	ULANA: Wait! My brain is reeling! In one thing only lies healing!
UROK: (der die letzten Worte ULANA's auf sich bezieht). Ulana!
ULANA: Ja, Nur Eine wird mich retten!
UROK: Ulana, hör'! Wenn Manru Dein vergisst, Dann siehst Du, wo die wahre Freundschaft ist! Und wird Dir auch Dein Fürst dann fehlen— Dir bleibt ein Knecht—mir hast Du zu befehlen! Bis zum letzten Hauch wär' ich Dir treu—	UROK: Ulana! Hear! Should Manru prove faithless, In me you find a truer love. In place of one, a prine unheeding, You'll have a slave, Who will do your bidding My latest breath I'll give to you And yet — all, all is one to me!
ULANA: Ach, Urok! Wärest Du mir treu!	ULANA: Ah! Urok! would you prove faithful —
UROK: (auf's neue Hoffnung schöpfend). Was willst Du? Sag' es ohne Scheu! Auf mich, ich schwör' es, kannst Du zählen!	UROK: Command me! Charge me! Prove my love! No slave, I swear, shall be more willing.
ULANA: Du thätest's?	ULANA: What would you do?
UROK: Alles! Du kannst wählen!	UROK: Stop not even at killing!
ULANA: Ich denk' an Manru.	ULANA: I think of Manru — !
UROK: Nun, was soll ich thun? Soll ich ihn verjagen? Soll ich ihm sagen, Du hätt'st genug der Plagen, Sie hätt' geschlagen, Des Zigeuners Uhr?	UROK: Well? What's your hope? Shall I not tell him That you've so far excelled him you now repell him — You are his bride?
ULANA: Ach nein! Was sprichst Du nur? Es fiel mir ein, Um neu sein Herz zu finden, Um fester ihn an mich zu bidnen —	ULANA: Ah no! That would not do! It was my plan Again to awaken his love, Renew the vows which he has taken.
UROK: (enttäuscht, wüthend). Um fester ihn zu binden —?	UROK: (disappointed, angry). To this, then, shall I help you?
ULANA: — Ein Mittel gäb' es wohl dazu, Doch dieses Mittel kennst — nur Du, Nur Du!	ULANA: I must on you depend, For all you are my good, my only friend.
UROK: Ich selber soll da helfen, ich? Dir Jenen wieder zu gewinnen? Sprich. Bist Du von Sinnen? Ich?	UROK: I shall help regain him? restrain him from leaving you in peace? You're mad! Mad! your wits are wandering! I! I?
ULANA: Ja, Du! Du streifst im Wald herum, Kennst jedes Kraut—	ULANA: Yes, you! You roam the wood, And know every herb well! You know what's baleful, harmless, good, — Can brew a spell!
UROK: Hi, hi! Kenn' jedes Kraut!	UROK: Ha, ha! Can brew a spell!
ULANA: Du weisst, was klug macht und was dumm, Und wie man's braut . . .	ULANA: Can drew the potion, that will prove A cure for dying love!
UROK: Ha, ha! Und wie man's braut!	UROK: A cure for love?
ULANA: Du kennst den Trank auch, den man giebt, Wird man nicht mehr geliebt!	ULANA: Fetch me that drink.
UROK: Ich kenn' den Trank? . . .	UROK: Were there a drink That inspired love, —
ULANA: Gieb mir den Trank!	ULANA: Fetch me that drink!
UROK: Gäb's einen Trank, der Lieb' gewinnt, Dann hätt' ich selber längst schon Frau und Kind!	UROK: By wife and child I'd long been admired! I know full well Her for whom I'd play brewer, Nor long pursue her!
ULANA: Gieb mir den Trank!
UROK: Ich wüsste wohl, wem ich das Tränklein gäbe, So war ich lebe!
ULANA: Gieb mir den Trank!	ULANA: Fetch me the drink!
UROK: Nein! Mich lass' aus dem Spiel!	UROK: No, no! it is not for you.
ULANA: Ach, Urok! Hast Du kein Gefühl?	ULANA: Ah, Urok! Can you be cruel?
UROK: Ich macht' ihn lieber lahm und krank!	UROK: I'd give him work direful of harm—
ULANA: Gieb mir den Trank!	ULANA: Fetch me the charm.
UROK: Nein, nein! Ich geb' ihn nicht!	UROK: No, I'll fetch it not!
ULANA: Nein, nein, Du musst den Trank mir geben, Denn Alles ruht, mein Heil, mein Leben, In ihm, der mir mein Herze nahm! Du musst ihn geben!	ULANA: Yes, yes! You must provide me the charm. Give protection lest woe betide me. I'm his, to whom my heart belongs! You can not chide me.
UROK: Ich geb' ihn nicht!	UROK: I'll fetch it not.
ULANA: 's ist Deine Pflicht —	ULANA: Is all then forgot?
UROK: (blickt sie erstaunt an). Hm?	UROK: (astonished). H'm?
ULANA: (nicht ohne Koketterie). — hast Du mich lieb!	ULANA: (somewhat coquettishly). Have I your love?
UROK: Was?	UROK: What?
ULANA: (blickt ihm in's Auge). Hast Du mich lieb?	ULANA: Have I your love?
UROK: Ulana! So darfst Du nicht in's Aug' mir seh'n, Sonst ist's um mich gescheh'n!	UROK: Ulana! In pity turn your eyes away! My wits will go astray!
ULANA: Verlass mich nicht in meiner Angst!	ULANA: Oh, leave me not, see my terror!

UROK: Nein, zu viel ist's, was Du verlangst.
Bedenke!
Ich?...
Ich?

ULANA: Ach, thu's für mich, Mir ist so bang!

UROK: Mein Herz erbebt um ihre Noth, Ihr Schmerz mein Leid, ihr Glück mein Tod!

ULANA: Du giebst den Trank?

UROK: (nach innerem Kampfe). Es sei!

ULANA: Hab' Dank!
Hab' Dank!
Nun hab' ich Ruh'!

UROK: Meinst Du?
Hoffst Du für ewig ihn zu halten?
Ich brau' den Trank,—doch bleibt's beim Alten; Lang' wird's nicht dauern, Denn ein Zigeuner—MÄDCHENCHOR: (hinter der Bühne). Tralalala!

UROK: Kann nicht verbauern!

ACHTE SCENE

Die VORIGEN, MÄDCHENCHOR, hierauf CHOR DER BURSCHEN, BALLET, VOLK.

ERSTER MÄDCHENCHOR: Ist der Mond am Himmel voll, Dann wird der Zigeuner toll!

UROK: Hörst Du?
Hörst Du?
Er wird toll!

MÄDCHENCHOR: Lässt die Frau und lässt das Kind Und läuft fort geschwind, geschwind!
Hei, juchhei!

CHOR DER BURSCHEN: (hinter der Bühne). Hei, juchhei!
(Auf die Bühne kommen TÄNZER und TÄNZERINNEN gestürmt, zugleich erscheint der CHOR DER BURSCHEN; auf der Weise beginnt das Erntefest.) CHOR DER BURSCHEN: (auf der Bühne). Hei, juchhei!

Alle im Verein!
Lasst uns lustig sein!

CHOR DER MÄDCHEN: Hei, juchhei!
Lasst uns lustig sein, Alle im Verein!

BURSCHEN: Schliesset rasch den Kreis!—den Kreis!

MÄDCHEN: Rasch!
Den Kreis!

BURSCHEN: Stampft den Boden, heiss, heiss!

UROK: No, you ask too much of me.
Think a moment.

ULANA: I implore!
My heart is sore —

UROK: Were not my heart inclined to melt And you not enshrined in its fold —

ULANA: You'll fetch the drink?

UROK: (after a struggle). I will.

ULANA: Oh thanks!
Oh, thanks!
Now peace is mine.

UROK: What! yours?
Do you Hope forever to enchain him?
I'll brew the drink — you'll not regain him.
Haste to your loving!
Never yet gypsy —

CHORUS OF MAIDENS: (behind the scenes). Tra, la, la, la!

UROK: Gave up his roving.

SCENE VIII

THE SAME. CHORUS OF MAIDNES, AFTERWARD CHORUS OF YOUTHS, BALLET. PEOPLE.

FIRST CHORUS OF MAIDENS: When the full moon floods the night, Errant grows the gypsy wight.

UROK: Do you hear aright?
Then mad grows each wight.

CHORUS OF MAIDENS: His soul burns with longings wild, Then foresakes he wife and child.
Ha!
Huzza!

CHORUS OF YOUTHS: (Behind the scenes). Ha!
Huzza!
(Dancers, men and women, rush upon the stage simultaneously with the chorus of youths; the harvest festival begins upon the village green.)

CHORUS OF YOUTHS: (on the stage). Ha!
Huzza!
Huzza!
Gaily now advance, Join the gladsome dance!

CHORUS OF MAIDENS: Ha!
Huzza!
Join the gladsome dance, Gaily now advances!

YOUTHS: Let us dance and sing—

MAIDENS: Dance and sing —

YOUTHS: Till we make the welkin ring!

MÄDCHEN: Juchhei!
Juchhei!
Juchhei!

BALLET: (Der Tanz entwickelt sich in zwei gesonderten Gruppen, die Männer im Vordergrunde, die Mädchen im Hintergrunde.) BURSCHEN: Herbei, Ihr Schönen!

Hört Ihr's tönen?
Fliegt an unsere Brust!
Hoch in den Lüften Schwinget die Hüften!
Hop-ha!
Welche Lust!
Her zum Tanz, Jung und Alt!
Ruft im Kranz, Dass es schallt: Juchhei!
Ja, die ganze Welt soll erdröhnen,
Hei!
Juchhei!
Bis zum Himmel soll ertönen
Uns'res Tanzes Lust!
(Nun tanzt nur ein Paar; die Tänzerin scheint vor dem Tänzer zu entfliehen, dieser setzt ihr nach. Die übrigen schauen mit lebhaften Bewegungen und den nun folgenden Ausrufen zu.) MÄDCHEN: Seht das Paar!

Schaut, seht's!
Die versteht's!
Ach, wie sie fliegt!
Sich schmiegt und wiegt!
Ach, so zu fliegen!
Sich so zu wiegen!

BURSCHEN: (zum Tänzer). Heda, Du!
Immer zu!
Brav, brav!
Gieb' nicht Ruh'!
Seht's, seht's!
Der versteht's!
Der versteht's
Rasch, rasch!
Greif', erhasch'!
Vorwärts!
Blind
Wie der Wind!

MÄDCHEN: (da die Tänzerin wieder entflieht). Ha, ha!

BURSCHEN: Nur zu!

MÄDCHEN: Ha, ha!

BURSCHEN: Schaut, schaut!
Fast erreicht, Wieder fleucht Die Windesbraut!
(Schluss des Solotanzes. Tanz der Burschen.)

GRUPPE ÄLTERER MÄNNER: Ist man frisch und jung, Macht man gern 'nen Sprung.
Lasst die Ziererei!
Mädchen, kommt herbei!

BURSCHEN: (winken die Mädchen herbei). Kommt herbei!
Herbei!
Herbei!
(Die TÄNZERINNEN nahen, zugleich singt der CHOR der)

MAIDENS: Huzza!
Huzza!
Huzza!

BALLET: (The dance begins, the dancers divided into two groups — men in the foreground, maidens at the back.)

CHORUS OF MEN: (beckoning to the maidens). Come here, you charmers!
Fair heart-warmers!
come to our arms.
While skirts are flying, Nothing denying, We feast on your charms!
Gaily whirl, Lad and lass, Pipes now skirl, Clangs the brass!
Ha!
Huzza!
Let the glad earth shake With our dancing, Till the skies above us glancing in our joy partake.
(Two dancers, male and female, come forward. The woman seems to seek to escape the man, who chases her. The others look on admiringly and comment on the dance.)

MAIDENS: See the pair!
How fair!
Light as air!
See how she swings, As on light wings!
Would we were swinging, Thus freely winging!

YOUTHS: (to the male dancer). Nimble blade, Catch the jade!
Bravo!
Keep her so!
You're not slow!
Like a flash Forward dash!
Haste!
Haste!
Clutch her waist!
Forward dash Like a flash!

MAIDENS: (the female dancer having escaped). Ha! ha!

YOUTHS: Bravo!

MAIDENS: Ha! Ha!

YOUTHS: O ho!
All but trapped, She proved apt,
The lissome doe!
(End of the solo dance. Dance of youths.)

GROUP OF OLDER MEN: We are lusty and strong, Gladly join the throng!
Pretty maidens, fie!
Do not play so shy!

YOUTHS: (Beckoning to the maidens.) Maidens, fie!
Do not be shy!
(The women dancers approach.)

MÄDCHEN: Im Tanz sich finden
Und entwinden, Das ist unsere Lust!
Schon glaubt Ihr Blinden Uns zu binden, Zieht uns an die Brust — (sich entwindend). Das entrinnt, wie der Wind!
Ei, ei, ei, wir sind frei!
Hei, juchhei!
Nimmer soll Euch das gelingen!
Hei, juchhei!
Nimmer sollt Ihr uns bezwingen,
Nein, o nein!

BURSCHEN: (nachsetzend).
Lauft, lauft!
Fanget, greift!
Ha, ha, ha!
Wir sind nah!
Hei, juchhei!
Immer nach!
(sich endlich der Mädchen bemächtigend).
Und nun tanzen wir Dennoch im Verein.
So muss es sein!
Juchhei!

BURSCHEN: (Zu ULANA). Höre, Du!
Komm' herzu!
Tritt nur hier herein!

ULANA: (will sich entwinden).
Lasst mich allein!

BURSCHEN: Hop, hop, hop!
Sei nicht grob!
Darfst Dich mit uns freu'n!
Nur ein Tanz!
Das kann keine reu'n.
Hop, hop, hop!
Rund herum!

MÄDCHEN: 's ist 'ne Frau von Stein, Die macht Ihr nicht heiss!
Die wird nicht lustig sein.
Lasst sie aus dem Kreis!

UROK: Wie dumm, wie dumm!
O wärt Ihr Alle lahm und krumm!
Zurück, zurück, verdammte Brut!
Ein schwaches Weib — das nenn' ich Muth!

ULANA: (will sich entwinden).
Höret mein Wort!

NEUNTE SCENE

Die VORIGEN. MANRU. (Am Waldesrand erscheint MANRU und blickt zornig auf die Tanzenden.)

MANRU: Ulana!

BURSCHEN: Der Zigeuner!
Der Zigeuner!

MÄDCHEN: Er hier?

MANRU: Lasst sie los!

ULANA: (will zu MANRU) Manru!

MANRU: Ihr Frechen, gebt sie frei!
Lasst mich zu!

MAIDENS: To tread the mazes, Win your praises, This is all our joy.
Would you embrace us, Deftly chase us, Employ your skill (Escaping their pursuers.)
With a skip, Through we slip.
Would you fain Try again?
Ha!
Huzza!
Never shall the rapture be yours,
Nevermore!
Never we submit to capture, Nevermore!

YOUTHS: (chasing). Be spry!
Be spry!
We are near
Ha, ha, ha!
We are near!
Ha, huzza!
All be spry!
(Finally capturing the maidens.)
Now in couples free We'll reform the ring.
This is the swing!
Huzza!
Huzza!

YOUTHS: (to ULANA). Do not be glum; Ulana come — Be one of our band!

ULANA (seeking to escape). Leave me in peace!

YOUTHS: Pretty prude, Be not rude, Mingle in the dance!
One good fling, That's the thing that would enhance your mirth.

MAIDENS: An unfeeling jade, you never will warm her;
An unfeeling jade, Will bring no merriment; Keep her from the ring!

UROK: Unkind!
Unkind!
O would you all were lame and blind!
Fall back!
Fall back!
You craven pack!
A woman she —

ULANA: Give me a word!

SCENE IX

THE SAME. MANRU. (MANRU appears at the edge of the forest and looks angrily at the dancers.)

MANRU: Ulana!

YOUTHS: It is the gypsy!
It is the gypsy!

MAIDENS: He here?

MANRU: Set her free!

ULANA: (tries to go to MANRU).
Manru!

MANRU: Madmen!
Set her free!
Way for me!

MÄDCHEN: Ja, es muss enden!
Tralalala!

BURSCHEN: (zu Ulana). Bleib!
Ja, er muss fort aus unserm Ort!

ANDERE BURSCHEN: Hinweg, Zigan, Rühr' sie nicht an!

ULANA: Lasst los!

UROK: Ihr Tollen!
Was wollen Die—

BURSCHEN: (zu Ulana). Nein!
Bleib'!
Genug der Schande!
Wir jagen ihn fort zu seiner Bande!

MÄDCHEN: Genug der Schande!

BURSCHEN: Die Zigeunerhütte brennt nieder bald—

MÄDCHEN: Fort zu der Bande!

BURSCHEN: Auf!
Auf!
Brecht dürre Aeste im Wald!

MÄDCHEN: Die Zigeunerhütte brennt nieder bald!

UROK: Zurück!

BURSCHEN UND MAäDCHEN:
Hin!

UROK: Zurück!

BURSCHEN UND MÄDCHEN:
Hin, hin!
Hin, hin!

ULANA: Erbarmen!

UROK: Zurück!

MANRU: Die Hütte nicht rühren,
Wollt Ihr nicht meine Fäuste spüren!

BURSCHEN: Er wagt—er wagt es, uns zu droh'n?
Uns zu droh'n?
(Stürzen sich auf MANRU.)
Zu Boden!
Stirb, du Heidensohn!
Ja, stirb!

ULANA: Manru!

ZEHNTE SCENE

DIE VORIGEN. HEDWIG (erscheint an der Schwelle ihrer hütte).

HEDWIG: Halt!
Lasst sie allein!

BURSCHEN UND MÄDCHEN: Ah!
(Alle blicken überrascht und voll Ehrfurcht auf HEDWIG und treten von MANRU und ULANA zurück.)

HEDWIG: Wie die Verpesteten sollen sie sein!
(Während MANRU UND ULANA einander fest umarmen, entfernt sich das Volk immer mehr von dem Paar, so daas es ganz vereinsamt bleibt.)

MAIDENS: It will soon be over!
Tra, la, la, la!

YOUTHS: (to ULANA). Stay!
We'll chase him from our place!

OTHER YOUTHS: Away you lout,
Your threats we scout!

UROK: You madmen!
What is it you do?

YOUTHS: (to Ulana) No! Stay!
We'll end this babble!
Away he must go to join his rabble!

MAIDENS: Yes, end the babble!

YOUTHS: The hut of the gypsy burn to the ground!

MAIDENS: Go, join your rabble!

YOUTHS: Up!
Up!
Easily kindling are found!

MAIDENS: The hut of the gypsy burn to the ground!

UROK: Fall back!

YOUTHS AND MAIDENS: Hence!

UROK: Fall back!

YOUTHS AND MAIDENS: Go!
Go!
Go!
Go!

ULANA: Have mercy!

UROK: Fall back!

MANRU: Fall back!
Gather no kindling or heed not the wrath of a father!

MEN: What's this!
He dares defy us?
You Pagan vagabond, now die!

ULANA: Manru!

SCENE X

THE SAME. HEDWIG (appears at the door of her hut).

HEDWIG: Touch not the lepers!

YOUTHS AND MAIDENS: Ah!
(All look with astonishment and awe at HEDWIG, and fall back from MANRU and ULANA)
Back from the pestilent, poisonous pair!
(While MANRU and ULANA are locked in each other's arms, the village folk draw back more and more from them until they stand quite alone.)

BURSCHEN UND MÄDCHEN: (murmelnd). Verpestete!— Verpestete!—
Verpestete!

Ende des ersten Aufzuges.

ZWEITER AUFZUG

(Das Gehöft MANRU'S. Im Hintergrunde ein finsterer Tannenwald. Links (vom Zuschauerraum) die Frontwand der Hütte. Rechts die Schmiede MANRU'S.)

ERSTE SCENE

MANRU. ULANA.
(Anbrechender Abend. Beim Aufgehen des Vorhangs sieht man ULANA in der Thür der Hütte sitzen und mit dem Fusse die Wiege ihres Kindes bewegen. Sie ist mit dem Rücken zu MANRU gekehrt, welcher mit dem Hammer in der Hand bei seiner Schmiede steht.)

MANRU: (schlägt mit dem Hammer auf ein Eisenstück los, hierauf lässt er den Hammer sinken. Mit einem Seitenblick auf ULANA.) Da sitzt sie d'rin Und wiegt das Kind!
(Hammerschläge.)
Da sitzt sie d'rin Mit stillem Sinn,
Als wär' sie blind, Und wiegt das Kind!
Denn es vergisst Der herbsten Pein
Das Weib, das Mutter ist!
Ach!
Könnt' ich so sein!
(Wieder hämmernd.)
O nein!
Nein, nein!
Ich werd' in diesem Taubenschlag
Nie meines Lebens froh!
Ihr Brüder, hört!
Ich fluch' dem Tag, Da ich von Euch entfloh!
Des Lagers Freiheit neid' ich Euch,
Das sturmdurchwehte Zelt, Ich neid', die endlos liegt vor Euch, Die grosse, freie Welt!
(Vor der Hütte ertönt der Gesang ULANA'S.)

ULANA: (an der Wiege). Schlaf wohl, Theures Kind, Du mein Schatz, meine Pracht!
Lüftchen lind, Komm geschwind,
Fächle süss mein einzig Kind!
Du mein Schatz, meine Pracht,
Schlaf wohl! Schlaf wohl!
Süss sei Dir Tag Nacht!
Schlaf wohl!

MANRU: Wie süss, wie gut, wie liebevoll!
Und doch — mich macht es toll!
Wenn ich sie seh', bin ich bethört,
Denk' ihrer Lieb' und Treu'
Doch Treue, die lange währt, Ist Sklaverei!
Sie ist so lieb, so weiss, so zart, So

YOUTHS AND MAIDENS (murmuring). The pestilent!
The pestilent!
The pestilent!

END OF THE FIRST ACT.

ACT II

(The yard of MANRU'S hut. In the background a dark pine forest. To the left, as seen from the audience-room, the front of a hut. To the right MANRU'S smithy.)

SCENE I

MANRU. ULANA.
(Evening falls. On the rising of the curtain ULANA is seen seated in the doorway of her hut, rocking the cradle of her child. Her back is turned to MANRU, who is standing in his smithy with a hammer in his hand.)

MANRU: (He pounds upon the anvil, then lets the hammer sink. With a side glance at ULANA.) She sits within And rocks her child!
(Hammering)
She sits within, whom care would win, So meek, so mild, she rocks her child.
No grief, no pain can cause to wane
A mother's matchless love.
Could I like her bestow such love!
(Hammering renewed).
Ah, no, no, no!
Within this dovecote I shall never renew my former joys!
I curse the day I left the band and followed love's decoys.
I envy them the windswept camp,
The canvas homes unfurled, I long to stroll through forests damp And roam through all the world!
(ULANA'S lullaby sounds from the hut)

ULANA: Sleep on, precious one,
Treasure mine, darling son; Come quickly, zephyrs mild, Breath upon my only child.
My treasure darling son, Sleep on!
Sleep on!
Happy though day is done, Sleep on!
Sleep on!

MANRU: How sweet!
How good!
Her love how glad!
And yet — it drives me mad!
I look on her — my mind's awry; I think — how true her love! —
But love that can all change defy is servitude!

engelsmild
Doch es giebt Frauen and'rer Art,
Feuring und Wild!

ULANA: Blumen Streu'ich Dir,
Jede Blum' sei ein Traum!
Engelstanz Voller Glanz Schilinge sich im frohen Kranz Rund um den gold'nen Baum Im Traum!
Im traun!
Schlaf sanft, du holdes Kind, Schlaf sanft, mein kind

MANRUD Nein, nein
Ich kann's nicht länger hören!
Viel schöner tönt des Hammers Klang!
Und sollt' ich seinen Schlummer stören —
(In höchster Gereiztheit.)
Ich schalage (hämmert) — ha!
Das ist ein Klang!
(Lässt den Hammer geräuschvoll zu Boden fallen.)

ULANA: (aus der Hütte hervortretend). Bist müde?

MANRU: Zum Sterben!

ULANA: (reich ihm eine Schüssel dar). So iss ruh' aus!

MANRU: Ich will kein Brod bei dem Elend und Graus!

ULANA: (die Schüssel niederstellend). Was ist Dir?

MANRU: Ach, lass mich!

ULANA: Mir kannst Du's klagen!

MANRU: Du weisst's ja!
(wild aufspringend).
Wer kann solch ein Leben ertragen!
Zervissen hab'ich die heiligs en Bande Und fand bei den Deinen nur Schmach und Schande!
Mir zahlen die Leute für Arbeit mit Hohn, Für alle liebe ist Hass mein Lohn!

ULANA: Nur nicht verzagen!

MANRU: Stehlen und rauben, hexen, verfuhren —
Da hat der Zigeuner nichts zu verlieren!
Wenn er auch einst am Galgen schwebt —
Er har gelebt!

ULANA: Wenn wir nur einander in Liebe gehören!

MANRU: Ja freilich!
Wie lang' soll das Elend noch währen?
Vereinsamt, vergrämt, verachtet, vertrieben —
Ist das ein Lieben?

ULANAD Manru, harr' aus!
Es wird besser werden!

MANRU: Nein, nein, für uns giebt es kein "besser" auf Erden!

She is so gentle, patient, kind!
So wondrous mild —
But there are women filled with fire, With passion wild!

ULANA: Flowers your canopy,
Each bears a dream for you Radiant, an angel band Dances round you hand in hand!
Plays round your golden bush,
Hush! hush! hush! hush!
sleep gently, darling son, Sleep on Sleep on!

MANRU: No, no!
Too long I'va been mistaken, More music's in the hammer's sound;
And though I waken you from your dreams.
I'll hammer!
I'll hammer!
I'll hammer!
Ha! thus I pound
Ha! thus I pound!
Ha! thus I pound!
Ha!
(He lets the hammer fall from his hand and sinks down upon the bench.)

ULANA: (coming from the hut).
Are you weary?

MANRU: Exhausted!

ULANA: (bringing a dish). Come, eat; and then rest.

MANRU: I cannot eat When I've no zest for food.

ULANA: What ails you?

MANRU: Don't question.

ULANA: Tell me your sorrow —

MANRU: You know it. —
Who can borrow joy from such living!
The holiest bonds I severed asunder, To find amongst yours only shame for my plunder.
I'm paid for my labor with insult and scorn; For love I get hatred, at eve, noon and morn!

ULANA: O love, despair not!

MANRU: Falsehood, seduction, theft, conjurations — These are the Gypsy's true occupations; And though the gallows comes at last,
He's had his fling!

ULANA: Enough, if we two remain trully united.

MANRU: United!
it is that which has blighted my happines
Derided and spurned!
In exile!
A burden!
Is it love's guerdon?

ULANA: Patience, my love!
It will not las for ever!

MANRU: It is false!
Misfortunes like this will never mend

Ulana: Ach, wär das nur Alles! Entbehrung und Leiden, wie trüg' ich sie gern! Wo die Noth recht gross, da ist Gott nicht fern! Ach, wär das nur Alles!.	ULANA: Ah, if that were all! want, exile and hunger Would never give me fear. For where need is great God is ever near! Ah, if that were all!
MANRU: Was giebt es denn mehr?	MANRU: What more can befall?
ULANA: (summt wehmüthig das Lied)! "Ist der Mon'd am Himmel voll Dann wird der Zigeuner toll . . . "	ULANA: "When the full moon fills the night, Errant grows the gypsy wight".
MANRU: (stampft wüthend mit dem fusse). Zum Henker! Verfolgt es mich bis hierher? Auf Schritt und Tritt Hör' ich dieses Lied! Und nun gar zu Haus — Das hält der Teufel aus!	MANRU Perdition! That ditty to haunt me here! Up hill and down dale, I have heard this song! — And now you, too dare — It is more than hell can bear!
ULANA: Manru! Verzeih' mir!	ULANA: Manru, forgive me!
MANRU: Hinweg! Kam's so weit, Dann giebt es förder nur Hader und Streit!	MANRU: Away! Has it come to this? Then discords and brawls Shall drive away bliss!
ULANA: Vergieb! Mir thut es in der Seele leid!	ULANA: Forgive! Dismiss sorrow from my heart!
MANRU: Der zu klagen hat, bin fürwahr nur ich! Sah so Manchen, der um den hof sich schlich!	MANRU: Shall one here accuse? Then indeed it is I. — Many skulkers have been seen hovering nearby.
ULANA: Ich bleib' Dir treu bis in den Tod!	ULANA: I will be true to you till death.
MANRU: Du bist's, die Haus und kind verlässt, Dich zog es damals zum Tanz zum Fest!	MANRU: You once did roam from home and child, And hurried off to the harvest home!
ULANA: Ich bat um Brot!	ULANA: I begged for bread!
MANRU: Und holtest Dir nur der Mutter Fluch — Unheilbar mit Allen ist nun der Bruch!	MANRU: And bore away a mother's curse! The breach was then wide, but now it is worse!
ULANA: Vergieb's! Vergiss und gräme Dich nich!	ULANA: Forgive me; forget the disgrace.
MANRU: So änd're erst Du Dein verweintes Gesicht!	MANRU: Then show not forever a tear-furrowed face!
ULANA: O könnte ich lächeln, was gäb'ich dafür Ich blick' in Dein Aug', und das Herz springt mir schier! Ich fühl es, ich fühl es, bin für Dich todt — So lass' mich denn sterben, barmherziger Gott!	ULANA: If smiles could be purchased, What would I not pay! I glance in your eyes, Which betray my sentence. I feel it, I feel it, You are mine no more! Be merciful, Heaven, Send death, I implore!
MANRU: Das ist fürwahr eine höllische Pein! (Erhebt die geballten Fäuste.)	MANRU: Must I endure all the torments of hell! (He raises his clenched fist.)

ZWEITE SCENE

SCENE II

DIE VORIGEN. UROK.	The same. UROK.
UROK: (tritt plötzlich hervor und fällt MANRU in den Arm). Grüss Gott, Herr Nachbar! Lasst das nur sein!	UROK: (entering suddenly and seizing MANRU's arm). Forbear, dear neighbor; This will not do!
MANRU: Ach, Du bist's!	MANRU: What, you here?
UROK: Ich selbst!	UROK: Myself.
MANRU: Die Teufelsbrut! Der Einzige, der uns nichts Böses thut! (Nähert sich weider dem Amboss.)	MANRU: Imp of hell! (The only one who seems to wish us well.) (He approaches the anvil.)
UROK: Ja, die Leut' sind halt bös . . . doch wir sind's auch; 's ist so Brauch. Dank' Gott, dass es so und nicht anders geschah — Zigeunerlein, warst der Hölle nah! Ha, ha!	UROK: Yes? Our neighbors are wroth, But so are we — We agree. Thank God that I came in the nick of time, Romanychal, that was almost crime. Ha! Ha! Ha!
MANRU: Oh! Käm' ein lohendes Feuer vom Himmel herab Und brannte das Dorf und das Erdenrund ab, Ohe! Ohe! Wie Jauchzt' ich da!	MANRU: Oh, that a torrent of firebrands would fall from on high, Consuming this place and all else beneath the sky! What glad, what mad delight is mine!
UROK: Mein Herzchen, die Welt brennt nich ab Dir zu Lieb; Doch vergieb: Ist's auf der Welt Dir so unbequem, So lass sie steh'n — Du kannst geh'n (Deutet das Hängen an.)	UROK: Old fellow, the world will not burn for your sake. But — a word: Are you weary of life here below, Spare us the world — You can go! (He makes a gesture indicating hanging.)
MANRU: (in tiefer Niedergeschlagenheit). 's ist wahr, ich kann's thun . . . Und würd nach allen Qualen ruh'n!	MANRU: It is true! Perhaps it would be best, At least, it would give me peace and rest.
ULANA: (zu Urok). Du Kobold geh'! Am Ende thut er sich ein Weh!	ULANA: Go, demon, go! Nor seek to add to my woe!
UROK: (bei Seite) Hi, hi! Wenn's nur recht bald geschäh'! (Zu MANRU.) Die hütte ist Dir zu eng — eine Gruft: Zieh' auf den Ast — da hast Du Luft! So steigst Du hoch und thronst über Allen — Hier unten könntest zu tief Du fallen! (Zu ULANA, ihre Stimme nachahmend.) Und willst Du nicht hängen ihn seh'n allein — So hängt Euch zu Zwei'n!	UROK: (aside). Ha! My wish ever so long ago! (To MANRU.) Your hut is too narrow and close, it is a grave; Climb but on high, If air you crave. Thus might you rise, And rule over all the humble — Think to what depths here you may yet tumble! (To ULANA, mimicking her voice.) Should you feel sorrow to see him hang alone — Then mount, too, his throne!
ULANA: Herzloser Mensch, Du!	ULANA: Infamous monster!
MANRU: Bösewicht!	MANRU: Heartless one!
UROK: Ich herzlos? bös? Das bin ich nicht! UROK: Ich kenn' die Welt, mein Aug' ist gut, Ich weiss, was tief im Herzen ruht; Und nichts entgeht, nichts, meinem Ohr: Unheimlich wallt' ich hörs, Dein Blut . . . Was ich so lang' schon sah zuvor, Das Unheil, das Euch droht, das Leid, — 's ist nimmer weit! (Aus dem Walde ertönt eine Geige.)	UROK: I heartless? I! You do me wrong. I know the world, My eye is keen, And human hearts Few secrets screen. No sound escapes My waking ear — The pulsing of your blood I hear. The bale I long, have known, foreseen, The evil blight in store Is even now at your door! (A violin is heard from the forest.)
ULANA: Ha!	ULANA: Ha!

UROK: Schau, schau, wie schön der spielt! (MANRU horcht in sichtbarer Ergriffenheit hin) Nur klingt's ein wenig wild!	UROK: Attend! A clever chap!
MANRU: (bewegt in innerem Kampfe) ja, ja! Der kann wohl zaubern, der so geigt! Ob er sich zeigt?	MANRU: (listens with obvious emotion.) A trifle wild, mayhap. (inwardly disturbed.) Aye, aye! He's a magician, Who thus plays. Is he in sight?
UROK: Nicht wahr, das packt? — 's ist zum Vergeh'n?	UROK: Beware! He'll take you in his snare!
ULANA: Warum erstarr' ich, Gott, mein Gott?	ULANA: My blood congeals! God hear my prayer!
UROK: Hihi! Jawohl, das Spierl ist schön! Es lockt — es zieht — zum Paradies! (Zu ULANA) Versvhliess ihn, rath' ich Dir verschliess!	UROK: Hee Hee! Now mark how in a trice He'll have his soul in Paradise. (To ULANA.) I pray you, quickly bar the door.
MANRU: O still, still — hört!	MANRU: O hush, hush! Hear!
ULANA: Es ist mein Tod!	ULANA: I die with fear!
UROK: Und nun flog auch ein Vöglein aus, Das bringt ihr Lied Dir bis in's Haus! Hör' hör . . . das Lied! — Du hast's beschworen!	UROK: And now a bird is on the wing, It will bring its song up to your door. Attend the song — you did invoke it!
ULANA: Alles, Alles ist verloren!	ULANA: All's lost! All's lost! My doom is sealed!
MANRU: Nein, nein . . . nein, nein! Sie sind es nich! Ein Blinder ist's, ein Musikant . . . (Entfernt sich vom Amboss.)	MANRU: No, no, no, no! They're not revealed; No gypsies these — a sightless bard. (He leaves the anvil.)
UROK: Warum erbleicht denn Dein Gesicht? Kennst Du die Hand, Die aus den Saiten spricht?	UROK: Why are your cheeks so bloodless? Do you know the voice that speaks in this music?
ULANA: Du zitterst!	ULANA: You're trembling!
MANRU: Bei Gott! So spielt nur der Erumanel! (will fortstürmen; UROK und ULANA halten ihn zurück.)	MANRU: A Romany alone con own such skill. (Seeks to rush off, but is detained by UROK and ULANA.)
ULANA: (Was thust Du? Mein Einz'ger, mein Liebster!	ULANA: O Manru, my husband! My dear one!
UROK: Halt, Halt! — — Bleib!	UROK: Hold! Hold! Stay!
MANRU: O lasst mich, lasst!	MANRU: Detain me not !
ULANA: Geh' nicht von mir! O Hör mein Fleh'n!	ULANA: O, leave me not! O hear my prayer!
MANRU: Ich will ihn seh'n! Nur seh'n! Nur seh'n!	MANRU: I must see him! I must! I must!
UROK: Halt, nicht so schnell!	UROK: Stay! Not so fast!
MANRU: Ich will, ich will—	MANRU: I will! I will!
ULANA: Manru!	ULANA: Manru!
MANRU: Ich muss ihn seh'n! (Entwindet sich und stürmt in den Wald).	MANRU: I must see him! (Tears himself away and dashes into the forest.)

DRITTE SCENE	SCENE III
Die Vorigen ohne Manru.	ULANA. UROK.
UROK: Du lässt ihn geh'n? Ha, ha!	UROK: You let him go? Ha! Ha!
ULANA: (rathlos, verzweifelt). Manru! Manru!	ULANA: (in despair). Manru! Manru!
UROK: Da läuft es, dein Ziegeunerlein!	UROK: Your pretty one has gone away!
ULANA: (mit plötzlichem Entschluss, MANRU nacheilend). Ich hol' ihn ein!	ULANA: (with sudden determination, hurrying after MANRU). I'll run to him!
UROK: (hält sie zurück). Lass sein, lass sein!	UROK: (holding her back). Have done, have done!
ULANA: (will sich entwinden). Ich muss ihm nach!	ULANA: (struggling to free herself). I'm cold with dread!
UROK: (wie oben). Gemach, gemach! Noch droht Dir nichts!	UROK: Desist, desist! listen to me
ULANA: (händeringend). Mein Glück! Dahin! Dahin!	ULANA: All joy is sped!
UROK: Es kommt zurück! Da siehst Du, Thörin, wer ich bin: Er rennt, der Schuft, Wo ihn die Fiedel ruft, Er plant Verrath, der Galgenstrick, Indessen ich auf Rettung sinn'! (Zeigt ihr den Trank.)	UROK: (showing a phial). He will return. Now note your folly. Look on me. — He runs away, Soon as the devil-fiddles play — false to his word, the gallows-bird, And meanwhile I try to help you.
ULANA: Ach!	ULANA: Woe!
UROK: Schau! Mundet ihm das Tränklein da, So hältst Du ihn! Doch Eines, wiss'—	UROK: (showing th phial). See! Give him but a drink of this He will return; but do not miss —
ULANA: (ohne auf UROK'S Worten zu achten). Ja, ja, gewiss! Nun fürcht' ich nichts mehr, Urok, Dank! Ach, Dank!	ULANA: (sacrcely heeding UROK's word). Yes, yes, I know. Now hence, misgiving, go! Urok , I bless you!
UROK: Ich bleib ein Narr mein Leben lang!	UROK: Still fool am I in my distress!
ULANA: Mein Glück, mein Heil, mein Rettungstrank.	ULANA: You give me joy and happiness!
UROK: Frohlock' nicht! Lieb', die man erzwang —	UROK: Rejoice not. Love that is not free —
ULANA: Wie? Dein Trank. Er brächt' sie nicht zum Schweigen, Die Zaubergeigen?	ULANA: What? The drink? Has then your art no power Over gypsy strumming?
UROK: Das wird sich zeigen!	UROK: We'll test his thrumming!
ULANA: Ach! Mir wird wieder bang!	ULANA: Ah! All my fears return!

VIERTE SCENE	SCENE IV
Die VORIGEN. Am Waldesrand erscheint MANRU und JAGU, ein uralter Zigeuner. (MANRU und JAGU bleiben während der ganzen Scene rechts, während ULANA und UROK — besonders im Beginne — links neben der Hütte verharren.)	THE SAME. MANRU and JAGU, a very old Gypsy, appear at the edge of the forest, During the entire scene MANRU and JAGU remain to the right, while UROK and ULANA, particularly st the beginning, remain to the left near the hut.)
UROK: Ein Gast! Ein lieber Gast!	UROK: A guest, a welcome guest!

ULANA: (will auf JAGU zugehen, angstvoll) Wer ist's?	ULANA: (in fear, seeking to approach JAGU). Who is it?
UROK: (hält sie zurück). Gefasst!	UROK: Be brave!
ULANA: Wer ist's?	ULANA: Who is it?
UROK: Der alte Jagu, der einst hier gehaust!	UROK: Our friend, old Jagu, Who lived hard by.
ULANA: Der Geiger ist's Mir graust!	ULANA: The fiddler! I die!
JAGU: (Zu MANRU). Einst rettet'st Du mich vor Galgen und Strick —	JAGU: (to MANRU). You saved me once from gibbet and death —
MANRU: Wer denkt an solche Dinge zurück?	MANRU: You are wasting your breath on things long past.
ULANA: (Zu UROK). Was will er?	ULANA: What says he?
UROK: (bedeutet ULANA zu schweigen und horcht auf das Gespräch MANRU'S und JAGU'S). Stiller!	UROK: Silence! (He beckons to ULANA to remain in quiet while he listens to MANRU and JAGU.)
JAGU: Heut' will ich's vergelten. Zum Fürsten wirst Du bald erwählt!	JAGU: Now let me requite it. You shall be before long our chieftain.
UROK: (horchend, für sich). Zum Fürsten!	UROK: (aside). Their chieftain!
JAGU: Du weisst, noch hat der Jagu' was zu sagen!	JAGU: You can rely on me , and I assure it.
MANRU: Nein . . .	MANRU: No.
JAGU: Komm, komm!	JAGU: Come! Come!
MANRU: Nein, nein! Sie Könnt's nicht tragen!	MANRU: No! no! She'd not endure it!
UROK: (für sich). Der Schuft! Noch kann er es nicht wagen!	UROK: (aside). The wretch! As yet he's too faint-hearted!
ULANA: O nein! Ich lass' ihn nicht!	ULANA: Ah no! He'll stay with me!
JAGU: Auf Deine Rückkehr hoffen sie Alle!	JAGU: To see you among them, kinsmen are hoping.
MANRU: Hoffen sie?	MANRU: Are hoping?
JAGU: Wir wollen nicht, dass ein Zigeuner verfalle! Lass ab von der Fremden, lass ab!	JAGU: We grieve to regard you a renegade gypsy. Cast off the pale gentile, away!
MANRU: Nichts trennt mich ihr, als das Grab!	MANRU: Death alone shall lead me astray!
JAGU: Lass ab! Lass ab!	JAGU: Away! Away!
ULANA: Er schickt ihn fort!	ULANA: He sends him away.
UROK: 's ist nur zum Spassen!	UROK: He will deceive you!
ULANA: Nein, Manru kann mich nicht verlassen —	ULANA: No, Manru cannot, will not leave me —
JAGU: Denk' an Asa!	JAGU: Think of Asa!
ULANA: Ich hab' den Trank!	ULANA: I have the drink!
UROK: (wieder hinhorchend). Welch' Name, der so seltsam klang!	UROK: (listening again). How stangely sounds the name I hear!
JAGU: An Asa denk', an Asa!	JAGU: Asa calls! Asa!
MANRU: Sag', ist sie jetzt schön?	MANRU: Ha! Is she still fair?
JAGU: Ein schön'res Mädchen hab' ich nie geseh'n Das Feuraug!	JAGU: A matchless beauty, fair beyond compare. Her glowing eyes —
MANRU: Das wunderbare!	MANRU: I know their beauty.
JAGU: Sie blüht jetzt!	JAGU: Are fire now.
MANRU: Ach! Der prächtige Gang!	MANRU: Ah, her lithesome gait!
JAGU: Nie gab's ein Weib, das schöner sang, So wahr ich Jagu bin!	JAGU: There never was a wench who sang so well, Upon old Jagu's word.
UROK: Jetzt hat er ihn!	UROK: He's taken the bait!
ULANA: Er zieht ihn fort!	ULANA: He'll draw him away! (Tries to cross over.)
UROK: Bleib'!	UROK: Stay!
ULANA: Lass mich hin!	ULANA: Let me go!
UROK: 's ist besser, glaub's, Du Hörst kein Wort!	UROK: It were better far you had not heard.
MANRU: Und denkt sie mein?	MANRU: She thinks of me?
JAGU: Du weisst, sie liebt nur Dich! Manru ist ihr Lied, Manru ist ihr Leid!	JAGU: She loves only you — Manru all her song, She longs for Manru!
MANRU: Die Herrliche!	MANRU: The darling one!
JAGU: Ob nah, ob weit, Du weisst es, sie gehört nur Dir!	JAGU: Though far you roam — You know it — She is yours alone.
MANRU: Und ich verschmachte hier!	MANRU: And here I sigh and groan!
JAGU: Doch kommst Du nicht —	JAGU: But stay away —
MANRU: Was dann — schnell, Alter, sprich! (Ergreift JAGU heftig beim Arm.)	MANRU: What then? Speak, quickly speak! (Vehemently seizing JAGU's arm.)
JAGU: Wird sie des Oros sich're Beute sein!	JAGU: She will surely fall a prey to Oros!
MANRU: Ah! Oros? — Nein! Das duld' ich nicht! (Will forteilen, indem er JAGU nach sich zieht.)	MANRU: To Oros? No! Come, no delay! (Seeks to hurry away, dragging JAGU with him.)
UROK: Ha, ha, ha, ha!	UROK: Ha! Ha! Ha!
ULANA: Manru!	ULANA: Manru! Manru! (MANRU, who is struggling within himself, stops and gazes on ULANA.)
MANRU: (ist im inneren Kampfe stehen geblieben; blickt auf ULANA; resignirt). Nein! (Entschlossen.) Nein! Fort, Alter, fort!	MANRU: (resignedly). No! No! Away, tempter Away!
UROK: Wie schad'! Der Schuft will ehrlich sein!	UROK: Too bad! The wretch would be a saint.
JAGU: Komm! Komm!	JAGU: Come! Come!
MANRU: (da JAGU zaudert, — mit gebieteischer Handbewegung). Du kennst mein Wort!	MANRU: (with a gesture of command to the hesitating JAGU). You know my will!
(JAGU ab.)	(Exit JAGU.)

FUNFTE SCENE

SCENE V

DIE VORIGEN ohne JAGU.	ULANA. MANRU. UROK.
ULANA: (zu MANRU). Was wollt' der Alte von Dir, sag'?	ULANA: (to MANRU) What was it that old Gypsy sought?
MANRU: Nichts, nichts!	MANRU: It was nothing.

UROK: Nichts? Ich dacht', Er wollte viel. Er soll wieder der ihre sein!	UROK: Nothing I thought He wanted much! It was nothing less than your return.
ULANA: Weh mir, willst Du wohl schweigen!	ULANA: Woe's me! Will you hold your peace?
UROK: Packt ihn erst wieder der Wandertrieb, So ist es aus mit Weib und Lieb'!	UROK: When he again desires to rove. It will be all day with wife and love!
ULANA: Ist's wahr! Du gingest wieder in die Welt?	ULANA: Is it true? Would you become a wanderer?
MANRU: Und wenn ich ging? Und wenn wir Beide gingen? Wer ist's, der mich zur Rede stellt? Wer kann an diese Scholl' uns zwingen?	MANRU: Suppose it were true? And if we both should wander — Who's he to whom I'd give account? Who is it that can bind us to this clod?
ULANA: Es liebt das Vögelchen sein Nest. Es weint, wer je sein Heim verlässt: Schlägt denn in Deiner Brust kein Herz? Empfand'st Du nie der Trennung Schmerz? Ach sag', warum musst Du Stets wandern ohne Rast und Ruh?	ULANA: The bird is fond of its small home And grieves when it is forced to roam. Have you no heart within your breast, That parting brings you no unrest? O tell me, pray, why must you ever ramble? Why has rest no charm?
MANRU: (an der Schmiede, mit dem Hammer in der Hand). Ich wand're nicht — Mich zieht's dahin! Ein Räthsel ist mir selbst mein Herz: Urplötzlich zieht's mich anderwärts . . . Warum? — Wohin? Ich weiss es nicht — doch muss ich zieh'n! Uns fasst's mit wilder Frühlingslust, Unzähl'ge Stimmen singen, Und jauchzend spielt's in uns'rer Brust Als wollte sie zerspringen! Es keimt, es sprosst, es schluchzt und lacht, Ein Sehnen, ungestillt, erwacht, Und trägt uns, hingerissen, blind, In's Weite fort mit Uebermacht! So reisst ein Giesbach jäh sich los, Der wild, unhemmbar fällt, So rollt, gezeugt vom Erdenschloss, Der Strom der Lava durch die Welt, Vernichtend Alles, was ihn hält! (Bleibt wie verzückt stehen.)	MANRU: I ramble not. I'm drawn afield. Even my heart yields a riddle It is that tempts me far away. But where, or why, it will not say. I may not stay! My soul is filled with longings. Spring's voices shout within me; Each fiber in my frame is thrilled. With feelings that would win me. In bush and brake The buds awake, Of nature's joy the woods partake, And bear me helpless, spent along, Where freedom lives, far from the throng! Thus pours the mountain torrent wild, That stubborn rocks would check; Thus rolls the molten lava-stream, (As if in an ecstasy.) Dispersing havoc dire, supreme, Enfolding, whelming all in wreck!
ULANA: Schau, schau! Ein Zauber reisst ihn hin!	ULANA: See, see! He's in an ecstasy!
MANRU: So fliegt ein Blüthenstaub im Wind Zur fernen Blume hin! So dringt, wenn er der Seel' entsprang, Zu den Sternen der Gesang! Ihr nennt es Fluch — Kein and'res Dasein giebt's für mich! Geschrieben steht's im Schicksalsbuch: Dein Stamm muss alle Bande flieh'n Und irren, irren ewiglich! Warum? — Wohin? Ich weiss es nicht — doch muss ich zieh'n!	MANRU: Thus flies the pollen on the breeze, To meet its floral love; The song, outgushing from the soul, Thus seeks the starry vault above. It is a curse? There is no other life for me. It is written in the book of fate: "Your race must abate every pledge, and wander, rove eternally!" But why? And where? I know it not — I must fare. (He slowly approaches the anvil.)
ULANA: Irren . . . irren ewiglich . . . ! So wand're! — zieh'! Für ewig ist mein Glück zerstört!	ULANA: "Wander, — rove eternally!" Then ramble, roam! My happiness is gone!
MANRU: Wer Dich so reden hört, Der glaubt fürwahr, Schon wären die Zigeuner da Und frässen mich mit Haut und Haar!	MANRU: (with an angry gesture). To hear your maunderings, one might assume The Gypsies have already come To steal me from my house and home!
UROK: Man sagt, man sagt, sie sind schon nah! Auf Deine Rückkehr hoffen sie Alle! Sie wollen nicht, dass ein Zigeuner verfalle!	UROK: It is said, it is said that they are near. To see you amongst them they are hoping; They "grieve to think you a renegade gypsy."
MANRU: Das hörtest Du?	MANRU: You heard the words?
UROK: Ha, ha, ha, ha! Das hört' ich — und ich selber sah Sogar tiefschwarzer Augen zwei — Doch mir — hihi! — ist's einerlei!	UROK: Ha, ha! Yes, truly, And indeed, I saw, besides, a pair of coal black eyes. But yet — he, he! All is one to me!
ULANA: Ein Weib?	ULANA: A lass?
MANRU: Schweig, Du Höllenhund!	MANRU: Peace, you imp of hell!
UROK: Ja, ja, ich sah — ja, ja, ich sah Die Perlenzähne, den Rosenmund . . .	UROK: Aye, aye! I saw the teeth so pearly, The rosebud mouth —
MANRU: Schweig! Genug!	MANRU: Enough! Enough!
UROK: Ja, ja, das ist ein Weib! Ich sah! Sie tanzte und drehte den Schlangenleib, Es rauschten die rothen Fetzen, Die Hölle hatt' ihr Ergötzen!	UROK: Yes, yes There was a lass! I saw the jade, She danced and she capered, The sinuous maid. Her ragged, red skirts were flying, All hell delighted in spying!
MANRU: Du Giftmaul, still!	MANRU: You hell-hound, peace!
ULANA: Sag', war sie schön?	ULANA: Speak! Was she fair?
UROK: Ha, ha! Ein schön'res Mädchen hab' ich nie geseh'n!	UROK: Ha, ha! A matchless beauty, Fair beyond compare.'
MANRU: (geht mit erhobener Faust auf ihn los). Wirst Du nicht still?	MANRU: (approaching UROK with raised fist). Will you hold your peace?
UROK: (entschlüpft hinter den Amboss, wo er sich mit der Feuerzange gegen Manru wehrt). Ich will, ich will! — Sie tanzte, sie tanzte und sang dabei —	UROK: (taking refuge behind the anvil and arming himself with the tongs). I'll cease! I'll cease! She danced and she sang a song!
ULANA: Sie sang?	ULANA: She sang?
MANRU: (wie oben). Still, sag' ich, still!	MANRU: Peace, I say, peace!
UROK: "Nie gab's ein Weib, das schöner sang, So wahr ich Jagu bin!"	UROK: "Never was a wench who sang so well, Upon old Urok's word!"
MANRU: Ich stopf' Dir bald den Rachen!	MANRU: I'll end this wicked gabble!
ULANA: Sie ist's von der sie sprachen!	ULANA: It is she of whom they babble!
UROK: Und hei, wie klang das Tamburin! Da, da, nicht wahr? — da zieht's Dich hin!	UROK: Huzza! How rings her tambourine! It is that which draws you here, I believe.
MANRU: Verruchter!	MANRU: You villain!
ULANA: (zu UROK). Schweig!	ULANA: (to UROK). Peace!
MANRU: Ich will dich lehren —	MANRU: An admonition —

ULANA: Schon' ihn!	ULANA: Spare him!
UROK: Die Treu' zu brechen?	UROK: To prove unfaithful?
MANRU: Besser hören!	MANRU: Ha! Perdition!
ULANA: Hinweg! Hinweg!	ULANA: Away, Away!
MANRU: Ich schlag' dich todt!	MANRU: I'll have your live!
UROK: Nur sachte, sachte! Behut' Dich Gott! (Er lauft in den wald hinein. MANRU will ihm nachfolgen, wird aber VON ULANA zurückgehalten.)	UROK: Ha! Gently, gently! Beware of strife! (He runs into the forest. MANRU attempts to follow him, but is restrained by ULANA.)
MANRU: Mir kocht das Blut!	MANRU: I burn with rage!
ULANA: Bleib'! Bleib'!	ULANA: Stay, stay!
MANRU: Längst hab ich ihm den Tod geschworen!	MANRU: I swore to kill him long ago.
ULANA: (geht in die Hütte). Nun hilf mir, Trank, in meiner Noth!	ULANA: Help, potion, now my need is sore. (Goes into the hut.)
MANRU: (am Amboss). Die Teufelsbrut, Von einer Hex' geboren! Wer ihn hört, verdorrt, Denn Gift ist jedes Wort!	MANRU: (at the anvil). The imp of hell, Whom a foul beldame bore! why should I refrain? His every word is bane! (ULANA returns. Flowers are twisted in her hair and she carries a bottle and goblet.)
ULANA: (Kommt mit Blumen im Haare zurück. Sie hält eine Flasche und einen Becher in der Hand). Sei doch ruhig! Sei doch gut! Sag', möchtest Du ein Schlückchen haben?	ULANA: Patience, Manru! Come, be kind! See, see! I offer a cooling drink.
MANRU: Wie, Wein?	MANRU: It is wine?
ULNA: Das wird Dich laben!	ULANA: Take what I offer.
MANRU: Es ist wohl kaum ein edler Trank!	MANRU: A soothing drink were good for me.
ULANA: (schenkt ein). Versuch' ihn nur, versuch'!	ULANA: Try but a sip.
MANRU: Welch' würziger Geruch!	MANRU: It is sweet on the lip.
ULANA: Versuch'! Du sagst mir Dank!	ULANA: You'll be grateful.
MANRU: Gefahr ist stets im Wein —	MANRU: There's treason in wine!
ULANA: Trink', trink'! 's wiegt süss in Traum Dich ein!	ULANA: Drink, drink! It will incline you to sleep.
MANRU: Wenn du es willst — Wenn Du mir selbst den Becher füllst . . .	MANRU: It is your desire? Then fill the cup you did inspire.
ULANA: Mit Freuden!	Ulana: Most gladly!
MANRU: Nun, so gieb!	MANRU: Here, you dove!
ULANA: (zögert). Hast Du mich lieb?	ULANA: (hesitates) Have I your love?
MANRU: (ungeduldig). Ach, Du fragst?	MANRU: (impatiently). Can you ask?
ULANA: Liebst mich nicht mehr?	ULANA: You love not!
MANRU: Wie Du mich plagst! Gieb her!	MANRU: Is all forgot? The cup!
ULANA: So trink'!	ULANA: Here, drink!
MANRU: Ah, das thut gut!	MANRU: Ah! That is good!
ULANA: Trink', trink', das kühlt das Blut!	ULANA: Drink, drink! It will cool your blood.
MANRU: 's giebt neuen Muth! Wie Balsam rinnt es durch die Kehle!	MANRU: I feel new life. All trace is gone of my dejection.
ULANA: (für sich). O Gott, Gott, ändre seine Seele!	ULANA: O God! Restore his affection! Oh, fill his heart with love sincere!
MANRU: (für sich). Ein guter Trunk!
ULANA: (für sich). O wandle, wandle seinen Sinn!
MANRU: (für sich). Wer gab ihr ihn? (In Pausen, während deren aus seinem stummen Spiel die Wirkung des Trankes ersichtlich wird.) . . . Ja, ja . . . Mir ist so leicht . . . zum Schweben!	MANRU: A potent drink. (Aside.) Who brought it here? (His actions indicate that the potion is taking effect.) Up, up, light as the air I'm soaring.
ULANA: So trinke noch!	ULANA: Then drink again!
MANRU: Ach sieh, wie hübsch geschmückt!	MANRU: How fair! Bedecked with flowers!
ULANA: Nicht doch!	ULANA: It is nothing.
MANRU: Es ist doch schön, das Leben!	MANRU: Life's filled anew with pleasure!
ULANA: (für sich). Ich seh's, ich seh's Ein neues Herz ist ihm gegeben!	ULANA: It is true; God has restored to me my treasure!
MANRU: Ulana! Ich fühl's, es rollt in meinen Adern Wie Honigseim und doch wie Flammengluth! Ich fühl's, ich lebe — ich fühl's, ich liebe!	MANRU: Ulana! A torrent throbbing through my veins, Like a balsam sweet, yet like a fire's fierce glow! It is joy in living! It is joy in loving!
ULANA: Ach, dass es nur so bliebe!	ULANA: Were you but safe from roving!
MANRU: Ulana, ach, so lass das Hadern! Komm, komm . . . (umfasst sie und zieht sie an sich.) So, so . . . Sei wieder gut! Lächle mir froh!	MANRU: Ulana! Cease your sobbing. Come, come! (Embracing her.) So, so! Past is woe! Grant me a smile, My heart beguile. Show me your face!
ULANA: Mein Herz ist schwer! Liebst mich nicht mehr!	ULANA: My heart is sad; your love is dead!
MANRU: Ein böser Traum! Ich denk' ihn kaum!	MANRU: A wicked dream! Away it is sped!
ULANA: Kalt war Dein Herz, Dein Sinn mir fern!	ULANA: Cold was your heart— your thoughts did stray!
MANRU: Verzeih', verzeih', Ulana, hör'!	MANRU: Forgive, forgive, Ulana, pray!
ULANA: Nur still, nur still! Hast Du mich gern?	ULANA: And now, again have I your love?
MANRU: Mein Lieb, mein Weib, mein Stern!	MANRU: My star! My wife! My dove!
ULANA: So sprich: hast Du mich wirklich wieder gern?	ULANA: Oh, speak! Do you truly love me?
MANRU: Wie im Sonnenscheine Kühler Winde Kosen, Wie den Duft der Rosen Lieb' ich Dich, Du Reine! Wie der Lied-Erfinder Seiner Leier Saiten, Wie die frommen Kinder Heil'ger Glocken Läuten: Heiss, wie Löwenherzen Die die Lieb' beschlich, Voll verschwieg'ner Schmerzen, Also lieb' ich Dich!	MANRU: As the balmy zephyrs Meet the sun's caresses, Perfume from the roses Nature's love confesses;— As the ardent singer Loves his harp's sweet measure, As the bells their chiming, — I love you, my treasure! Fiercely as the lion, Filled with love elate, Gently as the twilight, I love

Komm, schon sinkt der Schatten, Wonnig blüht der Flieder, Und ein hold Ermatten Löst die heissen Glieder!
Horch wie in den Zweigen Webt ein Zauberreigen, Wie sie Küsse tauschen, Sich in Lieb' berauschen!
Himmel, Erd' umschlingen Sich in Lieb' so weich, Alles scheint zu singen: Liebet, liebet euch!
Zeig' mir Dein Gesicht!
Warum schweigst Du?
Sprich!

ULANA: Nein, ich kann's nicht denken, Dass Dein Herz erwacht!

MANRU: Süsse, zweifle nicht!

ULANA: Sag, willst Du mich kränken?

MANRU: Dich nur lieb' ich, Dich!

ULANA: Bin ich nur verlacht?
War so ganz verlassen, Hab' an Tod gedacht —

MANRU: Liebste!
Lass die Klagen, Sprich mir nicht von Tod!

ULANA: Wollte schon verzagen
Ach, in meiner Noth!
Nein, ich kann's nicht fassen, Dass Dein Herz erwacht!

MANRU: Hörst Du es nicht schlagen?
Kann der Mund es sagen, Was im Herzen loht?

ULANA: O mein Gott!
Ist's wahr?
Sag, so hätt' Dein Blick Sich zu mir gewendet?

MANRU: War mein Aug' verblendet?
Kannt' ich nicht mein Glück?

ULANA: Ach, wie gern vergäss' ich aller Noth und Pein, Wärst Du wieder mein!

MANRU: Welcher Stimme Klang trifft mein Herz so heiss?
Wessen Stirn und Wang Ist so zart, so weiss?
Wessen Herz so offen?
Wessen Aug' so klar?

ULANA: Ach, so soll ich hoffen?
Ist das Wunder wahr?
In der Seele klingen Zarte Melodieen, Die von Liebe singen, Sterneaufwärts ziehen.
Sehnsuchtsvolles Bangen,
Sorgenschwühler Noth, Ist trostreich aufgegangen, Goldnes Morgenroth.
Lass mich dich umwinden Küsse, Trauter, mich; Es soll mein Kuss dir künden Ewig lieb ich dich!

MANRU: Ja, ein neues Leben Fühl' ich in mir quellen, Fühl' mein Herz erbeben Und in Wonne schwellen!

you, my mate.
Come, the night is darkling, Fragrant are the breezes, And a sweet emotion Seizes all my being Through the verdant branches Fairy folk are moving, And their myriad kisses Tell the bliss of loving.
Heaven and earth embracing With the arms of love, Chant the tender passion Like the choirs above!
Turn to me your cheek!
Why so silent?
Speak!

ULANA: No! It is past believing, That your heart is mine;

MANRU: Sweet one, banish fear!

ULANA: Lone was I, deserted, Thoughts of death were mine!

MANRU: Sweetheart, cease repining, Yield not to despair.

ULANA: Grief, entwining my heart, Had me in its snare; No! It is past believing, That your heart is mine!

MANRU: Listen only to its beating, Hear my voice repeating, I love you, my fair!

ULANA: O, my God!
Is it true?
Has indeed your heart Turned to me in kindness?

MANRU: Long I groped in blindness Feeling joy depart!

ULANA: Gladly would I banish Memories of pain, Having you again!

MANRU: Whose the voice that now Fills me with delight?
Whose the cheek and brow, Gently fair and white?
Whose the heart so tender?
Whose the eye so clear?

ULANA: Gratitude I render, Knowing joy so near!
Through my soul enraptured, Melodies are ringing; Love's and rapture's voices, To the skies are winging.
All the pains of longing, All of sorrow's care, Through hope's touch have vanished Into viewless air!
Let my arm enfold you!
Let me feel your kiss!
Each caress proclaiming Everlasting bliss!

MANRU: Life within me welling, Through my veins it is coursing; Every cloud dispelling, Enforcing happiness!

ULANA: Komm, mich zu erlösen Die in Dir nur lebt!
Nimm mein ganzes Wesen, Das nach Dir nur strebt!

MANRU: Dir, der einzig Süssen, Lass aufs Neu' mich schwören: Dir bleib' ich zu Füssen, Dir will ich gehören!

ULANA: Ewig möcht ich's hören!

MANRU: O Du meine Sonne!
Du mein ganzes Sein!

ULANA: Du mein Glück, Du Wonne!

MANRU. ULANA: Ewig, ewig Dein!

(Ende des zweiten Aufzuges.)

DRITTER AUFZUG

Links (vom Zuschauer), mehr im Hintergrunde, ein See; dahinter gebirgige Landschaft mit mehreren gangbaren Bergpfaden. Links vorne eine kleine Erhöhung mit einem Steinblock. — Es ist Nacht. Im Beginne schwüle Gewitterstimmung, die sich jedoch allmählich aufheitert und dem klaren Vollmondlichte Platz macht.

ERSTE SCENE

MANRU. Stimme hinter der Bühne.

MANRU (erscheint schwankend, wie schlaftrunken). Luft!
Luft!
Ich ersticke!
Der Hütte Schwüle . . .
Der wüste Traum, der mich umwebt . . .
Das Herz, das zum Zerspringen schwoll!
(Athmet tief.) . . .
Ah!
Das thut wohl! — so wohl! . . .
Die Nebel zieh'n, wohin ich blicke,
Ich sehe nichts . . . jedoch ich fühle
Den Mond, der hinter Wolken schwebt . . .
(Dämmernder Schein über dem Gebirge.).
Ah, das belebt!
Vom See die Kühle!
Und vom Gebrig' des Waldes Duft!

STIMME: (in weiter Ferne). Rasten, rasten wollen wir!

MANRU: Wer ruft?
War's nicht ein ferner Schall?
Nein, 's ist der Brandung Widerhall!
. . . Unruhig wallt in mir das Blut, So wundersam ist heute mir zu Muth . .

Es ist, als ob man tief im See dort sänge Und von den Sternen fliessen Saitenklänge . . .
Man gab mir wohl einen Zaubertrank?
Gott soll mich strafen,

ULANA: Come, complete the capture, I am yours forever!
Ah! Such heavenly rapture Does repay past grief!

MANRU: You are mine, mine only, I shall leave you never Sorrowful and lonely, — I am yours forever!

MANRU: You, are my sun, my treasure, You, are my bliss divine!

ULANA: Loving without measure,

BOTH: Ever I am yours!

END OF ACT TWO.

ACT III

To the left, slightly in the background, a lake. Back of the lake a mountainous landscape with several practicable paths. In the left foreground a slight elevation and a rocky platform. It is night. In the beginning suggestions of a sultry summer storm, which are gradually dissipated and give place to the light of the full moon.

SCENE I

MANRU: voices behind the scenes.

MANRU: (totters on the stage as if drunken with sleep). Air!
Air!
I stifle! . . .
Close was the cottage—wild was the dream that held me bound!
My heart, I thought, would split in twain!
(Breathes deeply.)
Ah!
Now I breathe again. . .
The mists depart—wherever I look, nothing can be seen; and yet I feel the moon behind her cloudy veil!
(Light glimmers on the mountain peaks).
Ah! these refresh me! . . . the lake's cool breezes, and from the heights the forest's smell!

A VOICE FROM THE MOUNTAINS. (Heard in the distance).
Here we'll rest and seek repose!

MANRU: Who calls?
Was it not a distant cry?
No! it was the echo's quivering sigh.
The blood surges within my veins
A nameless impulse urges me onward Methinks that voices from the lake are singing, And from the skies accordant harps are ringing.
Mayhap I have drunk of a magic cup!
It were God's vengeance were I be-

Ich bin behext!
Mir ist's, als wär' ich krank . . .
(Die Kräfte scheinen ihn zu verlassen. Er schwankt und läst sich auf einen Stein block nieder.)
Nein, nein, Der Vollmond ist's, der heut' begann.
Wild pocht mein Herz, die Unruh' wächst — Wohlan, wohlan, Ich will noch schlafen — schlafen!
(Er schläft ein. Die Musik schildert seinen Traum, in welchem die Erinnerung an ULANA mit dem unruhigen Wandertrieb des Zigeuners Kämpft. Gleichzeitig spielt sich am Himmel zwischen dem Gewölk und dem Mond ein Kampf ab, in welchem der Mond schliesslich Sieger bleibt. So oft der Mond hindurchleuchtet, wirft sich MANRU unruhig auf seinem Lager herum; wenn er verschwindet, scheint er sich zu beruhigen. Schliesslich, als die volle Mondesscheibe hervortritt, beginnt MANRU mit zugemachten Augen, wie von einer magnetischen Kraft emporgezogen, sich zu erhebem).

ZWEITE SCENE

MANRU. CHOR DER ZIGEUNER.
(Der CHOR ertönt zunächst hinter der Bühne und scheint immer näher zu kommen. — Die Musik spielt den Zigeunermarsch.)

CHOR DER ZIGEUNER: Lasst uns wallen!
Lasst uns wallen!

MANRU: (Schreitet mit ausgestreckten Händen, die Augen immer geschlossen, den Bergen zu.)

CHOR DER ZIGEUNER: Wie die Wellen wirbelnd wallen, Wie die Felsen widerhallen, Die Zigeunerlieder schallen!
(Der Mond wird von schwerem Gewölk verdeckt, man hört Windstösse wie vor einem herannahenden Gewitter. — MANRU strauchelt und sinkt ohnmächtig zu Boden.)

CHOR DER ZIGEUNERINNEN: In die Flammen starrt Unser Blick Und gewahrt Das Geschick!
(Auf den Gebirgspfaden werden Zigeunergruppen sichtbar, welche von verschiedenen Seiten herabsteigen. In jeder Gruppe Musikanten, hauptsächlich mit Geigen und Bassgeigen. Malerische Kostüme.)

CHOR DER ZIGEUNER: Wie Lawinen rollend fallen, Lasst uns wallen Von Ort zu Ort!

CHOR DER ZIGEUNER-MÄDCHEN: Wie die Flamme zehrt Unser Blick Und zerstört Manch' Geschick!
(Ein Theil der Zigeuner betritt schon die Bühne, jedoch noch entfernt VON MANRU.)

witched!
Alas!
I cannot think.
(His strength seems to desert him. He staggers and sinks down upon a rock).
No, no!
It is the moon now shining full!
How beats my heart!
My unrest grows!
It is well!
Let me slumber . . . slumber . . . slumber!
(He falls asleep. The music delineates his dream in which memories of ULANA struggle with the gypsy desire to wander. Simultaneously a combat seems to be taking place in the sky between the clouds and the moon in which the latter comes out victor. Whenever the moon shines through the clouds MANRU tosses restlessly in his sleep: when it disappears he becomes quiet. At last when the full disk of the moon is disclosed, MANRU, his eyes closed, begins to rise to his feet as if drawn by the power of a magnet.)

SCENE II

MANRU. CHORUS OF GYPSIES.
(The chorus is first heard behind the scenes and seems to approach nearer and nearer. The orchestra plays a gypsy march.)

CHORUS OF GYPSIES:
Onward, let us wander onward!

MANRU: (with arms extended and closed eyes walks toward the mountain.)

CHORUS OF GYPSIES: Like the restless billows curling, Gypsy songs now loud are skirling.
Hear the hills far echoes hurling—
(The moon is veiled by dark clouds and gusts of wind heard, presaging an approaching storm, MANRU falls to the ground.)

CHORUS OF GYPSIES: In the ruddy flame now we gaze, Reading fate in the blaze!
(March music in the course of which groups of gypsies appear descending the paths on either side of the stage landscape. In each group there are musicians, principally violin and bass players. Picturesque costumes.)

CHORUS OF GYPSIES: Like the landslip whirling downward!
Let us wander From place to place!

CHORUS OF GYPSY MAIDENS: Like the ruddy flame Blasts our gaze, Dealing fate Through the blaze!
(Some of the gypsies appear upon the scene but at some distance from MANRU.)

CHOR DER ZIGEUNER: Nur das Feuer, das wir schüren, Ist uns Heimath, Herd und Hort!

DRITTE SCENE

DIE VORIGEN. OROS, ASA, JAGU.
(Auf dem See erscheint eine rohgezimmerte Barke, auf welcher man ASA bemerkt, au seiner Gruppe von Zigeunerinnen königlich hervorragend, ferner OROS, JAGU und andere ältere Zigeuner. Einige tragen Fackeln, welche die Gruppe roth beleuchten, ASA zeichnet sich durch ein malerisches, reichlich mit Goldflitter behängtes Zigeuner-kostüm aus; ihre schwarzen Haare sind aufgelöst, um ihren Nacken schlingt sich ein langes rothes Seidentuch. OROS ist durch sein Kostüm und einen hohen Beilstock, auf den er sich stützt, als der Stammesfürst gekennzeichnet.)

CHOR DER ZIGEUNER: Lasst uns wallen!
Lasst uns wallen!

CHOR DER ZIGEUNER-MÄDCHEN: Zu verführen, zu gefallen —

ALLE: Wallen wir von Ort zu Ort!
(Die vom Gebirge herabkommenden Zigeunermädchen stossen auf den am Boden liegenden MANRU. Gleichzeitig gelangt die Barks an's Ufer und ASA betritt als Erste den Boden.)

ZIGEUNERMÄDCHEN: Ach!

ASA: Was giebt's denn?

OROS: Ein Mann liegt da!

CHOR: Ein Mann liegt da!

ASA: Wer ist's?

CHOR: Ein Erumanel.

ASA: Es ist Manru!

ASA: Wusst' ich's nicht?
Mit Zaubermacht Führt's in unsere Mitte ihn!
(MANRU erwacht und stützt sich mühsam auf den Ellenbogen. Der Mond scheint wieder mit voller Klarheit).

ASA: Ich hab' so stark an ihn gedacht Und zog ihn zu mir hin!

MANRU: Ein Traum war's . . . .
Sagt, wo bin ich?

ASA: Unter Freunden! Nun—(reiht ihm die Hand und zieht ihn empor.)
—steh' auf!
Bleib bei uns!

OROS: (vortrentend).
Nein, nie! Abtrünnig
Ward er seiner Väter Herd!

CHORUS OF GYPSIES: By the flames that we replenish Hearth and homes our foes may trace!

SCENE III

The same. OROS. ASA. JAGU.
(A rude boat appears upon the lake, in which ASA is seen with queenly prominence, among a group of gypsy women; also OROS, JAGU and other elderly gypsies. A few carry torches which throw a red glow on the group. ASA is distinguished by a picturesque gypsy costume, richly bedecked with gilt spangles. Her black hair hangs loose and a red kerchief is knotted about her neck. OROS is recognized as the chief of the tribe by his costume and the staff upon which he leans.)

CHORUS OF GYPSIES: Let us wander, let us wander!

CHORUS OF GYPSY MAIDENS: While we ponder new seductions —

ALL: Let us roam from place to place!
(The gypsy women coming down from the mountain find MANRU lying on the ground. At the same moment the boat lands and ASA, first of the boat's company, steps ashore.)

A GYPSY MAIDEN: Ah!

ASA: Why are you staying?

OROS: A man lies here!

CHORUS: A man lies here!

ASA: Who is it?

CHORUS: It is a Romany.

ASA: It is Manru!

ASA: Well I knew!
It was magic's thrill Led him to his kindred here.
(MANRU revives and raises himself with an effort to his elbows. This moon shines in all its brightness.)
It was my own resistless will Compelled him to appear!

MANRU: What ails me?
Where am I?

ASA: Among your kindred!
(She offers her hand to him.)
Now arise; stay with us.

OROS: No, no! He is a traitor A renegrade to us!

CHOR: Nein, nie! Abtrünnig Ward er seiner Väter Herd!	CHORUS: No, no! He is a traitor A renegrade to us!
OROS: Du hast and're Brüder, Unser Zelt ist Dir verwehrt!	OROS: You have other kinsfolk — You must not invade our tents!
ASA: Oros! Nimm ihn auf! Ich will es!	ASA: Oros! Take him back; for my sake!
OROS: Nein, nie, nie! Wer den eig'nen Stamm vergisst, Wem das Blut nicht heilig ist, Das in seinen Adern fliesst— Sei verflucht!	OROS: No, no, no! Who deserts his father's race Seeks the black blood to debase, Which through his own veins chases, He be accurst!
	CHORUS: Accurst! Accurst! Accurst! ASA: No! Oh no!
CHOR: Verflucht! Verflucht! Verflucht!	OROS: He who does not hate our foes, In his heart our tribe enclose, He who gypsying foregoes, — He be accurst!
ASA: Nein! O nein!	ASA: No, oh, no!
OROS: Wessen Herz nicht uns umfasst, Wer nicht uns're Feinde hasst, Wem das Wandern ward zur Last— Sei verflucht!	CHORUS: Accurst!
CHOR: Verflucht! Verflucht! Verflucht!	OROS: Who prefers a steadfast roof, Holds not from the whites aloof, Mingles with the Gentile woof — He be accurst!
ASA: Nein! O nein!	CHORUS: Accurst! Accurst! Accurst!
OROS: Wer ein festes Dach gewählt, Einer Fremden sich vermählt, Wer sich zu den Weissen zählt— Sei verflucht!	ASA: No, oh, no!
CHOR: Wer der Fremden sich vermählt, Sei verflucht, verflucht, verflucht!	CHORUS: He who does not hate our foes, etc.
ASA: (Manru umklammernd). Oros! Nimm Dein Wort zurück!	ASA: Oros, your harsh words withdraw.
OROS: Bei Mroden-Oro! Es bleibt dabei!	OROS: By Mro-den-Oro, that word is law!
CHOR: Es bleibt dabei!	CHORUS: His word is law!
ASA: (sich von MANRU entfernend, spöttisch). Nun wohl, wie Du willst!	ASA: (leaving MANRU, mockingly). It is well! As you please!
CHOR: Es bleibt dabei!	CHORUS: His word is law!
ASA: Es sei! Ha, ha, es sei!	ASA: It is well! Ha, ha! It is well!
CHOR: Was soll's? Welcher Blick?	CHORUS: What means she? Strange her glance!
ASA: Dann hat er Glück —	ASA: Twice happy he —
CHOR: Was sinnt sie? Welcher Blick?	CHORUS: What means she? Strange her glance!
ASA: Ihm bleibt der Weg zu meinem Herzen frei! (Nähert sich wieder MANRU und lehnt sich zärtlich an ihn an).	ASA: For him the pathway to my heart is free! (Approaches Manru and leans against him tenderly.)
OROS: (reisst sie leidenschaftlich zurück). Zurück! Du wirst ihn nie mehr schauen!	OROS: (lifting his staff). Fall back! You must see him nevermore!
ASA: (lacht ihm spöttisch in's Gesicht). Ich frag' Dich viel! Ich sehe, wen ich will! (Schmiegt sich noch zärtlicher an MANRU.)	ASA: A vain command! I see whomever I please!
OROS: (erhebt drohend seinen Beilstock). Zurück, befehl' ich Zu der Frauen!	OROS: Away! Back to the women! Dread my anger!
CHOR: Zurück! Zurück!
MANRU: (entwindet sich ASA und erfasst den erhobenen Arm OROS'). Sei ruhig, Oros! Ich kann nicht zieh'n! Weh mir, ich bin nicht mehr allein! Vergeblich wäre es zu flieh'n Mein Herz — ist nicht mehr mein!	MANRU: (leaving ASA and grasping the arm of OROS.) Be quiet! Oros! I cannot go! Alas! I am no longer free. It is meet that you should know from me, No more, no more I'll roam with you!
ASA: Ha, ha!	ASA: Ha, ha, ha!
OROS: (Zu ASA). Du hörst es, eitles Ding! Er liebt sie! Süss sind ihm die Ketten! Versuch's — ich gönn's Dir — ihn zu retten: Manru folgt nicht Deinem Wink!	OROS: Do you mark him, vain coquette? He loves her — loves the chains that bind him! Now try; — you have my leave; perhaps you can blind him! Manru will not follow you!
ASA: (Zu MANRU). Du siehst, er höhnt!	ASA: You see — he taunts!
OROS: (Zum CHOR). Bleibt eine Weil' an diesem Ort, Wir zieh'n gleich weiter fort!	OROS: (turning to the CHORUS.) A moment more we'll tarry here, Then onward we will fare! (The CHORUS forms a group in the right background. A campfire is lighted. Part of the CHORUS seems to comply unwillingly.)
CHOR: (zieht sich rechts in den Hintergrund zurück; während die Einen ein Feuer anrichten und sich zu lagern beginnen, murmeln die Anderen unwillig). Lasst uns wallen! Lasst uns wallen!	CHORUS: Onward, onward, let us wander!

VIERTE SCENE

SCENE IV

OROS, JAGU und der CHOR rechts im Hintergrunde, um das Lagerfeuer geschaart, über welchem Kessel hängen. MANRU und ASA vorne, zunächst rechts; hierauf gehen sie nach links hinüber.	(OROS, JAGU and CHORUS, in the right background, gathered around the campfire over which kettles are hanging. MANRU and ASA in the foreground; first right, then they cross over to the left.)
ASA: (mit Koketterie zu MANRU). Hast Dich nach uns, nach mir gesehnt?	ASA: (coquettishly to MANRU). Didst you feel no longing for us? (Seeing that MANRU stands with sunken head). Can you be leal to others?
CHOR: Lasst uns wallen! Lasst uns wallen! (Da sie MANRU mit gesenktem Kopfe dastehen sieht.) ASA: Oder — hast Du Dich gewöhnt?
MANRU: Asa!	MANRU: Asa!
ASA (berührt ihn spöttisch an der Wange). O nein! Mich täuschest Du doch nicht! Glaubst Du denn, dass Dein Herz noch brennt?	ASA: (touching his cheek mockingly). Oh, no! My trust you'll not efface! Do you think you still have love in store?

Zu lang', mein Freund, schon sah'st Du ihr Gesicht — Es liebt der Mensch — was er nicht kennt!	Too long, my friend, you have looked in her face — It is the unknown that men adore!
MANRU: Und doch — und doch!'s giebt eine Kraft, Die an die Hütte bindet. . . Fest sind die Bande, die sie schafft, Dass Niemand sich entwindet!	MANRU: And yet there is a mystic force Which with our homes entwines us; Strong are the fetters it creates, And hopelessly it binds us!
ASA: (sich von Manru entfernend). Den Thoren bindet nicht der Strick — Ihn hält sein eig'ner Wille . . . Die Laune zahlt er mit dem Glück, Und stirbt — in aller Stille!	ASA: (turning away). Such fetters do not bind the fool; His will's his only jailer; He yields enjoyment for a whim, And death's at last his bailor!
MANRU: (folgt ihr und will ihre Hand fassen, die ihm ASA entzieht). Ach ja! Dir will ich es gesteh'n: Wer einmal sich hat festgebannt, Hat keine Freude mehr geseh'n, Hat lebend schon den Tod erkannt! Gleich schau'n ihm alle Stunden aus. Ein lahm' Gespann, so schleppen sich die Tage, Was früher Lust, wird Pein und Plage, Zum Sarg, zum Grab wird ihm sein eigen Haus — Niemand begreift ihn, ach, und seine Klage!	MANRU: (following her and seeking to grasp the hand which she withdraws). Ah, yes! I'll confess all to you Who his freedom himself destroys Has seen the last of happiness And, living, still has tasted death! The passing hours are one to him, Decrepit, lame, the days their lengths unwinding. Change what were joys to plagues and torments grinding! His house — a grave which even he dares not shun; None understands him — none his plaint is minding!
ASA: (nähert sich stürmisch MANRU, umfasst ihn und presst ihn an sich). So komm mit uns, die wir Dich lieben! So komm mit mir, die Dich versteht! Manru! Komm, ach komm mit mir!	ASA: (throwing her arms impetuously around MANRU.) Then come with us who love you truly; Then come with me who knows your heart!
MANRU: (nach heftigem Kampfe, indem er sich losmacht). O lass mich, lass mich! Ach, ich bin verloren, Da ich nicht mehr zu Euch gehör'! (Zur Seite, Für sich.) Und Jene, der ich Treu' geschworen, Ach, dieses Weib — lieb' ich nicht mehr! Weh mir, ach, weh!	MANRU: (freeing himself, after a struggle). Oh, spare me! Spare! My heart is blighted, Since I no more may with you dwell; Against her to whom my faith is plighted, Against her even must my heart rebel! Woe's me!
ASA: (hat sich von ihm abgekehrt und lässt sich links auf dem Steinblock nieder, wo sie vom Mondlicht hell beleuchtet wird. Sie singt, wie für sich): Seltsam ist das Zigeunerkind, Mutter war ihm die Lagerflamme, Vater war ihm der rauhe Wind Und der Thau war seine Amme . . . Tra, la, la, la, la, la! (Sie schwingt das Tamburin.)	ASA: (has turned away and seated herself on the rocky platform, where the moonlight falls full upon her. She sings as if to herself). Nature's waif is the gypsy child! Born is he of the blazing fire, Fathered he by the whirlwind, And the dew gives him his nurture. (Striking her tambourine.) Tra la la!
CHOR: Tra, la, la, la, la, la . . . Lasst uns wallen von Ort zu Ort.	CHORUS: (moving softly about the camp). Onward, onward let us wander, From place to place.
ASA: Irrend über Berg und Thal, Träumt's von künft'ger Liebesqual, Heiss wie die Flamme, rasend wie der Wind, Süss wie der Thau, der vom Himmel rinnt . . . Tra, la, la, la, la, la! (Tamburin.)	ASA: Wandering over hill and dale, Early he dreams of love's travail. Hot as the campfire, Furious as the wind, Sweet as the dew In the buds enshrined!
CHOR: Tra, la, la, la, la, la! (Die ZIGEUNERMÄDCHEN erheben sich, indem sie in das Lied ASA's einstimmen.)	CHORUS: Let us wander!
ASA: Ahnt es wohl, wie Lieb' und Leben Beim Zigeuner rasch Verrinnt, Verraucht wie die Flamme, verhaucht wie der Thau, Verweht in's Leere wie der Wind . . . Tra, la, la, la, la, la! (Tamburin.)	ASA: Haunted he by dread forebodings, How both life and love depart. Consumed like the kindling Dispelled like the dew, Wafted like breezes, Out of view! (Again shaking her tambourine). Tra la la! Out of view! (At the last words of ASA the CHORUS joins in the song).
CHOR: Tra, la, la, la, la, la . . . (Der ganze CHOR greift ASA's Lied auf.)	CHORUS: Tra la la!
MANRU: (für sich, ergriffen). Unser Lied! Die Jugendjahre Seh'ich an mir vorüberzieh'n . . . Asa seh' ich vor mir blüh'n Unser Feuer seh' ich glüh'n! Ach! (Zu ASA.) Brecht auf!	MANRU: It is our song! The days of childhood, Like pictures rise before my gaze; Asa dancing in the wildwood And the campfire's ruddy blaze. Away!
ASA: Tra, la, la, la, la, la! (ASA hat sich erhoben; sie bewegt Körper und Arme nach art einer Tänzerin, indem sie ihr Seidentuch entrollt; dabei lächelt sie MANRU verlockend an.)	ASA: (smiling alluringly on MANRU and swaying like a dancer). Tra la la!
MANRU: Lass ab, lass ab! O hör mein Fleh'n! Ich fühl's, ich könnt nicht widersteh'n — (ASA schüttelt verneinend den Kopf, ihre Bewegungen werden zum feurigen Tanz; die Zigeunermädchen betheiligen sich an dem Tanz. Endlich nähert sich ASA MANRU, umschlingt ihn leidenschaftlich und zieht ihn nach rechts.)	MANRU: Desist, desist, I implore you! Have done and do not tempt me more! (ASA shakes her tambourine, and her movements develop into a wild dance in which the other maidens join. Finally she approaches MANRU, throws her arms about him passionately, and draws him off toward the right).

FUNFTE SCENE

SCENE V

Die VORIGEN. (MANRU und ASA weider rechts mit den Uebrigen).	THE SAME. MANRU and ASA again at the right with the others.
OROS: (nähert sich zornig). Halt ein! Was soll das Treiben?	OROS: (approaching, angrily). Enough! I'm burning with rage! (ASA about to lead MANRU triumphantly to the camp).
ASA: (indem sie MANRU triumphirend dem Zigeunerlager zuführen will). Manru will mit uns bleiben! (Lebhafte Bewegung im Zigeunerlager).
CHOR: Manru will bleiben?	CHORUS: Manru returning?
OROS: (reisst ASA von MANRU weg). Lass ab von ihn! (Zu MANRU.) Verräther, fort!	OROS: Away from him! You traitor, away!
ASA: O lass ihn mir!	ASA: He goes with me!
OROS: Ich änd're nie mein Wort!	OROS: I'll hear of no defense!
CHOR: (Manner). Verräther, fort! Gehorcht! Gehorchet Oros' Wort!	CHORUS OF MEN: You traitor away! Endeavor no defense.

OROS: Ein Ende macht dem frechen Spiel! Er ist in Acht — sein Urtheil fiel!	OROS: No more I'll hear this idle jest — He is proscribed . . the die is cast!
CHOR: Sein Urtheil fiel! Sein Urtheil Fiel!	CHORUS: The die is cast! The die is cast!
OROS: Die Frist, die ich vergönnt, verrann; Lass ab von ihm — er ist in Bann!	OROS: The respite that I gave is past — Away from him, the accurst outcast!
CHOR: (Männer). Er ist in Bann!
ASA: (stellt sich OROS kühn entgegen). Ich liebe ihn! Was gilt nun Dein Verbot?	ASA: (boldly facing OROS). My heart is his, what care I for your ban See!
OROS: Du liebst ihn?	OROS: You love him?
ASA: Manru's Nacken umschlingend). Sieh!	ASA: (throwing her arms about MANRU'S neck). See!
OROS: Das wagst Du mir zu sagen?	OROS: And you dare confess it to me?
ASA: Mein Herz hat Oros nicht zu fragen!	ASA: I will express it to all the world!
OROS: Lass ab von ihm! (Stürzt auf ASA los.)	OROS: Away from him!
CHOR: Lass ab von ihm!	CHORUS: (rushing towards ASA). Away from him!
OROS: Lass ab, sonst ist's Dein Tod! (Er schwingt den Beilstock gegen ASA.)	OROS: Away! It will be your death! (He raises his staff as if to strike ASA).
JAGU: (hält OROS am Arme zurück). Halt! (OROS von JAGU und anderen Zigeunern an beiden Armen festgehalten, steht keuchend da).	JAGU: Hold! (JAGU and other Gypsies grasp OROS and hold him by the arms while he struggles and gasps). She loves the fellow — it is her right; No jealousy should that excite.
JAGU: Sie liebt den Jungen —'s ist ihr Recht; Und Eifersucht steht Alten schlecht!
CHOR: (Frauen). 's ist Eifersucht! 's ist Eifersucht! Der Alte! Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!	CHORUS OF WOMEN: It is jealousy! Ha, ha!
OROS: Habt Ihr vergessen, was er that? Wer Manru liebt, der übt Verrath!	OROS: Have you forgotten his offense? Beware the fearful consequence!
CHOR: (Manner). So ist's! So ist's!	CHORUS OF MEN: Beware! Beware! Ah weak device!
ASA: Welch' plumpe List!
OROS: Ihr müsset auseinandergehn.	OROS: You shall never be united!
ASA: Das woll'n wir seh'n!	ASA: That we shall see!
CHOR: (Männer). Ihr müsst! Ihr müsst!	CHORUS OF MEN: Respect his word!
OROS: Ihr müsst Euch meinem Urtheil beugen! Ihr müsst dem Fürstenstab Euch neigen!	OROS: My just decree must be respected! Obey the chief whom you've elected!
ASA: Das wird sich zeigen!	ASA: That we shall see!
CHOR: (Männer). Ihr müsst! Ihr müsst!	CHORUS OF MEN: Respect his word!
CHOR: (Frauen). Schweigen! Schweigen!	CHORUS OF WOMEN: Silence! Silence.
JAGU: Hört mich! Hört mich!	JAGU: Hear me! Hear me!
CHOR: Hört Jagu, Jagu!	CHORUS: Hear Jagu! Hear Jagu!
JAGU: Wollt Ihr nicht lieber mild Euch zeigen?	JAGU: Should he not be protected by you?
CHOR: Nein, nein!	CHORUS: No, no!
JAGU: Will Manru wieder unser sein — 's ist uns're Pflicht, ihm zu verzeih'n! (JAGU's Worte scheinen auf die Versammelten Eindruck zu machen.)	JAGU: Should Manru now rejoin our band, Forgiveness is the law's command! (JAGU'S words seem to make an impression on the Gypsies).
CHOR: (Frauen). Verzeih'n! Verzeih'n!	CHORUS OF WOMEN: Forgive! Forgive!
OROS: Das duld ich nicht!	OROS: I'll not endure it!
CHOR: (Männer). 's ist uns're Pflicht!	CHORUS OF MEN: It is law's command!
JAGU: Der Jugend kann es vergeben —	JAGU: With striplings we have patience ever —
CHOR: (Männer). 's ist wahr! 's ist wahr!	CHORUS OF MEN: It is true!
JAGU: Man straft ja nicht für's ganze Leben!	JAGU: Should punishment then last forever?
CHOR: (Männer). 's ist wahr! 's ist wahr!	CHORUS OF MEN: No, no!
JAGU: Wozu kann solche Strenge führen?	JAGU: If harsh, vengeful thoughts we smother, We shall regain a friend and brother.
CHOR: (Männer). Ganz recht!	CHORUR: It is true.
JAGU: Wir wollen Manru nicht verlieren!	JAGU: A Romany should not be degraded. He is — our kinsman!
CHOR: (Männer und Frauen). Nein, nein!	CHORUS: Our kinsman!
JAGU: Wir woll'n nicht dass er uns verfalle! Nicht wahr? Wir Alle?
CHOR und ASA: Alle! Alle!
OROS: Schweig', alter Thor! Ich duld'es nicht! Aufrührer Ihr! Thut Eure Pflicht! Lasst nicht gleich Hammeln Euch Führen! Ich lehr' Dich, Aufruhr hier zu schüren! Hier gilt nur Ein's — des Fürsten Wort! Brecht auf! — (Zu MANRU). Und Du Verräther, fort!	OROS: Cease, mumbling fool! Cease and obey! Rebellious crew, no more delay. Act not like sheep without reason. (To JAGU). I'll teach you how to foment treason! The chief alone may dispense laws. Break camp! And you, you traitor, away!
ASA: Tra, la, la, la, la, la! Ich lache Dein! Ich Lach'!
OROS: Schamloses Weib Du!
CHOR: Er geht! Er geht mit uns!	ASA: Tra la, la!
OROS: (Zu ASA). Oh! Verschlänge Dich die Erde!
CHOR: (Zu MANRU). Komm mit! Komm mit! (Zu OROS). Wir schützen ihn!

OROS: Ihr Frechen, schweigt!	OROS: You shameless creature! If only the earth would swallow you!
CHOR: Manru! Manru! Komm mit uns!	CHORUS: He goes with us. Come, come. We'll hold you safe. Tra la, la!
OROS: Meuterer! — So seht! (Er wirft seinen Stab zu Boden und wendet sich zum Weggehen.) (OROS Zu ASA und MANRU im Abgehen). Doch fürchtet meine Rache! (OROS ab.)	OROS: You babblers, peace! Traitors, all! Behold! (He throws down his staff of office). But dread my direful vegeance. (To ASA). (He haughtily leaves the scene)
CHOR: Er geht! Er geht! Er geht mit uns! (CHOR ein Theil bestürzt, der andere spöttisch), Er geht! Er geht! — Bleib,' Oros! Bleib'! Was liegt daran! Es is gethan! Das ist kein Mann! Ein launisch Weib!	CHORUS: He goes! He goes! Stay, Oros, stay! (Some in terror others in mockery). The deed is done; Now all is one.

SECHSTE SCENE

SCENE VI

Die VORIGEN ohne OROS.	(THE SAME without OROS).
CHOR: (verschiedene Stimmen). — Ja, ja, das ist kein Mann! — 'st gut gethan! — Bleib', Oros, Bleib'! — Sind wir verkauft? — Ihm nach! Lauft Lauft! — Nein! Nein! — Ruft ihn zurück! — Genug der Pein! — Ruft ihn zurück! — Dass er auf's Neue uns bedrückt? Lasst sein! Lasst sein! — 's war ein Tyrann! — Vorbei ist seine Zeit! — Vorbei, vorbei Die Sklaverei! — Wir sind befreit!	CHORUS: He is no man! What boots his ban? A silly fool— Why mind his rule? Hurry! Call him back! Are we his pack! We spurn his words! Bid him return? That he may again oppress us? We'll acquiesce no more! His time is past; have done! Again we're free! Our freedom we have won! (A few voices). But who shall now be our leader?
EINIGE STIMMEN: Doch wer wird unser Führer sein?
CHOR: 's ist wahr! Wer wird der Führer sein? Wer wird es sein?	CHORUS: There! Who shall now our chieftain be? Who shall it be?
ASA und JAGU: Manru!	ASA AND JAGU: Manru!
MANRU: Nein, nein!	MANRU: No, no!
CHOR: Manru!	CHORUS: Manru!
MANRU: Nein! Den Führer wählt aus Eurer Mitte!	MANRU: No! For chieftain choose one of your number.
ASA : Du musst es sein!	ASA: You must consent.
CHOR: Du musst! Du musst! So will's die Sitte!	CHORUS: You must consent; it is our custom.
MANRU: Nein, überlasst mich dem Geschick!	MANRU: Pray you leave me to my fate.
ASA: Du willst mich flieh'n?	ASA: Do you wish to flee?
MANRU: Nicht diesen Blick!	MANRU: My grief abate!
ASA: Er geht mit uns! Ihn traf die Wahl! Auf, Geigen, Spielt! Erkling', Cymbal! (Auf ASA'S Zeichen treten die Musikanten zusammen; sie spielen unter JAGU'S Leitung, der das Geigensolo ausführt.)	ASA: He'll go with us; he is our choice! Plays, fiddles, play; and all rejoice. (The musicians come together. JAGU plays the solo).
ASA: Hör', Manru! Höre, ach, das Spiel!	ASA: Listen, Manru. Do you hear the strain?
CHOR: Hat er kein Herz mehr, kein Gefühl? Bist Du Erumanel?	CHORUS: Is he quite heartless,—dull his brain? (To MANRU). Are you—Romanychal?
MANRU: Ach ja! mir schmilzt das Herz, hör' ich die Geigen!	MANRU: Ah, yes! How my heart leaps, I hear the viol!
ASA: Nicht wahr?	ASA: It is true!
MANRU: Ach, lasst sie schweigen!	MANRU: Command their silence!
ASA: Es jauchzt, es klagt, es schluchzt und lacht!	ASA: They laugh, complain,— They sigh, exclaim!
MANRU: O lasst sie schweigen! Ich darf es nicht! Ich kann es nicht!	MANRU: Command their silence! I dare not hear! I must not hear!
CHOR: Schaut, schaut! Wie bleich wird sein Gesicht!	CHORUS: See, see! His face grows white with fear!
MANRU: Wie Wein ist's, der zu Kopfe stieg!	MANRU: I'm reeling! Earth holds me no more! I'm borne on wings — I soar aloft!
CHOR: Seht, ihn ergreift's mit Zaubermacht! (CHOR verschiedene Stimmen). — Schaut, schaut! — Nein, hört! — Seht Jagu! — Wie verklärt! (Auf MANRU deutend.) — Er träumt! Er träumt! Nun nicht gesäumt! (MANRU immer mehr hingerissen). Wie Schwingen hebt's! . . . Mir ist's ich flieg'!	CHORUS: See! He is held by magic's thrall! Transformed he dreams. — Haste with our schemes.
ASA: Es ist mein Sieg!	ASA: At last he's mine!
CHOR: (nähert sich MANRU und umringt ihn, mit ausgestreckten Händen). Komm mit uns! Die Hand gegeben! Komm, verleugne nicht Dein Blut! Sieh, Dir winkt ein neues Leben! Ach Komm mit uns in Freud' und Leiden, Komm, alter Freund! In Dämmerung, in Morgenroth, Ach, komm mit uns! Durch blaue Berge, grüne Haiden! Theil' uns're Lust und uns're Noth, Theil mit uns Lust und Noth! Ach komm, ach komm mit Deinen Brüdern! Du musst der Liebe Gluth erwidern!	CHORUS: (the gypsies surround MANRU and hold out their hands). Come with us! Your hand as token; Come and do not shame your blood Life anew for you bespoken. Come, old-time friend, come with your kinsmen. Share our joy, share our sorrow, At dawn of morn, at eventide, Over hill and dale we'll roam tomorrow; Ah, come with us abide with us! You must give answer to love's sweet call! Courage, Manru, come!
MANRU: (Zu ASA). Dein bin ich! Ja, nimm mich hin!	MANRU: (ecstatically, to ASA). Ah I am yours, take my soul! Sweet, to you I yield control. Take me from here; I will be free, Still am I a Romany!
CHOR: Vorwärts, Manru, Muth!	CHORUS: Come, Manru, come!

MANRU: Führ' mich, holde Zauberin!
Nehmt mich hin mit Leib und Seel'!
Ja, ich bleib' Erumanel!

CHOR: Muth, Manru, Muth!

MANRU: Ja, ich fühl' es wieder wallen, Manru's altes, tolles Blut!
Mag die Welt in trümmer fallen,
Lösch' ich meines Herzens Gluth:
Dein bin jeh, Dein!

CHOR: Führt uns zu Zwei'n!

ASA. JAGU: Vergessen ist die Bauernmagd!

CHOR: Heil dem Fürsten!
Heil!

ASA: Hinweg, es tagt!

MANRU: (sich abwendend). Mein Weib!
Mein Kind!
(Es beginnt zu dämmern.)

CHOR: (Männer). Es tagt, es tagt!

MANRU: (sich von den Uebrigen etwas abwendend, für sich). Gott weiss, es ist nicht meine Schuld!
Ich fühlte Liebe, fühlte Geduld —
Ulana, War ihr von ganzem Herzen gut . . . .
Es täuschte mich mein eigen Blut!

CHOR: Hinweg, es tagt!

MANRU: Willst Du von mir Leib' und Treue, Nimm das Aug' mir, das stets neue Lockende Gestalten sieht!

CHOR: Es tagt, es tagt!

MANRU: Willst Du, dass ich bei Dir bleibe, Reiss' das Herz mir aus dem Leibe, Das zur Andern mich zieht!

CHOR: Hinweg!
Es tagt!
Es tagt!
Es tagt!

MANRU: (mit Entschlossenheit).
Asa!
Brüder!
Euch gehör ich an!
Die Freiheit winkt, die Kette springt, Ich geh' mit Euch, ein freier Mann!

CHOR: Hinweg mit aller Sklaverei!
Die Welt ist unser, denn nur wir sind frei!
(Während der Zigeunermarsch mächtig erklingt, eilen MANRU und ASA, einander umschlingend, den Bergen zu, ihnen folgt der CHOR.)

SIEBENTE SCENE

UROK. ULANA.

MANRU: Ah!
Anew my blood is gushing, Manru's fiery, fuming blood; Though it is to destruction rushing, I will float on passion's flood!
I am yours, Yours!

ASA: You are mine, mine!

CHORUS: Yes; lead our band!

ASA. JAGU: Forgotten is the peasant maid!

CHORUS: Hail to our chieftain!
Hail!

ASA: Away!
Day dawns!

MANRU: (turning away). My wife!
My child!
(Morning breaks).

CHOURUS OF MEN: Day dawns!
Day dawns!

MANRU: (turned from the others. Aside). As Heaven knows, I meant no wrong.
My love was ardent, my patience long; My heart was yours in every mood, I was deceived by my own blood!

CHORUS: Away!
Day dawns!

MANRU: You ask of me faithful duty Take away these eyes, which cannot see beauty without delight!

CHORUS: Day dawns!
Day dawns!

MANRU: Would you have me ever beside you, Take my heart; whatever betide me It takes its flight to others!

ASA: Away!
Day dawns!

MANRU: Asa!
Kinsmen!
I belong to you!
It is Freedom's call!
My fetters fall!
I'll rove with you!
No more a slave!

CHORUS: No more a slave!
Away with bonds and slavery!
The world's our chattel, we alone are free!
(While the gypsy march resounds mightily MANRU and ASA, with their arms about each other, hurry towar the mountains followed by the CHORUS).

SCENE VII

UROK. ULANA.

ULANA: (hinter der Bühne). Manru!
Wo bist Du?
Manru!
Bist Du dort?
Manru!
Manru!
(Auf der Bühne.)
O Jesus, Maria!
Er ist fort!

UROK: Der Höllensohn!

ULANA: Mein Gott!
Mein Gott!

UROK: Auf und davon!

ULANA: (wiederholt wie bewusstlos): Mein Gott . . . .
Mein Gott . . . .

UROK: Da hast Du Deiner Leibe Lohn!

ULANA: (die Hände zum Himmel emporhebend). Der Du im Himmel thronst, Erbarm' Dich meiner in dieser Noth, Allmächt'ger Gott!

UROK: Du Aermste!
Dir hilft kein Gott!

ULANA: Ich hab' ihn geliebt! —
So geliebt!
Ich hab' ihm getraut! — So getraut!

UROK: Zigeunerbraut!

ULANA: (sich emporraffend, dem Gebirge zueilend). Manru!
Manru!
(In den Vordergrund zurückkehrend, mit rührender Klage.)
Verführt, berückt, Von den Meinen entrückt, bedrückt in Aengsten und Nöthen; Und nun geknickt, Verlassen, zerpflückt — Zertreten, zertreten, zertreten!
(Sie fasst den Kopf mit beiden Händen; ihr Schmerz scheint an Wahnsinn zu grenzen.)

UROK: Ulana!

ULANA: Manru!
Manru!
Und bist Du nicht taub und blind,
So hör:
Unser Kind!
Unser Kind!

UROK: Du sprichst in den Wind.

ULANA: So lauf'!
So lauf' und hol' ihn ein!

UROK: Gieb's auf!

ULANA: Lauf'!
Rett' uns Beibe!
Lauf'!

UROK: Ich thu's, ich hol' ihn Dir!
(Steigt, sichtbar unwillig, den Bergpfad empor,)

ULANA: (behind the scenes). Manru, where are you?
Manru are you here?
Manru!
Manru!
(she enters).
O holy virgin!
He is gone!

UROK: The son of hell!

ULANA: (breaking down). My God
My God!

UROK: Up and away!
It is thus he repays your love

ULANA: (lifting her hands toward heaven). O you, who rule on high!
Have pity on me
Oh be near, Almighty God!

UROK: You poor one!
He'll give no help!

ULANA: I gave him my love — all my love!
I gave my trust — all my trust!

UROK: To gypsy lust!

ULANA: (summoning all her strength and walking toward the mountain).
Oh, Manru! Manru! Manru! (returning to the foreground; pathetically).
Ensnared, deceived, Of my loved ones bereaved — Overwelmed with sorrow and anguish!
Cast aside, rejected and scorned — Deserted!
Deserted!
Deserted!
(She clasps her head with her hands and seems maddened with grief).

UROK: Ulana!

ULANA: (turning again to the mountains). Manru you are not beguiled of sense, O hear, hear, hear our child!

UROK: Your ravings are wild!

ULANA: Then haste, oh, haste, overtake my love!

UROK: It is vain!

ULANA: Haste, be our savior, haste, oh, haste!

UROK: (ascends the path with obvious unwillingness). I hasten!
I hasten!

ULANA: Manru!
Ach steh'!
Hörst du nicht, wie dein Weib dich fleht?
Manru!
Hör' mich!
Manru!

ULANA: Manru, ah stay!
Do you hear
Hear your wife implore!

UROK: (von den Bergen herab).
Mir scheint es ist zu spät!
(Er verschwindet an einer Biegung des Pfades.)

UROKD (high up in the mountain). Too late!
He's here no more!

ACHTE SCENE

SCENE VIII

ULANA: Zu spät....
Zu spät!
Mein Gott — verzeih' ihm seine Sünde!
Mein Gott — entgilt es nicht dem Kinde!
(Sie wankt dem See zu.)
Mein Gott.... o wie mein Kopf sich dreht Mein Gott.... verlassen....
verschmäht.... Ah!
(Sie stürzt in den See.)

ULANA: Too late!
Too late!
O God, forgive him his transgression.
My child I leave in your possession.
My God!
My brain is in a whirl!
My God!
Deserted! (In utter despair).
Disdained!
Ah!
(She throws herself into the lake).

NEUNTE SCENE

SCENE IX

UROK: (wieder auftretend). Halt!
Halt!
Was thust Du, Ulana?
Steh! —
Es ist aus!...
Verdammter!
Mörder!
Bösewicht!
Du jubelst?
Frohlockst? —
Und sie hier?
(Zeigt auf den See.)
Dich pack' ich, Du entgehst mir nicht!
Ulana — wart, ich hol' ihn Dir!
(Von einem plötzlichen Entschluss hingerissen sucht UROK den Felsblock zur Rechten zu erklimmen. Bei der ersten Stufe strauchelt er, stürzt zu Boden, erhebt sich aber sofort wieder und gewinnt unter mühsamem Klettern die Höhe des Bergpfades, wo er sich hinter einem Felsblock verbirgt. Oben auf dem Berg-pfade erscheinen die abziehenden Zigeuner. MANRU and ASA erscheinen, sich umschlungen haltend. Als sie am vordersten Punkte des Pfades angelangt sind, springt UROK plözlich hervor, wirft sich auf MANRU und stürzt ihn, nach kurzem Kampfe, den Abhang hinunter.)

UROK: Hold!
Hold!
What have you done Ulana!
Hold! Ah!
Too late!
Accursed hellhound!
Murderer!
Do you rejoice?
Exult?
And she there?
(Pointing to the lake).
I'll have you!
Me, you'll not escape!
Ulana, wait!
I'll fetch him for you
(Seized with a sudden determination UROK tries to climb the rocky heights to the right. At the first acclivity he stumbles and falls to the ground but recovers himself at once and by laborious climbing reaches the mountain path where he conceals himself behind a rock. The departing gypsies are seen on the path above. MANRU and ASA appear, their arms about each others waists. As they reach a point in the immediate foreground UROK leaps from his hiding place, throws himself on MANRU, and after a short struggle hurls him into the abyss).

UROK: Da hast du ihn!
(ASA sinkt mit einem lauten Schrei zu Boden Der Vorhang fällt schnell.)

UROK: There you have him! (ASA sinks to the ground with a loud cry. The curtain falls quickly).

ENDE DES WERKES.

END OF THE OPERA.

Mona (1912)

MUSIC BY HORATIO PARKER ■ POEM BY BRIAN HOOKER

This three-act opera, set to a libretto by Brian Hooker, premiered at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York in 1912. The story opens on a midsummer morning. At Arth's hut, Enya is doing her normal household chores as Nial lies next to the hearth. Mona and Gwynn stand nearby—he is begging her to marry him as she promised, but she tells him that while he was away she has been plotting to help the people overthrow the Romans, who rule their country. She shows him the sign of the druid which she wears. This sets her apart from other women to fulfill a holy task. She tells him that she has had a dream in which she walked between the sea and the trees with a sword that she used to force back the waves. A veiled being appeared and attempted to take the sword, but she killed this being and was then swamped by the trees and the waves. Arth comes in and throws a Roman sword at her feet. Gwynn is angry that he has broken the peace, but Arth argues against Roman rule. Gwynn gets Arth to quiet down and they bury the Roman soldier whom Arth has killed. Gwynn takes the sword; Mona tells him that he looks like a Roman and inadvertently cuts him when she grabs the sword. Arth and Caradoc, who has joined them, pledge themselves against the Romans and plan an uprising with Mona as the leader. Gwynn tries to stop her, but she agrees to lead the uprising. Gwynn vanishes into the forest and she drops the sword, crying out his name. A month later, Nial is celebrating in the forest. But the Roman Governor is there with a scouting expedition and takes him prisoner. He hopes to find out whether the Britons have met recently, but Nial doesn't answer him. Gwynn appears and is accused of treason against Rome, but he tells them that he hopes to quiet the uprising, using both his and Mona's influence. Nial is alone again as Gloom and Mona enter. Gloom declares that he loves Mona, but she says that she is fulfilling a holy task in which love is not a part, as he himself has told her. Mona, alone, prays as Gwynn enters; he is able to convince her to forget everything and everyone but him. He tells her about his birth and how their union can unite the Britons and the Romans once and for all. Realizing that he is the son of the Roman Governor and the enemy, she calls for help. The Britons come to her assistance and are about to tear Gwynn apart. Mona saves him and says he is a bard and thus can be taken prisoner but not killed. Then all prepare for the uprising. Just before dawn the next day, Enya and Nial are waiting for news. Mona is ashamed of the Britons' defeat, and she brings Gloom, mortally wounded, with her. A large Roman force has completely destroyed them. Arth is dead, and Mona blames herself for this terrible loss. Gloom says that their desire for power caused their defeat, but she thinks it is because she saved Gwynn's life. Gwynn, who has escaped from his guards, enters and tells her that he can negotiate with the Britons for peace. She doesn't believe him, nor does Gloom. She pretends to give in to him and stabs him to death as he embraces her. The Roman Governor arrives, and when he discovers his son' s body he tells them they have destroyed their last chance. Mona confesses what she has done, and he tells her that she will mourn her action. She finally understands all of Gwynn's deeds and lays her sword across his body, bidding him farewell. She surrenders and is taken away as a prisoner.

NOTE: THE MUSIC FOR THIS OPERA WAS WRITTEN FOR THE FOLLOWING ENGLISH LIBRETTO AND THEREFORE HASN'T BEEN EDITED IN ANY WAY.

■ ACT I

The scene represents Arth's hut in the forests of southwestern Britain: a rough, somber interior, so arranged as to appear smaller than the actual dimensions of the stage. Walls and roof are of unhewn logs; the floor is of earth, strewn with rushes and the skins of beasts. Other skins and various clumsy implements hang upon the walls and from the rafters; but there are no warlike weapons to be seen. The rear wall (which is the front of the hut) slants up stage from right to left, so that the left side of the set is considerably deeper than the right, and the left wall clearly visible to the audience. Rather* below the center of this left wall is a large hearth of rough stones, on which a fire is dying down to flickering flames and red embers; the faint wreaths of smoke from it rising through an opening in the roof overhead. Midway along the rear wall is a large doorway, framed with axe-hewn timbers; and on the lintel across the top of this doorway appears the Sign of the Unspeakable Name /|\ burned deeply into the wood, and large enough to be clearly seen, indicating that a Druid has his dwelling here. Curtains of skins, drawn back from the doorway, show the sunlit summer forest without; the light from which, pouring inward through the doorway, makes a moving brightness down the center of the stage. The right wall is a clay-and-osier partition, pierced near its upper end by a smaller doorway covered with a skin curtain, which leads into a dark inner room. A rude oaken bench stands diagonally above and to the right of the fireplace; bunks or settles are built out from the rear wall on either side of the door and from the right wall below the doorway there. To the left of this last, and as far down as possible, is a clumsy table with benches above and below it; and to the left of this again, at the edge of the lighted space, a low oaken stool.*

The light appears to come wholly from the fire and through the doorway from the forest without; so that, although the whole stage is light enough to be clearly seen, and the central portion light enough to distinguish facial expression, the general effect is that of gloom and shadow; deepening around the walls, reddened by the glow of the fire to the left, and contrasting with the brilliant sunshine of the green forest outside.

As the curtain rises, Mona is sitting on the stool, bent forward and gazing across into the fire, her white profile, the flame of coppery hair that falls back along her shoulders, and the gold rings about her brow and right arm thrown into relief against the pale gray of her loose robe. Gwynn, in the green robes of an Ovate, or scholar-bard, stands in the center of the stage, a little above her. Nial, in ragged deerskins with a wreath of flowers around his head, lies half asleep upon a bearskin before the fire, his back toward them and his head up stage. Above the table, Enya, in dull brown, is busy removing horns, platters, etc., from the table to the inner room and to their places upon the wall. This action continues for some minutes; but at the curtain-rise she is motionless by the rear wall, her back to the audience. So that Mona and Gwynn, both by their positions in the light and by the coloring of their costumes, are made emphatic in the center of the opening picture.

---

[Right and Left mean throughout the right and left of a person on the stage, facing the audience; Above and Below mean away from and toward the footlights.]*

GWYNN: Not long now, till the end!

MONA: Until the end . . .

GWYNN: Not long until the end of all my doubt,
Not long until the end of all thy fear—
Kisses half-willing, half-reluctant arms,
And eyes that shirk their promise. I have made peace,
And brought down rest over this angry land
Whose trouble was thy trouble . . . Now I make Mine own all I have known so long for mine,
All thy dear heart hath given.

MONA: (still without moving) Have I all
To give thee, Gwynn?
(Enya has come down to the table; she pauses there, watching Mona closely.)

GWYNN: Still the old fear!

MONA: (with more animation, turning to him) Not fear . . .
Only . . . these many days I have not heard
Thy voice, nor seen thine eyes . . . and the old dreams Press closer, and thy face fades, lost among
A sea of raging faces, and a forest
Of white swords; and thy voice, murmuring joy,
Blows down a wind of war-cries . . . What hath held thee
So long and far away?

GWYNN: Only the need
Of making all things ready for our love.

ENYA: (to Gwynn, sharply) Hast thou made the bride ready to be won?

GWYNN: It is this house: there is a shadow here.

MONA: (touching her breast)
There is a shadow here, Gwynn.
(Enya starts, and moves forward as if about to speak; but as Gwynn goes on without noticing, she restrains herself.)

GWYNN: Now I build
A house for us twain in the forest here,
Where sunlights laugh through moving leaves all day,
And the sweet blossoms brighten; where all night
Earth breathes joy and the moon makes mystery
Of silvern glamour—

MONA: (heavily and sadly) Thou shalt never build That house, Gwynn.

GWYNN: What new change—?

ENYA: Trouble her not—
There is more in her than thy love can know.

GWYNN: Therefore I love her.

MONA: Dear, I am not changed—
That is our trouble, that I cannot change—
I cannot be like other women, loved
And loving, happy. I was never so;
Only, because of thy dear looks, I dreamed
Of love and thee a little—being young
And thrilled with May, a woman, feeling hands
Of little children touch me in the dark,
Unborn, crying to me to mother them . . .
I dreamed of them and thee. Waking, I know
That I am set apart.
(She rises, and comes down a step. Nial stirs, and turns, half raising himself to watch them.)

GWYNN: What fancy—

MONA: Dear, No fancy. Look—
(She lays her hand upon the bosom of her gown, as if to draw it away from her throat. Enya springs forward in violent protest.)

ENYA: Thou shalt not show him! No!

MONA: Look!
(She draws the dress from her breast, and shows there the sign /|\ red against the white skin like a brand or a birthmark. Enya wrings her hands. Gwynn starts back to the left side of the lighted space, so that the center of the stage, up to the doorway, is left open. Nial is on his feet, curious and wondering. All glance instinctively from Mona to the mark above the door.)

GWYNN: The Name!

MONA: God's great Name.

ENYA: (to Gwynn) Better for thee
Not to have known.

GWYNN: The name that none may speak . . .
What means this, Mona?

MONA: I was born therewith.
I cannot read its meaning; but I know
Some great adventure waits for me, since God Hath set His seal upon me. How shall I Tarry for love?

NIAL: (with a child's curiosity) I cannot understand . . .
What is this great thing Mona has to do
That hinders loving? Does God write his name
On them that shall not love? I have it not . . .
I cannot love, because I have no soul.

MONA: I dare not love until my soul is free.

GWYNN: Thou art free! How should this great task divide Thy fate and mine asunder? Being one
We shall be stronger for all good . . . Dear love,
What hinders the fulfillment of our dream?

MONA: I have had other dreams.

GWYNN: Love, thou hast been Alone and listless, and the warm youth pent
Within thee, frustrate, like new wine that works
Close-covered, vapors up these visions. Come
With me, take life, and leave them! Come with me
Out of the shadows, out of the aimless days
And empty nights—find thou humanity
And God shall find thee greatness!

MONA: Listen, Gwynn—
And thou, Mother, in dream-lore deeply wise—
Three nights together have I dreamed this dream:
(Nial has already settled back, uncomprehending, in his place by the fire; Enya seats herself upon the bench below the table, and Gwynn, a little later, on the right end of the bench above the fire. Only Mona is left standing and within the lighted space.)
I walked upon a windy beach between Dark forest and dim sea. Low-swollen clouds,
Heavy with storm, gloomed overhead and hung Bellying against the tree-tops. Close ashore
Towered one huge wave, curving over me
As a serpent curves to strike, crested with cloud
And foam, the hollow gulf beneath alive
With tremulous lights and angry glints of green,
High overhead looming: so that I seemed
To walk in a long cavern roofed with cloud
And walled with foam and forest. And I bare Upon my breast a naked sword, close held
As a mother holds her child. So when the surge Poised to plunge down upon me, I thrust forth
The sword, shaking it seaward, and the sea
Bent backward and forebore. Meseemed one stood Beside me, veiled in a white shroud, whose face
I could not see, that strove to snatch away
My sword. Therefore I smote and slew him. Then
The surge plunged, and the clouds burst, and the trees Fell, thunder-rent, and whelmed me. And I woke Trembling, and seeming still to see the sword
And the grim cloud and the green surge. And now
Three nights together have I dreamed this dream.

GWYNN: (on his feet, but still in the shadow) And the dream thrice beholden prophecies!—
I wonder . . .
(He breaks off, pondering. Mona turns to Enya.)

MONA: Mother . . . ?

ENYA: Dreaming of the sea
Foretells great happenings; dreaming of a sword,
Struggle . . . but then the forest, and the cloud,
And the white figure with no face . . . Nay, child,
I cannot tell. I cannot read this dream.

GWYNN: God mocks us with a future half foreknown.

MONA: (dropping back into her seat, and brooding there, her face resting upon her hands) Nial, dost thou never dream?

NIAL: Always, I think—
Or never. Night by night, and day by day . . .
It must be all true, or else all a dream.

MONA: (still pondering) I alone between surge and forest . . . Gwynn,
What if the sea be—Rome!

GWYNN: (startled and uneasy) Rome?—

MONA: The black flood
That whelms our miserable land!
(As Gwynn is about to protest, Arth strides in at the central doorway—a lean, powerful old man with a bristle of grey hair and beard; bare-armed and bare-kneed, clad roughly in skins. He advances to the center of the stage, and hurls a short Roman sword, unsheathed, at Mona's feet.)

ARTH: Here, child,
I bring thee a child's plaything!
(The women have risen in surprise, and Nial also is upon his feet, peering curiously at the sword. Gwynn remains up left, in the shadow.)

MONA: Father!

ENYA: Arth . . .
(Mona has picked up the sword and is examining it. Suddenly she raises a drawn face of dreadful wonder.)

MONA: It is the sword I dreamed of in my dream!

GWYNN: The sword of Rome . . . !

MONA: Father, whence came this?

ARTH: (his grimness in sharp contrast with her wonder) One
That was a Roman soldier gave it me
Yonder . . . These Romans are a weakly breed!

ENYA: Thou art a swordless man—it is unlawful
For thee to fight, or to bear weapons . . .

ARTH: Bah!
I had no weapon—
(He makes the action of strangling an enemy.)
Only these bare hands
Of an old man.

ENYA: Blood! Blood! Ever more blood!

ARTH: (disregarding her terror, and looking literally at his hands) Only a little, bitten from his lips
In dying.

ENYA: Thou hast roused the wolf! Oh, now
We shall endure vengeance! Now, when our sleep
Was safe, and our days free—

ARTH: Free! Hear the woman!
Ay, free like dogs, free to the lash and the chain,
Licking the Wolf's feet lest we die—new stripes
Over old scars, one shame alike to sting
Surrender and rebellion,—tribute wrung
Out of dry hunger, swords taken away
From free hands, our shrines desolate, our Bards
Forbidden worship, our kings dead, our women
Shared with our lords—all men with blood in them
Hating the Wolf anew with each new day,
Eating and drinking hatred!
(Gwynn has listened with growing displeasure, sharing neither Enya's terror nor Arth's rage. He now comes down, facing the furious old man with calm authority.)

GWYNN: Thou art a fool,
Arth. Blood will follow this.

ARTH: (noticing him for the first time, scornfully) Gwynn
. . . the man of peace!
What dost thou here?

GWYNN: What I have ever done—
Guarded this house from trouble.
Thou hast broke
The peace, wantonly slain a Roman. Fool,
What hope hath Britain save in Rome's goodwill?

ARTH: Rome's goodwill! The embrace of the soft scourge!
Kisses of the kindly spur! A fire's friendship,
A wolf's love!
(Mona has been standing bright-eyed, the sword unconsciously clasped across her bosom, as a mother holds her child. As Arth finishes, she springs forward in a frenzy before the others, waving the sword at arm's length, and shouting.)

MONA: Britain, old Britain! Ruin to Rome!

ENYA: (catching the infection, with shrill fury) Ruin to Rome!

GWYNN: Be still, women!
(Their hysteria wilts before his confidence. He turns, facing Arth, and pointing steadily to the Sign above the doorway.)
By that Sign,
I bid thee, peace. Now . . . thou hast slain a man—
Go bury him.
(Their eyes fight. Arth bows his head.)

ARTH: I will go bury him.
(He goes out, slowly, into the forest. Mona crosses to Gwynn, and slides her left arm about his neck, the sword hanging loose in her right hand.)

MONA: Thou art a man, Gwynn . . .

NIAL: I cannot understand—
What had he done, the Roman, wherefore Arth
Should slay him?

MONA: (turning sharply) Robbed us of our freedom.

NIAL: Nay,
Are we not free to breathe sweet breath, and sing
Under the sun, and laugh beside the fire,
And wonder at the world?

MONA: (to Gwynn, examining the initials, S. P. Q. R. upon the hilt of the sword) What mean these runes Here graven?

GWYNN: Senate and Roman People.

MONA: (swinging the sword) See
How light it is! Even I have strength enough
To wield this. How can such women's weapons meet
The long sword and the British axe?

GWYNN: No so—
(He takes the weapon from her, and illustrates his words with the easy precision of a trained man: at first quietly, then with increasing enthusiasm, until at the last he is vividly possessed by his patriotism.)
Rome never strikes . . . Thus—thrusting . . . The point kills Quietly . . . The edge wastes power.
First the spears,
Hurled all together, bite and bend—then down
Swings the long legion, every man in turn
Guarded and guarding, shield by shield, and sword
By sword, closing the ranks above the slain—
The third line ready with new spears—not men
But one steel wall of manhood—eagles borne Forward, and trumpets clamoring victory—war!
Men die; but the living legion marches on Conquering. Romans perish—
Rome abides,
Drinking the virtue of her dead strong sons,
Imperial, immortal!

ENYA: (sourly, with half-suspicion) Methinks thou knowest their warfare overwell!

GWYNN: I am a Bard . . . It is my work to learn . . .

MONA: (eagerly) Hast thou fought with them?

GWYNN: I have fought
. . . with them—
Before I was a Bard, I fought with them.

MONA: To have stood at sword's point with the very wolf . . . !
To have pierced flesh, and seen blood flow . . . to have slain
Romans—and now, to love Rome!

GWYNN: Now I love thee,
And dream of peace.
(Mona turns listlessly away, and seats herself upon the stool, her head in her hands. Enya is above the table, and Nial back in his place by the fire, while Gwynn stands at the left of the lighted space, above the fire: so that the picture as well as the mood of the opening scene are reproduced.)

MONA: I have had other dreams:
Fire, and a sound of battle, and a storm
Of hungry swords . . . our towns made strong once more,
Our shrines made holy as of old . . .
(She rises nervously, and paces to and fro across the lower edge of the light like a caged creature, her hands clasped over the mark on her breast.)
Great God,
What have I done with all this life of mine
To make life worthier? What have I done—
What can I do?

NIAL: (innocently, with the air of having found the answer) Thou art very beautiful.

MONA: Beautiful! Will my beauty break the chain?
—If I might make thereof a charm, to snare
The leader of our enemies—and then,
While he leaned down and loved me, strike one stroke
Into his wolf-heart, and leave Britain free . . .
I dream this; who shall make it more than dream?
(Gwynn, standing motionless with the sword in his hand, has unconsciously stiffened into attention, the sword held vertically at his side. Mona turns upon him suddenly.) —Give me the sword.

GWYNN: Wherefore?

MONA: Give me the sword!
Thou art like a Roman soldier, standing so—
It is mine. Give it me!
(She advances, and tries to take it from him. He resists; then, seeing that she is in earnest, lets go. Their position, at this instant, is exactly that of the previous line: "Thou art a man, Gwynn," on p. 18. But in snatching the sword, Mona has drawn its edge across Gwynn's bare right arm. She starts back to his right, dropping the sword, and catching his right hand: so that Gwynn's bleeding arm is outstretched in the center of the stage. Enya and Nial, at the same instant, spring forward and down stage to right and left, horrified at the omen. All this happens at once and in a moment.)

MONA: —Gwynn!
(At the moment of her cry, Gloom enters through the central doorway, releasing the leather curtain so that it falls behind him, cutting off the sunlight. The stage light darkens and reddens to firelight; and all eyes are turned upon Gloom standing motionless before the doorway in the white robes of a Druid, his arms stretched outward and upward and his long white staff held vertically in his right hand. His black hair is crowned with oak-leaves, and his black beard flows down over his breast. After an instant, he brings his arms down, stretching them outward and downward, the staff still held vertically; then folds them inward upon his breast, so that the staff, held between his hands which are clasped at his throat, forms with his forearms the Sign of the Unspeakable Name. Then he comes down to Gwynn's left and just below him; picks up the sword, and looks from it to Gwynn's bleeding arm, speaking with a solemn relish at once prophetic and malicious.)

GWYNN: (as Gloom enters) It is naught . . .

GLOOM: By that same blade it is thy doom to die.

MONA: Gloom . . . !

GWYNN: (facing Gloom) I shall not be slain by prophecies,
Nor by ill-will.
(Ignoring him, Gloom passes the sword to Mona, who takes it mechanically, and speaks to Enya.)

Gloom: Mother, take Mona hence.
Tell her . . . Thou knowest all she needs to know . . .
(As Enya and Mona go out by the doorway to the right, Gwynn steps back below the table; and Gloom, crossing up to the central door, draws back the curtain and calls through.)
Let the Bard enter, Father.
(Arth appears in the doorway, ushering in Caradoc. He is very old, with a skin like wrinkled ivory, and hair and beard like spun glass; his costume is similar to those of Gwynn and Gloom, but deep blue in color. All his movements are deliberate and impressive; and he has an old saint's air of dreamy optimism. The others bear themselves toward him with reverence. He stands a moment under the doorway, going through the same ritual as Gloom had done, but with greater dignity and meaning. Arth and Gloom fall back to right and left of the door. Nial remains far to the left, below the fireplace; he takes no part in the ensuing scene, nor do the others notice his presence more than they would the presence of an animal.)

GWYNN: (as Caradoc enters) Caradoc . . . !

CARADOC: The peace of the Great Name upon this house
And all that dwell therein!

ALL: And with thee, peace.

CARADOC: (coming down to the center of the stage) Now let there be an oath between us.

GWYNN: Nay,
I swear no blind oaths. What does Caradoc
Here? What is this that Mona needs to know?
(In answer, Caradoc throws back his gown. Gloom and Arth do likewise, showing that each is girt with a great sword. Together the three blades are drawn and held aloft, Caradoc's vertically, the other two slanting in toward its uplifted point.)

CARADOC: The peace is broken: we have blessed the steel.

GLOOM: (as the swords are sheathed again) Thou shalt know all, being made one with us.

GWYNN: (bitterly) This is thy doing, Gloom. Thou hast undone Britain, and all our labor.

ARTH: Bah! He loves
Rome overwell, prating of peace, peace, peace—
Put thou no trust in him.

GLOOM: (triumphantly) If a man swear
An oath, and bind his honor with a bond,
He shall not break his word.

GWYNN: Have we not sworn
An oath to keep the peace of the Great Name?
I swear no oath to drown this land in war.

CARADOC: There is no peace that is not won by war.
(Gwynn still hesitates. He must either swear disloyalty to Rome, or give up Mona, his influence among the Britons, and perhaps his life. To the others, of course, he appears merely driven from his known position as a peacemaker; and in this Gloom takes pleasure. After a moment Caradoc adds gravely:)
Being a Bard, thou art made one with us.

ARTH: Being a Briton, thou art one with us!

GLOOM: Mona herself shall make thee one with us.
(Gwynn still wavers, and Arth's temper gives way.)

ARTH: Enough! Art thou a Roman?

GWYNN: (bowing his head) I will swear.

CARADOC: Then let there be an oath between us.
(He drives his staff into the fire, causing it to blaze up. Then ceremonially draws forth a burning brand, which he elevates before the sign on the lintel, saying:)
Now,
By the three circles round the Oak, whose names
Are Death and Life and Godhead . . . by the signs
Of Earth and Air and Fire . . . ; and by the power
Of the Great Name, . . . which made and maketh all . . .
Our hearts are sealed forever to this trust;
Our lips are sealed until the work be done.
(At the pauses, he presents the brand in turn to Gloom, Arth, and Gwynn: each touches the fire, and carries his hand to breast and lips; then Caradoc breaks the brand in three, laying one fragment upon the earth, throwing another into the air, and returning the third to the fire.)

ALL: By the Great Name; By Earth and Air and Fire.

CARADOC: The Gorsedd is declared!
(He seats himself upon the bench above the fire, Arth and Gloom upon those to right and left of the doorway. Gwynn remains standing, near the table.)

GWYNN: Caradoc,
Thou art old, having seen generations, wise
With love and sight and sorrow.
Thou hast seen
Boadicea, and the bloody fall
Of that great uprising, and many wars
Since then, lesser but not less vain.
Say thou
How Britain shall fight Rome!

CARADOC: Thou shalt know all—
It is true, Gwynn, that all our wars were vain.
They were but partial. Rome is Rome. Till now Britain was never Britain. We have found
That leader long foretold who shall stamp down
The Wolf, and save Britain—that leader sought
Through many years and tears, whom all shall trust
Even as a babe its mother, and obey
As a young maid her love.

GWYNN: I know . . . but where Shall ye bring up one man all will receive
As one foretold? Where find ye such a man?

CARADOC: No man.

GWYNN: (logically triumphant) What god, then?

GLOOM: Nor no god. We found
A woman.

GWYNN: Woman . . . !

CARADOC, GLOOM, ARTH: (confirming with some pleasure Gwynn's horrified anticipation) Mona.

GWYNN: By God!
No! Ye shall not make her your sacrifice!
Ye shall not drown her in your surge of blood!
(He raises his arms in the Sign, turning toward the doorway, and looking from Gloom to Caradoc.)
Is this the peace ye blessed this house withal?
(The others have risen. Caradoc comes forward, facing him, his staff held before his breast.)

CARADOC: There is no peace that is not won by war.
(Then as Gwynn is about to protest further, he adds, pointing to the doorway.)
We are thine elders, Gwynn. Be silent now.
(He nods to Arth, glancing toward the door on the right; and Nial, obedient to Arth's gesture, goes out through it. There is a short pause. Then Mona enters alone, tall and pale, great-eyed with inspiration; dressed, like Gloom, in the white Druidic Robes, and with the sword still in her hand. She comes forward slowly, and kneels before Caradoc in the center of the stage. Gwynn is to the right, below the table, Arth above and to the right, Gloom below and to the left.)

CARADOC: (laying hands upon her head, quietly) The peace of the Great Name upon thee, and the power Dwell with thee . . .

MONA: (rising, tense with exultation) It is all so wonderful.
I to fulfill old prophecies . . .
(glancing toward Arth)
I not
Thy daughter, but a daughter of strange names
In an old tale . . .
I to save Britain . . . Strange
As birth . . .

CARADOC: Show me the sign, child.
(She draws the robe away from her breast. The stage picture is the same, with different persons, as when she first showed it to Gwynn.)
Twenty years
Past, I beheld that sign, and saved the child
For Britain.

MONA: Strange as love . . .

CARADOC: Sealed with God's great Name . . .

MONA: Strange as death . . .

CARADOC: Hear now the words of the Bard!
(formally) Boadicea, dying, left her pledge
(For dying eyes look through the veils of time)
That one sprung of her seed should lead this land

In its great need against the Roman.
Thee,
Last of her line, by that sign on thy breast,
And by Bard's insight, I receive and declare
For the one prophesied. Thee the Great Name Shall guide where many thousand fighting men
Follow, to save Britain!

MONA: If I were sure . . .
(She stands rigid, gazing before her into infinity, as one who sees a vision; her soul balancing between sainthood and humanity. Arth, up right, looks on with frowning impatience, and Caradoc, further down and to the left, patiently and with confidence. Gwynn and Gloom, to Mona's right and left and a little below her, watch tensely for the critical moment; it is they who are fighting for her.)

GLOOM: Are not thy dreams fulfilled of other lives,— Memorable of old wars?

MONA: How couldst thou know?—
Surely my dreams remember!
(half to herself)
The sea, Rome . . .
The forest, Britain . . . The sword, war . . . !

GWYNN: Remember
Also the veiled, white figure with no face—
God mocks us with a future half foreknown!
(His tone softens, and he comes close to her, taking her passive hand. She looks past his eyes.)
Thou art a woman, Mona. To be great,
First be a woman.

MONA: (leaning toward him a little, but still not meeting his eyes) I have had other dreams,
Of mating and of motherhood—not great,
But very dear. . . .
(still gently, but hardening herself by an effort)
Ah, Gwynn, I cannot be A woman only!

GLOOM: (venomously, catching at his opportunity) Nor a pretty toy
For lover's lips to lap—

GWYNN: (furiously, taking a step forward as if to strike him) Gloom!—

ARTH: (sharply) Enough words!
Dost thou accept thy task?

MONA: (waveringly, almost in a whisper) What shall I do . . . ?
(The tide of inspiration flows over her. She throws herself erect, seeming to grow physically larger in her excitement, her face glorious, her arms thrown outward and upward, the sword shining in her hand. Her words are no longer a wail of hesitation, but a superb demand for use.)
What shall I do?

CARADOC: The soul speaks! Child and Queen,
Come!

MONA: Yea, I come! Let the ravens follow me—
They shall be filled! Yea, let the wolves howl! Fire,—
Fire, and a sound of battle, and the whole
Manhood of Britain raging down to hurl
The wolf-born Roman back into the sea;—
Our towns made strong once more, our wasted shrines
Made holy, Druid and Bard called forth again
From lurking in forgotten dens, to fare
Once more in honor over a free land,
Singing and teaching freedom!
(She is beside herself. Gwynn springs forward in an agony of desperate authority, pinions her arms, and by main force brings her to face him at arm's length.)

GWYNN: Mona! Come down
Out of that frenzy. Mona
. . . Look at me!
This is I, Gwynn, a man, flesh and blood, I
Whose lips and eyes thou lovest . . .
(The fire fades out of her under his eyes. She relaxes, and her head droops.)
Now!—I say,
Thou shalt not ruin all we are, to feed
A fever and a folly.
(He releases her, and steps back.)
Love or war—
Choose!

CARADOC: (slowly and gravely)
Ay, choose well.

GLOOM: Vision or dream, that boy
Or Britain, lust or glory—

GWYNN: Let her be!
Thou art fain to madden her with words.

GLOOM: And thou
Art fain to eat her soul for thy desire,
To keep her wholly for thy pleasure; and so,
Holding her merry body in thine arms,
To laugh at Britain!
(His profanation turns the struggle. Under the sting of it, Mona leaps back into her martyrdom. Gwynn is beaten.)

MONA: Britain, old Britain, Ho!
(The others join in the cry.)

ARTH: Now let the traitor perish!

GWYNN: Mona!

MONA: (turning upon Gwynn with bitter finality.) Go!
I will not hear thy voice nor see thine eyes
For evermore!
(As Gwynn turns away from her toward the door, Arth advances upon him, with clutching hands. Gwynn stops above center, facing him.)

ARTH: Let me kill . . . !

CARADOC: Nay, we shed
No blood in Gorsedd. If a man swear an oath,
He shall not break his word.
(They stand silent and motionless, while Gwynn draws back the curtain, letting in a momentary flood of pure sunlight, passes out slowly into the bright forest, and is gone. The curtain falls behind him across the light.)

GLOOM: For evermore,
Thou shalt not see his face!
(Mona stands motionless, with bowed head, down center, the sword clasped across her bosom. Caradoc crosses to her and kneels at her feet, drawing his sword and raising it aloft. Arth and Gloom, to right and left, Arth above her and Gloom below, do likewise.)

ALL: Hail, Child and Queen! . . .

MONA: (still in an inspiration)
Fire . . . and a sound of battle, . . . and a dream
Reborn out of old years, and a new song,
Terrible with the joy of angry men
Gaining and guarding freedom—
(The tension snaps. She drops her arms and wilts as if under a violent blow; turns half toward the door, and takes a step as though to follow.) —Gwynn! Ah, Gwynn!
For evermore, I shall not see his face . . .
(The sword falls from her hand. She turns from the door again, buries her face in her hands, and shakes with sobbing, like a child. The others have risen at her first giving way, and stand transfixed, their swords still raised aloft.)
(The Curtain delays for a moment, to let the picture strike home; then falls quickly.)

END OF ACT I

■ ACT II

The scene represents a Cromlech, or Druidic open-air temple in the forest; so placed that its center is in the center of the stage, about ten feet above the footlights. At this point rises a huge oaktree, venerable with mistletoe and streaming moss; whose branches, spreading out on either side, extend the whole width of the proscenium, just under the arch. Immediately in front of the tree is a rude altar, composed of a single block of stone roughly rectangular in shape, about three feet high and four long. On its front is hewn the Sign /|\ of the Name; and those branches of the tree which reach out toward the audience seem curiously to repeat this figure, bending downward and outward in three diverging lines. Behind the tree is a semicircular wall of large rough stones, whose diameter is a little less than the width of the stage. Directly behind the tree is an opening in this wall, six or eight feet wide; and the semicircle ends on each side about the same distance above the curtain, so as to give the impression of similar openings there—as if the other half of the circle were out in the audience. This wall is crumbling and irregular, nowhere more than four feet high: so that one looks over and through it, seeing beyond it and some distance back the huge standing stones of the outer circle, separated by about twice their own width; and between and beyond these again, green and mysterious forest as far as the eye can reach. Even now, the structure appears old and neglected; the forest is creeping in between the stones of the outer circle, and the space between it and the wall is dotted with bushes and young saplings. One or two of the great stones have fallen; the inner wall is crumbling here and there, and a few loose stones are lying about within; and the ground there is uneven, and covered with deep moss. Upon the altar are the charred remains of a small fire, some time extinct; and the moss thereabout is trodden as by many feet.
The light is that of a clear summer evening just after sunset and before dusk. Striking slantwise across the scene from left to right, it marks the points of the compass (south being up stage) and the hour of the day. During the act, it grows darker so gradually that the advancing night is noticeable only as called attention to by the actors. And the end of the act takes place in bright moonlight.

As the curtain rises, Nial is seen within the inner circle, dancing with his shadow; at first to left of the altar, afterwards over the whole open space.

Nial: (still dancing) Brother am I to all the trees, and child
Of the warm-sweet earth and the merry sun—
And all the birds and blossoms and wild things
Of the forest, they are my brothers too . . .
(A bird begins to sing and flutter among the branches above him. He holds up his arms.)
Come dance
With Nial, my brother!
(The bird lights on his hand.)
They are not afraid—
They know I have no soul.
(Dancing again, the bird fluttering about him.)
Is it not brave
To breathe sweet breath, and sing under the sun,
And laugh beside the fire, and have no soul?
(He pauses, to the right of the tree, in a kind of dreaminess which is his nearest approach to thought.)
Mona and Gloom and Gwynn—all my wise friends.
Surely their souls torment them.
They have strange
Hot joys called Love and Hate and Fear, wherewith
To burn themselves . . . I cannot understand . . .
(Dancing again.)
Nay, I had rather have my playfellow
To dance with. He must be my brother too,
For the earth and the sunshine made him. Brother, come,
Dance with Nial! Leap with Nial! Ho!
(Pausing again, before the altar.)
Perhaps
He is my soul . . . I wonder . . . and perhaps
Their souls are in their shadows; . . . for their shadows
Gleam in the dark with strange bright colors—green,
Purple, and crimson; . . . but my shadow is gray,
And in the dark I have no shadow at all . . .
Perhaps all souls are shadows . . .
Nay, come dance
With me, my soul!

(He is still dancing, to the left of the altar, when The Governor, at the head of a few light-armed Roman soldiers, enters up stage. They push rapidly through the trees and into the inner circle.)

THE GOVERNOR: (as they enter) Seize him . . . ! But slay him not—
(The Soldiers come down left and surround Nial, who makes no attempt to escape. The Governor comes down to right of the tree and below it—a soldierly, vigorous man of fifty, thin-lipped and quick-eyed, the black hair under his helmet just beginning to be threaded with gray; his manner alert without hurry and decisive without pomposity; dangerous and efficient because he's free from all doubts.)

NIAL: How red your shadows are . . . !
What would ye have
Of Nial?

THE GOVERNOR: Come hither.
Stand there.
(Nial comes down beside the altar.)
(to the soldiers)
Guard him.
(They close in around Nial with leveled spears. Nial remains absolutely unconcerned.)
So . . .
(Rapidly examining the altar and the ground about it.)
Footprints! A whole tribe hath been gathered here—
Women, too . . .
Ashes! Ay, a sacrifice . . .
(Finding a spearhead.)
Spears!
(to Nial)
Listen, thou! What hath befallen here?

NIAL: I have been dancing with my soul.

THE GOVERNOR: Answer!
Who met here yesternight? How many? Whence
And why came they?

NIAL: Gloom says I may not know.

THE GOVERNOR: Who is Gloom, then?

NIAL: My brother. They are all
My brothers. They have souls, and they are wise.
They say that ye are wolves that eat this land;
Therefore, they say, ye shall all surely die—
But how and when, Gloom says I may not know . . .
(curiously)
What is it like to die?

THE GOVERNOR: (grimly, but without anger) Thou shalt soon learn—
A sword, there!
(A Soldier draws his sword, and presents it at Nial's throat. Nial remains utterly unimpressed.) Answer now!

NIAL: I cannot answer—
Gloom says I may not know.
(Looking naïvely at the sword, and reaching out to touch it, as a child might do.)
That sword is like
The one that Mona dreamed of in her dream . . .

THE GOVERNOR: Bind him!
. . . A bowstring round his temples, now—
Silence him!
(Nial, still unresisting and uncomprehending, is bound and gagged. A bowstring is knotted about his forehead, and a stick thrust through it to twist. Gwynn enters suddenly from the right.)

GWYNN: Father!—Hold!
(The Governor turns to him with the same matter-of-course formality as if the meeting had been expected and ordinary. Gwynn kneels before him, and The Governor lays a hand upon his head.)

THE GOVERNOR: Quintus, my son,
I bless thee.

GWYNN: (rising, to the soldiers)
Let him go—unbind him!
(They obey without waiting for any confirmation of the order. Gwynn turns to explain.)
Nay,
Father, he would not speak: he is one from whom,
Unborn, earth-daemons reft the soul away—
The harmless, empty body of a man.

NIAL: (feebly) I give thanks; they would have done me harm . . .
Surely these are not wolves—the wolves are all
My brothers.

GWYNN: Nial—
(Nial seats himself up to left of the tree, interested but quite out of the scene. The Soldiers draw up in a rigid line at the left end of the wall.)
My father, ask of me.
(He throws off his green robe, disclosing beneath it the white tunic, breastplate, and short sword of a centurion.)
I am a Roman soldier, and thy son.

THE GOVERNOR: Therefore I came here. Many tongues have said
Thou art a Briton, and mine enemy.

GWYNN: Dost thou believe this, Father?

THE GOVERNOR: Quintus, no.
I believe no dishonor of my blood
By hearsay. Answer therefore.
This whole land
Which late lay more at peace than ever, now
Hums like a hive in swarm. Over the length
And breadth of Britain, every camp and town
Sends in the same tale—gatherings by night,
Forbidden sacrifices in old shrines,
Forging of weapons, Druids preaching war,
And here and there some lonely Roman slain
Out in the forest. Southward, our own towns Return seditious rumors.
What hast thou
To say of this?

GWYNN: It is all true.

THE GOVERNOR: I have heard
Of one going about among the tribes
To rouse revolt—a woman, beautiful—
Her thou hast guarded and defended, held
Our garrisons from taking her, and left Her free to stir up trouble at her will—
What of this?

GWYNN: (As before, without the least shame or embarrassment, meeting his father's look fairly.) It is true . . . I love her.

THE GOVERNOR: (Not shocked, nor as a mentor, but as one who hears quietly the confirming of a shameful suspicion.) Boy,
Man's honor hath no subtler enemy
Than longing for a woman.

GWYNN: She is more,
Father—she is their queen, even as though
Boadicea came on earth again,
Whom they believe and follow;
(emphatically) Winning her,
I win at once all Britain.

THE GOVERNOR: Take her, then!
I took thy mother captive even so . . .
She, lying by my side, saved many lives.

GWYNN: (with premature triumph) Mona and I together shall save all—Yet wherein should her body profit me
But if I win her will?

THE GOVERNOR: (impatiently practical) Play not with words—
A woman's heart is in her body, Boy—
I had thought thee more a man!
Enough! Meanwhile,
What of this war?

GWYNN: There was to have been war;
There shall be peace.

THE GOVERNOR: Their plans, then—?

GWYNN: I have sworn
Not to betray—

THE GOVERNOR: (losing patience) Betray! Canst thou betray Enemies?
(with infinite scorn)
An oath to a Barbarian . . . !

GWYNN: An oath to their god, that is my god, too.

THE GOVERNOR: Gods! In these times, we make new gods each day!
There is but one god for a man—his name
Is Duty. Speak!

GWYNN: Father, if a man swear,
He shall not break his word . . .
(The Governor's patience gives out altogether; he motions to The Soldiers, who spring forward.)
Nay, hear me . . .
(He stretches out his arms. The Governor hesitates an instant, then stops The Soldiers with a gesture, and paces frowningly to and fro before the altar while Gwynn continues; showing no sign of relenting, or even of being impressed.)
All
These years of peace are mine—my work. I went Among my mother's people, owned their god,
Became their Bard, knew them and . . . honored them—
Do men love legions, or confide in foes?
They hate Rome; I have healed that hatred. Now,
Where the old scars ache shall we stab again
Till the whole body perish? True, our arms
Will crush them down. How long will they lie still?
Hearts, not swords, make our Roman provinces!—
Let peace make one conquest that shall endure!

THE GOVERNOR: (pausing)
Words again! When a sullen-snarling hound
Slinks close behind thy heel, dost thou delay
For parley? Strike the first blow, and be done!

GWYNN: These are no curs, to snarl and lick the lash—
These are they whom great Caesar could not quell!
(The Governor faces him, impressed for the first time. Gwynn goes on with the authority and confidence of his ideal.)
My way or thine—One peace or many wars—
Choose! Art thou general, or governor?

THE GOVERNOR: Thou hast failed thy duty; wilt thou teach me mine?

GWYNN: (steadily) Truth spoken by a traitor still is true.

THE GOVERNOR: (pauses, for a moment of judgment; then delivers his ultimatum with deliberate emphasis.) See now:
I hold these dogs in my two hands,
And if they move, I break them.
(with a gesture)
Prove thy truth!
Save them! Thou art their fate. All hangs on thee.
Let them lie still and live, or strike and die!
I have spoken.

GWYNN: It is well; I ask no more—
Let them lie still and live, or strike and die!—
Mona and I shall hold them harmless.

THE GOVERNOR: (with a last suspicion, looking keenly into Gwynn's eyes) Boy, Thou hast thy mother's blood . . . If I could think Thy double garment held a double heart—

GWYNN: (not theatrically, but very quietly) Two garments, Father, but one heart within;
Two nations, and one blood . . .
Nay, I confess
That I have let the weight of my great love
Hang round the neck of duty . . . I pray thee Trust me . . . or trust me never.
(He kneels, as at first. The Governor, with the first gentle emotion he has shown, repeats the gesture of blessing.)

THE GOVERNOR: Be it so—
I trust thee then . . . my son!
(Gwynn rises, and they grip hands.)
If thy faith fail,
Let me die!

GWYNN: The dusk falls . . . Ye are too few
For safety. I will guide you to the town.
(During the preceding scene, it has been growing darker so gradually, that only now does one realize that it is twilight. The Governor, motioning The Soldiers to follow, goes out center, Gwynn walking by his side. Nial, rising, follows them with his eyes until they disappear among the trees. When he can no longer hear them, he turns and comes slowly down.)

NIAL: Red shadows, and the souls of angry men . . .
It must be all true, or else all a dream!
(He lies down at full length before the altar, gazing into the dusk. The moon is just rising, shown by the direction of the stage light changing and the shadows falling from right to left; and her light increases as gradually as the daylight has waned, until by the time of Arth's entrance it is full moonlight.) Night, and cool winds . . . How still the forest is,
Now they are gone! My brothers are asleep Already . . . Only the hushed owl drifts by,
Silently as a winged shadow . . . And there
The quick bat flutters past, a messenger
To wake the Little People—Nial knows!
Now the small voices under all the leaves
Are telling secrets . . .
(As Nial pauses, Mona and Gloom enter slowly from the right. Mona is still in her white robe, with a spear and a short byrny over which the sword is girt from her shoulder; but she has neither helmet nor shield.)

MONA: Nial! Art thou alone?

NIAL: My sister . . . !
(He rises, and stands looking at her wonderingly.)
Thou art very beautiful
And very far away—

GLOOM: Nial, what news?

NIAL: The Little People will be out; the bat
Has just gone—

GLOOM: (impatiently) Where is Arth?

NIAL: I know not.

GLOOM: Go
And seek him.
(Nial goes out left, Gloom turns abruptly to Mona, who is standing with bowed head before the altar.)
We have little space to dream.
Our war begins at midnight—before then,
Sacrifice and sword-giving. Presently . . .
The Bards meet. Hast thou kept the tallies?

MONA: Here . . .
(She hands him square wooden bars carved with runic signs. He seats himself on the rock, right, reading them and making additions with his knife.)

GLOOM: Twelve myriad fighting men!
Rome has not half so many souls alive
In Britain! So our work ends—to-night, war—
To-morrow, victory!

MONA: (turning from the altar, slowly) If we ourselves Fail not . . .

GLOOM: Dost thou fear failure?

MONA: (Moving slowly away from him, to left of altar.) Nay, not fear—
Only . . . all hangs on us.
(pausing)
If yonder town
Fall to-night, then from hill to hill our fires
Shall flash the tidings, till all Britain flares
Into one blaze ere dawn. But . . . if we fail,
How then?
(turning toward him)
Were it not better all should strike
At one forechosen hour, waiting no sign?

GLOOM: What matter? We but prove our faith.
(He thrusts the tallies into his girdle, and rises.)
Nay, more—
Thou art here; Thou, the old Queen's self reborn,
Our leader and our strength. What fight can fail
Where thou art? All the hope of Britain waits Thee, and thee only!

MONA: I to fight with men . . .
To pierce flesh . . . and see blood flow . . .
(She is standing below him and to left, her head bent, her spear held slantwise across her body by the incongruous gesture of clasping her hands at her breast.)

GLOOM: (at his full height, magnificently) Thou to save And conquer!
(advancing, in an ecstasy)
Have no fear—thy womanhood
And the beauty of thee shall burn before us, fair
And terrible, a sweet white flame of war,
A light from old years, and a wonderful death,
And a dream plunging down eternity
To change the world.
(He is close before her, aflame with an ardor which he struggles to color with patriotism. This at first she does not, and then will not, see.)

MONA: (impulsively) Gloom, thou art glorious . . . !
If I were sure—

GLOOM: Thou and I throned above
Rejoicing freedom—Thou and I one power—

MONA: Brother and sister—

GLOOM: Priest and prophetess,—
One soul to be remembered when our bones
Blossom together—

MONA: Let my work not fail—
I ask no more. Take thou the glory.
(She draws back from him. He throws off the mask.)

GLOOM: Child,
How have I any glory but in thee?
How have I borne thy beauty? How endured
These long dry years of brotherhood—
(He stretches his arms to her. She springs back, turning so that the light falls upon her face, a frozen majesty in every line of her.)

MONA: Gloom, Gloom,
I am not woman, but a sword; not flesh,
But steel. Who but thine own self taught me this?

GLOOM: It is true . . .
(He draws back, conquered as much by reason as by her greater faith. Nial enters, from the left, followed by Enya and Arth.)

NIAL: They are here, under the moon;
Their souls reach out before them.

ENYA: (embracing Mona, with half-hysterical motherliness) My little one That loved me . . . !
(They move across to the altar, then draw apart: Mona standing at the right lower corner of the altar, Enya a little above the altar, to left of the tree. Gloom and Arth are below them, to right and left. Nial remains near the left end of the inner wall.)

ARTH: Gloom, how have ye fared?

GLOOM: We count
Twelve myriads now in arms.

ARTH: And the time?

GLOOM: To-morrow.
We ourselves move at midnight on the town.

ARTH: (drunk with hate, brandishing his spear, and shouting)
Ourselves first? I grow young again! Ha, wolves
That feast and frolic yonder, sweet with oil
And glad with garlands—it shall not be long,
Not long, now, till the end!

MONA: (Before the altar facing forward, her arms upraised, her face tense with inspiration.) Until the end . . . !

ENYA: (taking a step toward her, timidly) Child, art thou that same child that pushed my breast
With baby hands, and wailed? Thou art glorified—
There is a light about thee, and a power—

MONA: (rigid, her arms at her sides, looking into infinity) I have remembered old years, and seen men Fall down and worship me.

ENYA: Did they believe—
All those wild folk—?

MONA: (half to herself) It is as if these trees
Bowed themselves down before me—as if the sea
Obeyed me—yet not me, but what I am . . . A vision of swift journeyings by day, Glimmering forests, windy crags, lone moors
Immeasurable where birds cry, and gray sands
Thunderous with the ever-changing sea—
Torches and shouts, wild gatherings by night,
And firelit circles of astonished eyes,
Men falling on their faces, oaths and prayers . . .
Strange as a dream's fulfillment of a dream!
I have heard voices in the dark, and seen
Visions of kings forgotten, bidding me
Go forward, and be strong, and have no fear—
I have dreamed of the White World, and God's love
Bathing me like sweet flame . . .

ARTH: Enough of dreams!
Come, let us feast before the battle. Come!
The time passes.

MONA: I have no need thereof.
Leave me here for a little while, to pray.

ENYA: Is there no danger?—

ARTH: Nay, with Nial at hand
No harm can fall. Come, then . . .
(He leads the way out to the left. Enya hesitates, then follows. Gloom, going out last, pauses to look back at Mona standing to right of the altar and just below it.)

GLOOM: (slowly) Foredoomed, ordained, Prophesied . . .
(He goes out. In the quietness Nial suddenly lifts his head and listens to something in the forest.)

NIAL: Mona—Hark . . .

MONA: (hearing nothing) What is it, Nial?

NIAL: The Little People—They are calling me . . .

MONA: Go to them.
(He goes out, up stage. Mona leans her spear against the tree; moves to the front of the altar, draws the sword, and lays it thereupon; then kneels before it, facing up stage.)
Night and day, deed and dream, sight
And vision—all one faith, all one desire—Britain . . .
(A pause. Gwynn enters quietly from the right. He stands a moment watching her, just inside the circle.)

GWYNN: (to himself, softly) God help me now.
(Another pause. Mona gradually becomes aware of his presence, and rises, facing him, her right hand on the sword, her left at her throat. When she speaks, her voice is tense and hollow, but unfaltering.)

MONA: What dost thou here?

GWYNN: What I have ever done.

MONA: Thou art faithless. Go!
(It is the same tone and manner that crushed Gloom a little while since; but this is not Gloom. He goes on quite evenly.)

GWYNN: Why? Dost thou fear to look upon me, lest Thine heart change?

MONA: (stung out of her heroics, and struggling for self-possession) Fear!
(scornfully)
I will not see thy face.
Get hence!

GWYNN: (advancing upon her, while she shrinks away, the sword clasped to her breast) Cry out then. Is one traitor's life
So great a matter? Thou that art to slay
Thousands ere dawn, canst thou not see me die?

MONA: (desperately) Go from me!

GWYNN: (still nearer) True, thou hast loved me. True, thine heart Cries out for me—What matter?
Thou art not flesh
But steel. Summon thy swords!

MONA: (recovering herself and rising into a martyrdom; facing him calmly, with the almost pitying tone of one who will not stoop to anger.) Gwynn, presently
I must fight. It may be that I must die.
Canst thou not hush that little fleshly wail
Called love, and leave me here with God?

GWYNN: Canst thou?

MONA: (with quiet finality, her hands pointing to the sign upon her breast) I bear the Sign here of a greater thing, Whereto I am reborn. I am not myself,
But Britain.
(turning away to the altar as if he were not there)
Go now.

GWYNN: Therefore I am here:
There is yet time to save Britain and thee . . .
—Now all things take one answer!
(He takes her suddenly in his arms. She turns, writhing away from him, her body bent backward, and her head falling against his shoulder. Even at first, she cannot struggle with her full strength; and presently, as she overpowers herself, she grows more quiet, and at last quite still.)
Struggle now—
Call to thy friends . . .
Look! Thou and I alone
In the whole great world, under the dim sky,
And the night's arms around us . . .

MONA: Let me go—

GWYNN: Night, and earth yearning upward to the moon,
And the shadows calling to us, and the winds
Dizzy with sweet, and the summer's huge heart, slow
Throbbing around us . . .
Thou and I close, close . . .

MONA: (with closed eyes) Be still—I will not hear thee . . .

GWYNN: Night, and thou
Near me amid the moonbeams, beautiful—
A lily on the gloom of a dim lake,
Thy golden heart wide open to the wind,
A freshness and a fragrance glimmering up
Out of cool depths—A wild bird with glad eyes—
A mystery beyond all dreaming dear,
Holier than the hope of pleasing God,
More to be hungered after than lost youth!
Now I make mine own all I have known so long for mine,
Arms and lips, life and glory, mine, mine, mine—
(He stops suddenly, releasing her. She falls back a step below and to right of him, and stands half-stunned, her hands over her eyes. Gwynn catches the sword from the altar, and holds out the hilt to her, speaking with a sudden jarring sharpness.)
Take thy sword. I shall die by that same blade.
So be it.
Strike now.
(Her hands drop. She gazes at him blindly a moment; then the flood breaks.)

MONA: Ah, Gwynn! . . . Oh, come to me!
(She stretches forth her arms to him. He flings away the sword; they hold each other.)

GWYNN: Mona . . . !
(A short pause. He draws her down beside him on the rock, she half reclining below him and lower down, her head resting against his knee; he bending over her.)
Night, and thou near me in the warm gloom . . .
And on thy lips a faintness and a flame—!
All the vain sorrow forgotten—all our dreams
New born, sweet with surrender—wonderful, Holy . . .

MONA: There is a cloud over the moon—
I cannot see thy face . . . Only thine arms Around me like strong sleep
. . . Only thy voice—
And all our children laughing in thine eyes . . . !
And it is good for me to put away
Weariness, and the fever of high deeds,
And the dry hunger . . .

BOTH: Now earth sinks and swims
Falling, and the great river of joy flows down,— Inevitable, tender, luminous,—
And whelms me, and I float under the moon
Quietly, toward the foam-bright sea . . . Down, down,
Where the glimmering shores grow faint, and darkness
Buries the sky, and the stars drown, and the deep Rises over me, and I dream . . .

MONA: How soft
Thy hair is, Gwynn . . .
Far off in the dead void
Torches flare, and I hear a murmuring
Of old wars, and fierce multitudes that howl
For me to lead them, like some old ill dream.—
Ah, let me not remember . . . !

GWYNN: Dear, I bid thee
Remember, and rejoice in all. This night
Thou hast saved Britain.

MONA: Britain . . . Let me go!
(The spell is broken. She shakes herself free and stands, dazed, between the rock and the altar. Gwynn, also on his feet, and not realizing the change in her, goes on confidently.)
What have I done?

GWYNN: I would not speak till now—
I would not buy thy heart for promises—
Now it is finished! I must have thee first Made queen over all Britain, then all mine,
Now all for peace.
"Let them lie still and live,
Or strike, and die!"
Mona, hear me—we two Shall join in our firm love Britain and Rome
Forever!

MONA: Gwynn . . . I cannot see thy face . . .
It is all dark . . .

GWYNN: (too full of his triumph to realize that she hardly hears him) Dost thou need proof? What held
The Roman garrisons from taking thee?
Child, thou hadst been a prisoner twenty times
But for me.

MONA: (harshly and dully) What hast thou to do with Rome?

GWYNN: Not less than thou with Britain. My one voice
Answers for Rome here—

MONA: What hast thou to do With Rome?

GWYNN: I am Roman born—

MONA: Thou—Roman . . . ?

GWYNN: Yea,
Moreover—

MONA: Help, Ho!

GWYNN: (utterly surprised) Mona—

MONA: (frantically) Treason! Help, Ho!
(She catches up the sword from the ground, and swings it at him, crying:)
—By this same blade it is thy doom to die!
(He catches her arm, and wrests the sword from her. As he does so, Arth rushes in center followed by a shouting crowd of Britons with torches and spears; and from the left, a throng of Bards and Druids, led by Gloom and Caradoc, pour in and across the stage. More and more keep pouring in, men and women, shouting and tossing their weapons. Mona springs back up stage and to the right to let them pass, pointing accusingly at Gwynn. Arth reaches him first, and strikes at him with his spear, Gloom attacking him from the left almost at the same instant.)

ARTH: (as he strikes) Ha, Gwynn the Peacemaker!
(Gwynn parries, and strikes him down with the hilt.)

GLOOM: (as he strikes) At last!
(Gwynn, his back against the rock, disarms him, and hurls him back among the crowd. But by this time the crowd has reached him, and still others, rushing in right, attack him from behind. He is instantly surrounded, disarmed, pinned down upon the rock, and threatened by many weapons. Mona stands above and to the right of Gwynn, upon a rising ground that makes her clearly visible above the heads of the crowd; Arth and Gloom are upon their feet again, and pushing forward, Arth to right of the tree and Gloom down stage to left of the altar; Caradoc is before the altar, and Enya up left, among the crowd. The stage is full of raging men, screaming women, and waving torches.)

VOICES IN THE CROWD: (as Gwynn is overpowered) Who is he?

ENYA: Blood! Blood!

MONA: (pointing to Gwynn with the sword) He is—
(The crowd suddenly quiets to listen; and in the momentary hush, Mona's rage looks upon itself. She could have killed Gwynn with her hands a moment since; but now, in cold blood, she cannot hand him over to be torn in pieces. She raises her arms in the sign of the Name; her tone changes.)
He is a Bard!
(The crow bears back from Gwynn, astonished and awed. Caradoc, Arth, and Gloom break through the shrinking circle of them and wave them on.)

GLOOM: Heed her not!

CARADOC: He is not one of us!

ARTH: Kill! Kill!
(The tumult rises afresh. Mona pushes forward in front of Gwynn, driving the Britons back.)

MONA: Hold off,
On your lives! Back!
(She turns, facing the three leaders.)
Who am I . . . ? Answer me!
Who am I . . . ?

CARADOC: The Queen!
(A short pause. No one moves or questions her will. She turns to the Britons who are holding Gwynn.)

MONA: Bind him and lead him hence—
Do him no hurt . . .
(As Gwynn is swallowed up in the crowd, she turns back to the others, once more an inspired Amazon.)
Give out the swords! Wait not
For midnight—Call the warriors!

GLOOM, ARTH, CARADOC: It is not time—

MONA: I am the time—obey! Give out the swords!
Rouse the tribe! Sound the gathering! Bring hides,
Fagots and ladders—Give each man a torch—
To your work, Druids! Onward, by the Sign
Of the Name! Britain, Old Britain!
Ruin to Rome!
(During these last lines, men have been hurrying about, bringing in torches, ladders, weapons, etc., until the stage is crowded and tumultuous with tossing lights and busy and disheveled figures. A fire is kindled on the altar, and Gloom and Caradoc take their places to right and left of it, with Druids and Bards grouped behind them, filling the space immediately about the tree. Mona stands upon the rock to the right, directing all; Arth and Enya up stage to the left of the tree; and the whole space above and around filled with confused preparation. As the Bards take their place they raise the following chant, the tribesmen joining in and brandishing their torches and weapons in time to it as they hurry about:)

CHORUS:

I:
Out of the dim dens
Under the mountains,
Forth from the forest,
Far from the fenlands—
Summon the swordsmen,
Waken the warriors,
Gather the Druids
To battle for Britain—
(Long swords for old Britain—)
Ruin to Rome!
(Three men come in left, bearing armfuls of long naked swords, which they lay before the altar. Mona descends from the rock, sheathing her sword, and places herself before it. As she sings, together with the Druids and Bards about the tree, the second stanza of the chant, she raises each sword in both hands high above her head, passes it from right to left in a circle around the fire, and hands it to Gloom and Caradoc, who present it to a Bard or Druid kneeling to receive it. As each receives his weapon, he rises and rushes out through the crowd, waving it aloft.)

MONA, GLOOM, CARADOC AND THE PRIESTS:

II:
By the soul in the flame,
By the death in the earth,
By the life in the air—
By the sound of the Name
That no mortal may bear,
Bringing ages to birth—
For the freedom denied us,
For the shame of the slave—
Give swords to the swordless,
Bright blades to the Bards,
White Death to the Druids—
To guard us, to guide us,
To slay and to save!
(With the singing of the third stanza, the tribesmen and their women begin to rush out and away into the forest in savage disorder, by twos and threes, still singing. The stage darkens gradually, as the torches more and more are carried away; and by the end of the stanza, only the altar-fire flickers against the moonlight. Arth follows the Britains. Mona, Gloom, and Caradoc are still in their places by the altar; and a moment after Arth's exit, Gloom draws his own sword and starts after, motioning the others on; Caradoc follows; Mona, catching up her spear from beside the tree, follows in turn, pausing to turn with a triumphant gesture as she passes through the inner wall.)

CHORUS:

III:
God is grown hungry
Watching our weakness—
Hungry, beholding us
Frail and faint-hearted.
Slay we a sacrifice,
Therefore, to feed Him—
Rouse the ravens,
Waken the lean wolves,
Onward for Britain!
(Broad spears for Old Britain—)
Ruin to Rome!

(The flame on the altar dies down. Only Enya remains on the stage. She runs to the opening in the wall up stage and stands a moment looking after the others, while the torches disappear and the sound of the singing grows fainter. Presently she reels down stage, wringing her hands, and throws herself full length upon her face before the altar, not sobbing but lying still.)

CHORUS: (outside, more and more faintly, but not slower)

IV:
The sword, the defender,
She is holy and human,
She is white like a woman—
And shapely and slender;
Demanding a master
To wield her and bend her—
Aflame for the foeman
Athirst for the Roman—
(Heart's blood of the Roman—)
Red life and disaster—
Revenge, and surrender!

(The singing dies out in the distance. There remains only darkness and stillness, and the old woman lying prone before the altar. The fire on the altar flickers and goes out, and Enya stirs a little, then lies still. Far away in the forest, a wolf howls. Then a moment of utter silence. And then the Curtain falls slowly.)

END OF ACT II

ACT III

The scene represents a small plateau on the southern edge of the forest, fronting the Roman Town. On the stage left, the edge of the forest extends diagonally back so that the left upper corner of the scene is hidden in thick woods, sloping upward to the left. The edge of this mass of trees, irregular and diversified with bushes and fallen tree-trunks, indicates that the open space is a natural glade and not a clearing. To the rear is the irregularly concave brow of a declivity at first sharp and steep (as shown by tree-tops just beyond its edge) then gradually sloping away across a shallow valley of meadow-land a mile or so in width; and beyond, on the corresponding rise of ground across this valley, the Roman Town appears: its apparent height being five or six feet above the stage-level, so that it may easily be seen from all parts of the house. Beyond and on both sides, open rolling country extends to the horizon. On the stage right, a high and craggy mass of rocks extends out onto the stage, in the shape, roughly, of the corner of a square obliquely placed. The wooded top of this is only a few feet below the proscenium arch; from thence the rock descends in a cliff to about the height of a man, then breaks to the level in a mass of boulders and rubble. The cliff is more broken toward its lower end, more precipitous toward its upper; so that near the footlights it may be scaled. Above this cliff, and between it and the edge of the plateau, a broad pathway runs diagonally off to the right, sloping down the hillside, and evidently the way to the plain and so across to the Town. Near the plateau's edge and about on a line with the foot of the cliffs to the right, lies a large fallen tree; and on the edge of the forest on the left is a seamed and broken boulder, lying halfway up stage. The ground in the center is fairly level and smooth, grass-grown and sloping a little upward at the edges. The whole effect is that of the mouth of a shallow gorge, open to the southward (up stage) and enclosed on the other three sides between rocky and wooded hills. In general appearance it is by far the most spacious of the three sets; and the only one in which the eye travels back into the extreme distance. At the beginning of the act, these details are invisible, for the time is about half after three in the morning of the same night as Act II; the moon has set, and there is not yet any sign of daybreak; the stage is as dark as is effectively possible—just light enough for the main outlines of the scene and actions of the characters to appear. The Roman Town is visible only by the tiny lights of the battle-fires on the walls and the moving sparks of torches all about, whose reflection glows dull red in the sky above it. And the roar of the battle is heard only as a faint, almost inaudible murmur.
Day breaks very gradually during the act; and the end takes place in brilliant sunlight, the brightest lighting of the entire play.

As the Curtain rises, the stage is empty and dark. It is at once apparent that the scene is the mouth of a hill-gorge ending in a steep slope with a valley and more hills opposite. But no more is to be seen and the eye is led from darkness to the Roman Town in the distance, aglow with the dim light of its own battle. Presently Nial and Enya come through the trees on the left. Nial crosses to the foot of the rocks; Enya goes up left to the edge of the slope.

NIAL: (as he enters) Here we can see, Mother.

ENYA: The town still holds—
I had hoped that red sky showed it all in flames . . .
And still no sign!
(She turns and gazes a moment up over the cliffs to the right, as if for a signal.)

NIAL: What are those tiny lights,
Gleaming like fireflies in the darkness there?
(Pointing toward the Town.)

ENYA: Torches.
How still the forest is—no wind,
Yet the trees move as if a storm were near . . .
(In the pause, the noise of distant battle is just audible.)
And listen! . . a dull murmur, like the sea . . .
(She moves back to the edge, and stands rigid with suspense.)
Fire . . . and a sound of battle.
Surely they Have had full time by this . . . !
How goes the night?

NIAL: (seated, unconcernedly, at the foot of the rocks) Not long now. In an hour it will be dawn.

ENYA: (moving about the stage uncontrollably, with wild gestures) Many there be shall never see that dawn—
God send our own be not among them . . . Yonder
Beneath that red glow, swords are swung, and shouts
Go up with groanings, and blood smokes and shines
In the flare of the battle-fires, and strong men fall,
And the press wavers—
(The black bulk of a raven flaps out of the forest and close over her head. She starts and cringes away, terrified, as the creature turns and flies straight toward the Town, growing smaller against the sky.)
—What was that?

NIAL: (quite unmoved) A raven . . .
Yet—it is strange:
(He rises, puzzled, and moves a little up stage, looking after it.)
He should not fly so soon,
Before the sun is risen . . .
Look! He flies
Southward, against the light . . . How red it is!—
As if all the battle had one angry soul . . .
(Casually, as he turns away; a little surprised that Enya pays no attention.)
Mother, the Little People are all gone
Under the hills. Our war drove them away;
They cannot live where there is hating.
(He seats himself as before. In the forest behind Enya a wolf howls, answered by another far away across the plain. She shrinks nervously toward Nial.)

ENYA: Hush!—
Listen . . . that sound there in the forest . . .

NIAL: (unconcerned, as before) Wolves . . .
(without rising)
Yet—it is strange! They should not cry so late,
After the setting of the moon.

ENYA: (hysterically) And still,
No tidings! Can the dogs hold out so long,
Asleep, surprised, outnumbered . . .
Will the fight
Never be done . . . ?
How many, how many of us
Whose hearts are struggling yonder watch and yearn
Through the void, endless hush, feeling their faith
Bleed away drop by drop and hour by hour!
Oh, I have waited many nights like this,
While flesh I bore spilled blood that came of me,
And the dawn brought the dead home!
(She drops, exhausted, at the foot of the boulder, to the left. The first suggestion of dawn appears: not light but a tinge of green in the blackness of the shadows, and a slight pallor of the sky. The red light fades above the battle, and at intervals the voices of birds are heard in the silences.)

NIAL: This is more Than I can understand . . . Somehow it seems
I should be wiser, seeing so much pain . . .
(He notices the change in the sky, and tries to interest her in that.)
Look! The light darkens.
(Enya starts to her feet and crosses up center, straining her eyes across the dusk.)
The stars fade. The dawn
Is coming . . .
There a bird wakes—Mother, hark!

ENYA: And still no tidings! Oh, if Gloom were but here!
(There is a crash in the brushwood down the path. A moment later, a man appears, running wildly up the slope—not Gloom, but a skin-clad Briton breathless, disheveled, and bloody. Enya rushes across to him and catches at his arm.)
Oh, what news of the battle? What news—
(The man flings himself free without a word, and crosses down left, at a staggering run. Then seeing Nial, he turns back, and scrambles up the rocks out of sight.)

NIAL: Fear!
His terror trails behind him like a smoke—
He is mad-afraid.

ENYA: Woe! Woe!
(An older man, wounded, draws himself up the path. She stops him.)
What tidings? How Went the battle?
(She clutches at his arm.)

THE OLD MAN: (breathlessly)
Nay, I know not—Let me go—
We were betrayed—They had been warned of us—
The fight goes on still—Let me pass—

ENYA: (clinging to him) Tell me,
What of Gloom? What of Arth?

THE OLD MAN: I know not—dead,
Most like—they were among the foremost—

ENYA: Mona,
The Queen, tell me of her—?

THE OLD MAN: I saw her last
Mounting a ladder, sword in hand, her hair Blown backward in the torchlight—
Let me go.
Woman!—I have told all—
(He breaks from her, and stumbles away into the forest, up left. All through the ensuing scene, scattered fugitives, men mostly, now and then a woman, scramble up the path, and hurry across and away either into the forest or up the rocks down right. In the pauses are heard the voices of awakening birds. Very slowly the sky pales to a dull flat gray, like the skin of a corpse; and the darkness fades into what is more a sickly weakening of night than any positive daybreak. It is light enough to distinguish facial expression, but there is no sign yet of sunrise, and the distance is still blank and misty. The greenish tinge of the light makes faces and foliage look unnaturally colorless.)

NIAL: It cannot be!
Gloom says, God promised us the victory!

ENYA: Lost . . ! Lost . . !
(Gloom stumbles in among the fugitives, half dragging, half carrying Mona. He can use only his left arm, for his right is broken near the shoulder, and he is wounded in the side. As he reaches the clear space, he releases Mona, who sinks dizzily upon the fallen tree up right, her head droops forward almost between her knees, and her arms reach limply outward and downward, the left against her left knee, the right hand, still grasping her sword, almost touching the ground: so that the lines of her arms and of her hair falling straight down over her face, suggest the Sign of the Name. Her scabbard is gone, her byrny dented and broken and her white robe stained with blood; but she is unwounded. Gloom totters a pace or two down stage and reels back against a sapling, his right arm hanging useless and his left hand pressed to his side. Enya runs to him and clings about his neck.)

ENYA: Gloom!

GLOOM: (flinging her savagely away) Off! . . . My arm!—
Hast thou no eyes? Fool!

ENYA: (lamenting, not protesting) Oh, my son, my son!

GLOOM: Broken. Let be. It is all over.

ENYA: Arth—
Thy father?—

GLOOM: Dead.

ENYA: (softly) I knew it . . .

GLOOM: They were awake,
Under arms, waiting for us—their garrison
Swelled to an army, sentries on the plain,
Fires ready on the walls—what could we do?
One traitor is more strong than many swords—
Our Gwynn did his work well!

ENYA: (trying, with grotesque tenderness, to quiet him and lead him away) Gloom, thou art hurt—
Come thou home—let thy mother bind thy wounds—
Nay, lean on me . . .

GLOOM: (pushing her away, but more gently than before) Let be. I have my death Already—

ENYA: (hysterical again) All that remained to me—my son,
My husband that was young with me—

GLOOM: (with a savage gesture)
Be still!
Thou wilt have time enough for wailing.
(Mona raises herself wearily to a sitting position, pushing back her hair, and looking dully and steadily before her. Her grief is sharply contrasted with Enya's hysterical and noisy lamentation. It is the quiet, stony pathos of a great nature crushed beyond the relief of complaint: she seems rather to wonder than to regret. Her manner is like the manner with which she received the revelation of her mission in Act I: a stroke of something too sudden and too great for her to understand.)

MONA: Gloom,
Why didst thou bring me here? I might have died
Yonder, and not known.

GLOOM: Any place will serve
To die in.

MONA: (rising, and coming down slowly between Enya and Gloom) They all trusted me—the women
Waiting for love, and the sweet-eyed young men,
The mothers, and the merry children—all
Holding by me to make them happier—
And I . . . I trusted God.

GLOOM: Thou didst not well:
God smiles alone in the white stillness, calm
Beyond all worlds, over all years, beholding
All pain, remembering all death unmoved.
He mocks us with a future half foreknown.

MONA: God forgive me!

GLOOM: (sourly) Bah!
Let us be honest! What has God to do?—
I sicken at all these holy melancholies—
Thou hadst a vanity, and a girl's dream
Of huge deeds and high services; for me,
I had a lust for lordship. I hated Rome,
And hated more that sweet boy-lover of thine—
His delicate heats and spirit-perfumes; then,
Too, I loved thy bright body. Good! We strove,
As others do, after our own desire—
We failed. Well, we shall die.

MONA: (forcing herself still to believe in him) This is thy pain Speaking . . . It is not like thyself—

ENYA: Gloom, Gloom,
Thou art a priest!—

GLOOM: I was. I am a man
Now. Presently I shall be less . . .
What, ashamed
At a soul's nakedness? We dress ourselves
In decencies of motive day by day,
Till our own hearts hide from us, and we march
On proudly, leading God. Oh, we believe
Our high words while we speak them! No desire for praise in Mona, nor in me for her—
All was for Britain!
(He sinks back, exhausted, on the rocks to the right, overcome by his own bitter violence and his increasing weakness. Enya rushes to him and raises his head. Mona, sickened by his blasphemy and groping in her own conscience, stands motionless down center. Nial, as always utterly unconscious in the presence of emotion, crosses up left, looking up into the trees and out across the valley. The tops of the distant hills are touched with the first slant of sunlight, and the sky tinges with rose and saffron toward the southeast. On the stage, under the shade of the cliffs, there is plenty of light to see by, but the shadows are still purplish, and the colors vague and dull; there is no green in the foliage yet, nor blue in the sky.)

NIAL: Mona, see—the dawn
Is coming! All the birds waken.
(Gloom groans and stirs. Mona turns to Enya, a new horror of self-distrust in her eyes.)

MONA: Mother,
What if he spoke truth! What if I did all
For myself, not for Britain . . .

ENYA: Child, who doubts thee?
He knew not what he said.

MONA: He is a Bard . . .
It was the voice of God that spoke in him.
(The sword clasped across her breast.)
I knew Gwynn faithless—why did I save him?
His life meant death to Britain; but I heard
My own blind heart crying for him. God knows
There was a moment when I gave up all—

All I was given life for, my whole use,
Britain, and many hopes, and my great dream—
Only to feel the glory of his arms
Around me in the night, only to see
His eyes between me and the stars, only
To know I could not struggle!

NIAL: Is it wrong
To love, then?

MONA: (to herself, softly)
One whose face I could not see,
Who strove to snatch away my sword . . .
(Gwynn enters hurriedly down left in his Roman dress. At sight of them he pauses astonished.) GWYNN: Mona!—The fight is done, then.

—Art thou safe,
Unharmed . . . ?

GLOOM: What dost thou here, traitor?

GWYNN: (too much concerned with what is to be done to grow excited on his own account: speaking rapidly.) My guards Fled with the rest . . . I am no traitor; all
This night's blood, if ye had but listened to me,
I had saved. Give thanks to God! I am in time
Even now to save your own.

GLOOM: I will yet spoil
Thy triumph!—Give me that sword—
(He staggers forward, trying to take the sword from Mona; but his strength fails in spite of fury, and he falls back, half fainting. Enya and Nial support him. Mona turns upon Gwynn in a rage of scorn.)

MONA: Roman, begone
Among thy kindred!—if perchance, even there
Among that carrion brood, any endure
Thy kinship unashamed! Thou save us!—who Would owe thee life? Look on thyself! False friend, False Bard, false lover. Thou hast done thy work—
Leave it! God sickens to hear thee speak his name,
And men take shame of thy humanity—
Why dost thou stand there breeding new lies? Go—
Leave us clean air to die in!

GWYNN: (facing her) Be silent now . . . !
There is more shame to thee saying these things
Than me to hear them. Look at me . . . Is this Falsehood? If there were any reason in thy rage,
Could I endure to hear it—and from thee?
Answer me . . .
(Their eyes fight; but he knows, and she is only certain. Hers fall first. Gwynn goes on slowly and emphatically.) Hear one word now that clears all:
The Governor of Britain is my own father—
I am his son—dost thou hear?
(None of them believes. Mona, seeing instantly all that it would mean, sees also how clever a lie it might be; and her faith in Gwynn has been hurt to death. Enya doubts merely because it fits in with everything so perfectly—a weak mind's instinctive suspicion of finality. Gloom receives it with a sour howl of derision.)

GLOOM: Only the son
Of the Governor? Only the son? Tell the whole truth! Say
The Governor himself—the Emperor
Come from Rome—hail, Caesar!

ENYA: Nay, it may be . . .

MONA: (wearily, turning away from him) Gwynn, thou hast lied already many times—
There is no need of other words.

GWYNN: My word
Speaks for Rome. Giving it for peace, I bind
The legions. Binding me, ye loosed them. Come
With me now to my father, make an end
Of this rebellion ere yet more be slain;
Give peace to Britain, and bind up her wounds.

MONA: (monotonously) The blood of all our slain cries out on thee,
The tears of all our women fall on thee,
The groans of all our captives answer thee,
Till thy life answer for their lives undone!
(She stands looking blindly into space, the sword clasped to her breast, hearing nothing.)

GWYNN: For their sake, wait no longer! Thou shalt learn
If I speak truth—

NIAL: I cannot understand
All this of truths and traitors; but I know
That Gwynn is good: I know that!

ENYA: It may be . . .
It may be . . .

GLOOM: Nay, go kiss thy lover, girl!
(Mona does not seem to hear; and her next three lines are spoken as to herself. That which is rising up in her is the death of Gwynn; but the others, each from his own point of view, mistake it for hesitation.)

GWYNN: Mona . . . come!

MONA: —One whose face I could not see . . .

GWYNN: Many shall die while we delay—Think not
Of me; save thine own people!

MONA: —One who strove
To snatch away my sword . . .

NIAL: There is a mist
About thy face, Gwynn—

MONA: —Therefore I smote . . .

GWYNN: Nay, then,
I dare not tarry longer, even for thee—
Guard her, Nial.
(He turns away up stage, toward the path. Mona turns, and takes a step toward him, speaking mechanically, in a dry voice: her tone and gesture are a ghastly parody of surrender.)

MONA: Gwynn . . . I am very weary . . .

NIAL: (springing forward, frightened for the first time in his life)
Mona . . . !
Great God! . . thy shadow!
(Gwynn turns back to her eagerly, and takes her in his arms. Her head droops forward upon his shoulder, and her left arm slips around his neck; her right hand, holding the sword, hangs at her side. The pose is precisely the same as when Gwynn was wounded ominously in Act I.)

GWYNN: Love, now all is done
And we may yet save all!
(She holds him close an instant, then suddenly brings the sword up with her free hand, and drives it into his throat. He falls limp in her arms, dying.)

ENYA: What hast thou done—
O Child, what hast thou done—!
(The body of Gwynn slips from Mona's hold, and falls at her feet, just below the rock on the left. She stands over him with the sword.)

MONA: I have proved myself.
There lies my sacrifice.

NIAL: For evermore,
Thou shalt not see his face . . .

GWYNN: Mona . . . my father . . .
(A slight struggle, and he is dead. There is a pause, through which are heard the joyous noises of the forest. The sunlight floods the valley, gleaming white upon the Roman Town, and strikes through the tree-tops from right to left. The stage itself is still in shadow, from the cliffs. Gloom gets to his feet, and totters over to where Mona stands motionless above the body, gazing into space.)

GLOOM: Nay,
Now I believe all! . . . Let me look upon him . . .
At least, he cannot triumph over me . . . !
(He turns back to his place, feebly.)

NIAL: He cannot answer.

ENYA: Let him be; by this
He has paid all.

GLOOM: (turning upon her, as he is about to sink upon the rocks to the right, with a last outburst of logical anger) Paid? By his death? Aye, so—
Then for what evil must I pay with mine?
How should we two deserve alike, whose hearts
Opposed like East and West? The shame of one Honors the other—See now our reward:
Both dead, both brought to shame, both overthrown—
Behold, O God, thy justice!
(He raises his arms above his head in a furious gesture that travesties the Sign of the Name, reels, and falls back fainting upon the rocks. Mona neither sees nor hears. As Enya is bending over Gloom, Nial comes down a little, looking curiously at a point in the air seven or eight feet above the body of Gwynn.)

NIAL: Mother, look—
Is Gwynn quite dead? He is not far away . . .

ENYA: (turns, startled and glances at the body, then speaks with the irritation of fright) Nial, have I not seen death enough to know—?
He is mere earth, I tell thee—

NIAL: Look—his shadow
Shines in the air above him, like a mist
Over the moon . . . See, close above us—there—
Bound to his body with a golden chain,
And shimmering like the wind above a fire—
He seems to listen and to wait . . .
(The others, tense with horror, are gazing where he points, but seeing nothing. There is a short pause.)
(The body of Gwynn lies just below the rock on the left, Mona standing above and a little to left of it. Nial is up center, Gloom lying back against the rocks on the right, and Enya below and further to the right. In the hush, the rhythm of the Roman march, heard in Act II, begins to be heard: at first very softly, then gradually louder and nearer.)

MONA: A murmur of many voices, like a storm
Over the sea . . .

ENYA: (crossing up center, and looking over the cliff) The legions!

MONA: —And a sound
Of men marching to battle, Romans marching Steadily to battle.
(She moves to the center of the stage, looking up left, to the head of the path. Nial goes up left. Gloom lies still upon the rocks. The Roman music grows louder and louder.)

GLOOM: Save yourselves—
There is yet time. I wait here.

ENYA: Tell me, what
Have we to save?

NIAL: There is a cloud over the moon . . .
Cloud and storm.

MONA: Forest and cloud and a murmuring of the sea . . .
Surely my dreams remember . . .
(The sunlight, which has darkened while she spoke, clears; and the light striking over the cliffs, fills the whole stage with a blaze of direct sunlight.)

ENYA: (with Mona and Nial) I can see them
Winding up the long pathway from the plain,
A multitude of spears. Welcome, wolves!
(A Briton, with an arrow through him, runs up the path, stumbles down right, and falls dead at the foot of the rocks, just above the curtain.)

GLOOM: Welcome, wolves!
(The stage fills with Roman Soldiers, entering by the path on the right. Most of them are legionaries in their panoply; a few archers. Gloom and Nial are surrounded and made prisoners at once. Enya retreats down right, as The Soldiers press forward. Mona remains left center. Among the last, The Governor enters, and steps up right. Gwynn's body, from where he stands, is hidden by the boulder. The Soldiers pay no attention to it; a corpse more or less does not concern them.)

MONA: (as the soldiers march in) Now,
The end comes . . .

THE GOVERNOR: Guard that woman!
(Mona is surrounded by soldiers. He looks from her to the others.)
Where is he Whom ye call Gwynn?

NIAL: Yonder—above himself . . .

GLOOM: (relishingly) There is a Roman spy here. He is dead.

THE GOVERNOR: Dead!—
(Coming down center, he sees the body. The Soldiers turn the face upward. He stands looking.) GLOOM: Past rewarding!

THE GOVERNOR: It is he . . .
(savagely)
Who hath done
This thing?

MONA: It was I.

THE GOVERNOR: Thou! A woman . . .

MONA: One
That might have been a woman.

THE GOVERNOR: (softly) Be thou sure
Of paying for this blood . . .

GLOOM: Since he has paid,
What matter? He betrayed us. He is dead.
Thou hast thy triumph. Eat it.

THE GOVERNOR: (with sudden fierceness) Dogs, ye have slain
Your own last hope of mercy—the one soul
Roman-born that had care for you.
These years
He hath made your peace with Rome, won back for you
Old liberties, given you the strength to dream
Of new conspiracy! But for his faith,
I should have broken you between my hands
In the beginning. Day by day, I spared
The sword, watching your fools' rebellion boil
Unpunished. He defended you; he died
Striving to save your miserable lives
From your own folly! I have said.
(His grief breaking through his anger.)
My son . . .
My son . . . !

MONA: (slowly, in a dry voice) Thy son!—Who art thou?
(The Governor, still gazing at Gwynn's face and fighting for self-control, pays no heed; it is The Soldiers who answer in a fierce and gathering murmur.)

THE SOLDIERS: Governor
Of Britain—Governor and lord for Rome!

ENYA: O Child, what hast thou done?

THE GOVERNOR: She shall have time
To learn—
(A soldier gives him the sword, which has been taken from Mona. He takes it mechanically, and stands still gazing at Gwynn's body.)

MONA: (to herself) So that was God's voice, after all!
That weakness, that strange fear of Gwynn's glad eyes,
That warm pain in my blood answering him,
That little, foolish whisper in my heart
All night long, that I put away from me,
Smothering it with huge dreams!
That was all
God asked of me—only to drink my joy,
Only to be a woman, only to cease
From struggling, rest so, and be drowsy-glad
Like a child comforted! It was too slight
A service for great ends—too small, too sweet—
Any one could have done so much!
(With gradually increasing passion, turning to the others.)
Ah, Gloom!
And thou, Mother, in dream-lore deeply wise—
Thou who hast known a child's lips on thy breast
And life beginning in the dark
. . . and thou,
Nial, whose blind heart makes our wisdom vain—
Could ye not tell me how great dreams pass by
As a storm blows down the wind, while beauty grows
Day by day out of a thousand littlenesses,
As the rain swells the flood and fills the sea,
Till all things take one answer?—
(Coming out of her inspiration—more quietly, awakening to the realities about her.)
I might have died
Yonder, and not known.—See, how Earth holds up
Her freshness to the summer, and the light
Laughs over living green, and the birds are glad,
And the sweet blossoms brighten in the sun,
And all the bitter beauty of the day
Makes merry with my sorrow—And I go
To walk alive among dead hours, and see
Pitiless faces and the mirth of men
Whose eyes are evil, and be fawned upon
By strange hands . . . for I cannot even keep My faith to him that died because of me,
Nor in a clean death lay my body down
Beside his body . . . I must bear my time,
Having done no good thing, remembering all—
And there will be so many other days,
So many other days . . .
(She turns from Gwynn to The Governor, quietly.)
Give me the sword—
It is mine. . . .
(Misunderstanding her purpose, he steps back, motioning to The Soldiers to restrain her. She looks him in the face almost with a smile.)
Dost thou think I can still fear?
I loved him . . . and I killed him . . .
Bear with me
A little.
(She takes the sword, and kneels down by Gwynn's body, laying it across his breast.)
Take the sword now. It is thine.
Thou hast done well for Britain.
For myself,
I have done only what I must have done,
Being myself, holding by mine own sight
And mine own blindness. I have sought beyond
Love, and above beauty, turning away
From God, to point what way the world should go,
Scorning my life because I found it fair,
Following the white fire of endeavor down
Under the last horizon, where stars fail
And the sea takes me, and the night ends all,
And the brave deeds I was too brave to do
Slumber, forgotten . . .
(She lays her hands upon Gwynn's, bending over him.)
Love, I could not be
A woman, loved and loving, could not bear
Motherhood and the wise ordinary joys
Of day by day . . . All that I had to give
I gave thee . . . I have known thy heart . . . Farewell.
(She bends down and kisses him on the forehead.)
Forgive . . .
(She rises, and stands among The Soldiers.)
Do your will now.
(They bind her hands.)
I have had dreams—
Only great dreams . . .
A woman would have won.

La Serva Padrona (1733)

The Maid-Mistress

MUSIC BY GIOVANNI BATTISTA PERGOLESI ■ LIBRETTO BY GENNARO ANTONIO FEDERICO

This intermezzo in two parts, set to a libretto by Gennaro Antonio Federico, was first performed between acts of Pergolesi's opera Il Prigionier Superbo. The premiere took place at the Teatro San Bartolomeo in Naples on August 28, 1733. The story concerns Uberto, an old bachelor whose household is managed by his maid, Serpina. He is tired of giving in to her every whim, and he decides to find a wife. He sends his servant, Vespone, off to search for a woman who will be submissive, never minding whether she is beautiful or ugly. Serpina knows very well how much Uberto secretly cares for her and decides that she will be the one to marry him. She announces that she plans to marry a man named Captain Tempesta and gives a description of this man to Uberto. But she draws such a terrifying picture of this man that Uberto, in his concern for her welfare, asks to meet him. Vespone, who is encouraging her in this matter, disguises himself as Captain Tempesta and presents himself to Uberto. Serpina then takes Uberto aside and tells him that Tempesta will marry her only if the old man pays him a stupendous dowry. If Uberto refuses, the captain will insist that Uberto himself marry her. Uberto happily agrees to the second suggestion, making Serpina the mistress of the house rather than a mere servant.

Camera.	A Room.
Uberto non interamente vestito, e Vespone di lui servo, poi Serpina.	Uberto, not fully dressed, and Vespone, his servant. Then Serpina.
UBERTO: Aspettare e non venire, Stare a letto e non dormire, Ben servire e non gradire, Son tre cose da morire, Questa è per me disgrazia, Son tre ore che aspetto, E la mia serva Portarmi il cioccolatte non fa grazia, Ed io d'uscire ho fretta. A flemma benedetta! Or si, che vedo Che per esser sì buono con costei, La causa son di tutti i mali miei. (Chiama Serpina vicino alla scena.) Serpina . . . Vien domani. (A Vespone.) E tu altro che fai? A che qui te ne stai Come un balocco? Come? che dici? eh sciocco! Vanne, rompiti presto il collo, Sollecita; Vedi che fa, Gran fatto! Io m'ho cresciuta Questa serva piccina, L'ho fatta di carezze, L'ho tenuta come mia figlia fosse! Or elle ha preso perciò Tanta arroganza, Fatta è si superbona Che alfin di serva diverrà padrona. Ma bisogna risolvermi in buon'ora . . . E quest altro babbio ci è morto ancora.	UBERTO: To wait and not to come, To be in bed and not to sleep, To serve well and not to please, Are enough to make one die. It is a disgrace to me. I wait three hours And my servant Does not deign to bring my chocolate, And I am in a hurry to go out. O blessed patience Now I know That my being so good to her Is the cause of all my troubles. (Calls Serpina near the stage.) Serpina— She's coming tomorrow. (To Vespone.) And what are you doing? Why are you standing here Like a ninny? How? What do you have to say? Fool! Go, break your neck, Make haste; See what she's doing. Fine work! I have brought up This little servant, Have caressed her, Have kept her as if she were my daughter! But she has on that account Assumed such arrogance, Has become so haughty, That at last the servant will become a mistress. But I must soon make up my mind— And that other fool is as good as dead, too. Have you finished?
SERPINA: (a Vespone). L'hai finita? Ho bisogno che tu mi sgridi? E pure Io non sto comoda, ti dissi.	SERPINA: (to Vespone). Must you scold me? And yet you said I am not useful.
UBERTO: Brava!	UBERTO: Bravo!
SERPINA: (a Vespone). E torna! Se il padrone ha fretta, non l'ho Il sai?	SERPINA: (to Vespone). Come back! Do you know it? I'm not in a hurry even if the master is.
UBERTO: Bravissima.	UBERTO: Bravo!
SERPINA: (a Vespone). Di nuovo! Oh tu da senno Vai stuzzicando la pazienza mia, E vuoi che un par dischiaffi alfin! (Batte Vespone).	SERPINA: (to Vespone). Again! You really vex me to the end of my patience. You must want me to box your ears. (Hits Vespone.)
UBERTO: Olà, dove si stà? olà, Serpina! Non ti vuoi fermare?	UBERTO: Stop, what's the matter with you? Stop, Serpina! Won't you ever stop?
SERPINA: Lasciatemi insegnare La creanza a quel birbo.	SERPINA: Let me teach that rascal manners.
UBERTO: Ma in presenza del padrome?	UBERTO: But in the master's presence?
SERPINA: Adunque Perch'io son serva, Ho da esser sopraffatta, Ho da esser maltrattata? No signor Voglio esser rispettata, Voglio esser riverita Come fossi padrona, arcipadrona Padronissima.	SERPINA: Then, Because I am a servant, Must I be overburdened; Must I be maltreated? No, sir. I want to be respected, I want to be revered, As if I were mistress, head mistress, The highest of mistresses.
UBERTO: Che diavol ha Vossignoria illustrissima? Sentiamo, che fu?	UBERTO: What in the devil is the matter with you, Your Excellence? Let's hear, what was the trouble?
SERPINA: Cotesto impertinente . . .	SERPINA: That impertinent fellow . . .
UBERTO: (accennando a Vespone.) Questo? tu . . .	UBERTO: (pointing at Vespone.) He who? You!
SERPINA: Venne a me . . .	SERPINA: Come to me—

UBERTO: Questo, t'ho detto?

SERPINA: E con modi si impropri . . .

UBERTO: (a Vespone). Questo . . . Che tu sii maledetto.

SERPINA: Ma me la pagherai.

UBERTO: Io costui t'inviai . . .

SERPINA: Ed a che fare?

UBERTO: A che far?
Non ti ho chiesto il cioccolatte, io?

SERPINA: Ben, e per questo?

UBERTO: E m'ha da uscir l'anima
Aspettando che mi si porti?

SERPINA: E quando
Voi prenderlo dovete?

UBERTO: Adesso. Quando?

SERPINA: E vi par ora questa?
È tempo ormai di dover desinare.

UBERTO: Adunque?

SERPINA: Adunque?
Io già nol preparai.
Voi di men ne farete, pardon mio bello,
E ve ne cheterete.

UBERTO: Vespone, ora che ho preso il cioccolatte già,
Dimmi: buon pro vi faccia e sanità.
(Vespone ride.)

SERPINA: Di che ride quell-asino?

UBERTO: Di me,
Che ho più flemma d'una bestia.
Ma io bestia non sarò,
Più flemma non avrò,
Il giogo scuoterò,
E quel che non ho fatto alfin farò!
(A Serpina.)
Sempre in contrasti
Con te si stà.
E qua e là,
E su e giù,
E sì e no.
Or questo basti,
Finir si può.
(A Vespone.)
Ma che ti pare?
Ho io a crepare?
Signor mio no.
(A Serpina.)
Però dovrai
Per sempre piangere
La tua disgrazia,
E allor dirai
Che ben ti stà.
(A Vespone.)
Che dici tu?
Non è così?
Ah! . . . che! . . . no! . . .
Ma così va!
Sempre in contrasti, ecc.

SERPINA: In somma delle somme
Per attender al vostro bene
Io mal ne ho da ricevere?

UBERTO: He, he said?

SERPINA: And in such an improper way—

UBERTO: (to Vespone). He who . . . Let there be curses on you.

SERPINA: But he'll pay me for it.

UBERTO: I sent him to you—

SERPINA: What for?

UBERTO: What for?
Didn't I ask you for chocolate?

SERPINA: Well, and for this?

UBERTO: And must I die of impatience
Till you bring it to me?

SERPINA: And when
Must you take it?

UBERTO: Now. When?

SERPINA: And do you think now's the time?
It's time to dine.

UBERTO: Then?

SERPINA: Then?
I'll not prepare it.
You can do without it, dear sir,
And you'll keep still about it, too.

UBERTO: Vespone, now that I have already taken my chocolate,
Tell me: may you have health and happiness.
(Vespone laughs.)

SERPINA: What is the fool laughing at?

UBERTO: At me,
Who has more patience than a beast;
But I'll not be a beast,
I'll not be patient,
I'll shake off the yoke,
And I'll do what I have never done before!
(To Serpina.)
I am ever quarrelling
With you
And here and there,
And up and down,
And yes and no.
Now it's enough.
Now it must end.
(To Vespone.)
But what do you think?
Must I die?
No, my sir, no.
(To Serpina.)
But you
Ought always weep
At your disgrace,
And then you'll say
That you're well off here.
(To Vespone.)
What do you say?
It is not so?
Ah! no!
But so goes it,
Ever quarrelling, etc.

SERPINA: In short,
Must I be insulted for waiting upon you?

UBERTO: (a Vespone). Poveretta! la senti?

SERPINA: Per aver di voi cura, io, sventurata,
Debbo esser maltrattata?

UBERTO: Ma questo non va bene.

SERPINA: Burlate, si!

UBERTO: Ma questo non conviene.

SERPINA: E pur?
Qualche rimorso aver dovreste
Di farmi e dirmi ciò che dite e fate.

UBERTO: Così è,
Da dottoressa voi parlate.

SERPINA: Voi mi state sui scherzi,
Ed io m'arrabbio.

UBERTO: Non v'arrabbiate,
Capperi, ha ragione.
(A Vespone.)
Tu non sai che dir?
Va dentro, prendimi il capello,
La spada ed il bastone, chè voglio uscir.

SERPINA: Mirate. Non ne fate una buona,
E poi Serpina è
Di poco giudizio.

UBERTO: Ma lei
Che diamine vuol mai dai fatti miei?

SERPINA: Non vo' che usciate adesso,
Gli è mezzodì.
Dove volete andare?
Andatevi a spogliare.

UBERTO: E il gran malanno
Che mi faresti . . .

SERPINA: Oibò, non occorre altro.
Io vo' così,
Non uscirete,
Io l'uscio a chiave chiuderò.

UBERTO: Ma parmi questa
Massima impertinenza.

SERPINA: Eh sì suonate.

UBERTO: Serpina,
Il sai, che rotta m'hai la testá?

SERPINA: Stizzoso, mio stizzoso,
Voi fate il borioso.
Ma non vi può giovare,
Bisogna al mio divieto
Star cheto, e non parlare.
Z . . . Serpina vuol così.
Cred'io che m'intendete,
Da che mi conoscete
Son molti e molti dì.
Stizzoso, mio stizzoso, ecc.

UBERTO: Benissimo.
(A Vespone.)
Ora al suo loco
Ogni cosa porrà vossignoria,
Chè la padrona mia
Vuol ch'io non esca.

UBERTO: (to Vespone). Poor thing! Do you hear her?

SERPINA: For caring for you, unfortunate me,
Must I be maltreated?

UBERTO: But that is not right.

SERPINA: You are ridiculing me!

UBERTO: But that oughtn't to be so.

SERPINA: And yet?
You must have some remorse,
For doing and telling me what you have said and done.

UBERTO: You talk like a teacher.

SERPINA: You are making fun of me,
And I grow furious.

UBERTO: Don't get angry,
She's right.
(To Vespone.) You don't know what to say?
Go and get me my hat,
My sword and cane, for I want to go out.

SERPINA: Look; you can't make her good,
And besides, Serpina has little judgment.

UBERTO: But she,
Why in the devil does she interfere with my business?

SERPINA: I don't want you to go out now.
It is noon.
Where do you want to go?
Go and undress.

UBERTO: And the great wretchedness
You caused me—

SERPINA: Shame! That's all that was wanting.
I want it so,
Do not go out,
I'll lock the door.

UBERTO: But this seems to me
The greatest impertinence.

SERPINA: Well, ring then.

UBERTO: Serpina,
Do you know you have made my head split?

SERPINA: Irascible, you play the proud one
But it can't help you any.
You must remain quiet
At my prohibition and not speak.
Serpina wants it so.
I believe you understand me,
For it is many, many days
That you know me.
Irascible, etc.

UBERTO: Very well.
(To Vespone.)
Did you understand?
Now you'll put everything
Back in its place,
For my mistress
Doesn't want me to go out.

SERPINA: Così va bene.
Hai tu inteso?
(A Vespone.)
Andate, e non v'increasca.
(Vespone vuol partire e poi si ferma.)
Tu ti fermi? tu guardi?
Ti meravigli, e che vuol dir?

UBERTO: Si, fermati, guardami,
Meravigliati,
Fammi de' scherni,
Chiamami asinone,
Dammi anche un mascellone,
Ch'io cheto mi starò,
Anzi la man allor ti bacierò.
(Uberto bacia la mano a Vespone.)

SERPINA: Che fa . . . che fate?

UBERTO: Scostati, malvagia,
Vattene insolentaccia,
In ogni conto vo' finirla.
Vespone,
In questo punto trovami una moglie,
E sia anche un'arpia,
A suo dispetto
Io mi voglio accasare.
Così non dovrò stare
A questa manigolda più soggetto.

SERPINA: Oh! qui cade l'asino!
Casatevi, che fate ben; l'approvo.

UBERTO: L'approvate?
Manco mal, l'approvò,
Dunque io mi caserò.

SERPINA: E prenderete me?

UBERTO: Te!

SERPINA: Certo.

UBERTO: Affè.

SERPINA: Affè.

UBERTO: Io non so chi mi
tien . . .
Dammi il bastone . . .
(A Vespone.)
Tanto ardir!

SERPINA: Oh! voi far e dir potrete
Che null'altra che me sposar dovrete.

UBERTO: Vattene, figlia, mia.

SERPINA: Voleste dir mia sposa.

UBERTO: O stelle! o sorte!
Questa è per me morte.

SERPINA: O morte o vita,
Così esser dee:
L'ho fisso nel pensiero.

UBERTO: Questo è un altro diavolo più nero.

UBERTO: Lo conosco a quegli occhietti
Furbi, ladri, malignetti,
Che, sebben voi dite no,
Pur m'accennano di sì.

UBERTO: Signorina, v'ingannate,
Troppo in alto voi volate,
Gli occhi ed io vi dicon no,
Ed è un sogno questo, sì.

SERPINA: That's right.
(To Vespone.)
Go, and don't regret it.
(Vespone wants to go and then stops.)
You stop? You look?
You wonder what does it mean?

UBERTO: Yes, stop, look at me.
Wonder,
Mock me,
Call me a donkey,
Give me a slap
So that I'll keep still
Or I'll kiss your hand.
(Uberto kisses Vespone's hand.)

SERPINA: What are you doing?

UBERTO: Get away, you villain,
Go away, you insolent one.
I want to finish it at all cost.
Vespone,
Find me a wife this very moment,
And be she even a harpy,
In spite of her
I want to marry.
I must not remain
Thus governed by this rogue.

SERPINA: Oh, the devil take him!
Marry and you do well; I approve of it.

UBERTO: You approve?
It only wanted your approval,
Therefore I'll marry.

SERPINA: And will you take me?

UBERTO: You?

SERPINA: Certainly.

UBERTO: Upon my faith.

SERPINA: Upon my faith.

UBERTO: I don't know who holds me—
Give me a stick—
(To Vespone). Such impudence.

SERPINA: Oh, you can say that
You must marry no one but me.

UBERTO: Go, my daughter.

SERPINA: You mean my wife.

UBERTO: O stars! O fate!
This is death for me.

SERPINA: Whether life or death,
Thus must it be:
I have it fixed in my mind.

UBERTO: Oh, she's a devil.

SERPINA: I know it by the little eyes,
Roguish, thievish, wicked,
Which, though you say no,
Really mean yes.

UBERTO: Young lady, you're mistaken.
You fly too high,
My eyes and I say no.
And this yes is but a dream.

SERPINA: Ma perchè?
Non son bella,
Graziosa
E spirotosa?
Su, mirate,
Leggiadria,
Ve' che brio,
Che maestà.

UBERTO: (Ah! costei
Mi va tentando
Quanto val, che me la fa.)
Là, là, larà, là, là.

SERPINA: (Ei mi par Che va calando.)
Via signore.

UBERTO: Eh! vanne via.

SERPINA: Risolvete.

UBERTO: Eh! matta sei.

SERPINA: Son per voi
Gli affetti miei
E dovrete sposar me.

UBERTO: Ah che imbroglio egli è per me!

Camera.
Serpina e Vespone in abito da soldato, poi Uberto vestito per uscire.

SERPINA: Or che fatto ti sei
Dalla mia parte,
Usa, Vespone, ogn'arte:
Se l'inganno ha il suo effetto;
Se del padrone io giungo ad esser sposa,
Tu da me chiedi, e avrai,
Di casa tu sarai
Il secondo padrone, io tel prometto.

UBERTO: Io crederei, che la mia serva adesso,
Anzi, per meglio dir, la mia padrona,
D'uscir di casa mi darà permesso.

SERPINA: Ecco, guardate:
Senza la mia licenza
Pur si volle vestir.

UBERTO: Or sì, che al sommo
Giunta è sua impertinenza.
Temeraria!
E di nozze richiedermi ebbe ardir.

SERPINA: (a Vespone.)
T'asconderai per ora in quella stanza.
E a suo tempo uscirai.

UBERTO: O qui sta ella.
Facciamo nostro dover.
Posso o non posso?
Vuole o non vuol la mia padrona bella? . . .

SERPINA: Eh, signor, già per me è finito il gioco,
E più tedio fra poco
Per me non sentirà.

UBERTO: Cred'io che no.

SERPINA: Prenderà moglie già.

UBERTO: Cred'io che sì, ma
Non prenderò te.

SERPINA: Cred'io che no.

SERPINA: But why?
Am I not pretty,
Graceful,
And lovely?
Just look
What grace;
See what spirit,
What majesty.

UBERTO: (Ah, she Goes tempting me,
As much as she can, that I do it.)
Là, là, larà, là, là.

SERPINA: (It seems to me!
He's going to fall.)
Away, sir.

UBERTO: Ah, go away?

SERPINA: Make up your mind.

UBERTO: You're mad.

SERPINA: My affections are for you,
And you must marry me.

UBERTO: Oh, what troubles I have!

Serpina, and Vespone (in soldier's uniform); then Uberto (dressed to go out).

SERPINA: Now that you have gone over
To my side,
Use all art, Vespone:
If deceit has an effect;
If I end by being the master's wife,
You ask of me and you shall have,
You'll be the second master,
I promise you.

UBERTO: I should believe that my servant,
Or rather, to say my mistress,
Will give me permission to go out.

SERPINA: Look here;
Without my permission
You wanted to dress.

UBERTO: Now her impertinence
Has reached the climax.
Rash one!
And she was bold enough to ask me in marriage.

SERPINA: (to Vespone.) I'll hide you now in that room,
And you'll go out when it's time.

UBERTO: Now you stay here.
Let us to business.
May I or may I not?
Is my fair mistress willing, or not?

SERPINA: Ah, sir, now all joking is over for me,
And soon you'll no longer be annoyed by me.

UBERTO: I don't believe it.

SERPINA: You'll take a wife.

UBERTO: Yes, I will; but not you.

SERPINA: I don't believe it.

UBERTO: Oh! affatto così è.	UBERTO: Oh, but it's so.
SERPINA: Cred'io che sì: Ma d'uopo è ancor ch'io pensi a' casi miei.	SERPINA: Yes, I believe it. But now I must think of my affairs.
UBERTO: Pensaci, far lo dèi.	UBERTO: Think of them, you must.
SERPINA: Io ci ho pensato.	SERPINA: I have thought of them.
UBERTO: E ben?	UBERTO: Well?
SERPINA: Per me un marito io m'ho trovato.	SERPINA: I have found a husband.
UBERTO: Buon pro vi faccia. E lo trovaste a un tratto Così già detto e fatto?	UBERTO: May you have good luck, And did you find him As quickly as you said it?
SERPINA: Più in un'ora venir suol che in cent'anni.	SERPINA: The sooner the better.
UBERTO: Alla buon'ora! Posso saper chi egli è?	UBERTO: Well and good! May I know who he is?
SERPINA: L'è un militaire.	SERPINA: He's a soldier.
UBERTO: Ottimo affè. Come si fa chiamare?	UBERTO: That's fine. What's his name?
SERPINA: Il capitan Tempesta.	SERPINA: Captain Tempest.
UBERTO: Oh! brutto nome.	UBERTO: What an ugly name.
SERPINA: E al nome Sono i fatti corrispondenti, Egli è poco flemmatico.	SERPINA: And his other traits Are as ugly as the name. He is a little phlegmatic.
UBERTO: Male.	UBERTO: That's bad.
SERPINA: Anzi è lunatico.	SERPINA: Or rather, he's a lunatic.
UBERTO: Peggio.	UBERTO: Still worse.
SERPINA: Va presto in collera.	SERPINA: He gets angry very quickly.
UBERTO: Pessimo.	UBERTO: That's dreadful.
SERPINA: E quando poi è incollerito, Fa ruina, scompigli, Fracassi, un via, via.	SERPINA: And when he is angry He ruins, he throws around, He breaks without end.
UBERTO: Ci anderà mal la vostra signoria.	UBERTO: You'll be having a wretched life.
SERPINA: Perchè?	SERPINA: Why?
UBERTO: S'è lei così schiribizzosa meco, Ed è serva: or pensa Con lui essendo sposa. Senza dubbio il capitan Tempesta In collera andrà, E lei di bastonate Una tempesta avrà.	UBERTO: If she is so tantalizing When she's only my servant, Imagine what'll happen when she's a wife. Without doubt Captain Tempest Will get angry And there'll be a tempest Of beatings.
SERPINA: A questo poi Serpina penserà.	SERPINA: Serpina'll think of this later.
UBERTO: Me ne dispiacerebbe; Alfin del bene io ti volli, e tu 'l sai.	UBERTO: To be displeased with it; After I liked you so, and you know it.
SERPINA: Tanto obbligata. Intanto attenda a conservarsi, Goda colla sua sposa amata, E di Serpina non si scordi affatto.	SERPINA: I'm so obliged to you. In the meantime take care of yourself, Enjoy yourself with your beloved wife, And don't forget Serpina.
UBERTO: A te perdoni il ciel: L'esser tu troppo boriosa, Venir mi fe' a tal atto.	UBERTO: May heaven forgive you: For your having been too haughty, You have driven me to such an act.
SERPINA: A Serpina Penserete Qualche volta. In qualche dì, E direte: Ah! poverina, Cara un tempo Ella mi fu. (Ei mi par che già pian piano S'incomincia a intenerir.) S'io poi fui Impertinente, Mi perdoni: Malamente Mi guidai: Lo vedo, sì. (Ei mi stringe per la mano, Meglio il fatto non può gir.)	SERPINA: Think sometimes Of Serpina. Some day, sometimes You will say, She once was dear to me. (It seems to me that gradually He begins to soften.) And if I was Impertinent, Pardon me: I behaved Wickedly: And now I see it. (He clasps my hand, It couldn't be any better.)
UBERTO: (Ah! quanto mi sa male Di tal risoluzione, Ma n'ho colpa io.)	UBERTO: (Ah, how sorry I am For such a resolution, But I am not to blame.)
SERPINA: (Di' pur fra te che vuoi, Che ha da ruiscir la cosa a modo mio.)	UBERTO: (Say what you want, And things will come out as I wish.)
UBERTO: Orsù, non dubitare, Che di te mai non mi saprò scordare.	UBERTO: Come now, don't doubt That I will not forget you.
SERPINA: Vuol vedere il mio sposo?	SERPINA: Do you want to see my husband?
UBERTO: Sì, l'avrei caro.	UBERTO: Yes, I'd like to.
SERPINA: Io mandero per lui. Giù in strada ei si trattiene.	SERPINA: I'll send for him. He's waiting on the street.
UBERTO: Va.	UBERTO: Go.
SERPINA: Con licenza. (Serpina parte.)	SERPINA: With your permission. (Serpina leaves.)
UBERTO: Or indovina chi sarà costui! Forse la penitenza farà cosi Di quanto ella ha fatto al padrone. S'è ver, come mi dice, un tal marito La terrà fra la terra ed il bastone. Ah! poveretta lei! Per altro io penserei . . . Ma . . . Ella è serva . . . Ma . . . il primo non saresti . . . Dunque, la sposeresti? . . . basta . . . Eh no, non, non sia. Su, pensieri ribaldi, andate via. Piano, io me l'ho allevata: So poi com'ella è nata . . . Eh! che sei matto! Piano di grazia . . . Eh . . . non pensarci affatto . . . Ma . . . Io ci ho passione, E pur . . . Quella meschina . . . Eh torna . . . Oh Dio! . . . Eh siam da capo . . . Oh! che confusione. Son imbrogliato io già, Ho un certo che nel core Che dir per me non so S'è amore, o s'è pietà. Sento un che, poi mi dice: Uberto, pensa a te. Io sto fra il sì e il no, Fra il voglio e fra nol voglio, E sempre più m'imbroglio. Ah! misero, infelice, Che mai sarà di me! (Qui entra Serpina con Vespone in abito come sopra.)	UBERTO: Now guess who it will be! Perhaps she'll repent For what she has done to her master. If it is true, as she says, such a husband Will keep her in mortal fear of the stick. Ah, poor she! I thought otherwise; But—she is a servant— But—you'd not be the first— Then, will you marry her?— Ah no, no, it can't be. Away, evil thought, away. Gently have I brought her up: I know how she was born— Oh, you are crazy! Softly, for heaven's sake! Ah, better not to think of it— But I have a passion for her. And yet—that rascal— Oh, she's coming back—Lord! Here we are, What confusion— I am all perplexed. I have something in my heart, I don't know what, Whether it's love, or pity, I feel something that says: Uberto, think of yourself. I hesitate between yes and no, Between wanting and not wanting, And I grow more and more perplexed, Ah, unhappy, wretched am I, What will become of me! (Serpina enters with Vespone dressed as a soldier.)
SERPINA: Favorisca, signor . . . passi.	SERPINA: I beg your pardon, sir.
UBERTO: (a Serpina). Padrona. È questi?	UBERTO: (to Serpina). Mistress. Is it he?

SERPINA: Questi è desso.

UBERTO: (Oh brutta cera!
Veramente ha una faccia tempestosa.)
E così, caro il capitan Tempesta,
Si sposerà già questa mia ragazza,
(Vespone accenna di sì.)
O ben n'è già contento . . .
(Vespone come sopra.)
O ben non vi ha difficoltà?
O ben . . .
Egli mi pare che abbia poche parole.

SERPINA: Anzi pochissime.
(A Vespone.)
Vuol me?
(Ad Uberto.)
Con permissione.

UBERTO: (E in braccio a quel brutto nibbiaccio Deve andar quella bella columbina?)

SERPINA: Sapete cosa ha detto?

UBERTO: Di', Serpina.

SERPINA: Che vuole che mi diate la dote mia.

UBERTO: La dote tua?
Che dote! sei matta?

SERPINA: Non gridate, ch'egli in furia darà.

UBERTO: Può dar in furia
Più d'Orlando Furioso,
Che a me punto non preme.
(Vespone finge di andare in collera.)

SERPINA: Oh! Dio!
Vedete pur ch'egli già freme.

UBERTO: (A Serpina). Oh! che guai! Va là tu, (Shatti a veder che costui mi farà . . .)
Ben, cosa dice?

SERPINA: Che vuole almeno quattromila scudi.

UBERTO: Canchero!
Oh! questa è bella!
Vuole una bagatella!
Ah! padron mio . . .
(Vespone vuol metter mano alla spada.)
Non signor . . . Serpina . . .
Che mal abbia . . . Vespone, dove sei?

SERPINA: Ma, padrone,
Il vostro male
Andate voi cercando.

UBERTO: Senti un po'. Con costui
Hai tu concluso?

SERPINA: Io ho concluso e non concluso.
(Finge di parlare con Vespone.) Adesso . . .

UBERTO: (Statti a veder,
Che questo maledetto capitano
Farà precipitarmi.)

SERPINA: Ha egli detto . . .

SERPINA: It is he.

UBERTO: (Oh, how hideous!
He really has a tempestuous face!)
And so, dear Captain Tempest,
You will marry my girl,
(Vespone nods assent.)
Oh, are you happy . . .
(Vespone as above.)
Or is there some difficulty?
Or—
He seems to have very little to say.

SERPINA: Very little.
(To Vespone).
Does he want me?
(To Uberto.)
With your permission.

UBERTO: (And must my dove go
To the arms of that hideous simpleton?)

SERPINA: So you know what he said?

UBERTO: Tell me, Serpina.

SERPINA: That he wants you to give me my dowry.

UBERTO: Your dowry?
What dowry! Are you mad?

SERPINA: Don't scream or he'll get angry.

UBERTO: He can get more furious than Orlando Furioso
For all I care.
(Vespone feigns at getting angry.)

SERPINA: Oh, Lord!
See, he is already raging!

UBERTO: Oh, what misfortune.
(To Serpina.)
Go.
(Well, let's see what he'll do to me.)
Well, what does he say?

SERPINA: That he wants at least 4,000 crowns.

UBERTO: The devil!
Oh, that's fine!
He wants a trifle!
Ah, my sir—
(Vespone wants to take hold of his sword.)
No, sir—Serpina—
The devil take her—Vespone, where are you?

SERPINA: But, sir,
You are looking for trouble.

UBERTO: Listen. Have you made any Agreement with him?

SERPINA: I have and I have not.
(Pretends to speak with Vespone.)
Now—

UBERTO: (It remains to be seen
How this accursed captain
Will rush at me.)

SERPINA: He said—

UBERTO: Cha cosa ha detto?
(Ei parla per interprete.)

SERPINA: Che, o mi date la dote
Di quattromila scudi,
O non mi sposerà.

UBERTO: Ha detto?

SERPINA: Ha detto.

UBERTO: E s'egli non ti sposa a me ch'importa?

SERPINA: Ma che mi avete a sposar voi.

UBERTO: Ha detto?

SERPINA: Ha detto, o che altrimenti
In pezzi vi farà.

UBERTO: Oh! questo non l'ha detto!

SERPINA: E lo vedrà.

UBERTO: L'ha detto . . . Sì, signora.
(Vespone fa cenno di minacciare Uberto.)
Eh! non s'incomodi,
Che già per me vuol così il destino.
Or io la sposerò.

UBERTO: Mi dia la destra in sua presenza.

UBERTO: Sì.

SERPINA: Viva il padrone.

UBERTO: Va ben così?
(Vespone si leva i mustacchi.)

SERPINA: E viva ancor Vespone.

UBERTO: Ah! ribaldo! tu sei?
E tal inganno . . . lasciami . . .

SERPINA: Eh non occorre più strepitar,
Ti son già sposa, il sai.

UBERTO: È ver, fatta me l'hai:
Ti venne buona.

SERPINA: E di serva divenni io già padrona.
Per te ho io nel core
Il martellin d'amore
Che mi percote ognor.

UBERTO: Mi sta per te nel core
Con un tamburo amore,
E batte forte ognor.

SERPINA: Deh! senti il tippitì.

UBERTO: Lo sento, è vero, sì.
Tu senti il tappatà.

SERPINA: È vero, il sento già.

UBERTO: Ma questo ch'esser può?

SERPINA: Io nol so.
Caro sposo.

UBERTO: Cara sposa.

UBERTO e SERPINA: Caro.
Gioia.
Oh Dio!
Ben te lo puoi pensar.

SERPINA: Io per me non so dirlo.

UBERTO: Per me non so capirlo.

UBERTO: What did he say?
(She acts as interpreter.)

SERPINA: That, either give me the dowry
Of 4,000 crowns,
Or he'll not marry me.

UBERTO: Did he say so?

SERPINA: He said so.

UBERTO: And what do I care if he doesn't marry you?

SERPINA: But that you'd have to marry me.

UBERTO: He said so?

SERPINA: He said so, or else
He'll cut you to pieces.

UBERTO: Oh, he didn't say that!

SERPINA: You'll see.

UBERTO: He said it—yes, lady.
(Vespone makes a threatening sign to Uberto.)
And don't disturb yourself,
For my destiny wills it so.
I shall marry her.

SERPINA: Give me your right hand in his presence.

UBERTO: Yes.

SERPINA: Long live the master.

UBERTO: Is that right?
(Vespone takes off his mustache.)

SERPINA: And long live Vespone.

UBERTO: Ah, you rascal! Is it you?
Oh, such deceit—let me—

SERPINA: You needn't make such a fuss.
I am already your wife and you know it.

UBERTO: It is true; you made me do it:
Good luck to you.

SERPINA: And from servant I have become mistress.
For you, I have in my heart
The little hammer of love
Which ever beats in me.

UBERTO: I have in my heart for you
A little drum of love
Which ever beats loud for you.

SERPINA: Ah, listen to its hammering.

UBERTO: I hear it, it's true.
Listen to its drumming.

SERPINA: I hear it, it's true.

UBERTO: But what may it be?

SERPINA: I do not know,
Dear husband.

UBERTO: Dear wife!

UBERTO and SERPINA: Dear!
Joy!
Oh, God!
May you think well of it.

SERPINA: I can't say it.

UBERTO: I can't understand it.

SERPINA: Sarà, Ma non è questo.	SERPINA: It may be, But not this.
UBERTO: Sarà, Nè meno è questo.	UBERTO: It may be, But not that.
SERPINA: Ah furbo, si t'intendo.	SERPINA: Ah, rascal, I understand you.
UBERTO: Ah! ladra, ti comprendo, MI vuoi tu corbellar.	UBERTO: Ah, thief, I understand you. You want to question me.
SERPINA: Contento tu sarai, Avrai amor per me?	SERPINA: Will you be happy, Will you love me?
UBERTO: So che contento è il core, E amore avrò per te.	UBERTO: I know my heart is happy, And I'll love you.
SERPINA: Di' pur la verità.	SERPINA: Tell the truth.
UBERTO: Quest'è la verità.	UBERTO: That is the truth.
SERPINA: Oh Dio! mi par che no.	SERPINA: I don't think so.
UBERTO: Non dubitar, oibò!	UBERTO: Do not doubt it!
SERPINA: Oh sposo grazioso!	SERPINA: Oh, graceful husband!
UBERTO: Diletta mia sposetta! . . .	UBERTO: Oh, my happy bride!
SERPINA: Così mi fai goder.	SERPINA: Now you make me happy.
UBERTO: Sol tu mi fai goder.	UBERTO: You alone give me joy.
FINE.	END.

La Gioconda (1876)

Music by Amilcare Ponchielli ■ Libretto by Tobia Gorrio (Arrigo Boito)

This four-act opera drammatica, set to a libretto by Tobia Gorrio (an anagram of Arrigo Boito) is based on Victor Hugo's play Angelo, tyran de padoue. It premiered at La Scala in Milan on April 8, 1876. At the courtyard of the Venetian Ducal Palace, La Gioconda, a travelling singer, refuses the proposal of Barnaba, a spy. His revenge: he publicly accuses her mother, La Cieca, of practicing witchcraft. Enzo Grimaldi, a prince with whom La Gioconda is in love, stands up for La Cieca. Previously banished from Venice, Enzo returns to Laura Adorno, the Genoese wife of Alvise Badoero, an inquisition chief of the Venetian State. Alvise arrests La Cieca in spite of Enzo's efforts, but Laura obtains a pardon for her. La Cieca gives her a rosary in thanks. Barnaba, meanwhile tries to minimize the competition by promising to help Enzo elope with Laura. When La Gioconda discovers this plan as well as Barnaba's betrayal of her mother, she decides to kill Laura. She hides on the ship on which Enzo and Laura are about to escape; but when she sees La Cieca's rosary around Laura's neck, La Gioconda realizes that Laura helped save her mother. She decides to assist the lovers instead. Alvise arrives, Laura and La Gioconda run away; Enzo sets the ship ablaze and dives into the water. While a celebration is taking place in the reception rooms, Alvise confronts his wife and demands that she drink poison in punishment for her adultery. La Gioconda slips Laura a sleeping potion instead of the poison, telling her to drink it and feign death. Alvise raises a curtain to reveal Laura; seemingly dead, to the shock of the guests. Enzo is there, too, in disguise. Thinking his lover is dead, he surrenders to the authorities. La Gioconda knows that the only way to save him is to promise her love to Barnaba. Barnaba accepts her offer and takes La Cieca hostage. La Gioconda's men transport Laura to a ruined palace. In her grief over her mother's disappearance and her loss of Enzo; La Gioconda is contemplating suicide. With Barnaba's help Enzo escapes from jail, and he runs off with Laura despite all La Gioconda has done for him. Barnaba, however, expects her to fulfill the bargain; she stabs herself instead. Enraged, he screams that he has killed her mother; she doesn't hear him as she is already dead.

■ ATTO I

LA BOCCA DEI LEONI

Il cortile del Palazzo Ducale parato a festa. Nel fondo la Scala dei Giganti e il Portico della Carta colla porta che adduce nell' interno della chiesa di S. Marco. A sinistra lo scrittoio d' uno scrivano pubblico. Sopra una parete del cortile si vedrà una fra le storiche bocche dei leoni colla seguente scritta incisa sul marmo a caretteri neri:

Denontie secrete per via d' inquisitione contra cada una persona con l'impunità segreteza et benefitii giusto alle legi.

È uno splendido meriggio di primavera. La scena è ingombra di popolo festante. Barnabotti, Arsenalotti, Marinai, maschere d' ogni sorta, Arlecchini, Pantaloni, Bautte, e in mezzo a questa turba vivace alcuni Dalmati ed alcuni Mori. Barnaba, addossato ad una colonna, sla osservando il popolo; ha una piccola chitarra ad armacollo.

■ ACT I

THE LION'S MOUTH

The Grand Courtyard of the Ducal Palace, decorated for festivities. At back, the Giant's Staircase, and the Portico della Carta, with doorway leading to the interior of the Church of St. Mark. On the left, the writing-table of a public letter-writer. On one side of the courtyard is seen one of the historical Lion's Mouths, with the following inscription cut in black letters into the wall:

For secret denunciations to the inquisition against any person, with impunity, secrecy, and benefit to the state.

It is a splendid afternoon in Spring. The stage is filled with holiday folks, Monks, Sailors, Shipwrights, Harlequins, Buffoons, Dominos, and amidst the busy crowd are seen some Dalmatians and Moors. Barnaba, leaning his back against a column, is watching the people. He has a small guitar, slung 'round his neck.

BARNABA, CORO DE MARINAI E POPOLO: Feste e pane! la Repubblica domerà le schiatte umane Finchè avran le ciurme e i popoli
Feste e pane.
L'allegria disarma i fulmini ed infrange le ritorte.
Noi cantiam! chi canta è libero, noi ridiam! chi ride è forte.
Quel sereno Iddio lo vuol che allegrò questa laguna
Coll' argento della luna e la porpora del sol.
(Campane a distesa, squilli di trombe.)
Feste e pane! a gioia suonano
Di San Marco le campane.
Viva il Doge e la Repubblica!
Feste e pane!

BARNABA: (si muove dal posto).
Compari! già le trombe
V' annuncian la regata.
(Dominando il frastuono festosamente.)

BARNABA, CHORUS OF SAILORS AND PEOPLE: Sports and feasting!
Feasting and sports! Our Republic wise,
That rules the world from farthest East to West,
Provides us—galley-slaves and populace—Sports and feasts.
Joy disarms the angry thunderbolt,
And breaks the fetters forged by sinners!
Let us sing! for free are they who sing:
Let us laugh! for they who laugh are winners!
Calmly, brightly, the heavens are shining;
Pouring joy over yon lagoon!
While rays, sent from the rising moon,
Blend with the sunset glow declining.
(Pealing of bells in the distance, sound of trumpets.)
But hark! the joyous bells of St. Mark are loudly pealing!
Cheers for our Republic and our Doge!

BARNABA: (leaving his place, comes forward). The Regatta now commences!
The trumpets loud are pealing.
(Dominating the terrific noise with festive air.)

MARINAI E POPOLO: Alla regata!
(Gridando e saltando, il popolo esce dal cortile, Il tumulto s' allontana.)

BARNABA: (accennando gli spiragli delle prigioni sotterranee). E danzan su lor tombe!
E la morte li guata!
(Cupamente.)
E mentre s' erge il ceppo o la cuccagna,
Fra due colonne tesse la sua ragna,
Barnaba, il cantastorie; e le sue file
(Guarda e tocca la sua chitarra.)
Sono le corde di questo apparecchio.
Con lavorìo sottile
E di mano e d' orecchio
Colgo i tafàni al volo
Per conto dello Stato. E mai non falla
L' udito mio. Coglier potessi solo
Per le mie brame e tosto
Una certa vaghissima farfalla!. . . .
(Gioconda colla Cieca, entrando da destra. La Vecchia ha il volto coperto fin sotto gli occhi da un povero zendado.) GIOCONDA: (conducendo per mano la madre e avviandosi alla chiesa lentamente). Madre adorata, vieni.

BARNABA: (scorge Gioconda e si ritrae accanto alla colonna). Eccola! al posto.

CIECA: Figlia, che reggi il tremulo piè che all' avel già piega, Beata è questa tenebra che alla tua man mi lega.
Tu canti agli uomini le tue canzoni,
Io canto agli angeli le mie orazioni,
Benedicendo l' ora e il destin,
E sorridendo sul mio cammin.
Io per la tua bell' anima prego chinata al suol,
E tu per me coi vividi sguardi contempli il sol.

GIOCONDA: Vien! per securo tramite da me tu sei guidata.
Vien! ricomincia il placido corso la tua giornata.
Tu canti agli angeli le tue orazioni,
Io canto agli uomini le mie canzoni,
Benedicendo l' ora e il destin.
E sorridendo sul mio cammin.

BARNABA: (in disparte). Sovr essa stendere la man grifagna!
Amarla e coglierla nella mia ragna!
Terribil estasi dell' alma mia!
Sta in guardia! l'agile farfalla spia!

SAILORS AND PEOPLE: To the Regatta let us hasten.
(Screaming and dancing, the people leave the courtyard.)

BARNABA: (pointing to the gratings of the subterranean prisons). Above their graves they're dancing!
Death upon them is stealing!
(In a somber manner.)
And while the reckless victims seek their pleasure,
Here will I weave my nets for them at leisure.
(He looks down on his guitar, accompanying himself.)
Stories, and songs, and legends, are attractions,
Whose power no mortal ever thinks of denying!
I watch the listening gadflies,—note all their actions,
And catch them while they're flying.
Woe to them thereafter!—
My ear, unfailing, has worked their ruin!
Ah! how I am longing to make my captive,
At once and securely,
The wayward Gioconda.
(Gioconda enters with Cieca (her blind mother) from the left. The old woman has her face half covered with an old veil.)

GIOCONDA: (leading her mother by the hand, and advancing slowly towards the church). This way, dear mother!

BARNABA: (perceiving Gioconda, retreats near the Colonnade). She is here, I'll hide!

CIECA: Daughter my faltering steps
Find guidance and protection in you;
I gratefully bless my loss of sight,
That heightens your affection!
While you unto mankind are singing your songs,
To Heaven my ceaseless prayers their flight are winging
For you I pray, and thanks to Fate,
That left me sightless, but not desolate.

GIOCONDA: Your steps are all guided by me
To Heaven your ceaseless prayers their flight are winging.
While I, unto mankind, my songs am singing,
For you I pray and render thanks to Fate
That you, though sightless, are not desolate. Ah! Mother, dear.

BARNABA: (aside). With joy my soul would be enraptured,
If in my net she were captured;
The wildest ecstasies within me waken!
Beware, moth, if you're taken in my net!

GIOCONDA: L' ora non giunse ancor del vespro santo;
Qui ti riposa appiè del tempio; intanto
Io vado a rintracciar l'angelo mio

BARNABA: Derisïon!

GIOCONDA: Torno con Enzo.

CIECA: Iddio ti benedica.
Addio, figliuola.
(Estrae da tasca un rosario.)

BARNABA: (sbucando e sbarrando la via a Gioconda, che fa per escire da destra). Ferma.

GIOCONDA: Che?

BARNABA: Un uom che t' ama, e che la via ti sbarra.

GIOCONDA: (vivacemente. Per andarsene). Al diavol vanne colla tua chitarra!
Già l' altra volta tel dissi: funesta
M' è la tua faccia da mistero.

BARNABA: (trattenendola e ironicamente). Resta.
Enzo attender potrà.

GIOCONDA: Va, ti disprezzo.

BARNABA: (incalzando). Ancor m' ascolterai.

GIOCONDA: Mi fai ribrezzo!

BARNABA: Resta. . . .t'adoro, o vaga creatura.

GIOCONDA: Vanne!

BARNABA: Non fuggirai!
(Slanciandosi su essa.)

GIOCONDA: Mi fai paura!
Ah!
(Fugge.)

CIECA: (alzandosi spaventata).
Qual grido! mia figlia!
La voce sua!

BARNABA: La farfalla è scomparsa. . . .

CIECA: (brancolando). Figliuola!
o raggio della mia pupilla,
Dove sei? dove sei?

BARNABA: (ridendo). La Cieca strilla;
Lasciamola strillar.

CIECA: (lentamente e protendendo le palme ritorna a sedersi sui gradini). Tenèbre orrende!

BARNABA: (osservando la pensieroso). Pur quella larva che la man protende, Potrebbe agevolar la meta mia. . . .
Se la madre è in mia man. . . .

CIECA: (rigirando con fervore le Ave Marie del suo rosario). Ave Maria. . . .

BARNABA: (sempre meditando).
Tengo il cor della figlia incatenato . . .

GIOCONDA: Before long the vesper chimes will be ringing;
Here, rest near the sacred shrine, while—singing—
I seek him I love tenderly and truly.

BARNABA: Silly fool!

GIOCONDA: I'll return with Enzo.

CIECA: Heaven duly will bless your footsteps!
Adieu, my daughter!
(Takes rosary from her pocket.)

BARNABA: (draws from his hiding place and bars the way to Gioconda, who wants to go out to the right). Stay!

GIOCONDA: How?

BARNABA: A man who loves you, and bars your onward progress.

GIOCONDA: (vivaciously, wishing to go away). Go to the devil, you and your guitar too!
Stand aside from my pathway!
Away!
I love not faces full of mystery.

BARNABA: (keeping her back, and with irony). Stay!
Enzo yonder can wait.

GIOCONDA: Go! go! I despise you.

BARNABA: (pressing her). Once more;—say, will you listen?

GIOCONDA: I shudder at you!

BARNABA: Stay, I adore you, angelic creature!

GIOCONDA: Quit me.

BARNABA: (rushing towards her). Ah no, you shall not fly me!

GIOCONDA: I hate and fear you.
Ah!
(Escapes from the grasp of Barnaba.)

CIECA: (rising in great fright). My daughter in danger. Help! No one hears me!
It was her voice.

BARNABA: So, the moth has escaped me!

CIECA: (groping about). My daughter, sole ray beaming over my existence,
Where are you? Where are you?

BARNABA: (laughing). La Cieca is screaming.
Well, let her scream her best.

CIECA: (slowly stretching out her hands, returns to sit upon the steps). O darkness fearful!

BARNABA: (thoughtfully observing her). Yet may this spectral creature, weak and tearful, Aid me to conquer you, Gioconda mia!
Once the mother is mine—

CIECA: (repeating with fervor the Ave Maria on her rosary). Ave Maria!

BARNABA: Then the daughter to foil me in vain will endeavor.

CIECA: Ave Maria. . . .	CIECA: Ave Maria!
BARNABA: . . . .con laccio inesorato. L' angiol m' aiuti dell' amor materno, E la Gioconda è mia! Giuro all' Averno! (Il Popolo porta in trionfo il Vincitore della Regata, il quale tien (la bandiera del premio). Donne, Marinai, Fanciulli con fiori e ghirlande, Zuane triste in disparte.)	BARNABA: She's fettered fast forever! Thanks to your aid, angel of love maternal, She shall be mine; I swear it, powers infernal! (The people carry the hero of the regatta in triumph, who carries the prize-banner. Ladies, Sailors, Children with flowers and garlands; Zuane, sad, to the side.)
CORO: Polso di cerro! Occhio di lince! Remo di ferro! Gagliardo cor! Gloria a chi vince il pallio verde! Lieta brigata, Per licto calle portiamo a spalle, Il vincitor della regata, Fra canti e fior. Gli sguardi avvince, I flutti ei sperde. Gloria a chi vince! Beffe a chi perde! (Quasi tutti affluiscono verso la Scala del Giganti, ove depongono il vincitore.)	CHORUS: Hail to the victor! Wrists that are oaken! Eyes of lynx! Sinews of iron! Hail the victor! Hail to the winner of the green banner! Laugh at the losers! Why did they fail! Merry, light hearted, onward we go, With songs and with flowers to cheer our path; Bearing the victor in the regatta High on our shoulders—see him here! All eyes beheld him the waves dispersing; Hail to the winner of the green banner! Laugh at the losers! Why did they fail? (Almost everybody rushes to the Giant's Staircase, where they depose the victor.)
BARNABA: (che già da qualche tempo avrà osservato Zuane, lo arresta). Questi è l' uomo ch' io cerco. Non m' inganno. Patron Zuanè, hai faccia da malanno. Si direbbe davver che alla regata Non hai fatto bandiera.	BARNABA: (who since some time has been watching Zuane, stops him). It is he whom I was seeking. I'm never mistaken. How now, Zuane? by fortune you're forsaken, If it is true as I'm told, that in the race You never once were seen leading?
ZUANE: T' inforchi Satanasso!	ZUANE: May Satan send you torments!
BARNABA: E se la vera Cagione io ti dicessi del tuo danno?	BARNABA: Suppose the case That I explained what cause has hindered your succeeding?
ZUANE: Lo so, la prora ho greve ed arrembata.	ZUANE: I know; my boat was overweighted.
BARNABA: Baje!	BARNABA: Nonsense.
ZUANE: E che dunque?	ZUANE: What mean you?
BARNABA: (con mistero). T' avvicina.—O lasso! (Sottovoce.) Hai la barca stregata.	BARNABA: (mysteriously). It was the spell of a sorceress. (In a low tone.) Wherever you wander, Witchcraft enfolds you.
ZUANE: (inorridito). Vergine Santa!	ZUANE: (horrified). Holy Virgin!
CORO: (accanto alla Scalla dei Giganti). Dadi e bambàra! Cuccagne e corse! Giuochiamo a zara Le nostre borse! (Alcuni estraggono dei dadi molti si siedono sui gradini, e intavolano un giucco di zara.)	CHORUS: (near the Giant's Staircase). Dice and bambara! Races and frisking! We'll play at zara, Our purses risking. (A few of them sit upon the steps taking out their dice and begin to play at zara.)
BARNABA: La vidi stamini gittar sul tuo legno Un segno maliardo, un magico segno. (Continuando e sempre facendo fissare Cieca a Zuane.)	BARNABA: I saw her this morning throw over your line Some foul spell of her witchcraft—a magical sign. (Continuing, without ceasing to fix Zuane's attention upon the blind woman.)
ZUANE: Orror!	ZUANE: Alas!
BARNABA: La tua barca sarà la tua bara. Sta in guardia, fratello!	BARNABA: Lest your barque be your bier—through la cara, Be watchful, Zuane.
CORO: Sei! Cinque! Tre! Zara!	CHORUS: Six! Five! Three! Zara!
CIECA: (pregando). Turris eburnea. . . . Mistica rosa. . . .	CIECA: (praying). Turris eburnea . . . Mistica rosa . . .
BARNABA: (a Zuane). La vidi tre volte scagliar su tuoi remi Parole tremende—lùgubri anatèmi. (Isepo sarà mosso verso Barnaba e ascolterà curioso.)	BARNABA: (to Zuane). I heard her three times curse your oars and your rudder, In accents infernal, that made my soul shudder. (Isepo moves toward Barnaba and listens with curiosity.)
ZUANE: Gran Dio!	ZUANE: Great Heaven!
BARNABA: La tua barca sarà la tua bara. Sta in guardia, fratello. . . .	BARNABA: Lest your barque be your bier, through la cara, Be watchful Zuane!
CORO: Sette! Otto! Tre! Zara!	CHORUS: Seven! Eight! Three! Zara!
CIECA: (come sopra). Turris Davidica. . . . Mater gloriosa. . . .	CIECA: (as before, praying). Turris Davidica . . . Mater gloriosa . . .
BARNABA: (misterioso a Zuane e Isepo). Suo covo è un tugurio—laggiù alla Giudeca, Tien sempre quell' orrido zendado, ed è Cieca. . . . Ha vuote le occhiaie eppure e chi il crede?! Cieca ci guarda—Cieca ci vede!	BARNABA: (to Zuane and Isepo). Her den is a cabin, hard by the Giudeca; And there, with the demons, her companions, dwells Cieca. Her eye-sockets are empty, yet that will not free you, Cieca is watchful, Cieca can see you.
QUATTRO MARINAI: (che si saranno aggiunti al gruppo). Ci vede!	FOUR SAILORS: (who have drawn nigh). Can see us!
ISEPO: Oh spavento!	ISEPO: Hateful monster!
TRE ARSENALOTTI: (aggiunti anch' essi al gruppo). Che avvenne?	THREE WORKMEN OF ARSENAL: (who also have joined the group). What has happened?
ZUANE: Oh maliarda!	ZUANE: Heaven free us!
QUATTRO BARNABOTTI: Che avvenne? che mormori?. . . .	FOUR MONKS: What has happened? What do these cries mean?
BARNABA, ZUANE E ISEPO: Cieca ci guarda! (Il gruppo si fa sempre più numeroso.)	BARNABA, ZUANE, AND ISEPO: Cieca can see us! (The group becomes more numerous.)
CORO: Addosso! accoppiamola!	CHORUS: Upon her! Let us bind her fast!
ZUANE: (per avventarsi alla Cieca, poi retrocede). Ho paura. . . .	ZUANE: (venturing towards Cieca). Now, courage! Ah! I fear her!
BARNABA: Badate, può coglierví la sua jettatura.	BARNABA: Be careful! Lest she bewitches you, if you go near her.
CORO: Al rogo l' eretica!	CHORUS: We'll burn the old heretic!
ZUANE: Davver, più l' addocchio. Più i rai le balenano.	ZUANE: The more I look at her, More spiteful her glances seem!
BARNABA: (ridendo). Cieca ha il mal occhio.	BARNABA: (laughing). The evil-eyed Cieca!
CORO: Ah! ah! qual facezia!	CHORUS: The evil-eyed Cieca?—ha, ha!

BARNABA: (ad Isepo che si sarà avvicinato pianemente alla Cieca, che gira sempre il rosario). Già l'aure. . . .s'annuvolavano.

ZUANE: Che brontola?

ISEPO: Prega.

CORO: Addosso alla strega!
(si scagliano sulla Cieca).

BARNABA: Ah! ah! greggie umana!
Scagliato ho il mio ciottolo,
Or fuggo la frana!

CIECA: (afferrata del popolo e trascinata in mezzo al palco). Aiuto! Son cieca! Soccorso! soccorso!

BARNABA: Sgherrani, sia tratta nel carcere.

ZUANE, ISEPO E CORO: Addosso!
Ai Piombi!
Ai pozzi!
Al rogo!
A morte la strega!
Martira!
Al rogo.
Sia tratta nel carcere.
A morte la strega!

ENZO: (vestito da marinaio dalmato, rompendo la calca con uno scoppio d' ira). Assassini!
Assassini! quel crin venerando
Rispettate! o ch' io snudo il mio brando.
Contro un' egra rejetta dal sole
Generosa è la vostra tenzon!
Vituperio! è cresciuta una prole
Di codardi all' alato leon!

CORO: Iddio vuol cio che il popole vuole;
No, la strega non merta perdon.

CIECA: Ah! su me si scatena l' averno!

CORO: A morte la strega.

ENZO: (con impeto fa per togliere i ceppi alla Cieca, ma è impedito dal popolo). Quel ceppo le strazia. Sciolta sia.

GIOCONDA: Ah! Madre mia.

ENZO: (correndo all' ingresso della riva furiosamente ed esce). La sciogliete, assassini Su, fratelli del mare!
Alla lotta!

CORO: Al patibolo!
(Intanto sull' alto della scala saranno appars. Alvise e Laura, che avranno assistito al tumulto. Laura dall' alto della scala, scendendo. Il lembo della sua veste sarà sostenuto da due paggi. Ha una maschera di velluto nero sul volto).

LAURA: Pietà.

BARNABA: (to Isepo, drawing closer to the blind woman who is constantly praying over the rosary). Already the clouds gather fast.

ZUANE: What's she about?

ISEPO: Praying.

CHORUS: Take hold of the witch.
(They fling themselves upon Cieca.)

BARNABA: The fools yonder!
The ball I've set rolling on,
Now on let it roll.

CIECA: (seized by the populace, and dragged to the middle of the stage). Oh, help me! I'm sightless! Have mercy! Help!

BARNABA: Friends, there, lodge her in prison.

ZUANE, ISEPO AND CHORUS:
Upon her, the irons!
To the sewers!
We'll burn her!
The sorceress shall suffer.
We'll kill her!
To the stakes!
To the prison!
We'll burn her.
Death to the witch!

ENZO: (attired as a Dalmatian sailor, breaking through the crowd in an explosion of terrible anger). Base assassins!
Base assassins! these locks, gray and scattered,
Harm no longer! My sword shall protect them!
Against a woman, old, feeble, and sightless,
It is noble and safe, to contend!
You are monsters! Descendants of heroes!
All are cowards, you winged lion disgracing.

CHORUS: No! Heaven wills what the populace wills!
The sorceress' life now must end.

CIECA: Ah! on me hell's fury is lighting.

CHORUS: Death to the witch!

ENZO: (in fury he trys to remove the fetters from Cieca, but is prevented by the multitude). Let me free her! these fetters will kill her.

GIOCONDA: Mother, darling!

ENZO: (running to the entrance of the sea, furious he rushes out). Quick release her, base assassins!
Rise, comrades, rise, for mercy meets denial.
Now for fighting, for fighting!

CHORUS: Burn her! destroy her!
(Laura and Alvise, who have seen the tumult from the head of the stairs, are about to descend. Her skirt is carried by two pages and she is wearing a mask of black velvet.)

LAURA: Mercy!

ALVISE: (alteramente e con gravita). Ribellion! che? la plebe or qui si arroga
Fra le ducali mure
I dritta della toga
E della scure?
(Movimento di rispetto nella folla.)
(A Cieca.)
Parla, o captiva!
Perchè stai china là fra quelle squadre!

CORO: E una strega!

GIOCONDA: È mia madre!

LAURA: (la Cieca alza la testa). È Cieca! o mio signor! fa ch' essa viva!

ALVISE: (freddamente a Barnaba). Barnaba! è rea costel!

BARNABA: (assai sottovoce all' orecchio è Alvise). Di male fizio.

GIOCONDA: (a Barnaba). T' ho udito!. . . .menti!

ALVISE: Sia tratta in giudizio.

GIOCONDA: (gettasi ai piedi di Alvise). Pietà. . . .ch' io parli attendete. . . .ora infrango
Il gel che m' impietrave. . . .e sgorga l' onda
Del cor. . . .Costei della mia infanzia bionda
L'angelo fu. . . .Sempre ho sorriso. . . .or piango.
Mi chiaman. . . .la Gioconda.
Viviam cantando ed io
Canto a chi vuol le mie liete canzoni,
Ed essa canta a Dio
Le sue sante orazioni. . . .

ENZO: (che sarà ritornato da qualche tempo seguito dai marinai dalmati). Salviamo l'innocente.

LAURA: (scorgendo Enzo). Qual volto!

GIOCONDA: (alzandosi e trattenendo Enzo). Ah! no! ti ferma! Quel possente La salverà!

BARNABA: (osservando Laura, poi Enzo). Come lo guardo fiso!

LAURA: (ad Alvise in disparte). Concedi, o mio signor, se non ti duole, Ch' io mi levi la maschera dal viso.

ALVISE: No, madonna, nemmen l' occhio del sole Non dee mirarti.

GIOCONDA: (ad Alvise). Dalle tue parole
La vita attendo.

BARNABA: (ad Alvise sottovoce). E una strega, il nefario
Suo silenzio tel dica.

ALVISE: (imperiously, and with gravity). Rebellion? What?
The populace can venture here,
Near our Ducal Palace—
To claim to act as judges?—
And as executioners?
(Movement of respect of the crowd.)
(To Cieca.)
Answer me, captive.
Why are you kneeling to yonder people?

CHORUS: She's a sorceress.

GIOCONDA: It is my mother.

LAURA: (towards whom Cieca has turned her face). She's sightless, see, signor! save her from outrage!

ALVISE: (coldly to Barnaba). Barnaba, has she been guilty?

BARNABA: (whispering to Alvise). Guilty of witchcraft.

GIOCONDA: (to Barnaba). I heard you! You lie!

ALVISE: Conduct her to trial.

GIOCONDA: (throwing herself at Alvise's feet). Mercy! ah, hear me one moment! I break
The ice that was keeping my soul in fetters
She has been the bright angel of my life;
I once was ever smiling, now I'm weeping. They call me "La Gioconda."
We are always singing; to all comers
I sing my gay songs till day's ending;
While gentle strains of pious rapture
Are ascending from her pure lips.

ENZO: (who has returned after a short time, followed by some Dalmatian sailors). Let us save the innocent victim.

LAURA: (observing him). Those features?

GIOCONDA: (rising up and restraining Enzo). Ah no! have patience! The Duke will protect Cieca.

BARNABA: (aside; watching Enzo and Laura). His gaze is fixed upon her.

LAURA: (to Alvise aside). Permit me, sir, if it does not displease you.
To take off my mask.

ALVISE: No, madame, not even the sun's rays
Can touch your face.

GIOCONDA: (to Alvise). You alone have power to save my mother.

BARNABA: She is a sorceress! Her guilty silence betrays her.

LAURA: Essa ha un rosario! No, l'inferno non è con quella pia.	LAURA: She bears a rosary. Satan has nothing to do with this pious woman.
ENZO: Qual voce!	ENZO: (observing Laura). Those accents!
BARNABA: Muoia!	BARNABA: Burn her!
LAURA: (ad Alvise supplichevole). La salva!	LAURA: (to Alvise, supplicating). O save her!
ALVISE: E salva sia.	ALVISE: She is saved, and pardoned!
GIOCONDA: Gioia!	GIOCONDA: Ah joy!
BARNABA: Furore!	BARNABA: They foil me!
GIOCONDA: Oh, gioia!	GIOCONDA: What rapture!
CIECA: (liberta da Laura che l'allontana dagli Sgherri). Voce di donna o d'angelo Le mie catene ha sciolto; Mi vietan le mie tenebre Di quella santa il volto, Pure da me non partasi Senza un pietoso don: (Si toglie il rosario dalla cintola.) A te questo rosario Che le preghiere aduna. Io te lo porgo, accettalo, Ti porterà fortuna; Sulla tua testa vigili La mia benedizion.	CIECA: (liberated by Laura, who takes her away from the bailiffs). Thanks to you, angelic voice, My fetters are broken asunder; I cannot see the face of her By whom those words were spoken. (Takes the rosary from her belt.) Yet, lady, you must not depart without a gift from me, I offer this rosary—no richer boon possessing— Deign to accept the humble gift, it will bring to you a blessing, And on your head may bliss descend! I'll ever pray for you.
GIOCONDA: O madre mia, ti guarda Un angelo fedel.	GIOCONDA: Ah, mother, it was an angel, sent down from yonder heaven!
CORO: Protegge la vegliarda Visibilmente il ciel! (Laura s'avvicina alla Cieca e prende il rosario, Cieca stende le mani come per benedirla, Laura fa per inginocchiarsi, Alvise, vede e afferra il braccio di Laura sforzandola a rialzarsi.)	CHORUS: It is evident unto her celestial aid is given. (Laura approaches Cieca, and takes the rosary. Cieca extends her hands as if to bless Laura, who kneels before her. Alvise abruptly seizes the arm of Laura and compels her to rise.)
ALVISE: (gettando una borsa a Gioconda). Che fai? vaneggi? Bella cantatrice, Quest'oro a te.	ALVISE: (throwing a purse to Gioconda). What now? It is folly. Pretty singing maiden, This gold is yours.
GIOCONDA: (raccoglie e s'inchina). Sia grazia a voi, Messere. (A Laura.) Acciò ch'io l'abbia nelle mie preghiere Dimmi il tuo nome, o ignota salvatrice.	GIOCONDA: (picks it up and bows). Thanks, Signor! (To Laura.) That I may never in my prayers forget it, Tell me your name, unknown, generous benefactress.
LAURA: (guardando Enzo). Laura.	LAURA: (looking at Enzo). Laura.
ENZO: (colpito). È dessa!	ENZO: (struck). It is she!
ALVISE: (a Laura, assorta). Ti scuoti! al tempio andiamo!	ALVISE: (to Laura, who is absorbed). Arouse—Let us hasten to church.
GIOCONDA: Madre!—Enzo adorato! Ah! come t'amo! (Tutti si dirigono al tempio. Alvise e Laura primi, i due paggi dopo, indi tutto il Coro, e Gioconda fra la madre ed Enzo. Giunto alla porta della chiesa, Enzo s'arresta, e rimane indietro assorto profondamente ne' suoi pensieri. Barnaba lo sta fissando. La scena si vuota.)	GIOCONDA: Beloved mother! Enzo, how I love you! (All go into the church. Alvise and Laura first, followed by the two pages, then Gioconda, between her mother and Enzo, then the Chorus. At the door of the church, Enzo stops and remains behind profoundly absorbed in his thoughts. Barnaba looks at him fixedly).
BARNABA: (avvicinandosi ad Enzo). Enzo Grimaldo, Principe di Santafior, che pensi?	BARNABA: (approaching Enzo). Enzo Grimaldo, Prince of Santa fior, you are pensive.

ENZO: Scoperto son.	ENZO: (aside). I am discovered.
BARNABA: Qual magico stupor t'invade i sensi? Pensi a Madonna Laura d'Alvise Badoèro.	BARNABA: What magic stupor steals away your senses? It is of the Lady Laura, Alvise's wife, you're thinking.
ENZO: (scosso). Chi sei?	ENZO: (moved). Who are you?
BARNABA: So tutto: e penetro in fondo at tuo pensiero. Avesti culla in Genova. . . .	BARNABA: I know all; can penetrate your Thoughts, however secret. Your birthplace was Genoa!
ENZO: Prence non son, sui flutti Guido un vascel, son dalmato: Enzo Giordan. . . .	ENZO: I am not a Prince, but a sailor. Yonder's my ship. I am Dalmatian, Enzo Giordan.
BARNABA: Per tutti Ma non per me. Venezia t'ha proscritto ma un forte Disio qui ancor ti trasse ad affrontar la morte. Amasti un dì una vergine—là, sul tuo mar beato, A estranio imene vittima—la condannava il fato.	BARNABA: For others, But not for me. Proscribed you were by Venice, Yet here you are led, by chainless impulse. Your life to peril. You did love a maiden Yonder in your own Genoa, but she Became another's bride. Fate was cruel to you both.
ENZO: Ho guirato fede a Gioconda.	ENZO: I have pledged my faith to Gioconda.
BARNABA: La cantatrice errante Ami come sorella, ma Laura come amante. Già disperavi in terra di riveder quel volto, E l'amor di Gioconda hai per pietà raccolto, Ed or, sotto la maschera l'angelo tuo t'apparve. . . . Ti riconobbe. . . .	BARNABA: Poor wandering ballad singer! You love her as a sister, but Laura as your mistress. You had abandoned all hope, dreamed not to see her features, But here, under her velvet mask, your beauteous angel saw you. And recognized you.
ENZO: Oh giubilo!	ENZO: O happiness!
BARNABA: L'amor passa le larve. Badoer questa notte—veglia al dogale ostello Col gran Consiglio, Laura sarà sul tub vascello.	BARNABA: Love sees through disguises. All this night will her husband stay at the Doge's palace, With the Great Council. Laura shall be on board your vessel.
ENZO: Dio di pietà!	ENZO: Powers divine!
BARNABA: Le angosce dell'amor tuo soccorro.	BARNABA: Love's sweetest consolations await you.
ENZO: O grido di quest'anima, scoppia dal gonfio core! Ho ritrovato l'angelo del mio celeste amore. A notte bruna sul brigantino aspetto Laura.	ENZO: Ah, with what joy my heart is filled, Fortune at last is kind! Soon shall I clasp the angel-form In this fond heart enshrined. When the dark night falls, On board my ship I shall await my Laura.
BARNABA: (inchinandosi e sogghignando.). Buona fortuna!	BARNABA: (bowing low and sneeringly). Good luck attend you!
ENZO: E tu su maledetto!	ENZO: And you—be accursed!
BARNABA: Maledici? sta ben. . . .l'amor t'accieca. Compiam l'opra bieca, L'idolo di Gioconda sia distrutto. . . . S'annienti tutto. (Va nel fondo, apre una porta accanto le prigioni, Isepo!)	BARNABA: Accursed? We shall see. It is love that blinds you. Should my dark plots be successful, This idol of Gioconda's will be shattered, And dashed to pieces. (Goes to the rear, opens a door near the prisons and calls Isepo.)
ISEPO: (escendo). Padron Barnaba. . . .	ISEPO: (coming out). Padron Barnaba!

BARNABA: Scrivano,
L' anima m' hai venduto e la cotenna
Fin che tu vivi;
In son la mano
E tua la penna.
Scrivi.

BARNABA: (a Isepo). Al Capo occulto dell' Inquisizione.
(Isepo scrivi. Intanto alla porta del tempio appariscono Gioconda e Cieca.) GIOCONDA: (a Cieca). Ti nascondi, c' è Barnaba.

(Alla madre ritraendola e sta spiando nascosta dal pilastro.)

BARNABA: La tua sposa con Enzo il Marinar.
Sta notte in mar
Ti fuggirà sul brigantino dalmato.

GIOCONDA: Ah!
(Disperatamente e scompare in chiesa.)

BARNABA: Più sotto:
"La Bocca del Leone."
Qua, porgi, taci, vanne.
(Prende il foglio, Isepo esce.)

BARNABA: (col piego in mano contemplando la scena). O monumento!
Regia e bolgia dogale! Atro portento!
Gloria di questa e delle età future;
Ergi fra due torture
Il porfido cruento.
Tua base i pozzi, tuo fastigio i piombi
Sulla tua fronte il volo dei palombi,
I marmi e l'ôr.
Gioia tu alterni e orror con vece occulta,
Quivi un popolo esulta,
Quivi un popolo muor.
Là il Doge, un vecchio scheletro
Coll' acidaro in testa,
Sovr' esso il gran Consiglio,
La Signoria funesta;
Sovra la Signoria
Più possente di tutti, un re; la spia.
O monumento! Apri le tue latèbre,
(Vicino alla bocca del leone.)
Spalanca la tua fauce di tenèbre,
S' anco il sangue giungesse a soffocarla!
Io son l' orecchio e tu la bocca: Parla!
(Getta il piego nella bocca del leone ed esce.)
(Entra nel cortile una Mascherata; la segue il popolo cantando e danzando. Poscia un Barna botto, Gioconda e Cieca.)

BARNABA: Now, penman, long since you did sell your soul to me;
Your skin also, to save your life.
I am the hand, and you are the pen.
Write.

BARNABA: (to Isepo). Unto the secret chief of the Inquisition—(Isepo writes. In the meantime in the door of the church appear Gioconda and Cieca.) GIOCONDA: (to Cieca). Quick conceal yourself. It is Barnaba.

(Drawing her mother behind a column, she hides and listens.)

BARNABA: Your wife will this night elope with Enzo, the young sailor, and will sail away from you,
On board his vessel.

GIOCONDA: Ah!
(Desperately she disappears in the church.)

BARNABA: Now lower down:
"The Mouth of the Lion."
Give it me. Silence! Go!
(Takes the paper, Isepo goes out.)

BARNABA: (with the letter in hand, he contemplates the scene).
O mighty monument, palace and den of the Doges!
Gloomy and wondrous, glory of this age,
And of the ages yet unborn,
Between twin tortures glistens
Your prairie ensanguined!
Below are the Pozzi beneath your roof the Piombi;
Your front is gay, with its fearless flocks of pigeons,
Its marble and gold,
Joy alternates with woe, in workings secret.
Here is a nation exulting; there a nation dies.
There the Doge, an ancient skeleton,
Sites in state, in his headdress quaint;
Above him, the Great Council—sinister oligarchy!
Over the oligarchs, far more powerful than they,
A King—the Spy!
O mighty monument, open your capacious jaws!
(Near the Lion's Mouth.)
Spread wide your throat, that waits in sullen darkness,
Until blood, poured in torrents, shall choke it forever!
I am the ear, and you the mouthpiece. Speak!
(Throws the letter into the Lion's Mouth, and goes out.)
(Enter Masquers and Populace, dancing and singing. Then a Barnabite, Gioconda and the blind woman.)

CORO E DANZA: Carneval! Baccanal!! Gaia turba popolana
Su! correte al torneamento! su! danzate la furlana!
(Si odono alcuni tocchi di campana.)

CORO: (dalla chiesa). Angelus Domini.

CORO: (sulla scena). Gloria à Dio!

UN BARNABOTTO: (schiundendo la tenda che copre la porta della basilica). Tramonta il sol.
Udite il canto
Del vespro santo Prostrati al suol.

CORO: Angele Dei, qui custos es mei,
Me, tibi commissum, nocte illumina,
Rege, custodi et rege,
Rege et guberna, custodi,
Angele Dei, qui custos es mei.
(Tutti si prostrano rivolti verso il fondo. Gioconda e Cieca attradura l' orazione.)

GIOCONDA: Tradita!. . . . Ahimè!. . . . soccombo. . . . il fianco mio Vacilla. . . . o madre. . . . mi sorreggi. O Dio!
Cuore! dono funesto!
Retaggio di dolor!
Il mio destino è questo:
O Morte o Amor!

CIECA: Dimmi dov' è il tuo cor! la man vi guida.
Ch' io lo posi sul mio!
Vieni e facciamo un sol di due dolor!
(Gioconda prendendo la mano della Cieca e portandosele al cuore.)

CORO: (inginocchiata). Gloria al Signor
E pace agli uomini!
(Cala lentamente tela.)

■ ATTO II

IL ROSARIO

Notte. Un brigantino visto di fianco. Sul davanti una riva deserta d' isola disabitata nelle acque Fusina. Nell' estremo fondo il cielo in qualche parte stellato, e la laguna; a destra la luna tramonta dietro una nube. Sul davanti un altarino della Vergine con una lampada rossa accesa. "Hecate," il nome del brigantino, sta scritto a prua. Alcune lanterne sul ponte.

CHORUS AND BALLET: Carnival! Bacchanal!
Day's last beams are glancing over us;
Let us pass our time in dancing La Furlana!
(Church bells are heard.)

CHORUS: (inside the church). Angelus domini.

CHORUS: (on the stage). Glory to God!

MONK: (to the people, drawing aside the curtain from before the door of the church). The sun sinks low, the vesper hymn is pealing;
Now listen to the holy strain, devoutly kneeling.

CHORUS: Angele Dei, qui custos es mei,
Me, tibi commissum, nocte illumina,
Rege, custodi et rege,
Rege et guberna, custodi,
Angele Dei, qui custos es mei.
(All are on their knees towards the rear. Gioconda and her mother pass through the crowd while the vesper prayer is being sung. Gioconda, vacillating and slow, is leaning on her mother.)

GIOCONDA: Forsaken! Betrayed!
All is over! In every limb
I am trembling. You must support me, dear mother.
O heart, gone is your gladness!
Your heritage is sadness!
My doom was framed by powers above:
To die! to die, if robbed of love!
Upon my heart, dear mother,
Place your hand, and you'll know,
The while it throbs so wildly,
How great, alas, my woe!

CIECA: Ah come, my child, my darling,
Hand in hand let us go,
One grief of two griefs making,
Sharing each other's woe!
(Gioconda puts her mother's hand on her heart.)

CHORUS: (kneeling). Angele Dei,
Qui custos es mei.
The curtain descends slowly.

■ ACT II

THE ROSARY

Night. A brigantine, showing its starboard side. In front, the deserted bank of an uninhabited island in the Fusina lagoon. In the farthest distance, the sky and the lagoon. A few stars visible. On the right, a cloud, above which the moon is rising. In front, a small altar of the Virgin, lighted by a red lamp. The name of the brigantine—'Hecate'—painted on the

All' alzarsi della tela alcuni Marinai sono seduti sulla tolda, altri in piedi aggruppati; tutti hanno un portovoce in mano; molti Mozzi sono arrampicati, o seduti, o sospesi alle sartie deglalberi e stanno cantando una marinaresca.

PRIMI MARINAI: (a destra sul ponte cantando attraverso il portavoce). Ho! He! Ho! He! Ho!
Fissa il timone!

SECONDI MARINAI: (a sinistra col portavoce). Fissa!
Ho! He! Ho! He! Ho!

MARINAI: Siam qui sui culmini, siam sulla borda,
Siam sulle tremule scale di corda.
Guardate gli agili mozzi saltar;
Noi gli scoiattoli siamo del mar.
Siam nel fondo più profondo della
nave, della cala,
Dove il vento furibondo spreca i fischi e infrange l' ala.
Siam nel fondo più profondo della
nave, della cala.

PRIMI MARINAI: Ha! Ho! Ha! Ho!
Vele a babordo!

SECONDI MARINAI: Issa!
Remi a tribordo!

TUTTI: Issa!
Il ciel tuonò!
Ha! Ho! Ha! Ho!

MOZZI: In mezzo ai fulmini delle
tempesta,
Noi nuvole tuffiam la testa,
Come sugli alberi d' una foresta,
Osiam le pendule sartìe scalar.
Noi gli scoiattoli siamo del mar.
Sotto prora, sotto poppa è una placida dimora,
Qui vuotiam l' ardente coppa del liquor che inganna l' ora.
Sotto poppa, sotto prora.
Il mar mugghiante, il ciel furente,
Greco a Levante, bora a Ponente,
Scioni e turbini sappiam sfidar.
Noi gli scoiattoli siamo del mar!
(Una voce sola di dentro.)

BARNABA: Pescator, affonda l' esca, e l' onda a te sia fedel, Lieta sera e buona pesca ti promette il mare e il ciel.
(Barnaba è vestito da pescatore con una rete in mano.)

PILOTA: Chi va là?

BARNABA: La canzon ve lo dicea:
Un pescator che attende la marea.
Ho la barca laggiù nell' acqua bassa.
È tèmpora domani, e si digiuna,
Per mia fortuna,
La mensa magra il pescatore ingrassa.

prow. Lanterns on deck. As the curtain rises Sailors are discovered; some seated on the deck, others standing in groups, each with a speaking trumpet. Several Midshipmen are seen; some clinging to the shrouds, some seated. Remaining thus grouped, they sing a Marinaresca.

FIRST SAILORS: (to the right of deck, singing through speaking trumpets). Ho, he! ho, he!
Look to the rudder!

SECOND SAILORS: (to the left, singing through speaking trumpets). Look well! Look well!
Ho, he! ho, he!

SAILORS: We're here, some perched on the top,
Some on the edge, some on the tremulous ladders of rope.
Look at the agile midshipmen climb,
We are the squirrels of the sea.
We are in the most profound depths
Of the ship, of the hold,
Where the furious winds whistle
And tear the sails to tatters,
We are in the profound bottom
Of the ship, of the hold.

FIRST SAILORS: Look well!
Ho, he! ho, he!
Up with the mainsail!

SECOND SAILORS: Up with it!
Where are the rowers?

ALL: Ho, he! ho, he!
Rowers, reply!

MIDSHIPMEN AND BOYS: We're here; some perched aloft, some on the gunwale,
Some clinging to the tremulous rope ladders:
See how the nimble midshipmen can climb!
Behold in us the squirrels of the sea!
Here are we, in depths profoundest
Of the vessel; in the hold,
While angry winds, in fury howling,
Shriek, rending sails to tatters.
Here are we, in depths profoundest.
(A voice alone from the hold.)

BARNABA: (from inside). Fisherboy, Now lower your bait;
May the waves prove true to you.
(He enters.)
Now good night! May luck attend
you!

A PILOT: Who goes there?

BARNABA: My song itself will tell
you.
I am a fisher; for the tide I am waiting,
And my boat waits for me
In yon deep waters.
Tomorrow is a fast day. When people fast,
They bring me good fortune;
And but for fast days fishermen never would fatten.

MARINAI: (ridendo). Ha! Ha! Ha!
Ha!

BARNABA: (ad Isepo). Siam salvi!
Han riso. Sono ottanta
Fra marinari e mozzi. Han tre decine
Di remi e nulla più; due colubrine Di piccolo calibro. Or va, con quanta
Lena ti resta, e disponi le scolte
Colà dove le macchie son più folte.
Io qui rimango a far l' ufficio mio.
Vanne con Dio. Ah!
(Isepo esce.)

BARNABA: Pescator, affonda l' esca
E l' onda a te sia fedel,
Lieta sera e buona pesca
Ti promette il mare e il ciel.
Va, tranquilla cantilena,
Per l' azzurra immensità;
Questa notte una sirena
Nella rete cascherà.

CORO: (ridendo). Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!
Questa notte una sirena nella rete cascherà.

BARNABA: (tra sè). Spia coi fulminei tuoi sguardi accorti,
E fra le tenebre conta i tuoi morti.
Sì, da quest' isola deserta e bruna
Or deve sorgere la tua fortuna.
Sta in guardia! e il rapido sospetto
svia,
E ridi e vigila e canta e spia.
(Ripigliando la canzone.)
Brilla Venere serena
In un ciel di voluttà.
Una fulgida sirena
Nella rete cascherà.

CORO: (ripete ridendo). Una fulgida sirena
Nella rete cascherà.
(Barnaba esce all' entrare di Enzo.)
(Enzo, Marinai e Mozzi, il Nostromo, il Maestro delle vele, il Piloto. Enzo esce da sotto coperta con una lanterna in mano avanzandosi gaiamente, alla ciurma.)

ENZO: Sia gloria ai canti
Dei naviganti!
Queste notte si salpa!

MARINAI: Evviva il nostro
Principe a capitano!

ENZO: (esplorando il cielo). Soffia grecale,
Vento buono per noi. . . .nella carena
(Al Nos.)
Tu, Nostromo, raccogli la gomèna.

SAILORS: (laughing). Ha! Ha! Ha!
Ha!

BARNABA: (to Isepo). We are safe now! They're laughing. They, in all,
Number eighty, men and boys.
They have three ranks
Of ten oars each, and no more; only two culverins,
Both of small caliber. Now go, with all
The breath that is left to you, and place out the scouts Down yonder where the bushes are thickest.
I remain here, till the moment comes for action.
Heaven go with you!
(Isepo goes out.)

BARNABA: Fisherman, Now lower your bait!
May the waves prove faithful to
you.
Pleasant night and lucky fishing
Sea and sky both promise.
Go, your tranquil song outpouring
Beneath the azure boundless sky.
Lo! a gentle lovely siren
In your net this night shall fall.

CHORUS: (laughing). Lo! a gentle lovely siren
In your net this night shall fall.

BARNABA: (to himself). Spy, swift as lightning
Cast around your glances,
And in the darkness
Count your heedless victims.
Yes! from this islet
Deserted and barren
You shall see spring forth
Your harvest of fortune.
Be watchful, and evade swift-formed suspicions,
And gaily laugh, and sharply watch,
While singing still spying,
Laughing, singing.
(Aloud as before, recommencing his song.)
Ah! yonder Venus shines serenely
In a heaven of delight,
And a shining splendid siren
In your net shall fall tonight.

CHORUS: Tonight a lovely siren
In your net shall fall.
(Barnaba goes out as Enzo comes in.)
(Enter Enzo, Sailors, Midshipmen, the boatswain, the Master of the Sails, the pilot. Enzo enters from below deck with a lantern in his hand, advancing gaily to the crew.)

ENZO: Long live the songs
Of the sons of the sea!
We tonight will weigh anchor.

SAILORS: (surrounding him).
Long live our noble Prince!
Long live our captain.

ENZO: (observing the sky). Northeast the wind is.
It is a good wind for us. Down in the hold
(To the Nostromo.)
Do you, Nostromo, securely stow

Tu, Maestro delle vele, affiggi al rostro
Del brigantino il dalmato segnale
Che ci protesse in molte aspre fortune,
E al maggior pino inalbera il fanale.
(Al Mozzi.)
Voi siate pronti a distaccar la fune
D'amarra a un cenno mio. "Quest' erme dune
Più non vedremo all' ora mattutina.
Nocchier, l' abbrivio è verso Palestrina."
(Alcuni uomini della ciurma eseguiscono gli ordini di Enzo; mentre gli altri ricantano la Marinaresca.)

ENZO: (a tutti). Ed or scendete a riposarvi. Io vigilo Solo sul ponte le inimiche flotte.
(Guarda le stelle.)
E tardi.

CORO: Buona guardia.

ENZO: Buona notte.
(La ciurma scende sotto il ponte.)
Cielo e mar!—l' etereo velo
Splende come un santo altar.
L' angiol mio verrà dal cielo?
L' angiol mio verrà dal mare?
Qui l' attendo, ardente spira
Oggi il vento dell' amore.
Ah! Quell' nom che vi sospira
Vi conquide, o sogni d' ôr!
Cielo e mar!—Per l' aura fonda
Non appar nè suol, nè monte,
L' orizzonte bacia l' onda,
L' onda bacia l' orrizzonte!
Qui nell' ombra ov' io mi giacio
Coll' anelito del cor,
Vieni, o donna, vieni al bacio
Della vita dell' amor.
(Fissando il mare.)
Machi vien? non è uno spettro
Del pensier! quella è una barca.
Odo già de' remi il metro,
Verso me volando varca. . . .

LA VOCE DI BARNABA: (dietro il brigantino). Capitano! a bordo!

ENZO: (sclamando verso la direzione della voce di Barnaba). Avanti!!
Dio! sostieni ancor la piena
Della gioia! Naviganti,
Costeggiate la carena!
(Prende una fune e la getta al di là della sponda.)
Qua la fune . . . . aggrappa . . . . annoda
Un passo ancor. . . .
Non cadere! approda! approda!. . . .

LAURA: (nelle braccia di Enzo). Enzo! Mio Enzo! Mio amor!

the cable.
You, master of the sails, upon the prow
Of our ship see hoisted the Dalmatian flag.
There it has floated through many sharp ordeals!
And on the mainmast at once hang out the lantern.
(To the Midshipmen.)
And you, be ready to let go the mooring cable
At my first signal.
(Some of the crew execute Enzo's orders, while the others repeat the Marinaresca.)

ENZO: (to all). Now go below; betake to slumber
While I alone upon deck
Watch the enemy's vessels.
It is late now. Good-night to all!

CHORUS: Heaven watch over you!

ENZO: Good-night.
(The crew go below deck.)
Heaven! and ocean! yon ethereal vail
Is radiant as a holy altar.
My angel, will she come from heaven?
My angel, will she come over ocean?
Here I await her; I breathe with rapture
The soft zephyrs filled with love.
Mortals often, when fondly sighing,
Find you a torment, O golden dreams!
In yon airy depths
There is seen neither shore nor mountain.
The horizon kisses the billows,
The billows kiss the horizon.
Here I am waiting in darkness,
My heart is wildly panting.
Come then, dearest! come, to the kisses
That can impart magic bliss.
(Gazing at the sea.)
But who comes? It is not a phantom
Of my brain? A boat approaches!
I already hear the rowers;
They towards me are swiftly steering

VOICE OF BARNABA: (behind the brigantine). Signor Captain, on board there?

ENZO: (calling in the direction of the voice of Barnaba). Come this way.
Heaven aid me to bear the fullness
Of this rapture! Now then, boatmen,
Keep on this side of the vessel.
(Throws a rope over the side.)
There! the guide rope, hold tightly.
Now tie it, mount quickly.
(Enter Laura.)

LAURA: (in the arms of Enzo). Enzo, my Enzo! Ah, dearest, I am yours!

ENZO: Laura! Amore! Amor!

LA VOCE DI BARNABA: (sinistramente, allontanandosi). Buona fortuna.

LAURA: Oh! la sinistra voce!

ENZO: S' ei fu che ti salvò!. . . .

LAURA: Pur sorridea d'un infernal sorriso!. . . .

ENZO: È l' uomo che ci aperse il paradiso!
Deh! non turbare—con ree paure
Di questi istanti—le ebbrezze pure;
D' amor soltanto—con me ragiona,
È il cielo, o cara—che schiudi a me!

LAURA: Ah! del tuo bacio—nel dolce incanto
Celeste gioia—diventa il pianto,
A umano strazio—Dio non perdona,
Se perdonato—amor non è!

ENZO: Ma dimmi come—angelo mio,
Mi ravvisasti?

LAURA: Nel marinar
Enzo conobbi.

ENZO: Al pari anch' io
Te al primo suono—della parola. . . .

LAURA: Enzo adorato!—ma il tempo vola.
All' erta! all' erta!

ENZO: Deh, non tremar!
Siamo in un' isola—tutta deserta,
Fra mare e cielo—Fra cielo e mar!
Vedrem fra poco tramontar la luna. . . .
Quando sarà corcata, all' aura bruna
Noi salperem; cogli occhi al firmamento,
Coi baci in fronte e colle vele al vento!

LAURA E ENZO: Laggù nelle nebbie remote
Laggiù nelle tenebri ignote
Sta il segno del nostro cammin:
Nell' onde, nell' ombre, nei venti,
Fidenti ridenti, fuggenti,
Gitteam la vita e il destin.
La luna discende
Ricinta di rori de bende,
Siccome una sposa all' altar,
E asconde la spenta parvenza
Nell' ona, con lenta cadenza,
La luna è discesa nel mar.
(La luna bassa si svolve dalle nuvole, il suo disce s' asconderà dietro il vascello.)

ENZO: Laura! Laura! dearest, I am yours!

VOICE OF BARNABA: (ominously, departing). Good luck attend you!

LAURA: Ah! at that voice I shudder!

ENZO: It is by him you're saved.

LAURA: Yet, when he smiles, his smile appears infernal.

ENZO: It is he who for us opens Paradise.
Ah! cloud not, dearest, with fears and doubtings
The pure enjoyment of these blessed moments.
Of love, love only, let our discourse be!
Love is the heaven unvailed tonight.

LAURA: Ah, love your kisses, with sweet enchantment,
Change every sorrow to rapture celestial.
No human frailty will heaven pardon,
If it will not pardon love's delight.

ENZO: But tell me how, my angel,
You did recognize me?

LAURA: The sailor's dress hid not my Enzo.

ENZO: It was thus with me, love.
Soon as your voice
Blessed the air with its music.

LAURA: Enzo, beloved!
But time is flying—be watchful!

ENZO: Fear not, my love!
This is an island wholly deserted,
Amid sky and ocean, ocean and sky.
We soon shall see yonder the moon descending,
And when she sinks to slumber, favor by darkness,
We will set sail, with kisses on our foreheads,
And favoring winds our sails filling.

LAURA AND ENZO: Down yonder amid the dim, far-off mists,
Down yonder amid the dark, unknown clouds,
Our goal will be espied before long.
To the billows, the shadows, the breezes,
Both faithful, and smiling and flying
We confide our lives and our fate.
The moon is descending
Surrounded and veiled by the night dews,
Like bride attired for the altar.
And hiding her fast-fading lustre,
Sinks under the waves in slow cadence.
(The moon disappears behind the clouds.)

ENZO: (staccandosi). E il tuo nocchiere
Or la fuga t' appresta—O amata donna, Tu resta qui.
(Scende sotto il ponte.)

LAURA: Ho il cuor gonfio di lagrime
Quel lume! Ah! una Madonna!
(Davanti all' immagine della Madonna orando con passione; mentre ch' essa prega, Gioconda mascherata escirà da un nascondiglio sotto prova, e s' avanzerà lenta.)

GIOCONDA: È un anatèma!

LAURA: (inorridita alzandosi).
Ah! chi sei?

GIOCONDA: Chi son, tu chiami?
Sono un' ombra che t'aspetta!
Il mio nome è la Vendetta.
Amo l' uomo che tu ami.

LAURA: Ciel!

GIOCONDA: (accennando a prora). Là attesi e il tempo colsi Come belva nella tana,
Ah! la forza sovrumana,
Del furor m' invade i polsi!
Vuoi fuggire! d' amor ti struggi?
Vuoi fuggiere! lieta rivale?. . . .
Sì, l' antenna e il governale
Pronti son, sta ben, va, fuggi!
(Ergendosi terribile.)

LAURA: Furia orrenda!

GIOCONDA: Ah! mi paventi!
Ed ardisci amar d' amore
Quell' eroe?

LAURA: Sfido il tuo core,
O rival!

GIOCONDA: Bestemmi!

LAURA: Menti!
L' amo come il fulgor del creato!
Come l' aura che avviva il respir!
Come il sogno celeste e beato
Da cui venne il mio primo sospir.

GIOCONDA: Ed io l' amo siccome il leone
Ama il sangue, ed il turbine il vol
E la folgor le vette, e l' alcione
Le voragini, e l' aquila il sol!

LAURA: Pel suo bacio soave io disfido
Di morte l'orror!

GIOCONDA: Pel suo bacio soave t' uccido,
(Ghermendo un pugnale.)
Son più forte, più forte è il mio amor!
(Afferrandola.)
Il mio braccio t' afferra!
Vien ch' io ti scorga in viso! a terra! a terra!

ENZO: (leaving Laura). It is your pilot.
For flight now prepare yourself. O my beloved,
Rest here awhile.
(Descends below deck.)

LAURA: My heart is full of happy tears.
That light? Ah! It is a Madonna!
(Throws herself at the foot of the altar, and prays earnestly. While she is praying, Gioconda, masked, comes from her hiding place, under the prow of the ship, and advances slowly towards Laura.)

GIOCONDA: An anathema!

LAURA: (frightened, she arises).
Ah! who are thou?

GIOCONDA: Who am I? ask you?
I am a shadow, waiting for you,
And my name is Vengeance!
I adore the man you love!

LAURA: Heaven!

GIOCONDA: (pointing to the prow). There, impatiently I waited,
Like a wild brute in its cavern.
Ah! the fury superhuman,
Of my wrath, invades my pulses!
You would fly? With love you are thrilling?
You would fly? say, joyous rival?
Yes, the sail yards and the rudder
Ready are, it is well. Go! I bid you.
(Setting herself up as a judge, in a terrible manner.)

LAURA: Rage appalling!

GIOCONDA: Ah! you fear me! Yet can you dare to speak
Of loving yonder hero.

LAURA: I love him with purer love than yours.

GIOCONDA: Blasphemer!

LAURA: Liar!
Him I love as the light of creation,
As the air that new life and strength brings me!
As the dream, that, celestial and blessed,
Brought me my first tender sigh.

GIOCONDA: Ah! and I love him, as the lion
Loves fresh blood; as the whirlwind its flight;
As the sunbeams love the hilltops; the sea bird
Yonder ocean depths; as eagles love the sun!

LAURA: While his sweet kisses greet me,
All the terrors of death I defy.

GIOCONDA: You shall die for those sweet kisses!
(Seizing Laura's arm.)
I am the stronger, and stronger is my love.
(Taking hold of her.)
Come, let me see your features!
Kneel down!
No escape for you now!

Or più scampo non hai!
Questo pagnale. . . .
Ma no. . . .
(Star per darla un colpo ma si ferma subito.)
Ti salvo! Olà, il mio palischermo!
(Appariscondo due Marinai con una barca.)
Fuggi! . . . a te. . . . questa maschera t'asconda!
(Stacca la maschera e la pone sul volto a Laura.)

LAURA: Ma mi dirai chi sei?

GIOCONDA: Son la Gioconda!
(Gioconda spinge quasi a forza Laura nelle barca che si allontana rapidamente. Gioconda scomparisce un istante dietro al brigantino, come per assicurarsi della fuga di Laura.) BARNABA: (dalla riva, asservando i movimenti della barca che porta Laura e scorgendo in distanza la gondola d' Alvise). Maledizione! Ha preso il vol! Padron!

Nel canal morto. . . .là. . . .forza di remi!. . . . (Scomprisce.)

GIOCONDA: E salva! O madre mia, quanto mi costi!. . . .

ENZO: (scendendo dal ponte).
Laura, Laura! ove sei?

GIOCONDA: (avanzandosi verso Enzo fieramente). Laura è scomparsa!

ENZO: Gioconda! o ciel! che avvenne?

GIOCONDA: Invano a' rei
Baci sognati il tuo sospir la chiama. . . .

ENZO: Menti, menti, o crudel!

GIOCONDA: No! più t' ama!
(Trascinandolo verso la riva.)

MARINAI: Le galèe! le galèe! Salvi chi puo!

ENZO: (strappando la fiaccola ad uno dei Marinai). Sin ch' io sia vivo, no!
Al nemico darem cenere e brage!
Incendio!
(Da fuoco all' Hecate. La nave arde.)

TUTTI: Incendio! Guerra! Morte! Strage!

ENZO: (dalla tolda slanciandosi in mare). O Laura, addio!

GIOCONDA: (dalla riva). E sempre Laura! ma almen poss' io con te morir.
(La nave si sprofonda. Cade la tela.)

Soon shall this poniard—
(About to strike, stops suddenly.)
But no!
(A boat arrives with two Sailors.)
I save you! Ho there! Bring my boat quickly!
(Takes off the mask, which she puts on Laura's face.)

LAURA: But tell me first, who are you?

GIOCONDA: I am La Gioconda.
(Gioconda pushes her with great force into the boat, which goes away quickly. Gioconda disappears an instant behind the brigantine, assuring herself that Laura has escaped.)

BARNABA: (looking on all sides. observes the movements of the small boat which carries Laura and perceives the gondola of Alvise in the distance). May they be cursed!
They have taken flight. Signor!
By the canal, out there—
(pointing) there!
Urge on the rowers, urge them!
(He goes out.)

GIOCONDA: (entering again).
I've save her. Alas, dear mother,
How much you cost me!

ENZO: (entering from below deck). Laura, Laura! where are you?

GIOCONDA: (advancing haughtily towards Enzo). Laura has vanished.

ENZO: Gioconda! oh heaven! what has happened?

GIOCONDA: In vain, to taste dreamy soft guilty kisses,
Your sighs may seek to recall her.

ENZO: Falsehood! cruel! it is false!

GIOCONDA: (dragging him to the side of the boat). No more she loves you!

SAILORS: No hope is left us. Ah, fly!

ENZO: (taking a lighted torch from a Sailor). While I'm living, no!
To the enemy we'll give ashes and embers!
We'll burn her!
(He sets fire to the "Hecate," the ship burns.)

ALL: We'll burn her! Fight them! kill them!

ENZO: (throwing himself from the deck into the sea). Adieu, my Laura!

GIOCONDA: (aside). It is ever Laura! Yet I, at least, may die with you!
(The burning vessel sinks as the curtain falls.)

ATTO III

CÀ D'ORO

SCENA I

Una camera nella Cà d'Oro. Sera; lampada accessa. Da un lato un' armatura antica.

ALVISE: (entrando in preda a violente aiitazione). Sì! morir ella de'! Sul nome mio Scritta l'infamia impunemente avrà?
Chi un Badoer tradì
Non può sperar pietà!. . . .
Se ier non la ghermì
Nell' isola fatal questa mia mano,
L'espïazion non fia tremenda meno!
Ieri un pugnal le avria squarciato il seno,
Oggi. . . .un ferro non è. . . .sarà un veleno!
(Accennando alle sale contigue.)
Là turbini e farnetichi
La gaia baraonda,
Dell' agonia col gemito
La festa si confonda!
Ombre di mia prosapia
Non arrossite ancora!
Tutto la morte vendica,
Anche il tradito onor!
Là del patrizio veneto
S'adempia al largo invito,
Quivi il feral marito
Provveda al proprio onore!
Fremete, o danze, o cantici.
E un 'infedel che muor!

LAURA: (entra en ricca veste da ballo, con perle e gemme: ad Alvise). Qui chiamata m' avete?

ALVISE: (con affettata cortesia). Pur che vi piaccia. . . .

LAURA: Mio signor. . . .

ALVISE: Sedete!
(Siedono ai due lati di un ampio tavolo.)
Bella così, madonna,—io non v' ho mai veduta;
Pur il sorriso è languido;—perchè ristarvi muta?
Dite; un gentil mister—v' è grave a me svelar,
O un qualche velo nero—dovrò da me strappar?

ACT III

THE HOUSE OF GOLD

SCENE I

A Chamber in the House of Gold. Night; a lighted lamp. On one side of the stage, a suit of ancient armor.

ALVISE: (enters in violent agitation). Yes, to die is her doom! My name, my honor, Shall not with impunity be disgraced.
From Badoers, when betrayed,
It is vain to hope for pity.
Though yesterday upon the fatal isle
She escaped this vengeful hand,
She shall not escape a fearful expiation.
Last night, a sharp poniard should have pierced her bosom;
This night, I'll use no poniard! she dies by poison!
(Pointing to the adjoining room.)
While there the dancers sing and laugh,
In giddy movements flying,
Their mirthful tones shall blend with groans,
Breathed by a dying sinner:
Shades of my honored forefathers!
Soon shall your blushes disappear;
Soon shall a deadly vengeance prove
Honor to me is dear.
While dance the giddy crowd,
In mirthful movements flying,
Here shall be heard the bitter groans
The sinner breathes in dying.
Yonder, the nobles of the nation
Are gathered at my invitation;
Here, an insulted husband
For signal vengeance cries!
Exult, in dances and in songs,
While here a faithless one dies!

LAURA: (enters in a ball dress of pearls and gems; to Alvise). You have summoned me here?

ALVISE: (with an affectation of courtesy). Hoping to please you.

LAURA: My Lord—
(Slowly seating herself.)

ALVISE: Be seated.
(They sit at opposite sides of large table.)
Lovely as this, signora, I never yet have seen you;
Yet your smiles appear faint and languid,
Why do you sit speechless?
Tell me, is some gentle secret
About to be revealed?
Or will some vail of blackest dye
From me at once be torn?

LAURA: Dal vostro accento insolito—cruda ironia traspira,
Il labro a grazia atteggiasi—ma fuor ne scoppia l' ira. . . .
Mio nobile consorte,—non vi comprendo ancora!

ALVISE: (concitato). Pur d'abbassar la maschera—madonna, èquesta ora.
(Alzandosi con violenza.)
Giunta è l' ora!—ad altr' uomo rivolto,
Donna infame, è il tuo primo sospir. . . .

LAURA: Ad altr' uomo? Che dite? Che ascolto!
(Fra sè.)

ALVISE: Ieri quasi t' ho côlta in peccato,
Pur potesti salvarti e fuggir. . . .
Col mio guanto t' ho oggi afferrato,
Più non fuggi,—t'e d'uopo morir!
(La atterra violentemente. Laura getta un grido.)

LAURA: (a piedi di Alvise). Morir! è troppo orribile!
Aver dinanzi il cielo
Discender nelle tenebre
D' un desolato avel!
Senti! di sangue tiepido
In seno mis corre un rivo. . . .
Perchè, se piango e vivo,
Dirmi: tu dêi morir?
La morte è pena infame
Anche a più gran fallir!

ALVISE: Invan tu piangi—invan tu speri,
Dio non ti può esaudir!
In lui raccogli—i tuoi pensieri:
Preparati a morir!
E già che ai nuovi imeni
L' anima tua sospira,
O indocil sposa, ten vieni
E mira!
(Con forza sollevando la drapperia della camera attigua e indicando un catafalco. Si vedrà il riverbero dei ceri).

LAURA: (inorridita). Ah! Ove m'adduci?

ALVISE: Vieni! Questo è il talamo tuo!
(Entra Gioconda e s' appiatta in fondo. La serenata cessa per un momento.)

CORO: Ten va serenata,
Per l' aura serena,
Ten va, cantilena,
Per l' onda incantata.

ALVISE: (estraendo una fiala).
Prendi questo velen; e già che forte
Tanto mi sembri ne' tuoi detti audaci,
Con quelle labbra che succhiaro i baci,

LAURA: Throughout these accents unusual,
Irony still is breathing;
Your lips may kindness simulate,
Yet they are white with anger.
My noble lord and consort,
I do not understand you.

ALVISE: Well then, to tear away the mask,
The hour has come, signora;
(Getting up in violence.)
This is the moment. To another was given,
Shameless woman, your first loving sigh!

LAURA: To another? What mean you?

ALVISE: Yes, vilest of women.
I last night had nearly caught you when sinning
But you were able to fly from me!
In my grasp I today have enchained you,
Never to leave me, for now you must die. (Throws her down violently.)

LAURA: (at the feet of Alvise). To die! alas, it is a fate too horrible!
To quit a smiling sky,
And amid the deepest darkest gloom,
Die in desolation!
Lo! here, my lifeblood's rapid stream
Its onward course is keeping;
Yet life, for me, means weeping!
Why say you, I must die?
Death is the shameful punishment
For crimes of deepest dye!

ALVISE: In vain you weep, in vain you hope,
Heaven will not heed your prayer.
To yonder heaven your thoughts directing,
Prepare for death at once.
And now that for fresh nuptials
Fondly your soul is sighing,
Unfaithful consort, come here;
Admire this!
(Violently uplifting the draperies of the adjoining chamber, and pointing to a funeral bier.)

LAURA: (horrified). Ah! Where would you lead me?

ALVISE: Come! It is your bridal bed.
(Serenade behind, far off on the Lagoon. Gioconda enters, the serenade ceases, she conceals herself.)

CHORUS: Our gay songs are ending;
The soft echoes die,
And blithe careless laughter
Is changed to a sigh.

ALVISE: (producing a flask). You must take this poison. You have dared
To utter words that seem to me audacious,
Now let the lips that spoke them,

Suggi la morte.
Scampo non hai,
Odi questa canzon? Morir dovrai
Pria ch' essa giunga all' ultima sua nota.
(Esce.)

CORO: La gaia canzon
Fa l' eco languir,
E l' ilare suon
Si muta in sospir.
Con vago miraggio
Riflette la luna
L' argenteo suo raggio
Sull' ampia laguna
E in quel si sublima
Riverbero pio,
Patetica rima
Creata da Dio.

GIOCONDA: (accorrendo verso Laura, afferra il veleno che Laura ha tra le mani e le porge un' ampolla). A me quel filtro! a te codesto! bevi!

LAURA: Gioconda, qui?

GIOCONDA: Previdi la tua sorte,
Per salvarti mi armai, ti rassicura.
Quel narcotico è tal, che della morte
Finge il letargo i augosciasi e brevi
Sono gl' istanti. . . .bevi.

LAURA: Mi fai paura!

GIOCONDA: S' ei qui torna t' uccide.

LAURA: Atra agonia!

GIOCONDA: Prega per te quaggiù la madre mia,
Nell' oratorio, i miei fidi cantori
Son presso. . . .ascolta.

LAURA: Orror!
Già la canzone muor!

CORO: Ten va, cantilena,
Per l' aura serena,
Ten va, serenata,
Per l' onda incantata
Udite le blande
Canzoni vagar.
Il remo ci scande
Gli accordi sul mar.
Ten va, serenata,
Sull' onda incantata.

GIOCONDA: Con essa muori!
La condanna t' è nota:
"Pria ch' essa giunga all' ultima suo nota."

LAURA: Porgi! ho bevuto.
(Prende la fiala dalle mani di Gioconda poi scompare dietro le cortine della camera mortuaria.) that drank kisses,

Drink in your death. No hope is left for you.
Do you hear yonder song? Your life must cease
Before the last note of that song has sounded.
(Alvise goes out.)

CHORUS: Our gay songs are ending,
The soft echoes die,
And blithe careless laughter
Is changed to a sigh.
The wavelets and moonbeams
Together are blending,
The bright rays of silver
On ocean descending.
Sublime is the message
By nature now given,
In tenderest cadence,
Created in Heaven!

GIOCONDA: (runs to Laura, seizes the poison that she has in her hands and gives her a phial). Give me that flask, and take this quickly!
Drink it.

LAURA: Gioconda here?

GIOCONDA: Your cruel doom foreseeing,
I came here to save you. All fear now banish.
This narcotic is such, that in a trance
Like death, it will plunge you.
Drink it, drink it!
Full of anguish, yet brief
Are the moments now left for you.

LAURA: I am fearful of you.

GIOCONDA: He who returns here will kill you.

LAURA: O dark despair!

GIOCONDA: For your safety my mother in yon oratory
Is praying, and some staunch friends are near
You hear their singing.

LAURA: Alas! slowly the song dies out.

CHORUS: Our gay songs are ending,
The soft echoes die,
And blithe careless laughter
Is changed to a sigh.
We listen to songs
Full of innocent glee,
Our oars keeping time
As we float over the sea.
Float on, serenade!
Heaven soft air is granting;
In harmony float
Over the waters enchanting.

GIOCONDA: Drink, then. With it, your life was to cease!
This was the sentence:
"Before the last note of that song has sounded."

LAURA: Give me. I have drained it.
(Takes the phial from Gioconda and rushes behind the curtains of the funeral chamber.)

GIOCONDA: La ìala a me!
(Travasa il veleno d' Alvise nella fiala del sonnifero e lascia l' ampolla del veleno vuota ul travolo.) Gran Dio!
(Esce precipitosa.)

CORO: Il canto è la vita,
Di sogni si pasce,
Ai sogni c' invita,
Dai sogni rinasce,
D' un' anima ignota
È l' eco fedel;
L' estrema sua nota
Si perde del ciel.

ALVISE: (mentre la cadenza della serenata è alle ultime sue note, osserve l'ampolla vuoto sul tavolo).
Tutto è compiuto!
Vuoto è il cristal.
(Entra nella cella funeraria, vi rimane un momento e torna in scena.)
Vola su lei la morte.
(Esce lentamente.)

GIOCONDA: (ricomparisce dal lato opposto a quello donde è uscito Alvise. Si guarda iutorno, solleva la cortina della cella, poi, vistasi sola, esclama:) O madre mia, nell' isola fatale
Frenai per te la sanguinaria brama
Di rejetta rival. Or più tremendo
È il sacrifizio mio. . . .
Io la salvo per lui, per lui che l' ama!
(Esce precipitosamente.)

SCENA II

Sontuosissima sala attigua alla cella funeraria, splendidamente parata a festa. Ampio portone nel fondo a sinistra, un consimile a destra, ma questo tutto chiuso da una drapperia. Una terza porta nella parete a sinistra.

Entrano Cavalieri, Dame, Maschere. Alvise moverà loro incontro ricevendo e complimentando chi entra. Il Paggio gli sta accanto. Gioconda.

ALVISE: Benvenuti messeri! Andrea Sagredo!
Erizzo, Loredan! Venier! Chi vedo?
Isepo Barbarigo, a noi tornato
Cugino mio Partecipazio! O quanti
Bei cavalieri!. . . . Belle dame! Avanti,
Avanti! e voi, vispi cantori e maschere,
Presto sciogliete le carole e i canti.

GIOCONDA: Give me the flask.
(Pours the poison into the phial which had contained the narcotic, and leaves the empty flask on the table.)
Great heaven!
(Leaves precipitately.)

CHORUS: We listen to songs
Full of innocent glee;
Our oars keeping time
As we float over the sea.
From some unknown soul
Comes Echo's reply;
The last note, ascending,
Is lost in the sky!

ALVISE: (alone during the end of the serenade, he sees the empty phial on the table). All now is over!
Empty is the flask.
(Enters the funeral chamber for a moment, then re-enters.)
Death has forever claim'd her!
(He goes out slowly.)

GIOCONDA: (reappears from the opposite side from which Alvise has gone out, looks around, lifts the curtain of the chamber, seeing she is alone, exclaims:) O dearest mother, on yonder fatal island,
For your dear sake, I checked the burning frenzy
Of a passion disdained. Now, more tremendous
The sacrifice I'm making!
I save her; but for his sake, who loves her.
(Leaves precipitately.)

SCENE II

A magnificent hall, adjoining the funeral chamber, and splendidly adorned for a festivity. At back, wide entrance door. A similar door to the left completely closed by curtains. A third door, opening from the right wall to the left.

(Enter Cavaliers, Ladies, and Masquers. Alvise advances to meet them, and exchanges compliments with all who arrive. A page stands behind him. Gioconda enters unobserved.)

ALVISE: Worthy friends, you are welcome! Andrea Sagredo!
Erizzo, Loredan, Venier! Whom see I?
Isepo Barbarigo, to us returning
From pale, far distant China?
And here my much loved cousin comes, Partecipazio!
Of splendid knights what a concourse!
Pass onward, charming ladies, pass onward,
You, signors, too, are welcome, cavaliers,

	And you merry young singers, and maskers, too. Brighten the revelry with songs and dances!
CORO: S' inneggi alla Cà d' Oro Che intreccia ai rami d'oro Dell virtù l'alloro Col mirto dell' amor.	CHORUS: We sing in praise of the House of Gold, Where twine, in golden chaplets, With virtue's laurel leaves, The myrtles of true love.
ALVISE: Grazie vi rendo per le vostre laudi. Cortesi amici. A più leggiadri guadi Ora v' invito. Ecco una mascherata Di vaghe danzatrici. Ognuna è ornata Di bellezza e fulgore E tutte in giro rappresentan l' oro. S'incomincia la danza.	ALVISE: Let me offer you thanks for these kind praises, These accents courteous. And now let me invite you to gayer spectacles. Here come the masqueraders, A troop of lovely dancers. Each one is glowing With beauty and ardor. In graceful movements The Hours representing; And their dance now commences.
DANZA DELLE ORÈ: Le Ore del Mattino. Le Ore del Girono. Le Ore della Sera. Le Ore della Notte.	DANCE OF THE HOURS: The Hours of the Daybreak. The Hours of the Day. The Hours of the Evening. The Hours of the Night.
BARNABA: (trascinando Cieca che invano cerca svincolarsi dalle sue strette). Vieni!	BARNABA: (dragging in Cieca). Come on!
CIECA: Lasciami! Ohimè!	CIECA: Let me go! Ah me!
CORO: Cieca!	CHORUS: Cieca.
GIOCONDA: (accorrendo). O madre!	GIOCONDA: (running). My mother!
ALVISE: (e Cieca). Qui che fai tu?	ALVISE: (to Cieca). What do you want here?
BARNABA: Nelle vietate stanzo Io la sorpresi al maleficio intenta!	BARNABA: In the forbidden chambers I just now caught her, intent upon some malice.
CIECA: Pregavo per chi muor! (Si odono i lenti rintocchi della campana degli agonizzanti.)	CIECA: For her, just dead, I prayed. (The passing bell for the dying is heard slowly tolling.)
CORO: Per chi muor? che di' tu? Qual suon funèbre!	CHORUS: Her, just dead! What are you saying? Ah! That sounds funereal!
ENZO: (a Barnaba). Un' agonìa! per chi?	ENZO: (in an undertone to Barnaba). The knell of death! For whom?
BARNABA: (sottovoce ad Enzo). Per Laura!	BARNABA: (aside to Enzo). For Laura.
ENZO: Orror! Che più mi resta se quell' angiol muor?	ENZO: For Laura? O Heaven! What now remains for me, if she is dead?
ALVISE: (avanzandosi tra la folla atterrita e confusa). E che? la gioia sparve! Se gaio è Badoreo, Chi ha fra gli ospiti suoi dritto al dolore?	ALVISE: (advancing through the crowd stunned and confused). What now? Joy is immortal! If gay is Badoero, Who, amongst all his guests, has the right to be gloomy?
ENZO: Io l' ho più ch' altri.	ENZO: (advancing). I, of all others!
ALVISE: Tu? ma tu chi sei?	ALVISE: You! But who are you?
ENZO: (gettando la maschera). Il tuo proscritto io sono, Enzo Grimaldo, Prence di Santafior! Patria e amore Tu m' hai rubato un dì. . . . Or compi il tuo delitto!	ENZO: (unmasking). By you proscribed; Enzo Grimaldo, Prince of Santafior. My country, my beloved, Were stolen from me by you. Of crime you may now fill up the measure.
ALVISE: Audacia!	ALVISE: Audacious!
CORO: Audacia!	CHORUS: Audacious! He dies!
ALVISE: Sul capo tuo rispondi, Barnaba, del codardo insultator!	ALVISE: Barnaba, your head shall answer for him, Should the vile insulter escape.
CORO: D' un vampiro fatal, L' ala fredda passè E in teda funeral, Ogni face mutò Un sinistro baglior, La man su noi passò, No, gioia più regnar, Nella festa non può!	CHORUS: As if over our brows a vampire's hand had passed, A shudder takes the place of the smiles that each wore; With a sinister gleam our foreheads are illumed, And gay light-hearted joy at the feast reigns no more.
ENZO: (fra sè). O mia stella d' amor, O mio Nume fedel, Se rapita a me sei, Ti raggiungo nel ciel!	ENZO: (aside). O bright star of my soul, ever constant and sweet, Though from me you are torn, we shall meet in Heaven!
GIOCONDA: (fra sè). O tortura crudel! Inaudito martir! Quanto ei l' ama! è per lei, Qui venuto a morir!	GIOCONDA: (aside). Cruel tortures are mine, evil fated am I! True love's martyr is he; he for her came to die!
CIECA: (a Barnaba). O fatal delator, Se trafitto alcun fu, Riconosco la man, L' assassino sei tu!	CIECA: (to Barnaba). O vile hated spy! I too well know you, now! If a death-wound was given, the assassin—it was you!
BARNABA: (e Cieca). Giuro al cielo, se ier, Quella rea ti salvò! La vendetta oggimai, Più sfuggirmi non può!	BARNABA: (to Cieca). Ah, hear me swear! If last night you were saved, I'll today be revenged, too long I've been braved!
ENZO: (fra sè). Già ti veggo immota e smorta Tutta avvolta in bianco vel, Tu su morta, tu sei morta, Angiol mio dolce a fedel! Su di me piombi la scure, S' apra il baratro fatal, E mi guidin le torture All' imene celestial.	ENZO: (aside). I behold you motionless, pallid, Shrouded in your snowy vail! You are dead, love; you are dead, love! Ah! my darling, hopeless I wail The sharp axe is waiting for me, Opens wide a dark abyss; But to you shall torture guide me, Soon we'll share celestial bliss!
GIOCONDA: Scorre il pianto a stilla a stilla Nel silenzio del dolore. Piangi, o pupilla, Mentre sanguina il mio cor.	GIOCONDA: Sadly fall the teardrops, In the silence of despair; Break, oh heart! sad eyes, rain torrents! Fate, your sharpest doom prepare!
BARNABA: (a Gioconda). Cedi alfin, della mia mano Vedi qui l' opra fatale.	BARNABA: (aside to Gioconda). Yield, yield! all around See what power I have for ill! Well may you fear me; powers infernal Attract me still to ill deeds.
GIOCONDA: (sottovoce a Barnaba). Se lo salvi e adduci al lido, Laggiù presso al Redentor, Il mio corpo t' abbandono, O terribile cantor.	GIOCONDA: (aside to Barnaba). Do you save him, bring him safe out there, Close by the Redentor, and then Myself I will surrender To you, fearfulest of men.
BARNABA: (a Gioconda). Disperato è questo dono, Pur lo accetta il tuo cantor. Al destin spietato irrido, Pur d' averti sul mio cor.	BARNABA: (to Gioconda). Though despair may prompt your offer, I accept it for my part, And the bitterest fate will welcome, Once to press you to this heart.

CIECA: (a Gioconda). Le tue lagrime, o Gioconda,
Che non versi sul mio cor?
Un amor non ti circonda
Che sia pari a questo amor!

ALVISE: Nel fulgor di questa festa
Mal venisti, o cavalier,
Par che sia per te funesta
L' allegria dei Badoer!
Ma già appresto a' tuoi sgomenti
Nuova scena di terror!
Tu saprai, se invan si attenti
Del mio nome al puro onor!

CORO: Tetri eventi! Audacie orrende!
Spaventevole festin!
Come rapida discende
La valanga del destin!

ALVISE: (avanzandosi in mezzo della scena, con atto di suprema dignità). Or tutti a me! La donna che fu mia
L' estremo oltraggio al nome mio recò!
(Va verso la cella funeraria ed alza le cortine. Laura apparisce vestita di bianco stesa sul suo letto di morte. La cella è rischiarata da molti doppieri.) Miratela! Son io che spenta l' ho!

ENZO: (si slancia brandendo il pugnale ma è trattenuto dalle guardie). Carnefice!

GIOCONDA E CIECA: Orror!

CORO: Orror! orror!
(Giocondo corre verso Enzo che viene trascinato dalle guardie. Barnaba afferra per la mano Cieca e, giovandosi della confusione la spinge entro una porta segreta. Alvise resta intinobile presso la cella funeraria, additando il cadavere di Laura. Gli invitati si attegiano ad espressioni di raccapriccio, di sdeggno è di pieta. Quadro. Cala la tela.)

ATTO IV

IL CANAL ORFANO

L' atrio di un palazzo diroccato nell' isola della Giudecca. Nell' angolo di destra un paravento disteso, dietro il quale sta un letto. Un gran portone di riva nel fonda da cui si vedrà la laguna e la piazzetta di San Marco illuminata a festa. Una immagine della Madonna ed una croce appesa al muro. Un tavolo, un canapè, sul tavolo una lucerna ed una lanterna accese, un' ampolla di veleno, un pugnale. Sul canapè varii adornamenti scenici di Gioconda. A destra della scena una lunga e buia calle.

CIECA: (to Gioconda). You are weeping, O Gioconda,
Let me fold you to my breast.
Never love, like love maternal,
Can encounter every test.

ALVISE: Amid the splendor this fête surrounding,
You are unwelcome, cavalier;
But before long, new scenes of horror
Shall claim attention from you.
You shall soon see if I am watchful
Of the honor of my name.

CHORUS: Mournful feasting, fearful horrors!
Mournful feast, soon desolate!
Ah! how rapidly descending,
Falls the avalanche of fate!

ALVISE: (proudly glancing around). Now, all draw near! A woman, once my wife,
The foulest outrage brought upon my name.
(Opens the curtains and points to Laura all dressed in white on her death-bed, the chamber is lighted by many candles.)
Behold her now! It was I who took her life!

ENZO: (brandishing a poniard, rushes on Alvise, but is seized by the guards). Base murderer!

GIOCONDA AND CIECA: Horror!.

CHORUS: Horror! despair! woe!
(Barnaba grabs Cieca and pushes her into a secret door. Alvise remains motionless near the funeral chamber pointing to the corpse of Laura. The guests compose themselves. Some show fear, some pity, others disdain. The curtain falls.)

ACT IV

THE ORFANO CANAL

The vestibule of a palace in ruins, on the island of Giudeca. In the right-hand corner an opened screen, behind which is a bed. Large porch at back, through which are seen the Lagoon and the square of St. Mark, brilliantly illuminated. A picture of the Virgin, and a crucifix, hang against the wall. Table and couch; on the table a lamp and a lighted lantern, a flask of poison, and a dagger; on the couch various scenic ornaments belonging to Gioconda. On the right of the scene, a long dimly-lighted street.

Gioconda sola, cupamente assorta ne' suoi pensieri, intanto dal fondo della calle si avanzano due uomini che portano in braccio Laura avvolta in un mantello nero. Battono all' uscio. Gioconda si scuote e va ad aprire. Entrano.

GIOCONDA: Nessun v' ha visto?

PRIMO CANTORE: Nessuno.

GIOCONDA: Sul letto
La deponete.
(Gioconda va al paravento. Laura è deposta sul letto.)
I compagni
Verranno questa notte?

CANTORE: Sì.

GIOCONDA: Ecco l' oro
Che vi promisi.

CANTORE: Nol vogliam. . . .gli amici
Prestan opra da amici.

GIOCONDA: (mutando accento e supplicando). O pïetosi,
Per quell' amor che v' ha creati, un altra
Grazia vi chiedo. Nella scorsa notte
Mi scomparve la mia cieca madre,
Già disperata la cercai, ma invano.
Deh! scorrete le vie, le piazze, e l' orme
Della mia vecchierella Iddio v' insegni
Doman, se la trovate, a Canareggio
V' aspetterò, Quest' antro di Giudecca
Fra brev' ora abbandono.

CANTORI: A noi t' affida.
(Gioconda stringe ad essi la mano escono da dove son entrati. Gioconda presso il tavolo guarda il pugnale, la tocca, poi prende l' ampolla del veleno.)

GIOCONDA: Suicidio!. . . .in questi
Fieri momenti
Tu sol mi resti,
E il cor mi tenti.
Ultima voce
Del mio destino,
Ultima croce
Del mio cammino.
E un dì leggiadre
Volavan l' ore;
Perdei la madre,
Perdei l' amore,
Vinsi l' infausta
Gelosa febbre!
Or piombo esausta
Fra le tenebre!. . . .
Tocco alla mèta. . . .
Domando al ciel
Di dormir queta
Dentro l' avel.
(Guardando ancora l' ampolla.)

Gioconda, alone, gloomily buried in thought. From the end of the street two men advance, carrying in their arms Laura, who is enveloped in a black cloak. The two Cantori (street singers) knock at the door. Gioconda, startled, goes to open the door.

GIOCONDA: No one has seen you?

FIRST CANTORI: No one.

GIOCONDA: Upon yonder bed
Now place her.
(Gioconda walks to the screen and shows them where to carry Laura.)
Our companions?
Will they be ready tonight?

CANTORI: Yes.

GIOCONDA: Here's the gold
That I promised to you.

CANTORI: Take it back; true friends
Willingly help one another.

GIOCONDA: (changing accent and pleading). O have pity! By the love of those who bore you,
For further aid I implore you. During yesternight
From my blind mother I was separated;
Since then despairingly have sought her but vainly.
Ah, then, search every highway and piazza!
To the traces of my blind angel mother
Kind heaven will guide you.
Tomorrow, if you find her at Canareggio
I shall be found.
I shall abandon this den, this foul Giudeca, before long.

CANTORI: Rely on us.
(Gioconda clasps the hands of the singers, who depart through the porch by which they had entered. Gioconda approaches the table, and looks fixedly at the dagger, which she examines, and then takes up the flask of poison.)

GIOCONDA: Yes, suicide! the sole Resource now left me!
Stern Fate forever
Has bereft me of hope.
I the last accents
Of destiny hear,
Bear my last cross;
Know the end draws near.
Bright is the day,
The hours gaily flying!
Lost is my mother;
Love lies a-dying.
Conquered by jealousy's
Terrible fever,
I sink exhausted;
Sink down forever!
Near draws the end now!
If Heaven prove kind,
Before long in the grave
I may find repose.
(Again contemplating the flask of poison.)

Ecco, il velen di Laura, a un' altra vittima Era serbato! io lo berrò!—Quand' esso Questa notte qui giunga, io non vedrò Il loro immenso amplesso; Ma chi provvede alla lor fuga? ah! no! (Getta il veleno sul tavolo.) No, tentator, lungi da me! conforta, Anima mia, le tue divine posse! Laura è là. . . .là sul letto. . . .viva. . . .morta. . . . Nol so. . . .se spenta fosse!!! Io salvarla volea, mio Dio lo sai! Pur, s' ella è spenta!?. . . .un indistinto raggio Mi balena nel cor. . . .vediam. . . .coraggio. (Prende la lanterna, fa per avviarsi el letto e poi si pente.) Ah. . . .no. . . .giammai, giammai! No, non mi sfugga questo dubbio arcano! Ma s' ella vive? ebben. . . .Laura è in mia mano. . . . (Biecamente.) Siam sole—È notte—Nè persona alcuna Saper potria. . . .profonda è la laguna. . . .	The poison, meant for Laura, to another victim Soon will be fatal. Let me drink it! When he Shall come tonight, I shall not see How fervent their embraces. But who will answer for their escape? Ah no! (Throwing the poison on the table.) Tempter away! out of my sight! Take comfort, O my soul, in your divine endurance! (With ferocious joy.) Laura is there! yonder lying: dead?—or living? None knows. She's in my power— I to save her endeavored, great Heaven you know! Still, were she dead? An indistinct suggestion, Like a lightning-flash comes. Let's see! Now, courage! (Takes up the lantern, and is about to approach the bed, but stops.) Ah no! no, never! No, never! And yet—and yet the gloomy doubt still haunts me. But—were she living? Well, then, we are alone— Without witness; it is night, and no human being Could know when it was over. And deep is yon Lagoon.
UNA VOCE: (lontana sull' acqua). Ehi! dalla gondola, Che nuove porti?	A VOICE: (in the distance). Ho! gondolier! have you any fresh tidings?
ALTRA VOCE: (piu lontana). Nel Canal Orfano Ci son dei morti.	OTHER VOICE: (in the distance). In the Orfano Canal there are corpses.
GIOCONDA: Orrore! orrore!! orrore!!! Sinistre voce! illuminata a festa Splende Venezia nel lontano. . . .in core Mi si ridesta La mia tempesta Immane! furibonda! O amore! amore!! Enzo! pietà!. . . . (Al culmine della disperazione si getta accanto al tavolo. Intanto si vedrà Enzo venir dalla calle, trova la porta socchiusa, entra.)	GIOCONDA: Ah me! ah me! oh, horror! O sinister voices! Illuminated brightly, Resplendent Venice shines, out yonder! My heart Is thus illumined By flames of vengeance, Relentless, unforgiving, O love! O love! Enzo, have pity! Have pity, love, on me! (In despair throws herself down, weeping and exhausted, near the table. In the meantime Enzo comes form the street, finds the door open and enters.)
ENZO: Gioconda!	ENZO: Gioconda!
GIOCONDA: Enzo!. . . .sei tu!	GIOCONDA: Enzo!—it is you!
ENZO: (cupamente). Dal carcere M' hai tratto; e i miei legami Sciogliesti, e armato e libero Qui son. Da me che brami?	ENZO: From prison You have freed me: by you my chains Have been unfastened, and armed and free Behold me here. What would you do with me?
GIOCONDA: (con accento d' esaltazione straziante). Da te che bramo? ahi! misera! Ridarti il sol, la vita! La libertà infinita! La gioia e l' avvenir! L' estatico sorriso, L' estatico sospiro! L' amore. . . .il paradiso! Gran Dio! fammi morir!	GIOCONDA: (in accents heartrending exultation). What would I do with you? Alas! With smiles your life is surrounded, Your liberty unbounded, Bright joys lie in your pathway. The smiles that speak love's yearning, The sighs of rapture burning, This earth to Eden turning! (Aside.) Great Heaven, now let me die!
ENZO: Donna! col tuo delirio Tu irridi a un moribondo, Per me non ha più balsami L' amor, nè gioie il mondo. Addio. . . .	ENZO: Woman, calm your frenzied passion; My days will soon be over: New life, new love, no balm can bring A broken-hearted lover. Adieu now!
GIOCONDA: Che fai?	GIOCONDA: What are you doing?
ENZO: Non chiedere.	ENZO: Seek not to know.
GIOCONDA: (afferrandolo). Resta . . . M' ascolta.	GIOCONDA: (seizing him). Stay here, and listen!
ENZO: (svincolandosi). Cessa.	ENZO: (disengaging himself). Cease!
GIOCONDA: Tu vuoi morir per essa!	GIOCONDA: You will then die for Laura?
ENZO: Sì, sul suo santo avello Baciare anco una volta La pallida sepolta.	ENZO: Yes, I go to Laura's tomb, Once more to kiss, while dying, My lost love, lying lifeless.
GIOCONDA: (con possente ironia). Ebben, corri al tuo voto, Eroe mesto e fedel! L' avel di Laura è vuoto; Io l' ho rapita!	GIOCONDA: (mockingly). It is well; fulfill your purpose, O faithful hero, but know, The tomb of Laura is vacant.
ENZO: (con un grido). Cielo! (Con un grido.)	ENZO: (with a cry). Heaven!
GIOCONDA: (accennando alla croce appesa al muro). Giuro, Giuro su quella croce.	GIOCONDA: I have removed her.
ENZO: No: la bestemmia atroce Tergi dal labbro impuro! Di' che hai mentito!	ENZO: No! Falsehood! falsehood!
GIOCONDA: (con fierezza, poi supplichevole). No! No! Io dissi il ver!	GIOCONDA: (pointing to the crucifix on the wall). I swear it. Swear it by yon Redeemer.
ENZO: Vedi! già brilla il fulmine Del mio pugnal. . . . (Sguainando il suo pugnale e afferrando Gioconda.)	ENZO: No! you are a blasphemer! Yon crucifix profaning. No! you are perjured! (Takes out his dagger and seizes Gioconda.)
GIOCONDA: No! io dissi il ver.	GIOCONDA: No! I have sworn the truth.
ENZO: Vedi! Giàbrilla il fulmine Del mio pugna le.	ENZO: See! with gleam-like lightning-flash Shines my keen poniard!
GIOCONDA: Oh gioia! M' uccide!	GIOCONDA: (aside). Oh joy! He will kill me!
ENZO: Il tuo mister saprò. Parla. . . .	ENZO: Unfold your mystery!
GIOCONDA: No.	GIOCONDA: No!
ENZO: Parla.	ENZO: Answer!
GIOCONDA: No.	GIOCONDA: No!
ENZO: Ebben . . . . . infame . . . . muori! (Per ferirla.)	ENZO: Then you shall forfeit your life. (About to stab her.)
LAURA: (dall' alcova). Enzo!	LAURA: (from the alcove). Enzo!
ENZO: Chi è là!	ENZO: Who's there?
GIOCONDA: (atterrita). Mio Dio!	GIOCONDA: (terrified). Great Heaven!

LAURA: (comparendo). Enzo! amor mio!
Ah! il cor mi si ravviva. . . .
Respiro all aura. . . .

ENZO: Non deliro.

LAURA: Enzo, vieni . . . . vieni . . . . son viva!

ENZO: (slanciandosi, abbracciando Laura). Laura! ciel! non deliro! Ah! Laura! Laura!

GIOCONDA: (avviluppandosi la testa nel suo manto). Nascondili, o tenèbra!

LAURA: (guardando verso Gioconda). Ahimè! quell' ombra Alvise. . . .fuggi. . . .

ENZO: No, il terror disgombra.

LAURA: (avvicinandosi riconosce Gioconda che si sarà scoperta). Sei tu?! costei salvò la vita a me.

ENZO: (a Gioconda). Fanciulla santa!
Ch' io ti baci il piè!
(Laura ed Enzo cadono in ginocchio davanti a Gioconda.)

CORO: (nella distanza). Ten va, serenata,
Per l' aura serena,
Ten va cantilena,
Per l' onda incantata.
Udite le blande
Canzoni vagar,
Il remo ci scande
Gli accordi sul mar.
Il canto è la vita,
Di sogni si pasce,
Ai sogni c' invita,
Nei sogni rinasce,
D' un' anima ignota
È l' eco fedel,
L' estrema sua nota
Si perde nel ciel.

GIOCONDA: (con calma dolcissima). Questa canzone ti rammenti, o Laura?
È la canzone della tua fortuna.
Essa viene, per noi. Attenti udite,
Fratelli miei, quei rematori in salvo
Questa notte v' addurran. Per la fuga
Tutto provvidi cautamente. Alzate
Le vostre fronti, ch' io veda il sorriso
Ch' io vi creai. No, d' attristar Gioconda Più non temete. . . .amatevi. . . .
Ho il cuore rassegnato.
Nessuno è qui colpevole,
So che l' amore è un fato!
(Enzo e Laura al colmo della commozione.)
Basta! il tempo fugge!
La barca s' avvicina. . . .i miei compagni
Vi condurran prima dell' alba al lido
Dei Tre Porti. . . .
Verso Aquileja drizzerete il volo,
E di là poco lunge il sol d' Illiria
Vi splenderà liberamente in viso.
(A Laura.)

LAURA: (appearing). Enzo! my beloved!—
My strength is fast reviving—
I breathe the pure balmy air—

ENZO: I'm not dreaming?—

LAURA: Enzo! Come love! I'm living!

ENZO: (rushes forward, and embraces Laura). I'm not dreaming!—Heaven!—Living!

GIOCONDA: (covering her face with her mantle). Let darkness hide them from me.

LAURA: (looking towards Gioconda). Ah me! yon shadow
In mantle shrouded! Alvise! Fly!

ENZO: Dearest, have no fear!

LAURA: (approaching and recognizing Gioconda, who has uncovered her face). It is you! It is she by whose aid my life was saved!

ENZO: (to Gioconda). Angelic maiden,
Ah, let me kiss your feet!
(Laura and Enzo kneel before Gioconda.)

CHORUS: (at a great distance off). Float on, serenade!
Heaven soft airs is granting;
Float on, serenade,
Over the waters enchanting!
We listen to songs
Full of innocent glee;
With our oars keeping time
As we float over the sea.
A song is Existence,
On dreams it has flourished.
To dream we're invited,
By dreams we are nourished.
From some unknown soul,
Comes echo's reply;
The last note, ascending,
Is lost in the sky.

GIOCONDA: (with gentle calmness). Do you remember that song, oh Laura?
It is the song with which was linked your fortune.
It is for us it is sung. Attentively listen!
Dearest companions, yon rowers shall in safety
Place you both, before morning dawns. For your flight
All is provided, with due caution.
(Laura and Enzo at the height of their emotion.)
The barque is fast approaching: my companions
Will arrive, just before daybreak, abreast
Of the Three Gates: swiftly
Towards Aquileja then your flight directing,
You from thence (not far off) will see Illyria
Smiling a welcome to the wandering lovers.
Here are the boatmen.
(To Laura.)
O blessed one! Farewell!
My cloak will serve to hide you.

Addio. . . .
Ecco la barca. . . . il mio mantel v'asconda.
(Si vede la barca dei cantori che s' arresta alla riva. Gioconda si toglie il mantello di dosso e copre Laura; poi scorge al collo di Laura il rosario.)
Che vedo là! Il rosario! oh sommo Dio!
Così dicea la profezia profonda:
A te questo rosario
Che le preghiere aduna,
Io te lo porgo, accettalo,
Ti porterà fortuna. . . .
E così sia! quest' ultimo
Bacio che il pianto inonda
V' abbiate in fronte, è il povero
Bacio del labbro mio.
Talor nei vostri memori
Pensieri alla Gioconda
Date un ricordo. Amatevi. . . .
Vivete liete siate felici. . . .Addio!

ENZO E LAURA: Sulle tue mani l' anima
Tutta stempriamo in pianto.
No, mai su queste lagrime
Non scenderà l' oblio.
Ricorderem la vittima
Del sacrificio santo.
Ti benedican gli angeli.
Addio. . . .Gioconda. . . .Addio.
(Sull' ultimo verso Laura ed Enzo avranno già un piede sulla barca.—Quadro.—Partono.—Pausa.) GIOCONDA: (afferra l' ampolla del veleno). Ora posso morir. Tutto è compiuto.

Ah no! mia madre! aiuto!
Aiuto, o santa Vergine!
Troppi dolori sovra un solo cuore!
Vo' ricercar mia madre!. . . .Oh! mio terrore!
(Côlta da un pensiero improvviso.)
Il patto or mi rammento! Ah! la paura
Di Barnaba m' agghiaccia!
Qui riveder l' orribile sua faccia!
(Corre all' immagine della Madonna e si prostra.) Vergine Santa, allontana il Demonio!!

BARNABA: (viene dalla calle, si ferma alla porta socchiusa e sta spinado). Il ciel s' oscura.
(Scompare la luna.)
Prega! ed essa non sa qual testimonio.
Dell' orazion la guarda.

GIOCONDA: Vergine Santa, allontana il Demonio. . . .
Ebben, perchè son così affranta e tarda,
La fuga è il mio riscatto!

BARNABA: Ah! vuol fuggir. . . .
(Mentre Gioconda fa per fuggire s' incontra con Barnaba che spalanca l' uscio ed entra.)

(The barque of the Cantori arrives, and stops at the bank. Gioconda takes off her mantle, which she places on Laura, then sees the rosary on Laura's breast.)
What do I see? It is the rosary! Eternal Heaven!
Thus did my mother speak in prophetic tones:
This rosary I offer,
Possessing no richer prize;
Deign to accept the humble gift!
It will bring to you a blessing.
It brings you blessing: this last gentle kiss,
By my tears inundated,
I place on your forehead; the last kiss
That my lips will proffer.
Recall sometimes to memory
Kind thoughts of ill-fated Gioconda!
Keep me in memory, love each other:
May you both be happy!

ENZO AND LAURA: Upon your hands, your generous soul
Melting in grief is falling.
These mournful parting tears of yours
Shall never be forgotten.
Your memory we'll cherish always,
Your sacrifice recalling;
May angels bring you bliss divine.
Adieu, Gioconda, adieu!
(At the last verse Laura and Enzo have one foot in the small boat. They leave. Pause.) GIOCONDA: (clutching the flask of poison). Now I can die. All is over.

Ah no!—my mother! Oh, aid me,
Aid me, O Holy Virgin!
Too heavy is for one sad heart this anguish
I go to seek my mother. Oh woe is me! Ah!
That compact I remember. (Struck with a sudden thought.) Ah me! the terror
Of Barnaba overwhelms me;
Here to behold again those hellish features!
(Flies to the image of the Virgin and kneels before it.)
O Holy Virgin! keep away the foul demon!

BARNABA: (comes down the street, and stops at the half-opened door and looks around). The sky is cloudy.
(The moon disappears.)
Praying! but she little knows what
Witness to her prayers is listening.

GIOCONDA: O Holy Virgin, keep away the foul demon!
And now, why am I thus exhausted and faltering?
In flight is my only safety.

BARNABA: (aside). Ah! she would fly!
(Gioconda, when about to fly, meets Barnaba, who throws the door wide open, and enters.)

BARNABA: (terribilmente). Così mantieni il patto?

GIOCONDA: (prima atterrita, poi con coraggio suprema sino alle fine). Si, il patto mantengo—lo abbiamo giurato, Gioconda non deve—quel giuro tradir.
Che Iddio mi perdoni—l' immenso peccato
Che sto per compir.

BARNABA: (fra sè). Ebbrezza! delirio!—Sognata mia gioia
Ti colgo e repente—nell arido cuor
S' innonda di gioia!—Scompar l' atra noia
Coi rai dell' amor?

GIOCONDA: (a Barnaba che fa per avvicinarsi). T' arresta raffrena il selvaggio delirio!
Vo' farmi più gaia, ah! più fulgida ancora.
Per te voglio ornare—la bionda mia testa
Di porpora e d' ôr!
(Va ad ornarsi.)
Con tutti gli orpelli—sacrati alla scena

BARNABA: (in terrible tones). You keep your compact thus?

GIOCONDA: (at first terrified, recovers her courage, and retains it to the end). Yes, I keep to my compact; we both swore to keep it,
And never will Gioconda be false to her oath.
May Heaven in mercy withhold condemnation,
And pardon us both!

BARNABA: O rapture! O dream of Elysium!
You're mine now! and swift from this desolate heart,
Expelled by love's rays, somber shadows depart.

GIOCONDA: (to Barnaba, who is approaching her). No, stop!
Restrain awhile your ardent passion!
You soon shall behold in splendor Gioconda,
For you, I am braiding my clustering tresses
With purple and gold. (Begins to adorn herself.)
With glittering jewels, the gay jewels worn nightly

Dei pazzi teatri—coperta già son.
Ascolta di questa—sapiente sirena
La dolce canzon.
Ah! Ah! Mantengo il mio detto
Tradirti non vo'.
Volesti il mio corpo,—demon maledetto?
E il corpo ti do!
(Si trafigge nel cuore col pugnale che avrà raccolto furtivamente nelle resti adornandosi e piomba a terra come fulminata.)

BARNABA: Ah! ferma! irrisïon!
. . . . ebben . . . . or tu . . . .
M' odi. . . .e mori dannata:
(Curvandosi sul cadavere di Gioconda e gridandogli al l' orecchio con voce furibonda.)
Ier tua madre m' ha offeso! Io l' ho affogata!
Non ode più!!
(Esce precipitosamente a scompare nelle tenebri della calle.)

IL FINA.

By madcaps theatrical, I'll be covered;
Now listen to the song that this ardent young siren
Will sing to you!
I keep to my compact; no false oath was mine;
You claim my body? Now, demon accursed,
This body is yours!
(Stabs herself to the heart with the dagger that she had furtively secreted while adorning herself, and falls dead, as if lightning-struck.)

BARNABA: Ah stop! It is a jest!
Well then, you
Shall hear this,
And die ever damned!
(Bending over the corpse of Gioconda, and screaming furiously into her ear.)
Last night, your mother did offend me;
I have strangled her!
She hears me not! Ah!!
(With a cry of half-choked rage, rushes down the street.)

END OF THE OPERA.

L'Amour des Trois Oranges (1921)

The Love of Three Oranges

MUSIC & LIBRETTO BY SERGEI PROKOFIEV ■ BASED ON A PLAY BY CARLO GOZZI

This four-act opera with ten scenes and a Prologue, set to a libretto by the composer from Carlo Gozzi's comedy, premiered at the Chicago Opera House on December 30, 1921. The curtain is down. An artistic discussion takes place among the Glooms, the Joys, the Emptyheads and the Jesters about what kind of play should be performed. Ten announcers shoo them off the stage, and a herald announces the start of the show. The King of Clubs is upset because his son, the Prince, suffers from depression that can only be cured if he is made to laugh. Pantaloon suggests that feasts and theatrical extravaganzas may work, and Truffaldino, the jester, promises to make all the arrangements. The King instructs Leandro, his Prime Minister, to organize the entertainment. This worries Pantaloon, who is aware that the Prime Minister is plotting against the Prince. The stage darkens to the rumble and flash of thunder and lightning. Tchelio, the magician, protector of the King, and Fata Morgana, Leandro's protector, appear. She beats Tchelio at a game of cards. Back at the King's palace, Leandro tells his partner-in-crime, Clarissa, the King's niece, how he expects to kill the Prince with boredom. They catch Smeraldina, a black slave, listening in on their conversation. She assures them that if Fata Morgana is at the planned festivities, they will be successful, since no one ever laughs when she appears. Truffaldino dresses the Prince for the festivities. The jester does everything he can to make everyone laugh, but Fata Morgana, disguised as an old beggarwoman, stops all laughter. Truffaldino picks a fight with her and knocks her over. The Prince finds this hilarious and bursts out laughing. As her revenge, she decrees that the Prince will go on a search for three oranges. He will be miserable until he finds them and falls in love with them. The Prince and Truffaldino travel through the desert to the castle of Creonte, the witch who owns the three oranges, with a magic ribbon for Creonte, given to them by Tchelio. Creonte, in the guise of a gigantic cook, theatens them with a ladle but is placated by their gift of the ribbon. The Prince sneaks into the kitchen and steals the three oranges. Back in the desert, it is nighttime, and the Prince is asleep. Truffaldino is thirsty and cuts open two of the three oranges, which are now enormous. Two beautiful Princesses, Linetta and Nicoletta, emerge, but they die of thirst as the oranges were not opened at the water's edge as Fata Morgana had originally decreed. The Prince wakes up and cuts open the third orange. The beautiful princess Ninetta steps out, and she is saved from dying of thirst with the help of the Jesters, who rush to her side with a bucket of water. The Prince and Princess undergo many more trials at the hand of Fata Morgana; the Princess is even changed into a rat at one point, but they finally overcome every tribulation. Fata Morgana, defeated at last, is captured and taken away. Without the protection of Fata Morgana's evil magic, Leandro and Clarissa are at the mercy of the King's wrath. The Prince and Princess marry, and there is much rejoicing.

■ PROLOGUE.	■ PROLOGUE.
(Le rideau est baissé, grande avant-scène. De chaque côté de l'avant-scène une tour avec des petits balcons et balustrades.)	(The curtain is lowered, large proscenium. On each side of the proscenium stands a tower with small balconies and balustrades.)
LES TRAGIQUES: (Arrivent en courant de la Coulisse droite sur l'avant-scène en brandissant furieusement des parapluies.) Donnez nous, donnez nous de grandes tragédies, Tragédies mondiales et philosophiques!	TRAGEDIANS: (Arrive running onto the proscenium from the right wing, vigorously waving umbrellas). Give us, give us great tragedies, Tragedies universal and philosophic!
LES COMIQUES: (Se ruent sur l'avant-scène par la coulisse gauche brandissant des cravaches). Donnez nous de vraies comédies, Du rire joyeux, du rire sonore!	COMEDIANS: (Hurling themselves onto the proscenium from the left wing, snapping riding whips). Give us true comedies, Joyful laughter, loud laughter.
LES TRAGIQUES: Meurtres, douleurs, des âmes torturées! (Attaquant les Comiques.) Assez de rire!	TRAGEDIANS: Murders, pain, tortured souls! (They attack the Comedians.) Enough of laughter!
LES COMIQUES: Assez de tragique!	COMEDIANS: Enough tragedy!
LES TRAGIQUES: (Agitant les parapluies et refoulant les Comiques à gauche). Non, des tragédies profondes!	TRAGEDIANS: (Waving the umbrellas and pressing the Comedians to the left). No, tragedies profound!
LES COMIQUES: (Reculant devant les Tragiques vers la coulisse gauche). De la gaité saine!	COMEDIANS: (Retreating before the Tragedians toward the left wing). Healthy joy!
LES TRAGIQUES: Misérables!	TRAGEDIANS: You unhappy ones!
LES LYRIQUES: (Sortant de la coulisse droite avec des branches vertes). Donnez de vrais drames lyriques . . . (Les Lyriques n'attaquant personne occupent le milieu de l'avant-scène.)	LYRICISTS: (Enter from the right wing with green branches). Give true lyric dramas . . . (The Lyricists attack nobody but occupy the center of the proscenium.)
LES COMIQUES: Bourreaux cruels!	COMEDIANS: Cruel executioners!

LES TRAGIQUES: Tapageurs!

LES COMIQUES: (Se defendant près de la coulisse gauche). Perfides!

LES TRAGIQUES: Du tragique inextricable, Métaphysique!

LES LYRIQUES: Romantiques émotionnants,
Des fleurs, la lune, des moments d'extase!

TÊTES VIDES: (Sortant de la coulisse droite avec de petites cannes attaquent de suite les Lyriques). Donnez, donnez des farces amusantes,
Des mots d'esprit grivois!

LES COMIQUES: Assez! À-bas! À-bas!

TÊTES VIDES: (Ayant dispersé les Lyriques, attaquent les Tragiques). Donnez nous du luxe!
(Aux Tragiques.)
Au diable vieux croquemorts!

LES COMIQUES: Il faut de la joie et du rire,
De la verve, de l'esprit
Et des sujets complexes,
Donnez nous du comique,
De la comédie!

LES TRAGIQUES: (Se ruant sur les Têtes Vides). Fainéants!
Débaucheurs!
Têtes vides sortez d'ici!
Parasites! Parasites! Parasites!
Donnez nous de la tragédie.
Du tragique!

LES LYRIQUES: L'amour rêveur et tendre!
Des rêves, des songes lyriques.

TÊTES VIDES: À la porte vieux crétins!
Ne pas penser, mais rire!
Donnez des farces!
(Dix Ridicules écartant le rideau au milieu se precipitent sur l'avant-scène et avec des pelles géantes dèblayent la scène des Combattants.)

LES RIDICULES: Eh! silence!
Quittez la scène, allez-vous en!
Allez dans la salle!

LES LYRIQUES: L'amour!

LES RIDICULES: (Ramassent avec les pelles les combattants, les refoulant dans les coulisses.) Voyez notre spectacle!
C'est du bon théatre!
C'est incomparable!
C'est là qu'est le vrai chemin!
(Enthousiasmés.)
L'amour pour Trois Oranges!
(Ayant chassé la foule les Ridicules, montent dans les tours, les tenors dans l'une, les basses dans l'autre.)
Chut, silence! silence!
Du calme! Pas de bruit!
(Crient des tours dans la direction de la scène.)
Vite, rideau! Et qu'on commence!

TRAGEDIANS: Disturbers!

COMEDIANS: (Defending themselves near the left wing). Traitors!

TRAGEDIANS: Tragedies unexplainable, Metaphysical!

LYRICISTS: Romantic, full of emotion,
Flowers, the moon,
Moments of ecstasy.

EMPTY HEADS: (Enter from the right wing with small sticks, and immediately attack the Lyricists). Give, give us amusing farces, Words of jovial humor.

COMEDIANS: Enough, down with you!

EMPTY HEADS: (Having dispersed the Lyricists, they attack the Tragedians.) Give us luxury.
(To the Tragedians.) To the devil, you old dead heads!

COMEDIANS: Joy and laughter are needed,
Verve and wit,
And complex subjects,
Give us the comic,
Give us comedy!

TRAGEDIANS: (Hurling themselves at the Empty Heads). Lazy ones! Debauchers!
Empty heads, away with you!
Parasites! parasites! parasites!
Give us tragedy!
The tragic!

LYRICISTS: Love, dreamy and tender!
Dreams and lyric imaginings!

EMPTY HEADS: Get out, you old idiots!
Not to think, but to laugh!
Give us farces.
(Ten Absurdities open the curtain in the center and rush onto the proscenium scattering the fighters with giant shovels.)

ABSURDITIES: Hey! silence!
Leave this stage, go away!
Go into the hall!

LYRICISTS: Love!

ABSURDITIES: (Gathering up the fighters in their shovels and pushing them towards the wings).
Watch our play!
It is a good theatre!
It is incomparable!
There lies the true road!
(Enthusiastically.)
Love for the Three Oranges!
(Having chased the crowd, the Absurdities enter the towers: the tenors in one, the basses in the other.)
Sh! silence! silence!
Be calm! No noise!
(They shout from the towers in the direction of the stage.)
Quickly, the curtain! Begin!

(Le Rideau s'ouvrant un peu au milieu laisse passer un hérault avec une trompette.)

LE HÉRAULT: (d'une manière imposante). Le roi de Trêfles est au désespoir, Car son fils, enfant chéri
Et prince héritier, souffre
D'un hypocondrie incurable.

LES RIDICULES: (Avec une agitation joyeuse). Ça çommence! ça commence!
(Le Rideau se lève lentement.)

■ ACTE PREMIER.

SCÈNE I.

(Le Palais du Roi. Le Roi. Près de lui Pantalon, devant eux des Médecins avec des instruments médicaux.)

LE ROI: (Avec sentiment.) Pauvre fils!
(Aux médecins.)
Je vous écoute. Qu'a-t'il au juste?

MÉDECINS: (Faisant leur rapport). Des douleurs au foie, des douleurs aux reins, L'asthme chronique.
Des maux de tête, une apepsie,
La faiblesse des artères, la tête ramolie,
Une toux douloureuse, la vue affaiblie,
Un corps anémique et maigre,
Bien trop de bile, des étourdissements.

LE ROI: (Terrifiê). Que faire?

MÉDECINS: Des terreurs sans motif évident
De longues syncopes.
De mauvais pressentiments, une indifférence
Pour tout, des peurs inexplicables,
Et la mélancolie profonde.

LE ROI: (Se bouchant les oreilles). Misère! Misère!

MÉDECINS: Et la mélancolie noire,
Et la mélancolie aigue.
(Faisant avec importance la Conclusion.)
Un état d'hypocondrie
Que nous jugeons inguérissable!

LE ROI: Quoi? quoi?

MÉDECINS: Un état d'hypocondrie
Que nous jugeons inguérissable.

LE ROI: Et bien?

MÉDECINS: Incurable!
(Le Roi renvoie par un mouvement tragique de la main les médecins qui s'en vont emportant leurs instruments avec désespoir.)

LE ROI: (Avec désespoir). Pauvre fils!

PANTALON: Pauvre prince!

(The curtain opens a little in the middle and permits the entry of a Herald with a trumpet.)

HERALD: (In an imposing manner). The King of Clubs is in despair,
For his son, a beloved child,
And heir, suffers
From an incurable hypochondria.

ABSURDITIES: (With playful agitation). It is starting! it is starting!
(The curtain rises slowly.)

■ ACT I.

SCENE I.

(The Palace of the King. The King. Near him Pantaloon, and in front of them doctors with medical instruments.)

KING: (With feeling). Poor son.
(To the doctors.)
I am listening. What exactly has he?

DOCTORS: (Reporting). Pains in the liver, lumbago,
Chronic asthma,
Headaches, indigestion,
Feeble arteries, softened head,
Painful cough, enfeebled sight,
An anemic and thin body,
Biliousness and dizziness.

KING: (Terrified). What should be done?

DOCTORS: Fears without apparent reason,
Prolonged swoons,
Bad presentiments, an indifference
To all things, inexplicable terrors,
And profound melancholia.

KING: (Covering his ears). Misery! misery!

DOCTORS: And black melancholia,
And acute melancholia,
(Concluding impressively.)
A condition of hypochondria
We consider incurable!

KING: What? What?

DOCTORS: A condition of hypochondria
We consider incurable!

KING: Well?

DOCTORS: Incurable!
(The King dismisses the Doctors by a tragic motion of the hand and they leave in despair, taking their instruments with them.)

KING: (In despair). Poor son!

PANTALOON: Poor Prince!

LE ROI: Mon malheureux enfant!

LE ROI et PANTALON: (Terrifiés, repetant la conclusion des Médecins). Les docteurs ont constaté:
Un état d'hypocondrie incurable.

LE ROI: (Répetant tristement les maladies de son fils). Des douleurs au foie, Des douleurs au reins,
Des maux de tête,
L'indigestion, des troubles nerveux
La faiblesse des artères,
De l'asthme chronique,
Une toux douloureuse,
Des syncopes profondes
Et la vue affaiblie.

PANTALON: (Vivement). Ah! grand Dieu! c'est ça la médecine!
Ils ne savent rien de rien,
Ils ne peuvent rien guérir.
(Contrefaisant les Médecins.)
Il a mal au foie! Que diable!
Soignez lui donc le foie!
Il a mal aux reins!
Que diable, soignez lui donc les reins.

LE ROI: Je suis si vieux!
Qui donc héritera de mon royaume?
Serait-ce ma nièce Clarice?
Si cruelle et ridicule!

PANTALON: Pauvre! Pauvre!
(Sanglotant dans le manteau du Roi.)

LE ROI: (Sanglotant). O pauvre moi! O pauvre fils!
Pauvre royaume!
(Le Roi sanglotte.)
(Les Ridicules suivent tout le temps avec inquiètude la conduite du Roi craignant qu'il ne se soit rendu grotesque, par devant le public.)

LES RIDICULES: Mais il perdra son prestige royal!
Son prestige . . .
Nous commes choqués!

PANTALON: (Calmant le Roi).
Calmez vous! calmez vous!

LE ROI: (Se calmant et comme en rêve). J'ai dit, les docteurs ont dit:
Que seul le rire pouvait
Guérir mon pauvre fils.

PANTALON: (d'un ton convaincu). Alors qu'on le fasse rire!

LE ROI: Faible chance.
(Pantalon de plus en plus agité.)

PANTALON: Il faut le faire rire quand même.
La cour est bien trop triste.
Les gens se trainent la tête baissée et mornes!
Comment voulez vous que le prince puisse rire?
Tout! Tout doit être gai autour de lui.
(Ayant trouvé le moyen de guérir le prince avec joie.)

KING: My unhappy child!

KING AND PANTALOON: (Terrified, repeat the Doctors' diagnosis). The doctors have noted
An incurable hypochondria.

KING: (Repeats sadly his son's illnesses). Pains in the liver, Lumbago,
Headaches,
Indigestion, nervous troubles,
Feeble arteries,
Chronic asthma,
A painful cough,
Prolonged swoons,
And feeble sight.

PANTALOON: (Vivaciously). Ah!
Dear me! that medicine!
They know nothing at all.
They can cure nothing.
(Imitating the doctors.)
He has liver trouble! What the devil!
Then take care of his liver!
He has kidney trouble!
Then take care of the kidneys!

KING: I am so old!
Who will inherit my kingdom!
Will it be my niece Clarisse?
So cruel and so ridiculous!

PANTALOON: Poor man! poor man!
(Weeps in the King's robe.)

KING: (Weeping). Oh poor me!
That poor son!
Poor kingdom!
(The King weeps.)
(The Absurdities have been following The King's actions with anxiety, fearing that he might appear ridiculous to the public.)

ABSURDITIES: But he will lose his royal prestige!
His prestige . . . .
We are shocked!

PANTALOON: (Calming the King). Be calm! be calm!

KING: (Calming down and as in a dream). I have said, the doctors said:
That only laughter can Cure my poor son.

PANTALOON: (With conviction).
Then make him laugh!

KING: Small chance of that.
(Pantaloon becomes more and more agitated.)

PANTALOON: He must be made to laugh nevertheless.
The court is much too sad,
People drag themselves around,
Heads bent and mournful!
How can the Prince laugh?
All! All should be gay around him!
(Having found the means to cure the Prince, joyfully.)

LE ROI: Non jamais le pauvre prince ne rira.

PANTALON: J'ai trouvé ce qu'il faut pour égayer
Le prince. Qu'on ordonne des spectacles,
Des tournois, des fêtes;
Qu'on appelle des gens qui peuvent le faire rire.
(Pantalon se rappelant du nom dont il a besoin crie à tue tête dans la coulisse.)
Trouffaldino! Trouffaldino!

LE ROI: Des fêtes? Des spectacles?
(Faisant avec la main un signe désesperé.) Inutile!

PANTALON: Pourquoi ne pas le faire?
Si ça pouvait sauver le prince.
(Criant vers la coulisse.)
Trouffaldino!!!

TROUFFALDINO: (Se précipite en courant vers Pantalon). En quoi te suis-je utile?

PANTALON: (Avec importance).
Pas à moi, à ton roi!
(Trouffaldino se précipite a genoux devant Le Roi.)

LE ROI: (Pensif). Dis-moi, Trouffaldino,
Je voudrais donner des fêtes,
Pour essayer de faire rire le pauvre prince.

TROUFFALDINO: Tout sera fait de suite,
Ça-y-est! je vais arranger des fêtes.
(Il sort en courant.)

LE ROI: (Revolté par la conduite de Trouffaldino, tappe du pied).
Quoi donc! est-il fou?

PANTALON: (Content). Trouffaldino c'est vraiment parfait.
(Le Roi frappe dans les mains.)

PANTALON: (à part). O oui, c'est très bien!

LE ROI (Aux serviteurs qui viennent d'entrer). Nous voulons voir Léandre.
Notre premier ministre.

PANTALON: (Tout bas en colère).
Ah! Léandre? je le déteste!
Il veut la mort du prince!
(Entre Léandre qui salue profondément selon l'étiquette.)

LE ROI: Léandre, qu'on ordonne de suite des fêtes joyeuses . . .
Des galas superbes; qu'on prépare des luttes,
De folles mascarades.

LES RIDICULES: (Très contents de l'ordre du Roi répètent après lui).
Fêtes, galas superbes, des luttes.
Mascarades, mascarades, mascarades!
C'est maigre—il faut des bacchanales.

KING: No, the poor Prince will never laugh.

PANTALOON: I have found what is needed to cheer up
The Prince. Order performances,
Tournaments, festivals;
Call people who can make him laugh.
(Pantaloon remembers the name he has been trying to recall and shouts loudly towards the wing.) Trouffaldino! Trouffaldino!

KING: Festivals! performances!
(Expresses despair with his hand.) Useless!

PANTALOON: Why not do it?
If it can save the Prince.
(Shouting toward the wings.)
Trouffaldino!!!

TROUFFALDINO: (Hastily runs towards Pantaloon). What? Can I be of service to you?

PANTALOON: (With dignity).
Not to me but to your King.
(Trouffaldino throws himself on his knees before the King.)

KING: (Thoughtfully). Tell me, Trouffaldino,
I would like to arrange festivals
To try to make the poor Prince laugh.

TROUFFALDINO: Everything will be done at once.
That is agreed. I will organize festivals.
(He exits, running.)

KING: (Indignant at Trouffaldino's manner, stamps his foot).
What is it? Is he insane?

PANTALOON: (With satisfaction). Trouffaldino is really perfection.
(The King claps his hands.)

PANTALOON: (Aside). Oh yes, all is well!

KING: (To servants who have entered). We wish to see Leander,
Our Prime Minister.

PANTALOON: (Low but angrily).
Ah! Leander! I hate him!
He wants the Prince to die!
(Enter Leander bowing low according to etiquette.)

KING: Leander, give immediate orders for gay festivals . . . . . .
Superb feasts, organize combats,
Wild masquerades.

ABSURDITIES: (Delighted with the King's orders, repeat his words). Festivals, superb feasts, combats.
Masquerades! masquerades! masquerades!
It is not enough, there must be bacchanals.

LÉANDRE: (Au Roi). Oh! Mon Roi, ça fatiguera le pauvre prince,
Cela est bien inutile.

PANTALON: (En colère). Ah!

LE ROI: Il faut toujours tenter la chance.
(En ordonnant.)
Des jeux, des spectacles,
(Soulignant.)
Des bacchanales.

RIDICULES: (Contents). Ah!

LÉANDRE: (Cachant à peine sa colère). Il en sera bien plus malade.

LE ROI: (S'en allant ordonne avec autorité). Des fêtes, des bacchanales.
(Sort.)

PANTALON: (À Léandre avec rage). Ah! traître.
(Suit le Roi.)

LÉANDRE: Bouffon!

SCÈNE II.

(La scène devient sombre. Un rideau cabalistique descend laissant seulement une petite partie de la scène pour l'action. Tout le tableau se joue dans l'obscurité. Il sort de la terre du feu et de la fumée. D'en bas paraît le magicien Tchélio suivi de tonnerres et d'éclairs.)

RIDICULES: (Bouleversés). C'est Tchélio!
(Le feu et la fumée apparaissent à un place de la scène près du magicien. Fata Morgana apparait avec tonnerres et éclairs.)

LES RIDICULES: (Encore plus bouleversés). Fata Morgana.
(La scène pullule de petits diables. Ils apportent une table, qu'ils placent entre Tchélio et Fata, des cartes et des immenses tableaux du roi de Trèfles et du roi de Pique, qu'ils posent: le primier derrière Tchélio et le second derrière Fata. Les deux tableaux sont lumineux et brillent dans l'obscurité.)

LES PETITS DIABLES: (Hurlent). Hi hi hi hi hi!

LES RIDICULES: Ils jouent aux cartes!
(Le jeu commence. Tchélio donne les cartes qui sont d'une dimension exagérée. Les petits diables commencent une danse infernale faisant une ronde autour de Tchélio et Fata Morgana.) TCHÉLIO: (Ayant perdu, avec rage). Oh!

FATA MORGANA: (Ayant gagné, triomphant). Ha!
(Les Petits Diables tombent a genoux et se prostèrnent.)

LEANDER: (To the King). Oh King, that will tire the poor Prince,
It is quite unnecessary.

PANTALOON: (Angrily). Ah!

KING: One can always try.
(Gives the order.)
Games, plays,
(Emphatically.) Bacchanals.

ABSURDITIES: (With satisfaction). Ah!

LEANDER: (Barely able to conceal his anger). He will only get worse.

KING: (Exits and orders authoritatively). Festivals, bacchanals.
(Exit.)

PANTALOON: (Angrily to Leander). Ah! Traitor!
(Follows the King.)

LEANDER: Clown!

SCENE II.

(The stage darkens. A cabalistic curtain is lowered leaving only a small part of the stage for the action. The entire scene is played in darkness. Fire and smoke rise from the ground. From below appears the magician Tchelio, followed by thunder and lighting.)

ABSURDITIES: (Upset). It is Tchelio!
(The fire and smoke appear in one section of the stage, near the magician. Fata Morgana appears in thunder and lightning.) ABSURDITIES: (Still more upset). Fata Morgana.

(The stage is thronged with devilkins. They carry a table, which they place between Tchelio and Fata, and bring in cards and huge pictures of the Kings of Clubs and Spades. The first they place behind of Tchelio, the second behind Fata. The two pictures are luminous and shine in the darkness.)

DEVILKINS: (Yelling). Hi, hi, hi, hi, hi!

ABSURDITIES: They are playing cards!
(The game begins. Tchelio deals cards of an exaggerated size. The small devils start up an infernal dance, forming a circle around Tchelio and Fata Morgana.) TCHELIO: (Having lost, angrily). Oh!

FATA: (Having won, triumphantly). Ha!
(The Devilkins fall on their knees in obeisance.)

LES RIDICULES: Oh! Pauvre roi! La chance est à Léandre.
(Fata Morgana a donné les cartes, les petits diables se lèvent brusquement et commencent une ronde infernale.)

TCHÉLIO: (Perdant de nouveau, avec fureur). Oh!
(Les Petits Diables tombent a genoux.)

FATA: (victorieusement). Ha!
(L'image du roi de Trèfles s'obscurcit encore plus. L'image du roi de Pique devient encore plus lumineuse.)
(Les Petits Diables se prosternent.)

LES RIDICULES: Encore Léandre!
O pauvre roi!
(Le magicien Tchélio donne les cartes, les Petits Diables commencent une danse encore plus endiablée.)
(Fata Morgana lève en l'air très haut la dernière carte.)

FATA MORGANA: (Elle joue. D'un rire sardonique et victorieux.) Ha-Ha-Ha-Ha-Ha-Ha!

TCHÉLIO: (Perdant definitivement, agite les bras avec colère). Maudite! sois maudite!

LES PETITS DIABLES: (Servilement). Fata Morgana! Fata Morgana!
(Les Petits Diables remettent à Fata Morgana l'image du roi de Pique et à Tchélio celle du roi de Trèfles.)

FATA MORGANA: Léandre!

LES PETITS DIABLES: Hi!

TCHÉLIO: Crève!
(Fata Morgana s'enfonce dans la terre tenant dans ses bras l'image lumineuse du roi de Pique. Tchélio s'enfonce, tenant dans ses bras l'image obscure du roi de Trèfles. Les Diables disparaissent emportant la table de jeux.)
(La rideau cabalistique se l'eve. La Lumière.)

SCÈNE III.

(Décor de la Ière. scène. Léandre est seule à la même place où il était.)

LÉANDRE: (Sombre, la tête baissée). Tous mes désirs, n'ont rencontré Que des obstacles,
De grands et lourds obstacles,
La chose n'est pas facile!
(Entre Clarice revêche, décidée et extravagante.)

CLARICE: Léandre, sachez ceci:
Si le prince meurt
Je suis héritière du trône de mon oncle
Et si nous perdons le prince.

ABSURDITIES: Oh, the poor King!
Luck is with Leander.
(Fata Morgana now deals. The devilkins rise quickly and start an infernal round dance.)

TCHELIO: (Losing again, with fury). Oh!
(The Devilkins fall on their knees.)

FATA: (victoriously). Ha!
(The picture of the King of Clubs becomes still darker. The picture of the King of Spades becomes more luminous.)
(The Devilkins prostrate themselves.)

ABSURDITIES: Leander once more!
Oh poor King!
(The magician Tchelio deals the cards. The Devilkins start an even more devilish dance.)
(Fata Morgana raises the last card high in the air.)

FATA: (Plays. With a sardonic and victorious laugh). Ha-Ha-Ha!

TCHELIO: (Losing definitely. Waves his arms in anger). Be cursed! be cursed!

DEVILKINS: (With servility). Fata Morgana! Fata Morgana!
(The Devilkins give the picture of the King of Spades to Fata Morgana and that of the King of Clubs to Tchelio.) FATA: Leander!

DEVILKINS: Hi!

TCHELIO: Die!
(Fata Morgana disappears into the earth holding the luminous picture of the King of Spades. Tchelio disappears holding the dark picture of the King of Clubs. The Devilkins disappear carrying away the gaming table.)
(The cabalistic curtain rises. Light.)

SCENE III.

(Same as Scene I. Leander stands alone in the same position.)

LEANDER: (Moodily, with bent head). All my desires have met Nothing but obstacles,
Big and heavy obstacles.
It is not an easy matter!
(Enter Clarisse, harsh, positive and extravagant.)

CLARISSE: Leander, know this:
If the Prince dies
I am heiress to my uncle's throne.
And if we lose the Prince,
I will marry you, Leander.

Je vous épouse, Léandre.
(Léandre s'incline profondément.)
M'avez-vous bien comprise?

LÉANDRE: Oui princesse.

CLARICE: Comment pouvez vous àgir
Avec autant de calme?
Je crains qu'il vivra plus
Que nous nonobstant
Ṣa maladie hypocondriaque.
Être si tranquille, lorsqu'il faut oser?
Mais vous êtes indigne
Et de ma main et du trône.

LÉANDRE: Soyez un peu patiente.
Vous verrez j'atteins mon but.

CLARICE: (Avec mépris). Quel flegme.
(Léandre tendant le cou vers l'oreille de Clarice lui chuchotte méchament.)

LÉANDRE: Je le fais mourir de prose extra tragique.
(Les Ridicules tombent presque des tours en se penchant pour entendre les paroles de Léandre.)
Je le fais mourir avec des vers martéliens!
Avec des vers martéliens.

CLARICE: (Incrédule). Pas possible.

LÉANDRE: C'est dans son pain que je les glisse,
C'est dans sa soupe que je les hâche,
Et il mourra d'une maladie hypocondriaque!

LES TRAGIQUES: (Se ruant sur l'avant scène). Donnez nous de grandes tragédies.

LES RIDICULES: (Se tenant la tête). Encore ces types!
(Se précipitent de leurs tours et avec des pelles deblayent la scène des Tragiques.)

LES TRAGIQUES: Meurtres, souffrances,
Douleur des âmes torturées.
Des solutions profondes.
(Les Ridicules repoussent les Tragiques dans la coulisse. Les Tragiques par un effort inattendu pénètrent de nouveau sur la scène.)
Des souffrances mondiales.
(Les Ridicules rentrent dans les tours avec un air agacé.)

LES RIDICULES: Ça fatigue vraiment.

CLARICE: Non Léandre, vos plans me paraissent inéfficaces,
Il ne faut pas traîner les choses.
Donnez au prince de l'opium ou une balle.
(Au fond de la scène passe en sautillant Trouffaldino avec tous les attirails d'un bouffon. Derrière lui on porte les accessoires pour une fête et une mascarade. Tout un défilé.)
Qui est-ce? dites-moi.

LÉANDRE: Trouffaldino, un homme qui fait rire.

CLARICE: Pourquoi vient-il?

LÉANDRE: Le roi l'a fait venir
Pour faire rire le prince
Dès demain on donnera de grandes fêtes. (Léandre d'un geste coléreux agite le bras dans la direction où a disparu Trouffaldino.)
Et ce polichinelle
Va priouetter même sur la tête!
(Sarcastique.)
Pourvu que le prince rigole!

LES RIDICULES: (Gaîment et avec verve). Il va guérir, quand on pourra le faire rire:
On va bien rire quand on saura qu'il va guérir.

CLARICE: (Sombre comme avec un mauvais pressentiment.) Il va guérir quand on pourra le faire rire.

LÉANDRE: Il va guérir quand on pourra le faire rire.

CLARICE: Ce bouffon est drôle.

LÉANDRE: C'est vrai!

CLARICE: (Reprochant énergiquement à Léandre.) Vous êtes incorigible, Léandre!
Votre lenteur devient éxaspérante!
Donnez au prince de l'opium ou une balle.
(Un vase tombe de la table. Léandre et Clarice reculent terrifiés.)

LÉANDRE: Qu'est-ce?
(Léandre renverse la table d'un coup de pied. Sous laquelle Sméraldine se trouve accroupie.)
(En colère.)
Debout fille de serpent!
(Sméraldine se lève.)
Tu voulais surprendre
Une affair d'état secrète!
Je vais de suite te faire pendre!
(Il veut appeler la garde.)

SMÉRALDINE: (Accourt vers Léandre et lui parle d'un ton sérieux). Un instant, Léandre, laisse moi vivre!
Il faut que je te sauve!
(Tout bas.)
Derrière le dos du prince se tient Trouffaldino,
Et derrière Trouffaldino se tient le mage.
Tchélio regarde.

LÉANDRE: Tchélio!
(Obscurité au fond de la scène passe. Tchélio est éclairé.)
(Sous l'impression de l'apparition.)
C'est étrange!

(Leander bows profoundly.)
Do you understand me?

LEANDER: Yes, Princess.

CLARISSE: How can you act
So calmly?
I fear he will live longer
Than we, in spite of
His hypochondria.
To be so calm when you should dare!
You are unworthy
Both of my hand and throne.

LEANDER: Be a little patient.
You will see me gain my end.

CLARISSE: (with disgust). What dullness!
(Leander stretches his head towards Clarisse's ear and whispers wickedly.)

LEANDER: I feed him on super tragic prose.
(The Absurdities almost fall from the towers in leaning down to hear Leander's word.)
I feed him harsh verses!
Harsh verses.

CLARISSE: (Incredulously). Is it possible?

LEANDER: I slide them in his bread,
I chop them in his soup,
And he will die of hypochondria!

TRAGEDIANS: (Hurling themselves onto the proscenium). Give us great tragedies.

ABSURDITIES: (Holding their heads). Those fellows again!
(They hurl themselves from their towers and clear the stage of the Tragedians with the aid of shovels.)

TRAGEDIANS: Murder, suffering,
The pain of tortured souls,
Solving profound problems.
(The Absurdities push the Tragedians into the wings. The Tragedians reenter the stage by an unexpected move.) Universal suffering.
(The Absurdities reenter the towers in an irritable mood.)

ABSURDITIES: It is really tiring.

CLARISSE: Now, Leander, your plans seem Ineffectual to me,
Things cannot be postponed.
Give the Prince some opium or a bullet.
(Trouffaldino crosses back stage jumping with all the allurement of a clown. Accessories for a festival and masquerade are carried after him. There is a procession.)
Who is that? Tell me.

LEANDER: Trouffaldino, the man who creates laughter.

CLARISSE: Why has he come?

LEANDER: The King made him come
To make the Prince laugh.
Great festivals will begin tomorrow.
(Leander waves his arm with an angry gesture in the direction in which Trouffaldino has disappeared.)
And this clown
Will even pirouette on his head!
(Sarcastically.)
To make the Prince laugh!

ABSURDITIES: (Calm but with emphasis). He will be cured when he can be made to laugh:
Everybody will laugh when it is known he will be cured.

CLARISSE: (Dully as though with an unpleasant presentiment). He will be cured when he can be made to laugh.

LEANDER: He will be cured when he can be made to laugh.

CLARISSE: That clown is funny.

LEANDER: That is true.

CLARISSE: (Reproaching Leander energetically). You are incorrigible, Leander!
Your slowness is exasperating!
Give the Prince opium or a bullet.
(A vase falls from the table. Leander and Clarisse step back in terror.)

LEANDER: What is that?
(Leander upsets the table with a kick. Smeraldine is disclosed underneath, squatting.)
(Angrily.)
Rise, daughter of a serpent! (Smeraldine rises.)
You want to overhear
A state secret!
I will hang you immediately!
(He is about to call the guards.)

SMERALDINE: (Approaches Leander and speaks to him seriously). One moment, Leander, let me live!
I must save you!
(Quite low.)
Back of the Prince stands Trouffaldino,
And back of Trouffaldino stands the Magician.
Tchelio watches.

LEANDER: Tchelio!
(The darkness back stage lifts. Tchelio is lighted.) (Impressed by the apparition.)
How strange!

CLARICE: (Sur laquelle l'apparition de Tchélio n'a produit aucune impression). Eh bien voyez, Léandre.
Demain les fêtes commencement.
(Dramatiquement.)
Et il va rire!
(Très énergiquement.)
L'opium ou la balle.
(Montrant Sméraldine.)
L'esclave, il faut la tuer.

SMÉRALDINE: Princesse! Princesse on pourra empêcher le rire.
Léandre, tu as pour toi Fata Morganna
Elle va venir à cette fête . . . elle-même!
Près d'elle le prince ne peut pas rire.

LÉANDRE: (émotionné). Fata Morgana?

CLARICE: (Saisie). Fata Morgana?

LÉANDRE: Parles-tu pour elle?

SMÉRALDINE: Oui, Fata Morgana!
(Ils font quelques pas en avant et étendant les bras appellent Fata Morgana.)

TOUS: Ah! viens pour la fête!
Fais pour nous une fête,
Fata Morgana!

FIN DE L'ACTE PREMIER.

ACTE DEUXIÈME.

SCÈNE I.

(La chambre du Prince hypocondriaque. Le Prince est asis dans un profond fauteuil, vêlu d'un costume (caricatural) de malade. Il a sur la tête une compresse, près de lui une table chargée de flacons de pommades de crachoirs et d'autres objets correspondant à son état. Trouffaldino haletant est en train de finir une danse comique probablement très longue.)

TROUFFALDINO: (Haletant mais d'un air victorieux). Est-ce drôle?

LE PRINCE: (d'un voix malade). Ah! Non! Non!

TROUFFALDINO: Est-ce possible que je ne sois pas drôle!

LE PRINCE: Non, non! Ma vue se brouille
J'ai la tête en feu!
Des douleurs aux reins
Et des douleurs au foie.

TROUFFALDINO: (Compatissant). Oh comme c'est pénible!

LE PRINCE: Tu dis que c'est pénible, c'est pire!
(Gémissant.)
O! O! O!

CLARISSE: (Who is not impressed at all by the appearance of Tchelio). Well, you see, Leander, Tomorrow the festivities begin.
(Dramatically.)
And he will laugh!
(Very energetically.)
Opium or the bullet.
(Indicating Smeraldine.)
The slave must be killed.

SMERALDINE: Princess! Princess, it is possible to prevent his laughing.
Leander, Fata Morgana supports you.
She will come to this festival . . . herself!
Beside her the Prince cannot laugh.

LEANDER: (Moved). Fata Morgana?

CLARISSE: (Distressed). Fata Morgana?

LEANDER: Are you speaking on her behalf?

SMERALDINE: Yes, Fata Morgana!
(They take a few steps forward and stretch out their arms calling to Fata Morgana.)

ALL: Ah, come to the festival!
Make it a festival for us,
Fata Morgana!

END OF FIRST ACT.

ACT II.

SCENE I.

(Room of the hypochondriac Prince. The Prince is seated in a deep armchair, clothed in a caricatured costume of a patient. He has a compress on his head; near him a table covered with flasks of salve, spitoons and other objects necessary for his condition. Trouffaldino is haltingly finishing a very long undoubtedly comic dance.)

TROUFFALDINO: (Stopping but triumphant). Is it funny?

PRINCE: (In a sick voice). Ah! no! no!

TROUFFALDINO: Is it possible that I am not funny?

PRINCE: No, no! My sight is blurred,
My head burns!
Pains in the kidneys
And pains in the liver.

TROUFFALDINO: (With compassion). How very sad!

PRINCE: You say it is sad, it is worse!
(Groans.)
Oh! Oh! Oh!

TROUFFALDINO: Qu'inventerais-je encore je dance,
Ça l'embête, je fais l'imbécile!
Il ne rit pas! Il pleure
Je suis à bout de mes ressources.
(Les gémissements provoquent la toux.)

TROUFFALDINO: Je crois que votre Altesse veut tousser?

LE PRINCE: Ah! Ah!
(Faisant ressortir la machoire pleine de sang il montre du doigt le crachoir qu'il exige.)

TROUFFALDINO: Je crois que votre Altesse veut cracher, faites!
(Lui tend le crachoir.)

LE PRINCE: (Indiquant nerveusement le crachoir du doigt). Ah!
(Crache.)
O!
(Trouffaldino prend le crachoir, étudie son contenu, le renifle.)

TROUFFALDINO: Ça sent des rimes puantes!
J'ai de suite reconnu l'odeur.

LES RIDICULES: Mais parbleux! Il le nourrit de vers martéliens!
Léandre. Canaille.

TROUFFALDINO: Prince, votre Altesse, on va donner
De si brillantes fêtes que vous rirez,
Prince, je vous jûre!
Souffrez qu'on vous habille,
Et partons sans retard.

LE PRINCE: M'habiller? Moi? C'est fou ce qu'il me dit.

TROUFFALDINO: Croyez Altesse c'est gai
On va nous faire rire.

LES COMIQUES: (Survienent sur l'avant scène). Donnez-nous du rire, des vrais comédies, Du rire joyeux, du rire sonore.

LES RIDICULES: Sortez d'ici, sortez plus vite.

LES COMIQUES: Des scènes vivifiantes.

LES RIDICULES: Laissez faire Trouffaldino
Il peut, sans vous, guérir
Le prince du diable!

LES COMIQUES: (Avec fureur.)
Du rire.
(Avec des pelles ils chassent les Comiques qui en se défendant sortent par la coulisse. Les Ridicules fatigués rentrent dans les tours. On entend de la coulisse la musique d'une marche gaie.)

TROUFFALDINO: Attention! Que c'est beau!
On commence allons plus vite.

LE PRINCE: Non je reste.

TROUFFALDINO: Ah! à quel point . . .

TROUFFALDINO: What else can I invent. I dance,
And he is bored; I play the fool,
And he does not laugh; he weeps.
I am at the end of my resources.
(The groans provoke a cough.)

TROUFFALDINO: I think your Highness wants to cough?

PRINCE: Ah! Ah!
(He shows a mouthful of blood and points his finger at the spitoon he needs.)

TROUFFALDINO: I believe Your Highness needs to expectorate.
Here you are.
(Passes him the spitoon.)

PRINCE: (Points nervously at the spitoon with his finger). Ah!
(Spits.)
Oh!
(Trouffaldino takes the spitoon, examines its contents and sniffs them.)

TROUFFALDINO: I smell odorous rhymes!
I recognize the smell at once.

ABSURDITIES: Zounds! He feeds him harsh verses,
Leander, the scoundrel.

TROUFFALDINO: Prince, Your Highness, there are to be given Such brilliant festivals, that you will laugh.
Prince, I promise you!
Permit us to dress you,
And we will go without delay.

PRINCE: Dress myself! I! What he says is insane.

TROUFFALDINO: Believe me,
Highness, it is gay,
And we will laugh.

COMEDIANS: (Arrive on proscenium). Give us laughter, true comedies, Joyful laughter, loud laughter.

ABSURDITIES: Get out, leave quickly.

COMEDIANS: Invigorating scenes.

ABSURDITIES: Allow Trouffaldino to act,
He can, without you, cure
The Prince of the devil!

COMEDIANS: (With anger). And laughter.
(With shovels they chase the Comedians, who while defending themselves exit through the wings. The Absurdities, tired, reenter the towers. The music of a gay march is heard back of the stage.)

TROUFFALDINO: Listen! How beautiful it is!
It begins. Let us go quickly!

PRINCE: No, I will remain.

TROUFFALDINO. Ah! how . . .

LE PRINCE: (l'interrompant). Donne-moi de cette médecine.

TROUFFALDINO: Oh! à quel point c'est amusant là-bàs!
Mettez ce grand manteau,
Mettez-le simplement sur la chemise.

LE PRINCE: (Criant capricieusement). Donne-mes ces gouttes!

TROUFFALDINO: (S'échauffant.) Ce n'est pas la peine.

LE PRINCE: Vite, quinze Gouttes!

TROUFFALDINO: (Se fâchant comme avec un enfant capricieux). Voilà ou vont partir les gouttes.
(Il jette par la fenêtre tous les flacons et crachoirs.)

LE PRINCE: Des gouttes!

TROUFFALDINO: (Projettant les gouttes). Voilà partez, partez.

LE PRINCE: (Pleurant). Quelle audace, canaille, infâme fripouille.

TROUFFALDINO: Encore voilà et puis en route.
(En le couvrant avec le manteau il le saisit el l'emporte sur son épaule.)

LE PRINCE: Ah! Ah! Ah!
(Perdant sa compresse se défendant et pleurant.)
Lache-moi, j'en mourrai.
(Trouffaldino l'emporte.)
Ah!
(Le Prince crie à tue tête.)
Ah!

SCÈNE II.

(La grande cour du Palais Royal. Sur une véranda le Roi, Clarice, le Prince enveloppé dans un manteau et des fourrures; sur des terraces des dames et des courtisans ainsi que Léandre et Pantalon.) TROUFFALDINO: (Au milieu de la cour annoncant avec entrain). Divertissement numéro un.

(Par un mouvement large du bras il ordonne d'ouvrir les grandes portes. Apparaissent des monstres avec des têtes immenses.)

LES COURTISANS: Bien bravo, bravo!

TROUFFALDINO: (Il ordonne aux monstres). Allez! allez!
(On battaile avec des lances. Trouffaldino leur indique des mouvements terribles.—Un groupe de monstres est victorieux.)

PRINCE: (Interrupting him). Give me some of that medicine.

TROUFFALDINO: Oh, how interesting it is there!
Put on this big cape,
Put it over your shirt.

PRINCE: (Shouting capriciously). Give me those drops!

TROUFFALDINO: (Getting excited). It is not worthwhile.

PRINCE: Quickly, fifteen Drops.

TROUFFALDINO: (Offended like a capricious child). This is where the drops will go!
(He throws the bottles and the cuspidor through the window.)

PRINCE: Drops!

TROUFFALDINO: (Contemplating the drops). There, depart, depart.

PRINCE: (crying). What daring, you scoundrel, infamous cheat.

TROUFFALDINO: Some more and then we will start.
(Covering him with a cape, he lifts him and carries him off on his shoulder.)

PRINCE: Ah! Ah! Ah!
(Losing his compress, he defends himself and cries.)
Let me go! I shall die!
(Trouffaldino carries him off.)
Ah!
(The Prince yells with full force.)
Ah!

SCENE II.

(The courtyard of the Royal Palace. The King, Clarisse and the Prince, wrapped in a cape and furs, are standing on the veranda; on the terrace there are ladies and courtiers, also Leander and Pantaloon.) TROUFFALDINO: (In the middle of the courtyard, making the announcements with animation). Divertissement number one.

(With a broad movement of the arm, he gives the signal for the large gates to open. Monsters with huge heads appear.)

COURTIERS: Fine! Bravo!

TROUFFALDINO: (Giving orders to the monsters). Go on! go on!
(They battle with lances. Trouffaldino makes grotesque movements. A group of monsters is victorious.)

LES COURTISANS: (Applaudissant). Bien bravo, bravo, c'est incomparable!
C'est très gai, c'est vraiment parfait.
(Trouffaldino montant sur les marches de la véranda royale.)

TROUFFALDINO: Le prince a-t-il ri?

LE ROI: Non!

LE PRINCE: (D'une voix pleurnicharde). Ce bruit me fatigue la tête, L'air est néfaste à mon pauvre coeur.

LE ROI: Ah! c'est mal!

TROUFFALDINO: (Aux monstres). Allez-vous en.
(Il court très agité sur la scène préparant le divertissement suivant. Fata Morgana apparait sur l'avant-scène habillée en vieille femme. Léandre remarquant une apparition si étrange à la cour royale s'approche de Fata Morgana.)

LÉANDRE: Qui es-tu? Qu'est-ce que tu cherches?

FATA MORGANA: Je suis Fata Morgana, quand je suis là
Il ne peut pas rire.
(Elle sort dans le coulisse.)
(Léandre la suit des yeux joignant dévotement les mains.)

LÉANDRE: Bienfaitrice! Oh! reine d'hypocondrie.

TROUFFALDINO: (Déclarant avec entrain). Divertissement numéro deux!
Ouvrez les fontaines
(On ouvre la Ière. fontaine.)
C'est de l'huile.

LES COURTISANS: Oh!

TROUFFALDINO: (Il déclare pompeusement. On ouvre la 2ème. fontaine). C'est du vin.

LES COURTISANS: (en applaudissant). Bien! Bien!
Oh! c'est admirable!

TROUFFALDINO: (Aux gardes). Amenez les ivrognes et les gloutons.

LES COURTISANS: C'est d'un goût remarquable!
(Les gardes ouvrent les grandes portes, les ivrognes et gloutons avec des sceaux et d'autres récipients se précipitent en se bousculant vers les fontaines.)

TROUFFALDINO: Eh! vous, bonnes gens, remplissez les sceaux
C'est à vous toutes les fontaines.
(Il rit se réjouissant de la bousculade et de la querelle.)
(Montant les marches de la véranda royale.)
Le prince a-t-il ri?

LE ROI: Non.

LE PRINCE: (Pleurant). Oh! Mettez-moi dans un lit bien douillet!

COURTIERS: (Applauding). Fine! Bravo! Incomparable!
It is most gay, really perfect.
(Trouffaldino mounts the steps of the royal veranda.)

TROUFFALDINO: Has the Prince laughed?

KING: No!

PRINCE: (Tearfully). The noise tires my head,
The air is bad for my poor heart.

KING: Ah! That is bad.

TROUFFALDINO: (To the monsters). Go away.
(He runs around the stage in agitation preparing the next divertissement. Fata Morgana appears on the proscenium dressed as an old woman. Leander, noticing so strange an apparition at the royal court, approaches Fata Morgana.)

LEANDER: Who are you? What do you seek?

FATA MORGANA: I am Fata Morgana. When I am here,
He cannot laugh.
(Exit to the wing.)
(Leander's eyes follow her out and he stands with devoutly folded hands.)

LEANDER: Benefactress! Oh, queen of hypochondria.

TROUFFALDINO: (Announces with zest). Divertissement number two!
Open the fountains!
(The first fountain is opened.)
That is oil.

COURTIERS: Oh!

TROUFFALDINO: (Announcing pompously as the second fountain is opened). That is wine.

COURTIERS: (Applaud). Good! good!
Oh, it is wonderful!

TROUFFALDINO: (To the guards). Bring the drunkards and gluttons.

COURTIERS: In wonderful taste!
(The guards open the big gates. The drunkards and gluttons rush in towards the fountains pushing each other and holding pails and other receptacles.)

TROUFFALDINO: Hey! good people, fill the pails,
The fountains belong to you.
(He laughs with pleasure at the pushing and quarreling.)
(Mounting the stairs of the royal veranda.)
Has the Prince laughed?

KING: No.

PRINCE: (Crying). Oh, put me in a nice soft bed.

LE ROI: Ah! c'est mal.	KING: Ah! that is bad!
TROUFFALDINO: Je n'ai pas de chance! gardes, Chassez tout ce monde, Qu'ont-il à se battre? (Les gardes repoussent vers les portes les ivrognes et les gloutons) (Trouffaldino contrarié s'avance sur le devant de la scène.) Que puis-je encore faire pour lui? Il veut avoir un lit, douillet! (Fata Morgana arrive en titubant par la coulisse.) (Contrarié par son echec s'en prend à Fata Morgana.) Qui est cette femme?	TROUFFALDINO: I have no luck! guards, Chase those people away. What are they fighting about? (The guards push the drunkards and gluttons towards the gates.) (Trouffaldino, annoyed, advances to the front of the stage.) What more can I do for him? He wants a soft bed! (Fata Morgana stumbles in from the wings.) (Irritated by his failure, he fastens on Fata Morgana.) Who is that woman?
FATA MORGANA: Ça ne te regarde pas.	FATA MORGANA: That is none of your business.
TROUFFALDINO: Qui l'a fait entrer ici?	TROUFFALDINO: Who allowed her to come here?
FATA MORGANA: Quel droit as-tu de commander?	FATA MORGANA: What right have you to give orders?
TROUFFALDINO: Ce n'est pas ta place.	TROUFFALDINO: This is no place for you.
FATA MORGANA: Laisse-moi!	FATA MORGANA: Leave me be!
TROUFFALDINO: Va t'en de suite!	TROUFFALDINO: Get out at once!
FATA MORGANA: Qu'as-tu dit?	FATA MORGANA: What did you say?
TROUFFALDINO: Une belle saleté comme toi, Tu oses être ici à la porte? Va-t'en, va plus vite!	TROUFFALDINO: A filthy thing like you, You dare to enter this gate? Get out and go quickly!
FATA MORGANA: Ah! Quelle brute! Assez, assez! Lâche-moi!	FATA MORGANA: Ah! what a brute! Enough, enough! Let me go!
TROUFFALDINO: Fîche-moi la paix. (Elle tombe en relevant très haut les jambes.)	TROUFFALDINO: Go to the dickens. (She falls with her legs in the air.)
FATA MORGANA: Ah!	FATA MORGANA: Ah!
TROUFFALDINO: (La pousse). Ah, maudite.	TROUFFALDINO: (Shoves her). Cursed thing.
LE PRINCE: (Se soulevant du fauteuil). Ha ha ha ha . . . ha ha ha ha! (Le rire devient de plus en plus fort et joyeux.) Ha ha ha ha . . . ha ha ha ha! (Suffocant de rire.) Cette vieille! C'est si drôle!	PRINCE: (Rises in his armchair). Ha ha ha ha . . . ha ha ha ha! (The laugh stengthens and becomes more and more gay.) Ha ha ha ha . . . ha ha ha ha! (Suffocating with laughter.) That old woman! It is so funny!
LES RIDICULES: (à demi-voix). C'est le rire!	ABSURDITIES: (Softly). It is the laugh.
LE ROI: Ah, le rire!	KING: Ah, the laugh!
LES COURTISANS: Oui, le rire!	COURTIERS: Yes, the laugh!
TOUS: Il a ri, le prince! Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha! (Par près de joie tout le monde danse d'un façon saccadée. La cour est libérée d'un grand poids. Le Roi esquisse une danse restant assis sur son trône. Seuls Clarice et Léandre ne partagent pas la joie générale.) (La danse s'arrête soudainement. Fata Morgana s'élève lentement d'une facon terrifiante, la lumière pâlit. Les Courtisans terrifiés reculent vers la sortie.)	ALL: He has laughed, the Prince! Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha! (Carried away by joy, all the people begin dancing jerkily. The court has been freed of a great weight. The King dances, though still sitting on his throne. Only Clarisse and Leander do not share in this general merrymaking.) (The dancing stops suddenly. Fata Morgana rises slowly in a terrifying manner, the lights turn pale. The terrified Courtiers crowd toward the exit.)
FATA MORGANA: (Férocement au Prince). Monstre, écoute! Écoute mon anathème! (De toutes parts, de dessous les marches de la véranda apparaissent des petits diables qui entourent Fata.)	FATA MORGANA: (Ferociously, to the Prince). Listen, monster! Hear my curse! (From all sides, from under the veranda steps, appear the devilkins who surround Fata.)
DIABLES: (Hurlent). Hi! hi! hi! hi!	DEVILS: (Yelling). Hi! Hi! Hi! Hi!
FATA MORGANA: (Prononce une malédiction). Il faut que tu subisse L'amour pour trois oranges. A travers les plaintes et menaces Jour et nuit tu marches. Tu cherches, tu cherches les trois oranges désirées! (Fata Morgana disparait avec les petits diables. Les Courtisans et la garde fuient, il ne reste que le Roi, le Prince, Pantalon et Trouffaldino. La scène petit à petit redevient claire.)	FATA MORGANA: (Utters a curse). You must suffer The love of the three oranges. In spite of complaints and threats You will move day and night. You will seek, you will seek, The three desired oranges. (Fata Morgana disappears with the devilkins. The Courtiers and the guards run away. There remain only the King, the Prince, Pantaloon and Trouffaldino. Gradually the stage lightens.)
LES RIDICULES: Ah! quelle catastrophe! (Commence à eprouver une agitation indescriptible.)	ABSURDITIES: Ah, what a catastrophe! (Begin to show an indescribable agitation.)
LE PRINCE: Les trois oranges! (Le Prince se rue sur l'avant-scène. Pantalon et Trouffaldino tâchent de l'attrapper.) Ah, trois oranges! Ah, trois oranges!	PRINCE: The three oranges! (The Prince precipitates himself front stage. Pantaloon and Trouffaldino try to catch him.) Ah, three oranges! Ah, three oranges!
PANTALON: (Tâchant d'attrapper le Prince). Prince! Prince!	PANTALOON: (Trying to catch the Prince). Prince! Prince!
TROUFFALDINO: (Tâchant d'attrapper le Prince). Ah! ah! ah! Prince!	TROUFFALDINO: (Trying to catch the Prince). Ah! Ah! Ah! Prince!
PANTALON: Ah! quelle histoire! Ah! Ah!	PANTALOON: Ah, what an occurrence! Ah! Ah!
LE PRINCE: (Étant attrappé essaye de s'échapper). . . . trois oranges! Elles sont chez Gréonet, sans doute!	PRINCE: (Caught, tries to escape). . . . three oranges! Greonte has them without doubt!
LES RIDICULES: (Avec effroi). Chez Gréonte la sorcière? Pauvre prince!	ABSURDITIES: (In terror). Greonte, the witch? Poor Prince!
LE PRINCE: Venez m'aider, je pars de suite, mon casque! Vite l'épée!	PRINCE: Help me. I am going at once! My helmet! Quickly the sword!
PANTALON: Prince! Prince! Ah!	PANTALOON: Prince! Prince! Ah!
LE PRINCE: (énergiquement). Trouffaldino je t'enmène avec moi.	PRINCE: (Energetically). Trouffaldino, I will take you with me.
TROUFFALDINO: Pauvre moi!	TROUFFALDINO: Poor me!
LE PRINCE: Plus vite! plus vite!	PRINCE: Quicker! quicker!
TROUFFALDINO: Ça me trouble!	TROUFFALDINO: It worries me!
LE ROI: (s'approchant du Prince). De grâce prince?	KING: (Approaches the Prince). Have pity, Prince!
LE PRINCE: (Chaleureusement). Je veux les trois oranges— Mon bonheur et mon seul amour.	PRINCE: (Feverishly). I want the three oranges. My happiness and only love.
LE ROI: Arrête-toi! Prince!	KING: Stop! Prince!
LE PRINCE: Elles sont captives chez Gréonte, Je dois les prendre!	PRINCE: Greonte has them captive, I must take them!
LE ROI: Ton sort m'angoisse! Mon fils, tu cours des dangers, Je vois des périls et la mort!	KING: Your fate troubles me! My son, you are in danger! I see peril and death!

TROUFFALDINO:
(Tragiquement). La mort!

PANTALON: (tragiquement). La mort!

LE PRINCE: (Exalté). J'adore, j'adore trois oranges!
Plus vite! plus vite!

LE ROI: (d'une voix plus ferme).
Non, je m'oppose,
Pense au royame,
Toi, l'héritier tu en es responsable.

LE PRINCE: J'adore, j'adore!
Au diable le royame!

LE ROI: C'est impossible! Tu dois rester lorsque je l'éxige!

LE PRINCE: Pour rien au monde!

LE ROI: C'est moi qui ordonne!

LE PRINCE: (Agitant les bras).
Non, non!

LE ROI: (Bouleversé). Quoi! tu as pu lever la main sur moi?

LE PRINCE: Plus vite Trouffaldino.
(Le Prince met sa cuirasse.)

LE ROI: (Tristement). Un fils contre un père!
A qui la faute?
La faute est à ces sales farces!

PANTALON: (Pathétique). Ces farces vulgaires!
(Les Têtes Vides font irruption.)

TÊTES VIDES: Donnez, donnez, des farces, amusantes,
Des mots d'esprit grivois.

LE ROI: (Il frappe du pied et crie contre les Têtes Vides). Sortez de suite! A la porte.

TÊTES VIDES: Donnez-nous du luxe.

LES RIDICULES: (Sautant des tours). Silence!

TÊTES VIDES: Ne pas penser mais rire, rire!

LES RIDICULES: Silence, c'est bien assez pénible!
(Les chassent avec leurs pelles.)

TÊTES VIDES: (Reculant). Farces! farces!
(Les Ridicules ayant chassé les Têtes Vides rentrent dans leurs tours.)

LE PRINCE: (Prêt pour le voyage).
Adieu mon père!
Je crois que si je reste,
Je redeviens mélancolique.

LE ROI: (Effroyé). Partez, partez de suite!

TROUFFALDINO: Oh, je tremble, je tremble.
(Apparait le diable Farfarello avec un soufflet et sautillant, souffle dans le dos du Prince et de Trouffaldino. Le Prince et Trouffaldino partent comme des flèches, Farfarello les poursuit.) TROUFFALDINO: (Tragically).

Death!

PANTALOON: (Tragically).
Death!

PRINCE: (Exalted). I adore, I adore the three oranges!
Faster, faster!

KING: (More firmly). No, I oppose this.
Think of the Kingdom.
You, the heir, are responsible for it.

PRINCE: I adore, I adore!
To the devil with the kingdom!

KING: It is impossible! You must stay when I demand it!

PRINCE: Not for the world!

KING: It is I who command!

PRINCE: (Waving his arms). No, no!

KING: (Upset). What? You can lift your hand against me?

PRINCE: Faster, Trouffaldino.
(The Prince puts on his cuirass.)

KING: (Sadly). Son against father!
And whom to blame?
Those dirty farces are to blame!

PANTALOON: (Pathetically).
Those vulgar farces!
(The Empty Heads come forward.)

EMPTY HEADS: Give, give amusing farces,
Words of joyous humor.

KING: (Stamps his foot and shouts at the Empty Heads). Get out at once! Get out!

EMPTY HEADS: Give us luxury.

ABSURDITIES: (Leaving the towers). Silence!

EMPTY HEADS: Not to think but to laugh, laugh!

ABSURDITIES: Silence! this is sufficiently painful!
(They chase them away with their shovels.)

EMPTY HEADS: (Falling back).
Farces! farces!
(Having chased away the Empty Heads, the Absurdities reenter the towers.)

PRINCE: (Ready for the voyage).
Farewell my father!
I think that should I remain
I would become melancholy again.

KING: (Terrified). Go, go at once!

TROUFFALDINO: I am shaking, I am shaking.
(The devil Farfarello appears with a bellows, and jumping, he blows at the back of the Prince and Trouffaldino. The Prince and Trouffaldino start off like arrows. Farfarello follows them.)

LE ROI: (Farouchement desespèré).
Tout s'écroule!
(Il tombe par terre évanoui.)

PANTALON: (Sincèrement malheureux). Quel désastre pour la famille, Quel catastrophe! pour l'état!

FIN DE L'ACTE DEUXIÈME.

■ ACTE TROISIÈME.

SCÈNE I.

(Désert. Rideau. Le Magicien Tchélio trace des cercles pour forcer Farfarello à apparaître.) TCHÉLIO: (invoquant). Farfarello! Farfarello! Farfarello!

(Farfarello apparaît).

FARFARELLO: Ho-là! Qui m'appelle ici
Du fond des noirs ténèbres.
Dis quel es ton vrai métier?
Sorcier réel ou bien de théatre?

TCHÉLIO: (reservé). Oui, certes, de théatre!
Quand même aussi un vrai sorcier!
(En élevant la voix.)
Je suis terrible!
Je suis féroce!
Et bien prends garde!
Sois docile!
Réponds-moi!

FARFARELLO: Bien! questionne!

TCHÉLIO: (terrible). Dis, de suite où sont-ils?

FARFARELLO: Couchés!

TCHÉLIO: Et pourquoi sont-ils couchés?

FARFARELLO: (légèrement ironique). J'ai soufflé, soufflé.
(Il souffle avec le soufflet.)
Mais à l'enfer j'ai du descendre,
Et ils tombèrent.

TCHÉLIO: (sombre). Où mène ton souffle?

FARFARELLO: Chez la Gréonte.

TCHÉLIO: Mais tu ne sais pas
Que ce sera leur perte?

FARFARELLO: C'est pour cela que je les souffle!

TCHÉLIO: (faisant des gestes magiques impérieusement). Je t'ordonne, arrête-toi!

FARFARELLO: (moqueur). Mon pauvre vieux, tu as perdu aux cartes, Et pour cela tes sortilèges sont inutiles!
Adieu!

KING: (In savage despair). Everything is lost!
(He falls in a faint).

PANTALOON: (Sincerely unhappy). What a family disaster,
What a catastrophe for the country!

END OF SECOND ACT.

■ ACT III.

SCENE I.

(Dersert. Curtain. The magician Tchelio is drawing circles to force Farfarello's appearance.)

TCHELIO: (Invocation). Farfarello! Farfarello! Farfarello!
(Farfarello appears).

FARFARELLO: Hello! who calls me here.
From the bottom of black shadows?
Tell me your real profession?
Are you a real sorcerer or a theatrical one?

TCHELIO: (With reserve). Yes, of course, a theatrical one!
But also a true sorcerer!
(Raises his voice.)
I am terrible!
I am ferocious!
So take care!
Be docile!
Answer me!

FARFARELLO: All right! then put the question.

TCHELIO: (Fearfully). Tell me, where are they now?

FARFARELLO: Lying down.

TCHELIO: And why are they lying down?

FARFARELLO: (With slight irony).
I blew, blew.
(He blows the bellows).
But I had to descend to hell,
So they fell.

TCHELIO: (Darkly). Where does your blowing lead to?

FARFARELLO: To Greonte.

TCHELIO: But do you not know
That they will be lost?

FARFARELLO: It is for that reason that I blow them.

WTCHELIO: (With imperious magic gestures). I order you to stop!

FARFARELLO: (Scoffingly). My poor old man, you lost at cards,
So now your witchcraft is useless!
Good bye!
(He disappears.)
(Impotent rage on the part of (Il disparaît.) (Fureur stérile de Tchélio.—Le Prince et Trouffaldino entrent gaillardement.)	Tchelio. The Prince and Trouffaldino enter jovially.)

LE PRINCE: Plus de vent c'est que les oranges sont proches!	PRINCE: No more wind. It must be that the oranges are nearby.
TROUFFALDINO: A mon avis, c'était un cyclone.	TROUFFALDINO: It is my opinion that it was a cyclone.
LE PRINCE: Qu'importe!	PRINCE: What does it matter?
TROUFFALDINO: Ou cela peut-être un mousson!	TROUFFALDINO: Or it might be a monsoon!
LE PRINCE: Qu'importe!	PRINCE: What does it matter?
TCHÉLIO: (les retenant). Arrêter où donc allez-vous?	TCHELIO: (Stopping them). Stop! Where are you going?
LE PRINCE: Je cherche les trois Oranges.	PRINCE: I am looking for the three Oranges.
TCHÉLIO: (terrifié). Les trois Oranges? Mais elles sont chez Gréonte!	TCHELIO: (With horror). The three Oranges? But Greonte has them!
LE PRINCE: Je ne crains pas gréonte!	PRINCE: I do not fear Greonte.
TCHÉLIO: Elles sont gardées Par une terrible cuisinière!	TCHELIO: They are watched By a terrible cook!
LE PRINCE: Une cuisinière! c'est drôle! Plus vite Trouffaldino!	PRINCE: A cook! how funny! Let us hurry, Trouffaldino!
TCHÉLIO: (ayant les yeux hors de la tête de frayeur). Avec une louche cette femme vous tuera sur place!	TCHELIO: (His eyes popping out of his head with terror). That woman will kill you on the spot with her ladle!
LE PRINCE: J'adore, j'adore! les trois Oranges!	PRINCE: I adore! I adore the three Oranges!
TCHÉLIO: (Faisant des gestes terrifiés). Avec une louche en cuivre, Par sa louche elle tue sur place!	TCHELIO: (With gestures of terror). With a copper ladle, With her ladle she kills at once!
LE PRINCE: Je dois avoir les trois Oranges. Oh! je tremble, je tremble!	PRINCE: I must have the three Oranges. Yes, I am trembling, trembling.
TCHÉLIO: Prenez garde! Cette louche est lourde!	TCHELIO: Be careful! That ladle is heavy!
LE PRINCE: (Décidé). Moi! je ne crains pas la louche. Plus vite Trouffaldino! (Tchélio constatant qu'il est impossible de retenir le Prince.)	PRINCE: (With determination). Me! I do not fear the ladle. Faster, Trouffaldino! (Tchelio realizes the impossibility of stopping the Prince.)
TCHÉLIO: Écoute, Trouffaldino! (Mystérieusement.) Emporte ce ruban magique, Peut être ce ruban de soie Pourrait bien ravir l'affreuse cuisinière! Alors de suite sautez sur les oranges!	TCHELIO: Listen, Trouffaldino! (Mysteriously.) Take this magic ribbon. Perhaps this silk ribbon May entice the fearful cook! Then jump for the oranges at once!
TROUFFALDINO: (S'accrochant le ruban). Merci mon magicien!	TROUFFALDINO: (Attaching the ribbon). Thank you, my magician!
LE PRINCE: (Perdant patience). Plus vite Trouffaldino.	PRINCE: (Losing patience). Faster, Trouffaldino!
TCHÉLIO: Sachez encore, enfants teméraires, Si les trois oranges vous appartiennent Qu'elles soient ouvertes près d'une source d'eau Si non je vois un drame.	TCHELIO: Know also, daring children, If the three oranges become yours They must be opened near a spring. Otherwise I foresee a tragedy.
LE PRINCE: Je rêve de mes chères oranges.	PRINCE: I dream of my dear oranges.
TROUFFALDINO: Merci mon magicien.	TROUFFALDINO: Thank you, my magician.
LE PRINCE: Adieu! (Farfarello bondit sur la scène avec son soufflet, le Prince et Trouffaldino s'envolent, comme des flêches. Farfarello les poursuit.)	PRINCE: Goodbye! (Farfarello springs onto the stage with his bellows. The Prince and Trouffaldino fly away like arrows. Farfarello follows them.)
TCHÉLIO: (Faisant des incantations dans leur directions). Que le sort les garde contre la louche! (Rideau.)	TCHELIO: (With incantations in their direction). May fate guard them from the ladle! (Curtain.)

SCÈNE II.

SCENE II.

(La cour du Chateau de Gréonte.—Farfarello souffle vers cette cour, le Prince et Trouffaldino qui courent à toute vitesse. Le Prince et Trouffaldino tombent par terre. Farfarello disparaît.)	(Courtyard of the Castle of Greonte. Farfarello blows the Prince and Trouffaldino, who are running full speed towards this courtyard. The Prince and Trouffaldino fall down. Farfarello disappears.)
LE PRINCE: (Se relevant). Qu'est-ce?	PRINCE: (Rising). What is the matter?
TROUFFALDINO: J'ai peur mon Prince. (Il voient une grande enseigne sur le château et lisent an épelant.)	TROUFFALDINO: I am frightened, Prince. (He sees a big sign on the castle and he spells it out.)
LE PRINCE: Gréonte! (Ils se relèvent vivement pris d'une terreur folle.)	PRINCE: Greonte! (They rise quickly under the impulse of insane terror.)
TROUFFALDINO: Ah!	TROUFFALDINO: Ah!
LE PRINCE: Ah! c'est effroyable!	PRINCE: Ah! it is horrible!
TROUFFALDINO: C'est effroyable! La mort, arrive!	TROUFFALDINO: It is horrible. Death has come.
LE PRINCE: Cette fois c'est effroyable!	PRINCE: This time it is horrible!
TROUFFALDINO: Partons mon Prince.	TROUFFALDINO: Let us leave, my Prince.
LE PRINCE: Attends!	PRINCE: Wait!
TROUFFALDINO: Partons bien vite!	TROUFFALDINO: Let us leave quickly!
LE PRINCE: Non! Non! Nous devons avoir les trois Oranges!	PRINCE: No! No! we must have the three oranges!
TROUFFALDINO: C'est terrible!	TROUFFALDINO: It is horrible!
LE PRINCE: Terrible! Tchélio il me semble a dit qu'il faut Chercher les trois oranges dans la cuisine!	PRINCE: Horrible! It seems to me that Tchelio said we must Seek the three oranges in the kitchen!
TROUFFALDINO: C'est juste!	TROUFFALDINO: That is so!
LE PRINCE: Est-ce juste?	PRINCE: Is it so?
TROUFFALDINO: C'est juste!	TROUFFALDINO: It is so.
LE PRINCE: Voilà la porte! (Ils se glissent vers la cuisine.)	PRINCE: Here is the door! (They glide towards the kitchen.)
TROUFFALDINO: Prince! il dit, mífiez-vous de la louche.	TROUFFALDINO: Prince! he said you should be careful of the ladle.
LE PRINCE: Je rêve de mes chères oranges!	PRINCE: I am dreaming of my three dear oranges!
TROUFFALDINO: Prince! Prince! je crains la cuisinière.	TROUFFALDINO: Prince! Prince! I fear the cook!
LE PRINCE: (Extasié). Les oranges!	PRINCE: (In ecstasy). The oranges!
TROUFFALDINO: Elle nous tuera avec sa grande louche.	TROUFFALDINO: She will kill us with her awful ladle!
LE PRINCE: Les oranges! (La cuisinière avec fracas secoue la porte du côté intérieur.)	PRINCE: The oranges! (The cook shakes the door noisily from inside.)

LE PRINCE ET TROUFFALDINO: (Ils reculent en bondissant).
Ah! Ah!
(La porte est secouée de nouveau.)
C'est elle!
(Ils fuient éperdument la porte de la cuisine et se cachent dans des endroits différents. La porte s'ouvre toute grande, et la cuisinière apparait avec une énorme louche.)

LA CUISINIÈRE: (D'une voix de basse enrouée). Qui piaille ici?
Je veux savoir;
(Regardant autour d'elle d'une voix plus forte.)
Qui piaille ici?
(Ne recevant pas de réponse elle s'avance inspectant de tous côtés.)
Sortez, sortez, je trouverai sans faute! (Elle découvre Trouffaldino.)
Ah! toi! vaurien!

TROUFFALDINO: (Perdant presque la conscience de frayeurs gémis). Ah! ah! oh!

LA CUISINIÈRE: (Revoltée). Quel sale vaurien, une telle audace.

TROUFFALDINO: Ah! moi! Madame ma belle dame!

LA CUISINIÈRE: Attends voleur je te jette dans le fourneau!

TROUFFALDINO: Madame, ma noble dame.

LA CUISINIÈRE: Avec ma louche je t'écrase!
Et te flanque dans les ordures!

TROUFFALDINO: Je suis venu là par mégarde.
(Il essaie de s'enfuir.)
(La Cuisinière brandit la louche et attrapant Trouffaldino au collet le secoue sans pitié.)

LA CUISINIÈRE: Coquin tu fuis? Je te ferai rendre l'âme.
(Révoltée.)
Violer ma cuisine!
(Tout à coup elle aperçoit le ruban magique et est immédiatement intéressée par lui.) Qu'est ce tu porte sur ton costume?

TROUFFALDINO: (Qui n'est pas encore d'aplomb). Un ruban.

LA CUISINIÈRE: (d'une voix plus douce). Fichtre! Mais il est adorable!

TROUFFALDINO: (Timidement). Adorable? Tu trouves?

LA CUISINIÈRE: Ce petit ruban fait perdre la tête!
Qui t'a donné ce ruban?

TROUFFALDINO: (s'enhardissant). Ça vois-tu . . . comment te dire?
C'est un secret!

PRINCE AND TROUFFALDINO: (Jump back). Ah! Ah!
(The door is shaken once more.)
It is she!
(They run blindly from the kitchen door and hide in different places. The door opens wide and the cook appears with a huge ladle.)

COOK: (In a deep husky voice). Who is bawling here?
I must know.
(She looks around and speaks louder.)
Who is bawling here?
(Receiving no answer she comes forward looking all around.)
Come out! come out! I will find without fail!
(She discovers Trouffaldino.)
Ah! you! good for nothing!

TROUFFALDINO: (Almost loses consciousness from fear. Groans). Ah! ah! oh!

COOK: (Disgusted). What a dirty good-for-nothing. Such audacity!

TROUFFALDINO: Ah! I! Madam, my beautiful madam!

COOK: Wait, you thief. I will throw you into the stove!

TROUFFALDINO: Madam, my beautiful madam!

COOK: I will squelch you with my ladle!
And throw you in with the garbage!

TROUFFALDINO: I came by inadvertence.
(He tries to escape.)
(The Cook brandishes the ladle and catching Trouffaldino by the collar, shakes him mercilessly.)

COOK: Rascal! you want to escape?
I will make you give up your soul!
(Disgusted.)
Violate my kitchen!
(Suddenly she notices the magic ribbon and is immediately interested in it.)
What is it you are wearing on your costume?

TROUFFALDINO: (Who has not yet regained his audacity). A ribbon.

COOK: (In a softer voice). My! but it is lovely!

TROUFFALDINO: (Timidly). Lovely? You think so?

COOK: That small ribbon makes me lose my head.
Who gave it to you?

TROUFFALDINO: (Gaining courage). You see . . . How can I explain?
It is a secret!

LA CUISINIÈRE: Tiens! tiens! Vraiment?
(Le Prince par de grands bonds silencieux se dirige vers la cuisine et y disparaît.)
J'amais je n'ai trouvé une telle merveille.
Ne voudrais tu pas m'en faire cadeaux.
(Le Prince sort de la cuisine avec toris énormes oranges de la dimension d'une tête d'homme, et par de grands bonds, disparaît derrière la porte du château.)
Eh?
(Avec coquetterie.)
Pour me plaier!

TROUFFALDINO: C'est pour te rappeler de moi que tu le veux,
En es-tu bien sûre?

LA CUISINIÈRE: Ça me ferait plaisir.

LE PRINCE: (Passant la tête par la porte). Trouffaldino! Trouffaldino!

TROUFFALDINO: (Lui remettant pompeusement le ruban). Prends-le et sois contente.
(Trouffaldino s'enfuit.)

LA CUISINIÈRE: (Charmée, regarde le ruban). O ruban incomparable!
(Fixant toujours le ruban cherche Trouffaldino en tâtonnant vers l'endroit où il était.) Où donc es-tu? Que fais-tu?
(Caressante.) P'tit diable.

SCÈNE III.

(Un désert.—Le décor de la Ière. scène de ce même acte. C'est le soir. Le Prince et Trouffaldino entrent lentement du côte opposé à celui par lequel ils entrèrent à la Ière. scène. Ils traînent derrière eux avec une corde trois oranges qui ont grandi à tel point que chacune peut contenir une personne.)

LE PRINCE: Comment marcher plus loin quand derrière
Nous personne souffle.

TROUFFALDINO: Les oranges sont si grandes
Que c'est a grand peine qu'on les traine.

LE PRINCE: Ah! quel sommeil!

TROUFFALDINO: Ah! quelle soif.

LES PRINCE: Je suis brisé!

TROUFFALDINO: J'ai soif prince!

LE PRINCE: Je voudrais m'étendre!
Trouffaldino!

TROUFFALDINO: (Agité). Prince!
Mais pendant que vous dormirez
Je mourrai de soif!

COOK: Well, well! Really!
(The Prince approaches the kitchen with large and silent jumps and disappears inside it.)
Never have I seen such a marvel.
Will you make me a gift of it?
(The Prince comes out of the kitchen carrying three huge oranges, the size of a man's head. With big jumps he disappears back of the castle gate.) What?
(Coquettishly.)
To please me?

TROUFFALDINO: Do you want it as a souvenir of me?
Are you sure of that?

COOK: It will give me so much pleasure.

PRINCE: (Sticks his head through the door).
Trouffaldino! Trouffaldino!

TROUFFALDINO: (Presents her the ribbon with ceremony). Take it and be happy.
(Trouffaldino runs away.)

COOK: (Delighted, looks at the ribbon.) Oh wonderful ribbon!
(Still looking at the ribbon seeks Trouffaldino by groping for him where he had stood.)
Where are you? What are you doing?
(Caressingly.)
You little devil!

SCENE III.

(A desert. Same settings as in the first scene of the same act. It is evening. The Prince and Trouffaldino enter slowly from the side opposite the one from which they entered in the first scene. They drag by strings three oranges, which have grown so that each can hold a human being.)

PRINCE: How can we walk any further when behind Nobody blows?

TROUFFALDINO: The oranges are so big
That it is difficult to drag them.

PRINCE: Ah! but how sleepy I am!

TROUFFALDINO: Ah! what an evening!

PRINCE: I am broken down.

TROUFFALDINO: I am thirsty, Prince!

PRINCE: I would like to lie down, Trouffaldino!

TROUFFALDINO: (With agitation). Prince! while you are sleeping
I will die of thirst!

LE PRINCE: Ce n'est rien dors un peu
Le sommeil donnera des forces
Couche-toi bon Trouffaldino.
(Il se couche et s'endort.)

TROUFFALDINO: Il est drôle le prince!
Dormir quand j'ai une soif du diable!
Impossible de trouver une goutte d'eau
Donnez-moi à boire!
Donnez-moi de l'eau!
Donnez m'en de suite!
Prince! Prince! mon Prince!
Levez-vous Prince! Prince!
Il dort comme un sourd.
(S'arrêtant devant les oranges.)
Les oranges . . .
Mais si j'ouvrais ne fut-ce
Qu'une seule des trois?
Elles sont si belles et si juteuses!
(Il saisit son glaive, mais immédiatement recule d'à côté des oranges.)
Non! J'ai peur du Prince!
Et si j'allais mourir
De soif avant qu'on m'aide
Alors le Prince ne pourra
Jamais trainer tout seul!
Et tout s'écroule!
Les trois oranges!
Le Prince et moi!
C'est vraiment plus simple
Que j'en mange une.
(Extasié il embrasse une orange.)
Qu'elle est donc juteuse.
Ah! qu'elle est énorme!
(Il scie l'orange en deux parties avec son glaive.)
(De l'orange sort une jeune fille.) (Bouleversée.)
Une jeune fille en blanc.

VIOLETTE: Je suis la princesse Violette.

TROUFFALDINO: Princesse! au lieu du jus frais d'une orange!

VIOLETTE: Donne à boire! à boire! de grâce!
Sinon je meurs de suite!
J'ai une soif affreuse
J'ai une soif mortelle!

TROUFFALDINO: (Desemparé). Princesse! Princesse où trouver une source?
Tout est aride! oh! princesse!

VIOLETTE: De grâce! plus vite! . . .
Donne à boire ne sois pas sans pitié!

TROUFFALDINO: (Essayant sans y parvenir de réveiller le Prince). Prince, mon prince!

VIOLETTE: Rien qu'une goutte!

TROUFFALDINO: Princesse! Princesse! Tout de suite
J'ouvrirai l'autre orange!
(Il scie avec le glaive.)

VIOLETTE: À boire.
(De l'orange sort une seconde jeune fille en blanc.)
A boire!

PRINCE: That is nothing. Sleep a little!
Sleep will give you strength.
Lie down comfortably, Trouffaldino.
(He lies down, and goes to sleep.)

TROUFFALDINO: He is quaint, this Prince!
To sleep when I have so devilish a thirst!
Impossible to find a drop of water!
Give me something to drink!
Give me water!
Give it to me at once!
Prince! Prince! my Prince!
He sleeps like a deaf man.
(Stops in front of the oranges.)
The oranges . . .
What if I should open
But one of the three?
They are so beautiful and juicy!
(He grasps his sword, but immediately falls back from beside the oranges.)
No! I fear the Prince!
But if I should die
Of thirst before aid could come?
Then the Prince could not
Drag them alone!
Then all would be lost!
The three oranges,
The Prince and I!
It really would be simpler
For me to eat one.
(In ecstasy he kisses an orange.)
How juicy it is.
How big it is!
(He cuts the orange in two with his sword.)
(A young woman steps from the orange.) (Upset.)
A young woman in white!

VIOLET: I am the princess Violet.

TROUFFALDINO: Princess! instead of fresh orange juice!

VIOLET: Give me something to drink! drink! I beg of you!
If you do not, I will die at once!
I am terribly thirsty!
I am dying of thirst!

TROUFFALDINO: (In despair). Princess, Princess, where can we find water?
All is arid! Oh! Princess!

VIOLET: I beg of you! quickly!
Give me a drink, do not be pitiless!

TROUFFALDINO: (Trying vainly to wake the Prince). Prince! my Prince!

VIOLET: Only a drop.

TROUFFALDINO: Princess! Princess! At once
I will open another orange!
(He cuts with his sword.)

VIOLET: A drink!
(A second young woman in white steps from the orange.) A drink!

TROUFFALDINO: Quoi encore une autre Princesse!

VIOLETTE: Une goutte . . .

NICOLETTE: Je me nomme Nicolette!

TROUFFALDINO: Quel miracle!

NICOLETTE: Donne à boire!

VIOLETTE: Une seule goutte!

NICOLETTE: À boire! de grâce si non je meurs de suite!
J'ai une soif affreuse, j'ai une soif mortelle!

VIOLETTE: Ma vue se trouble,
Ah! sauve moi, pitié!

TROUFFALDINO: (Effaré recule devant les deux princesses qui se tendent vers lui comme des ombres). Princesses! patience! seulement quelques heures! Courage!
(En aparté.)
Ah! que c'est affreux tout ça!

NICOLETTE: Ma vue se trouble, pitié pour moi!

VIOLETTE: (étant déjà par terre elle continue à se tendre vers Trouffaldino). À boire, grâce! grâce! grâce!
(Elle meurt.)

TROUFFALDINO: Est-elle morte?

NICOLETTE: De l'eau.
(Elle tombe.)
Grâce! Grâce!
(Murmurant.) Grâce!
(Elle meurt.)

TROUFFALDINO: Encore!!!
(Pris d'une terreur superstitieuse.)
Partir, partir, au plus vite.
(Il s'enfuit.)

LE PRINCE: (Tout en dormant). Eh! Trouffaldino! Trouffaldino!
(S'eveillant en sursaut.)
Trouffaldino, nous partons,
Viens ici toujours tu traine!
(Voyant les princesses mortes.)
Mais qu'est-ce donc?
Deux jeunes filles blanches!
Deux jeunes filles mortes.
Dans ce désert aride, étrange destin.
(Quatre soldats entrent en scène avec une allure militaire exagérée.) Halte!
(Les soldats s'arrêtent comme fixés sur place.)
Prenez ces deux cadavres
Et enterrez-les là-bas.
(Les soldats avec des mouvements militaires brusques s'approchent des princesses et les relèvent de terre.—Portant les princesses ils partent par la coulisse opposée à celle par laquelle ils sont entrés.)
Chère Orange! Enfin j'ai le bonheur
D'être seul avec toi
Rien que toi! et moi!
Je dois savoir ce que contient l'orange!

TROUFFALDINO: What? Another Princess?

VIOLET: A drop . . .

NICOLETTE: My name is Nicolette.

TROUFFALDINO: A miracle!

NICOLETTE: Give me something to drink!

VIOLET: One drop only!

NICOLETTE: A drink! Please! Otherwise I will die at once!
I am terribly thirsty, I will die of thirst!

VIOLET: My sight dims,
Ah! same me! have pity!

TROUFFALDINO: (Recoils from the two princesses with fear as each stretches towards him as a shadow). Princesses! be patient! only a few hours! Courage!
(Aside.)
How terrible this is!

NICOLETTE: My sight dims! Pity me!

VIOLET: (Already on the ground, she continues to stretch towards Trouffaldino). A drink! I pray you! I pray you!
(She dies.)

TROUFFALDINO: Is she dead?

NICOLETTE: Give me water.
(She falls.)
I pray you!
(Murmurs.)
I pray you!
(Dies.)

TROUFFALDINO: Also!!!
(A superstitious terror grips him.)
To go away, go away as quickly as possible.
(He runs away.)

PRINCE: (Dreaming). Hey! Trouffaldino! Trouffaldino!
(Wakes up with a start.)
Trouffaldino, we must go.
Come here, you are always lagging!
(Sees the dead princesses.)
But what is this?
Two white young women!
Two dead young women?
In this arid desert.
Strange destiny!
(Four soldiers enter with an exaggerated military bearing.)
Halt!
(The soldiers stop as though fixed to the spot.)
Take these two corpses
And bury them over there!
(The soldiers approach the two princesses with snappy military movements and raise them from the ground. Carrying the princesses they exit through the wing opposite to the one by which they entered.)
Dear Orange! At last I have the happiness
Of being alone with you!
Only you! and I!
I must know what the orange holds!

En elle je le sais se cache mon rêve
Chère orange! chère orange!
Donne-moi ce que je cherche.
(D'un seul coup de glaive il partage l'orange—Apparait une 3ème jeune fille.) Princesse?

NINETTE: Moi, je m'appelle Ninette!

LE PRINCE: (Tombant à genoux).
Princesse! Princesse! Je te cherche depuis
Que je suis au monde!
Princesse! Princesse! Je t'adore bien
Plus que tout au monde!

NINETTE: Je t'attends depuis toujours.
(Le Prince ivre d'amour lui embrasse les genoux.)

LE PRINCE: Ah que je t'adore!

NINETTE: Donne à boire de grâce!
Si non je meurs de suite
J'ai une soif affreuse,
J'ai une soif mortelle.

LE PRINCE: Attends quelques instants, princesse!

NINETTE: À boire, ma vue se trouble!

LE PRINCE: C'est une désert terrible!
Mais nous partons tous de suite en ville.

NINETTE: Je succombe!

LE PRINCE: Partons, Princesse!

NINETTE: Viens à mon aide!
(Elle tombe dans les bras du Prince.)

LES RIDICULES: Eh! vous autres, là,
N'auriez vous pas de l'eau?
C'est bien possible!

NINETTE: Ah! Ah!

LES RIDICULES: Mais! alors donnez donc,
Il faut qu'elle boive!
C'est bien grâce!
(Les Ridicules apportent de la tour un sceau d'eau et le place au milieu de la scène.)

LE PRINCE: Ah! c'est atroce!
(Remarquant le sceau.)
Tiens! de l'eau!
Bois ma douce princesse!
Bois, cette eau fraîche! (Il lui donne à boire dans le sceau.)

NINETTE: (Ayant bu). Merci, mon prince!
Tu m'as sauvé la vie!
Et tu m'as sortie de l'esclavage.
C'est toi que j'ai attendu depuis toujours.

LE PRINCE: Non, rien ne pouvait m'arrêter
Dans mon élan vers toi, bien aimée.
Je n'ai pas crains l'affreuse Gréonte
J'ai dominé l'atroce cuisinière!
J'ai bravé la louche mortelle,
J'ai passé l'enfer qu'est sa cuisine!
Oui mon amour est fort, plus fort
Que Gréonte, plus chaud que la cuisine;
Devant l'amour s'inclinait la louche
Et tremblait Gréonte.

NINETTE: (Simplement). O mon prince c'est toi que j'attendais
A toi est mon amour
Je suis tellement heureuse par toi.

LES LYRIQUES: (Sans bruit apparaissent sur scène). Donnez de vrais drames lyriques romantiques Émotionnants, des fleurs, la lune!

LES RIDICULES: (Des tours en mettant les doigts sur les lèvres).
Silence! silence!
Si vous aimez l'amour,
Ne troublez pas les amoureux!

LES LYRIQUES: Des moments d'extase!

LES RIDICULES: Vite repartez sans bruit.
(Les Lyriques disparaissent sans bruit.)

LE PRINCE: (Solennellement).
Partons, princesse, dans mon palais!

NINETTE: Impossible en ce costume,
Que dirait le roi ton père?

LE PRINCE: (d'un air décidé).
Mon père n'a rien à dire!

NINETTE: Non! Prince! Pars d'abord,
Va prévenir le roi
Tu m'apporteras aussi une robe royale!
Je t'attendrai là!

LE PRINCE: Si tu veux je t'obéis!
Le roi viendra ici lui même!

NINETTE: (Tendrement). Adieu!
Reviens, bien vite!

LE PRINCE: (Tendrement). Adieu ma chère princesse!
(Il s'en va.)
(Ninette est seule. Pensive elle s'assoie sur une pierre.)

NINETTE: (Rêveuse). Oh! que je suis heureuse!
(Il fait presque nuit. In voit la silhouette de Sméraldine qui se glisse vers Ninette. Derrière Sméraldine apparait la silhouette de Fata Morgana.)

LES RIDICULES: (Inquièts).
Sméraldine . . . Une épingle . . .
Fata Morgana . . . Ça devient bien louche!
(L'inquiétude des Ridicules atteint, une tel degré que sortant des tours ils s'approchent de Ninette sur la pointe des pieds, pour voir ce qui se passera.)
(Sméraldine s'étant glissée auprès de Ninette lui enfonce dans la tête une grande épingle magique.)

For in it is hidden my dream!
Dear orange! dear orange!
Give me what I seek!
(With a single sword thrust, he cuts the orange. A third young woman appears.) Princess?

NINETTE: My name is Ninette.

PRINCE: (Falling on his knees).
Princess! Princess! I have sought you
Since I have been on earth!
Princess! Princess! I adore you
More than anything in the world!

NINETTE: I have waited for you always.
(The Prince, intoxicated with love, kisses her knees.)

PRINCE: Ah! I adore you!

NINETTE: Give me a drink please!
Otherwise I die at once.
I am terribly thirsty.
I am dying of thirst!

PRINCE: Wait a few seconds, princess.

NINETTE: A drink. My sight dims!

PRINCE: It is a terrible desert!
But we will go to town at once!

NINETTE: I fall!

PRINCE: Let us go, Princess!

NINETTE: Help me!
(She falls into the arms of the Prince.)

ABSURDITIES: Hey! you others, over there!
Have you no water?
Is it possible?

NINETTE: Ah! Ah!

ABSURDITIES: Then give it!
She must drink!
It is most serious!
(The Absurdities bring a pail of water from the tower and place it in the middle of the stage.)

PRINCE: Ah, it is atrocious!
(Notices the pail.)
Why! here is water!
Drink, my sweet Princess!
Drink this fresh water!
(He lets her drink from the pail.)

NINETTE: (Having taken a drink). Thank you, my Prince!
You have saved me from slavery.
It is you I have awaited
Since long ago.

PRINCE: No, nothing could have stopped me
In my attraction towards you, beloved.
I feared not the terrible Greonte,
I overcame the atrocious cook!
I dared the deathly ladle!
I passed through hell, her kitchen!
Yes, my love is strong, stronger
Than Greonte; warmer than the kitchen.
Before this love the ladle fell,
And Greonte trembled.

NINETTE: (With simplicity). Oh, my Prince, it is you I awaited.
My love belongs to you.
Through you I am so happy.

LYRICISTS: (Appear noiselessly on the stage). Give us true dramatic lyric dramas, Full of emotion. Flowers, the moon!

ABSURDITIES: (From the towers, placing their fingers on their lips).
Silence! silence!
If you love love,
Then do not trouble the lovers!

LYRICISTS: Moments of ecstasy!

ABSURDITIES: Go away quickly, without noise.
(The Lyricists disappear noiselessly.)

PRINCE: (Solemnly). Come, Princess, to my Palace!

NINETTE: Impossible in this costume,
What will the King, your father, say?

PRINCE: (With decision). My father has nothing to say!

NINETTE: No, Prince! Go first,
Warn the King.
Then you can bring me a royal robe!
I will wait
For you here!

PRINCE: If you wish, I will obey!
The King himself will come!

NINETTE: (Tenderly). Goodbye.
Return quickly!

PRINCE: (Tenderly). Goodbye, my dear princess!
(He goes.)
(Ninette remains alone. She sits down on a stone thoughtfully.)

NINETTE: (dreamily). Oh! how happy I am!
(It is almost dark. The silhouette of Smeraldine is seen gliding toward Ninette. Behind Smeraldine appears the silhouette of Fata Morgana.) ABSURDITIES: (With agitation).

Smeraldine . . . a hair pin . . .
Fata Morgana . . . it looks bad!
(The agitation of the Absurdities reaches such a degree that they leave their towers and approach Ninette on tiptoes to observe more closely the approaching event.)
(Smeraldine approaches Ninette and stabs her in the head with a big magic hairpin.)

NINETTE: (Gémissant longuement et plaintivement). Ah!
(Ninette disparait s'étant transformée en rat. Le petit rat à travers toute la scène se précipite dans la coulisse.)

LES RIDICULES: Aïe! diable! quel grand rat!
(Les Ridicules très effrayés par le rat se sauvent dans les tours.)
Pouah! c'est immonde un rat!
Malheureuse Ninette!
Devenir un rat immonde!
(Sméraldine reste à la place où elle a piqué Ninette. Fata Morgana est à une petite distance derrière elle.)

FATA MORGANA: Et toi tu prends la place de Ninette
Et dis que tu es la vraie Princesse!
(Disparaît.)
(On entend une marche à la cantonnade.—Un cortège pompeux apparait avec des torches et des lanternes. Le Roi, Le Prince, Clarice, Léandre, Pantalon, des Courtisans, les gardes.)

LE PRINCE: (Joyeusement). Quel bonheur! c'est ma belle princesse!

LE ROI: Cette femme? Princesse?

LE PRINCE: Mais ce n'est pas elle!

SMÉRALDINE: C'est bien moi!
Je suis ta Ninette!

LE PRINCE: Non! non, quel affreux mensonge!

SMÉRALDINE: Prince, tu m'es lié par ta promesse.

LES PRINCE: T'épouser, non, jamais!
Elle me dégoûte cette femme!

LE ROI: Prince!

LE PRINCE: Non, je refuse ce mariage!

LE ROI: (Fermement). Prince, tu sais qu'un prince royal N'a qu'une parole!
Prince, tu es lié par ton honneur!
(Très autoritaire.)
Tu l'épousera j'ai dit!

LES COURTISANS: (Surpris et épouvantés). Oh!

LE PRINCE: Un négresse?

LE ROI: (Terrible). Je te l'ordonne!

LE PRINCE: (Perplexe). C'est terrible!

LE ROI: Je te l'ordonne
Donne lui le bras,
Le cortège, en marche!
(Le cortège rebrousse chemin. On force le Prince, qui est au désespoir, à donner le bras à Sméraldine—Léandre et Clarice restent derrière le cortège.)

NINETTE: (Groans deeply and plaintively). Oh!
(Ninette disappears, having been transformed into a rat. The little rat crosses the entire stage and runs into the wings.)

ABSURDITIES: Ah! the devil! what a big rat!
(Frightened by the rat, the Absurdities escape to their towers.)
Whew! a rat is foul!
Unhappy Ninette!
To become a foul rat!
(Smeraldine remains on the spot on which she stabbed Ninette. Fata Morgana stands a short distance behind.)

FATA MORGANA: And you will replace Ninette
And say you are the real Princess!
(Disappears.)
(A march is heard back of the stage. A pompous procession appears with torches and lanterns. The King, the Prince, Clarisse, Leander, Pantaloon, Courtiers and Guards.)

PRINCE: (Joyously). Happiness!
There is my beautiful Princess!

KING: That woman? Princess?

PRINCE: But it is not she!

SMERALDINE: It is I!
I am your Ninette!

PRINCE: No, no! what a fearful lie!

SMERALDINE: Prince, you are tied to me by your promise.

PRINCE: Marry you, never!
She disgusts me, that woman!

KING: Prince!

PRINCE: No! I refuse to marry.

KING: (Firmly). Prince, you know that a royal prince
Only has one word!
Prince, you are bound by your honor!
(With authority.)
I say, you will marry her!

COURTIERS (Surprised and horrified). Oh!

PRINCE: A negress?

KING: (Emphatically). I command you!

PRINCE: (Perplexed). It is terrible!

KING: I command you!
Offer her your arm.
Procession! march!
(The procession retraces its steps. The Prince, who is in despair, is forced to offer his arm to Smeraldine. Leander and Clarisse remain behind.)

LÉANDRE: (Vénimeux). L'orange est pourrie!
Aussi la princesse en est sortie toute noire!
(Il tend le bras à Clarice et suit le cortège.)

FIN DE L'ACTE TROISIÈME.

ACTE QUATRIÈME.

SCÈNE I.

(Après le lever du rideau, au lieu de décor, on voit un second rideau, cabalistique comme à la seconde scène du Ier. acte. Le Magicien Tchélio et Fata Morgana, hostile et farouches, se ruent l'un contre l'autre arrivant l'un de droite et l'autre de gauche.) TCHÉLIO: Ah! ignoble sorcière; ignoble sorcière!

Lâche et misérable!
Tu as été ratée par le diable!
Lâche! Lâche!

FATA MORGANA: Oh! toi vieux sorcier prétentieux,
Sorcier prétentieux sans force,
Sans puissance Magicien auquel personne n'obéit jamais!

TCHÉLIO: Lâche créature! tu n'as pas honte
De t'abaisser à te servir d'épingles de femmes,
Viles épingles empoisonnées!

FATA MORGANA: Et toi! . . . Et toi! . . .
Et toi sorcier sans gloire,
Tu egrostes qu'avec tes p'tits rubans de soie magiques!
Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!
C'est grotesque!

TCHÉLIO: Lâche! quelle honte!

FATA MORGANA: Ah quel imbécile tu n'es qu'un magicien,
Bon à distraire des jeunes filles.

TCHÉLIO: (D'un mouvement de main Tchélio provoque un éclair et un coup de tonnerre). Vieille furie!
Par couardise tu n'as même pas agi toi-même.
(D'un mouvement de main Fata Morgana provoque un éclair et un coup de tonnerre.)

FATA MORGANA: Tu n'es qu'un malhonnête!

TCHÉLIO: Tu t'es servie d'une sale esclave noire.

FATA MORGANA: Car tu oublie que tu as perdu.
(Eclair et tonnerre provoqués par Tchélio.)
Aux cartes le destin du prince.
(Eclair et tonnerre provoqués par Fata Morgana.)
Il est à moi!
(Fata Morgana fait reculer

LEANDER: (With venom).
The orange was decayed!
So the princess came out black!
(He offers his arm to Clarisse and they follow the procession.)

END OF ACT THIRD.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

(After the curtain has risen, instead of a stage setting there is seen a second curtain, cabalistic as in Scene II of the First Act. The magician Tchelio and Fata Morgana, hostile and furious, run into each other as they enter from opposite sides.)

TCHELIO: Ah, ignoble witch! ignoble witch!
Cowardly and wretched!
The devil made you fail!
Coward! coward!

FATA MORGANA: Oh! old pretentious sorcerer,
Pretentious sorcerer without power,
Powerless magician,
Whom nobody ever obeys!

TCHELIO: Cowardly creature; you are not ashamed
To lower yourself to the use of woman's hairpin,
A vile poisoned hairpin!

FATA MORGANA: And you! . . . and you!
You magician without glory.
You are grotesque with your Small silk ribbons of magic!
Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!
It is grotesque!

TCHELIO: Coward! what shame!

FATA MORGANA: Ha! what a fool! you are only a magician, Sufficient to distract young girls.

TCHELIO: (With a movement of his arm he brings lightning and thunder). Old fury!
Through cowardice you did not even Act yourself!
(By a movement of the arm Fata Morgana brings lightning and thunder.)

FATA MORGANA: You are nothing but an uncivil man!

TCHELIO: You made use of a dirty black slave.

FATA MORGANA: You forget that you lost
(Lightning and thunder brought on by Tchelio.)
The destiny of the Prince at cards.
(Lightning and thunder brought on by Fata.)
He is mine!
(*Fata Morgana forces Tchelio to Tchélio.)

En les sauvant tu voles comme un tricheur!
(Éclair.) Tricheur!
(Sortent des tours, se mettent en deux rangs et avec une gravité maligne, s'approchent de Fata Morgana.)

LES RIDICULES: Fata Morgana nous venons parler d'affaires,
Fata Morgana!
Il faut que tu le sache,
Nous allons te dire
Une nouvelle curieuse.
Nous la chuchoterons à ton oreille!
Approche encore écoute c'est grave!
Fata Morgana! Fata Morgana!
(Brusquement ils la poussent dans une des tours et l'enferment. De la tour sort du feu et de la fumée.)
(À Tchélio.)
Va, maintenant, tu peux sauver
Ta cour royale!
(La lumière eclaire le Magicien Tchélio par en haut.)

TCHÉLIO: (Fait des gestes d'incantation vers la tour où est enfermée Fata Morgana). Vois, sorcière, quelle est ma puissance!

LES RIDICULES: Tiens, tiens!
(Rentrant dans la cour avec une bonhomie légèrement ironique.) Puissance.
(Le Rideau Cabalistique se lève.)

SCÈNE II.

(La salle au trône du palais royal brillament éclairée. A gauche sur une grande estrade le trône du Roi auprès duquel deux trônes l'un pour le Prince, l'autre pour la future Princesse. Au dessus des trois trônes un grand Baldaquin en velours qui peut se fermer. Le Maître de Cérémonies, des serviteurs. La salle se remplit de Courtisans.)

LÉANDRE: (Entrant hativement). Est-ce en ordre?

MAÎTRE DES CÉRÉMONIES: Certes!

LÉANDRE: Le trône aussi?

MAÎTRE DES CÉRÉMONIES: Oui, seigneur!

LÉANDRE: Faites tomber le velours,
Le cortège arrive!
(On ferme le baldaquin.)
(Une marche à la cantonnade.)
(Le cortège entre. Le Roi en tête, après lui le Prince et Sméraldine, puis Pantalon, Clarice, les Courtisans et les gardes.)

CHOEUR: Gloire à notre Roi!
Le roi de Trèfles!
Et vive le Prince,
Qu'il règne brillant,
Monarque incomparable!

step back.)
In saving him you steal like a card cheat!
(Lightning.)
Card cheat!
(The Absurdities leave their towers, form a double file and approach Fata Morgana with a malign dignity.)

ABSURDITIES: Fata Morgana! we come to speak on business!
Fata Morgana!
You must know it.
We will tell you
Strange news.
We will whisper it in your ear!
Come closer! Listen! It is serious!
Fata Morgana! Fata Morgana!
(They push her suddenly into one of the towers and lock her in. Fire and smoke rise from the tower.)
(To Tchelio.)
Go! now you can save
Your royal court!
(Light falls on the magician Tchelio from above.)

TCHELIO: (Makes gestures of incantation in the direction of the tower in which Fata Morgana is locked). See, witch, my power!

ABSURDITIES: Why? that is good!
(They re-enter the tower with slightly ironical good humor.)
My Power.
(The cabalistic curtain rises.)

SCENE II.

(The throne room of the royal palace, brilliantly lighted. To the left stands the King's throne on a large platform, beside it two other thrones, one for the Prince, the other for the future Princess. Above the thrones a huge baldachin of velvet, which can be drawn. Master of Ceremonies, Servants. The room fills with Courtiers.)

LEANDER: (Enters hastily). Is everything ready?

MASTER OF CEREMONIES: Certainly!

LEANDER: The throne as well?

MASTER OF CEREMONIES: Yes, sire!

LEANDER: Drop the velvet.
The procession is coming!
(The baldachin is closed.)
(A march back stage.)
(The procession enters. The King leads, after him the Prince and Smeraldine; then Pantaloon, Clarisse, the Courtiers and Guards).

COURTIERS: Glory to our King!
The King of Clubs!
And long live the Prince,
May he reign powerfully.
Matchless monarch!

MAÎTRE DES CÉRÉMONIES: (Solennel). Découvrez le trône!
(Le rideau du Trône est levé. Sur le trône de la princesse est assis un rat, plus grand qu'un être humain, qui remue ses moustaches. C'est la Princesse Ninette transformée en rat qui est accouru et s'est assise sur sa place.)
(Tous en grand désaroi reculent d'un pas. Plusieurs courtisans saisissent leurs armes.)

TOUS: Qu'est-ce? Qoui? Ah! c'est terrible!

LE ROI: (Desorienté). Gardes! Gardes!

PANTALON: Appelez les gardes!
(Le Magicien Tchélio apparait, éclairé. Il essaie de désenchanter le rat par des gestes desespérés.) TCHÉLIO: (Racontant). Rat j'exige que tu redevienne Princesse!

LE ROI: Aux armes!

TCHÉLIO: Je l'ordonne!
(Les gardes tirent.)
(Le rat redevient la Princesse Ninette. Le Magicien disparait.)

TOUS: Quel miracle!

LES RIDICULES: (Avec étonnement joyeux). Princesse Ninette!

LE PRINCE: (Se préipitant vers Ninette). C'est elle, c'est ma princesse!
(À genoux devant Ninette en lui tenant les mains.)
C'est mon amour, c'est mon orange!

CHOEUR: Grands Dieux, qu'elle est belle la princesse!

LE ROI: Je suis surpris! Mais elle n'est vraiment pas.

LE PRINCE: (Tendrement). Ninette!

LE ROI: (En designant Sméraldine). Alors cette femme?

TROUFFALDINO: (Arrivant on ne sait d'où). Mais c'est Sméraldine!

CLARICE et LÉANDRE: Sméraldine?

LE ROI: Sméraldine? N'est-elle pas complice de Léandre.

LÉANDRE (En faisant un pas en avant). Mon roi . . .

LE ROI: (N'entendant pas Léandre). Oui, je commence à tout comprendre.

LÉANDRE: Mon Roi . . .

LE ROI: (En colère et avec dédain). Tais-toi, tu es un traître!

LES COURTISANS: Un traître . . .

CLARICE: (Emotionnée). Oncle!

MASTER OF CEREMONIES: (Solemnly). Uncover the throne!
(The curtain of the throne is lifted. A rat is seated on the throne of the Princess. It is bigger than a human being and it is moving its mustaches. It is the Princess Ninette, transformed into a rat, who has come and seated herself on the throne.)
(All fall back in confusion. Several Courtiers seize their weapons.)

ALL: What is it? What! Ah! It is terrible!

KING: (Lost). Guards! Guards!

PANTALOON: Call the guards!
(The magician Tchelio appears, illuminated. He tries to remove the enchantment from the rat by desperate gestures.) TCHELIO: (Narrates). Rat, I demand that you turn back into the Princess!

KING: To arms!

TCHELIO: I command it!
(The guards fire.)
(The rat turns into the Princess Ninette. The magician disappears.)

ALL: What a miracle!

ABSURDITIES: (With happy astonishment). Princess Ninette!

PRINCE: (Hurrying towards Ninette). It is she! it is my Princess!
(On his knees before Ninette; holds her hands.)
It is my love! it is my orange!

COURTIERS: How beautiful is the Princess!

KING: I am surprised. But she is not real!

PRINCE: (Tenderly). Ninette!

KING: (Pointing to Smeraldine). And what about this woman?

TROUFFALDINO: (Arrives from no one knows where). But that is Smeraldine!

CLARISSE AND LEANDER: Smeraldine!

KING: Smeraldine? Is she not Leander's accomplice?

LEANDER: (Taking a step forward). My King . . .

KING: (Does not hear Leander). Yes, I am beginning to understand.

LEANDER: My King . . .

KING: (Angrily and with scorn). Be silent! you are a traitor!

COURTIERS: A traitor . . .

CLARISSE: (with emotion). Uncle!

LES ROI: Va-t'en, je sais que tu as trempé dans le crime!

LES COURTISANS: Crime!
(Le Roi dans une colère solennelle monte vers le trône. Tous restent figés de peur.)
Quel moment d'angoisse!
Il décide.

LE ROI: (Majesteusement). J'ordonne que l'esclave Sméraldine, (Sméraldine terrifiée recule d'un pas.)
Le traître Léandre,
(Léandre recule d'un pas.)
Et sa lâche complice ma nièce Clarice, (Clarice recule d'un pas.)
Qu'on les pende!
(Les Courtisans, les Gardes, Pantalon, Trouffaldino, le Maître des Cérémonies tombent à genoux.)
(Murmurant tragiquement.)
Qu'on les pende!

TROUFFALDINO: (D'un voix mielleuse). O Roi, pardonne!

PANTALON: (Le poussant). Tais-toi!

LE ROI: (Murmure tragiquement affirmant). Qu'on les pende.

LES COURTISANS: (Très impressionnées). Les pendres!

LE ROI: (Energiquement aux gardes). Gardes, la corde!
(Les gardes se dirigent vers eux, Sméraldine essaye de fuir, Clarice la suit, Léandre suit Clarice. Les gardes se jettent à leurs poursuite. Pantalon, Trouffaldino, Le Maître Des Cérémonies et tous les Courtisans se précipitent après les gardes. Il ne reste que le Roi sur les marches du trône, Ninette sur son trône et le prince toujours embrassant ses genoux.)

TROUFFALDINO, MAÎTRE DES CÉRÉMONIES et PANTALON: À droite!

LES COURTISANS: À gauche! Tenez!
(Tous en longues chaines courent vers l'avant-scène et dans la coulisse de gauche puis apparaissent au fond de la scène de la coulisse gauche et dans le même ordre courent à travers la scène dans la coulisse droite. Fata Morgana enfonce la porte de la tour. Fata Morgana court vers le milieu de la scène.)

FATA MORGANA: Tonnerre! Venez à moi
Je vous protège!
(Les poursuivis et les poursuivants réapparaissent sur scène de la coulisse droite et courent vers Fata Morgana. Devant elle s'ouvre une trappe. Sméraldine, Clarice et Léandre sautent dans la trappe, d'ou sort du feu et de la fumée. Fata Morgana s'y engouffre après eux. Les gardes et les Courtisans accourus, encerclent la place maintenant vide.)

CHOEUR: Traître où êtez-vous donc.

LES RIDICULES: (Entonnent). Criez donc, Vive le Roi.

LE ROI: Non! Vive le Prince et la Princesse.
(Les Ridicules sortis des tours se joignent à la foule.)

TOUS: Bénis soit notre Roi, le Prince et la Princesse!

FIN.

KING: Go away. I know that you are deep in crime!

COURTIERS: Crime!
(The King mounts the throne in solemn anger. All remain transfixed with fear.)
What moments of anguish!
He is deciding.

KING: (Majestically). I order that the slave Smeraldine, (Terrified, Smeraldine shrinks back.)
The traitor Leander,
(Leander shrinks back.)
And his dastardly accomplice, my niece Clarisse, (Clarisse shrinks back.)
That they be hanged!
(The Courtiers, Guards, Pantaloon, Trouffaldino, Master of Ceremonies fall on their knees.)
(Tragic murmur.)
That they be hanged!

TROUFFALDINO: (In a soft voice). Oh King! pardon!

PANTALOON: (Pushing him). Keep quiet!

KING: (Murmurs tragically and positively). Hang them!

COURTIERS: (Impressed). Hang them!

KING: (Energetically to the Guards). Guards, the rope!
(The Guards approach them. Smeraldine tries to escape, and Clarisse follows her. Leander follows Clarisse. The Guards pursue them. Pantaloon, Trouffaldino, the Master of Ceremonies and all the Courtiers follow the Guards. Only the King remains on the steps of the throne. Ninette remains on her throne with the Prince kissing her knees.)

TROUFFALDINO, MASTER OF CEREMONIES AND PANTALOON: To the right!

COURTIERS: To the left! There!
(All run in a long file towards the proscenium and to the left wing, then appear back of the stage on the left and run in the same order to the right wing. Fata Morgana forces the door of the tower. She runs towards the center of the stage.)

FATA MORGANA: Thunder!
Come to me,
I will protect you!
(The pursued and the pursuers appear on the stage from the right wing and run towards Fata Morgana. A trap door opens before her. Smeraldine, Clarisse and Leander jump into the trap, from which fire and smoke are rising. Fata Morgana follows them. The Guards and Courtiers surround the now empty spot.)

COURTIERS: Traitors! Where are you?

ABSURDITIES: (Astonished). Shout: Long live the King!

KING: No! Long live the Prince and Princess!
(The Absurdities leave their towers and join the crowd.)

ALL: Blessings on our King, Prince and Princess!

THE END.

Manon Lescaut (1893)

MUSIC BY GIACOMO PUCCINI ■ LIBRETTO BY RUGGERO LEONCAVALLO, MARCO PRAGA, DOMENICO OLIVA, LUIGI ILLICA AND GUISEPPE GIACOSA

Manon Lescaut, based on Abbé Prévost's novel and set to an "anonymous" libretto by Giuseppe Giacosa, Luigi Illica, Giulio Ricordi and others, premiered at the Teatro Regio in Turin on February 1, 1893. Manon Lescaut arrrives by stagecoach at the courtyard of an inn in Amiens with her brother, who is escorting her to a convent school. Manon and the chevalier des Grieux fall in love immediately. Edmondo tells des Grieux that the old official, Geronte de Ravoir, plans to kidnap Manon. The young lovers use his coach to elope. Manon's brother Lescaut tells Geronte that he's sure his sister will choose the old man's wealth over Grieux' poverty.

Manon does indeed choose Geronte over des Grieux, leaving her life with des Grieux to become the old man's mistress. She laments the loss of des Grieux for, even though she was poor, she was very happy. Lescaut brings Manon news of her former lover. He then tells des Grieux, who has now made a fortune from gambling, where he may find Manon. The lovers reunite. Geronte swears to seek vengeance. Manon and des Grieux prepare to depart, but Manon delays their escape to gather the jewels that Geronte gave her. The police arrest her, accusing her of being a thief and a common prostitute. At Le Havre, manon boards a ship—she is to be deported to New Orleans. Lescaut and des Grieux try to get her released. Des Grieux is granted permission to sail with her. Arriving in North America, the lovers escape from New Orleans. They drag themselves along the road, hopelessly seeking an English colony. Thoroughly spent, Manon realizes she is going to die. Overwhelmed by grief, des Grieux collapses over her lifeless corpse.

ATTO I	ACT I
Ad Amiens.	At Amiens.
Un vasto piazzale presso la Porta di Parigi.	A spacious Square near the Paris Gate.
Un viale a destra. A sinistra un'osteria con porticato sotto al quale sono disposte varie tuvole per gli avventori. Una scaletta esterna conduce al primo piano dell'osteria.	An Avenue, R. An Inn, L. Under its porch are tables for the customers. An outer staircase leads to the first floor of the Inn.
Studenti, Borghesi, Popolani, Donne, Fanciulle, Soldati passeggiano per la piazza e sotto il viale. Altri son fermi a gruppi chiacchierando. Altri seduti alle tavole, bevono e ginocano.—Edmondo, attorniato da altri Studenti, poi Des Grieux.	Students, Citizens, Villagers, Women, Girls and Soldiers stroll about in the square and the avenue. Some stand together talking, others are seated at the tables drinking and playing cards.—Edmondo with other Students, then Des Grieux.
EDM: (tra il comico ed il sentimentale) Ave, sera gentile, che discendi col tuo corteo di zeffiri e di stelle; Ave, cara ai poeti ed agli amanti.	EDM: (half in earnest, half in jest) Hail, beautiful night, advancing With all your wondrous train of stars and zephyrs;— Hail, night, so dear to bards and to all lovers . . .
STUDENTI: (dopo averlo interrotto con una gran risata) . . . e ai ladri ed ai brïachi! Noi ti abbiamo spezzato il madrigale!	STUDENTS: (with a burst of laughter) And to robbers and topers! I fear that we have cut short your madrigal!
EDM: E vi ringrazio. Pel vïal giulive vengono a frotte a frotte fresche, ridenti e belle le nostre artigianelle . . .	EDM: For that I thank you. Up the pleasant pathway Come now in throngs so joyous, Our merry, fresh and laughing Fair young work-girls from their toiling.
STUDENTI: Or s'anima il vïale.	STUDENTS: How gay the scene is growing.
EDM: Preparo un madrigale furbesco, ardito e gaio; e sia la musa mia tutta galanteria!	EDM: I'll fashion a madrigal A rhyme of fun and frolic; My muse shall be teeming And rife with gallantry!
EDM. E GLI STUDENTI: (ad alcune fanciulle che si avanzano del viale) Giovinezza è il nostro nome, la speranza è nostra iddia ci trascina per le chiome indomabile virtù. Santa ebbrezza! Or voi, ridenti, amorose adolescenti, date il labbro e date il core alla balda gioventù. Fanciulle (avvicinandosi) Vaga per l'aura un'onda di profumi, van le rondini a vol e muore il sol. È questa l'ora delle fantasie che fra le spemi lottano e le malinconie. (Entra Des Grieux vestito semplicemente come gli Studenti.)	EDM. and Students: (to some of the girls who come from the avenue) Youth is ours with all its gladness, Hope's the goddess of our creed, And we dare the boldest deed To win sweet favor from you. Wondrous rapture! Rout all sadness With the smile that love imparts; Yield your lips and yield your hearts To our youthful ardor true. (Girls approaching) Soft waves of perfume Are floating through the ether. Home the swallows will fly, Soon sunlight will die. This is the hour of tender fantasy, When hope or sorrow subtly strive for power. (Enter Des G. dressed as a student.)
STUDENTI: Oh, Des Grieux! (Des G. li saluta senza accennare a volersi fermate.)	STUDENTS: Welcome, Des Grieux! (Des G. salutes them without stopping)
EDM: (chiamandolo) Fra noi, amico, vieni e ridi e ti vinca la cura di balzana avventura. (Des G., senza aver l'aspetto preoccupato, si mostra poco disposto ad unirsi alle schiere allegre dei suoi compagni.) Non rispondi? Perchè? Mesto tu sembri! Forse di dama inaccessibile acuto amo, ti morse?	EDM: (calling him) Now come and join us, friend, and gaily We will wander in quest of amorous adventure. (Des G. shows no inclination to join the merry groups of students.) What, no answer? But why? Haply for some unyielding fair one, A hopeless flame consumes you?

DES G: (lo interrompe, alzando le spalle) L'amor! Questa tragedia, ovver commedia,
io non conosco!
(gli Studenti si dividono, alcuni restano a conversare con Des G. ed Edm. altri si danno a corteggiare le ragazze che passeggiano a braccetto sul piazzale e nel viale.)

ALCUNI STUDENTI: (a Des G.)
Baie!
Misteriose vittorie cauto celi e felice;
fido il figliuol di Venere ti guida e benedice.

DES G: Amici, troppo onore voi mi fate.

EDM. E STUDENTI: Per Bacco, indoviniam, amico . . . Ti crucci d'uno scacco . . .

DES G: No . . . non ancora . . .
ma se vi talenta,
vo' compiacervi . . . e tosto!!
(si avvicina ad alcune fanciulle che passano e con galanteria dice loro.)
Tra voi, belle, brune e bionde si nasconde ritrosetta-giovenetta vaga-vezzosa, dal labbro rosa che m'aspetta?
Sei tu quella-bionda stella?
Dillo a me!
Palesatemi il destino
e il divino viso ardente che m'innamori, ch'io vegga e . . . adori
eternamente!
Sei tu quella-bruna snella?
Dillo a me!
(le fanciulle comprendendo che egli scherza, si allontanano corrucciate da Des G. erollando le spalle. Gli Studenti ridono.)

GLI STUDENTI: Ma bravo!

EDM: Guardate compagni, di lui più nessuno si lagni!

Tutti: Festeggiam la serata,
com' è nostro costume,
suoni musica grata
nei brindisi il bicchier, e noi rapisca il fascino
ardente del piacer!
Danze, brindisi, follie, il corteo di voluttà or s' avanza per le vie
e la notte regnerà;
È splendente-ed irruente
è un poema di fulgor:
tutto vinca-tutto avvinca
la sua luce e il suo furor.
(Squilla la cornetta del postiglione: dal fondo a destra arriva una diligenza: tutti si affollano per osservare chi arriva: la diligenza si arresta innanzi al portone dell' osteria. Scende subito Lescaut, poi Geronte, il quale galantemente aiuta a scendere Manon. Dall' osteria vengono frettolosamente alcuni garzoni i quali si affaccendano attorno a diversi viaggiatori, e dispongono per lo scarico dei bagagli.)

DES G: (interrupts him, shrugging his shoulders) What, love! what love? I have no notion of that sad tragedy
Or dismal farce.
(the students separate, some remain to talk with Des G. and Edm. others court the girls who are strolling about arm-in-arm in the square and the avenue.)

STUDENTS: (to Des G.) Nonsense!
You are secretly hiding.
Some glad and facile conquest
May the faithful son of Venus
Ever your fate be guiding.

DES G: No, friends, you do me too much honor.

EDM. AND STUDENTS: By Bacchus, then, we guess right . . .
You're crossed in love already!

DES G: Not yet, believe me, but if it so please you,
I will content you . . . directly!
(approaches some of the girls and addresses them)
Now among you, dark and fair ones,
Is there hiding
A sweet maiden coy and tender,
Whose lips so rosy will kisses render?
Are you my fair star, tell me, pray?
Does fate give me happy chances
And what promise yield your glances
That so enthrall me
To love's enchantment they ever recall me!
Are you my lodestar, tell me, pray?
(the girls, seeing that he is joking, turn from him angrily, shrugging their shoulders. The Students laugh.)

STUDENT: That's splendid!

EDM: Now note this well, comrades,
Let no one chaff him any more!

CHORUS: Let gay song and glad laughter,
With our wonted rejoicing,
Now resound, and thereafter
Let us quaff the purple wine;
And the spell that delights us
Shall be pleasure divine!
Dances, revels, wild enjoyment,
In the wake of pleasure stay.
Let us welcome the glad advent
Of night's sweet and dreamful sway.
All is wondrous and entrancing,
Like a dream of rapture bright
Ardor of all hearts enhancing,
Wreathed with song and crowned with light.
(Postilion's horn heard without, a diligence comes on from the back, R.; all crowd together to see the arrivals; the diligence stops in front of the courtyard of the Inn. Lescaut gets down first, then Geronte, who assists Manon to alight. Servants run hurriedly from the Inn to attend to the passengers and take charge of the luggage.)

Giunge il cocchio d' Arras!
Discendono . . .
Vediam! . . . Viaggiatori eleganti-galanti!

STUDENTI: (ammirando Man.)
Chi non darebbe a quella donnina bella il gentile saluto del benvenuto?

LES: Ehi! l' oste! (a Ger.) Cavalier, siete un modello di squisitezza . . .
(chiamando) Ehi! l' oste!

L' OSTE: (accorrendo) Eccomi qua!

DES G: (guardando Man.) Dio, quanto è bella!
(la diligenza entra nel portone dell' osteria: la folla si allontana: parecchi Studenti tornano ai tavoli a bere e giuocare: Edm. si ferma da un lato ad osservare Man. e Des G.)

GER: (all' Oste) Questa notte, amico,
(all' Oste.)
qui posero . . . (a Les.) Scusate!—
Ostiere, v' occupate del mio bagaglio.

L' OSTE: Ubbidirò . . . (dà qualche ordine) Vi prego, mi vogliate seguire.
(preceduti dall' Oste salgono al primo piano Ger. e Les., che avrà futto cenno a Man. d' attenderlo. Man. si siede.)

DES G: (che non avrà mai distolto gli occhi da Man. le si avvicina) Deh, se buona voi siete siccome siete bella, mi dite il nome vostro, cortese damigella . . .

MAN: (alzandosi, risponde modestamente) Manon Lescaut mi chiamo.

DES G: Perdonate al dir mio, ma da un fascino arcano a voi spinto son io.
Persino il vostro volto parmi aver visto, e strani moti ha il mio core. Quando partirete?

MAN: (dolorosamente) Domani all' alba io parto. Un chiostro m' attende.

DES G: E in voi l'aprile nel volto si palesa e fiorisce! o gentile, qual fato vi fa guerra?
(Edm. cautamente si avvicina agli Studenti che sono all' osteria,

Here comes the coach from Arras!
Now they alight . . . Look there! . . .
Folk of some rank and station!
(Man., Les., Ger. and the Innkeeper, Servants of the Inn.)

STUDENTS: (admiring Man.)
Who would not to that maiden
With beauty laden,
A welcome tender
And cordial render?

LES: Ho! Landlord! (to Ger.) Honored Sir! you are a model of politeness (calling) Ho! Landlord!

INNKEEPER: (running up) I am here!

DES G: (gazing at Man.) How fair! how entrancing!
(the diligence enters the courtyard of the Inn; the crowd disperses; some of the students sit down to drink and play cards; Edm. stands apart to watch Man. and Des. G.)

GER: (to the Innkeeper) For this night, friend,
I will stay here (to Les.) Your pardon! (to Innkeeper.)
Now, landlord, please look after all my luggage.

INNKEEPER: I shall obey (gives an order) Be pleased, Sir, kindly to step this way.)
(Ger. and Les., preceded by the Innkeeper, ascend to the first floor, Les, having signalled to Man. to wait for him. Man. sits down.)

DES G: (who has kept his eyes fixed on Man., approaches her)
Fair lady, if your kindness can surpass your beauty,
Tell me your name, and take my homage as a duty.

MAN: (rising, says with simplicity) Manon Lescaut they call me.

DES G: Vouchsafe to hear me!
I am drawn toward you by some enthralling spell,
You come to me with wondrous grace, recalling
My heart's delight and devotion.
When are you going there?

MAN: (mournfully) I start tomorrow at dawn,
A convent awaits me.

DES G: The smiles of April adorn your glances
And linger there! O Fair enchantress!
What cruel fate pursues you?
(Edm. cautiously approaches the ed indica loro furbescamente Des G. che è in stretto colloquio con Man.)

MAN: Il mio fato si chiama:
voler del padre mio.

DES G: Oh, come siete bella!
Ah! no! non è un convento che sterile vi brama!
No! sul vostro destino riluce un' altra stella.

MAN: La mia stella tramonta!

DES G: (tristamente) Or parlar
non possiamo,
Ritornate fra poco,
e cospiranti contro
il fato, vinceremo.

MAN: Tanta pietà traspare dalle vostre parole!
Vo' ricordarvi! Il nome vostro?

DES G: Sono Renato
Des Grieux . . .

LES: (di dentro) Manon!

MAN: (subito) Lasciarvi debbo.
(volgendosi verso l' albergo.)
Vengo?
(a Des G.)
Mio fratello
m' ha chiamata.

DES G: (supplichevole) Qui tornate?

MAN: No! non posso. Mi lasciate!

DES G: O gentile, vi scongiuro . . .

MAN: (commossa) Mi vincete?
Quando oscuro
l'aere intorno a noi sarà!
(s'interrompe: vede Les. che sarà venuto sul balcone dell' osteria e frettolosamente lo raggiunge, entrando ambedue nelle camere.)

DES G: (che avrà seguito Man. collo sguardo, prorompe con accento appassionato) Donna non vidi mai simile a questa!
A dirle: io 'tamo,
tutta si desta-l'anima.
Manón Lescaut mi chiamo!
Come queste parole
mi vagan nello spirto
e ascose fibre vanno a carezzare.
O susurro gentil, deh! non cessare!
(Edm. e gli Studenti, che hanno sempre spiato Des G., lo circondano rumorosamente.)

STUDENTI: La tua ventura ci rassicura.
O di Cupido degno fedel, bella e divina
ia pellegrina per tua delizia scese dal ciel!
(Des G. parte indispettito.)
Fugge: è dunque innamorato!

students at the Inn, and slyly points out to them Des G. in close conversation with Man.)

MAN: My sad fate is decided Alas! by paternal will.

DES G: Oh! how your face enchants me!
Ah! no! It is not for you in convent grim to be repining,
No, on your fate a more resplendent star is shining.

MAN: I fear my star is waning.

DES G: (sadly) Now we cannot speak further.
Return then shortly,
And
We shall conquer warring fate bravely together!

MAN: Such pity betoken all your words for me,
I would remember your name, as yet unspoken.

DES G: I am Renato Des Grieux.

LES: (within) Manon!

MAN: (quickly) I need to leave you
(turning towards the Inn)
I come!
(to Des G.)
My brother is calling for me.

DES G: (entreatingly) You'll return here?

MAN: No! I cannot, pray you leave me.

DES G: Oh! fair lady, I implore
you—

MAN: (much moved) You persuade me.
When it is darker grown and night is more advanced—
(Stops speaking as she sees Les. step on to the balcony of the Inn, and hurriedly joins him, they both retire.)

DES G: (who has intently watched Man., exclaims passionately)
Never did I behold so fair a maiden!
To tell her: I love you,
Awoke my heart and soul to life and rapture;
"Manon Lescaut they call me," How those words seemed laden with fragrance,
To charm me past recapture.
What throbs of passion in my veins are dancing,
O what music dwells in those tones entrancing.
(Edm. and Students who have kept their eyes fixed on Des G., surround him noisily.)

STUDENTS: By your adventure
You reassure us,
You are in Cupid's favor, that's clear,
Your heart's in danger
From that fair stranger,
An angel has sent you here.
(Exist Des G., vexed.)

(tutti gli Studenti si avviano allegramente al porticato dell' osteria: s' imbattono in alcune fanciulle e le invitano galantemente a seguirli. Intanto scendono dalla scalleta Les. e Ger., e parlano fra loro, passeggiando. Edm. si avvicina ad un fanciulla e le parla galantemente; sul finire del dialogo fra Les. e Ger. l' accompagna sino al viale a destra, ove le dà l'addio.)

STUDENTI: Venite fanciulle! . . .
Augurio ci siate di buona fortuna.

FANCIULLE: È bionda od è bruna la diva che guida la vostra tenzon?

STUDENTI: È calva la diva: ma morbida chioma voi fa desïar.
Chi perde e chi vince, voi brama, o
fanciulle,
chi piange e chi ride;
noi prostra ed irride
la mala ventura:
ma lieta prorompe
d' amore la folle, l'eterna canzon.

FANCIULLE: Amiche fedeli di un'
ora, volete?
Il riso chiedete,
il bacio, il sospir?
Orniam la vittoria,
e il cope del vinto
al tepido effluvio di molle carezza riposa, obliando, e l' onta e il martir.
(Studenti e Fanciulle prendono posto intorno alle tavole: alcuni ricominciano a giuocare, altri ordinano da bere.)

EDM: (ad una fanciulla) Addio mia stella, addio mio fior,
vaga sorella
del Dio d'amor.
A te d' intorno
va il mio sospir,
e per un giorno
non mi tradir.
(saluta galantemente la fanciulla, la quale si allontana; poi vedendo Ger. e Les. in stretto colloquio, si ferma in disparte ad osservarli.)

GER: (a Les.) Dunque vostra sorella il velo cingerà?

LES: Malo consiglio della gente
mia.

GER: Diversa idea mi pare la vosta?

LES: Certo, certo, ho più sana la testa di quel che sembri, e benchè triste fama
le giovanili mie gesta circondi.
Ma la vita conosco,

He's off! Then he's downright in earnest.
(all the students basten merrily to the porch of the Inn; they meet some girls coming from the opposite direction and invite them to join them. Meanwhile Les. and Ger. come down the staircase talking together. Edm. approaches one of the girls and pays her compliments. When Les. and Ger. finish speaking, Edm. goes with the girl as far as the avenue, R., and bids her good-bye.)

STUDENTS: Come, join us fair damsels!
And bring us good fortune
And luck by your presence.

GIRLS: Are gold locks or raven,
The boast of the goddess,
For whom you contend?

STUDENTS: The dame's bald we fancy; but soft silken tresses
Enhance all your charms.
Who wins or who loses needs all your caresses,
Who's laughing or weeping;
It smites and derides us
Ill luck to be reaping:
But joyfully guides us
The wild song of rapture
And love without end.

GIRLS: For sweathearts you wish,
only true for an hour,
For laughter you wish, for a kiss and a sigh,
Then crown we the victor; the vanquished we dower
With rapturous fervor of tender endearments
That quickly all shame and all sorrow outvie!
(Students and girls take their seats at the table; some play at cards, others order drinks.)

EDM: (to one of the girls) Farewell, my flower, Farewell, my star,
Fair child of Venus
Indeed you are.
Around you hover
My sighs anew,
To your fond lover
This day be true.
(be salutes the girl, who goes off: then seeing Ger. and Les. in close conversation, be stands apart to watch them.)

GER: (to Les.) Then your fair little sister
Will shortly take the veil?

LES: Foolishly have her parents thus decided.

GER: Your own opinion
I take it, must differ.

LES: Quite so! quite so;
Oh! my head is more sober than doubtless appears,
Though evil report has my actions maligned.
But I know the world, bless you,

forse troppo. Parigi è scuola grande assai. di mia sorella guida, mormorando, adempio il mio dovere, come un vero soldato. Solo, dico, che ingrato evento al mondo non ci coglie, senza qualche compenso: e voi conobbi illustre Signor?	only too well, And Paris is a famous school. Of my young sister, most unwilling guardian, I fulfil the duty Like a true dauntless soldier. Let me add, Sir, that in this life, No sad event ever happens Without some compensation, And I met you, but your name—
GER: Geronte di Ravoir.	GER: Geronte de Ravoir.
LES: Diporto vi conduce in vïaggio?	LES: It is pleasure that leads you to travel?
GER: No dovere; l'affitto delle imposte a me fidato dalla bontà del Re, dalla mia borsa.	GER: No, it is duty; The high official charge, to me confided By favor of the king, I have to pay for.
LES: (Che sacco d'o).	LES: (aside) A mine of gold.
GER: E non mi sembra lieta neppur vostra sorella.	GER: To me she seems unhappy Your pretty little sister.
LES: Pensate! a diciott' anni! Quanta festa di sogni e di speranze in quella testolina . . .	LES: Just fancy! only eighteen, sir! Full of dreams and illusions.
GER: Comprendo . . . Poverina! È d' uopo consolarla. Questa sera meco verrete a cena? Ci sian propizie l' ore.	GER: Exactly—Sweet young creature!— We should indeed console her. Will you honor me, sir, tonight at supper?
GER: Quale onor! quale onore! E intanto permettete . . . (gli fa un cenno d' offrirgli qualche cosa all' osteria.)	LES: We shall be too delighted!— Meanwhile, will you allow me?— (inviting him with a gesture to join in a drink.)
GER: (che sulle prime aveva seguito Les., cambia subito di pensiero) Scusate . . . m' attendete per breve istante; qualche ordine io debbo all' ostiere impartir . . . (Les. s' inchina e Ger. s' allontana verso il fondo: dall' interno dell' osteria sono portate varie lampade e candele accese, che i garzoni dispongono sui tavoli dei giuocatori.)	GER: (at first follows Les., but suddenly changes his mind.) Your pardon— Here wait me for a few moments, I must some orders impart to the landlord. (Les. bows and Ger. retires up stage: it gets dark and from the Inn lamps and candles are brought on by the servants.)
GLI STUDENTI: (giuocando animatamente) Un asso! Un fante! Un tre! Che gioco maledetto!	STUDENTS: (intent on their game) An ace, sir! A knave, sir! A three! What wretched cards we're holding!
LES: (attratto dalle voci si accosta al porticalo e guarda con febbrile interesse) Giocano! Oh, se potessi qualche colpo perfetto tentare anch'io!	LES: (at the sound of the voices comes up to the porch and keenly watches the players.) They're at cards! Oh, could I only Attempt a coup and rook them of their savings—
GLI STUDENT: Puntate! Puntate! Carte! Un asso!	STUDENTS: Your deal, sir! Cards!—An ace—
LES: (si avvicina in modo deciso agli Studenti, si pone alle spalle d' un giuocatore, osserva il suo giuoco, poi con aria di rimprovero) Un asso?! mio signore, Un fante! Errore, errore!	LES: (approaches the Students, and standing by the side of one of the players, looks over his hand, then says reproachfully) An ace! No, dear sire! a knave, You're wrong, sir, you're wrong, sir.
GLI STUDENTI: (a Les.) È vero, un fante; siete un maestro?	STUDENTS: (to Lescaut) That's true—a knave. You're a professor.
LES: Celiate! Un dilettante . . .	LES: You're jesting! Quite a beginner.
GLI STUDENTI: A noi . . . v' invito . . . banco!	STUDENTS: Come now— I'll play you—banco!
LES: (con aria fredda e sprezzante sedendosi a giuocare) Carte! (Ger., che da lontano has osservato Les., vedendolo occupato al giuoco, chiama l'Oste, che è sul limitare del portone; l' Oste accorre premuroso; Ger. lo conduce in disparte, mentre Edm., messo in sospetto dagli andirivieni di Ger., cautamente si avvicina per sorvegliarlo)	LES: (with nonchalance sits down to play) Cards! (Ger., who has watched Les. from a distance, seeing him occupied with the game, calls to the Innkeeper, who is standing at the door, and he runs up obsequiously. Ger. takes him aside while Edm., whose suspicion is aroused by Ger.'s proceedings, cautiously gets near him.)
GER: (all' Oste) Amico, io pago prima e poche ciarle! Una carrozza e cavalli che volino sì come il vento; fra un' oral	GER: (to the Innkeeper) Now listen. I pay beforehand and do not bargain! In an hour I want a carriage and horses That fly like the wind.
L'OSTE: Signore!	INNKEEPER: As you wish, sir.
GER: Dietro l'albergo, fra un' ora, capite?! Verranno un uomo e una fanciulla . . . e via sì come il vento, via, verso Parigi! E ricordate che il silenzio è d' or.	GER: Behind the tavern—in an hour—you mark me. A man will come there with a maiden— Then, like the wind, They'll gallop off en route to Paris. Silence is golden, mind, remember.
L'OSTE: L' oro . . . adoro.	INNKEEPER: I'll remember.
GER: Bene, bene! (dandogli una borsa.) Adoratelo e ubbidite, Or mi dite, (indicando il portone dell' osteria.) questa uscita ha l' osteria solamente?	GER: Good, Good! Remember and obey me. (gives him a purse.) And now tell me (points to the courtyard of the inn.) To this inn is there any other egress?
L'OSTE: Ve n' ha un' altra.	INNKEEPER: There is another.
GER: Indicatemi la via. (partono dal fondo a sinistra.)	GER: Show me where it is directly. (Exeunt up stage L.)
EDM: (che ha udito il colloquio fra Ger. e l' Oste) Vecchietto amabile, incipriïato Pluton, sei tu! La tua Proserpina di resistere forse avrà virtù? (entra Des G. pensiero; Edm. gli si avvicina: poi battendogli sulla spalla.) Cavaliere, te la fanno!	EDM: (who has heard the conversation between Ger. and the Innkeeper) Elderly charmer, Indeed you are a wicked old Pluto! Your Proserpine may yet Your scheme have strength and courage to resist. (Enter Des G. absorbed in thought; Edm. goes up to him, then taps him on the shoulder.) My dear friend, they would outwit you!
DES G: (con sorpresa) Che vuoi dir?	DES G: (surprised) What do you mean?
EDM: (ironicamente) Quel flor dolcissimo che olezzava poco fa dal suo stel divelto, povero flor, fra un' ora appassirà! La tua fanciulla, la tua colomba or vola, or vola: Del postiglione suona la tromba . . . Via, ti consola: Un vecchio la rapisce!	EDM: (ironically) That flower sweet and fair That shed lately fragrance rare; From the stem so rudely torn Poor flower will fade away forlorn. Your lovely maiden, your snow-white doveling, Soon is flying here: The post-boy's horn will blare out loudly— Come, friend, take comfort, An old man takes her from you.
DES G: (grandemente turbato) Davvero?	DES G: (in great anxiety) What say you?
EDM: Impallidisci? Per Dio, la cosa è seria!	EDM: Your cheek grows paler! By heaven! you're in earnest.

DES G: Que l' attendo, capisci?	DES G: Shortly I await her here.
EDM: Siamo a buon punto!?	EDM: We're in good time then.
DES G: Salvami!	DES G: Help me, friend!
EDM: Salvarti!? La partenza impedire? Tentiamo! Senti! Ti salvo, forse. Del gioco all' amo morse il soldato laggiù.	EDM: Assist you? Prevent their departure? Let's try! Look here! Perhaps I'll do it. The bait of play has hooked that brave soldier!
DES G: E il vecchio?	DES G: And the old one?
EDM: Il vecchio? Oh, il vecchio l'avrà da far con mei. (si avvicina ai compagni che giuocano, e parla all' orrecchio d' alcuni fra essi: poi esce e s' allontana a sinistra; si sospende il giuoco: Les. beve in compagnia degli Studenti: Man. comparisce sulla scaletta, guarda anisiosa intorno e visto Des G. scende e gli si avvicina.)	EDM: The old one? Oh! he'll have to deal with me! (goes up to the Students who are playing, and whispers to some of them, then goes off, L. The Students stop playing awhile; Les. drinks with the Students. Man. appears on the staircase, looks anxiously round, sees Des G. and comes down to him.)
MAN: Vedete? Io son fedele alla parola mia. Voi mi chiedeste con fervida preghiera, che a voi tornassi un' altra volta. Meglio non rivedervi, io credo, e al vostro prego benignamente opporre il mio rifluto.	MAN: Behold me! I have been faithful To my rash, thoughtless promise! You did so urge me with passionate entreaty To come again and meet you here. It would have been wiser not to see you, And your request, Sir, I ought most Courteously to have rejected.
DES G: Oh come gravi le vostre parole! Sì ragionar non suole l' età gentile che v' infiora il viso; mal s' addice al sorriso che dall' occhio bellissimo traluce questo severo ragionare e questo disdegno melanconico!	DES G: Oh! how your words sound grave and alarming!— They jar with all the sweetness And youth on your face so fondly beaming; Blend them with rays of laughter That from your eyes are streaming, And rid your lovely lips of sad disdain!
MAN: Eppur lieta, assai lieta un tempo io fui! La queta casetta risonava di mie folli risate, e colle amiche gioconde ne andava gioconda a danza! Ma di gaiezza il bel tempo tuggi!	MAN: And yet happy, ah! how happy once was I! Our quiet dwelling ever resounded With my gay peals of laughter, And with my young and lively neighbors Often I went dancing. But soon, alas! these days of pleasure ceased.
DES G: (affascinato) Nelle pupille fulgide profonde sfavilla il desiderio dell' amore . . . Amor ora vi parla! Date all' onde del nuovo incanto e il dolce labbro e il core . . . l' anima date a questo immenso invito di baci e di carezze che ne è intorno! V'amo! v' amo! Quest' attimo di giorno deh! a me rendete eterno ed infinito!	DES G: (enraptured) In the pure depth and glamour of your glances, How love's transcendent ecstacy is gleaning! Let love unfold you all its wondrous trances. I love you! love you! make this joy supernal, A peerless realm of love and bliss eternal.
MAN: Una fanciulla povera son io, non ho sul volto luce de beltà, regna tristezza sul destino mio . . .	MAN: I'm but a lowly, modest little maiden, No ray of beauty glows upon my face, And all my future is with sadness laden.
DES G: Vinta tristezza dall' amor sarà! La bellezza vi dona il più vago avvenir, o soave persona, mio infinito sospir! M' inonda soave delizia, o flore dell' anima mia; m' inonda profonda letizia, e l' alma pei sogni s' avvia . . . Oh! dove il tuo sguardo m' adduce la vita comincia per me; io sogno un futuro di luce, la vita divisa con te.	DES G: We shall triumph over sadness by love's grace, For your beauty assures you The most jubilant fate. In your sweetness and splendor Fair dream of love, Supremest joy to render.
MAN: No, non è vero! Troppo bello è il sogno! Oh, non è inganno la vostra parola?
LES: (alzandosi mezzo brillo, e picchiando sul tavolo) Non e' è più vino? E che? Vuota è la botte? (gli Studenti lo forzano a sedere e gli versano ancora del vino; all' udire la voce di Les., Man. e Des G. si ritraggono verso destra agitalissimi; Man. impaurita vorrebbe rientrare, ma viene trattenuta da Des G.)	LES: (rising and rapping on the table) More wine is wanted! Ho! there! Is the cask empty? (the Students oblige him to sit down; play goes on with greater animation. At the sound of Les.'s voice Man. and Des. G. retire, R., in dismay. Man. would go back to the Inn, but Des G. prevents her.)
DES G: Deh! m' ascoltate, vi minaccia un vile oltraggio; un rapimento!—Un libèrtino, quel vecchio che con voi giunse, una trama a vostro danno ordì.	DES G: Hear me, I pray you! You are threatened with an outrage. An old audacious roúe, You know, you arrived together; A vile plot against you has planned.
MAN: (stupita) Che dite?!	MAN: (astonished) What say you?
DES G: Il vero!	DES G: The truth, love!
EDM: (accorendo si avvicina a Des G. e Man. e dice loro, rapidamente) Il colpo è fatto, la carrozza è pronta . . . Che burla colossal! Presto! Partite . . .	EDM: (running up to Des G. and Man., says hurriedly) The deed's accomplished, and the carriage ready; Oh! what a splendid joke! Make haste! Be off!—
MAN: (sorpresa) Fuggir? . . . Fuggir?	MAN: (surprised) What!—elope?—
DES G: Fuggiamo! Concedete che il vostro rapitor . . . un altro sia.	DES G: With me, love, Make me your captor and no other, dearest.
MAN: (a Des G.) Voi mi rapite?	MAN: (to Des G.) You must not take me!
DES G: Vi rapisce amore.	DES G: It is love that takes you.
MAN: (resistendo) Ah! no!	MAN: (resisting) Ah! no!
DES G: (con intensa preghiera) V' imploro!	DES G: (imploringly) I pray you!
EDM.: Presto, via ragazzi!	EDM: Make haste, quick, be off now!
DES G: (insistendo) Manon . . . Manon . . .	DES G: (insisting) Manon—Manon—
MAN: (risoluta) Andiam!	MAN: (with decision) I'll come!
EDM: Oh! che bei pazzi! (Edm. dà a Des G. il proprio mantello, col quale può coprirsi il volto, poi tutti e tre fuggono dal fondo, dietro l' osteria.— Ger. viene dalla sinistra, da una rapida occhiata al tavalo; vedendovi Les. giuocare animatamente, lascia sfuggire un moto di soddisfa-	EDM: Fine pair of madcaps! (Edm. takes off his cloak and gives it to Des G. to cover his face, then they all run off behind the Inn—Ger. enters from the L., catches sight of Les, intent on the game, and looks pleased. Then cautiously, so as not to attract anyone's attention, goes towards zione, e cautamente, in modo da non risvegliare l'attenzione di alcuno, va verso l'osteria, dove trova l'Oste.)

GER: Di sedur la sorellina è il momento! - Via, ardimento, che il sergente è al giuoco intento.
È bene ch' ei vi resti! Vi rimanga!
(chiama sottovoce l'Oste.)
Ehi, dico . . . (l'Oste accorre.)
È pronta la cena?

L' OSTE: Sì Eccellenza

GER: L'annunziate a quella signorina, che . . .

EDM: (che è ritornato e ha udito le ultime parole di Ger., gli si fa innanzi a grandi inchini) Quella signorina?

GER: (seccato) Sì.

EDM: (additando al fondo, lontano, verso la via che conduce a Parigi) Eccellenza, vedetela! Essa parte in compagnia d' un ardente-studente.
(Edm. si avvicina agli Studenti.)

GER: (guarda sorpreso, poi nella massima confusione corre da Les. scuotendolo) L' hanno rapita!

GER: (giuocando) Chi?

GER: Vosta sorella!

LES: Che?!—Mille e mille bombe!
(butta le carte e corre fuori: l'Oste impaurito, fugge nell' osteria.)

GER: L'inseguiamo!
È uno studente!

LES: (vedendo la simulata indifferenza degli Studenti, crolla il capo) È inutil!
(e a Ger. che si lascia sfuggire un moto d'impazienza, dice calmo.) Riflettiamo!
Cavalli pronti avete?
(Ger. accenna di no.)
Il colpo è fatto!
È tardi il disperarsi ed è da matto!

GER: (irritatissimo) È ver.

LES: Vedo; Manon con sue grazie leggiadre ha suscitato in voi . . . un affetto di padre!

GER: Non altrimenti!

LES: (con dignitosa fierezza) E a chi lo dite! Ed io da figlio rispettoso vi do un ottimo consiglio . . .
Parigi! E là Manon . . . Manon già non si perde!
Ma borsa di studente presto rimane al verde . . .

the Inn, where he finds the Innkeeper.)

GER: To allure that little sister
Now's the moment.
Come, take courage!
All absorbed in play is that soldier.
There let him stay!
(calls softly to the Innkeeper.)
Ho! landlord!
(the Innkeeper runs in.)
Is supper ready?

INNKEEPER: Yes, your Excellency.

GER: Straight announce it then to that young lady—Who—
(Edm., who has returned, and has heard the last words of Ger., approaches him, bowing profoundly.)

EDM: That young lady!

GER: (vexed) Yes—

EDM: (points to the background, far off, to the Paris road) Will your Excellency just deign to look.
There she goes. She's off, you see,
With that young student.
(Edm. goes up to the Students.)

GER: (looks surprised, then greatly agitated runs up to Les. and pulls him by the arm) She is flying here?

LES: (continuing to play) Who?

GER: Your pretty sister?

LES: What!—Burst ten thousand bombshells!
(throws down the cards and runs out of the porch; the Innkeeper, alarmed, retreats into the Inn.)

GER: Follow fast!
It is a young student! Go!

LES: (noticing the assumed indifference of the Students, shakes his head) That's no good.
(and calmly says to Ger., who shows signs of impatience) Let me think.
Are any horses ready?
(Ger. shakes his head.)
The deed's accomplished,
To despair is most foolish.

GER: (in a rage) It is true.

LES: I see, Manon, with her graces and sweetness,
Has roused within your heart, sir,
A paternal affection—

GER: It is as you say, sir.

LES: (with proud dignity) Of that I'm certain—Let me as a son devoted
Give you excellent advice, sir.
To Paris—she's there, Manon!
Manon, we shall not lose her!
The purse of a young student
Will soon be drained completely.

Manon non vuol misceria! Manon riconoscente accetterà
. . . un palazzo, per piantar lo studente!
Voi farete . . . da padre ad un' ottima figlia
ed io completerò, signore, la famiglia.
Che diamine! Ci vuole calma . . . filosofia . . .
(Gli Studenti, tralasciato il giuoco ridono sottecchi dell' avventura di Des G. che sottovoce Edm. a loro narra; cauti però per la presenza del Sergente, prudentemente, in disparte, guardano ascoltano e si divertono.)
Venticelli - ricciutelli che spirate fra vermigli - fiori e gigli, avventura
strana e dura, deh, narrate,
Strana e dura - l'avventura per mia fè!
Assetato labbro aveva
coppa piena;
ber voleva
e avidamente
già suggeva . . .
ma, repente,
bocca ignota - la fè vuota . . .
Dura è affè!
(Ridono, ma allo squardo minaccioso di Les., frenano le risa e si ritirano verso il viale, ove ripigliano il loro motteggio.)
(vedendo a terra il tricorno che, in un momento d' ira era caduto a Ger. lo raccoglie e lo porge al vecchio ganimede ma, udendo ridere gli Studenti, si volge indispettito e minaccioso. - Poi dice a Ger.) Ecco il vostro tricorno! E domattina, in via!
Dunque, dicevo . . . A cena e il braccio a me!
(preso a braccio Ger., si avvia verso l' osteria, parlando e gesticolando calmo e maestoso.)
Degli eventi all' altezza esser conviene!
Perchè . . . (entrano nell' osteria.)
(Edm. e gli Studenti avanzandosi cautamente dal fondo sino alla porta dell' osteria, con malizia.)
A volpe invecchiata l' uva fresca e vellutata sempre acerba rimarrà.
(gli Studendi scoppiano in una gran risata; in quel mentre esce minaccioso Les.; gli Studenti fuggono ridendo.)

Fine Dell' Atto Primo.

■ ATTO II

A Parigi.

Manon cannot bear privation,
Manon will thankful be, sir,
To accept a palace and forsake her boyish lover.
You will act as a father to a dutiful daughter,
And I will complete the pleasant family party.
(spoken) Odd's life, sir! one must be calm—and philosophical—
(The Students cease playing, and laugh amongst themselves at the adventure of Des G., which Edm. tells them in an undertone. The presence of Les. makes them cautious, and, keeping a little apart, they look on, listen and enjoy the fun.)
Fragrant breezes, lightly wreathing
Mid the flowers,
Perfume sweet around us breathing;
Go, tell the story through the hours,
How cruel fate her victim sadly dowers.
Thirsty lips drew near a goblet,
Rich in measure
Of bliss and pleasure;
Love's lips quicker
Quaffed the liquor!
(the Students laugh, but seeing that Les. looks at them menacingly, they restrain their laughter and go towards the avenue, where they continue their gibes.)
(seeing Ger.'s hat on the ground, which he had dropped in his rage, picks it up and hands it to him, but hearing the Students laugh, Les. turns round threateningly, then says to Ger.)
Let me hand you your hat, sir,
And then we're off tomorrow.
As I was saying—to supper!
Give me your arm—
(takes Ger.'s arm and walks towards the Inn, gesticulating as he talks.)
One must ever rise to the occasion.
Because—
(They enter the Inn.)
(Edm. and the Students, advancing cautiously from the background to the door of the Inn, say sarcastically)
To fox old and hoary
Will the grapes in all its glory,
Always sour still remain.
(the Students burst into loud laughter; Les. comes out and threatens them; the Students run off laughing.)

END OF THE FIRST ACT.

■ ACT II

In Paris.

Act II

Salotto elegantissimo in casa di Geronte.
Nel fondo due porte. A destra ricchissime e pesanti cortine nascondono l'alcova. A sinistra, presso alla finestra, una ricsa pettiniera. Sofà, sedili, poltrone, un tavolo.

Manon—Un Parrucchiere.

Manon è seduta avanti alla pettiniera: è coperta da un ampio accappatoio bianco che le avvolge tutta la persona. Il Parrucchiere le si affanna intorno. Due garzoni nel fondo stanno pronti ai cenni del Parrucchiere.

MAN: (guardandosi allo specchio) Dispettosetto riccio questo!
(al Parrucchiere.)
Il calamistro! . . . Presto! . . .
(il Parrucchiere corre saltellando a prendere il ferro per arricciare e ritorce il riccio ribelle, quindi eseguisce premurosamente i vari ordini che gli da Man.)
Or . . . la volandola!
Severe un po' le ciglia!
La cerussa!
(soddisfatta.) Lo sguardo
vibri a guisa di dardo!
Qua la giunchiglia!
(Lescaut e Detti.)

LES: (entrando) Buon giorno, sorellina!

MAN: (facendo attenzionne al Parrucchiere) Il minio e la pomata!.

LES: Questa mattina mi sembri un po' imbronciata.

MAN: Imbronciata? Perche?

LES: No? Tanto meglio!
(sorridendo malizioso.)
Geronte ov' é?
Così presto ha lasciato . . . il gineceo?

MAN: (al Parrucchiere) Ed ora . . . un nèo!
(il Parrucchiere porta a Man. la scatola di lacca giapponese contenente i nèi. Man. indecisa vi cerca dentro rovistandone i taffetà non decidendosi a scegliere.)

LES: (consigliando) Lo Sfrontato! . . . Il Biricchino! . . .
No? . . . il Galante!

MAN: (ancora indecisa) Non saprei . . .
(risolvendesi)
Ebben . . . due nèi!
Al d'occhio l'Asassino!
e al labbro il Voluttuoso!
(il Parrucchiere pone i due nèi, poi graziosamente e con bravura toglie l'accappastoio a Man., che appare vestita, incipriata, pettinata; piega l'accappatoio, si inchino a Man. fa un cenno ai suoi garzoni e a grandi inchini esce.)

Handsome room in Geronte's house.—At the back two doors, Rich and heavy curtains shut in an alcove, R. A well-appointed toilet-table, L., near a window. Sofa, chairs, easy chairs, a table.

Manon and a hairdresser.

Manon is seated at the toilet-table, she is enveloped in a large combing-cloak. The hairdresser attends to her, and two assistants await his orders.

MAN: (looking at herself in the glass) Really this curl is most unruly! (to the hairdresser.)
The curling tongs!—Bring quickly!
(the hairdresser runs to get the curling-irons and curls the lock again, then he carries out the different orders given by Man.)
Now powder carefully!
The eye-brows slightly darken!—
The cosmetic!—
(pleased.)
What flashing fire
Darts from my glances!
Here place the flower!
(Lescaut and the same.)

LES: (enters) Good-morrow, little sister!

MAN: (goes on talking to the hairdresser) The rouge and the pomatum!—

LES: You seem
Upset this morning, dear, just a trifle.

MAN: Upset?—Oh! no!

LES: No! all the better—
(smiling slyly.)
Geronte's out?
What so early he's left your presence sweet?

MAN: (to hairdresser) And now—the patches!
(the hairdresser offers Man. a box of Japanese lacquer containing the patches. Man. turns them over, hesitating which to choose.)

LES: (advisingly) The Audacious—or the Roguish one!—
No?—the Coquettish!—

MAN: (still hesitating) I don't know—
I'll now—have two!—
The eye will be most killing!
The lip alluringly tempting!
(the hairdresser places the two patches, then skilfully removes the combing-cloak. Man. appears richly and tastefully dressed; the hairdresser folds the combing-cloak, bows to Man., beckons to his assistants and goes out bowing low.)

LES: (guarda attento Man. ed esclama ammirato) Che insieme delizioso!
(Lescaut—Manon, poi Musici.)

LES: (continuando ad ammirare Man.) Sei splendida e lucente!
M'esalto! . . . E n' ho il perchè!
È mia la gloria se
sei salva dall' amor d' uno studente.
Allor che sei fuggita . . . là, ad Amiens, mai la speranza il cor m' abbandonò!
Là, la tua sorte vidi! . . . Laggiù il magico fulgor di queste sale balenò.
T' ho ritrovata! Una casetta angusta era la tua dimora—possedevi innumerati baci e . . . niente scudi!
È un bravo giovinotto quel Des Grieux!
Ma . . . (ahimè) non è cassiere generale!
Dunque era naturale che un di Manon avesse abbandonato per un palazzo aurato quell' umile dimora.

MAN: (l' interrompe)
E . . . dimmi . . .

LES: Che vuoi dire?

MAN: Nulla!

LES: Nulla?
Davver?

MAN: (indifferente) Volevo dimandar . . .

LES: Risponderò!

MAN: (volgendosi con vivacità) Risponderai?

LES: (malizioso) Ho inteso! . . .
Ne' tuoi occhi
io leggo un desiderio.
(guardando comicamente intorno.)
Se Geronte
lo sospettasse!

MAN: (allegra) È ver! Hai côito!

LES: Brami nuovi di . . . Lui?

MAN: È ver! (con tristezza) L' ho abbcandonato senza un saluto . . . un bacio!
(si guarda intorno e si ferma cogli occhi all' alcova.)
Ah . . . in quelle trine morbide . . .
nell' alcova dorata v' è un silenzio . . .
un freddo che m' agghiaccia! . . .
Ed io che m' ero avvezza a una carezza voluttuosa
di labbra ardenti e d' infuocate braccia . . .
or ho . . . tutt' altra cosa!
(pensierosa.)
O mia dimora umile,
tu mi ritorni innanzi

LES: (looks at Man. admiringly and exclaims) How attractive and charming!
(Lescaut, Manon, then the Singers.)

LES: (still admiring Man.) You're resplendent with beauty!
I'm proud—and with good cause!
I saved you from the jaws
Of danger through the love of that young student.
When you eloped so rashly, there from Amiens,
At heart I knew it would all come right in time.
There I saw your fate, dear.
The magic splendor of these rooms
I even there beheld!
At length I found you. A modest little cottage
Was then your dwelling—
Very rich in kisses, but short of money.
He's a nice young fellow, that Des Grieux!—
Alas! he's got no balance at his bankers,
So it was right and proper
That Manon should abandon
That humble little dwelling,
For this most gorgeous mansion.

MAN: (interrupting him) And—tell me—

LES: Speak out frankly!—

MAN: Nothing!—

LES: Nothing? Indeed?

MAN: (as if carelessly) I wanted just to ask—

LES: I'll answer you—

MAN: (turning quickly round)
You'll answer me?—

LES: (slyly) I wonder! In your eyes
I perceive a vague desire.
(with a comical look.)
If Geronte should but suspect it!—

MAN: (gaily) It's true!—you've guessed it!

LES: For his tidings you wish?—

MAN: I do indeed!
(sadly.)
Without a kiss or word of good-bye
I left him.
(Looks round, fixes her eyes on the alcove.)
In those soft silken curtains—
In that gilded alcove, there's a silence—
There's a chill that freezes me.
I who once knew
The fervor
Of fond caresses,
And from dear lips to taste
Love's ardent and most perfect kisses—
And now—all that is over!
(pensively.)
My little humble dwelling, gaia, isolata, bianca come un sogno gentile

e di pace e d' amor!

LES: (osservando inquieto Man.)
Orben . . . poichè tu vuoi saper . . . Des Grieux, come Geronte, è un grande amico
mio.
Ei mi tortura sempre:
(imitando Des G.)
"Ov' è Manon?
Ove? . . . Con chi fuggi? Ad Est?
A Nord?
A Sud? . . . " Sempre io rispondo: "Non lo so! . . . "
E alfin l' ho persuaso!

MAN: (sorpresa) Ei m' ha scordata!?

LES: No! No! . . . Ma che vincendo pùo coll' oro forse scoprir la via che mena a te!
(con mistero e con gesti di giuocatore provetto.)
Or . . . correggendo la fortuna sta . . .
Io l' ho lanciato al gioco! . . .
Vincerà.—
È il vecchio tavolier (per noi) tal quale
la cassa del danaro universale! . . .
Da me lanciato e istrutto pelerà tutti e tutto!
Ma nel martirio delle lunghe lotte intanto il dì e la notte vive incosciente della sua follia, e ognora chiede al giuoco ove tu sia!

MAN: (fra sè, dolorosamente) Per me tu lotti,
per me che, vile, ti lasciai:
che tanto duolo a te costai! . . .
Ah! vieni! Il passato mi rendi, l' ore fugaci . . .
le tue carezze ardenti!
Rendimi i baci,
i baci tuoi cocenti . . .
l'ebbrezza che un dì mi bèo!
Vieni! . . . Son bella?
più bella ancor sarò!
(rimane pensierosa, rattristata, poi i suoi occhi si soffermano allo specchio; la sua adorabile figura vi si delinea; le mani quasi inconscenti aggiustano le pieghe della veste; poi i pensieri si mutano, le labbra sorridono, gli occhi sfavillano nel trionfo di sua bellezza e passando davanti allo specchio, domanda a Les.) Davver che a maraviglia questa veste mi sta? . . .

LES: (ammirando) Ti sta a pennella!

MAN: E il tupé? . . .

LES: Portentoso!

MAN: E il busto? . . .

I see you there before me
Secluded and enchanting,
Like a vision so peaceful
Of rest and love!

LES: (watching Man. anxiously)
Well—since you wish to know—
Des Grieux, just like Geronte,
Is my good friend and comrade.
And he is ever asking:
(imitating Des G.)
Where is Manon? Where has she fled?
With whom? To North? or East? or South?
I reply: "I don't know!—"
At last I've persuaded him—

MAN: (surprised) He has forgotten?

LES: No! No! But that in winning heaps of money
He may find out the path that leads to you!
(mysteriously, and imitating a card player.)
Now—he'll improve his fortune soon at play.
I've made him a gambler!—He shall win.—
For him it will be a bank, the gaming table
Where he to fleece all players will be able.
I've taught him how to swindle,
Their gains will quickly dwindle.
Amid all his life's excitement and commotion through day and night at play, dear,
One thought will ever stir his heart's emotion,
Again to find his way beside you,
dear.

MAN: (to herself, mournfully) For me you're striving,
Who, faithless, left you lonely,
Your life depriving of all joy.
Ah! come, love, the past restore me only.
Hours so fleeting
Amid sweet caresses,
With lips fondly meeting
Each heart love confesses.
Let enchantment be ours once more.
Come, love, I'm waiting,
Ah! come, all the past restore.
(still pensive, turns to the looking glass, sees the reflection of her own beauty; her hands unconsciously arrange the folds of her gown; then her thoughts change, a smile flits across her face, her eyes sparkle with triumph, and passing before the glass, she asks Les.)
Tell me, does this gown not suit me to perfection.

LES: (admiringly) Yes, to perfection.

MAN: My coiffure?

LES: It is most splendid!

MAN: My bodice!—

LES: Bello!!
(entrano alcuni personaggi incipriati tenendo fra le mani dei fogli di musica. Si avanzano ad inchini e si schierano da un lato, avanti a Man.)

LES: (sottovoce a Man.) Che ceffi son costoro? . . . Ciarlatani o speziali?

MAN: (annoiata) Son musici! . . . È Geronte che fa dei madrigali!

IL MADRIGALE.

I MUSICI: Sulla vetta tu del monte erri, o Clori:
hai per labbra due fiori:
l' occhio è una fonte.
Ohimè! Ohimè!
Filen spira ai tuoi piè!
Di tue chiome sciogli al vento il portento,
ed è un giglio il tuo petto bianco—ignudetto.
Clori sei tu, Manon,
ed in Filen, Geronte si mutò Filen suonando sta;
la sua zampogna va
susurrando: pietà!
El l' eco sospira:—pietà
Piagne Filen:
"Cuor non hai Clori in sen?
Ve' . . . già . . . Filen . . . vien . . .
men!"
(a bassa voce.)
No! . . . Clori a zampogna che soave plorò
non disse mai no!

MAN: (seccata, dà una borsa a Les.) Paga costor!

LES: (intasca la borsa) Oibò! . . . Offender
l'arte? . . .
(ai Musici maestoso.)
Ir v' accomiato in nome della Gloria!
(I Musici escono inchinandosi.)

IL MINUETTO.

Manon, Lescaut, Geronte, Vecchi Signori, Abati, il Maestro di Ballo. Suonatori.

Mentre da una porta escono i Musici, dall' altra si vedono sfilare nell' anticamera alcuni amici di Ger., vecchi signori, abati eleganti. Ger. li riceve. Intanto entrano alcuni suonatori i quali si collocano nel fondo a sinistra

MAN: (mostrando quelli a Les.) I
Madrigali! . . . E il ballo! . . . E poi la musical . . .
Son tutte belle cose! Pur . . .
(non può reprimere uno sbadiglio e sbadigliando esclama.)
M' annoio! . . .
(e va incontro a Ger. che entra seguito dal maestro di ballo ed altri. Grandi inchini cerimoniosi.)

LES: Charming!
(enter singers with pieces of music in their hands. They advance bowing low and take up their position opposite to Man.)

LES: (in an undertone to Man.)
What sort of folk are these?
What curious mugs and noses!

MAN: (bored) They're singers—
Geronte composes madrigals.

A MADRIGAL.

THE SINGERS: Speed over summit of the mountain
Gentle Phyllis,
With your lips like fresh spring flowers,
And eyes like crystal fountain.
Alas! fair sweet!
Phaon sighs at your feet!
All your hair its radiance showers.
Fair as lilies
Your bosom, O gentle Phyllis,
O gentle Phyllis.
You are Phyllis, Manon,
And Phaon now Geronte has become.
Phaon through all the day
On his pipe will play.
Pity claims he alway;
Echo but answers his lay.
Phaon is weeping?
Without heart, you are Phyllis.
See—how Phaon faints now.
(softly.)
No! Phyllis to piping sweet and low
Has never said No!

MAN: (bored, gives Les, a purse)
Pay them with this!

LES: (pockets the purse) Not I!
How you insult them!—
(to the singers with dignity.)
Sirs, I bid you farewell
In the name of Glory!
(exuent singers bowing.)

THE MINUET.

Manon, Lescaut, Geronte, old beaus, Abbés, the dancing-master, musicians.

As the singers go out at one door, several friends of Ger., old beaus and foppish abbés come in at the other. Ger. receives them. Musicians also enter and take up their position L. C.

MAN: (pointing them out to Les.)
The Madrigals!—The dances!—
And the music!
All these are very pretty!
(Yawns.)
But they bore me!
(goes to meet Ger., who comes in followed by the dancing-master and others. They all salute ceremoniously.)

(Les. osserva sorridendo quella scena di sdoleinature: suonatori accordano i loro istrumenti, mentre Ger. col maestro ai ballo sta organizzando e preparando il Minuetto.)

LES: (fra sè, filosoficamete riflettendo) Una donnina che s' annoia è cosa da far paura! . . .
(dopo aver un po riflettuto.)
Andiam da Des Grieux!
È da maestro preparar gli eventi.
(esce.)
(Mentre il maestro di ballo riceve gli ordini da Ger., entrano altri personaggi, i quali si inchinano a Man., le baciano la mano, le offrono fiori, dolciumi, ecc. Il maestro di ballo si avanza, dà la mano a Man. per cominciare il Minuetto: Ger. fa cenno agli amici di tirarsi in disparte, e sedersi. Durante il ballo alcuni servi girano portando ciocciolatta e rinfreschi.)

IL MAESTRO DI BALLO: (a Man.)
Vi prego, signorina, un po' elevato il busto . . .
indi . . . Ma brava, cosi mi piace! . . . Tutta la vostra personcina or s' avanzi! . . . Cosi! . . .
Io vi scongiuro . . . a tempo!

GER: (entusiasmato) Oh vago danzatrice!

MAN: (con falsa modestia) Un po' inesperta.

IL MAESTRO: (impaziente) Vi prego . . . non badate a lodi susurrate . . .
E cosa seria il ballo! . . .

SIGNORI ED ABATI: (a Gre.) Tacete! . . . Vi frenate, come si fa da noi;
Ammirate in silenzio,
in silenzio adorate . . .
È cosa seria.

IL MAESTRO: (a Man.) A manca . . .!
Brava! . . . A destra! . . . Un saluto!
(figura dell' occhialetto.)
Attenta! L' occhialetto . . .

GER: Minuetto perfetto!
(Man. guarda qua e là nel gruppo dei suoi ammiratori, è provocantissima; i vecchi signori e gli abati guardano Man. cupidamente.)

SIGNORI ED ABATI: Che languore nello sguardo!
Che dolcezza!
Che carezza!
Troppo è bella!
Se sorride pare stella!
Che candori!
Che tesori!
Quella bocca!
baci scocca!
Se sorride stella pare!

(Les looks on smiling: the musicians tune their instruments while Ger. arranges a lesson in the Minuet with the dancing-master.)

LES: (to himself, philosophizing) When a fair maiden's bored with pleasure
There's danger beyond measure!
(reflects a little.)
I'm off to Des Grieux,
And like a master
I'll arrange events.
(while Ger. gives instructions to the dancing-master, other visitors come in who salute Man. and kiss her hand, offering her flowers, bon-bons, &c. The dancing master then advances and takes Man.'s hand for the Minuet. Ger. beckons to his friends to sit down. During the dance servants pass round with refreshments.)

THE DANCING-MASTER: (to Man.) I beg you fair young lady,
Now raise your head a little—that's it—
That's perfect, keep so, I pray you!
Now slightly bend and bring
Your body gently forward—Just so!
Now mind—I beg you, in time, please!

GER: (enthusiastically) How sweet and fair a dancer!

MAN: (with affected modesty) I'm but a novice.

MASTER: (impatiently) I wish she would not heed you.
Their praise will but mislead you—
An art important, is dancing!—

BEAUS AND ABBÉS: (to Ger.) Be silent!
An obedient example take from us;
Just admire in silence,
In silence adore her—
The art's important.

MASTER: (to Man.) To left, please!—
That's good!—To right, please!—
Now a curtsey!
(figure of the eye-glass.)
Attention! Use the eye-glass—

GER: How delightful to watch you!
(Man. glances round at her admirers with the most coquettish grace. The old beaus and abbés gaze at Man. with eager admiration.)

BEAUS AND ABBÉS: How she sweetly
Charms completely!
She's too lovely,
Like star gleaming.
How alluring
Are her graces,
And how beautiful
Her face is.
See her smile
Like star-light gleaming.

MAN: Lodi aurate mormorate susurrate or mi vibrano d' intorno;
Vostri cori adulatori su frenate!

ALCUNI SIGNORI ED ABATI: La deità siete del giorno!

ALTRI: Della notte ella è regina!

GERONTE: Troppo è bella!
Si ribella
la parola e canta e vanta!
Voi mi fate
spasimare . . . delirare.
(il Maestro fa segni d' impazienza.)

MAN: Il buon maestro non vuole parole . . .
Se m' adulate non diverrò la diva danzatrice ch' ora già si figura la vostra fantasia troppo felice.

IL MAESTRO: (impaziente) Un cavalier!

GER: (frettoloso) Son qua!

SIGNORI ED ABATI: Bravi! Che coppia!
(figura del saluto.)
(Ger. balla senza caricatura, marca appena i passi è superbamente allegro.)

SIGNORI ED ABATI: Evviva i fortunati-innamorati!
Ve' Mercurio e Ciprigna!
Oh! qui letizia con amore e dovizia
leggiadramente alligna

MAN: (sull' aria del Minuetto, Ger.) L' ora, o Tirsi, è vaga e bella . . .
Ride il giorno—ride intorno la tua fida pastorella . . .
Te sospira—e per te spira.
Ma tu giungi e in un baleno viva e lieta, è dessa allor!
Vedi il ciel com' è sereno sul miracolo d' amor!

SIGNORI ED ABATI: (con grande ammirazione) Ah! voi siete il miracolo, ah! voi siete l' amore!

GER: (frapponendosi mellifluo) Galanteria sta bene; ma obliate che è tardi . . .
Allegra folla ondeggia ora sui baluardi.

SIGNORI ED ABATI: Qui il tempo vola!

GER: È cosa ch' io so per prova. (a Man.) Voi, mia fulgida letizia, esser compagna a noi promette-te: di poco vi precediamo . . .

MANON: All the golden praise you murmur
Floats delightfully around me.
Pray let not your lips so flatter,
Do not praise me!

SOME OF THE BEAUS AND ABBÉS: You are the dawn's fairest goddess!

OTHERS: You are the queen of night's rapture!

GERONTE: She's too lovely!
I with wonder am dreaming.
How you charm and enchant me.
(The dancing-master shows signs of impatience.)

MAN: My kind good master dislikes this chatter—
If so you flatter
I never shall become the graceful dancer
That you already think me
With your too eager fancy,
Too kind indulgence.

MASTER: (impatiently) A partner, please!

GER: (hurriedly) I'm here!

BEAUS AND ABBÉS: Well done!
What partners!
(figure of the salute.)
(Ger. dances without exaggeration, hardly marking the steps, he is supremely happy.)

BEAUS AND ABBÉS: Good luck attend that happy pair—of lovers!
Lo! Mercury and Venus!
Blessed with true love and riches
We find them both united.

MAN: (to the air of the minuet, to Ger.) These are hours of joy's creating—Daylight smiles so fair around you.
Faithful is your dear one, waiting;
Sighing for you, till she found you.
When you meet by love's sweet power,
Bliss thrills her being, sent from above.
Beauty all the world will dower
By the magic spell of love!

BEAUS AND ABBÉS: (with great admiration) You are truly magical, you really are Love!

GER: (interposing) This flattery is pleasing, but time is rolling onward,
Gay crowds are now strolling upon the boulevard.

BEAUS AND ABBÉS: Here time is flying!

GER: (to Man.) That, sirs, there's no denying.
You, my radiant light of pleasure,
Promise to join us at your leisure.
We'll go on and there await you.

MAN: Un brevo istante sol vi chiedo: attendermi fla lieve fra il bel mondo dorato.	MAN: I soon will follow, sirs, believe me Among the throng of fashion there to linger Surely will elate you.
SIGNORI ED ABATI: Grave sempre è l' attesa.	BEAUS AND ABBÉS: Without you there it will grieve me.
GER: Dell' anima sospesa non sian lunghe le pene. (tutti si muovono: saluti: baciamano.)	GER: Of those in suspense do not lengthen the anguish. (all depart, salute, and kiss Man.'s hand.)
GER: (mentre bacia la mano a Man.) Ordino la lettiga . . . Addio . . . bell' idol mio . . . (escono.)	GER: (as he kisses Man.'s hand) The sedan I will order— Farewell—my heart's sweet idol— (exit.)
(Manon sola, poi Des Grieux.) (Man. si affretta ad acconciarsi, ammirandosi soddisfatta nello specchio.)	(Manon alone, then Des Grieux.) (Man. hurriedly arranges her toilette, and admires herself in the glass.)
MAN: Oh, sarò la più bella! (prende la mantiglia posata sopra una seggiola: sente che qualcuno s' avvicina: erede che sia il servo.) Dunque questra lettiga? (Des G. appare alla porta; è pallidissimo: Man. gli corre incontro in preda a grande emozione.) Tu amore? Tu? Sei tu, mio immenso amore? . . . Dio!	MAN: Oh! I shall be the fairest (takes her cloak which is on a chair, hears somebody approaching, thinks it is a servant.) Has the sedan arrived yet? (Des G. appears at the door, he looks very pale: Man, in the greatest agitation runs towards him.) You, you, my love, my love, You, my own dear love, my own. Oh! Heaven!
DES G: (con gesto di rimprovero) Ah, Manon!	DES G: (reproachfully) Ah, Manon!
MAN: Tu non m' ami? Dunque non m' ami più? Mi amavi tanto! Oh, i lunghi baci! Oh, il lungo incanto! La dolce amica d' un tempo aspetta la tua vendetta . . . Oh, non guardarmi cosi: non era la tua pupilla tanto severa!	MAN: You love me then no more?— You once so loved me! What sweet caresses, What spell of rapture! Your once loved sweetheart With dread's awaiting Your fatal vengeance! No! do not gaze on me thus: You never yet looked at me With glance so cruel!
DES G: (violentemente) Si, sciagurata, la mia vendetta . . .	DES G: (violently) Yes, hapless creature, Await my vengeance—
MAN: Ah! La mia colpa! . . . È vero! Io t'ho tradito! Si, sciagurata dimmi! Quando più nera scendeva su noi la miseria, fuggendo, volli che solo e libero tu la fortuna tentar potessi.	MAN: Mine was the fault, love—I own it! I betrayed you! You love me then no more. Once how you loved me!
DES G: Taci . . . che il cor mi frangi! Tu non sai le giornate che buie, desolate son piombate su me!	DES G: Silence! speak not! my heart is breaking. How my soul has suffered Torture and desolation, And what pangs of despair!
MAN: Io voglio il tuo perdono . . . Vedi! Son rieca! Questa non ti sembra una reggia, non ti sembra una festa e d' ori—e di colori? Tutto è per te: pensavo a un avvenir di luce; Amor qui ti conduce . . . (s' inginocchia.) Vedi, ai tuoi diedi io sono e voglio il tuo perdono.	MAN: I pray you to forgive me— Now, behold how rich I am! Does not all this appear to you A gorgeous dream of gold and colors bright? It is all for you. With you my own love I dreamt an ecstatic future; To me it is love that led you— (kneels.) I betrayed you! At your feet I kneel,
Non lo negar! . . . Son forse della Manon d' un giorno meno piacente e bella?	Ah! let me gain your forgiveness. Do not deny it me— Perchance am I less fair and pleasing Than the Manon you cared for?
DES G: (desolato) O tentarice! È questo l' antico, maledetto e desïato fascino che m' acciece!—	DES G: (sadly) O fatal temptress! The old spell again comes over me To bewitch me!—
MAN: È fascino d' amor; cedi, son tua!	MAN: It is love's own magic spell; I'm yours forever!
DES G: Più non posso lottar! Son vinto: io t'amo!	DES G: I resist you no longer! I'm vanquished.
MAN: (affascinante, si alza, circondando colle braccia Des G.) Vieni! Colle tue braccia stringi Manon che t' ama; stretta al tuo sen m' allaccia! Manon te solo brama.	MAN: (rises and alluringly throws her arms around Des G.) I'm yours for ever, ah! come, love, Come enfold your Manon In an enthralling embrace. Close to your heart ever hold me, Recalling Manon to joy.
DES G: Nell' occhio tuo profondo io leggo il mio destino; tutti i tesor del mondo ha il tuo labbro diviuo.	DES G: Your eyes deep as the sea, love, Reveal me all my fate; All joy and wealth for me, love, Can your lips create.
MAN: Alle mie brame torna, deh! torna ancor! Alle mie ebbrezze, ai baci lunghi, d'amor!	MAN: Ah! Manon adores you only. Come, for I need you near me All else, yes, all else above. Take my caresses, My fervent kiss of love!
DES G: In te, Manon, s' inebria l' anima ancor! I baci tuoi son questi! Questo è il tuo amor! (Man. si abbandona fra le braccia di Des G., che dolcemente la fa sedere sul sofà.)	DES G: With your caresses thrill me And with your love! (Man. falls into the arms of Des G., who gently leads her to a couch.)
MAN: M'arde il tuo bacio! Dolce tesor, vivi e t' inebria sovra il mio cor.	MAN: Dwell here forever Close to my heart!
DES G: Nelle tue braccie care v' è l' ebbrezza, l' oblio!	DES G: Never shall we sever, Never shall we part.
MAN: La mia bocca è un altare dove il tuo bacio è Dio! (con immensa dolcezza mormorato.) Labbra adorate e care!	MAN: Let my lips be your throne, love, You as King there I crown.
	DES G: Your sweet solace alone, love, All my sorrows can drown. MAN: (with infinite tenderness) Lips that are freighted with love!
DES G: Manon, mi fai morire!	DES G: Manon with bliss you kill me.
MAN: Labbra dolci a baciare!	MAN: Lips for sweet love created.
DES G: Dolcissimo soffrire!	DES G: Caress me still and thrill me!
(Geronte, Manon e Des Grieux.) (Ger. si presenta improvviso alla porta del fondo; si arresta stupito; Man. e Des G. si alzano di scatto. Des G. fa un passo verso Ger.; Man. s' interpone.)	(Geronte, Manon and Des Grieux.) (Ger. suddenly appears at the door, C., and stands amazed; Man. and Des G. rise hurriedly. Des G moves a step towards Ger.; Man. places herself between them.)

GER: (avanzandosi ironico ma dignitoso) Affè, madamigella, or comprendo il perchè di nostra attesa!
Giungo in mal punto. Errore involontario!
Chi non erra quaggiù?!
Anche voi, credo, ad esempio, obliaste
d' essere in casa mia.

DES G: Signore!

MAN: (a Des G.) Taci . . .

GER: Gratitudin, sia
oggi il tuo dì di festa!
(a Man.)
Donde vi trassi
le prove che v' ho date di un vero amore, come rammentate!

MAN: (prende lo specchio, lo pianta in viso a Ger. e coll' altra mano indica Des. G.; trattenendo le risa) Amore? Amore!
Mio buon signore, ecco! . . . Guardatevi!
S' errai, leale ditelo! . . . Or poi guardate noi!

GER: (offeso, fa un gesto di minaccia: poi vincendosi, sogghignando) Io son leale, mia bella donnina Conosco il mio dovere . . .
deggio partir di qui!
O gentil cavaliere,
o vaga signorina,
arrivederci . . . e presto!
(esce.)

MAN: (gaiamente spensierata)
Ah! ah! . . . Liberi! Liberi!
Liberi come l' aria!
Che gioia, cavaliere, amor mio bello!

DES G: (mestamente preoccupato) Senti, di qui partiamo: un solo istante, questo tetto del vecchio maledetto non t'abbia più!

MAN: (quasi involontariamente) Peccato!
Tutti questi splendori! . . .
Tutti questi tesori!
(sospirando.)
Ahimè! . . . Partir dobbiamo!

DES G: (con immensu amarezza)
Ah! Manon, mi tradisce il tuo folle pensiero:
Sempre la stessa! Trepida divinamente,
nell' abbandono ardente . . .
Buona, gentile come la vaghezza di quella tua carezza;
sempre novella ebbrezza;
indi, d' un tratto, vinta, abbacinata dai raggi e dagli effluvi della vita adorata! . . .
(con forza crescente.)
Io? Tuo schiavo e tua vittima discendo la scala dell' infamia . . .
Fango nel fango io sono
e turpe eroe da bisca io m' insozzo, mi vendo . . .
L' onta più vile m' avvicina a te!
(sconfortato.) Nell' oscuro futuro
dì, che farai di me?
(siede accasciato. Man. gli si avvicina amorosamente, e gli prende la mano.)

MAN: Un' altra volta, un' altra volta ancora, deh!-mi perdona! . . .
Sarò fedele e buona,
lo giuro . . . lo giuro!
(Lescaut, Manon, Des Grieux, poi un Sergente cogli Arcieri indi Geronte.)
(entra Les. ansante, respirando a mala pena. Des G. e Man, sorpresi gli vanno incontro.)

DES G: Lescaut!

MAN: Tu? . . . Qui?
(Les. si lascia cadere su di una sedia sbuffando affannato.)

DES G: Che avvenne?

MAN: Di!
(Les. accenna cogli occhi e colle mani, e lascia capire che è accaduto qualche grave imbroglio.)

DES G. E MAN: (allibiti) O ciel! . . . Che è stato?!

LES: (balbettando) Ch' io . . .
prenda . . . fiato . . .
onde . . . parlar . . .

MAN: Ci fai tremar!

DES G: Ohimè! . . . Che è stato?

LES: V'ha . . . denunziato!

MAN: Chi

DES G: (iracondo) Il vecchio?

LES: (ripigliando fiato) Si!
Già vengon qui e guardie e arcier!
Su, cavalier,
e, per le scale,
spiegate l' ale!
Da un granatiere
ch' era in quartiere tutto ho saputo.

LES: Ah! . . . il vecchio astuto!

GER: Manon . . .

MAN: (impaurita) Ohime!

LES: Via . . . l' ali ai piè!
(a Des G.)
Ah, non sapete . . .
Voi la perdete . . .
La sciagurata avrà spietata crudele sorte:
L' esiglio' . . . .

MAN: (atterita) Ah! è morte!
(Les. continua, parlando sempre, ad affrettare, mentre Des G. preso d' ira impreca e Man. confusa si aggira turbata per la scena.)

GER: (ironically but with dignity) So ho! my fair young lady,
I clearly now perceive why you so tarried!
I'm an intruder. The error's accidental.
To err we all are prone!
Even you, methinks, perchance have forgotten
That you were beneath my roof.

DES G: Forbear, sir!

MAN: (to Des G.) Speak not!

GER: What gratitude! I marvel
That thus you should repay me.
(to Man.)
From where I took you,
And how have you remembered
The proofs of true affection that I gave you!

MAN: (takes a mirror and places it before Ger.'s face and then points to Des G., with suppressed laughter) What love, sir! You're jesting
Or much mistaken, look there—
Behold yourself!
If I am wrong, then tell me frankly,
And after glance at us.

GER: (offended, is moved to anger; then controlling himself, smiling sarcastically) I will be frank with you, my pretty lady,
Full well I know my duty—
From here I must depart!
I take my leave, sir gallant,
Adieu, my pretty lady;
We'll meet again—and quickly!

MAN: (with thoughtless gaiety)
Ah! ah! we are free
As the air, love.
What joy, love—
Free together—

DES G: (pensive and sad) Hear me!
we must away, love,
Not for a moment longer
Shall these accursed walls hold you
Not while I live!

MAN: (unconsciously) I'm sorry
To give up all this splendor,
All these jewels and treasures.
(sighing.)
Alas! we must depart!

DES G: (most bitterly) Tender with an angelic grace,
Amid love's ardent passion,
Fair, kind, and gentle as the fond caresses that you so sweetly lavish
With ever-thrilling rapture;
Then, on a sudden, overwhelmed and conquered
By splendor and allurements of pleasure!
(vehemently.)
I, your victim and your slave,
Am engulfed in the whirlpool
Of shame and dishonor.
Down the dark abyss I've fallen.
And of the gambling-hell
Am I the vile degraded hero.
My shame and sorrow bring me back to you.
(despairingly.)
In the gloom that surrounds me
What will my fate decree?
(sits down disheartened. Man. lovingly approaches him, and presses his hand.)

MAN: Once more forgive me,
Only once more forgive me!
I do entreat you
I shall be true and faithful.
I swear it—I swear it!
(Lescaut, Manon Des Grieux, then a Sergeant of Archers and Geronte.)
(Les. enters breathless and panting. Des G. and Man. are surprised and run to him.)

DES G: Lescaut!

MAN: You here!
(Les, puffing and blowing drops into a chair.)

DES G: What has happened?

MAN: Speak!
(Les, signifies by his looks and by signs that something dreadful has happened.)

DES G AND MAN: (terrified)
What's happened?

LES: (stammeringly) I am—quite—breathless—
I'll tell—you all—

MAN: I'm filled with dread!

DES G: Alas! what has befallen?

LES: He has—denounced you!—

MAN: Who?

DES G: (angrily) Geronte?

LES: (recovering his breath) Yes!
The guards and archers
Are at hand—
Make haste away.
Fly down the stair-case
At headlong speed!
By an old comrade
Down at the barracks
All the news was told me.

DES G: How I curse him—that old scoundrel.

LES: Manon—

MAN: (alarmed) Ah! me!

LES: Go—quickly fly!
(to Des G.)
Ah! Do not linger—
While there is danger—
What cruel doom
Will pursue her!
It is exile!—

MAN: (terrified) Ah! That doom—would kill me!
(Les. continues talking as he hurries them, while Des G. angrily curses and Man. in great agitation runs to and fro.)

LES: Or v' affrettate!
Non esitate!
Pochi minuti,
siete perduti!
Già dal quartier
uscìan gli arcier!
La compagnia
forse è per via! . . .
Ah, il vecchio vile Morrà di bile, se trova vuota
la gabbia e ignota gli sia tuttora
l' altra dimora!
(affrettando.) Manon! . . . Suvvia . . . son già per via!
(asservando.)
Oh! il bel forzier!
Peccato inver!

DES G: (furibondo) Ah, il maledetto vecchio!

MAN: M' affretto!

DES G: Manon!

MAN: Ohime!

DES G: Sì! Bada a te, vecchio!

MAN: Un istante . . . !
(mostrando a Des G. un gioiello posto sulla pettiniera.)
Questo smagliante smeraldo . . .

DES G: Andiamo!

MAN: Ma si!

DES G: Affrettiamo!

MAN: Mio Dio! . . . Sì

DES G: Orsù . . .

MAN: Mi sbrigo! . . . E tu m' aiuta.

DES G: A fare?

MAN: Ad involtare codesti oggetti!
Vuota i cassetti!

LES: (affacendato) Nostro cammino sarà il giardino . . .
In un istante de l' alte piante sotto l' ombria,
siam sulla via . . .
Buon chi ci piglia!
(gittandole la mantiglia.)
La tua mantiglia
vesti, Manon . . .
(corre ad una finestra.)
Maledizion!

MAN: (con dolore) E questo incanto che adoro tanto dovrò lasciare
e abbandonare?
Or via . . . pazienza! . . .
Saria imprudenza lasciar quest' oro,
o mio tesoro!
(apre affannosamente alcuni tiretti, ne estrae dei gioielli, e si serve della mantiglia per nasconderli.)

LES: Now quickly hasten!
No hesitation!
Only a moment,
All will be over!
The guards must be
Now on their way!
That vile old scoundrel
Will die of venom,
On finding the cage
Left empty!
He never will trace us
To our new dwelling!
(hurrying them.)
Manon away!
They're close at hand!
(looking round him.)
This casket fine
It is hard to leave!

DES G: (furiously) How I curse that scoundrel.

MAN: At once, I come!

DES G: Manon!—

MAN: Ah! me!

DES G: Beware of me Geronte!

MAN: (shows Des G. a jewel on the toilet-table) Wait an instant.
I'll take this jewel
Rare and costly—

DES G: Let's go!

MAN: Yes, yes—

DES G: Haste, away!

MAN: Oh! heavens, yes!

DES G: Away!

MAN: I'm coming!
Help me, assist me!

DES G: But how?

MAN: To carry off
These precious trinkets!
Empty the cases!—

LES: (busily) We'll take the pathway
Down by the garden,
And in a moment
We shall be hidden
Under the shelter
Of those thick branches—
Let who can, catch us!
(throws Manon's cloak to her.)
Put on your cloak quickly Manon.
(looks out of window.)
Plague seize the rogues!

MAN: (mournfully) All this great splendor
That I so cherish,
Now I must
For ever abandon.
To leave behind me
This gold were madness.
Here are my treasures!
(opens hurriedly some of the drawers, takes out jewels and hides them in her cloak.)

DES G: (amoroso) O mia diletta
Manon, t' affretta!
D' uopo è partire tosto! . . . Fuggire . . .
Ah! torturare
mi vuoi ancor!!!
Con te portare
dèi solo il cor! . . .
Io vo' salvare
soli il tuo amor.
(al grido di Les. succede una confusione indicibile. Man. imbarazzala si aggira di qua e di la, sempre tenendo i gioielli nascosti nella mantiglia. Les. corre dal balcone alla porta. Des G. corre per la stanza chiamando Manon.)

LES: (al balcone) Eccoli! Accerchiano la casa! . . . Il vecchio ordina e sbraita.
Le guardie sfilano,
gli arcier's appostano!
(alla porta.)
Entran! Salgono!
(atterrito, chiude la porta a chiave e corre presso Man. e Des G.)

DES G: Manon!

MAN: Des Grieux . . .

DES G: Fuggiam!

MAN: Di qua?

DES G: No!

MAN: Ebben?
(accenna versa l' alcova.)

DES G: Di là!

MAN: Presto . . .

DES G: (a Man.) Di': qui v' ha uscita?

MAN: (indicando) Sì . . .
Laggiù! All' alcova!

LES. E DES G: Presto, all' alcova!
(Les. spinge entro all' alcova Des G. e Man., seguendoli alla sua volta; ma quasi subito si sente dall' alcova un grido di Man. e questa ritorna ancora in scena fuggendo e dopo lei, lividi, Des G. e Les. Des G. vuol correre presso a Man . . . Les. lo trattiene . . . e dalle cortine dell' alcova schiuse appaiono un Sergente e due arcieri. Intanto la porta è buttata giù dal calcio dei fucili e nel suo vano si affaccia Ger. ghignando e dietro a lui alcuni Soldati.) Sergente: (imperioso) Nessun si muova!

(a Man. sfugge nello spavento la mantiglia e i gioielli si spargono al suolo. Il Sergente con du soldati

DES G: (lovingly) O my beloved one!
Manon, make haste dear.
It is time to go,
Quickly away!
Do not torture
Me like this.
With you bring
Only your heart—
I only want
To have your love.
(at Les.'s exclamation an indescribable confusion takes place. Man. well-nigh distraught rushes about the room still holding the jewels in her cloak. Les. runs from the balcony to the door. Des G. runs to and fro calling Manon.)

LES: (at the balcony) They are here—
The house surrounding!
Geronte angrily
Summons the guards
Now to enter.
The archers take their stand,
(at the door.)
Here they rush!
Up the stairs!
(terrified, locks the door and hurriedly joins Man. and Des G.)

DES G: Manon!

MAN: Des Grieux!—

DES G: Let us fly!

MAN: This way?

DES G: No!

MAN: Well then?—

DES G: (points to the alcove) that way!

MAN: Hurry!

DES G: (to Man.) Is there a way out yonder?

MAN: (pointing) Yes—
Behind the alcove—

LES. AND DES G: Quick to the alcove!—
(Les. pushes Des G. and Man. into the alcove, and follows them; but almost immediately from within the alcove Man. is heard to scream, and she runs on to the stage attempting to escape, and after her come Des G. and Les, who are terror-stricken. Des G. tries to join Man.—but Les. holds him back—and from the open curtains of the alcove appear a sergeant and two archers. At the same time the door is burst open by the soldiers, with the butt end of their muskets, and Ger. stands in the doorway smiling sardonically, followed by soldiers.)

SERGEANT: (sternly) Surrender at once!
(Man. in her terror lets her cloak slip and the jewels all fall to the ground. The sergeant and two sol- a un cenno di Ger. afferrano Man.: Des G. furibondo sguaina la spada, ma vien disarmato da Les.)

LES: Se vi arrestan, cavalier, chi potrà Manon salvar?
(Man. è trascinato via.)

DES G: (disperato, vorrebbe slanciarsi dietro Man.; Les. lo trattiene a viva forza) O Manon! O mia Manon!

INTERMEZZO

La prigionia.—Il viaggio all' Havre.

DES GRIEUX: " . . . Gli è che io l' amo!—La mia passione è cosi forte che io mi sento la più sfortunata creatura che vive.—Quelle che non ho io tentato a Parigi per ottenere la sua libertà?! . . . Ilo implorato i potenti! . . . Ho picchiato e supplicato a tutte le porte! . . . Persino alla violenza ho ricorso! . . . Tutto fu inutile.—Una sol via mi rimaneva; seguirla! Ed io la seguo! Dovunque ella vada! . . . Fosse pure in capo al mondo! . . . "
(Storia di Manon Lescaut e del cavalier Des Grieux dell' abate Prèvost.)

FINE DELL' ATTO SECONDO.

ATTO III

L'Havre.

Piazzale presso il porto.

Nel fondo, il porto: a sinistra l'angolo d' una caserma. Nel lato di faccia al pianterreno, una finestra con grossa feriata sporgente. Nella facciata verso la piazza il portone chiuso, innanzi al quale passeggia una sentinella.—Il mare occupa tutto il fondo della scena. Si vede la metà di una nave da guerra. A destra, una casa, poi un viottolo; all' angolo un fanale ad olio che rischiara debolmente. E l'ultima ora della notte; il cielo si andrà gradatamente rischiarando.

Des Grieux, Lescaut.

In disparte, dal lato opposto alla caserma.

DES G: Ansia eterna . . . crudel . . .

LES: Pazienza ancora . . .
La guardia là fra poco monterà l'arcier che ho compro . . .
(indicandogli dove passeggia la scolta.) diers, at a signal from Ger., seize Manon. Des G., in a fury, draws his sword, but Les. disarms him.)

LES: If they now arrest you, sir,
Who will try to save Manon?
(Man. is dragged off.)

DES G: (in despair attempts to rush after Man., but Les. holds him back by force) Oh, Manon! Oh, my Manon!

INTERMEZZO

The imprisonment—The journey to Havre.

DES GRIEUX: " . . . How I love her! My passion is so ardent that I feel I am the most unhappy creature alive. What have I not tried in Paris to obtain her release!—I have implored the aid of the powerful! I have even resorted to force.—All was in vain.—Only one thing remains for me and that is to follow her! And I will follow her! Go where she may! Even to the end of the world!—"
(The story of Manon Lescaut and of the Chevalier Des Grieux, by the Abbe Prévost.)

END OF THE SECOND ACT.

ACT III

Havre.

A square near the Harbor.

In the background, the Harbor: the corner of the Barracks, L., with, on the side facing the audience, on the ground floor, a window, guarded by projecting iron bars. On the side looking towards the Square, the large Gate, which is closed, and a Sentinel is on guard. The Sea forms the background of the stage. A Man-of-War is partly visible. A house, R., then a narrow street, at the corner of which is an oil lamp, which gives a dim light. It is the last hour of the night; the sky gradually becomes lighter.

Des Grieux, Lescaut.

On the side opposite to the barracks.

DES G: Racked with doubt and with fear—

LES: Be patient yet!—
Soon I will have bribed the archer
Take his turn on guard—
(pointing to where the sentinel is on guard.)

DES G: L'attesa m'accora!
(con immenso slancio pieno di dolore.) La vita mia . . . l'anima tutta è là!
(accenna alla finestra della caserma.)

LES: Manon sa già . . . e attende il mio segnale e a noi verrà.—Io intanto tenterò il colpo cogli amici là nel viale . . .
Manon all'alba libera farò.
(si avvolge fino agli occhi nel ferrajuolo e va cautamente nel fondo ad osservare.)

DES G: Dietro al destino cosi mi traggo livido,
e notte e di cammino.
E un miraggio m'angoscia
e m' esalta! . . . Vicino or m' è poi fugge se l'avvinghio! . . .
Parigi ed Havre . . . cupa, triste agonia! . . .
Oh! lungo strazio della vita
mia! . . .
(Manon, Des Grieux, Lescaut.)

LES: (avvicin indoglosi) Eccoli! . . .

DES G: Alfin! . . .
(dalla caserma esce un picchetto guidato da un Sergente che viene a mutar la scolta.)

DES G: (che ha guardato attentamente i soldati)
Ecco là l' uomo. È quello!
(indicando uno.)
(il picchetto col Sergente rientrano in caserma.)
(Les., allegro, ponendo la mano sulla spalla a Des G.)
È l' Havre addormenta! . . . L'ora è guinta! . . .
(si avvicina a la caserma, scambia un rapido cenno col soldato di guardia che passeggiando si allontana; poi si appressa alla finestra del pianterreno, picchia con precauzione alle sbarre di ferro. Des G. immobile, tremante, guarda; i vetri si aprono e appare Man. Des G. corre a lei.)

DES G: (con voce soffocata) Manon! . . .
(le sue mani si avvinghiano alle sbarre.)

MAN: (piano con immenso abbandono) Des Grieux! . . .
(Man. sporge le mani dalla ferriata; Des G. le bacia con febbrile trasporto.)

LES: (guardando Man.) Manon, la mia miniera . . . il mio sostegno, lasciar partir? Al diavolo l' America! . . .
No, il Nuovo Mondo non avrà Manon!
(s' allontana da destra.)
(Manon, Des Grieux, Un Lampionaio.)

DES G: I'm well near distraction!
(with passionate grief.)
My very soul and life are there with her!
(points to the window of the barracks.)

LES: Manon already knows and waits my signal
To come forth. Meantime, with trusty comrades,
Her rescue I'll attempt.
Manon, at dawn, shall be as free as air.
(conceals his face with his cloak and goes cautiously up stage.)

DES G: What fate pursues me,
Dark and relentless,
Day by day and nightly for ever.
What dread phantoms dismay and allure me!
They seem so near, but vanish before I reach them.
Paris and Havre, both my doom have demanded;
How sadly, fatally, my hopes are stranded.
(Manon, Des Grieux, Lescaut.)

LES: (approaching Des G.) See, they come!—

DES G: At last!
(a Sergeant with a picket comes to change the sentinel.)

LES: (looking attentively at the solders) There is the archer—That soldier!
(points him out. The picket returns to the barracks. Les. says gaily as he placed his hand on Des G.'s shoulder.)
The town is wrapped in slumber!—
Now is the moment.
(approaches the barracks, hastily exchanges a sign with the sentinel, who retires; then walks to the window and taps cautiously on the bars. Des G. watches him anxiously. The window opens, Man. appears, Des G. runs towards her.)

DES G: (his voice trembling with emotion) Manon!—
(holds on to the bars of the window.)

MAN: (tenderly, in an ecstasy of joy) Des Grieux!—
(Man. stretches out her hands through the bars; Des G. kisses them passionately.)

LES: (intently gazing at Man.) The devil take America!—
Manon shall never start!
(goes off, R.)
(Manon, Des Grieux, A Lamplighter.)

MAN: Tu . . . amore? E nell' estrema onta non m' abbandoni?

DES G: Abbondonarti? Mai!
Se t' ho seguita per la lunga via fu perchè fede mi regnava in core onnipossente—indomita!
Ah! libera fra poco e mia sarai!

MAN: (con mestizia) Liberia! . . .
Tua . . . fra poco!

DES G: (interrompendola impaurito) Taci! taci!
(un Lampionaio entra dal fondo a destra cantarellan lo, traversa la scena e va a spegnere il fanale.)

IL LAMPIONAIO: Kate rispose al Re:
D' una zitella
Perchè tentare il cor?
Per un marito
mi fe' bella il Signor.
Rise il Re
Por le die' gemme ed or e un marito . . . è n' ebbe il cor.
(si allontana dal viottolo: comincia ad albeggiare. Poco dopo nel fondo della scena passa una pattuglia, attraversa da sinistra a destra e scompare nel viottolo.)

DES G: È l' alba! . . . O mia Manon, pronta alla porta del cortil sii tu . . .
V' è là Lescaut con uomini dovoti . . .
Là vanne e tu sei salva!

MAN: Tremo per te! Tremo! . . . Pavento!
Tremo e m' angoscio . . . nè so il perchè
Ah! una minaccia funebre io sento!
Tremo a un periglio che ignoto m' è . . .

DES G: Ah! Manon, disperato è il mio prego! . . . L' affanno la parola mi spezza . . .
Vuoi che m' uccida qui?
Ti scongiuro, Manon.
Vieni! vieni! . . . Salviamoci!
(addita il viottolo.)

MAN: E sia! M' attendi amore . . .
Tutto chiedimi . . . tutto!
(si ritira dalla finestra.)
(colpo di fuoco e grida di dentro di "All' armi!" Des G. corre verso il viottolo.)
(Lescaut, Des Grieux.)

LES: (entra fuggendo colla spada sguainata) . . . Perduta è la partita!
Cavalier, salviam la vita!

DES G: Che avvenne?

MAN: You—my own love?
In my disgrace you do not forsake me?

DES G: Forsake you, dearest—never!
Love, I have followed you through toil and danger,
Because I bear at heart an enduring hope—
Soon you will be mine alone.

MAN: (sadly) Yes, free—and yours—for ever.

DES G: (interrupting her and alarmed) Silence! silence!
(a Lamplighter enters, R. C., humming a tune, he crosses the stage and puts out the lamp.)

THE LAMPLIGHTER: —And Katrine replied to the King:
Why tempt a maiden's coy tender little heart?
To snare a husband a heaven did my looks impart.
The King laughed, then he gave gems and gold
And a spouse—but her heart was sold.
(he goes off by the street; day dawns. A patrol passes at the back of the stage, crossing from L. to R., and marches off by the street.)

DES G: It is dawn, love!O my Manon,
Be ready at the entrance of your cell—
Lescaut is there with followers devoted—
They'll find you and give you freedom.

MAN: Fearful, I tremble for you—
I tremble—and do not know why!
Ah! portents of evil threaten and haunt me—
Fearful am I, and yet know not why.

DES G: Ah! Manon, in despair
I implore you—My words are broken by My tears and signs—
Shall I seek death?
I beseech you, Manon. Ah! come, love,
We'll triumph yet.
(pointing to the street.)

MAN: You conquer! I'll do your bidding.
Your will is mine—my own love!
(retires from the window.)
(sound of a shot heard and shouts of "To Arms!" Des G. runs towards the street.)
(Lescaut, Des Grieux.)

LES: (comes running from the street, sword in hand) —The game is lost. We're routed—
Save your life, my friend, and quickly!

DES G: What happened?

LES: Udite come strillano!
(nuove grida di "all' armi!")
Fallito è il colpo! . . .)

DES G: (con impeto) Ah! ben venga la morte!
Fuggir? Giammai!
(fa per spada.)

LES: (impedendoglielo) Ah! pazzo inver!

MAN: (riappare alla finestra agitata; con immenso slancio a Des G.) Se m' ami, in nome di Dio
t' invola, amor mio!

DES G: Ah! Manon . . .

LES: (trascinando via Des G., borbotta sfiduciato crollando il capo.) Cattivo affare!
(Man. abbandona la finestra e scompare.)
(Attratti dal colpo di fuoco e dai gridi d' allarme, accorrano da ogni parle borghesi, popolani, popolane e si domandano l' un l' altro che cosa è avvenuto: confusione generale: è giorno.)

BORGHESI, UOMINI E DONNE DEL POPOLO: (Poi il Sergente degli Arcieri, il Commandante della nave. In seguito Des Grieux e Lescaut Arcieri, Soldati di marina, Marinai.) —Udiste!
—Che avenne?
—Fu un ratto? Rivota?
—Figgiva una donna!
—Più d' una! La folta tenèbra protesse laggiù i rapitori!
—Che audacia!
Che audacia!
—Vedete! Le guardie già sfilano.
(rullo di tamburi: s' apre il portone della caserma, esce il Sergente con un picchetto di soldati, in mezzo al quale stanno parecchie donne incatenate: i soldati e le donne si arrestano avanti il portone: il Sergente s' avanza verso la folla, ordinandole di retrocedere.)

SERGENTE: Il passo m' aprite.
(dalla nave scende il Commandante: lo seque un drapello ai soldati di marina, il quale si schiera a destra. Sulla nave si schierano i marinai.)

COMMANDANTE: (al Sergente) E pronta la nave. L' appello affrettate!

BORGHESI, UOMINI E DONNE DEL POPOLO: Silenzio! L' appello cominciano già.
(la folla si è ritirata e guarda sfilare le cortigiane.)

IL SERGENTE: (con un foglio in mano fa l' appello: le donne, mano mano che sono chiamate, passano in diversi atteggiamenti da sinistra a destra presso al drappello dei marinai: il Comandante nota su di un libro.)

LES: Just hear them, how they're shouting!
(shouts of "To Arms!" are heard.)
The game is over.

DES G: (impetuously) Ah! Death then is welcome!
What? escape? No! Never!
(is about to draw his sword.)

LES: (prevents him) You are mad indeed!

MAN: (comes to the window greatly agitated: imploringly to Des G.) Oh! dearest, if yet you love me Escape now and leave me!

DES G: Ah! Manon—

LES: (drags Des G. away and murmurs despondently)
This time we've failed!
(Man. retires from the window.)
(the sound of the shot and cries of alarm attract citizens and villagers from all sides, in the midst of the confusion they ask each other what has happened. It is daylight.)

CITIZENS AND PEOPLE: (The Sergeant of the Royal Archers, the Captain of the man-of-war. Afterwards Des Grieux and Lescaut, Archers, Marines, Sailors.) —You heard then?
—What's happened?
—An escape? a revolt?
—A woman escaping!
—Was it then a revolt?
—Her attempt at flight, was favored by the night!
—What daring!
—What boldness!
—See! the soldiers are coming!
(roll of drums heard, the gate of the barracks opens, and a sergeant with a picket of soldiers comes on in charge of an number of women, who are in chains; they all stop in front of the gate. The sergeant orders the crowd to stand back.)

SERGEANT: Make way, there!
(the Captain of the man-of-war lands, followed by a company of marines, which takes up its position, R., the sailors are drawn up on board the ship.)

CAPTAIN: (to the Sergeant) The ship is ready. Hasten the roll-call!

CITIZENS AND PEOPLE: The roll-call already begins!
(the crowd stands back and looks at the women as they pass.)

SERGEANT: (calls the roll; the women answer to their names by crossing over from left to right, close to the marines. The Captain marks their names in a book.)

Rosetta!
(passa sfrontamente.)

GIOVANOTTI: (mormorando) Eh! che aria!

ALTRI: E un amore!

Madelon!
(indifferente, va al posto ridendo.)

ALCUNI BORGHESI: (con astio) Ah! qui sei ridotta!

ALCUNE DONNE: (indignate) Che riso insolente!

Manon!
(passa lentamente cogli occhi a terra.)

ALCUNI VECCHI: Chissà? Una sedotta.

Ninetta!
(altera fissando la folla.)

DONNE: Madonna è dolente!

Caton!
(con fare imponente.)

GIOVANOTTI: Affè . . . che dolore!

Regina!
(passa pavoneggiandosi.)

ALTRI: Che incesso!

Claretta!
(va al suo posto frettolosa.)

ALTRI: E una dea!

Violetta!
(traversa la piazza con modo procace.)

ALTRI: Ah questa correi!

Nerina!
(elegante.)

ALTRA: Che bionda! . . .

Elisa!
(se ne va tranquillamente.)

ALTRI: Che bruna!

Ninon!
(si copre il volto colle mani.)

ALTRI: (schernendole) Che splendidi nèi!

Giorgetta!
(civettuola.)

ALTRI: Di vaghe nessuna!

ALTRI: Che gaia assemblea.
(Aleuni Borghesi aggruppati sul davanti a sanistra—Lescaut indica Manon e purla loro sommessamente.)

BORGHESI: È bello davvero.

LES: Costei? V' è un mistero!

BORGHESI: (a Les.) Sedotta? . . . Tradita?

LES: Costei fu rapita fanciulla all' amore
d' un vago garzone!

BORGHESI: Che infamia, che orrore!

ALTRI: Ah! fa compassione.

Rosetta!
(passes boldly with a defiant look.)

YOUNG MEN: (to each other) What a look!

OTHERS: She's a charmer!

Madelon!
(crosses unconcernedly and laughing.)

SOME CITIZENS: (spitefully) How you have fallen!

SOME WOMEN: (indignantly) What insolent laughter!

Manon!
(passes slowly, fixing her eyes on the ground.)

OLD MEN: Who's that? Poor wretched woman.

Ninetta!
(proudly, staring at the crowd.)

WOMEN: My lady is doleful!

Caton!
(with an air of importance.)

YOUNG MEN: By faith, she's in sorrow!

Regina!
(struts by conceitedly.)

OTHERS: How proudly!

Claretta!
(goes to her place hurriedly.)

OTHERS: She's a queen.

Violetta!
(crosses saucily.)

OTHERS: I should like this one!

Nerina!
(with an air of distinction.)

OTHERS: The fair one!—

Elisa!
(walks quietly.)

OTHERS: The dark one!

Ninon!
(covers her face with her hands.)

OTHERS: What wonderful patches!

Giorgetta!
(coquettishly.)

OTHERS: Not one single beauty!

OTHERS: What a gay assembly!
(A group of citizens, L.—Lescaut points out Manon to them and speaks to them in an undertone.)

CITIZENS: Indeed she's lovely!

LES: This one? I know her story.

CITIZENS: (to Les.) Seduction? Betrayal?

LES: Manon was abducted from the love and devotion of her fond young lover.

CITIZENS: What baseness! what shame!

OTHERS: Ah! she wakens pity.

LES: Rapita alle nozze e all' orgia ed a sozze carezze gittata!

BORGHESI: (indignati) Ah! sempre così!

LES: (eccitando gli ascoltatori)
Pel gaudio d' un dì di vecchio signore . . .
poi . . . sazio . . . cacciata!

BORGHESI: Che infamia, che orrore!

LES: (additando Des G.) Vedete quel pallido
che presso le sta?
Lo sposo è quel misero.

BORGHESI: Oh! inver fa pietà!

LES: Così, fra catene, nel fango e avvilita,
rivede e rinviene
la sposa rapita!
(grida di sdegno.)

(Manon e Des Grieux.)
(Des G. è nel fondo perduto tra la folla.)
(Appena è passata Man., esso cautamente le si avvicina, cercando nascondersi dietro di lei. Man. se ne accorge ed a stento trattiene un grido ai riconoscenza: le loro mani si toccano e si stringono.)

MAN: (con passione ed angoscia)
Des Grieux, fra poco, lungi sarò . . . questo è il destino mio
E te perduto per sempre avrò!
Ultimo bene! . . . addio!
Alla tua casa riedi! Un giorno potrai ancora amar!
Ora a tuo padre dei far ritorno . . .
devi Manon scordar!
Forse abbastanza non fosti amato . . .
questo è il rimorso mio?
Ma tu perdona!
(un disperato singhiozzo le tronca parola.)
Mio desolato
amore immenso . . . addio!

DES G: Guardami e vedi com' io soggiacio a questa angoscia amara, chè una tortura crudel m' è il bacio della tua bocca cara.
Ogni pensiero si scioglie in pianto!
E pianto anche il desio! . . .
Ah! m'ho nell'animo l'odio soltanto degli nomini e di Dio!

SERGENTE: (collacandosi di fronte alle cortigiane) Presto! . . .
In fila!
(le cortigiane si mettono in fila.)
Marciate!
(vedendo Man. ferma presso a Des G.)
Costui qui ancor? Finiamola.
(va e prende brutalmente, Man.

LES: Her wedding prevented,
And lured amid orgies
To wanton caresses.

CITIZENS: (with indignation) Ah! it is always the case!

LES: (exciting their sympathy)
For the joy of a day,
By a wicked old scoundrel,
Who, sated, dismissed her.

CITIZENS: What baseness! what shame!

LES: (pointing out Des G.) You see that young fellow
So pale, standing there?
Poor lad, he's her husband.

CITIZENS: Oh! she wakes pity!

LES: It is thus, as a convict,
Disgraced and dishonored,
He comes to revisit
The girl stolen from him!
(with a cry of anger.)

(Manon and Des Grieux.)
(Des G. stands back in the midst of the crowd.)
(As soon as Man. has passed he cautiously approaches her, trying to conceal himself behind her. Man. sees him, and with difficulty suppresses a cry of joy; they clasp each other's hands.)

MAN: (with passionate anguish)
Dear love. It is time for us to part.
To woe my fate is tending,
Your loss will break my sorrowful heart.
Farewell, my love's unending.
Home to you dear ones, love, betake you,
Some day you'll love again.
Forget Manon; and then
Will all your grief and pain be gone.
You never knew how dear I held you,
For this my heart grieves ever.
Forgive me, love. My tears have quelled you—
(a sob of despair checks her utterance.)
Farewell, my love—we sever!

DES G: Look, love, how rudely I am shaken
By this overwhelming sorrow.
Your kisses but fresh torture waken
For my sad lips to borrow.
Each thought of you has tears for token;
Sighs tell my heart's emotion.
Ah! in my soul my grief unspoken
Sobs at my vain devotion!

SERGEANT: (marshalling the women) Forward!—In line, there!—
(the women advance in single file.)
Quick, March!—
(seeing Manon standing close to Des G.) —What, you still here? No more of per un braccio e la spinge verso le altre.)

DES G: (non pùo trattenersi e d' un tratto strappa Man. dalle mani dal Sergente gridando.) Indietro!

SERGENTE: (a Des G.) Via!

BORGHESI: (aizzati da Les., a Des G.) Coraggio!

DES G: (furente, minaccioso) Ah!
guai a chi la tocca!
(avvinghia stretta a sè Man. coprendola colla propria persona.)
Manon, ti stringi a me! . . .

BORGHESI: (spinti da Les. accorrono in socoroso di Des G., ed impediscono al Sergente di avvicinarsi a Man.) Così! Bravo!

COMANDANTE: (apparendo a un tratto in mezzo alla folla) Che avvien?
(la folla si ritira rispettosamente.)

DES G: (sempre coll' impeto della disperazione, guardando minaccioso intorno a sè.)
Ah, non vi avvicinate!
Chè, vivo me, costei
nessun strappar potrà!
(scorgendo il Comandante, vinto da profonda emozione, egli erompe in uno straziante singhiozzo; le sue braccia che stringevano Man. si sciolgono e Des G. cade ai piedi de Comandante dolorosamente implorando.)
No! pazzo son! . . . Guardate.
como io piango ed imploro . . .
come io chiedo pietà!
Udite! M' accettate qual mozzo od a più vile mestiere . . . ad io verrò felice! . . . Vi pigliate il mio sangue . . . la vita!
Ah, ingrato non sarò!
(intanto il Sergente avvia le cotigiane verso la nave, e spinge con esse Man., la quale lenta s' incammina e nasconde il volto fra le mani, disperatamente singhiozzando. La folla, cacciate ai lati dagli arcieri, guarda silenziosa con profonda sinso di pietà.)

COMANDANTE: (commosso, si piega verso Des G., gli sorride benignamente e gli dice col fare burbero del marinaio) Ah! popolar le Americhe, giovanotto, desiate?
(Des G. lo guarda con ansia terribile.)
Ebbene . . . ebben sia pure!
(battendogli sulle spalle.)
Via, mozzo, v' affrettate!
(Des G. gitta un grido di gioia e bacia la mano del Comandante. Man. si volge, vede comprende— e, il viso irradiato da una suprema gioia, dell' alto dell' imbarcatoio stende le braccia a Des G. che vi accorre, Les., in disparte, guar- this!

(seizes Man. roughly by the arm and pushes her towards the others.)

DES G: (losing all control over himself, wrenches Man. from the grasp of the Sergeant, exclaiming) Stand back, Sir!

SERGEANT: (to Des G.) Go!

CITIZENS: (urged on by Les., to Des G.) Take courage!

DES G: (fiercely and threateningly) He dies who dares to touch her!
(clasps Manon close to him, protecting her.) Manon, cling fast to me!—

CITIZENS: (urged by Les., run to help Des G. and prevent the Sergeant from approaching Man.)
That's it! That's right!

CAPTAIN: (appears suddenly in the midst of the crowd) What's this?
(the crowd falls back respectfully.)

DES G: (in the desperation of the moment, threateningly) Ah! do not dare approach her!
For while I live none shall Tear her away from me!
(sees the Captain, and overcome with emotion bursts into sobs; he loosens Manon from his grasp and falls at the feet of the Captain imploringly.)
No! I am mad. Behold me—
I'm weeping and implore you.
Oh! I crave your mercy.
Then hear me. Take me as servant,
Or in meaner employment,
And I will come so gladly!
Take my life—if it please you.
For mercy's sake, I implore you.
(meanwhile the Sergeant sends the women towards the ship, and Man. with them, who walks slowly, hiding her face with her hands, and sobbing bitterly. The crowd, driven back by the archers, looks on in silence and with deep compassion.)

CAPTAIN: (touched by his entreaties, looks kindly on Des G. and says to him in the bluff manner of sailors)
Ah!
Young fellow, do you desire to populate America?
(Des G. looks at him with the greatest anxiety.)
Well, then, it shall be so.
(patting him on the shoulder.)
Quick, my lad, come, I'll take you!
(Des G. utters a cry of joy and kisses the Captain's hand. Man. turns round and understands that Des G. will accompany her, and her face radiant with joy, stretches out her arms to Des G., da, crolla il capo e si allontana.)

FINE DELL' ATTO TERZO.

■ ATTO IV

In America.

Una landa sterminata sui confini del territorio della Nuova Orleans.

Terreno brullo ed ondulato; orizzonte vastissimo; cielo annuvolato. Cade la sera.

Manon e Des Grieux s' avanzano lentamente dal fondo; sono poveramente vestiti; hanno aspetto di persone affrante; Manon pallida, estenuata, s' appoggia sopra Des Grieux, che la sostiene a fatica.

DES G: (procedendo) Tutta su me ti posa, o mia stanca diletta.
La strada polverosa,
la strada maledetta,
al termine s' avanza.

MAN: (con voce fioca, oppressa)
Innanzi, innanzi ancor! . . .
L' aria d' intorno or si fa scura,
Erra la brezza nella gran pianura
e muore il giorno! . . .
Innanzi! . . . Innanzi! . . .
(sfinita.) no . . . (cade d' un tratto)

DES G: (con grido d' angoscia)
Manon!

MAN: (con voce sempre più debole) Son vinta . . .
Son vinta! . . . Mi perdona!
Tu sei forte . . . t' invidio;
Donna, e debole, cedo!

DES G: (ansiosamente) Tu soffri?

MAN: (subito) Orribilmente!
(Des. G., ferito da queste parole, dimostra collo sguardo e cogli alti uno spasimo profondo. Man. sforzandosi riprende.)
No! che dissi! . . . una vana, una stolta parola . . .
Deh ti consola!
Chieggo breve riposo . . .
Un solo istante . . .
Mio dolce amante
a me t' appressa . . . a me! . . .
(sviene.)

DES G: (con intensa emozione)
Manon . . . senti, amor
mio . . .
Non mi rispondi, amore?
Vedi, son io che piango . . .
vedi, son io che imploro . . .
io che carezzo e bacio
i tuoi capelli d' oro!

who rushes into them. Les., who has been watching them from a distance, shakes his head and goes off.)

END OF THE THIRD ACT.

■ ACT IV

America.

A vast plain on the borders of the territory of New Orleans.

The country is bare and undulating, the horizon is far distant, the sky is overcast. Night falls.

Manon and Des Grieux advance slowly from the back; they are poorly clad; they seem worn out with fatigue; Manon is very pale and exhausted, she leans on Des Grieux, who supports her with difficulty.

DES G: (advancing) Lean all your weight on me, love,
O sweetheart sad and weary,
How tired you must be, love!
The road so long and dreary
We soon will leave behind us.

MAN: (with stifled voice) Let's onward, still onward, love,
The air around us now grows darker,
Over the plain the wandering breeze is flying,
And daylight is dying!—
Let's onward, still onward—
(completely overcome,)
No!—
(falls suddenly.)

DES G: (with a cry of anguish) Manon!

MAN: (her voice grows fainter) I cannot!
Oh! forgive me!
I am only a woman . . .
But you, you are strong—I faint!

DES G: (anxiously) You suffer?

MAN: (hastily) Most cruel torture!
(Des G. distressed at her sufferings, is deeply moved. Manon with an effort exclaims)
No! what said I?—It is false,
I was jesting, believe me—
O love, take comfort!
I need rest for a moment—
Only a moment—
My heart's own treasure.
Come close, come near me—ah!
come!
(swoons.)

DES G: (with intense emotion)
Manon—hear me, beloved—
You do not answer, my darling!
Look, dear, I am weeping—
Look, dear, I implore you,
My vigil here I'm keeping,
Ah! love, I who adore you!—
(as he speaks his emotion be-

(a misura che parla l' emozione si fa più viva.)
Rispondimi! . . . Mi guarda! . . .
(pausa.)
Tace!? Maledizione! . . .
(le tocca la fronte.)
Crudel febbre l' avvince . . .
Disperato mi vince
un senso di sventura, un senso di tenèbre e di paura!

MAN: (si desta d' un tratto, guarda Des G. quasi sensa conoscerlo; Des G. si china e la solleva da terra) Sei tu, sei tu che piangi? . . .
Sei tu, sei tu che implori? . . .
I tuoi singulti ascolto
e mi bagnano il volto le tue lagrime ardenti . . .
La sete mi divora . . .
O amore, aita! Aita!

DES G: O amor, tutto il mio sangue per la tua vita!
(corre verso il fondo scrutando l' orrizzonte lontano, poi sfiduciato ritorna.)
E nulla! nulla!
Arida landa . . . non un filo d' acqua . . .
O immoto cielo! O Dio, a cui fanciullo anch' io
levai la mia preghiera, un soccorso . . . un soccorso!

MAN: Si . . . un soccorso! . . . Tu puoi salvarmi! Senti, qui poserò!
E tu scruta il mister dell' orizzonte,
e cerca, cerca, monte - o casolar;
Oltre ti spingi e con lieta favella lieta novella—poi vieni a recar!
(Des G. mentre parla Man. è compresa da grande ambascia; diversi e forli sentimenti lottano in lui; l' adagia sopra un rialzo di terreno; resta ancora irresoluto in preda a fiero contrasto; indi s' allontana a poco a poco; giunto nel fondo rimane di muovo dubbioso e fissa Man. con occhi disperati, poi d' un subito deciso, parte correndo.)

MAN: (sola; l' orrizonte s' oscura; l' ambascia vince Man.; è stravolta, impaurita, accasciata) Sola . . . perduta . . . abbandonata! . . . Sola!
Tutto dunque è finito. E nel profondo deserto io cado, io la deserta donna!
Terra di pace mi sembrava questa . . .
Ah! mia belta funesta,
ire novelle accende . . .
Da lui strappar mi si voleva; or tutto il mio passato orribile risorge
e vivo innanzi al guardo mio si posa.
Di sangue ei s' è macchiato . . .
A nova fuga spinta
e d' amarezze e di paura cinta asil di pace ora la tomba invoco . . .
No . . . non voglio morire . . . amore . . . aita!
(extra Des G. precipitosamente, Man. gli cade fra le braccia.)

MAN: (ridestandosi) Fra le tue braccia . . . amore!
l' ultima volta! . . .
(si sforza; sorride, simula speranza.) Apporti
tu la novella lieta?

DES G: (con immenza tristezza) Nulla rinvenni . . . l' orrizzonte nulla mi rivelò lontano spinsi lo sguardo invano . . .

MAN: Muoio: scendon le tenebre:
Su me la notte scende.

DES G: Un funesto deliro ti percuote, t' offende . . .
Posa qui dove palpito,
in tè ritorna ancor!

MAN: (con passione infinita) Oh! t' amo tanto e muoio.
Già la parola . . . manca al mio voler . . . ma posso dirti che t' amo tanto!
Oh! amore! ultimo incanto!
(cade lentamente, mentre Des G. cerca ancora di sostenerla fra le sue braccia.)

DES G: (le tocca il volto, poi fra sè atterrito) Gelo di morte! Dio, l' ultima speme infrangi

MAN: (con voce sempre più debole) Mio dolce amor tu piangi . . .
Ora non è di lagrime,
ora di baci è questa;
Il tempo vola . . . baciami!

DES G: E vivo ancora! (imprecando) Infamia!

MAN: Io vo' che sia una festa di divine carezze di novissime ebbrezze per me la morte . . .

DES G: O immensa
delizia mia . . . tu flamma
d' amore eterna . . .

MAN: La flamma si spegne . . .
Parla, deh! parla . . . ahimè più non t' ascolto . . .
Qui, qui, vicino a me, voglio il tuo volto . . .
Così . . . così . . . mi baci . . . ancor ti sento . . .

DES G: Senza di te perduto . . .
ti seguirò . . .

MAN: (con ultimo sforzo, solennemente imperiosa) Non voglio!
Addio . . . cupa è la notte . . . ho freddo . . . era amorosa la tua Manon? Rammenti! dim-comes still more powerful.)

Nay, answer me!—Look up, dear!—
(pauses.)
Silent!? Accursed fate!—
(touches her forehead.)
Her frame is racked with fever—

MAN: (rising suddenly, gazes at Des G. as if she did not recognize him: Des G. stoops and raises her from the ground.)
It is you, then, that are weeping?
And you that so implore me?
My heart your sigh is reaping!
Your tears fall softly over me!
Love, with your love, restore me!
A cruel thirst consumes me.
Oh! help me, dearest, help me.

DES G: Oh! love, a thousand deaths
I would die to save you.
(runs up stage and scans the distant horizon, then returns despondently.)
There's nothing!—nothing!
All arid waste land,—not a drop of water.
O heartless heaven! O God,
To whom I ever as a child
Would raise my prayer,
Now protect her—and defend her!

MAN: Yes,—help me, help me—
For you can save me!
Listen, I here will rest,
While you scan from afar the dim horizon,
And seek for shelter or a woodland hut,
Go swiftly onward, and then, with joyful accents,
All your glad tidings to me you'll convey.
(While Manon is speaking Des G. looks at her with the greatest anxiety, he hesitates to leave her: he finds a resting place for her and remains awhile undecided; finally he walks away slowly and on reaching the background again stops to gaze at Manon, then with sudden resolve runs off.)

MAN: (the sky darkens, Man. is well nigh distraught with terror and fatigue) Lonely—forsaken—and abandoned—
All my hope then is over.
And in the heart of this desert
I'm dying. O wretched hapless woman!
I sought this region as a peaceful haven.
Ah! through my fatal beauty
Torments afresh surround me—
They would have severed me from him;
How all my past does haunt me
With fearful pangs of anguish,
And rises straight before
My eyes to rend me.
New dangers come to threaten—
Only the tomb can release me from my burden.
No!—let me not die—dearest—help me!
(Des G. enters hurriedly, Manon falls into his arms.)

MAN: (recovering) Enfold me in your arms, love,
For the last time!
(with an effort, smiles and looks hopeful.)
Do you bring back
Good tidings?

DES G: (with the deepest grief) Alas! I found nothing—
The horizon revealed me nothing!
In vain I peered into the distance—

MAN: I die! Dark shadows fall around.
Night's gloom on me is falling.

DES G: Oh! what a terrible frenzy
Overcomes and distracts you—
Rest, dear love, on my beating heart
Until you revive once more.

MAN: (with infinite tenderness) See, how my breath grows fainter—
I scarcely can speak—
But, I would tell you how fondly I love you!
My dearest, my only treasure!
(sinks slowly to the ground, while Des G. endeavors to support her.)

DES G: (touches her cheek, and in the greatest alarm exclaims) The chill of death is on her!
God, my last hope is shattered!

MAN: (faintly) My sweetest love, you're weeping!
For tears, it is not the hour;
Let lips fond troth be keeping
With kiss that love shall—dower!

DES G: And I still live!
(vehemently) Oh, horror!

MAN: Ah! rife be this moment,
With divinest caresses
Amid passion and fervor
Let death overtake me—

DES G: Supreme treasure and delight—
Flame of love eternal—

MAN: The flame is dying—
Speak, then, to me, love—Alas! no more I hear you—
Draw near—enfold me close—let your lips cling, love—
Ah! thus—Ah! thus—you kiss me—your touch thrills me!—

DES G: I cannot live—without you—
I too shall die—

MAN: (with a supreme effort, and in a solemn tone of command) You shall not!
Farewell, love!
The night grows darker. I shudder—
So truly loving was your Manon!—

mi . . . la luminosa mia giovinezza? Il sole più non vedrò . . .

DES G: Mio Dio!

MAN: Le mie colpe . . . sereno . . .
travolgerà l' oblio, ma l' amor mio . . . non muore . . .

Remember!
Tell me—the radiant happy dreams of childhood—
To see the sunlight nevermore!

DES G: Oh! Heaven!

MAN: Time will obliterate my faults—
But my love—will never die.
(dies.)

(muore.)
(Des G. pazzo di dolore, scoppia in un pianto convulso, poi cade svenuto sul corpo di Manon.)

FINE DELL' OPERA.

(Des G., frantic with grief, bursts into convulsive sobs, and falls senseless upon Manon's body.)

END OF THE OPERA.

La Bohème (1896)

Music By Giacomo Puccini ■ Libretto By Giuseppe Giacosa and Luigi Illica

This four-act opera, set to a libretto by Giuseppe Giacosa and Luigi Illica (based on Henry Murger's novel Scènes de la vie de Bohème), premiered at the Teatro Regio in Turin on February 1, 1896. On Christmas Eve in Paris during the year 1830, Rodolfo, a poet, is gazing out of his attic at the snow-covered rooftops while his friend Marcello works on a painting. Rodolfo lights the stove with one of his manuscripts to lessen the cold. Two friends, Colline, a philosopher, and Schaunard, a musician, bring over food and wine. When Benoit, the landlord, interrupts their meal to claim the back rent the bohemians throw him out. Marcello, Colline and Schaunard go to the Café Momus. Rodolfo stays at home. His neighbor, Mimi, knocks on the door and asks him to light her candle. She is seized with a coughing fit and passes out. Rodolfo takes care of her and the two fall in love. In front of the Café Momus, Rodolfo buys Mimi a hat, Colline buys a second-hand overcoat, and Schaunard bargains over the cost of a horn. Musetta, formerly Marcello's mistress, arrives in the company of the elderly Alcindoro. Musetta entices Marcello to return to her. She sends Alcindoro off to buy some shoes, and as a military parade passes by the bohemians sneak off, leaving the old man with the bill.

On a February day, Rodolfo, after an argument with Mimi, moves to the inn where Marcello now resides. Mimi tells Marcello that Rodolfo is gone from her forever. She hides when Rodolfo appears, only to be given away by her cough. The lovers reunite. Musetta enters and fights with Marcello. Back in Rodolfo's attic, the two friends look back on the wonderful times with their lovers. Colline and Schaunard arrive and they all try to forget their troubles. Musetta enters; Mimi is at death's door. Musetta sends Marcello out to sell her earrings for money to buy medicine, and she goes out in search of a muff to warm her friend Mimi's freezing hands. Colline goes off to sell his coat. The two lovers, left by themselves, remember their first meeting. Their friends return to find Mimi dead. Grief-stricken, Rodolfo throws himself on top of her corpse.

■ ATTO PRIMO	■ ACT I
In soffitta	A garret
(Ampia finestra dalla quale si scorge una distesa di tetti coperti di neve. A destra un camino. Una tavola, un letto, quattro sedie, un cavalletto da pittore con una tela sbozzata: libri sparsi, molti fasci di carte. Rodolfo guarda meditabondo fuori della finestra. Marcello lavora al suo quadro "Il passaggio del Mar Rosso", colle mani intirizzite dal freddo e che egli riscalda alitandovi su di quando in quando.)	(A large window through which an expanse of snow-covered roofs is seen. At right, a stove. A table, a bed, four chairs, a painter's easel with half-finished canvas: books everywhere, manuscripts. Rodolfo is thoughtful, looking out the window. Marcello works at his painting "The Crossing of the Red Sea", his hands stiff with cold; he tries to warm them by blowing on them now and again.)
MARCELLO: Questo "Mar Rosso" mi ammollisce e assidera come se addosso mi piovesse in stille. Per vendicarmi affogo un Faraone. (a Rodolfo) Che fai?	MARCELLO: This "Red Sea" of mine makes me feel cold and numb as if it were pouring over me. I'll drown a Pharaoh in revenge. (to Rodolfo) What are you doing?
RODOLFO: Nei cieli bigi guardo fumar dai mille comignoli Parigi, e penso a quel poltrone d'un vecchio caminetto ingannatore che vive in ozio come un gran signor.	RODOLFO: I'm looking at Paris, seeing the skies gray with smoke from a thousand chimneys, and I think of that no-good, hateful stove of ours that lives a gentleman's life of idleness.
MARCELLO: Le sue rendite oneste da un pezzo non riceve.	MARCELLO: It's been a long time since he received his just income.
RODOLFO: Quelle sciocche foreste che fan sotto la neve?	RODOLFO: What are those stupid forests doing, all covered with snow?
MARCELLO: Rodolfo, io voglio dirti un mio pensier profondo: ho un freddo cane.	MARCELLO: Rodolfo, I want to tell you a profound thought I've had: I'm cold as hell.
RODOLFO: Ed io, Marcel, non ti nascondo che non credo al sudor della fronte.	RODOLFO: As for me, Marcello, I'll be frank: I'm not exactly sweating.
MARCELLO: Ho ghiacciate le dita quasi ancora le tenessi immollate giù in quella gran ghiacciaia che è il cuore di Musetta. (Lascia sfuggire un lungo, sospirone, e tralascia di dipingere.)	MARCELLO: And my fingers are frozen— as if I still were holding them in that enormous glacier, Musetta's heart. (A sigh escapes him, and he leaves off painting.)
RODOLFO: L'amore è caminetto che sciupa troppo . . .	RODOLFO: Love is a stove that burns too much . . .
MARCELLO: E in fretta!	MARCELLO: Too fast.
RODOLFO: Dove l'uomo è fascina.	RODOLFO: Where the man is the fuel . . .
MARCELLO: E la donna è l'alare . . .	MARCELLO: And woman the spark . . .
RODOLFO: L'uno brucia in un soffio . . .	RODOLFO: He burns in a moment . . .
MARCELLO: E l'altro sta a guardare . . .	MARCELLO: And she stands by, watching!
RODOLFO: Ma intanto qui si gela . . .	RODOLFO: Meanwhile, we're freezing in here!
MARCELLO: E si muore d'inedia . . .	MARCELLO: And dying from lack of food!
RODOLFO: Fuoco ci vuole . . .	RODOLFO: We must have a fire . . .

MARCELLO: (afferando una sedia) Aspetta . . . sacrifichiam la sedia! (Rodolfo impedisce l'atto di Marcello. Ad un tratto dà un grido di gioia.)	MARCELLO: (seizing a chair) Wait . . . we'll sacrifice the chair! (Rodolfo keeps Marcello from breaking the chair. Suddenly he shouts with joy.)
RODOLFO: Eureka!	RODOLFO: Eureka!
MARCELLO: Trovasti?	MARCELLO: You've found it?
RODOLFO: Sì. Aguzza l'ingegno. L'idea vampi in fiamma.	RODOLFO: Yes. Sharpen your wits. Let Thought burst into flame.
MARCELLO: (additando il suo quadro) Bruciamo il "Mar Rosso"?	MARCELLO: (pointing to his picture) Shall we burn the "Red Sea"?
RODOLFO: No. Puzza la tela dipinta. Il mio dramma . . . L'ardente mio dramma ci scaldi.	RODOLFO: No. Painted canvas smells. My play . . . My burning drama will warm us.
MARCELLO: Vuoi leggerlo forse? Mi geli.	MARCELLO: You mean to read it? I'll freeze.
RODOLFO: No, in cener la carta si sfaldi e l'estro rivoli ai suoi cieli. Al secol gran danno minaccia . . . Ma Roma è in periglio . . .	RODOLFO: No, the paper will unfold in ash and genius soar back to its heaven. A serious loss to the age . . . but Rome is in danger . . .
MARCELLO: Gran cor!	MARCELLO: What a noble heart!
RODOLFO: A te l'atto primo!	RODOLFO: Here, take the first act!
MARCELLO: Qua.	MARCELLO: Here.
RODOLFO: Straccia.	RODOLFO: Tear it up.
MARCELLO: Accendi. (Rodolfo accende quella parte dello scartafaccio buttato sul focolare. Poi i due amici prendono delle sedie e seggono, riscaldandosi voluttuosamente.)	MARCELLO: Light it. (Rodolfo lights the part of the manuscript thrown in the fire. Then the two friends draw up chairs and sit down, voluptuously warming themselves.)
RODOLFO E MARCELLO: Che lieto baglior. (Si apre con fracasso la parta ed entra Colline, gelato, battendo i piedi. Getta sulla tavola un pacco di libri.)	RODOLFO AND MARCELLO: What blissful heat! (The door opens and Colline enters, frozen, stamping his feet. He throws some books on the table.)
COLLINE: Già dell'Apocalisse appariscono i segni. In giorno di Vigilia non si accettano pegni! (sorpreso) Una fiammata!	COLLINE: Signs of the Apocalypse begin to appear. No pawning allowed on Christmas Eve. (surprised) A fire!
RODOLFO: Zitto, si dà il mio dramma . . .	RODOLFO: Quiet, my play's being given . . .
MARCELLO: . . . al fuoco.	MARCELLO: . . . to the stove.
COLLINE: Lo trove scintillante.	COLLINE: I find it full of fire.
RODOLFO: Vivo.	RODOLFO: Brilliant.
MARCELLO: Ma dura poco.	MARCELLO: But brief.
RODOLFO: La brevità, gran pregio.	RODOLFO: Brevity, its great merit.
COLLINE: Autore, a me la sedia.	COLLINE: Your chair, please, Mr Author.
MARCELLO: Questi intermezzi fan morir d'inedia. Presto!	MARCELLO: These intermissions kill you with boredom. Get on with it!
RODOLFO: Atto secondo.	RODOLFO: Act two.
MARCELLO: Non far sussurro.	MARCELLO: No whispering.
COLLINE: Pensier profondo!	COLLINE: What profundity!
MARCELLO: Giusto color!	MARCELLO: How colorful!
RODOLFO: In quell'azzurro guizzo languente sfuma un'ardente scena d'amor.	RODOLFO: In that dying blue flame an ardent love-scene dies.
COLLINE: Scoppietta un foglio.	COLLINE: See that page crackle.
MARCELLO: Là c'eran baci!	MARCELLO: There were the kisses!
RODOLFO: Tre atti or voglio d'un colpo udir. (Getta al fuoco il resto del manoscritto.)	RODOLFO: I want to hear three acts at once. (He throws the rest of the manuscript on the fire.)
COLLINE: Tal degli audaci l'idea s'integra.	COLLINE: And so unified is your bold conception.
TUTTI: Bello in allegra vampa svanir. (Applaudono. Poi la fiamma diminuisce.)	ALL: Beautiful death on the joyful flame. (They applaud. Then the flame dies.)
MARCELLO: Oh! Dio . . . già s'abbassa la fiamma.	MARCELLO: Oh Lord! The flame is dying.
COLLINE: Che vano, che fragile dramma!	COLLINE: So useless, so fragile a drama!
MARCELLO: Già scricchiola, increspasi, muor.	MARCELLO: Already curling up to die.
COLLINE E MARCELLO: Abbasso, abbasso l'autore. (Dalla porta entrano due garzoni, portando l'uno provviste di cibi, bottiglie di vino, sigari, e l'altro un fascio di legna. Al rumore i tre innanzi al camino si volgono e con grida di meraviglia si slanciano sulle provviste.)	COLLINE AND MARCELLO: Down with the author! ((Two porters come in, one carrying food, bottles of wine and cigars; the other has a bundle of wood. At the sound, the three men in front of the fire turn around and with shouts of amazement fall upon the provisions.)
RODOLFO: Legna!	RODOLFO: Wood!
MARCELLO: Sigari!	MARCELLO: Cigars!
COLLINE: Bordò!	COLLINE: Bordeaux!
RODOLFO: Legna!	RODOLFO: Firewood!
MARCELLO: Bordò!	MARCELLO: Bordeaux!
TUTTI: Le dovizie d'una fiera il destin ci destinò . . . (I garzoni partono. Schaunard entra con aria di trionfo, gettando alcuni scudi a terra.)	ALL THREE: Destiny provides us with a feast of plenty! (The porters leave. Schaunard enters triumphantly, throwing some coins on the floor.)
SCHAUNARD: La Banca di Francia per voi si sbilancia.	SCHAUNARD: The Bank of France has gone broke just for you.
COLLINE: (raccattando gli scudi insieme agli altri) Raccatta, raccatta!	COLLINE: (gathering up coins, with the others) Pick them up!
MARCELLO: Son pezzi di latta!	MARCELLO: They must be made of tin!
SCHAUNARD: Sei sordo? . . . sei lippo? (mostrando uno scudo) Quest'uomo chi è?	SCHAUNARD: Are you deaf? or blind? (showing a crown) Who is this man?
RODOLFO: Luigi Filippo! M'inchino al mio Re!	RODOLFO: Louis Philippe! I bow to my King!
TUTTI: Sta Luigi Filippo ai nostri piè! (Schaunard vorrebbe raccontare la sua fortuna, ma gli altri non lo ascoltano. Dispongono ogni cosa sulla tavola e la legna nel camino.)	ALL: Louis Philippe is at our feet! (Schaunard wants to tell his adventure, but the others won't listen to him. They set the provisions on the table and put wood in the stove.)
SCHAUNARD: Or vi dirò: quest'oro, o meglio, argento ha la sua brava istoria . . .	SCHAUNARD: Now I'll tell you: this gold, this silver, rather, has a noble history . . .
RODOLFO: Riscaldiamo il camino!	RODOLFO: Let's fire the stove!
COLLINE: Tanto freddo ha sofferto!	COLLINE: It's hard to endure so much cold!

SCHAUNARD: Un inglese . . . un signor . . . lord o milord che sia, volea un musicista . . .

MARCELLO: Via! Prepariamo la tavola!

SCHAUNARD: Io? Volo!

RODOLFO: L'esca dov'è?

COLLINE: Là.

MARCELLO: Qua.

SCHAUNARD: . . . e mi presento.
M'accetta, gli domando . . .

COLLINE: Arrosto freddo.

MARCELLO: Pasticcio dolce.

SCHAUNARD: . . . A quando le lezioni?
Mi presento, m'accetta, gli domando: A quando le lezioni?
Risponde: "Incominciam . . . guardare!" e un pappagallo m'addita al primo pian.
Poi soggiunge: "Voi suonare finchè quello morire!"

RODOLFO: Fulgida folgori la sala splendida!

MARCELLO: Ora le candele.

SCHAUNARD: E fu così:
suonai tre lunghi dì . . .
Allora usai l'incanto di mia presenza bella . . .
Affascinai l'ancella . . .
Gli propinai prezzemolo . . .

MARCELLO: Mangiar senza tovaglia?

RODOLFO: No: un'idea!
(Prende un giornale dalla tasca.)

MARCELLO E COLLINE: Il Costituzional!

RODOLFO: Ottima carta . . .
Si mangia e si divora un'appendice!

SCHAUNARD: Lorito allargò l'ali, Lorito il becco aprì,
un poco di prezzemolo;
da Socrate morì!

COLLINE: (a Schaunard)
Chi? . . .

SCHAUNARD: Il diavolo vi porti tutti quanti . . .
Ed or che fate?
No! queste cibarie
sono la salmeria pei dì futuri
tenebrosi e oscuri.
Pranzare in casa il dì della Vigilia mentre il Quartier Latino le sue vie addobba di salsiccie e leccornie?
Quando un olezzo di fritelle imbalsama le vecchie strade?
Là le ragazze cantano contente . . .

TUTTI: La vigilia di Natal!

SCHAUNARD: An Englishman . . . a gentleman . . .
A lord . . . was looking for a musician . . .

MARCELLO: Come! Let's set the table!

SCHAUNARD: And I? I flew to him . . .

RODOLFO: Where are the matches?

COLLINE: There.

MARCELLO: Here.

SCHAUNARD: . . . I introduce myself.
He hires me. I ask him . . .

COLLINE: Cold roast beef.

MARCELLO: Sweet pastry.

SCHAUNARD: When do the lessons begin?
I introduce myself, he hires me,
I ask: When do the lessons begin?
He replies: "Let's start . . .
look!" and points to a parrot on the first floor.
Then adds: "You play until that bird dies!"

RODOLFO: The dining room's brilliant!

MARCELLO: Now the candles.

SCHAUNARD: And so it went:
I played for three long days . . .
Then I used my charm,
my handsome figure . . .
I won the serving-girl over . . .
We poisoned a little parsley . . .

MARCELLO: Eat without a tablecloth?

RODOLFO: No! I've an idea.
(He takes a newspaper from his pocket.)

MARCELLO AND COLLINE: The Constitutional!

RODOLFO: Excellent paper . . .
You eat and devour the news!

SCHAUNARD: Lorito spread his wings,
Lorito opened his beak,
took a peck of parsley,
and died like Socrates!

COLLINE: (to Schaunard) Who?

SCHAUNARD: Go to the devil, all of you . . .
Now what are you doing?
No! These delicacies are the provender for the dark and gloomy days in the future.
Dine at home on Christmas Eve when the Latin Quarter has decked its streets with eatables?
When the perfume of fritters is wafted through the ancient streets?
There the girls sing happily . . .

ALL: It's Christmas Eve!

SCHAUNARD: Ed han per eco, ognuna uno studente!
Un po' di religione, o miei signori:
si beva in casa, ma si pranzi fuor . . .
(Versano il vino. Poi bussano alla porta.)

BENOIT: (di fuori) Si può?

MARCELLO: Chi è là?

BENOIT: Benoit.

MARCELLO: Il padrone di casa!

SCHAUNARD: Uscio sul muso.

COLLINE: Non c'è nessuno.

SCHAUNARD: È chiuso.

BENOIT: Una parola.

SCHAUNARD: (dopo essersi consultato cogli altri, va ad aprire) Sola!
(Benoit entra.)

BENOIT: (mostrando una carta)
Affitto.

MARCELLO: Olà. Date una sedia.

RODOLFO: Presto.

BENOIT: Non occorre, lo vorrei . . .

SCHAUNARD: Segga.

MARCELLO: Vuol bere?

BENOIT: Grazie.

RODOLFO E COLLINE: Tocchiamo.

SCHAUNARD: Beva.
(Benoit, posando il bicchiere, mostra la carta a Marcello.)

BENOIT: Questo
è l'ultimo trimestre . . .

MARCELLO: E n'ho piacere . . .

BENOIT: E quindi . . .

SCHAUNARD: Ancora un sorso.

BENOIT: Grazie.

I QUATTRO: Tocchiam. Alla sua salute!

BENOIT: (riprendendo con Marcello) A lei ne vengo perchè il trimestre scorso mi promise . . .

MARCELLO: Promisi ed or mantengo.
(Indica gli scudi sulla tavola.)

RODOLFO: (piano a Marcello)
Che fai?

SCHAUNARD: Sei pazzo?

MARCELLO: (a Benoit, senza guardare gli altri) Ha visto? Or via, resti un momento in nostra compagnia.
Dica: quant'anni ha,
caro Signor Benoit?

BENOIT: Gli anni . . . Per carità!

RODOLFO: Su e giù la nostra età.

BENOIT: Di più, molto di più.
(Gli riempiono il bicchiere.)

SCHAUNARD: And each has a student echoing her!
Have some religion, gentlemen:
we drink at home, but we dine out.
(They pour the wine. A knock at the door.)

BENOIT: (outside) May I come in?

MARCELLO: Who's there?

BENOIT: Benoit.

MARCELLO: The landlord!

SCHAUNARD: Bolt the door.

COLLINE: Nobody's home.

SCHAUNARD: It's locked.

BENOIT: Just one word.

SCHAUNARD: (after consulting the others, open the door) Just one!
(Benoit enters.)

BENOIT: (showing a paper) Rent.

MARCELLO: Here! Give him a chair.

RODOLFO: At once.

BENOIT: Don't bother, I'd like . . .

SCHAUNARD: Be seated.

MARCELLO: Something to drink?

BENOIT: Thank you.

RODOLFO AND COLLINE: A toast.

SCHAUNARD: Drink.
(Benoit sets down his glass and shows the paper to Marcello.)

BENOIT: This is the bill for three month's rent . . .

MARCELLO: That's fine . . .

BENOIT: Therefore

SCHAUNARD: Another drop.

BENOIT: Thank you.

THE FOUR: A toast. To your health!

BENOIT: (to Marcello again) I come to you because last quarter
you promised me . . .

MARCELLO: I promised and I'll pay.
(He points to the money on the table.)

RODOLFO: (aside to Marcello)
What are you doing?

SCHAUNARD: Are you crazy?

MARCELLO: (to Benoit, ignoring the others) You see? Now then stay with us a moment.
Tell me: how old are you,
dear M. Benoit?

BENOIT: My age? . . . Spare me!

RODOLFO: Our age, more or less,
I'd say.

BENOIT: More, much more.
(They refill his glass.)

COLLINE: Ha detto su e giù.	COLLINE: He said more or less.
MARCELLO: L'altra sera al Mabil l'han colto in peccato d'amor.	MARCELLO: The other evening at the Mabille they caught him making love.
BENOIT: Io?	BENOIT: Me?
MARCELLO: Al Mabil l'altra sera l'han colto . . . Neghi?	MARCELLO: They caught him at the Mabille the other evening . . . Deny it, then.
BENOIT: Un caso.	BENOIT: An accident.
MARCELLO: Bella donna!	MARCELLO: A lovely woman!
BENOIT: (mezzo brillo) Ah! molto!	BENOIT: (half-drunk) Ah! Very!
SCHAUNARD poi RODOLFO: Briccone!	SCHAUNARD, then RODOLFO: You rascal!
COLLINE: Seduttore! Una quercia . . . un cannone!	COLLINE: Seducer! He's an oak, a ball of fire!
RODOLFO: L'uomo ha buon gusto.	RODOLFO: He's a man of taste.
MARCELLO: Il crin ricciuto e fulvo. Ei gongolava arzillo e pettoruto.	MARCELLO: With that curly, tawny hair. How he swaggered, proud and happy!
BENOIT: Son vecchio ma robusto.	BENOIT: I'm old but strong.
COLLINE, SCHAUNARD E RODOLFO: Ei gongolava arzuto e pettorillo.	COLLINE, SCHAUNARD AND RODOLFO: How he swaggered, proud and happy!
MARCELLO: A lui cedea la femminil virtù.	MARCELLO: Feminine virtue gave in to him.
BENOIT: Timido in gioventù, ora me ne ripago. Si sa, è uno svago qualche donnetta allegra . . . e . . . un po' . . . non dico una balena o un mappamondo o un viso tondo da luna piena. Ma magra, proprio magra, no, poi no! Le donne magre son grattacapi e spesso . . . sopracapi . . . e son piene di doglie . . . per esempio, mia moglie . . . (Marcello, fingendo indignazione, si alza; gli altri lo imitano.)	BENOIT: I'm paying myself back now for my shy youth . . . my pastime, you know, a lively woman . . . a bit . . . well, not a whale exactly or a relief-map of the world or a face like a full moon, but not thin, really thin. No! Thin women are worrisome and often . . . a nuisance . . . always full of complaints, for example—my wife . . . ! (Marcello rises, feigning moral indignation. The others do the same.)
MARCELLO: Quest'uomo ha moglie e sconcie voglie ha nel cor!	MARCELLO: This man has a wife and foul desires in his heart!
GLI ALTRI: Orror!	THE OTHERS: Horrors!
RODOLFO: E ammorba, e appesta la nostra onesta magion.	RODOLFO: He corrupts and pollutes our respectable home.
GLI ALTRI: Fuor!	THE OTHERS: Out with him!
MARCELLO: Si abbruci dello zucchero!	MARCELLO: Burn some incense!
COLLINE: Si discacci il reprobo.	COLLINE: Throw out the scoundrel!
SCHAUNARD: È la morale offesa che vi scaccia!	SCHAUNARD: Our offended morality expels you!
BENOIT: Io di . . . io di . . .	BENOIT: I say . . . I . . .
GLI ALTRI: Silenzio!	THE OTHERS: Silence!
BENOIT: Miei signori . . .	BENOIT: My dear sirs . . .
GLI ALTRI: Silenzio . . . via signore . . . Via di qua! E buona sera a vostra signoria! Ah! Ah! Ah! (Benoit è cacciato fuori. Marcello chiude la porta.)	THE OTHERS: Silence . . . Out, sir . . . Away with you! And good evening to your worship! Ha! Ha! Ha! (Benoit is thrown out. Marcello shuts the door.)
MARCELLO: Ho pagato il trimestre.	MARCELLO: I've paid the rent.
SCHAUNARD: Al Quartiere Latin ci attende Momus.	SCHAUNARD: In the Latin Quarter Momus awaits us.
MARCELLO: Viva chi spende!	MARCELLO: Long life to him who pays!
SCHAUNARD: Dividiamo il bottin!	SCHAUNARD: We'll divide my loot!
GLI ALTRA: Dividiam! (Dividono gli scudi.)	THE OTHERS: Let's divide! (They share the coins.)
MARCELLO: (presentando uno specchio a Colline) Là ci son beltà scese dal cielo. Or che sei ricco, bada alla decenza! Orso, ravviati il pelo.	MARCELLO: (giving Colline a mirror) Beauties are there, come from above. Now you're rich, you must look presentable. You bear! Trim your fur.
COLLINE: Farò la conoscenza la prima volta d'un barbitonsore. Guidatemi al ridicolo oltraggio d'un rasoio.	COLLINE: I'll make my first acquaintance of a beard-barber. Lead me to the absurd, outrageous razor.
TUTTI: Andiam.	ALL: Let's go.
RODOLFO: Io resto per terminar l'articolo di fondo del Castoro.	RODOLFO: I must stay to finish my article for the paper, The Beaver.
MARCELLO: Fa presto.	MARCELLO: Hurry, then!
RODOLFO: Cinque minuti. Conosco il mestier.	RODOLFO: Five minutes. I know my trade.
COLLINE: T'aspetterem dabbasso dal portier.	COLLINE: We'll wait for you downstairs.
MARCELLO: Se tardi udrai che coro.	MARCELLO: You'll hear us if you dawdle.
RODOLFO: Cinque minuti.	RODOLFO: Five minutes.
SCHAUNARD: Taglia corta la coda al tuo Castoro. (Rodolfo prende un lume ed apre l'uscio. Gli altri escono e scendono la scala.)	SCHAUNARD: Cut that Beaver's tail short. (Rodolfo takes a light and opens the door. The others start down the stairs.)
MARCELLO: (di fuori) Occhio alla scala. Tienti alla ringhiera.	MARCELLO: (outside) Watch the stairs. Hold on to the railing.
RODOLFO: (alzando il lume) Adagio.	RODOLFO: (raising the light) Careful.
COLLINE: È buio pesto.	COLLINE: It's pitch dark.
SCHAUNARD: Maledetto portier!	SCHAUNARD: That damn janitor!
COLLINE: Accidenti!	COLLINE: Hell!
RODOLFO: Colline, sei morto?	RODOLFO: Colline, are you killed?
COLLINE: (dal basso) Non ancor.	COLLINE: (from below) Not yet.
MARCELLO: Vien presto. (Rodolfo chiude l'uscio, pone il lume sulla tavola, e si mette a scrivere. Ma straccia il foglio e getta via la penna.)	MARCELLO: Come soon. (Rodolfo closes the door, sets his light on the table and tries to write. But he tears up the paper and throws the pen down.)
RODOLFO: Non sono in vena. (Bussano timidamente alla porta.) Chi è là?	RODOLFO: I'm not in the mood. (There's a timid knock at the door.) Who's there?
MIMÌ: (di fuori) Scusi.	MIMÌ: (outside) Excuse me.
RODOLFO: Una donna!	RODOLFO: A woman!
MIMÌ: Di grazia, mi si è spento il lume.	MIMÌ: I'm sorry . . . my light has gone out.
RODOLFO: (aprendo) Ecco.	RODOLFO: (opening the door) Here.
MIMÌ: (sull'uscio, con un lume spento in mano ed una chiave) Vorrebbe . . . ?	MIMÌ: (in the doorway, holding a candlestick and key) Would you . . . ?

RODOLFO: S'accomodi un momento.

MIMÌ: Non occorre.

RODOLFO: La prego, entri.
(Entrando, Mimì è presa da soffocazione.)
Si sente male?

MIMÌ: No . . . nulla.

RODOLFO: Impallidisce!

MIMÌ: È il respir . . . quelle scale . . .
(Sviene e Rodolfo è appena a tempo di sorreggerla ed adagiarla su una sedia, mentre dalle mani di Mimì cadono e candeliere e chiave.)

RODOLFO: Ed ora come faccio?
(Va a prendere dell'acqua e ne spruzza il viso di lei.)
Così.
Che viso d'ammalata!
(Mimì rinviene.)
Si sente meglio?

MIMÌ: Sì.

RODOLFO: Qui c'è tanto freddo.
Segga vicino
al fuoco.
(La conduce a sedere presso al camino.)
Aspetti . . . un po' di vino.

MIMÌ: Grazie.

RODOLFO: A lei.

MIMÌ: Poco, poco.

RODOLFO: Così.

MIMÌ: Grazie.

RODOLFO: (Che bella bambina!)

MIMÌ: (alzandosi) Ora permetta che accenda il lume.
Tutto è passato.

RODOLFO: Tanta fretta!

MIMÌ: Sì.
(Rodolfo accende il lume e glielo dà.)
Grazie. Buona sera.

RODOLFO: Buona sera.
(Mimì, esce, poi riappare sull'uscio.)

MIMÌ: Oh! sventata, sventata!
la chiave della stanza dove l'ho lasciata?

RODOLFO: Non stia sull'uscio:
il lume vacilla al vento.
(Il lume di Mimì si spegne.)

MIMÌ: Oh Dio! Torni ad accenderlo.
(Rodolfo accorre colla sua candela, ma avvicinandosi alla porta anche il suo lume si spegne e la camera rimane buia.)

RODOLFO: Oh Dio! Anche il mio s'è spento.

MIMÌ: Ah! E la chiave ove sarà?

RODOLFO: Buio pesto!

MIMÌ: Disgraziata!

RODOLFO: Come in for a moment.

MIMÌ: There's no need.

RODOLFO: Please . . . come in.
(Mimì enters, and has a fit of coughing.)
You're not well?

MIMÌ: No . . . it's nothing.

RODOLFO: You're pale!

MIMÌ: I'm out of breath . . . the stairs . . .
(She faints, and Rodolfo is just in time to support her and help her to a chair. The key and the candlestick fall from her hands.)

RODOLFO: Now what shall I do?
(He gets some water and sprinkles her face.)
So.
How ill she looks!
(Mimì come to.)
Are you better now?

MIMÌ: Yes.

RODOLFO: It's so cold here. Come and sit by the fire.
(He helps her to a chair by the stove.)
Wait . . . some wine.

MIMÌ: Thank you.

RODOLFO: Here.

MIMÌ: Just a little.

RODOLFO: There.

MIMÌ: Thank you.

RODOLFO: (What a lovely creature!)

MIMÌ: (rising) Now, please, relight my candle.
I'm better now.

RODOLFO: Such a hurry!

MIMÌ: Yes.
(Rodolfo lights her candle for her.)
Thank you. Good evening.

RODOLFO: Good evening.
(Mimì goes out, then reappears at the door.)

MIMÌ: Oh! foolish me!
Where have I left the key to my room?

RODOLFO: Don't stand in the door:
the wind makes your light flicker.
(Her candle goes out.)

MIMÌ: Heavens! Will you relight it?
(Rodolfo hastens to her with his light, but when he reaches the door, his candle goes out, too. The room is dark.)

RODOLFO: There . . . Now mine's out, too.

MIMÌ: Ah! And where can my key be?

RODOLFO: Pitch dark!

MIMÌ: Unlucky me!

RODOLFO: Ove sarà?

MIMÌ: Importuna è la vicina . . .

RODOLFO: Ma le pare!

MIMÌ: Importuna è la vicina . . .

RODOLFO: Cosa dice? ma le pare!

MIMÌ: Cerchi.

RODOLFO: Cerco.
(Cercano, tastando il pavimento colle mani.)

MIMÌ: Ove sarà?

RODOLFO: Ah!
(Trova la chiave, l'intasca.)

MIMÌ: L'ha trovata?

RODOLFO: No.

MIMÌ: Mi parve . . .

RODOLFO: In verità!

MIMÌ: Cerca?

RODOLFO: Cerco.
(Guidato dalla voce di Mimì, Rodolfo finge di cercare mentre si avvicina ad essa. Poi colla sua mano incontra quella di Mimì e l'afferra.)

MIMÌ: (sorpresa) Ah!
(Si alzano. Rodolfo tiene sempre la mano di Mimì.)

RODOLFO: Che gelida manina!
Se la lasci riscaldar.
Cercar che giova?
Al buio non si trova.
Ma per fortuna
è una notte di luna,
e qui la luna l'abbiamo vicina.
Aspetti, signorina,
le dirò con due parole chi son,
chi son, e che faccio, come vivo.
Vuole?
(Mimì tace.)
Chi son? Chi son? Son un poeta.
Che cosa faccio? Scrivo.
E come vivo? Vivo.
In povertà mia lieta scialo da gran signore
rime ed inni d'amore.
Per sogni e per chimere
e per castelli in aria l'anima ho milionaria.
Talor dal mio forziere
ruban tutti i gioielli
due ladri: gli occhi belli, V'entrar con voi pur ora
ed i miei sogni usati, ed i bei sogni miei
tosto si dileguar!
Ma il furto non m'accora poichè, poichè v'ha preso stanza la speranza.
Or che mi conoscete
parlate voi. Deh parlate.
Chi siete? Vi piaccia dir?

MIMÌ: Sì. Mi chiamano Mimì, ma il mio nome è Lucia.
La storia mia è breve.
A tela o a seta
ricamo in casa e fuori.
Son tranquilla e lieta,

RODOLFO: Where can it be?

MIMÌ: You've a bothersome neighbor . . .

RODOLFO: Not at all.

MIMÌ: You've a bothersome neighbor . . .

RODOLFO: What do you mean?
Not at all!

MIMÌ: Search.

RODOLFO: I'm searching.
(They hunt, touching the floor with their hands.)

MIMÌ: Where can it be?

RODOLFO: Ah!
(He finds the key and pockets it.)

MIMÌ: Did you find it?

RODOLFO: No.

MIMÌ: I thought . . .

RODOLFO: Truthfully!

MIMÌ: Are you hunting?

RODOLFO: I'm hunting for it.
(Guided by her voice, Rodolfo pretends to search as he draws closer to her. Then his hand meets hers, and he holds it.)

MIMÌ: (surprised) Ah!
(They rise. Rodolfo continues to hold Mimì's hand.)

RODOLFO: How cold your little hand is!
Let me warm it for you.
What's the use of searching?
We'll never find it in the dark.
But luckily
there's a moon,
and she's our neighbor here.
Just wait, my dear young lady, and meanwhile I'll tell you in a word who and what I am.
Shall I?
(Mimì is silent.)
Who am I? I'm a poet.
My business? Writing.
How do I live? I live.
In my happy poverty
I squander like a prince my poems and songs of love.
In hopes and dreams
and castles-in-air,
I'm a millionaire in spirit.
But sometimes my strong-box is robbed of all its jewels by two thieves: a pair of pretty eyes.
They came in now with you and all my lovely dreams,
my dreams of the past,
were soon stolen away.
But the theft doesn't upset me, since the empty place was filled with hope.
Now that you know me,
it's your turn to speak.
Who are you? Will you tell me?

MIMÌ: Yes.
They call me Mimì,
but my real name's Lucia.
My story is brief.
I embroider silk and satin
at home or outside.

ed è mio svago far gigli e rose.
Mi piaccion quelle cose
che han sì dolce malia, che parlano d'amor, di primavere, che parlano di sogni e di chimere, quelle cose che han nome poesia . . .
Lei m'intende?

RODOLFO: Sì.

MIMÌ: Mi chiamano Mimì.
Il perchè non so.
Sola, mi fo il pranzo da me stessa.
Non vado sempre a messa,
ma prego assai il Signor.
Vivo sola, soletta,
là in una bianca cameretta;
guardo sui tetti e in cielo.
Ma quando vien lo sgelo
Il primo sole è mio,
Il primo bacio dell'aprile è mio!
Il primo sole è mio.
Germoglia in un vaso una rosa,
foglia a foglia l'aspiro.
Così gentil è il profumo d'un fior.
Ma i fior ch'io faccio, ahimè,
i fior ch'io faccio,
ahimè non hanno odore.
Altro di me non le saprei narrare.
Sono la sua vicina
che la vien fuori d'ora a importunare.

SCHAUNARD: (dal cortile) Ehi! Rodolfo!

COLLINE: Rodolfo!

MARCELLO: Olà! Non senti? Lumaca!

COLLINE: Poetucolo!

SCHAUNARD: Accidenti al pigro!
(Rodolfo, impaziente, va alla finestra per rispondere. Dalla finestra aperta entrano i raggi lunari, rischiarando la camera.)

RODOLFO: Scrivo ancora tre righi a volo.

MIMÌ: Chi sono?

RODOLFO: Amici.

SCHAUNARD: Sentirai le tue.

MARCELLO: Che te ne fai lì solo?

RODOLFO: Non son solo. Siamo in due.
Andate da Momus, tenete il posto.
Ci saremo tosto.

MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD E COLLINE: Momus, Momus, Momus, zitti e discreti andiamocene via.
Momus, Momus.
Trovò la poesia.
(Rodolfo volgendosi scorge Mimì avvolta come da un nimbo di luce, e la contempla, estatico.)

I'm tranquil and happy, and my pastime
is making lilies and roses.
I love all things that have gentle magic,
that talk of love, of spring, that talk of dreams and fancies—
the things called poetry . . .
Do you understand me?

RODOLFO: Yes.

MIMÌ: They call me Mimì
I don't know why.
I live all by myself and I eat alone.
I don't often go to church, but I like to pray.
I stay all alone
in my tiny white room,
I look at the roofs and the sky.
but when spring comes the sun's first rays are mine.
April's first kiss is mine, is mine!
The sun's first rays are mine!
A rose blossoms in my vase,
I breathe its perfume, petal by petal.
So sweet is the flower's perfume.
But the flowers I make, alas,
the flowers I make, alas,
alas, have no scent.
What else can I say?
I'm your neighbor, disturbing you at this impossible hour.

SCHAUNARD: (from below) Hey! Rodolfo!

COLLINE: Rodolfo!

MARCELLO: Hey! Can't you hear?
You slow-coach!

COLLINE: You scribbler!

SCHAUNARD: To hell with that lazy one!
(Rodolfo, impatient, goes to the window to answer. When the window is opened, the moonlight comes in, lighting up the room.)

RODOLFO: I've a few more words to write.

MIMÌ: Who are they?

RODOLFO: Friends.

SCHAUNARD: You'll hear about this.

MARCELLO: What are you doing there alone?

RODOLFO: I'm not alone. There's two of us.
Go to Momus and get a table.
We'll be there soon.

MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD AND COLLINE: Momus, Momus, Momus.
Quietly, discreetly, we're off.
Momus, Momus.
He's found his poem at last.
(Turning, Rodolfo sees Mimì wrapped in a halo of moonlight. He contemplates her, in ecstasy.)

RODOLFO: O soave fanciulla, o dolce viso, di mite circonfuso alba lunar,
in te ravviso il sogno
ch'io vorrei sempre sognar!

MIMÌ: (Ah, tu sol comandi, amor!)

RODOLFO: Fremon già nell'anima le dolcezze estreme.

MIMÌ: (Tu sol comandi, amore!)

RODOLFO: Fremon nell'anima dolcezze estreme, ecc.
Nel bacio freme amor!

MIMÌ: (Oh! come dolci scendono le sue lusinghe al core . . .
Tu sol comandi, amor!)
(Rodolfo la bacia.)
No, per pietà!

RODOLFO: Sei mia!

MIMÌ: V'aspettan gli amici . . .

RODOLFO: Già mi mandi via?

MIMÌ: Vorrei dir . . . ma non oso.

RODOLFO: Di'.

MIMÌ: Se venissi con voi?

RODOLFO: Che? Mimì!
Sarebbe così dolce restar qui.
C'è freddo fuori.

MIMÌ: Vi starò vicina!

RODOLFO: E al ritorno?

MIMÌ: Curioso!

RODOLFO: Dammi il braccio, o mia piccina . . .

MIMÌ: Obbedisco, signor!

RODOLFO: Che m'ami . . . di' . . .

MIMÌ: Io t'amo.

RODOLFO E MIMÌ: (mentre escono) Amor! Amor! Amor!

ATTO SECONDO

Al Quartiere Latino
(Un piazzale con botteghe di ogni genere. Da un lato il Caffè Momus. Nella folla si aggirano Rodolfo e Mimì. Colline presso alla bottega di una rappezzatrice. Schaunard sta comprando una pipa e un corno. Marcello è spinto qua e là della gran folla. È sera. La Vigilia di Natale.)

I VENDITORI: Aranci, datteri!
Caldi i marroni.
Ninnoli, croci.
Torroni e caramelle.
Fiori alle belle.
Oh! la crostata.
Panna montata.
Fringuelli, passeri.
Datteri! Trote!
Latte di cocco! Giubbe!
Carote!

LA FOLLA: Quanta folla! Che chiasso!
Stringiti a me, corriamo.
Lisa! Emma!

RODOLFO: Oh! lovely girl! Oh, sweet face bathed in the soft moonlight.
I see in you the dream
I'd dream forever!

MIMÌ: (Ah! Love, you rule alone!)

RODOLFO: Already I taste in spirit
the heights of tenderness!

MIMÌ: (You rule alone, o Love!)

RODOLFO: Already I taste in spirit
the heights of tenderness!
Love trembles in our kiss!

MIMÌ: (How sweet his praises enter my heart . . .
Love, you alone rule!)
(Rodolfo kisses her.)
No, please!

RODOLFO: You're mine!

MIMÌ: Your friends are waiting.

RODOLFO: You send me away already?

MIMÌ: I daren't say what I'd like . . .

RODOLFO: Tell me.

MIMÌ: If I came with you?

RODOLFO: What? Mimì!
It would be so fine to stay here.
Outside it's cold.

MIMÌ: I'd be near you!

RODOLFO: And when we come back?

MIMÌ: Who knows?

RODOLFO: Give me your arm, my dear . . .

MIMÌ: Your servant, sir . . .

RODOLFO: Tell me you love me!

MIMÌ: I love you.

RODOLFO AND MIMÌ: (as they go out) Beloved! My love! My love!

ACT II

In the Latin Quarter
(A square with shops of all kinds. On one side is the Café Momus. Mimì and Rodolfo move about with the crowd. Colline is nearby at a rag-woman's stand. Schaunard is buying a pipe and a trumpet. Marcello is pushed here and there by the throng. It is evening. Christmas Eve.)

HAWKERS: Oranges, dates!
Hot roasted chestnuts!
Crosses, knick-knacks!
Cookies and candies!
Flowers for the ladies!
Pies for sale!
With whipped cream!
Finches and larks!
Dates! Fresh fish!
Coconut milk! Skirts!
Carrots!

THE CROWD: What a throng! Such noise!
Hold tight! Let's run!
Lisa! Emma!

Date il passo.
Emma, quando ti chiamo!
Ancora un altro giro . . .
Pigliam via Mazzarino.
Qui mi manca il respiro!
Vedi? Il Caffè è vicino.
Oh! Stupendi gioielli!
Son gli occhi assai più belli!
Pericolosi esempi
la folla oggi ci dà!
Era meglio ai miei tempi!
Viva la libertà!

AL CAFFÈ: Andiam. Qua, camerier!
Presto. Corri.
Vien qua. A me.
Birra! Un bicchier!
Vaniglia. Ratafià.
Dunque? Presto!
Da ber! Un caffè . . .
Presto. Olà . . .

SCHAUNARD: (soffiando nel corno e cavandone note strane) Falso questo Re!
Pipa e corno quant'è?

COLLINE: (dalla rappezzatrice che gli sta cucendo un zimarrone usato che egli ha appena comprato) È un poco usato . . .

RODOLFO: Andiam.

MIMÌ: Andiam per la cuffietta?

COLLINE: Ma è serio e a buon mercato . . .

RODOLFO: Tienti al mio braccio stretta . . .

MIMÌ: A te mi stringo.

MIMÌ, RODOLFO: Andiam!
(Entrano dalla modista.)

MARCELLO: Io pur mi sento in vena di gridar:
Chi cuol, donnine allegre, un po' d'amor?

VENDITORI: Datteri! Trote!
Prugne di Tours!

MARCELLO: Facciamo insieme a vendere e comprar:
Io do ad un soldo il vergine mio cuor.

SCHAUNARD: Fra spintoni e pestate accorrendo, affretta la folla e si diletta nel provar voglie matte—insoddisfatte.

VENDITORI: Ninnoli, spillette!
ecc.

COLLINE: (mostrando un libro) Copia rara, anzi unica:
la grammatica Runica.

SCHAUNARD: (Uomo onesto!)

MARCELLO: A cena!

SCHAUNARD E COLLINE: Rodolfo?

MARCELLO: Entrò da una modista.
(Rodolfo e Mimì escono dalla bottega.)

Make way there!
Emma. I'm calling you!
Once more around . . .
We'll take Rue Mazarin.
I can't breathe here . . .
See? The café's right here.
What wonderful jewels!
Your eyes are more wonderful!
This crowd tonight
sets a dangerous example!
Things were better in my day!
Long live freedom!

AT THE CAFÉ: Let's go, Here, waiter!
Hurry. On the run.
Come here. My turn.
Beer! A glass!
Vanilla. Liqueur!
Well? Hurry.
Drinks! Coffee . . .
Quickly. Hey, there . . .

SCHAUNARD: (blowing on the trumpet, producing odd sounds)
This D is out of tune.
How much for the horn and pipe?

COLLINE: (at the rag-woman's, who is sewing up an enormous overcoat he has just bought) It's a little worn . . .

RODOLFO: Let's go.

MIMÌ: Are we going to buy the bonnet?

COLLINE: . . . But it's cheap and dignified.

RODOLFO: Hold tight to my arm.

MIMÌ: I'll hold you tight.

MIMÌ, RODOLFO: Let's go!
(They go into the milliner's.)

MARCELLO: I, too, feel like shouting:
which of you happy girls wants love?

HAWKERS: Dates! Trout! Plums from Tours!

MARCELLO: Let us make a bargain together—for a penny I'll sell my virgin heart.

SCHAUNARD: Pushing and shoving and running, the crowd hastens to its joys, feeling insane desires—unappeased.

HAWKERS: Trinkets! Brooches!
etc.

COLLINE: (showing a book) A rare find, truly unique:
a Runic grammar.

SCHAUNARD: (What an honest fellow!)

MARCELLO: Let's eat!

SCHAUNARD AND COLLINE: And Rodolfo?

MARCELLO: He went into the milliner's.
(Rodolfo and Mimì come out of the shop.)

RODOLFO: Viene, gli amici aspettano.

MIMÌ: Mi sta ben questa cuffietta rosa?

VENDITORI: Panna montata! Latte di cocco!
Oh! la crostata! Panna montata!

AL CAFFÈ: Camerier! Un bicchier!
Presto. Olà . . .
Ratafia.

RODOLFO: Sei bruna
e quel color ti dona.

MIMÌ: (guardando verso la bottega) Bel vezzo di corallo.

RODOLFO: Ho uno zio milionario.
Se fa senno il buon Dio voglio comprarti un vezzo assai più bel! . . .

MONELLI, SARTINE, STUDENTI: Ah! ah! ah! ah! ecc.

BORGHESI: Facciam coda alla gente!
Ragazze, state attente!
Che chiasso! Quanta folla!
Pigliam via Mazzarino!
Io soffoco, partiamo!
Vedi il caffè è vicin!
Andiam là, da Momus!
Ah!

VENDITORI: Oh! la crostata! Panna montata!
Fiori alle belle!
Ninnoli, datteri, caldi i marron!
Fringuelli, passeri,
panna, torron!

RODOLFO: Chi guardi?

COLLINE: Odio il profano volgo al par d'Orazio.

MIMÌ: Sei geloso?

RODOLFO: All'uom felice sta il sospetto accanto.

SCHAUNARD: Ed io quando mi sazio vo' abbondanza di spazio.

MIMÌ: Sei felice?

MARCELLO: (al cameriere) Vogliamo una cena prelibata.

RODOLFO: Ah, sì. Tanto.

MARCELLO: Lesto.

SCHAUNARD: Per molti.

RODOLFO: E tu?

MIMÌ: Sì, tanto.
(Marcello, Schaunard, e Colline si seggono ad una tavola davanti al caffè.)

STUDENTI: Là, da Momus!

SARTINE: Andiam! Andiam!

MARCELLO, COLLINE, SCHAUNARD: Lesto.

VOCE DI PARPIGNOL: (in lontananza) Ecco i giocattoli di Parpignol!

RODOLFO: Come, my friends are waiting.

MIMÌ: Is my pink bonnet becoming?

HAWKERS: Whipped cream! Coconut milk!
Pies! Whipped cream!

CAFÉ CUSTOMERS: Waiter! A glass!
Quick. Hey there . . .
Liqueur.

RODOLFO: You're dark, that color suits you.

MIMÌ: (looking back at the shop) That lovely coral necklace.

RODOLFO: I've a millionaire uncle.
If God acts wisely,
I'll buy you a necklace
much more beautiful . . .

URCHINS, MIDINETTES, STUDENTS: Ah! ah! ah! etc.

TOWNSPEOPLE: Let's follow these people!
Girls, watch out!
Such noise! What a throng!
We'll take the Rue Mazarin!
I'm stifling, let's go!
See, the cafe's right here!
Let's go there, to Momus!
Ah!

HAWKERS: Pies for sale! Whipped cream!
Flowers for the ladies!
Knick-Knacks, dates, hot roasted chestnuts.
Finches, larks!
Cream cakes!

RODOLFO: Whom are you looking at?

COLLINE: I hate the vulgar herd as Horace did.

MIMÌ: Are you jealous?

RODOLFO: The man who's happy must be suspicious too.

SCHAUNARD: And when I'm stuffing myself
I want plenty of room about me.

MIMÌ: Are you happy then?

MARCELLO: (to the waiter) We want a prize dinner.

RODOLFO: Oh yes. Very.

MARCELLO: Quickly.

SCHAUNARD: And bring plenty.

RODOLFO: And you?

MIMÌ: Very.
(Marcello, Schaunard and Colline sit at a table in front of the cafe.)

STUDENTS: There, to Momus!

MIDINETTES: Let's go! Let's go!

MARCELLO, COLLINE, SCHAUNARD: Quickly!

VOICE OF PARPIGNOL: (in the distance) Here are the toys of Parpignol!

RODOLFO: Due posti!	RODOLFO: Two places.
COLLINE: Finalmente, eccoci qui!	COLLINE: Here they are at last!
RODOLFO: Questa è Mimì, gaia fioraia. Il suo venir completa la bella compagnia. Perchè . . . perchè son io il poeta; essa la poesia. Dal mio cervel sbocciano i canti, dalle sue dita sbocciano i fior— dall'anime esultanti sboccia l'amor.	RODOLFO: This is Mimì, happy flower-girl. Her presence alone makes our company complete. For . . . for I am a poet; and she is poetry itself. As songs flow from my brain, the flowers bloom in her hands, and in joyful spirits love blossoms also.
MARCELLO: Dio che concetti rari!	MARCELLO: What rare imagery!
COLLINE: Digna est intrari.	COLLINE: Digna est intrari
SCHAUNARD: Ingrediat si necessit.	SCHAUNARD: Ingrediat si necessit.
COLLINE: Io non do che un accessit.	COLLINE: I grant only one accessit.
VOCE DI PARPIGNOL: (più vicino) Ecco i giocattoli di Parpignol!	VOICE OF PARPIGNOL: (closer) Here are the toys of Parpignol!
COLLINE: Salame . . . (Arriva nel piazzale Parpignol, spingendo un carretto tutto a fronzoli e fiori.)	COLLINE: Salami . . . (Parpignol arrives in the square, pushing a barrow covered with frills and flowers.)
RAGAZZI E BAMBINE: Parpignol! Parpignol! Parpignol! . . . Ecco Parpignol! Parpignol! Col carretto tutto fior! Ecco Parpignol! Voglio la tromba, il cavallin! Il tambur, tamburel . . . voglio il cannon, voglio il frustin, dei soldati i drappel.	CHILDREN: Parpignol! Parpignol! Parpignol! Here is Parpignol! With his cart all decked with flowers! Here is Parpignol! I want the horn, the toy horse! The drum! The tambourine! I want the cannon; I want the whip, I want the troop of soldiers.
SCHAUNARD: Cervo arrosto.	SCHAUNARD: Roast venison.
MARCELLO: Un tacchineo.	MARCELLO: A turkey.
SCHAUNARD: Vin del Reno!	SCHAUNARD: Rhine wine!
COLLINE: Vin da tavola!	COLLINE: Table wine!
SCHAUNARD: Aragosta senza crosta!	SCHAUNARD: Shelled lobster!
MAMME: Ah! che razza di furfanti indemoniati, che ci venite a fare in questo loco? A casa, a letto! Via, brutti sguaiati, gli scappellotti vi parranno poco! A casa! A letto, razza di furfanti, a letto!	MOTHERS: What a bunch of naughty rascals! What are you doing here now? Go home to bed, you noisy things. Slaps will be the least you'll get . . . go home to bed, you bunch of rascals, to bed!
UN RAGAZZO: Vo' la tromba, il cavallin . . .	A BOY: I want the horn, the toy horse . . .
RODOLFO: E tu Mimì, che vuoi?	RODOLFO: What will you have, Mimì?
MIMÌ: La crema.	MIMÌ: Some custard.
SCHAUNARD: E gran sfarzo. C'è una dama.	SCHAUNARD: The best. A lady's with us.
RAGAZZI E BAMBINE: Viva Parpignol! Il tambur, tamburel . . . Dei soldati il drappel. (Escono, seguendo il carretto di Parpignol.)	CHILDREN: Bravo Parpignol! The drums! The tambourine! A troop of soldiers! (They run off, following Parpignol.)
MARCELLO: Signorina Mimì, che dono raro le ha fatto il suo Rodolfo?	MARCELLO: Tell me, Mimì, what rare gift Rodolfo has given you?
MIMÌ: Una cuffietta a pizzi tutta rosa ricamata. Coi miei capelli bruni ben si fonde. Da tanto tempo tal cuffietta è cosa desiata . . . ed egli ha letto quel che il core asconde . . . Ora colui che legge dentro a un core sa l'amore . . . ed è lettore.	MIMÌ: An embroidered pink bonnet, all with lace. It goes well with my dark hair. I've longed for such a bonnet for months . . . and he read what was hidden in my heart . . . Anyone who can read the heart's secret knows love . . . he's such a reader.
SCHAUNARD: Esperto professore . . .	SCHAUNARD: He's a professor in the subject.
COLLINE: Che ha già diplomi e non son armi prime le sue rime . . .	COLLINE: With diplomas, and his verses are not a beginner's . . .
SCHAUNARD: Tanto che sembra ver ciò che egli esprime!	SCHAUNARD: That's why what he says seems to be true!
MARCELLO: O bella età d'inganni e d'utopie! Si crede, spera, e tutto bello appare.	MARCELLO: Oh, sweet age of false utopias! You hope and believe, and all seems beautiful.
RODOLFO: La più divina delle poesie è quella, amico, che c'insegna ad amare!	RODOLFO: The poem most divine, my friend. is what teaches us to love!
MIMÌ: Amare è dolce ancora più del miele!	MIMÌ: Love is sweet, sweeter than honey.
MARCELLO: Secondo il palato è miele o fiele!	MARCELLO: That depends: it's honey or gall!
MIMÌ: O Dio, l'ho offeso!	MIMÌ: Heavens! I've offended him!
RODOLFO: È in lutto, o mia Mimì.	RODOLFO: He's mourning, Mimì!
SCHAUNARD E COLLINE: Allegri! e un toast.	SCHAUNARD AND COLLINE: Cheer up! A toast!
MARCELLO: Qua del liquor!	MARCELLO: Something to drink!
TUTTI: E via i pensier, alti i bicchier. Beviam.	ALL: Away with brooding, raise your glass. We'll drink.
MARCELLO: (vedendo Musetta che entra, ridendo) Ch'io beva del tossico!	MARCELLO: (seeing Musetta enter, laughing) I'll drink some poison!
SCHAUNARD, COLLINE E RODOLFO: Oh! Musetta!	SCHAUNARD, COLLINE AND RODOLFO: Oh! Musetta!
MARCELLO: Essa!	MARCELLO: Her!
LE BOTTEGAIE: To'! Lei! Sì! To'! Lei! Musetta! Siamo in auge! Che toeletta! (Musetta si ferma, accompagnata dal vecchio, pomposo Alcindoro. Musetta prende posto ad un'altra tavola del Momus.)	THE SHOPWOMEN: What! Her! Yes! Well! Her! Musetta! She's made it. What a dress! (Musetta stops, accompanied by the old and pompous Alcindoro. She sits at another table in front of the café.)
ALCINDORO: Come un facchino correr di qua . . . di là . . . No, no, non ci sta . . .	ALCINDORO: Running like a porter back and forth . . . No, it's not proper.
MUSETTA: (chiamando Alcindoro come si chiama un cane) Vien, Lulù!	MUSETTA: (calling Alcindoro as if he were a dog) Here, Lulu!
ALCINDORO: Non ne posso più.	ALCINDORO: I can't take any more.
MUSETTA: Vien, Lulù.	MUSETTA: Come, Lulu.
SCHAUNARD: Quel brutto coso mi par che sudi!	SCHAUNARD: That ugly old fool all in a lather!
ALCINDORO: Come? qui fuori? qui?	ALCINDORO: What? Outside? Here?
MUSETTA: Siedi, Lulù.	MUSETTA: Sit, Lulu.

ALCINDORO: Tali nomignoli, prego, serbateli al tu per tu.	ALCINDORO: Please, save these little nicknames of yours for when we're alone.
MUSETTA: Non farmi il Barbablù!	MUSETTA: Don't act like Bluebeard!
COLLINE: È il vizio contegnoso!	COLLINE: He's evil behind that front!
MARCELLO: Colla casta Susanna.	MARCELLO: With the chaste Susanna.
MIMÌ: Essa è pur ben vestita.	MIMÌ: But she's beautifully dressed.
RODOLFO: Gil angeli vanno nudi.	RODOLFO: Angels go naked.
MIMÌ: La conosci? Chi è?	MIMÌ: You know her? Who is she?
MARCELLO: Domandatelo a me. Il suo nome è Musetta . . . Cognome—Tentazione! Per sua vocazione fa la rosa dei venti; gira e muta soventi d'amanti e d'amore . . . E come la civetta è uccello sanguinario; il suo cibo ordinario è il cuore . . . mangia il cuore! Per questo io non ne ho più.	MARCELLO: Ask me that question. Her first name's Musetta. Her last name's Temptation. Her occupation is being a leaf in the wind . . . Always turning, changing her lovers and her loves . . . Like the screech-owl she's a bird of prey. Her favorite food is the heart . . . she devours them! And so I have no heart.
MUSETTA: (Marcello è là . . . mi vide . . . E non mi guarda il vile! Quel Schaunard che ride! Mi fan tutti una bile! Se potessi picchiar, se potessi graffiar! Ma non ho sotto man che questo pellican. Aspetta!) Ehi! Camerier!	MUSETTA: (Marcello's there . . . he saw me . . . But the coward won't look at me. And that Schaunard's laughing! They all make me livid! If I could just hit them! Scratch their eyes out! But I've got this old pelican on my hands. Just wait!) Waiter!
MARCELLO: (nascondendo la commozione) Passatemi il ragù.	MARCELLO: (hiding his emotion) Pass me the stew.
MUSETTA: Ehi! Camerier! questo piatto ha una puzza di rifritto! (Getta il ipatto a terra.)	MUSETTA: Hey! Waiter! This plate smells dirty to me! (throwing the plate on the ground)
ALCINDORO: No, Musetta, zitto, zitto!	ALCINDORO: No, Musetta! Quiet, now!
MUSETTA: (Non si volta.)	MUSETTA: (He won't look.)
ALCINDORO: Zitto. Zitto, Modi. Garbo.	ALCINDORO: Quiet, now. Manners! Please!
MUSETTA: (Ah! Non si volta.)	MUSETTA: (He won't look.)
ALCINDORO: A chi parli?	ALCINDORO: To whom are you speaking?
COLLINE: Questo pollo è un poema!	COLLINE: This chicken is a poem!
MUSETTA: (Ora lo batto, lo batto!)	MUSETTA: (Now I'll hit him, I'll hit him!)
ALCINDORO: Con chi parli?	ALCINDORO: Who are you talking to?
MUSETTA: Al cameriere. Non seccar!	MUSETTA: To the waiter. Don't be a bore!
SCHAUNARD: Il vino è prelibato!	SCHAUNARD: The wine is excellent.
MUSETTA: Voglio fare il mio piacere . . .	MUSETTA: I want my own way!
ALCINDORO: Parla pian!	ALCINDORO: Lower your voice!
MUSETTA: Vo' far quel che mi pare!	MUSETTA: I'll do as I please!
ALCINDORO: Parla pian, parla pian!	ALCINDORO: Lower your voice!
MUSETTA: Non secc-a-a-ar!	MUSETTA: Don't be a bore!
SARTINE E STUDENTI: Guarda, guarda, chi si vede, proprio lei, Musetta! Con quel vecchio che balbetta, proprio lei, Musetta! Ah! ah! ah! ah!	MIDINETTES AND STUDENTS: Look, look who it is, Musetta herself! With that stuttering old man, it's Musetta herself! Ha ha ha ha ha!
MUSETTA: (Che sia geloso di questa mummia?)	MUSETTA: (But could he be jealous of this mummy?
ALCINDORO: La convenienza . . . il grado . . . la virtù!	ALCINDORO: Decorum . . . my rank . . . my reputation!
MUSETTA: (Vediamo se mi resta tanto poter so lui da farlo cedere.)	MUSETTA: (Let's see if I still have enough power over him to make him give in.)
SCHAUNARD: La commedia è stupenda!	SCHAUNARD: The play is stupendous!
MUSETTA: (guardando Marcello) Tu non mi guardi.	MUSETTA: (looking at Marcello) You aren't looking at me.
ALCINDORO: Vedi bene che ordino!	ALCINDORO: Can't you see I'm ordering?
SCHAUNARD: La commedia è stupenda!	SCHAUNARD: The play is stupendous!
COLLINE: Stupenda!	COLLINE: Stupendous!
RODOLFO: (a Mimì) Sappi per tuo governo che non darei perdono in sempiterno.	RODOLFO: (to Mimì) Let me tell you now: I'd never be forgiving.
SCHAUNARD: Essa all'un parla perchè l'altro intenda.	SCHAUNARD: She speaks to one for the other to hear.
MIMÌ: (a Rodolfo) Io t'amo tanto, e sono tutta tua . . . Che mi parli di perdono?	MIMÌ: (to Rodolfo) I love you so, and I'm all yours . . . Why speak of forgiveness?
COLLINE: (a Schaunard) E l'altro invan crudel finge di non capir, ma sugge miel.	COLLINE: (to Schaunard) And the other, cruel, in vain pretends he is deaf, but enjoys it all.
MUSETTA: Ma il tuo cuore martella.	MUSETTA: But your heart's like a hammer.
ALCINDORO: Parla piano.	ALCINDORO: Lower your voice.
MUSETTA: Ma il tuo cuore martella.	MUSETTA: But your heart's like a hammer.
ALCINDORO: Piano, piano!	ALCINDORO: Lower your voice.
MUSETTA: Quando men' vo soletta per la via, la gente sosta e mira, e la bellezza mia tutta ricerca in me, ricerca in me da capo a piè.	MUSETTA: As I walk alone through the streets, the people stop to look and inspect my beauty, examining me from head to toe.
MARCELLO: Legatemi alla seggiola!	MARCELLO: Tie me to the chair!
ALCINDORO: Quella gente che dirà?	ALCINDORO: What will people say?
MUSETTA: Ed assaporo allor la bramosia sottil che dagli occhi traspira e dai palesi vezzi intender sa alle occulte beltà. Così l'effluvio del desio tutta m'aggira. Felice mi fa, felice me fa.	MUSETTA: And then I savor the subtle longing in their eyes when, from my visible charms, they guess at the beauty concealed. This onrush of desire surrounds me. It delights me, it delights me.
ALCINDORO: (Quel canto scurrile mi muove la bile!)	ALCINDORO: (This scurrilous song infuriates me!)

MUSETTA: E tu che sai, che memori e ti struggi, da me tanto rifuggi? So ben: le angoscie tue non le vuoi dir, ma ti senti morir.	MUSETTA: And you know, who remember and suffer how can you escape? I know: you won't admit that you're in torment, but it's killing you.
MIMÌ: Io vedo ben che quella poveretta tutta invaghita di Marcello ell'è!	MIMÌ: I can tell that the poor girl is head over heels in love with Marcello.
ALCINDORO: Quella gente che dirà?	ALCINDORO: What will people say?
RODOLFO: Marcello un dì l'amò . . .	RODOLFO: Marcello loved her once . . .
SCHAUNARD: Ah! Marcello cederà!	SCHAUNARD: Ah! Marcello will give in!
RODOLFO: . . . La fraschetta l'abbandonò . . .	RODOLFO: . . . The flirt ran off . . .
COLLINE: Chi sa mai quel che avverrà!	COLLINE: Who knows what'll happen!
RODOLFO: . . . per poi darsi a miglior vita.	RODOLFO: . . . to find a better life.
SCHAUNARD: Trovan dolce a pari il laccio chi lo tende e chi ci dà.	SCHAUNARD: The snare is equally sweet to hunter and hunted.
COLLINE: Santi numi! in simil briga mai Colline intopperà!	COLLINE: Gods above! I'd never land myself in such a situation!
MUSETTA: (Ah! Marcello smania . . . Marcello è vinto!)	MUSETTA: (Ah, Marcello's going mad! Marcello is vanquished!)
ALCINDORO: Parla piano . . . Zitto, zitto!	ALCINDORO: Lower your voice! Be quiet!
MIMÌ: Quell'infelice mi muove a pietà.	MIMÌ: I feel so sorry for the poor girl.
COLLINE: Essa è bella—non son cieco . . .	COLLINE: She's lovely—I'm not blind . . .
MIMÌ: (stringendosi a Rodolfo) T'amo!	MIMÌ: (nestling close to Rodolfo) I love you!
SCHAUNARD: (Quel bravaccioi a momenti cederà! Stupenda è la commedia! Marcello cederà.) (a Colline) Se una tal vaga persona ti trattasse a tu per tu, la tua scienza brontolona manderesti a Belzebù.	SCHAUNARD: (The braggart is about to yield! The play is stupendous! Marcello will give in!) (to Colline) If such a pretty creature stopped and talked to you, you'd gladly send to the devil all your bearish philosophy.
RODOLFO: Mimì! È fiacco amore quel che le offese vendicar non sa. Spento amor non risorge, ecc.	RODOLFO: Mimì! Love is weak when it leaves wrongs unavenged. Love, once dead, cannot be revived, etc.
MIMÌ: Quell'infelice mi muove a pietà. L'amor ingeneroso è tristo amor! Quell'infelice, ecc.	MIMÌ: I feel so sorry for the poor girl. Love is sad when it's unforgiving. I feel so sorry, etc.
COLLINE: . . . ma piaccionmi assai più una pipa e un testo greco. Essa è bella, non son cieco, ecc.	COLLINE: . . . but I'm much happier with my pipe and a Greek text. She's beautiful, I'm not blind, etc.
ALCINDORO: Modi, garbo! Zitto, zitto!	ALCINDORO: Mind your manners! Be quiet!
MUSETTA: So ben: le angoscie tue non le vuoi dir. Ah! ma ti senti morir. (ad Alcindoro) Io voglio fare il mio piacere, voglio far quel che mi par. Non seccar, non seccar, non seccar!	MUSETTA: I know: you won't admit your torment. Ah! but you feel like dying! (to Alcindoro) I'll do as I please, I'll do as I like, don't be a bore, a bore, a bore!
(Or convience liberarsi del vecchio.) (fingendo un dolore) Ahi!	Now to get rid of the old man.) (pretending a pain) Ouch!
ALCINDORO: Che c'è?	ALCINDORO: What is it?
MUSETTA: Qual dolore, qual bruciore!	MUSETTA: The pain! The pain!
ALCINDORO: Dove?	ALCINDORO: Where?
MUSETTA: Al piè!	MUSETTA: My foot!
MARCELLO: (Gioventù mia, tu non sei morta, nè di te è morto il sovvenir . . . Se tu battessi alla mia porta t'andrebbe il mio core ad aprir!)	MARCELLO: (My youth, you're still alive, your memory's not dead . . . If you came to my door, my heart would open it!)
MUSETTA: Sciogli! slaccia! rompi! straccia! Te ne imploro. Laggiù c'è un calzolaio. Corri presto! ne voglio un altro paio. Ahi! che fitta, maledetta scarpa stretta! Or la levo . . . eccola qua. Corri, va, corri! Presto, va, va!	MUSETTA: Loosen it! Untie it! Break it! tear it! Please! There's a shoemaker nearby. Run quickly! I want another pair! Ah, how it pinches, this damn tight shoe! I'll take it off . . . here it is. Run, go on, run! Hurry, hurry!
MIMÌ: (Io vedo ben: ell'è invaghita di Marcello.)	MIMÌ: (I can see she's madly in love with Marcello.)
RODOLFO: (Io vedo ben: la commedia è stupenda!)	RODOLFO: (I can see: the play's stupendous!)
ALCINDORO: Imprudente! Quella gente che dirà? Ma il mio grado! Vuoi ch'io comprometta? Aspetta! Musetta! Vo'! (Corre frettolosamente via.)	ALCINDORO: How unwise! What will people say? My reputation! Do you want to ruin it? Wait! Musetta! I'm going! (He hurries off.)
COLLINE E SCHAUNARD: (La commedia è stupenda!)	COLLINE AND SCHAUNARD: (The play is stupendous!)
MUSETTA: Marcello!	MUSETTA: Marcello!
MARCELLO: Sirena! (Si abbracciano appassionatamente.)	MARCELLO: Siren! (They embrace passionately.)
SCHAUNARD: Siamo all'ultima scena! (Il cameriere porta un conto.)	SCHAUNARD: Here's the finale! (The waiter brings the bill.)
TUTTI: Il conto!	ALL: The bill!
SCHAUNARD: Così presto?	SCHAUNARD: So soon?
COLLINE: Chi l'ha richiesto?	COLLINE: Who asked for it?
SCHAUNARD: Vediam.	SCHAUNARD: Let's see.
COLLINE E RODOLFO: Caro! (Si ode avviccinarsi un suon di tamburi.)	COLLINE AND RODOLFO: It's high! (Drums are heard approaching.)
RODOLFO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Fuori il danaro!	RODOLFO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Out with the money!
SCHAUNARD: Colline, Rodolfo e tu, Marcel?	SCHAUNARD: Colline, Rodolfo and you, Marcello?
RAGAZZI: La Ritirata!	CHILDREN: The Tattoo!
MARCELLO: Siamo all'asciutto!	MARCELLO: We're broke!
SCHAUNARD: Come?	SCHAUNARD: What?
SARTINE, STUDENTI: La Ritirata!	MIDINETTES, STUDENTS: The Tattoo!
RODOLFO: Ho trenta soldi in tutto!	RODOLFO: I've only got thirty sous.
BORGHESI: La Ritirata!	TOWNSPEOPLE: The Tattoo!
MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Come? Non ce n'è più?	MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: What? No more money?
SCHAUNARD: Ma il mio tesoro ov'è?	SCHAUNARD: Where's my wealth?

MONELLI: S'avvicinan per di qua?

MUSETTA: (al cameriere) Il mio conto date a me.

SARTINE, STUDENTI: No! Di là!

MONELLI: S'avvicinan per di là!

SARTINE, STUDENTI: Vien di qua!

MONELLI: No! vien di là!

MUSETTA: Bene!

BORGHESI, VENDITORI: Largo! largo!

RAGAZZI: Voglio veder! voglio sentir!

MUSETTA: Presto, sommate quello con questo! . . . .
Paga il signor che stava qui con me.

MAMME: Lisetta, vuoi tacere?
Tonio, la vuoi finire?

FANCIULLE: Mamma, voglio vedere!
Papà, voglio sentire!

RODOLFO, MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Paga il signor!

RAGAZZI: Vuò veder la Ritirata!

MAMME: Vuoi tacer, la vuoi finir!

SARTINE: S'avvicinano di qua!

BORGHESI: S'avvicinano di là!

BORGHESI, STUDENTI, VENDITORI: Sì, di qua!

MONELLI: Come sarà arrivata, la seguiremo al passo.

COLLINE, SCHAUNARD, MARCELLO: Paga il signor!

MUSETTA: E dove s'è seduto, ritrovi il mio saluto!
(mettendo il conto sulla sedia)

BORGHESI: In quel rulliò tu senti la patria maestà.

RODOLFO, COLLINE, SCHAUNARD, MARCELLO: E dove s'è seduto, ritrovi il suo saluto!

LA FOLLA: Largo, largo, eccoli qua!

MONELLI: Ohè! attenti, eccoli qua!

MARCELLO: Giunge la Ritirata!

LA FOLLA: In fila!

COLLINE, MARCELLO: Che il vecchio non ci veda fuggir colla sua preda.

RODOLFO: Giunge la Ritirata!

URCHINS: Are they coming this way?

MUSETTA: (to the waiter) Give me my bill.

MIDINETTES, STUDENTS: No! That way!

URCHINS: They're coming that way!

MIDINETTES, STUDENTS: They're coming this way!

URCHINS: No, that way!

MUSETTA: Good!

TOWNSPEOPLE: Make way! Make way!

CHILDREN: I want to see! I want to hear!

MUSETTA: Quick, add these two bills together . . .
The gentleman who was with me will pay.

MOTHERS: Lisetta, please be quiet.
Tonio, stop that at once!

GIRLS: Mamma, I want to see.
Papa, I want to hear.

RODOLFO, MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: The gentleman will pay!

CHILDREN: I want to see the Tattoo!

MOTHERS: Please be quiet! Stop that at once!

MIDINETTES: They're coming this way!

TOWNSPEOPLE: They're coming that way!

TOWNSPEOPLE, STUDENTS, HAWKERS: Yes, this way!

URCHINS: When it comes by,
we'll march with it!

COLLINE, SCHAUNARD, MARCELLO: The gentleman will pay!

MUSETTA: And here, at his place,
he'll find my farewell!
(putting the bill on the chair.)

TOWNSPEOPLE: That drum-roll expresses our country's glory.

RODOLFO, COLLINE, SCHAUNARD, MARCELLO: And here, at this place, he'll find her farewell!

THE CROWD: Make way, make way, here they come!

URCHINS: Hey! Look out, here they are!

MARCELLO: Now the Guard is coming!

THE CROWD: All in line!

COLLINE, MARCELLO: Don't let the old fool see us make off with his prize.

RODOLFO: The Guard is coming!

MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Quella folla serrata il nascondiglio appresti!

LA FOLLA: Ecco il tambur maggiore, più fiero d'un antico guerriero! Il tambur maggior!

MIMÌ, MUSETTA, RODOLFO, MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Lesti! lesti! lesti!

LA FOLLA: I Zappatori! i Zappatori, olà!
Ecco il tambur maggior!
Pare un general!
La Ritirata è qua!
Eccola là! Il bel tambur maggior!
La canna d'or, tutto splendor!
Che guarda, passa, va!

RODOLFO, MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Viva Musetta!
Cuor biricchin!
Gloria ed onor, onor e gloria del Quartier Latin!

LA FOLLA: Tutto splendor!
Di Francia è il più bell'uom!
Il bel tambur maggior!
Eccola là! Che guarda, passa, va!
(Musetta non potendo camminare con una scarpa sola, è alzata a braccia di Marcello e Colline. Tutti si mettono in coda alla ritirata e si allontanano. Alcindoro torna con un paio di scarpe; il cameriere gli presenta i conti. Vedendo la somma e non trovando più nessuno, Alcindoro cade su di una sedia, stupefatto.)

ATTO TERZO

La Barriera d'Enfer
(Al di là della barriera il boulevard esterno, a sinistra un cabaret e un piccolo largo costeggiato da alcuni platani. Certi doganieri dormono avanti ad un braciere. Dal cabaret, ad intervalli, grida, risate. È un'alba di febbraio. La neve è dappertutto. Dietro la cancellata chiusa, battendo i piedi dal freddo stanno alcuni spazzini.)

SPAZZINI: Ohè, là, le guardie . . .
Aprite!
Quelli di Gentilly! Siam gli spazzini.
Fiocca la neve. Ohè, là! Qui s'agghiaccia!

UN DOGANIERE: (sbadigliando) Vengo.

VOCI DAL CABARET: Chi nel ber trovò il piacer
nel suo bicchier, d'una bocca nell'ardor
trovò l'amor.

MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: That crowded throng will be our hiding-place.

THE CROWD: Here's the drum-major! Prouder than an ancient warrior! The drum-major!

MIMÌ, MUSETTA, RODOLFO, MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Hurry! Let's run off!

THE CROWD: The Sappers! The Sappers, hooray!
Here's the drum-major!
Like a general!
The Tattoo is here!
Here he is, the handsome drum-major!
The golden baton, all a-glitter!
See, he looks at us as he goes past!

RODOLFO, MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD, COLLINE: Bravo Musetta!
Artful minx!
Glory and honor, the glory and honor of the Latin Quarter!

THE CROWD: All a-glitter!
The handsomest man in France,
the drum-major!
Here he is! See, he looks at us as he goes past!
(Since Musetta cannot walk with only one shoe, Marcello and Colline carry her on their shoulders. They all follow the guards and disappear. Alcindoro comes back with a new pair of shoes, and the waiter hands him the bill. When he sees the amount and sees nobody around, Alcindoro falls, bewildered, onto a chair.)

ACT III

The Barrière d'Enfer
(Beyond the tollgate is the main highway. At left, a tavern. A small square flanked by plane trees. Some customs officers are asleep around a brazier. Shouts and laughter issue from the cabaret. Dawn. February. The snow is everywhere. Some street-sweepers are beyond the gate, stamping their feet in the cold.)

SWEEPERS: Hey, there! Guards!
Open up!
We're the sweepers from Gentilly.
It's snowing. Hey! We're freezing here.

CUSTOMS OFFICER: (yawning) I'm coming.

VOICES FROM THE TAVERN:
Some find pleasure
in their cups.
On ardent lips
some find love.

VOCE DI MUSETTA: Ah! Se nel bicchier sta il piacer, in giovin bocca sta l'amor.	VOICE OF MUSETTA: Ah! Pleasure is in the glass! Love lies on your lips.
VOCI DAL CABARET: Trallerallè Eva e Noè.	VOICES FROM THE TAVERN: Tra la la la Eve and Noah.
VOCI DAL BOULEVARD: Hopp-là! Hopp-là!	VOICES FROM THE HIGHWAY: Houp-la! Giddap!
DOGANIERE: Son già le lattivendole! (Egli apre il cancello. Una fila di carretti con contadini entra assieme alle lattaie.)	CUSTOMS OFFICER: Here come the milkmaids! (He opens the gate. The milkmaids enter together with a string of peasants' carts.)
LE LATTIVENDOLE: Buon giorno!	MILKMAIDS: Good morning!
LE CONTADINE: Burro e cacio! Polli ed ova! Voi da che parte andate? A San Michele. Ci troverem più tardi? A mezzodì. (Si allontanano. Entra Mimì. Appena giunta al primo platano la coglie un accesso di tosse. Poi riavutasi dice al sergente:)	PEASANT WOMEN: Butter and cheese! Chickens and eggs! Which way are you going? To Saint Michel! Shall we meet later? Yes, at noon. (They go off. Enter Mimì. When she reaches the first tree, she has a fit of coughing. Then recovering herself, she says to the sergeant:)
MIMÌ: Sa dirmi, scusi, qual è l'osteria dove un pittor lavora?	MIMÌ: Excuse me, where's the tavern where a painter is working?
SERGENTE: Eccola.	SERGEANT: There it is.
MIMÌ: Grazie. (Esce la fantesca dal cabaret. Mimì le si avvicina.) A buona donna, mi fate il favore di cercarmi il pittore Marcello? Ho da parlargli. Ho tanta fretta. Ditegli, piano, che Mimì l'aspetta.	MIMÌ: Thank you. (A waitress comes out of the tavern. Mimì approaches her.) Oh, good woman, please . . . Be good enough to find me Marcello, the painter. I must see him quickly. Tell him Mimì's waiting.
SERGENTE: (ad uno che passa) Ehi, quel paniere!	SERGEANT: (to someone coming in) Hey! that basket!
DOGANIERE: Vuoto!	CUSTOMS OFFICER: Empty!
SERGENTE: Passi. (Marcello esce dal cabaret.)	SERGEANT: Let him through. (Marcello comes out of the tavern.)
MARCELLO: Mimì?!	MARCELLO: Mimì?
MIMÌ: Speravo di trovarvi qui.	MIMÌ: I hoped I'd find you here.
MARCELLO: È ver, siam qui da un mese di quell'oste alle spese. Musetta insegna il canto ai passeggieri. Io pingo quei guerrieri sulla facciata. È freddo. Entrate.	MARCELLO: That's right. We've been here a month, at the host's expense. Musetta teaches the guests singing. And I paint those warriors by the door there. It's cold. Come inside.
MIMÌ: C'è Rodolfo?	MIMÌ: Is Rodolfo there?
MARCELLO: Sì.	MARCELLO: Yes.
MIMÌ: Non posso entrar. No! No!	MIMÌ: I can't go in. No, no!
MARCELLO: Perchè?	MARCELLO: Why not?
MIMÌ: O buon Marcello, aiuto! Aiuto!	MIMÌ: Oh! help me, good Marcello! Help me!
MARCELLO: Cos'è avvenuto?	MARCELLO: What's happened?
MIMÌ: Rodolfo m'ama e mi fugge. Rodolfo si strugge per gelosia. Un passo, un detto, un vezzo, un fior lo mettono in sospetto . . . Onde corucci ed ire. Talor la notte fingo di dormire e in me lo sento fisso spiarmi i sogni in viso. Mi grida ad ogni istante: non fai per me, ti prendi un altro amante, non fai per me. Ahimè! In lui parla il rovello, lo so; ma che rispondergli, Marcello?	MIMÌ: Rodolfo—he loves me but flees from me, torn by jealousy. A glance, a gesture, a smile, a flower arouses his suspicions, then anger, rage . . . Sometimes at night I pretend to sleep, and I feel his eyes trying to spy on my dreams. He shouts at me all the time: "You're not for me. Find another. You're not for me." Alas! I know it's his jealousy speaking, but what can I answer, Marcello?
MARCELLO: Quando s'è come voi non si vive in compagnia.	MARCELLO: When two people are like you two, they can't live together.
MIMÌ: Dite bene. Lasciarci conviene. Aiutateci, aiutateci voi. Noi s'è provato più volte, ma invano.	MIMÌ: You're right. We should separate. Help us, Marcello, help us. We've tried again and again, but in vain.
MARCELLO: Son lieve a Musetta, ella è lieve a me, perchè ci amiamo in allegria. Canti e risa, ecco il fior d'invariabile amor!	MARCELLO: I take Musetta lightly, and she behaves like me. We love light-heartedly. Laughter and song—that's the secret of a lasting love.
MIMÌ: Dite bene, dite bene. Lasciarci conviene. Fate voi per il meglio.	MIMÌ: You're right, you're right. We should separate. Do your best for us.
MARCELLO: Sta ben. Ora lo sveglio.	MARCELLO: All right. I'll wake him up.
MIMÌ: Dorme?	MIMÌ: Is he sleeping?
MARCELLO: È piombato qui un'ora avanti l'alba. S'assopì sopra una panca. Guardate. (Mimì tossisce.) Che tosse!	MARCELLO: He stumbled in here an hour before dawn and fell asleep on a bench. Look at him . . . (Mimì coughs.) What a cough!
MIMÌ: Da ieri ho l'ossa rotte. Fuggì da me stanotte dicendomi: è finita. A giorno sono uscita e me ne venni a questa volta.	MIMÌ: I've been aching all over since yesterday. He fled during the night, saying "It's all over." I set out at dawn and came here to find you.
MARCELLO: (osservando Rodolfo nell'interno) Si desta . . . s'alza. Mi cerca. Viene.	MARCELLO: (watching Rodolfo through the window) He's waking up. He's looking for me . . . Here he comes.
MIMÌ: Ch'ei non mi veda.	MIMÌ: He mustn't see me.
MARCELLO: Or rincasate, Mimì. Per carità, non fate scene qua! (Mimì si nasconde dietro un platano. Rodolfo accorre dal cabaret.)	MARCELLO: Go home now, Mimì. For God's sake, no scenes here. (Mimì hides behind a tree, Rodolfo hastens out of the tavern.)
RODOLFO: Marcello. Finalmente. Qui niun ci sente. Io voglio separarmi da Mimì.	RODOLFO: Marcello! At last! No one can hear us here. I've got to leave Mimì.
MARCELLO: Sei volubil così?	MARCELLO: Are you as fickle as that?
RODOLFO: Già un'altra volta credetti morto il mio cor. Ma di quegli occhi azzurri allo splendor esso è risorto. Ora il tedio l'assale . . .	RODOLFO: Already once before I thought my heart was dead. But it revived at the gleam of her blue eyes. Now boredom assails it . . .
MARCELLO: E gli vuoi rinnovare il funeral?	MARCELLO: And you'll bury it again?
RODOLFO: Per sempre!	RODOLFO: Forever!

MARCELLO: Cambia metro.
Dei pazzi è l'amor tetro che lacrime distilla.
Se non ride e sfavilla,
l'amore è fiacco e roco.
Tu sei geloso.

RODOLFO: Un poco.

MARCELLO: Collerico, lunatico, imbevuto di pregiudizi,
noioso, cocciuto!

MIMÌ: (Or lo fa incollerire!
Me poveretta!)

RODOLFO: Mimì è una civetta che frascheggia con tutti.
Un moscardino di Viscontino le fa l'occhio di triglia.
Ella sgonnella e scopre la caviglia, con un far promettente e lusinghier.

MARCELLO: Lo devo dir?
Che non mi sembri sincer.

RODOLFO: Ebbene, no. Non lo son.
Invan, invan nascondo
la mia vera tortura.
Amo Mimì sovra ogni cosa al mondo. Io l'amo! Ma ho paura.
Mimì è tanto malata!
Ogni dì più declina.
La povera piccina è condannata . . .

MARCELLO: Mimì?

MIMÌ: (Che vuol dire?)

RODOLFO: Una terribil tosse l'esil petto le scuote.
Già le smunte gote di sangue ha rosse . . .

MARCELLO: Povera Mimì!

MIMÌ: (Ahimè, morire?)

RODOLFO: La mia stanza è una tana squallida. Il fuoco è spento.
V'entra e l'aggira il vento di tramontana.
Essa canta e sorride
e il rimorso m'assale.
Me, cagion del fatale mal che l'uccide.

MARCELLO: Che far dunque?

MIMÌ: (O mia vita! È finita!
Ahimè! morir! ecc.)

RODOLFO: Mimì di serra è fiore.
Povertà l'ha sfiorita, per richiamarla in vita
non basta amore.

MARCELLO: Poveretta. Povera
Mimì! Povera Mimì!
(Mimì singhiozza e tossisce.)

RODOLFO: Che! Mimì! Tu qui!
M'hai sentito?

MARCELLO: Ella dunque ascoltava.

RODOLFO: Facile alla paura, per nulla io m'arrovello.
Vien là nel tepore.
(Vuol farla entrare nel cabaret.)

MARCELLO: Change your ways!
Gloomy love is madness and brews only tears.
If it doesn't laugh and glow love has no strength or voice.
You're jealous.

RODOLFO: A little.

MARCELLO: You're raving mad,
a mass of suspicions,
a boor, a mule!

MIMÌ: (He'll make him angry.
Poor me!)

RODOLFO: Mimì's just a flirt toying with them all.
A foppish Viscount eyes her with longing. She shows him her ankles, promising, luring him on.

MARCELLO: Must I tell you?
You aren't being honest.

RODOLFO: All right, then. I'm not.
I try in vain to hide
what really torments me.
I love Mimì more than the world.
I love her! But I'm afraid . . .
Mimì is terribly ill,
weaker every day.
The poor little thing is doomed . . .

MARCELLO: Mimì?

MIMÌ: (What does he mean?)

RODOLFO: A horrible coughing racks her fragile chest . . .
Her pale cheeks are flushed . . .

MARCELLO: Poor Mimì!

MIMÌ: (Am I dying? Alas!)

RODOLFO: My room's like a cave.
The fire has gone out.
The wind, the winter wind
roars through it.
She laughs and sings;
I'm seized with remorse.
I'm the cause of the illness
that's killing her.

MARCELLO: What's to be done?

MIMÌ: (Oh! my life! It's over!
Alas! To die! etc.)

RODOLFO: Mimì's a hothouse flower, blighted by poverty.
To bring her back to life love's not enough.

MARCELLO: Poor thing. Poor
Mimì!
(Mimì sobs and coughs)

RODOLFO: What, Mimì? You here!
You heard me?

MARCELLO: She was listening then.

RODOLFO: I'm easily frightened, worked up over nothing.
Come inside where it's warm.
(He tries to lead her inside.)

MIMÌ: No, quel tanfo mi soffoca.
(Dal cabaret s'ode Musetta che ride.)

RODOLFO: Ah! Mimì!

MARCELLO: È Musetta che ride.
Con chi ride?
Ah la civetta! Imparerai.
(Corre nella taverna.)

MIMÌ: (a Rodolfo) Addio.

RODOLFO: Che! Vai?

MIMÌ: D'onde lieta uscì al tuo grido d'amore torna sola Mimì.
Al solitario nido ritorna un'altra volta
a intesser finti fior.
Addio senza rancor.
—Ascolta, ascolta.
Le poche robe aduna che lasciai sparse. Nel mio cassetto stan chiusi quel cerchietto d'or e il libro di preghiere.
Involgi tutto quanto in un grembiale e manderò il portiere . . .
—Bada, sotto il guanciale c'è la cuffietta rosa.
Se vuoi . . . serbarla a ricordo d'amor . . .
Addio, senza rancor.

RODOLFO: Dunque è proprio finita.
Te ne vai, la mia piccina?
Addio, sogni d'amor!

MIMÌ: Addio dolce svegliare alla mattina.

RODOLFO: Addio sognante vita!

MIMÌ: Addio rabuffi e gelosie . . .

RODOLFO: Che un tuo sorriso acqueta.

MIMÌ: Addio sospetti . . .

RODOLFO: Baci.

MIMÌ: Pungenti amarezze . . .

RODOLFO: Ch'io da vero poeta rimavo con carezze.

RODOLFO E MIMÌ: Soli, l'inverno è cosa da morire.

MIMÌ: Soli . . .

RODOLFO E MIMÌ: Mentre a primavera
c'è compagno il sol.

MIMÌ: C'è compagno il sol.
(Marcello e Musetta escono, bisticciando.)

MARCELLO: Che facevi? Che dicevi?
Presso il foco a quel signore?

MUSETTA: Che vuoi dir? Che vuoi dir?

MIMÌ: Niuno è solo l'april.

MARCELLO: Al mio venire hai mutato di colore.

MIMÌ: No. It's so close. I'd suffocate.
(Musetta's laughter comes from inside.)

RODOLFO: Ah, Mimì!

MARCELLO: That's Musetta laughing.
And with whom?
The flirt! I'll teach her.
(Marcello runs into the tavern.)

MIMÌ: (to Rodolfo) Goodbye.

RODOLFO: What? You're going?

MIMÌ: Back to the place I left at the call of your love,
I'm going back alone to my lonely nest
to make false flowers.
Goodbye . . . no hard feelings.
But listen.
Please gather up the few things
I've left behind. In the trunk there's the little bracelet and my prayer book. Wrap them . . . in an apron and I'll send someone for them . . .
Wait! Under the pillow
there's my pink bonnet.
If you want . . . keep it in memory of our love. Goodbye, no hard feelings.

RODOLFO: So it's really over.
You're leaving, my little one?
Goodbye to our dreams of love.

MIMÌ: Goodbye to our sweet waking.

RODOLFO: Goodbye, life in a dream.

MIMÌ: Goodbye, doubts and jealousies . . .

RODOLFO: That one smile of yours could dispel.

MIMÌ: Goodbye, suspicions . . .

RODOLFO: Kisses . . .

MIMÌ: Poignant bitterness . . .

RODOLFO: That, like a poet,
I made rhyme with caress.

RODOLFO: To be alone in winter is death!

MIMÌ: Alone . . .

RODOLFO AND MIMÌ: But when the spring comes the sun is our companion.

MIMÌ: The sun is our companion.
(Marcello and Musetta come out, quarrelling.)

MARCELLO: What were you doing and saying by the fire with that man?

MUSETTA: What do you mean?
What do you mean?

MIMÌ: Nobody's lonely in April.

MARCELLO: When I came in you blushed suddenly.

MUSETTA: Quel signore mi deceva . . .
"Ama il balla, signorina?"

RODOLFO: Si parla coi gigli e le rose.

MIMÌ: Esce dai nidi un cinguettio gentile.

MARCELLO: Vana, frivola civetta!

MUSETTA: Arrossendo io rispondevo:
"Ballerei sera e mattina."

MARCELLO: Quel discorso asconde mire disoneste.

MUSETTA: Voglio piena libertà.

MARCELLO: Io t'acconcio per le feste . . .

RODOLFO E MIMÌ: Al fiorir di primavera
c'è compagno il sol.

MUSETTA: Che me canti?
Che mi gridi? Che mi canti?
All'altar non siamo uniti.

MARCELLO: . . . Se ti colgo a invicettire!
Bada, sotto il mio cappello non ci stan certi ornamenti.

MUSETTA: Io detesto quegli amanti che la fanno da mariti.

RODOLFO E MIMÌ: Chiacchieran le fontane, la brezza della sera balsami stende sulle doglie umane.

MARCELLO: Io non faccio da zimbello ai novizi intraprendenti.
Vana, frivola civetta!
Ve ne andate? Vi ringrazio, or son ricco divenuto.

MUSETTA: Fo all'amor con chi mi piace.
Non ti garba?
Fo all'amor con chi mi piace.
Musetta se ne va.

MARCELLO E MUSETTA: Vi saluto.

RODOLFO E MIMÌ: Vuoi che aspettiam la primavera ancor?

MUSETTA: Signor, addio
vi dico con piacer!

MARCELLO: Son servo e me ne vo!

MUSETTA: (mentre ella se ne va)
Pittore da bottega!

MARCELLO: Vipera!

MUSETTA: Rospo!

MARCELLO: (ritornando nella taverna) Strega!

MIMÌ: Sempre tua . . . per la vita.

RODOLFO E MIMÌ: Ci lascieremo
alla stagion dei fior!

MUSETTA: The man was asking me . . .
"Do you like dancing, Miss?"

RODOLFO: One can speak to roses and lilies.

MIMÌ: Birds twitter softly in their nests.

MARCELLO: Vain, empty-headed flirt!

MUSETTA: I blushed and answered:
"I could dance day and night!"

MARCELLO: That speech conceals infamous desires.

MUSETTA: I want complete freedom.

MARCELLO: I'll teach you a thing or two . . .

RODOLFO AND MIMÌ: With the coming of spring,
the sun is our companion!

MUSETTA: What do you think you're saying?
We're not married, after all.

MARCELLO: . . . If I catch you flirting!
Keep in mind, no horns will grow under my hat.

MUSETTA: I can't stand lovers who act just like husbands.

RODOLFO AND MIMÌ: The fountains whisper, the evening breeze heals the pain of human creatures.

MARCELLO: I won't be laughed at by some young upstart.
Vain, empty-headed flirt!
You're leaving? I thank you,
I'll be a rich man then.

MUSETTA: I'll flirt with whom I please.
You don't like it?
I'll flirt with whom I please.
Musetta goes her way.

MARCELLO AND MUSETTA: Goodbye.

RODOLFO AND MIMÌ: Shall we wait until spring comes again?

MUSETTA: I bid you, sir, farewell—with pleasure!

MARCELLO: Your servant, and I'm off!

MUSETTA: (leaving) You house-painter!

MUSETTA: Viper!

MUSETTA: Toad!

MARCELLO: (re-entering the tavern) Witch!

MIMÌ: Always yours . . . all my life.

RODOLFO AND MIMÌ: We'll part when the flowers bloom!

MIMÌ: Vorrei che eterno durasse il verno!

RODOLFO E MIMÌ: Ci lascierem
alla stagion dei fior!

■ ATTO QUARTO

In soffitta
(Marcello di nuovo al cavalletto. Rodolfo al tavolo. Vorrebbero lavorare, ma non fanno che chiacchierare.)

MARCELLO: In un coupè?

RODOLFO: Con pariglia e livree.
Mi salutò ridendo.
Tò Musetta—le dissi—
e il cuor?
"Non batte o non lo sento grazie al velluto che il copre."

MARCELLO: Ci ho gusto davver.

RODOLFO: (Loiola va. Ti rodi e ridi.)

MARCELLO: Non batte? Bene.
Io pur vidi . . .

RODOLFO: Musetta?

MARCELLO: Mimì.

RODOLFO: L'hai vista?
(fingendo noncuranza)
Oh guarda!

MARCELLO: Era in carrozza vestita come una regina.

RODOLFO: Evviva. Ne son contento.

MARCELLO: (Bugiardo. Si strugge d'amor.)

RODOLFO: Lavoriam.

MARCELLO: Lavoriam.
(Si mettono al lavoro, ma subito gettano penna e pennello.)

RODOLFO: Che penna infame!

MARCELLO: Che infame pennello!

RODOLFO: (O Mimì, tu più non torni.
O giorni belli,
piccole mani, odorosi capelli,
collo di neve! Ah! Mimì, mia breve gioventù.)

MARCELLO: (Io non so come sia che il mio pennello lavori
e impasti colori contro voglia mia.
Se pingere mi piace
o cielo o terre
o inverni o primavere, egli mi traccia due pupille nere
e una bocca procace,
e n'esce di Musetta il viso ancor . . .)

RODOLFO: (E tu, cuffietta lieve, che sotto il guancial partendo ascose, tutta sai
la nostra felicità,

MIMÌ: I wish that winter would last forever!

RODOLFO AND MIMÌ: We'll part when flowers bloom!

■ ACT IV

The garret
(Marcello once more at his easel, Rodolfo at his table. They try to work, but instead they are talking.)

MARCELLO: In a coupé?

RODOLFO: With footmen and horses.
She greeted me, laughing.
"So, Musetta," I said,
"your heart?"
"It doesn't beat—at least I don't feel it.
Thanks to the velvet that covers it."

MARCELLO: I'm glad, really glad.

RODOLFO: (Faker, go on! You're laughing and fretting inside).

MARCELLO: Not beating? Good.
I also saw . . .

RODOLFO: Musetta?

MARCELLO: Mimì

RODOLFO: You saw her?
(with pretended unconcern)
Really?

MARCELLO: She was in a carriage dressed like a queen.

RODOLFO: That's fine. I'm delighted.

MARCELLO: (The liar! Love's consuming him.)

RODOLFO: Let's get to work.

MARCELLO: Yes, to work.
(They start working, but quickly throw down brush and pen.)

RODOLFO: This pen is terrible!

MARCELLO: So is this brush!

RODOLFO: (O Mimì, you won't return!
O lovely days! Those tiny hands, those sweet-smelling locks,
that snowy neck! Ah! Mimì!
My short-lived youth.)

MARCELLO: (I don't understand how my brush works and mixes colors to spite me.
Whether I want to paint earth or sky, spring or winter, the brush outlines two dark eyes
and inviting lips,
and Musetta's face comes out . . .)

RODOLFO: (And you, little pink bonnet that she hid under the pillow as she left, you know

vien sul mio cor,
sul mio cor morto, poichè è morto amor.)

MARCELLO: (E n'esce di Musetta il viso tutto vezzi e tutto frode.
Musetta intanto gode e il mio cuor vile la chiama ed aspetta.)

RODOLFO: Che ora sia?

MARCELLO: L'ora del pranzo . . .
Di ieri.

RODOLFO: E Schaunard non torna.
(Schaunard entra e posa quattro pagnotte sulla tavola. Colline è con lui.)

SCHAUNARD: Eccoci.

RODOLFO E MARCELLO: Ebbene?

MARCELLO: Del pan?

COLLINE: È un piatto degno di Demostene;
un'aringa . . .

SCHAUNARD: . . . salata.

COLLINE: Il pranzo è in tavola.
(Si seggono.)

MARCELLO: Questa è cuccagna da Berlingaccio.

SCHAUNARD: (Mette la bottiglia d'acqua nel cappello di Colline.) Ora lo sciampagna mettiamo in ghiaccio.

RODOLFO: Scelga, o Barone, trota o salmone?

MARCELLO: Duca, una lingua di pappagallo?

SCHAUNARD: Grazie, m'impingua, stasera ho un ballo.
(Colline si alza.)

RODOLFO: Già sazio?

COLLINE: Ho fretta.
Il Re m'aspetta.

MARCELLO: C'è qualche trama?

RODOLFO, MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD: Qualche mister?

COLLINE: Il Re mi chiama al minister.

MARCELLO, RODOLFO, SCHAUNARD: Bene!

COLLINE: Però vedrò . . . Guizot!

SCHAUNARD: Porgimi il nappo.

MARCELLO: Sì, Bevi. Io pappo.

SCHAUNARD: Mi sia permesso . . .
al nobile consesso . . .

RODOLFO: Basta.

MARCELLO: Fiacco!

COLLINE: Che decotto!

MARCELLO: Leva il tacco.

all of our joy.
Come to my heart,
my heart that's dead
with our dead love.)

MARCELLO: (Her face comes forward then, so lovely and so false.
Meanwhile Musetta is happy and my cowardly heart calls her, and waits for her.)

RODOLFO: What time is it?

MARCELLO: It's time for dinner . . .
Yesterday's dinner.

RODOLFO: And Schaunard's not back.
(Schaunard comes in and sets four rolls on the table. Colline is with him.)

SCHAUNARD: Here we are.

RODOLFO AND MARCELLO: Well?

MARCELLO: Just bread?

COLLINE: A dish worthy of Demosthenes:
A herring . . .

SCHAUNARD: . . . salted.

COLLINE: Dinner's on the table.
(They sit down.)

MARCELLO: This is like a feast day in wonderland.

SCHAUNARD: (puts the water-bottle in Colline's hat) Now let's put the champagne on ice.

RODOLFO: Which do you choose, Baron, salmon or trout?

MARCELLO: Well, Duke, how about some parrot-tongue?

SCHAUNARD: Thanks, but it's fattening.
I must dance this evening.
(Colline gets up.)

RODOLFO: Full already?

COLLINE: I'm in a hurry.
The King is waiting for me.

MARCELLO: Is there some plot?

RODOLFO, MARCELLO, SCHAUNARD: Some mystery?

COLLINE: The King has asked me to join his Cabinet.

MARCELLO, RODOLFO, SCHAUNARD: Fine!

COLLINE: So . . . I'll see Guizot!

SCHAUNARD: Pass me the goblet.

MARCELLO: Here. Drink. I'll eat.

SCHAUNARD: By the leave . . . of this noble company . . .

RODOLFO: Enough!

MARCELLO: Weakling!

COLLINE: What a concoction!

MARCELLO: Get out of here!

COLLINE: Dammi il gotto.

SCHAUNARD: M'ispira irresistibile l'estro della romanza . . .

GLI ALTRI: No!

SCHAUNARD: Azione coreografica allora?

GLI ALTRI: Sì.

SCHAUNARD: La danza con musica vocale!

COLLINE: Si sgombrino le sale.
Gavotta.

MARCELLO: Minuetto.

RODOLFO: Pavanella.

SCHAUNARD: Fandango.

COLLINE: Propongo la quadriglia.

RODOLFO: Mano alle dame.

COLLINE: Io detto.

SCHAUNARD: La lera la lera la!

RODOLFO: (galante a Marcello)
Vezzosa damigella . . .

MARCELLO: Rispetti la modestia.
La prego.

COLLINE: Balancez.

SCHAUNARD: Prima c'è il Rond.

COLLINE: No, bestia.

SCHAUNARD: Che modi da lacchè!

COLLINE: Se non erro lei m'oltraggia.
Snudi il ferro.

SCHAUNARD: Pronti. Assaggia.
Il tuo sangue voglio ber.
(Colline ha preso le molle, Schaunard la paletta. Si battono mentre gli altri cantano.)

COLLINE: Un di noi qui si sbudella.

SCHAUNARD: Apprestate una barella.

COLLINE: Apprestate un cimiter.

RODOLFO E MARCELLO: Mentre incalza la tenzone gira e balza Rigodone.
(Entra Musetta.)

MARCELLO: Musetta!

MUSETTA: C'è Mimì . . . c'è Mimì che mi segue e che sta male.

RODOLFO: Ov'è?

MUSETTA: Nel far le scale
più non si resse.
(Rodolfo si precipita verso Mimì, seduta sull'ultimo gradino. Poi la portano nella stanza e la stendono sul letto.)

RODOLFO: Ah!

SCHAUNARD: Noi accostiamo quel lettuccio.

RODOLFO: Là. Da bere.

MIMÌ: Rodolfo.

COLLINE: The goblet, please!

SCHAUNARD: I'm irresistibly inspired by the Muse of poetry . . .

THE OTHERS: No!

SCHAUNARD: Something choreographic then?

THE OTHERS: Yes.

SCHAUNARD: Dance with vocal accompaniment!

COLLINE: Let the hall be cleared.
A gavotte.

MARCELLO: Minuet.

RODOLFO: Pavane.

SCHAUNARD: Fandango.

COLLINE: I suggest the quadrille.

RODOLFO: Take your lady's arm.

COLLINE: I'll call the figures.

SCHAUNARD: La lera la lera la!

RODOLFO: (gallantly, to Marcello) Lovely maiden . . .

MARCELLO: Please, sir, respect my modesty.

COLLINE: Balancez.

SCHAUNARD: The Rond comes first.

COLLINE: No, damn it.

SCHAUNARD: What boorish manners!

COLLINE: You provoke me, I believe.
Draw you sword.

SCHAUNARD: Ready. Lay on.
I'll drink your blood.
(Colline takes the fire-tongs and Schaunard the poker. They fight as the others sing.)

COLLINE: One of us will be run through!

SCHAUNARD: Have a stretcher ready!

COLLINE: And a graveyard too!

RODOLFO AND MARCELLO:
While the battle rages,
the dancers circle and leap.
(Musetta enters.)

MARCELLO: Musetta!

MUSETTA: Mimì's here . . . she's coming and she's ill.

RODOLFO: Where is she?

MUSETTA: She couldn't find strength to climb all the stairs.
(Rodolfo hastens out to Mimì, who is seated on the last step. Then they carry her into the room and place her on the bed.)

RODOLFO: Ah!

SCHAUNARD: We'll move the bed closer.

RODOLFO: Here. Something to drink.

MIMÌ: Rodolfo.

RODOLFO: Zitta, Riposa.

MIMÌ: O mio Rodolfo, mi vuoi qui con te?

RODOLFO: Ah, mia Mimì!
Sempre, sempre!

MUSETTA: (agli altri, piano) Intesi dire che Mimì, fuggita dal Viscontino, era in fin di vita.
Dove stia? Cerca, cerca . . . la veggo passar per via,
trascinandosi a stento.
Mi dice, "Più non reggo . . .
Muoio, lo sento . . .
Voglio morir con lui . . .
Forse m'aspetta . . . "

MARCELLO: Sst!

MIMÌ: Mi sento assai meglio . . .

MUSETTA: "M'accompagni, Musetta?"

MIMÌ: Lascia ch'io guardi intorno.
Ah, come si sta bene qui.
Si rinasce, si rinasce . . .
Ancor sento la vita qui . . .
No, tu non mi lasci più . . .

RODOLFO: Benedetta bocca, tu ancor mi parli.

MUSETTA: Che ci avete in casa?

MARCELLO: Nulla.

MUSETTA: Non caffè? Non vino?

MARCELLO: Nulla. Ah! Miseria.

SCHAUNARD: Fra mezz'ora è morta!

MIMÌ: Ho tanto freddo.
Se avessi un manicotto!
Queste mie mani riscaldare non si potranno mai?

RODOLFO: Qui, Nelle mia. Taci.
Il parlar ti stanca.

MIMÌ: Ho un po' di tosse.
Ci sono avvezza.
Buon giorno, Marcello,
Schaunard, Colline, buon giorno.
Tutti qui, tutti qui sorridenti a Mimì.

RODOLFO: Non parlar, non parlar.

MIMÌ: Parlo pian. Non temere.
Marcello date retta:
è assai buona Musetta.

MARCELLO: (porge la mano a Musetta) Lo so. Lo so.

MUSETTA: (dà gli orecchini a Marcello) A te, vendi, riporta qualche cordial.
Manda un dottore!

RODOLFO: Riposa.

MIMÌ: Tu non mi lasci?

RODOLFO: No, no!

MUSETTA: Ascolta!
Forse è l'ultima volta che ha espresso un desiderio, poveretta! Pel manicotto io vo. Con te verrò.

RODOLFO: Rest now. Don't speak.

MIMÌ: O my Rodolfo!
You want me here with you?

RODOLFO: Ah! My Mimì!
Always, always!

MUSETTA: (aside, to the others) I heard Mimì had fled from the Viscount and was dying.
Where was she? I sought her . . .
Just now I saw her in the street stumbling along. She said;
"I can't last long.
I know I'm dying . . .
But I want to die with him . . .
Perhaps he's waiting for me . . . "

MARCELLO: Sh!

MIMÌ: I feel much better . . .

MUSETTA: "Please take me, Musetta?"

MIMÌ: Let me look around.
How wonderful it is here.
I'll recover . . . I will . . .
I feel life here again.
You won't leave me ever . . .

RODOLFO: Beloved lips,
you speak to me again.

MUSETTA: What is there in the house?

MARCELLO: Nothing.

MUSETTA: No coffee? No wine?

MARCELLO: Nothing. Poverty!

SCHAUNARD: She can't last an hour!

MIMÌ: I'm so cold.
If I had a muff!
Won't these hands of mine
ever be warm?

RODOLFO: Here. In mine. Don't speak.
You'll tire yourself.

MIMÌ: It's just a little cough.
I'm used to it.
Hello, Marcello,
Schaunard, Colline . . .
All of you are here,
smiling at Mimì.

RODOLFO: Don't speak,
don't . . .

MIMÌ: I'll speak softly. Don't fear.
Marcello, believe me—
Musetta is so good.

MARCELLO: (holds Musetta's hand) I know. I know.

MUSETTA: (gives her earrings to Marcello) Here. Sell them. Bring back some cordial and send the doctor!

RODOLFO: Rest now!

MIMÌ: You won't leave me?

RODOLFO: No! No!

MUSETTA: Listen!
Perhaps it's the poor thing's last request.
I'll get the muff.
I'm coming with you.

MARCELLO: Sie buona, a mia Musetta.
(Escono Musetta e Marcello.)

COLLINE: (levandosi il pastrano)
Vecchia zimarra, senti, io resto al pian, tu ascendere il sacro monte or devi.
Le mie grazie recevi.
Mai non curvasti il logoro dorso ai ricchi ed ai potenti.
Passar nelle tue tasche come in antri tranquilli filosofi e poeti.
Ora che i giorni lieti fuggir, ti dico addio,
fedele amico mio. Addio.
(Mette l'involto sotto il braccio, poi dice sottovoce a Schaunard:) Schaunard, ognuno per diversa via mettiamo insieme due atti di pietà; io . . . questo! . . . E tu . . .
lasciali soli là . . .

SCHAUNARD: Filosofo, ragioni!
È ver . . . Vo Via!
(Escono.)

MIMÌ: Sono andati? Fingevo di dormire perchè volli con te sola restare.
Ho tante cose che ti voglio fire,
o una sola ma grande come il mare,
come il mare profonda ed infinita . . .
Sei il mio amor . . . e tutta la mia vita.

RODOLFO: Ah Mimì, mia bella Mimì!

MIMÌ: Son bella ancora?

RODOLFO: Bella come un'aurora.

MIMÌ: Hai sbagliato il raffronto.
Volevi dir: bella
come un tramonto.
"Mi chiamano Mimì . . .
il perchè non so."

RODOLFO: Tornò al nido la rondine e cinguetta.
(Leva la cuffietta di dove l'aveva riposta in sul cuore.)

MIMÌ: La mia cuffietta!
La mia cuffietta!
Ah! te lo rammenti quando sono entrata
la prima volta là?

RODOLFO: So lo rammento!

MIMÌ: Il lume s'era spento.

RODOLFO: Eri tanto turbata.
Poi smarristi la chiave . . .

MIMÌ: E a cercarla tastoni ti sei messo!

RODOLFO: E cerca, cerca . . .

MIMÌ: Mio bel signorino, posso ben dirlo adesso,
lei la trovò assai presto.

RODOLFO: Aiutavo il destino.

MARCELLO: How good you are,
Musetta.
(Marcello and Musetta go out.)

COLLINE: (taking off his greatcoat) Listen, my venerable coat, I'm staying behind, you'll go on to greater heights.
I give you my thanks.
You never bowed your worn back to the rich or powerful.
You held in your pockets poets and philosophers as if in tranquil grottoes . . .
Now that those happy times have fled, I bid you farewell, faithful old friend. Farewell.
(He puts the bundle under his arm, then whispers to Schaunard:) Schaunard, each separately, let's combine two kindly acts;
mine is this . . . and you . . .
leave the two of them alone.

SCHAUNARD: Philosopher, you're right!
I'll go along.
(They leave.)

MIMÌ: Have they gone? I pretended to sleep because I wanted to be alone with
you.
I've so many things to tell you,
or one thing—huge as the sea,
deep and infinite as the sea . . .
I love you . . . you're all my life.

RODOLFO: Ah! my beautiful Mimì.

MIMÌ: Am I beautiful still?

RODOLFO: Beautiful as the dawn.

MIMÌ: You've mistaken the image:
you should have said,
beautiful as the sunset.
"They call me Mimì . . .
but I don't know why."

RODOLFO: The swallow comes back to her nest to twitter.
(He takes the bonnet from its place over his heart.)

MIMÌ: My bonnet!
My bonnet!
Ah! do you remember when I came in here
the first time?

RODOLFO: Do I remember!

MIMÌ: The light had gone out.

RODOLFO: You were so upset.
Then you lost your key . . .

MIMÌ: And you knelt to hunt for it!

RODOLFO: I searched and searched . . .

MIMÌ: My dear sir,
now I can tell you:
you found it quick enough.

RODOLFO: I was helping Fate.

Act IV

MIMÌ: Era buio e il mio rossor non si vedeva . . . "Che gelida manina . . . Se la lasci riscaldar . . . " Era buio e la man tu mi prendevi . . . (Mimì è presa da uno spasimo di soffocazione.)	MIMÌ: It was dark. You couldn't see me blushing. "How cold your little hand is . . . Let me warm it for you . . . " It was dark. You took my hand in yours . . . (Mimì has another spasm, a fit of choking.)
RODOLFO: Oh Dio! Mimì! (Schaunard rientra in quel momento.)	RODOLFO: Good God! Mimì! (Schaunard enters at that moment.)
SCHAUNARD: Che avvien?	SCHAUNARD: What's wrong?
MIMÌ: Nulla. Sto bene.	MIMÌ: Nothing. I'm fine.
RODOLFO: Zitta. Per carità.	RODOLFO: Please . . . don't talk.
MIMÌ: Sì, sì, perdona. Or sarò buona. (Tornano Marcello e Musetta, poi Colline. Musetta pone un lume sulla tavola.)	MIMÌ: Yes, yes forgive me. Now I'll be good. (Marcello and Musetta come back, then Colline. Musetta sets a candle on the table.)
MUSETTA: Dorme?	MUSETTA: Is she sleeping?
RODOLFO: Riposa.	RODOLFO: She's resting.
MARCELLO: Ho veduto il dottore. Verrà. Gli ho fatto fretta. Ecco il cordial.	MARCELLO: I saw the doctor. He's coming. I made him hurry. Here's the cordial.
MIMÌ: Chi parla?	MIMÌ: Who's speaking?
MUSETTA: (porgendo il manicotto) Io, Musetta.	MUSETTA: (handing her the muff) Me. Musetta.
MIMÌ: O come è bello e morbido! Non più, non più, le mani allividite. Il tepore le abbellirà. (a Rodolfo) Sei tu che me lo doni?	MIMÌ: Oh, how lovely and soft it is. No more, no more . . . my hands all ugly and cold . . . The warmth will heal them. (to Rodolfo) Did you give it to me?
MUSETTA: Sì.	MUSETTA: Yes, he did.
MIMÌ: Tu! Spensierato! Grazie. Ma costerà. Piangi? Sto bene. Pianger così perchè? Qui . . . amor . . . sempre con te! Le mani . . . al caldo . . . e dormire. (Silenzio.)	MIMÌ: You spendthrift! Thank you . . . but the cost . . . You're crying? I'm well. Why are you crying like this? Here . . . beloved . . . with you always! My hands . . . the warmth . . . to sleep. (Silence.)
RODOLFO: Che ha detto il medico?	RODOLFO: What did the doctor say?
MARCELLO: Verrà.	MARCELLO: He's coming.
MUSETTA: (pregando) Madonna benedetta, fate la grazia a questa poveretta che non debba morire. (interrompendosi, a Marcello) Qui ci vuole un riparo perché la fiamma sventola. (Marcello mette un libro sulla tavola da paravento al lume.) Così. E che possa guarire. Madonna santa, io sono indegna di perdono, mentre invece Mimì è un angelo del cielo.	MUSETTA: (praying) Oh blessed Mother, be merciful to this poor child who doesn't deserve to die. (breaking off, to Marcello) We need a shade here; the candle's flickering. (Marcello sets a book on the table which acts as a shade.) So. Let her get well, Holy Mother, I know I'm unworthy of forgiveness, but Mimì is an angel come down from heaven.
RODOLFO: Io spero ancora. Vi pare che sia grave?	RODOLFO: I still have hope. You think it's serious?
MUSETTA: Non credo. (Schaunard s'avvicina al letto.)	MUSETTA: I don't think so. (Schaunard approaches the bed.)
SCHAUNARD: (piano a Marcello) Marcello, è spirata.	SCHAUNARD: (softly to Marcello) Marcello, she's dead.
COLLINE: (entra e dà del danaro a Musetta) Musetta, a voi. Come va?	COLLINE: (enters, and gives money to Musetta) Here, Musetta. How is she?
RODOLFO: Vedi, è tranquilla. (Rodolfo si accorge dello strano contegno degli altri.) Che vuol dire? Quell'andare e venire . . . Quel guardarmi così? . . .	RODOLFO: You see, she's resting. (Rodolfo becomes aware of the strange expression of the others.) What does this mean? This going back and forth? Why are you looking at me like this?
MARCELLO: Coraggio. (Rodolfo accorre al lettucio.)	MARCELLO: Courage. (Rodolfo runs over to the bed.)
RODOLFO: Mimì! . . . Mimì!	RODOLFO: Mimì . . . Mimì
FINE	THE END

Tosca (1900)

MUSIC BY GIACOMO PUCCINI ■ LIBRETTO BY LUIGI ILLICA, GIUSEPPE GIACOSA

Tosca premiered at the Teatro Costanzi in Rome on January 14, 1900. It is set to a libretto by Giuseppe Giacosa and Luigi Illica (based on Victorien Sardou's play). The time is June, 1800. Cesare Angelotti, a consul of the defeated Roman republic who has escaped from the Castel Sant'Angelo, hides in the church of Sant'Andrea della Valle. His sister, the Marchesa Attavanti, leaves clothes for him in the family chapel. Mario Cavaradossi is painting a portrait of the Madonna for the church and the sacristan comments on its resemblance to the woman who often visits—the Marchesa Attavanti. Angelotti discovers that the painter is his old friend and fellow Republican sympathizer. Floria Tosca, a famous opera singer and Cavaradossi's mistress, hears him whispering and thinks that he is deceiving her. He placates her with the promise of a rendezvous that night at his villa. Tosca recognizes the Marchesa Attavanti in the portrait and grows jealous. A cannon sounds the alarm for Angelotti's escape. Cavaradossi hides his friend at his villa outside Rome. The sacristan announces Napoleon's defeat. Scarpia, the chief of police, arrives. Marchesa Attavanti's fan is discovered; this leads Scarpia to believe that Cavaradossi has aided Angelotti. Tosca returns to change the evening's plans and finds that Cavaradossi has left. Scarpia uses the Marchesa's fan to arouse Tosca's jealousy, and she sets off for her lover's villa, where she intends to confront him. Spoletta, Scarpia's agent, follows her. Scarpia plans to hang Cavaradossi and win over Tosca. Tosca is singing in a concert at Farnese Palace while Scarpia dines in his room in another wing. Spoletta brings in Cavaradossi, who denies that he is aiding Angelotti. Tosca enters, having received a note from Scarpia. Before Cavaradossi can tell her to keep quiet, he is taken into the next room to be tortured. She cannot stand the sound of his screams and tells Scarpia where he may find Angelotti. Cavaradossi's anger at her betrayal is interrupted by news of Napoleon's victory at Marengo. Singing in praise of freedom, Cavaradossi is taken away by the guards to await execution. Tosca pleads with Scarpia to spare her lover—she will pay any price. Spoletta reports Angelotti's suicide; Scarpia demands that she be his mistress to save Cavaradossi, and she agrees. Scarpia pretends to order a mock execution for the painter and signs safe conducts for the lovers. He embraces Tosca, who stabs him with a dinner knife and grabs the safe conducts from him. At dawn Cavaradossi is escorted from his prison cell. His last thoughts are about Tosca, who tells him that his execution will be fake and that he should fall down as if he were dead. The shots are fired, and Tosca runs over to him. He is, in fact, dead. Scarpia's murder has been discovered and soldiers come to arrest Tosca. She jumps onto the parapet and throws herself down, crying out, "Scarpia, we will meet before God."

■ ATTO PRIMO

La Chiesa di Sant'Andrea alla Valle.

A destra la Capella Attavanti. A sinistra un impaleato: su di esso un gran quadro coperto da tela. Attrezzi varî da pittore. Un paniere.

ANGELOTTI: (vestito da prigloniero, lacero, sfatto, tremante dalla paura, entra ansante, quasi correndo, dalla porta laterale. Dà una rapida occhiata intorno)
Ah! . . . Finalmente! . . . Nel terror mio stolto vedea ceffi di birro in ogni volto.
(torna a guardare attentamente intorno a sè con più calma a riconoscere il luogo.—Dà un sospiro di sollievo vedendo la colonna colla pila dell'acqua santa e la Madonna) La pila . . . la colonna . . .
"A piè della Madonna"
mi serisse mia sorella . . .
(vi si avvicina, cerca ai piedi della Madonna e ne ritira, con un soffocato grido di gioia, una chiave)
Ecco la chiave . . . ed ecco la capella! . . .
(addita la Capella Attavanti; con gran precauzione introduce la chiave nella serratura, apre la cancellata, penetra nella Cappella, rinchiude . . . e scompare).

■ ACT I

Scene: The Church of Sant'Andrea alla Valle.

R.—The Attavanti Chapel. L.—Scaffolding, dāis, easel supporting a large picture covered by a cloth. Accessories of the painting craft. A basket.
(Enter Angelotti L., in prison garb, harassed, disheveled, panic-stricken, well-nigh breathless with fear and hurry. He casts a hasty glance around him)

ANGELOTTI: Ah! I have stalled them . . . dread imagination
Made me quake with uncalled-for perturbation.
(shuddering, he again looks around him, curiously and somewhat more calmly, heaving a sigh of relief as he recognizes a pillar-shrine containing an image of the Virgin and surmounting a receptacle for Holy Water)
The pilar . . . and the column.
My sister wrote to tell me
"At the foot of the Madonna" . . .
(he approaches the column and searches for the key beneath the feet of the Holy Virgin's image. Not finding it immediately, he appears discouraged, and renews his quest in a state of manifest agitation. Presently, stifling an exclamation of joy, he discovers the key)
This is the key (quickly passing his hand over the portals of Attavanti Chapel) and this the Chapel entrance.
(Stricken anew with alarm by the notion that he has been followed, he looks timorously about him, creeps up to the chapel-gates, carefully inserts the key in the keyhole, opens the folding-doors and passes through them, closing them behind him)
(Enter the Sacristan C., grasping in one hand a bundle of paintbrushes; he crosses from L. to R., and takes up his stand in the nave of the church, for a time, eventually moving towards the scaffolding while talking loudly, as though he were addressing some unseen person)

IL SAGRESTANO: (entra dal fonde tenendo fra le mani un mazzo di pennelli e parlando ad alta voce come se rivolgesse la parola a qualcuno) E frega e lava! . . . Ogni pennello è sozzo peggio che il collarin d'uno scagnozzo.
Signor pittore . . . Tò! . . .
(guarda verso l'Impalcato dove sta il quadro, e vedendolo deserto, esclama sorpreso) Nessuno.—Avrei giurato che fosse ritornato
il cavalier Cavaradossi.
(depone i pennelli, sale sull'impalcato, guarda dentro il paniere e dice)
No,
sbaglio.—Il paniere è intatto.
(suona l'Angelus. Il Sagrestano si inginocchia e prega sommesso).

CAVARADOSSI: (dalla porta interale, vedendo il Sagrestano in ginocchio) Che fai?

SAGRESTANO: (alzandosi) Recito l'Angelus.
(Cavaradossi sale sull'impalcato e scopre il quadro. È una Maria Maddalena a grandi occhi azzurri con una gran pioggia di capelli dorati. Il pittore vi sta dinanzi muto attentamente osservando).
(Il Sagrestano volgendosi verso Cavaradossi per dirigerglio la parola, vede il quadro scoperto e dà in un grido di meraviglia)
O sante ampolle! Il suo ritratto! . . .

CAVARADOSSI: Di chi?

SAGRESTANO: Di quell'ignota che i dì passati a pregar qui venìa tutta devota—e pia.
(e accenna verso la Madonna dalla quale Angelotti trasse la chiave)

CAVARADOSSI: (sorridendo) È vero. E tanto ell'era infervorata nella sua preghiera ch'io ne pinsi, non visto, il bel sembiante.

SAGRESTANO: (Fuori, Satana, fuori!)

CAVARADOSSI: Dammi i colori!
(Il Sagrestano esegulsce. Cavaradossi dipinge con rapidità e si sofferma spesso a riguar dare: Il Sagrestano va e viene, portando una catinella entro la quale continua a lavare i pennelli).
(A un tratto Cavaradossi si ristà di dipingere; leva di tasca un medaglione contenente una miniatura e gli occhi suoi vanno dal medaglione al quadro)
Recondita armonia di bellezze diverse! . . . È bruna Floria, l'ardente amante mia
e te bel nobile fiore, cinga di chiome bionde!
Tu azzuro hai l'occhio e Tosca sa l'occhio nero!
L'arte nel suo mistero le diverse bellezze insiem confonde:
ma nel ritrar costei
il mio solo pensier,
O il mio solo pensier, ser tu. Tosca ser tu.

SAGRESTANO: (fra sè, brontolando) (Scherza coi fanti e lascia stare i santi.
Queste diverse gonne che fanno concorrenze alle Madonne mandan tanfo d'inferno.
Ma con quei cani—de volterriani nemiei del santissimo governo non c'è da metter voce! . . . Facciam piuttosto il segno della croce).
(a Cavaradossi)
Vado, Eccellenza?

CAVARADOSSI: Fa il tuo piacere! (ritorna a dipingere).

SAGRESTANO: (indicando il cesto) Pieno è il paniere . . .
Fa penitenza?

CAVARADOSSI: Fame non ho.

SAGRESTANO: (con ironia stropicciandosi le mani)
Oh! . . . mi rincresce!
(non può trattenere un gesto di gioia e uno sguardo di avidità verso il cesto che prende ponendolo un po' in disparte)
Badi, quand'esce chiuda.

CAVARADOSSI: Va!

THE SACRISTAN: (who has a nervous trick of twitching his neck and shoulders) Vainly I soak them!
They are dirty and sticky,
Fouler than any slovenly choirboy's dickie . . .
Good sir, I pray you (staring at the däis and amazed to see it vacant)
What! Nobody! I could have sworn
I should have found Cavaradossi busily working at his easel.
(He looks into the basket)
No, wrong again.
Nothing has been touched here.
(he steps down from the däis. The Angelus is rung. He kneels, and intones the prayer. Bell. Enter Cavaradossi L. He sees the Sacristan kneeling) CAVARADOSSI: What now?

SACRISTAN: (rising) Only the Angelus.
(Cavaradossi ascends the däis and uncovers the picture, which represents a Mary Magdalen with large blue eyes and masses of golden hair. The painter stands facing it, gazing upon it in silent and intent contemplation. Turning towards Cavaradossi to speak to him, the Sacristan catches sight of the uncovered picture and exclaims in great amazement:)
SACRISTAN: Saints and Martyrs! It is the portrait . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (turning towards the Sacristan)
Of whom?

SACRISTAN: Of that fair lady who, day by day, lately, came here to pray.
(reverently bowing before the Virgin's image beneath which Angelotti had found the key) Deeply devout was her worship . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (smiling) Yes, truly! While absorbed in her devotions, plunged in dreamy rapture
I, unseen, depicted her lovely semblance.

SACRISTAN: (scandalized) Get Satan, behind me!

CAVARADOSSI: (to the Sacristan, who obeys him) Give me the colors!
(he begins to paint rapidly, often pausing to look at his own work, while the Sacristan fidgets backwards and forwards, eventually picking up the brushes and dabbling them in a bucket at the foot of the scaffolding. Cavaradossi suddenly stops painting, takes out of his breast-pocket a medallion containing a miniature, and compares the latter with the picture on the easel.)
Strange harmony of contrasts, thus deliciously blending,
My Floria's dusky glow with contending peach-like bloom.

SACRISTAN: (grumbling under his breath) He scorns the saints and jests with the ungodly.
(fetches water wherewith to cleanse the brushes)

CAVARADOSSI: Oh fairest Queen of Heaven, Your tresses are gold and radiantly bright!
Your eyes are blue—and Tosca's Dark as a moonless night.

SACRISTAN: (returns up the stage, murmuring) He scorns the saints and jests with the ungodly!
(The Sacristan recommences washing the brushes)

CAVARADOSSI: Art, that potent magician, combines many beauties in one ideal;
To me, beloved Tosca, when I paint your bright visage, you alone are real! (he continues to paint)

SACRISTAN: (having dried the cleaned brushes, he goes on muttering) These light of loves pernicious,
So frivolously vicious, Delight in wiling human souls to perdition;
And they, like heathenish unbelievers,
Should all be hanged or burned as vile deceivers,
By the Holy Inquisition.
(grumbles)
He scoffs at saints, and jests with the ungodly!
(He thrusts the basket under the scaffolding, and places the clean brushes in a jug near the painter)
(aside) (I may as well be off, with his permission.)
(aloud) Excellency, I'm going.

CAVARADOSSI: Do as you please, man. (goes on painting)

SACRISTAN: (pointing to the basket) Full is the pannier . . .
Pray, are you fasting?

CAVARADOSSI: Nothing for me!

SACRISTAN: Oh! I am sorry! . . .
(rubs his hands ironically, but cannot repress a joyous gesture and a greedy glance at the basket, which he picks up and sets aside. He then takes two pinches of snuff)
Please lock up, when leaving.

CAVARADOSSI: Go!

SAGRESTANO: Vo.
(s'allontana per il fondo)
(Cavaradossi volgendo le spalle alla Cappella lavora. Angelotti, credendo deserta la chiesa, appare dietro la cancellata e introduce la chiave per aprire).

CAVARADOSSI: (al cigolìo della serratura si volta) Gente là dentro!
(al movimento fatto da Cavaradossi, Angelotti, atterrito si arresta come per rifugiarsi ancora nella Cappella—ma—alzati gli occhi, un grido di gioia, che egli soffoca tosto timoroso, crompe dal suo petto. Egli ha riconosciuto il pittore e gli stende le braccia come ad un aluto insperato)

ANGELOTTI: Voi! Cavaradossi!
Vi manda Iddio!

CAVARADOSSI: Ma . . .

ANGELOTTI: (va fin sotto l'impalcato) Non mi ravvisate?
Il carcere mi ha dunque assai mutato

CAVARADOSSI: Il carcere?
(Cavaradossi guarda fiso il volto di Angelotti, e finalmente lo ravvisa. Depone rapido tavolozza e pennelli, scende dall'impalcato verso Angelotti, guardandosi caute intorno) Angelotti!

ANGELOTTI: Appunto.

CAVARADOSSI: Il Console
della spenta repubblica romana.
(corre a chiudere la porta a destra)

ANGELOTTI: Fuggii pur ora da
Castel Sant'Angelo . . .

CAVARADOSSI: Disponete di me.

VOCE di TOSCA: Mario!
(alla voce di Tosca, Cavaradossi fa un rapido cenno ad Angelotti di tacre)

CAVARADOSSI: Celatevi!
È una donna . . . gelosa. Un breve istante e la rimando.

VOCE DI TOSCA: Mario!

CAVARADOSSI: (verso la porta di dove viene la voce di Tosca) Eccomi!

ANGELOTTI: (colto da un accesso di debolezza si appoggia all'impalcato) Sono stremo di forze—non mi reggo.

SACRISTAN: I go. (Exit C.)
(Cavaradossi continues to work, turning his back to the Chapel. Angelotti, believing the Church to be empty, appears behind the railing, and uses the key to open it)

CAVARADOSSI: (hears the lock creak, and turns round) Someone is in there!
(Angelotti, alarmed by Cavaradossi's movement, is about to take refuge anew in the Chapel, but utters a half-stifled cry of gladness on recognizing the painter, towards whom he advances open-armed, as to an unhoped-for rescuer)

ANGELOTTI: You! Cavaradossi!
God sends you to me!
(Cavaradossi does not recognize Angelotti, and remains on the däis, petrified by amazement. Angelotti, craving recognition, approaches him)
Have you quite forgotten?
Has prison-life robbed me of all knowledge?

CAVARADOSSI: (recognizing Angelotti, hastily sets down his palette and brushes, and descends from the däis looking cautiously around him) Angelotti!
The Consul of the moribund Roman Republic!
(hastens to close the church-door L)

ANGELOTTI: (advancing towards Cavaradossi) I have escaped but now from Fort San Angelo . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (generously) Can I do anything to help you?

TOSCA: (from without) Mario!

CAVARADOSSI: (hearing Tosca's voice, makes a sign to Angelotti enjoining him to keep silence)
Conceal yourself!
The most jealous of women . . .
I'll dismiss her within a minute.

TOSCA: Mario! (as before)

CAVARADOSSI: (in reply) Here I am!

ANGELOTTI: (overcome by weakness, leans against the scaffolding) I am hungry and weary and exhausted . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (rapidissimo, sale sull'impalcato, ne discende col paniere e incoraggiando Angelotti, lo spinge verso la Cappella)
In questo panier vi è cibo e vino.

ANGELOTTI: Grazie!

CAVARADOSSI: Presto!
(Angelotti entra nella Cappella).

VOCE di TOSCA: (chiamando ripetutamente stizzita) Mario!

CAVARADOSSI: (apre) Son qui!

TOSCA: (entra con an specie di violenza, allontana bruscamente Mario che vuole abbracciarla e guarda sospettosa intorno a sè)
Perchè chiuso?

CAVARADOSSI: Lo vuole il Sagrestano.

TOSCA: A chi parlavi?

CAVARADOSSI: A te!

TOSCA: Altre parole bisbigliavi.
Ov'è? . . .

CAVARADOSSI: Chi?

TOSCA: Colei! . . . Quella donna!
Ho udito i lesti passi e un fruscìo di vesti . . .

CAVARADOSSI: Sogni!

TOSCA: Lo neghi?

CAVARADOSSI: Lo nego e t'amo!
(per baciarla)

TOSCA: (con dolce rimprovero)
O! innanzi la madonna.
Lascia pria ch'io l'infiori e che la preghi.
(si avvicina alla Madonna, dispone con arte, intorno ad essa, i fiori che ha portato con sè, si inginocchia e prega con molta devozione, poi s'alza)
(a Cavaradossi, che si è avviato per riprendere il lavoro)
Ora stammi a sentir—stassera canto, ma è spettacolo breve. Tu mi aspetti sull'uscio della scena
e alla villa ne andiam soli e soletti.

CAVARADOSSI: (che fu sempre soprapensieri) Stassera?!

TOSCA: È luna piena
ed il notturno effluvio floreale nebria il cor.—Non sei contento?

CAVARADOSSI: (ancora un po' distratto e peritoso) Tanto?

CAVARADOSSI: (produces the basket from under the scaffolding, and gives it to Angelotti) See, here is good store of food and liquor.

ANGELOTTI: Thank you!

CAVARADOSSI: (urging Angelotti forward, towards the Chapel)
Hurry!
(Angelotti enters the Chapel)

TOSCA: (irritated) Mario! Mario!
Mario!

CAVARADOSSI: (feigning calm, opens the door to Tosca) I am here!

TOSCA: (enters impetuously, looking suspiciously about her. Cavaradossi approaches her to embrace her; she repels him brusquely) Why lock the door?

CAVARADOSSI: (feigning indifference) By the Sacristan's order.

TOSCA: To whom were you speaking?

CAVARADOSSI: To you!

TOSCA: I heard you whispering to someone else.
Where is she?

CAVARADOSSI: Who?

TOSCA: Why, she! . . . Your fair lady!
I heard quite plainly
Her footsteps and the swish of her skirts . . .

CAVARADOSSI: Fancies!

TOSCA: Was it not so?

CAVARADOSSI: (passionately) It was not, beloved!
(he tries to embrace her)

TOSCA: (gently reproving him)
Oh! before the good Madonna! No,
Mario mine; let me pray to her first,
and make my offering!
(she reverently adorns the Virgin's image with the flowers which she had brought with her for that purpose; then kneels down, prays devoutly, crosses herself, and arises. To Cavaradossi, who, meanwhile, has made preparations to resume work)
And now listen to me.
Tonight I'm singing, but the piece is a short one. At the stage door await me without fail, and we'll run off to the villa by stealth together.

CAVARADOSSI: (absently) This evening?

TOSCA: The moon is full, and all the scents that rise from fragrant flowers perfume the night.
Will that please you?
(she sits down on the däis-step, close to Cavaradossi)

CAVARADOSSI: Surely!
(absently)

TOSCA: (colpita da quell'accento) Tornalo a dir!

CAVARADOSSI: Tanto!

TOSCA: Lo dici male:
(va a sedere sulla gradinata presso a Cavaradossi) non la sospiri la nostra casetta che tutta ascosa nel verde ci aspetta?
nido a noi sacro, ignoto al mondo inter.
pien d'amore e di mister?
Oh al tuo fianco sentire per le silenzïose stellate ombre, salire le voci delle cose!
Dai boschi, dai royeti, dall'arse erbe, dall'imo dei franti sepolcreti odorosi di timo, la notte escon bisbigli di minuscoli amori e perfidi consigli che ammolliscono i cuori.
Fìorite, o campi immensi, palpitate aure marine nel lunare albor, piovete voluttà, vôlte stellate!
Arde a Tosca nel sangue il folle amor!

CAVARADOSSI: (vinto, ma vigilante) Mi avvinci ne'tuoi lacci! . . .
Sì verrò mia sirena!
(guarda verso la parte donde uscì Angelotti)
Ma or lasciami al lavoro.

TOSCA: Mi discacci?

CAVARADOSSI: Urge l'opra, lo sai!

TOSCA: Vado! (alza gli occhi e vede il quadro) Chi è quella donna bionda lassu?

CAVARADOSSI: La Maddalena.
Ti piace?

TOSCA: È troppo bella!

CAVARADOSSI: (ridendo ed inchinandosi) Prezioso elogio.

TOSCA: (sospettosa) Ridi?
Quegli occhi cilestrini io già li vidi . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (con indifferenza) Ce n'è tanti pel mondo!

TOSCA: (struck with his indifference) Say it again!

CAVARADOSSI: (as before) Surely.

TOSCA: (vexed) You say it badly.
Do you not long for our secluded cottage,
From which all cares and vexations are excluded?
Sweet, secret nest, in which we love-birds hide,
Safe and happy, side by side.
When the skies are calm and clear,
We'll listen to the voices
That only lovers hear
When Nature herself rejoices
From all the flowers that bloom in that earthly Eden,
Late breezes, laden with summer fragrance,
Cull perfumes that, blended, evoke a strange mysterious sensation,
Rife with subtle and sweet intoxication.
The babbling brooks, the rustling leaves and grasses,
The night-birds belated, the chirping red-breast and cooing turtle-dove
Murmur the story of the joy that surpasses all,
Tell the tale of ardent love.

CAVARADOSSI: You have caught me in your toils, my fair enchantress.
Sweet siren, I will come!

TOSCA: My beloved!
(leans her head against Cavaradossi's shoulder. Straightway he draws back a little fixing his gaze upon the Chapel-gates)

CAVARADOSSI: Now leave me to my labors.

TOSCA: (surprised) You dismiss me?

CAVARADOSSI: I must work, child, as you know.

TOSCA: (showing vexation, rises)
I am going!
(moves away from Cavaradossi, but, looking back, perceives the picture, and returns to Cavaradossi, much agitated)
Pray, who is that fair-haired woman there?

CAVARADOSSI: A Magdalen (calmly) Do you like her?

TOSCA: She is too handsome.

CAVARADOSSI: (bowing and smiling) A flattering judgment!

TOSCA: (suspiciously) You smile?
I fancy I have seen those blue eyes somewhere . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (with indifference) They're by no means uncommon! . . .

TOSCA: (cercando ricordare) Aspetta . . . Aspetta . . .
È l'Attavanti!

CAVARADOSSI: (ridendo) Brava!

TOSCA: (cieca di gelosia) La vedi?
Ti ama? Tu l'ami? Quei passi, quel bisbiglio . . . Qui stava pur ora! Ah la civetta!
A me!

CAVARADOSSI: (serio) La vidi ieri—ma fu puro caso. A pregar qui venne . . . e la ritrassi non visto.

TOSCA: Giura!

CAVARADOSSI: (serio) Giuro!

TOSCA: (sempre cogli occhi rivolti al quadro) Come mi guarda fiso!

CAVARADOSSI: (la spinge dolcemente a scendere dalla gradinata. Essa discende all'indietro tenendo alto le sue mani in quelle di Cavaradossi. Tosca scendendo ha sempre la faccia verso il quadro cui Mario dà le spalle) Vien via . . .

TOSCA: Di me, beffarda, ride. (sona scesi)

CAVARADOSSI: Follia! (la Tiene presso di sè fissandola in viso)

TOSCA: (insistente) Ah, quegli occhi . . . quegli occhi! . . .

CAVARADOSSI: Quale occhio al mondo mai puó star di paro al limpido ed ardente occhio tuo nero?
In quale mai dell'anima il mistero si rivelò più subito e più chiaro?
È questo il desïato è questo il caro occhio ove l'esser mio s'aflisa intero.
Occhio all'amor soave, all'ira fiero quale altro al mondo ti può star di paro?

TOSCA: (striving to remember) A moment.
(ascends the däis, and exclaims triumphantly)
The Attavanti!

CAVARADOSSI: (laughing) Brava!

TOSCA: (devoured by jealousy)
You've seen her? She loves you?
You love her?

CAVARADOSSI: (reassuringly)
You are mistaken . . .

TOSCA: (not listening to him, in her jealous rage) Those footsteps . . . and all that whispering . . .
Ah! You have betrayed me for her . . .

CAVARADOSSI: What nonsense!

TOSCA: That hideous creature!
(menacingly) For her!

CAVARADOSSI: (gravely) I saw her yesterday by the merest chance.
She came here to pray, and—unseen—I sketched her features . . .

TOSCA: Swear it!

CAVARADOSSI: I swear it (gravely)

TOSCA: (gazing steadfastly at the picture) See how she stares, the harpy! . . .

CAVARADOSSI: Away, love!

TOSCA: As though she loathed and scorned me.

CAVARADOSSI: (gently urging her to descend the steps) What folly!
(she comes down backwards, holding both Cavaradossi's hands, and never taking her eyes off the picture. Cavaradossi presses her to him fondly, looking lovingly into her eyes)

TOSCA: (softly reproaching him)
Ah! those eyes! . . .

CAVARADOSSI: No eyes on earth—not the brightest and clearest—
Are as lustrous as yours . . .
Why do you doubt me? What is it you fear?
Why would your jealous fancy fain discover
A faithless heart in the loyal breast of your own constant lover?

TOSCA: (rapita, appoggiando la testa alla spalla di Cavaradossi) Oh come la sai bene l'arte di farti amare! . . . (sempre insistendo nella sua idea) Ma . . . falle gli occhi neri!	TOSCA: (carried way, and resting her head on his bosom) Whether you're false or faithful, Mario I must believe you. But (maliciously) let her eyes be black ones!
CAVARADOSSI: Mia gelosa!	CAVARADOSSI: (tenderly) Jealous darling!
TOSCA: Sì, lo sento . . . ti tormento senza posa.	TOSCA: Yes, I feel that I torment you without reason
CAVARADOSSI: Mia gelosa!	CAVARADOSSI: Jealous darling!
TOSCA: Certa sono—del perdono se tu guardi al mio dolor!	TOSCA: And I know you will forgive me, for I hate to give you pain.
CAVARADOSSI: Ogni cosa in te mi piace; l'ira audace e lo spasimo d'amor!	CAVARADOSSI: My Tosca, dear adored one, every mood of yours is charming; even your anger is an ecstasy of love!
TOSCA: Dilla ancora la parola che consola . . . dilla ancora!	TOSCA: Oh, repeat those words consoling. If you love me, pray repeat them!
CAVARADOSSI: Si, mia vita, amante inquieta, dirò sempre: "Floria, t'amo!" Se la dolce anima acquieta, "T'amo!" sempre ti dirò!	CAVARADOSSI: My own mistrustful angel, I shall always love you dearly! Yes, anxious spirit, I shall love you till I die!
TOSCA: (sciogliendosi, pauro ad'esser vinta) Dio, Dio! quante peccata! M'hai tutta spettinata.	TOSCA: See! it is disgraceful! My hair is quite dishevelled.
CAVARADOSSI: Or va—lasciami!	CAVARADOSSI: Now go; leave me.
TOSCA: Tu fino a stassera stai lì, fermo al lavoro. E mi prometti che sia caso o fortuna, sia treccia bionda o nera, a pregar non verrà, donna nessuna?	TOSCA: Continue to work at your picture till nightfall And you must promise that no pious lady, no fair or dusky beauty, shall be admitted here on any pretext!
CAVARADOSSI: Lo guiro, amore! . . . —Va!	CAVARADOSSI: I promise, beloved! . . . Go!
TOSCA: Quanto mi affretti!	TOSCA: Why should I hurry?
CAVARADOSSI: (con dolce rimprovero vedendo rispuntare la gelosia) Ancora?	CAVARADOSSI: (reproachfully) Again, love?
TOSCA: (cadendo nelle sue braccia e porgendogli la guancia) No—perdona!	TOSCA: (falls into his arms) No! forgive me! (offers her cheek to his lips)
CAVARADOSSI: (sorridendo) Davanti la Madonna?	CAVARADOSSI: (jestingly) Before the good Madonna?
TOSCA: È tanto buona! (un bacio e Tosca esce correndo). (Appena uscita Tosca, Cavaradossi sta ascoltandone i passi allontanarsi, poi con precauzione socchiude l'uscio e guarda fuori. Visto tutto tranquillo, corre alla Cappella. Angellotti appare subito dietro la cancellata).	TOSCA: (saluting the image) She won't be angry! (about to leave, she again gazes at the picture, and says maliciously) But let her eyes be black ones! (exit hastily. Cavaradossi remains on the stage, plunged in thought. Remembering Angelotti, he listens to Tosca's retreating steps, opens the side-door and looks out. Seeing that all is quiet, he hurries back to the chapel. Angelotti appears behind the railings, which Cavaradossi opens, letting Angelotti out of the chapel. They shake hands affectionately)
CAVARADOSSI: (aprendo la cancellata ad Angelotti, che naturalment ha dovuto udire il dialogo precedente) È buona la mia Tosca, ma credente al confessore nulla tien celato, ond'io mi tacqui. È cosa più prudente.	CAVARADOSSI: (to Angelotti, who, of course, has heard the preceding conversation) My Tosca is true-hearted, but indiscreet. She cannot keep a secret from her old Confessor. So I deemed it were wiser to keep your counsel strictly.
ANGELOTTI: Siam soli?	ANGELOTTI: Are we alone?
CAVARADOSSI: Sì. Qual'è il vostro disegno?	CAVARADOSSI: Yes. What plan have you concocted?
ANGELOTTI: A norma degli eventi, uscir di Stato o star celato in Roma. Mia sorella . . .	ANGELOTTI: As prudence shall dictate, I shall cross the frontier, or lie hidden in the city . . . My sister . . .
CAVARADOSSI: L'Attavanti?	CAVARADOSSI: The Attavanti?
ANGELOTTI: Sì, . . . ascose un muliebre abbigliamento là sotto l'altare . . . vesti, velo, ventaglio. Appena imbruni indosserò quei panni . . .	ANGELOTTI: Yes . . . Concealed a full suit of woman's garments, there, under the altar . . . The costume lacks nothing essential . . . (looks nervously around him) It will serve after dark as a disguise. What say you?
CAVARADOSSI: Ora comprendo! Quel fare circospetto e il pregante fervore in giovin donna e bella m'avean messo in sospetto di qualche occulto amore! . . . Era amor di sorella!	CAVARADOSSI: Let us hope so! Such circumspect demeanor, and devoutness so prayerful, in such a youthful beauty; I fancied these were symptoms of some subtle love intrigue! . . . How I wronged her! She was trying to save you!
ANGELOTTI: Tutto ella ha osato onde sottrarmi a Scarpia scellerato!	ANGELOTTI: Reckless of danger, she strove to rescue me from Scarpia's clutches.
CAVARADOSSI: Scarpia?! Bigotto satiro che affina celle devote pratiche—la foia libertina—e strumento al lascivo talento fa il confessore e il boia! Vi salverò, ne andasse della vita! Ma indugiar fino a notte è mal sicuro.	CAVARADOSSI: Scarpia? A bigoted satyr and hypocrite, secretly steeped in vice and most demonstratively pious; sanctimonious, lascivious, and cruel; a cross between confessor and hangman! (Indignantly)—I'll save you, should it cost even my life! To delay until night is scarcely prudent . . .
ANGELOTTI: Temo del sole!	ANGELOTTI: Daylight affrights me! . . .
CAVARADOSSI: (indicando) La cappella mette ad un oroto mal chiuso—indi un canneto mena lungi pei campi a una mia villa.	CAVARADOSSI: (pointing towards the chapel) From the chapel-door you enter a garden. There runs a roughish path, which, traversing some fields, leads to my villa . . .
ANGELOTTI: Mi è nota.	ANGELOTTI: I know it.
CAVARADOSSI: Ecco la chiave— innanzi sera io vi raggiungo—portate con voi le vesti femminili.	CAVARADOSSI: Here is the door-key. Before it is dark I will rejoin you. Take with you the clothes concealed here by your fair sister.
ANGELOTTI: (raccoglie in fascio le vestimenta sotto l'altare) Ch'io le indossi?	ANGELOTTI: (picks up the garments hidden under the altar) Must I wear them?
CAVARADOSSI: Per or non monta, il sentiero è deserto.	CAVARADOSSI: I think you need not, for the path is deserted.

ANGELOTTI: (per uscire) Addio!

CAVARADOSSI: (accorrendo verso Angelotti) Se urgesse il periglio, correte al pozzo del giardin. L'acqua è nel fondo, ma a mezzo della canna (e sporgon pietre ad agevol discesa) un picciol varco guida ad un antro oscuro, rifugio impenetrabile e sicuro!
(un colpo di cannone; i due si guardano agitatissimi)

ANGELOTTI: Il cannon del castello!

CAVARADOSSI: Fu scoperta la fuga! Or Scarpia i suoi sbirri sguinzaglia!

ANGELOTTI: Addio!

CAVARADOSSI: (con subita risoluzione) Con voi verrò. Staremo all'erta!

ANGELOTTI: Odo qualcun!

CAVARADOSSI: (con entusiasmo) Se ci assalgon, battaglia!
(escono rapidamente dalla Cappella)

SAGRESTANO: (entra correndo, tutto scalmanato, gridando)
Sommo giubilo, Eccellenza! . . .
(guarda verso l'impalcato e rimane sorpreso di non trovarvi neppure questa volta il pittore)
Non c'è più! Ne son dolente!
Chi contrista un miscredente si guadagna un'indulgenza!
(accorrono da ogni parte chierici, confratelli, allievi e cantori della Cappella. Tutt costoro o entrano tumultuosamente)
Tutta qui la cantoria!
Presto! . . .
(altri allievi entrano in ritardo e alla fine si radunano tutti)

ALLIEVI: (colla massima confusione) Dove?

SAGRESTANO: In sagrestia.
(spinge alcuni chièrici)

ALCUNI ALLIEVI: Ma che avvenne?

SAGRESTANO: Nol sapete?
Bonaparte . . . scellerato . . .
Bonaparte . . .

ALTRI ALLIEVI: Ebben? Che fu?

SAGRESTANO: Fu spennato, sfracellato e piombato a Belzebû!

ALLIEVI, CANTORI, ECC.: Chi lo dice?
—È sogno!
—È fola!

ANGELOTTI: (going out) Farewell, then!

CAVARADOSSI: (follows him hurriedly) Should danger be imminent, take refuge in the garden well. Just half-way down you will find a narrow passage connecting the old well with a vast, dark cellar.
Hidden there, you will be in perfect safety.
(A cannon-shot: they exchange glances of alarm)

ANGELOTTI: The cannon of the fortress!

CAVARADOSSI: Your escape has been discovered!
Now Scarpia is unleashing his hounds.

ANGELOTTI: Farewell, then!

CAVARADOSSI: (resolutely) I'll go with you. We will evade them!

ANGELOTTI: I hear a step!

CAVARADOSSI: (enthusiastically) We'll fight if they follow!
(Exeunt quickly through the chapel)
(Enter Sacristan hurriedly, well-nigh breathless, exclaiming:)

SACRISTAN: Glorious news, your Excellency!
(astounded at not seeing Cavaradossi seated before the easel)
Now that's a pity!
He who grieves an unbeliever gains a plenary indulgence!
(Boys rush in riotously from all the entrances. Enter Acolytes, Penitents, Choristers, and Pupils of the Chapel)

SACRISTAN: Follow me, all the singing crew! This way, Quickly!

ALL: Where?

SACRISTAN: This way . . .
(pushing them towards the Sacristy)

ALL: What has happened?

SACRISTAN: Don't you know?
Buonaparte . . .
the miscreant—Buonaparte . . .

ALL: Well, what of him?

SACRISTAN: Beaten, crushed, humiliated;
Satan has him on the hip!

ALL: Who can prove it? What silly nonsense!

SAGRESTANO: È veridica parola or ne giunse la notizia!
E questa sera gran fiaccolata veglia di gala a Palazzo Farnese, ed un'apposita
nuova cantata con Floria Tosca!
E nelle chiese
inni a Signore!
Presto a vestirvi,
non più clamore!

TUTTI: (ridendo e gridando gioiosamente) Doppio soldo . . . Te Deum . . . Gloria!
Viva il Re! . . . Si festeggi l Vittoria! (Le loro grida e le loro risa sono al colmo, allorchè una voce i onica tronca brusca- mente quella gazzara volgare di canti e risa. È Scarpia: dietro a lui Spoletta e al cuni sbirri) SCARPIA: Un tal baccano in chiesa! Bel rispetto!

SAGRESTANO: (balbettando impaurito) Eccellenza, il gran giubilo . . .

SCARPIA: Apprestate per il Te Deum.
(tutti si allontanano mogi: anche il Sagrestano fa per cavarsela, ma Scarpia bruscamente lo trattiene) Tu resta!

SAGRESTANO: (impaurito) Non mi muovo!

SCARPIA: (a Spoletta) E tu va, fruga ogni angolo, raccogli ogni traccia!

SPOLETTA: Sta bene!
(fa cenno a due sbirri di seguirlo)

SCARPIA: (ad altri sbirri) Occhio alle porte, ma senza dar sospetti!
(al Sagrestano) Ora a te. Pesa
e tue risposte. Un prigionier di Stato pur or fuggito di Castel Sant'Angelo s'è rifugiato qui.

SAGRESTANO: Misericordia!

SACRISTAN: It's the truth, I assure you!
Soon the news will be made public.

ALL: It will be hailed with loud rejoicing!

SACRISTAN: This very evening
there will be great doings,
Gala performance and torchlight procession,
Also an apposite brand-new cantata
Sung by the Floria with appropriate expression
You singing boys
Put on your vestments, make no more noise.
Off! off, without delay!

ALL: (They burst out laughing and pay no attention to the SacristaN, who tries in vain to drive them into the sacristy) Double wages! Te Deum, gloria!
Long live the King!
This very evening there will be great doings, gala performance, torchlight procession,
a brand-new cantata sung by Tosca.
Long live the King!
Yes, this evening there will be great do— . . .
(enter Scarpia unexpectedly, he stands in the doorway; seeing him, all are stricken dumb and motionless, as though spellbound)

SCARPIA: (imperiously) Pray, why this great commotion?
In a church, too!
(Spoletta and other police-agents follow Scarpia)

SACRISTAN: (affrighted and stammering) Excellency . . . We were overjoyed . . .

SCARPIA: Make ready, all, for the Te Deum.
(They all sneak out, and the Sacristan is about to follow their example, when Scarpia bids him stay) Stay here!

SACRISTAN: (alarmed) I obey you!

SCARPIA: (to Spoletta) And go search every corner, look sharply about you!

SPOLETTA: I shall . . .

SCARPIA: (signals two agents to follow Spoletta) Watch all the doorways.
(to other agents of the party)
Arouse no suspicion.
(to the Sacristan)
Now for you! Answer my questions truly.
A prisoner of State escaped, an hour ago, from Fort San Angelo, and he is hidden here . . .

SACRISTAN: Misericordia!

SCARPIA: Forse c'è ancora. Dov'è la cappella degli Attavanti?

SAGRESTANO: Eccola!
(va al cancello e lo vede socchiuso)
Aperta! Arcangeli!
E . . . un'altra chiave!

SCARPIA: Buon indizio. Entriamo.
(entrano nella Cappella, poi ritornano: Scarpia, assai contrariato, ha fra le maui un ventaglio chiuso che agita nervosamente) Tardi! Fu grave sbaglio quel colpo di cannone. Il mariolo spiccato ha il volo, ma lasciò una presa . . .
prezïosa—un ventaglio.
Qual complice il misfatto preparò?
(resta pensieroso, poi guarda attentamente il ventaglio; a un tratto egli vi scorge uno stemma)
La marchesa
Attavanti! . . . Il suo stemma . . .
(guarda intorno, scrutando ogni angolo della chiesa: i suoi occhi si arrestano sull'impalcato, sugli arnesi del pittore, sul quadro . . . e il note viso dell'Attavanti gli appare riprodotto nel volto della santa) Il suo ritratto!
(a Sagrestano)
Chi fe' quelle pitture?

SAGRESTANO: Il cavaliere
Cavaradossi.

SCARPIA: Lui!
(uno dei birri che seguì Scarpia, torna dalla Cappella portando il paniere che Cava radossi diede ad Angelotti)

SAGRESTANO: (vedendolo)
Numi! Il paniere!

SCARPIA: (seguitando le sue riflessioni) Lui! L'amante di Tosca!
Un uom sospetto!
Un volterrian!

SAGRESTANO: (che andò a guardare il paniere) Vuoto? Vuoto!

SCARPIA: Che hai detto?
(vede il birro col paniere)
Che fu?

SAGRESTANO: (prendendo il paniere) Si ritrovò nella cappella questo panier.

SCARPIA: Tu lo conosci?

SCARPIA: He must be here still.
Which chapel bears the name of the Attavanti?

SACRISTAN: This is it.
(goes up to the railing, and finds it unlocked)
'Tis open! Archangels!
This key is a new one!
(shows key)

SCARPIA: That gives a clue . . . We shall see.
(they enter the chapel and return promptly, Scarpia manifestly annoyed, holding in his hand a closed fan, which he flutters nervously)
A stupid blunder (aside) that gunshot from the fortress; it gave the criminal timely warning, and he fled. But he left here this bauble . . . (waving the fan) A love token.
What fair accomplice helped him to escape?
(plunged in thought, carefully inspects the fan, and suddenly catching sight of a coat-of-arms, exclaims)
'Twas the fair Attavanti! . . .
These are her arms . . .
(looks around, examining every nook and corner of the Church. His attention is caught by the scaffolding, the painter's easel, and the picture, which reproduces the well-known face of the Marchioness Attavanti in a counterfeit presentment of Mary Magdalen)
It is her portrait.
(to the Sacristan)
Who painted that picture?

SACRISTAN: (still terror-stricken) Sir Mario Cavaradossi . . .

SCARPIA: He!

SACRISTAN: (perceiving a police-agent, who issues from the Chapel, basket in hand) Bless me! This is his basket!

SCARPIA: (following up his train of thought) He! The lover of Tosca!
A man suspected! An unbeliever!

SACRISTAN: (having looked inside the basket, exclaims in great surprise) Empty! . . .

SCARPIA: (catching sight of the agent and the basket) What did you say? Speak up!

SACRISTAN: (takes the basket from the agent) It has been found inside the Chapel,
hidden away.

SCARPIA: Do you recognize it?

SAGRESTANO: Certo!
(è esitante e pauroso)
E il cesto del pittor . . . ma . . . nondimeno . . .

SCARPIA: Sputa quello che sai.

SAGRESTANO: Io lo lasciai ripieno di cibo prelibato . . .
il pranzo del pittore! . . .

SCARPIA: (attento, inquirente per scoprir terreno) Avrà pranzato!

SAGRESTANO: Nella cappella?
Non ne avea la chiave nè contava pranzar . . . eisse egli stesso.
Ond'io già l'avea messo qual mia spoglia al riparo.
(mostra dove avea riposta il paniere e ve lo lascia)

SCARPIA: (Tutto è chiaro . . . la provvista—del sacrista d'Angelotti fu la preda!)
(scorgendo Tosca che entra frettoloso)
Tosca? Che non mi veda.
(ripara dietro la colonna dov'è la pila dell'acqua benedetta)
(Per ridurre un geloso allo sbaraglio A Jago un fazzoletto—a me un ventaglio!)

TOSCA: (corre al palco sicura di trovare Cavaradossi e sorpresa di non vederlo) Mario?! Mario?!

SAGRESTANO: (che si trova al piedi dell'impalcato) Il pittore Cavaradossi?
Chi sa dove sia l'eretico e con chi?
Sgattaiolò, svanì per sua stregoneria. (e se la svigna)

TOSCA: Ingannata?
No . . . no . . .
tradirmi egli non può!

SCARPIA: (ha girato la colonna e si presenta a Tosca, sorpresa del suo subito apparire. Intinge le dita nella pila e le offre l'acqua benedetta; fuori suonano le campane che invitano alla chiesa).
Tosca divina
la mano mia

SACRISTAN: Doubtless! It is the painter's basket . . . .
(stammering timidly) but . . . notwithstanding . . . .

SCARPIA: (vehemently) Spit out all that you know!

SACRISTAN: (still affrighted, tearfully holds up the empty basket) I brought it here, filled wit the best of food and liquor . . .
The painter's mid-day meal . . .

SCARPIA: (significantly) Which he has eaten!

SACRISTAN: (making a negative gesture) Not in the Chapel!
for he did not have the key, nor did he mean to eat at all . . . at least, so he told me.
So I had set it down there,
(points to the place where he had left the full basket) beneath the easel.
(Painfully impressed by Scarpia's stern and silent bearing)
(Deliver us from temptation!) (to himself)

SCARPIA: (aside) It is clear as daylight . . . The provisions of the Sacristan were devoured by Angelotti.
(Enter Tosca nervously; she walkes straight up to the scaffolding. Not finding Cavaradossi there, in great agitation, she searches for him in the central nave of the church. Scarpia, as soon as he sees her come in, instantly hides behind the pillar to which the holy-water trough is affixed, imperatively signalling the Sacristan to stay where he is. The Sacristan trembling with confusion, stands near the painter's däis) Tosca! She must not see me!
It was a handkerchief that lit Othello's jealous fire,
Now shall this fragile fan rouse Tosca's ire!

TOSCA: (returns to the däis, calling out loudly and impatiently) Mario! Mario!

SACRISTAN: (approaching her)
Do you mean Cavaradossi?
Where he is, who can say?
Obedient to some spell he vanished clean away.
(exit furtively)

TOSCA: Has he betrayed me? No!
To me he could not be untrue.

SCARPIA: (turns round the pillar, dips his fingers in the trough, and offers holy water to Tosca. Bells ring to church) Divinest Tosca, (gently and insinuatingly) your dainty hand, that milk-white wonder, lend me for a moment, that I may la vostra aspetta—piccola manina, non per galanteria

ma per offrirvi l'acqua benedetta.

TOSCA: (tocca le dita di Scarpia e si fa il segno della croce) Grazie, signor!
(Poco a poco entrano in chiesa, e vanno nella navata principale, popolani, borghesi, ciociare, trasteverine, soldati, pecorari, ciociari, mendicanti, ecc.: poi un Cardinale, col Capitolo, si reca all'altare maggiore; la folla, rivolta verso l'altare maggiore, si accalca nella navata principale).

SCARPIA: Un nobile esempio il vostro—al cielo
piena di santo zelo attingete dell'arte il magistero che la fede ravviva!

TOSCA: (distratta e pensosa) Bontà vostra.

SCARPIA: Le pie donne son rare . . .
Voi calcate la scena . . .
(con intenzione)
ma in chiesa ci venite per pregare.

TOSCA: (sorpresa) Che intendete?

SCARPIA: E non fate
Come certe sfrontate che hanno di Maddalena (indica il ritratto) viso e costumi . . . e vi trescan d'amore!

TOSCA: (scatta pronta) Che? D'amore? Le prove!

SCARPIA: (mostra il ventaglio) È arnese di pittore questo?

TOSCA: (lo afferra) Un ventaglio? Dove stava?

SCARPIA: Là su quel palco. Qualcun venne certo a sturbar gli amanti ed essa nel fuggir perdè le penne!

TOSCA: (esaminando il ventaglio) La corona! Lo stemma! È l'Attavanti!
Ah presago sospetto!

SCARPIA: (Ho sortito l'effetto!)

TOSCA: (trattenendo a stento le lagrime, dimentica del luogo e di Scarpia) Ed io venivo a lui tutta dogliosa per dirgli: invan stassera ai sospirosi amanti il ciel s'infosca l'innamorata Tosca dei regali tripudi è prigioniera!

lightly touch it with my uncouth fingers dipped in holy water . . .

TOSCA: (touches Scarpia's fingers, and crosses herself) Thanks, many thanks!

SCARPIA: No woman alive does nobler work than you.
From heaven, teeming with fervid sanctity, you conjure to earth the sacred raptures that give life to religion.

TOSCA: (thoughtful and inattentive) Spare my blushes.
(Several people enter the church and gather together up the stage)

SCARPIA: Pious songsters are rare,
But you, the star of the lyric stage,
Come here to bend your knees in prayer.
(Bells ring to church)

TOSCA: (surprised) What do you mean?

SCARPIA: You are not like certain frivolous wantons;
(points to the portrait)
Magdalens they simulate profanely, and come here to meet their lovers.
(Emphatically.)

TOSCA: (starting) How? Their lovers? What do you mean?

SCARPIA: (showing her the fan)
Is this a painter's brush or mahlstick?

TOSCA: (seizing it) It's a fan!
Where did you find it?

SCARPIA: There, on the easel. (Enter the peasants)
Some casual worshippers disturbed the lovers, and in her hasty flight she dropped some feathers!

TOSCA: (examining the fan) A coronel! Her arms, too!
It is Attavanti's! Prophetic suspicion!

SCARPIA: (aside) My design has succeeded

TOSCA: (sorrowfully, restraining her tears with difficulty, forgetful of the locality and of Scarpia) And I who sought him here, oppressed with sorrow,
To say I could not meet him till tomorrow . . .
That Tosca, to her grief and consternation,
Would have to figure at this evening's celebration.

SCARPIA: (Già il veleno l'ha rosa.)
(mellifluo a Tosca)
O che v'offende,
dolce signora?
Una ribelle lacrima scende sovra le belle guancie e le irrora;
dolce signora,
che mai v'accora?

TOSCA: Nulla!

SCARPIA: (insinuante) Io darei la vita per asciugar quel pianto.

TOSCA: (non ascoltandolo) Io qui mi struggo e intanto d'altra in braccio ci la mie smanie deride!

SCARPIA: (Morde il veleno.)

TOSCA: (sempre più crucciosa)
Dove son? Potessi coglierli i traditori. O qual sospetto!
Ai doppi amori
è la villa recetto.
(con immenso dolore)
O mio bel nido insozzato di fango!
(con pronta risoluzione)
Vi piomberò inattesa.
(rivolta al quadro minacciosa)
Tu non l'avrai stanotte. Giuro!

SCARPIA: (scandolezzato, quasi rimproverandola) In chiesa!

TOSCA: Dio mi perdona. Egli vede ch'io piango!
(parte in grande agitazione: Scarpia l'accompagna, fingendo di rassicurarla. Appens uscita Tosca, Scarpia ritorna presso la colonna e fa un cenno).

SCARPIA: (a Spoletta che sbuca di dietro la colonna) Tre sbirri . . .
Presto—seguila dovunque vada . . . non visto . . . e provvedi!

SPOLETTA: Basta. Il convegno?

SCARPIA: A Palazzo Farnese!
(Spoletta parte rapidamente con tre sbirri)
Va, Tosca! Nel tuo cuor s'annida Scarpia.
Egli ti segue e ti sospinge. È Scarpia che scioglie a volo il falco della tua gelosia. Quanta promessa nel tuo pronto sospetto! A doppia

SCARPIA: (aside) How the poison is working!
(enter groups of peasants, carters, etc.)
(gently) What has aggrieved you,
Sweetest of creatures? . . .
Say, has some traitor basely deceived you,
That tears bedew those exquisite features?
Tell me, fair Tosca, what has aggrieved you?

TOSCA: Nothing!

SCARPIA: I'd give my life if I could mitigate your anguish.

TOSCA: (not listening to him)
And here I must languish in grief,
While, embraced in other arms, he derides me!

SCARPIA: (Well works the poison!) (aside)

TOSCA: Where am I?
(A few citizens stroll in)
How could I think he would yield to temptation?
My pretty villa! (angrily)
Must I submit to its vile profanation?
Cruel Mario!
In mire my nest of love they have been steeping!
(resolutely)
I'll purge it of their vileness!
(turns threateningly towards the picture)
Tonight you shall not possess him!
(desperately)
I swear it!

SCARPIA: (scandalized) In church!

TOSCA: (weeping) God will forgive me, for He sees I am weeping!
(sobs bitterly. Scarpia accompanies her to the door, pretending to reassure her. After her exit, the church becomes gradually fuller and fuller. Having escorted Tosca to the church-door, Scarpia returns to the chapel-gate and makes a sign, in obedience to which Spoletta issues from behind the pillar. The crowd withdraws to the back of the church, awaiting the Cardinal; some kneel down and pray)

SCARPIA: Three agents, and a close carriage . . . Quickly . . .
follow her whithersoever she may go . . . Be careful!

SPOLETTA: I will. Where shall I find you?

SCARPIA: At the Farnese Palace!
(Exit Spoletta hurriedly. Scarpia smiles sardonically)
Go, Tosca! There is room in your heart for Scarpia.
(The Cardinal and his following advance to the high altar; the Swiss Guards divide the crowd, which ranges itself on either side mira tendo il voler, nè il capo del ribelle è la più preziosa. Ah di quegli occhi vittorïosi vedere la fiamma illanguidir nello spasmo d'amore!

La doppia preda avrò. L'uno al capestro, l'altra fra le mie braccia . . . me ne affida l'invincibil desìo . . .
(I santo sacro dal fondo della chiesa lo scuote, come svegliandolo da un sogno. Si ri mette, fa il segno della croce guardandosi intorno, e dice:)
Tosca, mi fai dimenticare Iddio!
(s'inginccebia e prega devotamente).

■ ATTO SECONDO

La camera di Scarpia al piano superiore del Palazzo Farnese.

Tavola imbandita. Un'ampia finestra verso il cortile del Palazzo. È notte.

SCARPIA: (è sedutoalla tavola e vi cena. Interrompe a tratti la cena per riflettere. Guarda l'orologio: è smanioso e pensieroso) Tosca è un buon falco! . . .
Certo a quest'ora
i miei segugi le due prede azzannano!
Doman sul palco
vedrà l'aurora
Angelotti e il bel Mario al laccio pendere.
(suona—entra Sciarrone)
Tosca è a palazzo?

SCIARRONE: Un ciambellan ne usciva pur ora in traccia of the procession. Organ plays)

Go, Tosca! For Scarpia it is who has fired your soul and stirred up your jealous passion.
(Cannon fired)
Infinite promise lies in your hasty suspicions.
There is room in your heart for Scarpia . . .
(ironically) Go, Tosca!
(He bows reverently as the Cardinal passes by, blessing the kneeling throng) (Fiercely) Twofold the purpose now I entertain, and the hanging of that rebel is by no means my chief desire . . .
It is in her gay, triumphant eyes that I hope soon to kindle love's languid flame, when in my arms she is clasped,
mute with fond rapture, giddy with amorous joy.
(Savagely) One to the scaffold, and the other to my fond arms . . .
(The whole crowd turns towards the high altar. Many kneel. Scarpia stands enwrapt in thought, then starts, as in a dream) Tosca! for you I could renounce my hopes of heaven!
(With religious fervor, kneeling)
Te oeternum Patrem, etc.

Quick Curtain

■ ACT II

Scene: The Farnese Palace.

Scarpia's apartments, on an upper floor. The table is laid for supper. A large window overlooks the Palace Courtyard. Nightfall (Scarpia is seated, supping and breaking off at intervals to reflect. From time to time he looks at his watch, manifesting agitation and disquietude.)

SCARPIA: Tosca is a good decoy, and, by this time,
my people have secured the two conspirators.
Tomorrow's sunrise shall see them hanging side by side like dogs, upon my tallest gallows.
(rings a hand-bell. Enter Sciarrone.)
Is Tosca in the Palace?

SCIARRONE: A page has been despatched to fetch her here . . .

SCARPIA: (accenna la finestra)
Apri.—Tarda è la notte.
(dal piano inferiore—que la Regina di Napoli, Maria Carolina, dà una grande festa in onore di Melas—si ode il suonare di un'orchestra) Alla cantata ancor manca la Diva, e strimpellan gavotte.
(a Sciarrone)
Tu attenderai la Tosca in sull'entrata;
le dirai ch'io l'aspetto finita la cantata . . .
o meglio . . .
(si alza e va a scrivere in fretta un biglietto)
(Sciarrone esce) (siede ancora a tavola) Ella verrà . . . per amor del suo Mario!
Per amor del suo Mario al piacer mio s'arrenderà. Tal dei profondi amori è la profonda miseria. Ha più forte sapore la conquista vïolenta che il mellifluo consenso. Io di sospiri e di lattiginose albe lunari poco mi appago. Non so trarre accordi di chitarra, nè oròscopo di fiori, nè far l'occhio di pesce, o tubar come tortora! (alzandosi)
Bramo.—La cosa bramata perseguo, me ne sazio e via la getto volto a nuova esca. Dio creò diverse beltà a vini diversi. Io vo' gustare quauto più posso dell'opra divina!
(beve)

SCIARRONE: (entrando) Spoletta è giunto.

SCARPIA: Entri. In buon punto.

SCARPIA: (si siede e tutt'occupato a cenare, interroga intanto Spoletta senza guardano) O galantuomo, come andò la caccia?

SPOLETTA: (Sant'Ignazio mi aiuta!)
Della signora seguimmo la traccia.
Giunti a un'erma villetta tra le fratte perduta ella vi entrò. Ne uscì sola ben presto.
Io allor scavalco lesto il muro del giardin co' miei cagnot-

SCARPIA: (Sciarrone, pointing to the window) Open!
(An orchestra is audible in a lower storey, where Queen Caroline is giving an entertainment in honour of General Melas.) Late is the hour . . . For Tosca they're waiting to commence the Cantata, and meanwhile they are dancing.
(aside)
(to Sciarrone)
You will await the Tosca at the entrance, and will tell her I expect her at the end of the Cantata . . .
(He recalls Sciarrone, who is going, rises, crosses the stage to a high desk, and hurriedly writes a note, handing it to Sciarrone)
Be sure you give her this letter
(exit Sciarrone)
She will come . . . for the sake of her Mario!
For the sake of her Mario,
she will comply with my desire.
Such are the alterations of love's deep joys and deep sorrows.
Keener far is the relish of a forcible conquest than of a passive surrender. Sighs of entreaty and sentimental rhapsodies by moonlight do not delight me. I am not skilled in twanging the guitar, nor in fortune-telling lore; I cannot leer nor ogle,
nor coo like any turtle-dove (disdainfully)
(he rises, but does not leave the table)
Hence must I strive for the thing I desire.
I possess it, and then discard it, turning to other pleasures.
God created beauty and wine of various merit; I choose to taste all that I can of the heavenly produce.
(enter Sciarrone)

SCIARRONE: Here is Spoletta.

SCARPIA: (loudly, in great excitement) Bring him to me.

SCARPIA: (resumes his seat. Exit Sciarrone to summon Spoletta, who returns with him and takes up his stand near entrance C. Busy with his supper, Scarpia interrogates Spoletta without looking at him) Well, my fine fellow.

SPOLETTA: (coming forward nervously) Saint Ignatius protect me! (aside) (aloud) Quickly we followed the track of the lady.
Soon we arrived at a villa almost hidden by foliage;
Madam went in, and came out again promptly.

ti e piombo in casa . . .	Straightway I lightly scaled the coping of the wall with my companions, and entered the garden . . .
SCARPIA: Quel bravo Spoletta!	SCARPIA: Well done, good Spoletta!
SPOLETTA: (esitando) Fiuto! . . . Razzolo! . . . frugo!	SPOLETTA: (hesitantly) Vainly we searched the house . . .
SCARPIA: (si avvede dell'indecisione di Spoletta e si leva ritto, pallido d'ira, le ciglia corrugate) Ahi! l'Angelotti?	SCARPIA: (perceiving Spoletta's embarrassment, arises, pale with anger, and frowning formidably) Ah! Angelotti?
SPOLETTA: Non s'è trovato.	SPOLETTA: We could not find him!
SCARPIA: (furente) Ah cane! Ah traditore! Ceffo di basilisco, alle forche!	SCARPIA: Base scoundrel! Vilest of traitors! Spawn of the fiend incarnate! to the gallows! (furiously)
SPOLETTA: Gesù! (cercando scongiurare la collera di Scarpia) C'era il pittore . . .	SPOLETTA: Good Lord! (trying to assuage Scarpia's wrath, says timidly) The painter was there . . .
SCARPIA: Cavaradossi?	SCARPIA: (interrupting him) Cavaradossi?
SPOLETTA: (accenna di sì, ed aggiunge pronto) Ei sa dove l'altro s'asconde. Ogni suo gesto ogni accento, tradia tal beffarda ironia, ch'io lo trassi in arresto!	SPOLETTA: (nodding affirmatively) He knows where the other one is hidden . . . His scornful gestures, his contemptuous scoffings aroused my suspicions; so I put him in irons . . .
SCARPIA: (con sospiro di soddisfazione) Meno male!	SCARPIA: You did wisely. (Spoletta is evidently relieved. Scarpia walks about thoughtfully, then suddenly stands still, hearing through the open window the cantata executed by the choirs assembled in the Queen's reception-rooms. The singing proves that Tosca has returned and is actually in the Palace, on the storey beneath Scarpia's apartments)
SPOLETTA: (accena all'anticamera) Egli è là. (Scarpia passeggia meditando: a un tratto si arresta: dall'aperta finestra odesi la Cantata eseguita dai Cori nella sala della Regina.)	SPOLETTA: (pointing towards the ante-room) He is there!
SCARPIA: (a Spoletta) Introducete il Cavaliere. (Spoletta esce) (a Sciarrone) A me Roberti e il Giudice del Fisco. (Sciarrone esce; Scarpia siede di nuovo) (Spoletta e quatro birri introducono Mario Cavaradossi. Poi Roberti, esecutore di Giustizia, il Giudice Del Fisco con uno Scrivano e Sciarrone.)	SCARPIA: (suddenly struck by an idea) Bring the prisoner straightaway. (exit Spoletta) (To Sciarrone) Roberti and the Judge of the Exchequer. (resumes his seat. Spoletta and three police-agents bring in Cavaradossi. Enter Roberti the executioner, an Exchequer Judge with his clerk, and Sciarrone)
CAVARADOSSI: (alteramente) Tale violenza! . . .	CAVARADOSSI: (angrily) Why this outrage?
SCARPIA: (con studiata cortesia) Cavalier, vi piaccia accomodarvi.	SCARPIA: (with elaborate courtesy) Noble sir, I beg you to be seated . . .
CAVARADOSSI: Vo' saper . . .	CAVARADOSSI: (firmly) I wish to know . . .
SCARPIA: (accennando una sedia al lato opposto della tavola) Sedete.	SCARPIA: (pointing to a chair on the other side of the table) Be seated . . .
CAVARADOSSI: (riflutando) Aspetto.	CAVARADOSSI: (refusing) No thank you.
SCARPIA: E sia!—Vi è noto che un prigione . . . (odesi la voce di Tosca che Prende parte alla Cantata)	SCARPIA: As you please. (looks steadfastly at Cavaradossi before questioning him) Today escaped from prison— (breaking off at the sound of Tosca's voice singing in the cantata)
CAVARADOSSI: La sua voce! . . .	CAVARADOSSI: It is her voice! . . . (hearing Tosca)
SCARPIA: (che si era interrotto all'udire la voce di Tosca, riprende) . . . vi è noto che un prigione oggi è fuggito di Castel Sant'Angelo?	SCARPIA: (resuming) Today escaped from prison one whom you know to be a dangerous criminal.
CAVARADOSSI: Ignoro.	CAVARADOSSI: I know nothing!
SCARPIA: Eppur si pretende che voi l'abbiate accolto in Sant'Andrea, provvisto di cibo e vesti . . .	SCARPIA: And yet it is alleged that you concealed him in the Church of Sant' Andrea, and provided him with food and with raiment . . .
CAVARADOSSI: (risoluto) Menzogna!	CAVARADOSSI: (resolutely) Mere falsehoods!
SCARPIA: (continuando a mantenersi calmo) . . . e guidato ad un vostro podere suburbano.	SCARPIA: (preserving a calm demeanor) Later on, you conveyed him to a villa in the suburbs . . .
CAVARADOSSI: Nego.—Le prove?	CAVARADOSSI: I deny it. Who says so?
SCARPIA: (mellifluo)Un suddito fedele . . .	SCARPIA: (mildly) A faithful, honest servant . . .
CAVARADOSSI: Al fatto. Chi mi accusa? I vostri birri frugaro invan tutta la villa.	CAVARADOSSI: To the purpose. My accuser? In vain (ironically) your myrmidons have searched the villa.
SCARPIA: Segno che è ben celato	SCARPIA: Proving he was well hidden.
CAVARADOSSI: Sospetti di spia!	CAVARADOSSI: Your spies could not find him!
SPOLETTA: (offeso, interviene) Alle nostre ricerche egli sideva . . .	SPOLETTA: (interposes, offended) Scoffing and sneering, he laughed at all our endeavors . . .
CAVARADOSSI: E rido ancor.	CAVARADOSSI: And still he laughs.
SCARPIA: (con accento severo) Questo è luogo di lacrime! (si aiza e chiude stizzito la finestra per non essere disturbate dai canti che hanno luogo nel piano sottostante: poi si volge imperioso a Cavaradossi:) Ov'è Angelotti?	SCARPIA: (rising in anger) This is no place for merriment! (threateningly) I warn you! Enough now (nervously) Answer truly! (disturbed and annoyed by the singing, he closes the window. Imperiously to Cavaradossi) Where is Angelotti?
CAVARADOSSI: Non lo so.	CAVARADOSSI: I do not know.
SCARPIA: Negate avergli dato cibo?	SCARPIA: You never with food and drink supplied him?
CAVARADOSSI: Nego!	CAVARADOSSI: Never!
SCARPIA: E vesti?	SCARPIA: Nor with garments?
CAVARADOSSI: Nego!	CAVARADOSSI: Never!
SCARPIA: Ed asilo alla villa?	SCARPIA: Nor concealed him in your villa, where he still lies hidden?
CAVARADOSSI: Nego!

SCARPIA: E che là sia nascosto?
CAVARADOSSI: (con forza) Nego! nego!	CAVARADOSSI: (vehemently) Never! Never!
SCARPIA: (astutamente, ritornando calmo) Via, Cavalier, pensateci: l'uom saggio piega alla legge . . . armata. Una sollecita confessione può cansar dal vostro capo molte sciagure. Date retta: dov'è Angelotti?	SCARPIA: (almost paternally) I pray you, give my words attention; stubbornness such as yours is far from wise, believe me. By frank confession you may avert the pain that else awaits you. Let me advise you; tell me; where is Angelotti now?
CAVARADOSSI: Non lo so.	CAVARADOSSI: I don't know.
SCARPIA: Badate! L'ultima volta. Dov'è?	SCARPIA: Once more, and for the last time. Where is he?
CAVARADOSSI: Non lo so!	CAVARADOSSI: I do not know!
SPOLETTA: (O bei tratti di corda!) (Tosca, entra affannosa.)	SPOLETTA: (aside) (How he tightens his clutches!) (Enter Tosca in alarm; she runs up to Cavaradossi and embraces him)
SCARPIA: (vedendo Tosca) (Eccola!)
TOSCA: (vede Cavaradossi e corre ad abbracciarlo) Mario, tu qui?!	TOSCA: Mario! Are you here?
CAVARADOSSI: (sommessamente) (Di quanto là vedesti, taci, o m'uccidi! . . .) (Tosca accenna che ha capito)	CAVARADOSSI: (under his breath to Tosca, who makes sign that she understands) Say nothing of what you have seen there, or you will kill me!
SCARPIA: (con solennità) Mario Cavaradossi, qual testimonio il Giudice vi aspetta. (a Roberti) Pria le forme ordinarie.— Indi . . . a miei cenni. (Sciarrone apre l'uscio che dà alla camera della tortura. Il Guidice vi entra e gli altri lo seguono, rimanendo Tosca e Scarpia. Spoletta si ritira presso alla porta in fondo alla sala) Ed or fra noi parliamo da buoni amici. Via quell'aria sgomenta . . . (accenna a Tosca di sedere)	SCARPIA: Mario Cavaradossi, the judge is waiting to take your deposition. (signals Sciarrone to open the entrance to the torture-chamber, and turns to Roberti) First the usual pressure; later, as I instruct you . . . (The judge passes into the torture-chamber, and other follow him, only Tosca and Scarpia remaining behind. Spoletta withdraws to the door situate C, at the back of the stage. Sciarrone closes the door L, greatly to Tosca's surprise. Scarpia reassures her with sedulous politeness) Now let us have a friendly talk together (signs to her to be seated) There is nothing to alarm you . . .
TOSCA: (siede con calma studiata) Sgomento alcun non ho.	TOSCA: (sits down with affected calm) Nor do I feel alarmed . . .
SCARPIA: La storia del ventaglio? (passa dietro al canapè sul quale si è seduta Tosca e vi si appoggia, parlando sempre con galanteria)	SCARPIA: (leans on the back of the sofa on which Tosca is seated) The story of the fan?
TOSCA: (con simulata indifferenza)Fu sciocca gelosia.	TOSCA: (with feigned indifference) Was one of silly jealousy . . .
SCARPIA: L'Attavanti non era dunque alla villa?	SCARPIA: The Attavanti, it seems, was not at the villa?
TOSCA: No: egli era solo.	TOSCA: No. No one but he was there.
SCARPIA: Solo?—Ne siete ben sicura?	SCARPIA: No one? (maliciously) Of that you are quite certain?
TOSCA: Nulla, sfugge ai gelosi. Solo! solo!	TOSCA: I saw all that there was to see. (insistently) Alone!
SCARPIA: (prende una sedia, la porta di fronte a Tosca, vi si siede e guarda fissamente Tosca) Davver?	SCARPIA: Indeed!
TOSCA: (irritata) Solo! sì!	TOSCA: (irritated) Yes, alone!
SCARPIA: Quanto fuoco! Par che abbiate paura di tradirvi. (chiamando) Sciarrone: che dice il Cavalier?	SCARPIA: What excitement! Do you fear to commit some indiscretion? (turning towards the entrance to the torture-chamber) Sciarrone, what does the witness say?
SCIARRONE: (apparendo sul limitare dell'uscio) Nega.	SCIARRONE: (appears in the door) Nothing!
SCARPIA: (a voce più alta verso lascio aperto) Insistiamo. (Sciarrone rientra nella camera della tortura, chiudendone l'uscio)	SCARPIA: (still more loudly) Be more urgent. (Sciarrone retires, closing the door)
TOSCA: (ridendi) Oh, inutile.	TOSCA: (laughing) Oh! It's useless!
SCARPIA: (serlissimo, si alza e passeggia) Lo vedremo, signora.	SCARPIA: (gravely, walking about the room) We shall see, fairest lady.
TOSCA: Dunque per compiacervi si dovrebbe mentir?	TOSCA: (slowly, smiling ironically) So, if I wish to please you, I must tell you lies?
SCARPIA: No; ma il vero potrebbe abbreviargli un'ora assai penosa . . .	SCARPIA: No; by truthfulness only he may be spared an hour of anguish . . .
TOSCA: (sorpresa) Un'ora penosa? Che vuol dir? Che avviene in quella stauza?	TOSCA: An hour of anguish? (surprised) What do you mean? What is happening in that chamber?
SCARPIA: È forza che si adempia la legge.	SCARPIA: The laws are enforced, to the letter.
TOSCA: Oh! Dio! . . . che avviene?	TOSCA: Oh, God! and how?
SCARPIA: Legato mani e piè il vostro amante ha un cerchio uncinato alle tempia. che a ogni niego ne sprizza sangue senza mercè.	SCARPIA: (with ferocious sternness) Bound hand and foot, your lover there lies prostrate, a fillet of steel encircling his temples from which a jet of blood spurts out at every denial!
TOSCA: (balza in piedi) Non è ver, non è vero! Sogghigno di demòne . . . Quale orrendo silenzio! . . . Ah! un gemito . . . pietà . . . (ascolta ansiosamente)	TOSCA: (tottering to her feet) It is not true! What a fiendish invention . . . (Cavaradossi groans deeply) A groan? Have mercy!
SCARPIA: Sta in voi salvarlo.	SCARPIA: Speak out and save him.
TOSCA: Ebbene . . . ma cessate!	TOSCA: Yes, yes . . . but release him!
SCARPIA: (va presso all'uscio) Sciarrone, sciogliete.	SCARPIA: (turning towards the entrance L.) Sciarrone, loosen him!
SCIARRONE: (si presenta sul limitare) Tutto?	SCIARRONE: (appearing at the threshold) Quite?
SCARPIA: Tutto. (Sciarrone entra di nuovo nella camera aena tortu., chiudendo) (a Tosca) Ed or . . . la verità,	SCARPIA: Quite. (Sciarrone re-enters the torture-chamber, closing the door) And now, tell me the truth.
TOSCA: Ch'io lo veda!	TOSCA: Let me see him!
SCARPIA: No!	SCARPIA: No!

TOSCA: (riesce ad avvicinarsi all'uscio) Mario!	TOSCA: (by degrees succeeds in approaching the door, and exclaims) Mario!
LA VOCE DI CAVARADOSSI: Tosca!	CAVARADOSSI: (from within, in pain) Tosca!
TOSCA: Ti fanno male ancora?	TOSCA: Are they hurting you still?
LA VOCE DI CAVARADOSSI: No—corragio—Taci—Sprezzo il dolor.	CAVARADOSSI: No, take courage. Silence! I despise pain!
SCARPIA: (avvicinandosi a Tosca) Orsù, Tosca, parlate.	SCARPIA: And now speak out, fair Tosca.
TOSCA: (rinfrancata dalle parole di Cavaradossi) Non so nulla!	TOSCA: (firmly) I know nothing!
SCARPIA: Non vale la prova? . . . Ripigliamo . . .	SCARPIA: That test was not sufficient! If not, we can repeat it . . . (walks towards the doorway)
TOSCA: (si frappone fra l'uscio e Scarpia, per impedire che dia l'ordine) Fermate! . . . no . . . che orror!	TOSCA: (interposing herself between Scarpia and the door) No! you shall not!
SCARPIA: Parlate!	SCARPIA: Will you speak out, then?
TOSCA: No . . . mostro! lo strazi . . . l'uccidi!	TOSCA: No! No! Ah! monster, you have hurt him; you demon incarnate, you will kill him!
SCARPIA: Lo strazia quel vostro silenzio assai piú.	SCARPIA: Your obstinate silence hurts him worse than I do. (laughs)
TOSCA: Tu ridi . . . tu ridi all'orrida pena?	TOSCA: You laugh, wretch . . . you laugh at his anguish!
SCARPIA: (con feroce ironia) Mai Tosca alla scena più tragica fu. (con fermezza a Tosca, guardandola fissa negli occhi) Qui pianti e rimbrotti son vani.	SCARPIA: (enthusiastically) More tragic that Tosca was never on the stage! (Tosca withdraws from Scarpia, who turns towards Spoletta in a transport of ferocity exclaiming loudly) Throw open the doors! Let her hear him complaining! (Spoletta opens the door and stands stiffly by the threshold)
	CAVARADOSSI: (from within) I defy you! . . .
	SCARPIA: (to Roberti) Harder, still harder!
	CAVARADOSSI: I defy you.
SCARPIA: Ov'è Angelotti? Rispondi, dov'è?	SCARPIA: (to Tosca) Say, where is Angelotti! Speak out, then!
TOSCA: (con voce soffocata) No! so.	TOSCA: What shall I say?
SCARPIA: La vendetta su Mario cadrà. (grida in tono di comando) Sciarrone!
TOSCA: (smarrita) No . . . aspetta . . . (vuol parlare, smania, resiste ancora) Non posso . . . (a mani giunte) Pietà . . .	TOSCA: No! Ah! I know nothing! (desperately) Ah! must I tell lies . . . Ah! do not urge me! Ah! pray have pity!
SCARPIA: (per finirla) Aprite le porte che n'oda i lamenti. (Spoletta apre l'uscio e sta ritto sulla soglia)
LA VOCE DI CAVARADOSSI: Vi sfido.
SCARPIA: (imperioso) Più forte.	SCARPIA: Speak! Linger no longer! Where is he?
TOSCA: È troppo martir! (si rivolge ancora supplichevole a Scarpia, il quale fa cenno a Spoletta di lasciare avvicinare Tosca: questa va presso all' uscio aperto ed esterrefatta alla vista dell' orribile scena, si rivolge a Cavaradossi col massimo dolore:) O Mario, consenti ch'io parli? . . .	TOSCA: Ah! torment me no longer! Have mercy; I pray, I can take no more! (Mario groans) (At a sign from Scarpia, Spoletta allows Tosca to approach the open door; horror-stricken by what she sees, she advances toward Cavaradossi and, standing by the door of the torture-chamber, exclaims distractedly) Mario! permit me to tell him!
LA VOCE DI CAVARADOSSI: No.	CAVARADOSSI: (his voice broken by pain) No!
TOSCA: (con insistenza) Ascolta, non posso più . . .	TOSCA: But hear me—I can take no more!
LA VOCE DI CAVARADOSSI: Stolta, che sai? . . . che puoi dir? . . .	CAVARADOSSI: Woman, what do you know? What can you say?
SCARPIA: (irritatissimo per le parole di Cavaradossi e temendo che da questa Tosca sia ancora incoraggiata a tacere, grida erribile a Spoletta:) Ma fatelo tacere! (Spoletta entra nella camera della tortura e n'esce poco dopo, mentre Tosca, vinta dalla terribile commozione, cade prostrata sul canapè e con voce singhiozzante si rivolge a Scarpia che sta impassibile e silenzioso. Intanto Spoletta broutola preghiere sottovoce.)	SCARPIA: (infuriated by Cavaradossi's utterances, and fearing that they may encourage Tosca to keep silence, exclaims aloud to Spoletta) Compel him to be silent! (Spoletta enters the torture-chamber, from which he promptly emerges, while Tosca, overcome by emotion, falls back on the sofa, and appeals in a tremulous voice to Scarpia, who stands by impassively and silently)
TOSCA: Io . . . son io che così torturate! . . . Torturate l'anima . . . (scoppia in singhiozzi strazianti, mormorando:) Sì, mi torturate l'anima! (Scarpia, profittando dell'accasciamento di Tosca, va presso la camera della tortura e fa cenno di ricominciare il supplizio—un grido orribile si fa udire—Tosca si alza di scatto e subito con voce soffocata dice rapidamente a Scarpia:) nel pozzo . . . nel giardino . . .	TOSCA: Have I ever done you wrong? It is I who you torture so cruelly, whom you torture cruelly, yes, cruelly, cruelly torture! (bursts into convulsive sobs) (Spoletta, kneeling, mutters a Latin prayer. Scarpia, profiting by Tosca's prostration, goes up to the door of the torture-chamber and signals Roberti to recommence operations. Cavaradossi utters a strident and prolonged cry of pain, whereupon Tosca rises from the sofa, and in a stifled voice says hurriedly to Scarpia) The well . . . in the garden . . .
SCARPIA: (forte, a Spoletta) Nel pozzo del giardin.—Va, Spoletta. (Spoletta esce: Cavaradossi, che ha udito, si leva minaccioso contro Tosca; poi le forze l'abbandonano e si lascia cadere sul canapè, esclamando con rimprovero pieno e amarezza verso Tosca;)	SCARPIA: (loudly and authoritatively to Spoletta) In the well of the garden—Go, Spoletta! (Exit Spoletta)
CAVARADOSSI: Ah! m'hai tradito!	CAVARADOSSI: (rises threateningly) You have betrayed me! (falls backwards, overcome)
TOSCA: (supplichevole) Mario!	TOSCA: (embracing him passionately) Mario!

CAVARADOSSI: (respingendo Tosca che si abbraccia stretta a lui) Maledetta! (Sciarrone, a un tratto, irrompe tutto affannoso)	CAVARADOSSI: (trying to push her away) Be accursed! (enter Sciarrone, much perturbed)
SCIARRONE: Eccelenza . . . ah, quali nuove!	SCIARRONE: Excellency, dreadful tidings!
SCARPIA: (sorpreso) Che vuol dir quell'aria afflitta?	SCARPIA: (surprised) What has happened? Tell me quickly!
SCIARRONE: Un messaggio di sconfitta . . .	SCIARRONE: The Royal troops have been defeated . . .
SCARPIA: Qual sconfitta? Come? Dove?	SCARPIA: How defeated? When? Where?
SCIARRONE: A Marengo . . .	SCIARRONE: At Marengo . . .
SCARPIA: (impaziente) Tartaruga!	SCARPIA: (impatiently) Wretched dullard!
SCIARRONE: Bonaparte è vincitor . . .	SCIARRONE: Bonaparte won the day!
SCARPIA: Melas!	SCARPIA: Melas!
SCIARRONE: No. Melas è in fuga! . . . (Cavaradossi, che con ansia crescente ha udito le parole di Sciarrone, trova nel proprio entusiasmo la forza di alzarsi minaccioso in faccia a Scarpia)	SCIARRONE: No! Melas was routed! (With ever-increasing anxiety Cavaradossi, has listened to Sciarrone's announcements and in his exultation finds strength to arise and confront Scarpia menacingly)
CAVARADOSSI: Ah c'è un Dio vendicator! L'alba vindice appar che fa gli empi tremar! Libertà sorge crollano tirannidi! Del sofferto martir me vedrai qui gioir . . . il tuo cuor trema, o livido carnefice! (Tosca, disperatamente aggrappandosi a Cavaradossi, tenta, con parole interrotte, di farlo tacere, mentre Scarpia risponde a Cavaradossi con sarcastico sorriso:)	CAVARADOSSI: (enthusiastically) Victory! Victory! Oh spirit of vengeance, awake! Let tyrants and myrmidons quake! Freedom, brandish your glaive and strike down your enemies! TOSCA: (in despair, endeavoring to quiet Cavaradossi) Mario! Silence, in pity to me! CAVARADOSSI: Raise your clarion voice! Bid a sad world rejoice! Tremble, Scarpia, you butcherly hypocrite!
SCARPIA: Braveggia, urla!— T'affretta a palesarmi il fondo dell'alma ria! Va!—Moribondo, il capestro t'aspetta! (ed irritato per le parole di Cavaradossi, grida agli sbirri:) Portatemelo via! (Sciarrone e gli sbirri s'impossessano di Cavaradossi, e lo trascinano verso la portam Tosca con un supremo sforzo tenta di tenersi stretta a Cavaradossi, ma invano: essa è brutalmente respinta)	SCARPIA: (staring cynically at Cavaradossi and smiling sarcastically) Bravado! Boaster! I hate you! Your carcass soon shall swing, a senseless lump of clay! Away, doomed traitor, the hangman awaits you! Now carry him away! (Sciarrone and the agents seize Cavaradossi and smilingly drag him towards the door)
TOSCA: Mario . . . con te . . . (gli sbirri conducono via Cavaradossi; li seguono Spoletta e Sciarrone: Tosca si avventa per seguir Cavaradossi, ma Scarpia si colloca innanzi la porta e la chiude, respingendo Tosca)	TOSCA: (resisting with all her strength) Mario, with you! . . .
	SCARPIA: Go, dying traitor, go!
	TOSCA: (clinging to Mario, and brutally thrust back by the agents) Mario! With you! (endeavors to force her way past Scarpia)
SCARPIA: Voi no!	SCARPIA: (pushing her back and closing the door) Not you!
TOSCA: (con un gemito) Salvatelo!	TOSCA: (gasping) I conjure you, save him!
SCARPIA: Io? . . . Voi! (al avvicina alla tavola, vede la sua cena lasciata a mezzo e ritorna calmo e sorridente) La povera mia cena fu interrotta. (vedendo Tosca abbattuta, immobile, ancora presso la porta) Così accasciata? . . . Via, bella signora sedete qui.—Volete che cerchiamo insieme, Tosca, il modo di salvarlo? (Tosca si senote e lo guarda: Scarpia sorride sempre e si siede, accennando in pari tempo di sedere a Tosca) E allor sedete . . . e favelliamo . . . E intanto un sorso. È vin di Spagna . . . (riemple il bicchiere e lo porge a Tosca) Un sorso per rincorarvi.	SCARPIA: I?—You! (approaches the table, as though to resume supping, but turns back, calm and smiling) My poor little supper was interrupted. (seeing Tosca downcast and motionless, still near the door) Why so disheartened? . . . Come, sweet sorrow-stricken lady, be seated here. Devise with me some plan whereby we may contrive to save him, and then . . . be seated . . . (sits down, motioning to Tosca to do the like) we'll talk it over. (polishes a wineglass with his napkin, and fills it with wine) Meanwhile, this cordial . . . it is wine of Spain . . . pray taste it, it will raise your spirits.
TOSCA: (fissando sempre Scarpia si avvicina lentamente alla tavola, siede risoluta di fronte a Scarpia, poi coll'accento del più profondo diprezzo gli chiede:) Quanto?	TOSCA: (seats herself opposite Scarpia, looking at him steadfastly, leaning her elbows on the table and shading face. Contemptuously she asks him:) How much?
SCARPIA: (imperturbabile, versandosi da bere) Quanto? . . . (ride)	SCARPIA: (imperturably, filling his glass) How much?
TOSCA: Il prezzo! . . .	TOSCA: Your price, man? . . .
SCARPIA: Già.—Mi dicon venal, ma a donna bella io non mi vendo a prezzo di moneta. Se la giurata fede devo tradir, ne voglio altra mercede. Quest'ora io l'attendea. Già mi struggea l'amore della diva! . . . Ma poc'anzi la donna—io la mirai qual non la vidi mai all'ire, al pianto ed all'amore più viva! . . . Quel tuo pianto era lava infocata a' miei sensi—ed il tuo sguardo, che odio in me dardeggiava, le selvaggie mie brame inferocia! . . . Agil qual leopardo ti avvinghiasti all'amante—in quell'istante io t'ho giurata mia! . . . Mia! . . . ruggente di collera e d'orgoglio! . . . A me! . . . Ti voglio! (si leva, stendendo le braccia ver-	SCARPIA: (laughs) Venal, my enemies call me, but to ladies fair I do not sell myself for paltry sums of money. No! if my plighted fealty I must betray (emphatically) I'll choose some other payment. This hour I've long awaited! . . . (excitedly) Goddess of song, you have scorned me and braved me. It was your beauty that made me love you, It is your hatred that has enslaved me; When I saw your checks bedewed with tears of consternation, Shed by lustrous eyes that fiercely sparkled with scorn and detestation, When you clung to your lover like an amorous tigress, Ah! it was at that hour I vowed you would be mine. (He approaches Tosca with open arms: she, who until now had listened to him without stirring, rises suddenly, horrified by his so Tosca: questa che aveva ascoltato immobile, le lascive parole di Scarpia, s'alza di scatto e si rifugia dietro il canapè)

TOSCA: Tu? . . .

SCARPIA: Sì, e t'avrò!

TOSCA: (correndo alla finestra)
Pria giù mi avvento!

SCARPIA: (freddamente) In pegno il tuo Mario mi resta! . . .

TOSCA: L'orribile mercato! . . .
(per subita idea)
Ah!—la regina! . . .

SCARPIA: (ironico) Non ti trattengo.—Va.—Libera sei.
Ma è fallace speranza: la Regina farebbe solo grazia ad un cadavere!
(Tosca retrocede spaventata, e fissando Scarpia si lascia cadere sul canapè; poi staced gli occhi da Scarpia con un gesto di supremo disgusto e di odio)
Come tu m'odii!

TOSCA: Ah! Dio! . . .

SCARPIA: (avvicinandosele) Così ti voglio!

TOSCA: (con ribrezzo) Non toccarmi—demonio—t'odio, l'odio, abbietto, vile!
(fugge da Scarpia inorridita)

SCARPIA: Che importa? Sei mia . . .
Spasimi d'ira e spasimi d'amore!

TOSCA: Vile!!

SCARPIA: Mia!! (cerca di afferrarla)

TOSCA: Vile! (si ripara dietro la tavola)

SCARPIA: (inseguendola)
Mia . . .

TOSCA: No—aiuto!
(un lontano rullo di tamburi a poco a poco si avvicina poi si dilegna lontano)

SCARPIA: (fermandosi) L'odi?
È il tamburo. S'avvia. Guida la scorta ultima ai condannati. Il tempo passa!
(Tosca, dopo aver ascoltato con ausia terribile, si allontana dalla finestra e si appoggia estenuata, al canapè)
Sai quale oscura opra laggiù si compia?

audacious proposals, and rushes behind the sofa. She screams.)

SCARPIA: (following her) Mine, wholly mine!

TOSCA: (terrified, rushes to the window and clings to it) No! far rather will I kill myself!

SCARPIA: (coldly) Your Mario's life I'll hold in pawn for yours!

TOSCA: Think you that I will contract so hideous a bargain?
(the idea of appealing to the Queen occurs to her, and she hurries towards the door)

SCARPIA: (divining her thoughts) I will not force you to stay, (draws aside)
You are free to go, fair lady;
(Tosca is joyfully leaving the room when Scarpia, (laughing ironically, stays her with a gesture) but your hope is fallacious . . .
It were vain to ask our gracious Queen to pardon a dead man!
(Tosca turns back terror-stricken and, staring at Scarpia, resumes her seat on the sofa: then turns her eyes away with a look of supreme disgust and hatred)
How you detest me!

TOSCA: (with loathing and contempt) I do!

SCARPIA: (approaching her) It is thus, It is thus I love you!

TOSCA: (exasperated) Do not touch me, you demon!
I hate you, you coward, you villain!

SCARPIA: (approaching her still nearer) What matter? Hatred like yours and love are kindred passions!

TOSCA: Villain!
(shrinking behind the table)

SCARPIA: (pursuing her) Mine?

TOSCA: Help!
(both are stayed by the sound of distant drums)

SCARPIA: Listen to the drums approaching; leading the escort of men about to die on the scaffold
And time is passing. Know you what dismal preparations my people are completing?
There . . . (pointing to window) they have raised up a gallows-tree. (Tosca

Là si drizza un patibolo. Al tuo Mario, per tuo voler, resta un'ora di vita.
freddamente si appoggia ad un angolo della tavola continuando a guardare Tosca)

TOSCA: (nel massimo dolore)
Vissi d'arte vissi d'amore, non feci mai.
male ad anima viva!
Con man furtiva
quante pene conobbi, alleviài.
Sempre con fè sincera la mia preghiera
ai santi tabernacoli salì.
Diedi fiori agli altar
Nell'ora del dolore
perchè, perchè Signore, perchè me ne rimuneri così? diedi gioielli della Madonna al manto,
e diedi il canto
agli astri, al ciel, che ne ridean più belli.
Nell'ora del dolore
perchè, perchè Signore, perchè me ne rimuneri così?

SCARPIA: (avvicinandosi di nuovo a Tosca) Risolvi?

TOSCA: No!

SCARPIA: Bada . . . il tempo è veloce!

TOSCA: Mi vuoi supplice a tuoi piedi?
(inginocchiandosi innanzi a Scarpia) Ecco—vedi—
le man giunte io stendo a te!
E mercè, umiliata e vinta, aspetto
d'un tuo detto.

SCARPIA: Sei troppo bella, Tosca, e troppo amante.
Cedo.—A misero prezzo tu, a me una vita, io, a te chieggo un istante!

TOSCA: (alzandosi, con senso di gran disprezzo) Va—va—mi fai ribrezzo!
(bussano alla porta)

SCARPIA: Chi è là?

SPOLETTA: (entrando trafelato)
Eccellenza, l'Angelotti al nostro giunger si uccise.

SCARPIA: Ebbene lo si appenda morto alle forche, E l'altro prigioniero?

SPOLETTA: Il cavalier Cavaradossi? E tutto pronto, eccellenza.

shudders in terror and despair. Scarpia approaches her)
It is your will, then, that your fond lover should die in another brief hour?
(Broken down by grief, Tosca falls back on the sofa. Scarpia leans against a corner of the table, pours out coffee, and drinks it, with his eyes fixed upon Tosca)

TOSCA: (mournfully) Love and music, I have lived for,
Never have harmed a living being . . .
The poor and distressful, times without number,
by stealth, I have succored . . .
Ever a fervent believer, my humble prayers have been offered up sincerely to the saints;
ever a fervent believer, I've laid flowers on the altar . . .
In this, my hour of sorrow and bitter tribulation, oh! Heavenly Father, why do you forsake me?
Jewels I gave to bedeck Our Lady's mantle;
I gave my songs to the starry hosts in tribute to their brightness . . .
In this, my hour of grief and bitter tribulation, why, Heavenly Father, why have you forsaken me?

SCARPIA: What did you say?

TOSCA: (resolutely) No!

SCARPIA: Forget not that time flies swiftly!

TOSCA: (kneels before Scarpia)
Must I, kneeling, beg for mercy?
Behold me, pleading here at your feet for pity.
Hear me! Grant my entreaty!
Let me not implore you vainly!
(desperately, yet humbly)

SCARPIA: You are too lovely, Tosca, and too enchanting to be resisted. I have the worst of the bargain;
a life I barter against a minute of your favor!

TOSCA: Go!
(rising scornfully)
You make me shudder! Go!
(a knock at the door)

SCARPIA: Who's there?
(enter Spoletta in haste and much agitated)

SPOLETTA: Excellency, Angelotti swallowed poison when we seized him.

SCARPIA: It is well! Let them hand up his corpse on the gibbet!
And how about the other?

SPOLETTA: You mean the painter, Cavaradossi;
He awaits your decision!

TOSCA: (Dio! m'assisti! . . .)

SCARPIA: (a Spoletta) Aspetta.
(a Tosca)
Ebbene?
(Tosca accenna di sì col capo e dalla vergogna piangendo si nasconde il viso)
(a Spoletta)
Odi . . .

TOSCA: (interrompendo, subito a Scarpia) Ma libero all'istante lo voglio . . .

SCARPIA: (a Tosca) Occorre simular. Non posso far grazia aperta.
Bisogna che tutti abbian per morto il cavalier.
(accenna a Spoletta) Quest'uomo fido provvederà.

TOSCA: Chi mi assicura?

SCARPIA: L'ordin che gli darò voi qui presente.
(a Spoletta)
Spoletta: chiudi.
(Spoletta chiude la porta, poi ritorna presso Scarpia)
Ho mutato d'avviso.
Il prigionier sia fucilato . . .
(Tosca scatta atterrita) attendi . . .
(Assa con intenzione Spoletta che accenna replicatamente col capo di indovinare il pensiero di Scarpia)
Come facemmo del conte Palmieri.

SPOLETTA: Un'uccisione . . .

SCARPIA: (subito con marcata intenzione) . . . simulata! . . . Come avvenne del Palmieri! . . . Hai ben compreso?

SPOLETTA: Ho ben compreso.

SCARPIA: Va.

TOSCA: Voglio avvertirlo io stessa.

SCARPIA: E sia.
(a Spoletta) Le darai passo. Bada: all'ora quarta.

SPOLETTA: Sì. Come Palmiere.
(Spoletta parte. Scarpia, ritta presso la porta, ascolta Spoletta allontanarsi, poi trasformato nel viso e nei gesti si avvicina con grande passione a Tosca)

SCARPIA: Io tenni la promessa . . .

TOSCA: (arrestandolo) Non ancora.
Voglio un salvacondotto onde fuggire dallo Stato con lui

SCARPIA: (con galanteria) Partir volete?

TOSCA: Sì, per sempre!

TOSCA: (aside) Heaven help me!

SCARPIA: (to Spoletta) A moment . . .
(to Tosca, softly)
What say you?
(she nods consentingly; then, weeping for very shame, she buries her head in the sofa cushions)

SCARPIA: (to Spoletta) Listen . . .

TOSCA: (interrupting) But he must be set free on the instant!

SCARPIA: I fear that may not be. I dare not simply release him.
It must be believed by everyone here that he is dead.
(points to Spoletta) This worthy fellow will arrange all . . .

TOSCA: Can he be trusted?

SCARPIA: Trust the orders I shall give him, here, in your presence.
(turning to Spoletta) Spoletta! shut that door.
(Spoletta hastens to obey, and then returns to Scarpia, who looks fixedly at him. Spoletta repeatedly indicating by nods that he understands his master's meaning)
I have altered my purpose. Cavaradossi will be shot . . . pay attention . . .
just as we did in the case of Palmieri . . .

SPOLETTA: An execution . . .

SCARPIA: (emphatically) Simulated! . . . As we did in the case of Palmieri!
Do you understand me?

SPOLETTA: I understand you.

SCARPIA: Go!

TOSCA: (who has listened eagerly, interrupting) And I in person will warn him.

SCARPIA: So be it.
(to Spoletta, pointing at Tosca)
You will admit her.
Remember: (emphatically) at four o'clock . . .

SPOLETTA: (emphatically) Yes. Just like Palmieri . . .
(exit Spoletta. Scarpia, standing by the door, listens to Spoletta's retreating steps. Then, changing his manner and expression, he turns passionately to Tosca) SCARPIA: I have fulfilled my promise.

TOSCA: Not entirely. I must have a safe-conduct enabling me to quit the country with him.

SCARPIA: (politely remonstrating) You really mean to leave us?

TOSCA: (positively) Yes, for ever!

SCARPIA: Si adempia il voler vostro.
(va allo scrittoio: si mette a scrivere, interrompendosi per domandare a Tosca:)
Qual via scegliete?
(Mentre Scarpia scrive, Tosca si è avvicinata alla tavola e colla mano tremante prende il bicchieri di vino di Spagna versato da Scarpia; ma nel portare il bicchiere alle labbra, scorge, sulla tavola un coltello affilato ed a punta; da una rapida occhiata a Scarpia che in quel momento è occupato a scrivere—e con infinite precauzioni cerca di impossessarsi del coltello, rispondendo alle domande di Scarpia ch'essa sorveglia attentamente)

TOSCA: La più breve!

SCARPIA: Dunque Civitavecchia.
(scrivendo)
Sta bene?

TOSCA: Sta bene.
(Finalmente ha potuto prendere il coltello, che dissimula dietro di è appogiandosi alla tavola e sempre servegliando Scarpia. Questi ha finito di scrivere il salvacondotto, vi mette il sigillo, ripiega il foglio: quindi aprendo le braccia si avvicina a Tosca per avvincerla a sè)

SCARPIA: Ed ora, Tosca, finalmente mia! . . .
(ma l'accento voluttuoso si cambia in un grido terribile.—Tosca lo ha colpito in pieno petto) Maledetta!!

TOSCA: Questo è il bacio di Tosca.
(Scarpia stende il braccio verso Tosca avvicinandosele barcollante in atto di aiuto. Tosca lo sfugge—ma ad un tratto ella si trova presa fra Scarpia e la tavola e vedendo che sta per essere toccata da Scarpia, lo aespinge inorridita. Scarpia cade, urlando colla voce suffocata dal sangue:)

SCARPIA: It shall be as you desire.
(goes to the desk and begins to write; breaks off in order to ask Tosca:)
By which road will you travel?

TOSCA: By the shortest!

SCARPIA: Civitavecchia?

TOSCA: Yes.
(while Scarpia is writing, Tosca approaches the table, and, with a trembling hand, takes up the glass filled with wine for her by Scarpia; and as she raises it to her lips, perceives a sharp-pointed knife lying on the table-cloth. She casts a rapid glance at Scarpia, still occupied at the desk, and with infinite caution takes possession of the knife, which she hides behind her, leaning on the table and carefully watching Scarpia, who, having finished writing the safe conduct, folds it up, and advances towards Tosca with open arms, intending to embrace her)

SCARPIA: Tosca, at last you are mine! . . .
(utters a terrible cry, as she stabs him full in the breast, and then groans deeply) Accursed one!

TOSCA: (violently) It is thus that Tosca kisses!

SCARPIA: (hoarsely) Help me! I'm dying!
(strives to lay hold of Tosca's dress; she draws back horror-stricken) Help!
(Tosca, between Scarpia and the table, and fearing that he will lay hold of her, thrusts him roughly from her. He falls, groaning and well nigh choked by blood)
Ah!

TOSCA: (pitilessly) Are you stifling with blood?

SCARPIA: Aiuto . . . aiuto . . . muoio . . .

TOSCA: (fissando Scarpai che si dibatte inutilmente e cerca di rialzarsi, aggrappandosi al canapè) E ucciso da una donna . . . —
M'hai tu assai torturato?! Su!—Parla!—Odi tu ancora? . . .
Guardami! . . . Son la Tosca! Son la Diva! . . .
Son Tosca, o Scarpia!

SCARPIA: (fa un ultimo sforzo, poi cade riverso) Soccorso! . . .

TOSCA: (chinandosi verso Scarpia) Ti soffoca il sangue? . . . il sangue? . . . Muori! muori!! muori!!!
(vedendolo immobile)
Ah! è morto! . . . Or gli perdono!
E avanti a lui tremava tutta Roma!
(Senza abbandonare cogli, occhi il cadavere. Tosca va alla tavola, vi depone il coltello, prende una bottiglia d'acqua, inzuppa un tovagliolo e si lava le dita: poi va allo specchio e si ravvia i capelli. Quindi cerca il salvacondotto sullo scrittoio: non trovandolo, si volge e lo scorge nella mano raggrinzata del morto: ne toglie il foglio e lo nasconde in petto. Spegne il candelabro sulla tavola e va per uscire, ma si pente e colloca una candela a destra e l'altra a sinistra della testa di Scarpia. Alzandosi, cerca di nuovo intorno e scorgendo un crocifisso va a staccarlo dalla parete e portandolo religiosamente s'inginocchia pea posarlo sul petto di Scarpia—poi si alza e con grande precauzione esce rinchiudendo dietro a se la porta).

■ ATTO TERZO

La piattaforma di Castel Sant'Angelo.

A sinistra, una casamatta: vi è collocata una tavola, sulla quale stanno una lampada, un grosso registro e l'occorrente per scrivere: una panca, una sedia. Su di una parete della casamatta un crocifisso: davanti a questo è appesa una lampade. A destra, l'apertura di una piccola scala per la quale si ascende all piattaforma Nel fondo il Vaticona e S. Pietro. È ancora notte: a poco a poco la luce incerta e grigia che precede l'alba: le campane delle chiese suonano mattutino. La voce d'un pastore che guida un armento.
(Un Carceriere con una lanterna sale dalle scala, va alla casamatta e vi accende la lampada sospesa davanti al crocifisso, poi quella sulla tavola: siede ed aspetta mezzo assonnato. Più tardi un picchetto, comandato da un Sergente die guardia, sale sulla piattaforma accompagnando Cavaradossi: il picchetto si arresta ed il Sergente conduce Cavaradossi nella casamatta, consegnando un foglia al Carceriere.—Il Carceriere esamina il foglio, apre il registro e vi scrive mentre interroga).

CARCERIERE: Mario Cavaradoss?
(Cavaradossi china il capo, assentendo. Il Carceriere porge la penna al Sergente)
A voi.
(il Sergente firma il registro, poi parte coi soldati, scendendo per la scala)
(a Cavaradossi) Vi resta un'ora.
Un sacerdote i vostri cenni attende.

CAVARADOSSI: No. Ma di un'ultima grazia vi richiedo.

CARCERIERE: Se posso . . .

CAVARADOSSI: Io lascio al mondo una persona cara. Consentite ch'io le scriva un sol motto.
(togliendosi dal dito un anello) Unico resto di mia recchezza è questo anel . . . Se promettete di consegnarle il mio ultimo addio,
esso è vostro . . .

SCARPIA: Help me!
(struggles ineffectually to rise, clutching at the sofa)
I'm dying!

TOSCA: And done to death by a woman!
Say, what mercy did you show me?
Can you still hear me?
(Scarpia makes a final effort, and falls backwards)
Answer! Look at me! Scarpia, I am Tosca!!
Your victims' blood chokes you!
(bending over Scarpia's face)
Die, accursed one! Perish!

SCARPIA: (all but voiceless) Ah! (expires)

TOSCA: He is dead! Now I forgive him!
(without taking her eyes off Scarpia's corpse, she goes to the table, dips a napkin in the water-jug, and washes her fingers; then arranges her hair before the looking glass. Remembering the safe-conduct, she looks for it on the desk, and not finding it, searches elsewhere. At last she perceives it, clutched in the clenched fingers of Scarpia, and lifts up his arm, which she lets fall, stiff and stark, when she has possessed herself of the safe-conduct, which she hides in her bosom. She then constrains herself to contemplate Scarpia's dead body; she extinguishes the lights on the supper-table,and is about to leave when, seeing one of the candles on the desk still burning, she takes it, and with it lights the other candle)
And, yesterday, trembling Rome lay prostrate at his feet!
(Places one candle to the right of Scarpia's head, and the other to the left; again looks round her, and seeing a crucifix hanging on the wall, takes it down and, kneeling, places it reverently on the breast of the corpse. Roll of distant drums, and slow curtain. Tosca rises and departs cautiously, closing the door after her)

■ ACT III

Scene: A Platform of Castle Sant Angelo.

L.—A casemate, furnished with a table (on which stand a lantern, a huge register book, and writing materials), a bench and a stool. Suspended to one of the walls, a crucifix and votive lamp. R.—A trap-door opening on a flight of steps leading to the platform from below. The Vatican and St. Peter's are depicted on the back cloth. Night time. Clear sky, studded with stars. Sheep bells jangle afar off, then gradually nearer and nearer.

A SHEPHERD: (in the distance)
Day is breaking now,
The weary world awakening . . .
(the bells, still more distant, tinkle irregularly)
Lending new sorrow
(the tinkling of the bell dies away gradually)
If you could prize me,
I might try to live,
But if you despise me,
I may as well die!
(a dim, grey light heralds the approach of dawn)
(Afar off, the church bells begin ringing for matins. Enter Jailer, bearing a lantern. He emerges from the trap-door, enters the casemate, and lights, first the lamp suspended beneath the crucifix, and then the lantern standing on the table. Advancing to the parapet of the platform he leans over it and looks down into the courtyard to see if the firing party, told off to escort the condemned man, has arrived. Meeting a sentry, who is on guard within the precincts of the platform, and having exchanged a few words with him, the Jailer returns to the casemate, where he sits down and waits, half asleep. An infantry picket, commanded by a sergeant, and in charge of Cavaradossi, ascends the platform. The men are halted, and the sergeant conducts Cavaradossi to the casemate, which Cavaradossi enters. The Jailer, seeing the sergeant, rises and salutes, whereupon the sergeant hands him a paper, which the Jailer examines. Then, seating himself at the table, the Jailer opens the register book and writes in it while interrogating Cavaradossi)

JAILER: Mario Cavaradossi?
(Cavaradossi nods affirmatively)
Please sign.
(to the sergeant, handing him the pen. The sergeant signs the register-book and descends the steps, followed by the picket. Bell)
You have an hour . . .
(to Cavaradossi)
A holy father is near, at your disposal . . .

CAVARADOSSI: No. But let me ask you to do me a favor . . .

JAILER: If possible . . .

CAVARADOSSI: I leave behind me one whom I cherish fondly.
Can you grant me leave to write a few words to her? Nothing is left of all that I possessed but this little ring . . .
(takes a ring off his finger)
If you will pledge your word to convey my last farewell to her safely, it is yours . . .

CARCERIERE: (tituba un poco, poi accetta e facendo cenno a Cavaradossi di sedere alla tavola, va sedere sulla panca) Scrivete.

CAVARADOSSI: (si mette a scrivere . . . ma dopo tracciate alcune linee è invaso dalle rimembranze) E lucevan le stelle ed olezzava la terra-e stridea l'uscio dell'orto—e un passo sfiorava la rena.
Entrava ella, fragrante, mi cadea fra le braccia e mi narrava di sè; di me chiedea con volubile impero.
Oh! dolci baci, o languide carezze, mentr'io fremente
le belle forme disciogliea dai veli!
Svanì per sempre il bel sogno d'amore . . .
L'ora è fuggita
e muoio disperato! . . .
E non ho amato mai tanto la vita!
(scoppia in singhiozzi).
(Dalla scala viene Spoletta accompagnato dal Sergente e seguìto da Tosca: il Sergente porta una lanterna—Spoletta accenna a Tosca ove trovasi Cavaradossi, poi chiama a sè il Carceriere: con questi e col Sergente ridiscende, non senza avere prima dato ad una sentinella, che sta in fondo, l'ordine di sorvegliare il prigioniero).
(Tosca vede Cavaradossi piangente, colla testa fra le mani: gli si avvicina e gli solleva colle due mani la testa. Cavaradossi balza in piedi sorpreso. Tosca gli presenta convulsa un foglio, non potendo parlare per l'emozione).
(legge) —Franchigia a Floria Tosca . . .
TOSCA: (leggendo insieme con lui con voce affannosa e convulsa) e al cavaliere che l'accompagna.—

TOSCA: (a Cavaradossi con un grido d'esultanza)
Sei libero!

CAVARADOSSI: (guarda il foglio; ne legge la firma) Scarpia!
Scarpia benigno? A qual prezzo? la prima sua grazia è questa . . .

TOSCA: E l'ultima!
(riprende il salvacondotto e lo ripone in una borsa)

CAVARADOSSI: Che dici?

JAILER: (after a little hesitation, accepts the ring, and signals Cavaradossi to be seated at the table) Write your letter.
(sits down on the bench. Cavaradossi is lost in thought, from which he rouses himself to write. After tracing a few lines, engrossed by memories of the past, he ceases writing)

CAVARADOSSI: (thinking aloud) When the stars were brightly shining
And faint perfumes pervaded the air,
The gate of the garden creaked,
And a footstep invaded its precincts,
It was her's, the fragrant creature,
In her soft arms she clasped me
With sweetest kisses, tenderest caresses,
A thing of beauty, of matchless symmetry in form and feature!
My dream of love is now dispelled for ever;
I lived uncaring,
And now I die despairing!
Yet never was life so dear to me, no, never!
(bursts into tears, covering his face with his hands. Enter Spoletta through the trap-door, accompanied by Tosca and followed by the sergeant, who carries a lantern. Spoletta points out to Tosca where she will find Cavaradossi, and then beckons to the Jailer, with whom and the sergeant he redescends the steps, not without having given orders to a sentry on guard at the back of the stage to keep close watch upon the prisoner. Tosca, who meanwhile has been manifestly in a state of violent agitation, sees Cavaradossi weeping, rushes to him, and—unable to speak for sheer emotion—lifts his head with both hands, showing him the safe-conduct. On perceiving her he starts to his feet in surprise, and then reads the document which she has handed to him)
Ah! Safe-conduct to Floria Tosca and to the gentleman, her companion.
(in unison with Tosca)

TOSCA: (enthusiastically) You are free, my love!

CAVARADOSSI: (perceiving the signature of the document) Scarpia showed mercy!
(looking intently at Tosca)
Full surely his first concession!

TOSCA: (puts away the safe-conduct in her bag) And his last!

CAVARADOSSI: What are you saying?

TOSCA: Il tuo sangue o il mio amore volea. Fur vani scongiuri e pianti.
Invan, pazza d'orrore,
alla Madonne mi volsi ed ai Santi . . .
Rideva—il mostro!—del mio martir!
Dicea: già negli oscuri cieli il patibol le bracci leva!
Rullavano i tamburi . . .
Rideva, l'empio mostro . . . risdeva . . .
già la sua preda pronto a ghermir!
"Sei mia?"—Sì.—Alla sua brama mi promisi. Lì presso luccicava una lama . . .
Ei scrisse il foglio liberator, venne all'orrendo amplesso . . .
Io quella lama gli piantai nel cor.

CAVARADOSSI: Tu? . . . di tua man l'uccidesti!—tu pia, tu benigna—e per me!

TOSCA: N'ebbi le mani tutte lorde di sangue!

CAVARADOSSI: (prendendo amorosamente fra le sue le mani di Tosca) Oh! salvatrice!
O dolci mani mansuete e pure
o mani elette a belle opre e pietose, a carezzar fanciulli, a coglier rose a pregar, giunte, per l'altrui sventure, dunque in voi, fatte dall'amor secure,
giustizia le sue sacre armi depose?
Voi deste morte, o man vittorïose,
o dolci mani mansuete e pure! . . .

TOSCA: (svincolando le mani)
Senti . . . l'ora è vicina; io già raccolsi (mostrando la borsa) ore e gioielli . . . una vettura è pronta.
Ma prima . . . ridi
amore . . . prema sarai fucilato—per finta—ad armi scariche.
Simulato supplizio. Al colpo . . . cadi.
I soldata sen vanno—e noi siam salvi!
Poscia a Civitavecchia . . . una tartana . . .
e via pel mar!

CAVARADOSSI ED TOSCA: Liberi!

TOSCA: He exacted your life or my love!
Entreaties and conjurations
Were vain. The saints above
Would pay no heed to my wild invocations.
He said, the impious monster,
"Now the gallows tree is spreading its branches gaily!"
The muffled drums were sounding . . .
He laughed, the impious monster, laughed loudly, hovering round his quivering prey! . . .
"Are you mine, then?" "Yes!"
Thus I avowed myself defeated.
He did not see the knife I had secreted . . .
He signed the permit that sets you free, and gives us license to depart . . .
I drove the glittering blade into his heart!

CAVARADOSSI: You?
With your own hand slay him?
You, most pious and merciful of souls!

TOSCA: Yes; both these hands were reeking with his hot blood!

CAVARADOSSI: (taking her hands lovingly in his own) Oh!
gentle hands, so pitiful and tender;
Soft hands, designed to deck luxuriant tresses
With fragrant rosebuds, to bestow caresses,
And pray for Heaven's grace to the offender,
To you the Fates, grim ministers of death, surrender
The impassive steel that base injustice represses.
By you was dealt the blow that tyranny suppresses
Oh! gentle hands, so delicate and tender!

TOSCA: (freeing her hands from his grasp) Listen . . . all now is ready; (shows a hand-bag)
I have collected my jewels and money . . .
a carriage is in waiting . . . But first—smile, dearest love—you must submit to be fired at . . .
In pretense, of course, and with blank cartridges . . . a mere mimic execution.
When they fire, fall down. Then the soldiers will retire . . . We shall be safe then!
Once in Civitavecchia—about a lugger, and off to sea!

CAVARADOSSI AND TOSCA: We are free!

TOSCA: Chi si duole in terra più?
Senti effluvi di rose?
Non ti par che le cose aspettan tutte innamorate il sole?

CAVARADOSSI: (colla più tenera commozione) Amaro sol per te m'era il morire Da te prende la vita ogni splendore, all'esser mio la gioia ed il desire nascon di te, come di fiamma ardore.
Io folgorare i cieli e scolorire vedrò nell'occhio tuo rivelatore, e la beltà delle cose più mire avrà solo da te voce e colore.

TOSCA: Amor che seppe a te vita serbare ci sarà guida in terra, in mar nocchiere e vago farà il mondo a riguardare.
Finchè congiunti alle celesti sfere dileguerem, siccome alte sul mare a sol cadente, nuvole leggere!
(rimangono commossi, silenziosi poi Tosca, chiamata dalla realtà delle cose, si guards attorno inquieta)
E non giungono . . .
(si volge a Cavaradossi con premurosa tenerezza) Bada! . . .
al colpo egli è mestiere che tu subito cada per morto.

CAVARADOSSI: (la rassicura)
Non temere
Che cadrò sul momento—e al naturale.

TOSCA: (insistendo) Ma stammi attento—di non farti male!
Con scenica seienza io saprei la movenza . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (la interrompe, attirandola a sè) Parlami ancor come dianzi parlavi, è così dolce il suon della tua voce!

TOSCA: (si abbandona quasi estasiata, quindi a poco a poco accalorandosi) Uniti ed esulanti diffonderan pel mondo i nostri amori armonie di colori.

CAVARADOSSI: (esaltandosi) ed armonie di canti!

TOSCA ED CAVARADOSSI: (con grande entusiasmo) Sparve il duol la sitibonda anima inonda celestiale erescente ardor. In armonicao vol l'anima sale all'estasi d'amor.

TOSCA: We shall be free and happy!
Do you smell the scent of roses?
Nature silently reposes
While dawn the secrets of night discloses.

CAVARADOSSI: The sting of death
I only felt for you, love;
From you my life took all its pride and pleasure
The world without you had been nothing to me, love,
You were my joy, my glory, and my treasure.
The brightening of the skies, and eke their darkening, your refulgent eyes will be reflected,
Sweet sounds will reach my ears when you are hearkening,
Just as you are, so shall I be, joyous or dejected.

TOSCA: And Love, to whom is due your life's redemption,
Will be our guide on land, our pilot on the ocean
Peace shall be ours, from wordly cares exemption,
Until, united in some celestial sphere,
Fluttering like fleecy clouds ever in motion
(she gazes fixedly, as though seeing a vision)
We shall soar high above the globe terrestrial (recalled to the realities of the situation, she looks around uneasily)
And they come not!
(to Cavaradossi with anxious tenderness)
Remember that you must fall on the instant at which the soldiers fire! . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (sadly) Do not fear, love. I shall fall at the right moment, and quite correctly.

TOSCA: (insisting) But pay attention; take care not to hurt yourself! It is only a stage-trick;
I should know how to do it . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (interrupting, draws her towards him) Speak once again of yourself, of your lover, who listens to your dulcet accents with rapture!

TOSCA: (ecstatically) When once we shall be free, how joyously we will wander through a radiant world, harmonious, sublime—the planet of love!

TOGETHER: (in unison) Farewell, pain!
Every feeling
Now is revealing
Heavenly bliss and perfect joy . . .
Our cares were idle and vain

TOSCA: La patria è là dove amor ci conduce.

CAVARADOSSI: Per tutto troverem l'orme latine e il fantasma di Roma.

TOSCA: E s'io ti veda memorando guardar lungi ne' cieli, gli occhi ti chiuderò con mille baci e mille ti dirò nomi d'amore.
(Frattanto dallo scaletta è salito un drappello di soldati: lo comanda un Ufficiale, quale schiera i soldati nel fondo: seguona Spoletta, il Sergente, Il Carceriere.—Spoletta dà le necessari istruzioni. Il cielo si fa più luminoso; è l'alba: suonano le 4 Il Carceriere si avvicina a Cavaradossi e togliendosi il berretto gli indica l'Ufficiale)

CARCERIERE: L'ora!

CAVARADOSSI: Son pronto.
(Il Carceriere prende il registro dei condannati e parte dalla scaletta)

TOSCA: (a Cavaradossi, con voce bassissima e ridendo di soppiatto)
(Tieni a mente: al primo colpo, giù . . .)

CAVARADOSSI: (sottovoce, ridendo esso pure) (Giù).

TOSCA: (Nè rialzarti innanzi ch'io ti chiami).

CAVARADOSSI: (No, amore!)

TOSCA: (E cadi bene).

CAVARADOSSI: (Come la Tosca in teatro).

TOSCA: (Non ridere . . .)

CAVARADOSSI: (facendosi cupo) (Così?)

TOSCA: (Così).
(Cavaradossi segue l'Ufficiale dopo aver salutato Tosca, la quale si colloca a sinistra nella casamatta, in modo però di poter spiare quanto succede sulla piattaforma. Essa vede l'Ufficiale ed il Sergente che conducono Cavaradossi presso al muro di faccia a lei: il Sergente vuol porre la benda

Now gladness is ours
Gladness without alloy!
(Enter, through the trap-door, a firing party of soldiers, commanded by an officer, who parades it at the back of the stage, Spoletta, the sergeant, and the Jailer follow him. Spoletta imparts the necessary instructions. The sky brightens; day is dawning.)

TOSCA: Your eyes I'll fondly close with countless kisses, and loving words I'll whisper in your ears . . .

JAILER: Your time is come!
(approaches Cavaradossi and points to the officer, taking off his cap; then picks up the register of condemned prisoners, and exit through the trap-door. The church clocks strike 4 a.m.)

CAVARADOSSI: I'm ready!

TOSCA: (in a low voice, suppressing her laughter) Now remember . . . as soon as they fire . . . down!

CAVARADOSSI: (speaking under his breath, and laughing) Down!

TOSCA: On no account must you rise until I call you.

CAVARADOSSI: No, beloved.

TOSCA: And fall down lightly.

CAVARADOSSI: Just like La Tosca on the stage.

TOSCA: (seeing him smile) You must not laugh . . .

CAVARADOSSI: (gravely) Like this?

TOSCA: Like that.
(Cavaradossi follows the officer after having taken leave of Tosca, who remains in the casemate, taking up a position L., from which she can see what takes place on the platform) agli occhi di Cavaradossi: questi, sorridendo, rifiuta.—Tali lugubri preparativi stancano la pazienza di Tosca).

TOSCA: Come'è lunga l'attesa!
Perchè indugiano ancor? . . . Già sorge il sole . . .
Perchè indugiano ancora? . . . è una commedia, lo so . . . ma questa angoscia eterna pare!
(l'Ufficiale e il Sergente dispongono il pelottone dei soldati, impartendo gli ordini relativ) Ecco! . . . apprestano l'armi . . . com'è bello il mio Mario!
(redendo l'Ufficiale che sta per abbassare la sciabola, si porta le mani agli orecchi per non udire la detonazione; poi fa cenno colla testa a Cavaradossi di cadere, dicendo.)
Là! muori!
(vedendolo a terra gli invia colle mani un bacio)
Ecco un artista!
(Il Sergente si avvicinia al caduto e lo osserva attentamente: Spoletta pure si è avvicinato; allontana il Sergente impedendogli di dare il colpo di grazia, quindi copre Cavaradossi con un mantello.
L'Ufficiale allinea i soldati il Sergente ritira la senti nella che sta in fondo, poi tutti, predecuti da Spoletta, scendono la scala. Tosca è agitatissima: essa sorveglia questi movimenti temendo che Cavaradossi, per impazienza, si muova o parli prima del momento opportuno).
(a voce repressa verso Cavaradossi)
O Mario, non ti muovere . . .
Ma già s'avviano . . . taci! vanno . . . scendono.
(vista deserta la piattaforma, va ad ascoltare presso l'imbocco della scaletta: vi si arresta trepidante, affannosa parendole ad un tratto che i soldati, anzichè allontanarsi ritornino sulla piattaforma—di nuovo sivolge a Cavaradossi, con voce bassa) Ancora non ti muovere . . .
ascolta—si sono tutti allontanati, va al parapetto e cautamente sporgendosi, osserve di sotto)
Or varcano il cortile . . .
(corre verso Cavaradossi)
Mario, su, presto! Andiamo! . . . andiamo! . . . Su!
(si china per alutare Cavaradossi a rialzarsi: a un tratto dà un grido suffocato di terrore, di sorpresa e si guarda le mani colle quali ha sollevato il mantello)

TOSCA: (watching the officer and sergeant, who leads Cavaradossi up to the wall facing her) This delay is frustrating!
What are they waiting for now?
The sun is now rising . . .
(the sergeant offers to bandage Cavaradossi's eyes; smiling, Cavaradossi declines. These lugubrious preliminaries weary Tosca's patience)
It's but a farce I know . . .
Yet this anxiety is dreadful!
(The officer and sergeant draw up the firing-party in readiness for the word of command)
At last! they are priming their muskets.
(seeing that the officer is about to lower his sword, she stops her ears with her hands in order not to hear the explosion, and nods to Cavaradossi as a signal that he is to fall)
How handsome is my Mario!
(The officer lowers his sword, and the soldiers fire)
There! Die now!
(seeing Cavaradossi prostrate, she kisses her hand to him)
How well he acts it!
(The sergeant inspects the body carefully. Spoletta hinders him from giving the customary coup de grace. The officer ranges his men in single file, the sergeant relieves the sentry C., and the whole party, preceded by Spoletta, passes through the trap-door and down the steps. Tosca has watched their every movement anxiously, fearing that Cavaradossi may lose patience, and move or speak prematurely)
Oh! Mario, do not move yet . . .
lie quietly . . . silence!
(when they had left the platform, she runs to the trap-door and stands by it listening in violent trepidation)
They are going . . . going down . . . down!
(fancying that she hears the soldiers returning to the platform, she turns again to Cavaradossi)
Not yet, I pray . . . move not yet . . .
(she leans cautiously over the parapet, looking downward)
Now get up!
(again approaching Cavaradossi)

Del Sangue?!
(si inginocchia, togli rapdiamente il mantello e balza in piedi livida, atterita)
Morto! . . . Morto! . . .
(con imposte parole, con sospiri, singhiozzi si butta sul corpo di Cavaradossi, quasi non credendo all'orribil destino)
O Mario . . . morto? tu? così? Finire così? . . . cosè? . . . povera
Floria tua!! (autanto dal cortile al disotto del parapette e su dall piccola scala arrivano prima confuse, poi sempre più vicine le voci di Sciarrone, di Spoletta e di alcuni soldati)

LA VOCE DI SCIARRONE: Vi dico, pugnalato!

VOCI CONFUSE: Scarpia? . . .

LA VOCE DI SCIARRONE: Scarpia.

LA VOCE DI SPOLETTA: La donna è Tosca!

VARIE VOCI PIU VICINE: Che non sfugga!

LA VOCE DI SPOLETTA: (più vicina) Attenti là—allo sbocco delle scale . . .
(Spoletta apparisce dalla scala, mentre Sciarrone dietro a lui gli grida additando Tosca.
È lei!

SPOLETTA: (gettandosi su Tosca) Ah! Tosca, pagherai ben cara la sua vita . . .
(Tosca balza in piedi e invece di sfuggire Spoletta, lo respinge violentemente, rispo dendogli:)

TOSCA: Colla mia!
(all'urto inaspettato Spoletta dà addietro e Tosca rapida gli sfugge, passa avanti Sciarrone ancora sulla scala e correndo al parapetto si getta nei vuoto gridando:)
O Scarpia, avanti a Dio! . . . Avanti a Dio!
(Sciarrone ed alcuni soldati, saliti confusamente, corrono al parapetto e guardane giù. Spoletta rimane esterrefatto, allibito).

Finis.

Mario! Up quickly! Away!
(touching him)
Blood?
(uncovering the corpse)
(desperately) Murdered! Dead!
(sighing and sobbing) Oh dead!
Oh Mario, how?
(throwing herself upon the body)
That you should end like this!
(agonized by grief)
What shall become of Floria?
Beloved Mario, what is life without you?
(embracing the body)
(outcries of Spoletta, Sciarrone, Soldiers, &c., are heard afar off beneath the stage.)

SCIARRONE: I tell you, stabbed to death!

CONFUSED VOICES: Scarpia?

SCIARRONE: Scarpia?

SPOLETTA: It was Tosca that killed him!
(approaching closer and closer)

SCIARRONE AND CHORUS: She must not escape!
Keep watch on the foot of the staircase!
(Tosca, weeping bitterly, falls upon Cavaradossi's corpse. Great noise under the stage. Spoletta and Sciarrone issue from the trapdoor) SCIARRONE: (pointing out Tosca to Spoletta) It is she!

SPOLETTA: Ah! Tosca, you shall pay full dearly for his life . . .
(rushes at Tosca, who thrusts him back so violently that he all but falls prostrate. She then springs upon the parapet of the terrace)

TOSCA: With my own! . . . Oh! Scarpia, we shall meet on High!
(throws herself into space. Sciarrone and the soldiers emerge from the staircase in confusion, rush to the parapet and lean over it, looking downward. Spoletta, horror-stricken, remains stationary.)

Quick Curtain.

Madam Butterfly (1904)

MUSIC BY GIACOMO PUCCINI ■ ITALIAN LIBRETTO BY LUIGI ILLICA AND GIUSEPPE GIACOSA

This three-act opera, set to a libretto by Giuseppe Giacosa and Luigi Illica (based on David Belasco's play from John Luther Long's story), premiered at the Teatro alla Scala in Milan on February 17, 1904. In Nagasaki, a Japanese wedding is planned between Pinkerton, a lieutenant in the United States Navy, and Cio-Cio-San, the geisha who is also called Madama Butterfly. Goro, the marriage-broker, shows the house to Pinkerton, who makes it clear that this marriage is not serious to him. Sharpless, the American consul, tells him that Butterfly plans to renounce her own religion. Her uncle, a Japanese priest, denounces her; the guests are horrified. Pinkerton dismisses them all and comforts the sobbing bride.

Three years later, she waits for Pinkerton to return. Sharpless receives a letter from Pinkerton telling him that he is married to an American wife and asking Sharpless to break the news to Butterfly. But before he can do this, Goro enters with Prince Yamadori, a wealthy gentleman who is eager to marry Butterfly. She rejects this offer outright, stating that she is married under United States law. Sharpless tries again to tell her about Pinkerton, but she doesn't listen. The harbor cannon announces the arrival of Pinkerton's ship. Butterfly and her maid Suzuki excitedly prepare the house for his return. Dawn comes, but Pinkerton does not. Suzuki finds out that Pinkerton arrived with his American wife, Kate. Pinkerton realizes that Butterfly has remained faithful to him; he has treated her most cruelly. Butterfly learns who the American lady is and wishes her all the happiness in the world. She agrees to give her child over to Pinkerton in half an hour's time. Alone, she stabs herself with her father's ceremonial hara-kiri dagger, inscribed with the words "Death with honor is better than life without honor." Before she dies, she crawls over to her child; Pinkerton enters a moment later.

■ ATTO I	■ ACT I
Colina presso Nagasaki	Hill Near Nagasaki
Casa giapponese, terrazza e giardino. In fondo, al basso, la rada, il porto, la città di Nagasaki.	A Japanese house, terrace and garden. Below, in the background, the bay, the harbor and the town of Nagasaki.
Goro fa visitare la casa a Pinkerton, che passa di sorpresa in sorpresa.	Goro is showing Pinkerton over the house. Pinkerton passes from one surprise to another.
PINKERTON: E soffitto . . . e pareti . . .	PINKERTON: And the walls—and the ceiling—
GORO: (godendo della sorprese) Vanno e vengono a prova a norma che vi giova nello stesso locale alternar nuovi aspetti ai consueti,	GORO: (enjoying his surprise) They will come and go, Just as it may suit your fancy To exchange or to vary New and old in the same surroundings.
PINKERTON: (cercando intorno) Il nido nuziale dov'è?	PINKERTON: (looking around) The marriage-chamber, Where is it?
GORO: (accennando a due locali) Qui, o là! . . . secondo . . .	GORO: (pointing in two directions) Here, or there!—according—
PINKERTON: Anch'esso a doppio fondo! La sala?	PINKERTON: A wonderful contrivance! The hall?
GORO: (mostra la terrazza) Ecco!	GORO: (showing the terrace) Behold!
PINKERTON: (stupito) All'aperto? . . .	PINKERTON: (amazed) In the open?
GORO: (mostrando il chiudersi d'una parete) Un fianco scorre . . .	GORO: (making a partition slide out) A wall slides outward—
PINKERTON: Capisco! Un altro . . .	PINKERTON: I see now! Another—
GORO: Scivola!	GORO: Runs along!
PINKERTON: E la dimora frivola . . .	PINKERTON: And so the fairy dwelling—
GORO: (protestando) Salda come una torre da terra, infino al tetto.	GORO: Springs like a tower from nowhere, Complete from base to attic!—
PINKERTON: È una casa a soffietto.	PINKERTON: It comes and goes by magic!
GORO: (batte tre volte le mani palma a plama; entrano due uomini ed una donna e si genuflettono innanzi a Pinkerton) Questa è la cameriera (accennando) che della vostra sposa fu già serva amorosa. Il cuoco—il servitor. Sono confusi del grande onore.	GORO: (claps his hand loudly twice; enter two men and a woman, who go down on their hands and knees in front of Pinkerton) This is the trusty handmaid, Who waits upon your wife, Faithful and devoted. The cook—the servant. They're embarrassed At such great honor.
PINKERTON: I nomi?	PINKERTON: Their names?
GORO: (presentando) Miss Nuvola leggiera— Raggio di sol nascente.—Esala aromi	GORO: (introducing them) "Miss Gentle-Breeze-of-Morning.— Ray-of-the-golden-sun.—Sweet-scented-pine-tree."
PINKERTON: Nomi di scherno o scherzo. Io li chiamerò: musi! (indicando) Muso primo, secondo, e muso terzo.	PINKERTON: Foolishly chosen nicknames! I will call them: scarecrows! (pointing to them one by one) First scarecrow; second; and third!
SUZUKI: (fatta ardita) Sorride Vostro Onore?— Il riso è frutto e fiore. Disse il savio Ocunama: dei crucci la trama smaglia il sorriso. Schiude alla perla il guscio, apre all'uom l'uscio del Paradiso. Profume degli Dei . . . Fontana della vita . . .	SUZUKI: (grown bolder) Your Honor deigns to smile?— Your smile is like the fruit of a flower. Thus spake the wise Ocunama: A smile conquers all, and defies Every trouble. Pearls may be won by smiling, Smiles can open the portals Of Paradise. The Perfume of the Gods—(Goro accorgendosi che Pinkerton comincia ad essere infastidito dalla loquela di Suzuki batte le mani,—I tre si alzano e fuggono rapidamente rientrando in casa).

PINKERTON: A chiacchiere costei mi par cosmopolita.
(a Goro andato in fondo ad osservare)
Che guardi?

GORO: Se non giunge ancor la posa.

PINKERTON: Tutto è pronto?

GORO: Ogni cosa.

PINKERTON: Gran perla di sensale!

GORO: (ringrazia con profondo inchino) Qui verran: l'Ufficiale del registro, i parenti, il vostro Console, la fidanzata. Qui si firma l'atto e il matrimonio è fatto.

PINKERTON: E son molti i parenti?

GORO: La suocera, la nonna, lo zio Bonzo (che non ci degnerà di sua presenza) e cugini! e cugine . . .
Mettiam fra gli ascendenti
ed i collaterali, un due dozzine.
Quanto alla discendenza . . .
(con malizia ossequiosa) provvederanno assai
Vostra Grazia e la bella Butterfly.
(si ode la voce di Sharpless il Console, che sale il colle)

LA VOCE DI SHARPLESS: (un po' lontano) E suda e arrampica!
e sbuffa e inciampica!
—Erta letale!

GORO: (che è accorso al fondo, annuncia a Pinkerton) —il Consol sale.

SHARPLESS: (appare sbuffando: Goro si prosterna innanzi al Console) Ah! . . . quei viottoli irti di ciottoli m'hanno sfiaccato!

PINKERTON: (va incontro a Sharpless—i due si stringono la mano) Bene arrivato.

SHARPLESS: Ouff!

PINKERTON: Presto Goro
qualche ristoro.
(Goro entra in casa frettoloso)

SHARPLESS: (guardando intorno) Alto.

PINKERTON: (mostrandogli il panorama) Ma bello!

SHARPLESS: (contemplando il mare e la città sottoposti) Nagasaki, il mare!
il porto . . .

The Fountain of Life—
(Goro, perceiving that Pinkerton begins to be bored at Suzuki's loquacity, claps his hands thrice. The three rise and quickly disappear into the house)

PINKERTON: When they begin to talk,
I find all women alike.
(to Goro who has gone to the back to look out)
At what are you looking?

SUZUKI: Watching for the bride's arrival.

PINKERTON: All is ready?

GORO: Every detail.

PINKERTON: You shining light of brokers!

GORO: (thanks with a deep bow)
They will come: the official registrar,
The relations, your country's Consul,
Your future wife. Here you'll sign the contract,
And solomnize the marriage.

PINKERTON: Are there many relations?

GORO: Her mother, grandam, and the Bonze, her uncle,
(Who'll scarcely honor us with his appearance)
Her cousins, male and female—
Of ancestors I reckon, and other blood relations,
A round two dozen.
As to the descendants—
(with obsequious presumption)
That may be left, I reckon,
To your Honor and the fair Butterfly—
(the voice of the Consul Sharpless, who is climbing the hill, is heard)

THE VOICE OF SHARPLESS: (rather far off) A plague on this steep ascent!
Stumbling, and spluttering—

GORO: (who has run to the back, announces) Here comes the Consul.

SHARPLESS: (enters, quite out of breath. Goro bows low before him) Ah! the scramble up
Has left me breathless!

PINKERTON: (goes to meet the Consul: they shake hands) Goodday, friend! Welcome!

SHARPLESS: Ough!

PINKERTON: Quickly, Goro,
Fetch some refreshments.
(Goro hurries into the house)

SHARPLESS: (looking about) Lofty!

PINKERTON: (showing him the view) But lovely!

SHARPLESS: (looking at the sea and the town below) Nagasaki—the ocean—
The harbor—

PINKERTON: (accennando alla casa) e una casetta che obbedisce a bacchetta.

SHARPLESS: Vostra?

PINKERTON: La comperai per novecento novantanove anni, con facoltà, ogni mese,
di rescindere i patti.
Sono in questo paese
elastici del par, case e contratti.

SHARPLESS: E l'uomo esperto ne profitta.
(Goro viene frettoloso dalla casa, seguito dai due servi; portano bicchieri, bottiglie e due poltrone di vimini; depongono bicchieri e bottiglie su di un piccolo tavolo e tornano in casa)

PINKERTON: (Invitando à sedere) Certo
Dovunque al mondo il yankee vagabondo si gode e traffica
sprezzando i rischi.
Affonda l'àncora alla ventura
finchè una raffica . . .
(Pinkerton's interrompe per offrire da bere a Sharpless)
Milk-Punch, o Wiskey?
(riprende)
. . . scompigli nave, ormeggi, alberatura.
La vita ei non appaga se non fa suo tesor le stelle d'ogni cielo
i fiori d'ogni plaga, d'ogni bella gli amor.

SHARPLESS: È un facile vangelo che fa la vita vaga ma che intristisce il cuor.

PINKERTON: (continuando) Vinto si tuffa e la sorte riacciuffa.
Il suo talento
fa in ogni dove.
Cosi mi sposo all'uso giapponese per novecento novantanove anni, Salvo a prosciogliermi ogni mese.
"America forever!"

SHARPLESS: Ed è bella
la sposa?

GORO: (che ha udito, si avanza premuroso ed insinuante) Una ghirlanda di fior freschi, Una stella dai raggi d'oro.
E per nulla; sol cento
yen.
(al Console)
Se la Grazia Vostra mi comanda ce n'ho un assortimento.
(il Console ridendo, ringrazia)

PINKERTON: (pointing to the house) This is a dwelling
Which is managed by magic.

SHARPLESS: Yours?

PINKERTON: I bought this house
For nine hundred and ninety-nine years,
But with the option, at every month,
To cancel the contract!
I must say, in this country
The houses and the contracts are elastic!

SHARPLESS: The man of business profits by it.
(Goro comes bustling out of the house, followed by the two servants. They bring glasses, bottles and two wicker lounges; place the glasses and bottles on a small table, and return to the house)

PINKERTON: (inviting him to be seated) Surely.
The whole world over,
On business and pleasure bent
The Yankee travels, scorning all dangers,
His anchor boldly he casts at random—
Until a sudden squall—
(breaking off to offer Sharpless a drink)
Milk punch or whisky?
(resuming)
Upsets his ship, then up go sails and rigging;
And life is not worth living
If he can't win the best
And fairest of each country,
The heart of each fair maid!

SHARPLESS: That's an easy-going gospel
Which makes life very pleasant,
But is fatal in the end—

PINKERTON: (continuing) Fate cannot crush him, he tries again undaunted,
No one and nothing
Breaks his plucky spirit.
And so I'm marrying in Japanese fashion,
Tied for nine hundred
And ninety-nine years,
Free, though, to annul the marriage monthly.
"America forever!"

SHARPLESS: Is the bride very pretty?

GORO: (who has overheard, approaches the terrace officiously)
Fair as a garland
Of fragrant flowers! Brighter
Than a star in the heavens!
And for nothing: one hundred
Yen.
(to the Consul)
If your Augustness will entrust me,
I have a fine selection?
(the Consul laughingly declines)

PINKERTON: (con viva impazienza) Va, conducila Goro. (Goro corre in fondo e scompare discendendo il colle: i due servi rientrano in casa Pinkerton e Sharpless siedono).	PINKERTON: (very impatiently) Go and fetch her, Goro. (Goro runs to the back and disappears down the hill)
SHARPLESS: Quale smania vi prende! Sareste addirittura cotto?	SHARPLESS: What folly has seized you! Do you think you are Quite drunk?
PINKERTON: Non so! Dipende. dal grado di cottura! Amore o grillo—donna o gingilo dir non saprei—Certo colei m'ha colle ingenue—arti invescato. Lieve qual tenue—vetro soffiato alla statura—al portamento sembra figura—da paravento. Ma dal suo lucido—fondo di lacca come con subito—moto si stacca, qual farfalletta—svolazza e posa con tal grazietta—silenzioza che di rincorrerla—furor m'assale se pure infrangerne—dovessi l'ale.	PINKERTON: (rises impatiently. Sharpless rises also) May be! Depends On what you call intoxication! Is it love or fancy, maid or myth— I cannot tell you—all that I know is She, with her innocent charm, has entranced me. Almost transparently fragile and slender, Dainty in statute, quaint little figure, Seems to have stepped down Straight from a screen.— But from her background of varnish and lacquer— Suddenly, light as a feather she flutters, And, like a butterfly, hovers and settles, With so much charm and such seductive graces, That to pursue her a wild wish seized me— Though in the quest her frail wings should be broken.
SHARPLESS: (seriamente e bonario) Ier l'altro, il Consolato sen' venne a visitar! Io non la vidi, ma l'udii parlar. Di sua voce il mistero L'anima mi colpi. Certo quando è sincero l'amor parla cosi. Sarebbe gran peccato le lievi ali strappar e desolar forse un credulo cuor. Quella—divina mite—vocina non dovrebbe dar note di dolor.	SHARPLESS: (seriously and kindly) The other day, she came up To call at the Consulate! I did not see her, but I heard her speak. And the mystery of her voice Touched my very soul. Surely love that is pure and true speaks like that. It would indeed be a sad pity To tear those dainty wings, And perchance to torment a trusting heart. No cry of anguish should ever be uttered By that gentle and trusting little voice.
PINKERTON: Console mio garbato, quetatevi! Si sa, la vostra età è di flebile umor. Non c'è gran male s'io vo' quell'ale dizzar ai dolci voli dell'amor! (offre di nuovo da bere) Wiskey?	PINKERTON: Dearly beloved Consul, Allay your fears! We know Men of your age look on life with mournful eyes. No harm I reckon these wings to raise, And guide them to the tender flights of love! (offers him more drink) Whisky?
SHARPLESS: Un altro bicchiere. (Pinkerton colma anche il proprio bicchiere) Bevo alla vostra famiglia lontana.	SHARPLESS: Yes, mix me another. (Pinkerton fills up his own glass as well) Here's to your friends and relations at home.
PINKERTON: (leva il calice) E al giorno in cui mi sposerò con vere nozze, a una vera sposa . . . americana.	PINKERTON: (raising his glass) And to the day on which I'll wed In real marriage—a real American wife!
GORO: (riappare correndo, venendo dal basso della collina) Ecco! Son giunte al sommo del pendìo. (accennando verso il sentiero) Gìa del femmineo sciame qual di vento in fogliame s'ode il brusìo.	GORO: (reappears running breathlessly up the hill) See them! they've climbed the summit of the hill! (pointing towards the path) A crowd of women hustling, Like the wind in branches rustling, Here they come bustling! (The confused and lively hubbub of many voices is heard from the path. Pinkerton and Sharpless retire to the back of the garden, watching the path on the hill)
VOCE DI BUTTERFLY: Ancora un passo or via.	BUTTERFLY'S VOICE: There's one step more to climb.
ALTRA VOCI: Come sei tarda. Ecco la vetta.— —Aspetta.— —Guarda, guarda.	OTHER VOICES: How long you tarry—here is the summit— One moment—look, oh look!
VOCE DI BUTTERFLY: Spira sul mare o sulla terra un primaveril soffio giocondo. Io sono la fanciulla più lieta del Giappone, anzi del mondo. Dalle vie, dalle ville la città colle mille sue voci mi saluta, Amiche, io son venuta al richiamo d'amor nelle grandiose soglie ove tutto s'accoglie il bene di chi vive e di chi muor.	BUTTERFLY'S VOICE: Across the earth and over the ocean Balmy breeze and scent of Spring are blowing— I am the happiest maiden, The happiest in Japan— In all the world. From every nook and corner The city sends me greeting With a thousand voices. Friends, I have obeyed The summons of love, Upon the threshold standing, Where all the glory awaits me, That life or death can offer.
LE AMICHE: Gioia a te sia dolce amica, ma pria di varcare la soglia che ti attira volgiti indietro e mira le cose tutte che ti son sì care. Quanti fior! Quanto cielo! Quanto mare!	HER GIRL FRIENDS: The best of luck attend you, Gentle maiden, but in case You cross the threshold which invites you, turn and admire the things you hold so dear. What lovely flowers! what lovely sky, and lovely sea!
SHARPLESS: O allegro cinguettar di gioventù! (Appaiono, superato il pendìo della collina. Butterfly colle amiche, tutte hanno grandi ombrelli aperti, a vivi colori).	SHARPLESS: O happy prattle, careless days of youth! (Butterfly and her girl friends appear on the brow of the hill. They will carry large brightly coloured sunshades, open)
BUTTERFLY: Siam giunte. (vede il gruppo dei tre uomini e riconosce Pinkerton. Chiude subito l'ombrello e pronta addita Pinkerton alle amiche) B. F. Pinkerton. Giù. (si genuflette)	BUTTERFLY: We're there now. (she sees the three men standing together and recognizes Pinkerton. She promptly closes her sunshade and introduces Pinkerton to her friends) B. F. Pinkerton. Down. (goes down on her knees)
LE AMICHE: (chiudono gli ombrelli e si genuflettono) Giù. (poi tutte si alzano e si avvicinano a Pinkerton, cerimoniosamente)	THE GIRL FRIENDS: (close their sunshades and go on their knees) Down. (then they all rise and ceremoniously approach Pinkerton)
BUTTERFLY: Gran ventura	BUTTERFLY: Augustly welcome—
LE AMICHE: Riverenza.	THE GIRL FRIENDS: Hail, most mighty!

PINKERTON: (sorridendo) È un po' dura la scalata?

BUTTERFLY: (compassata) A una sposa costumata più penosa
l' impazienza.

PINKERTON: (un po' derisorio) Molto raro complimento.

BUTTERFLY: (ingenua) Dei più belli ancor ne so

PINKERTON: (rincalzando) Dei gioielli!

BUTTERFLY: (volendo sfoggiare il suo repertorio di complimenti) Se vi è caro sul momento . . .

PINKERTON: Grazie—no.

SHARPLESS: (ha osservato prima curiosamente il gruppo delle fanciulle, poi si è avvicinato a Butterfly che lo ascolta con attenzione) Miss Butterfly. Bel nome che vi sta a meraviglia.
Siete di Nagasaki?

BUTTERFLY: Signor sì. Di famiglia assai prospera un tempo.
(alle amiche)
Verità?

LE AMICHE: (approvando premurose) Verità!

BUTTERFLY: Nessuno si confessa mai nato in povertà
e non c'è vagabondo che a sentirlo non sia di gran prosapia. Eppure senza millanteria conobbi la ricchezza. Ma il turbine rovescia le quercie più robuste—e abbiam fatto la ghescia per sostentarci.
(alle amiche)
Vero?

LE AMICHE: (confermano) Vero!

BUTTERFLY: Non lo nascondo nè mi adonto.
(vedendo che Sharpless sorride)
Ridete? Perchè? . . . Cose del mondo.

PINKERTON: (ha ascoltato con interesse e si rivolge a Sharpless)
(Con quel fare di bambola quando parla m'infiamma.)

SHARPLESS: (anch'esso interossato dalle chiacchiere di Butterfly, continua a interrogarla) E ci avete sorelle?

BUTTERFLY: Non signore. Ho la mamma.

GORO: (con inportanza) Una nobile dama.

PINKERTON: (smiling) The ascent
Is rather difficult?

BUTTERFLY: (measuredly) Not so trying
To a bride
As are the weary hours
Of waiting.

PINKERTON: (rather sarcastically) What a rare Compliment!

BUTTERFLY: (ingenuously) I know better ones
Than that—

PINKERTON: (good humouredly)
Gems, I doubt not!

BUTTERFLY: (anxious to show off her stock of compliments) If you care for some
At this moment.

PINKERTON: (gently) Thank you—no.

SHARPLESS: (after scanning the group of maidens with curiosity, approaches Butterfly, who listens to him attentively) Miss "Butterfly"—How pretty!—Your name
Was well chosen. Are you from Nagasaki?

BUTTERFLY: Sir, I am. My people
Were formerly wealthy.
(to her friends) Say so!

HER GIRL FRIENDS: (assenting with alacrity) It is so!

BUTTERFLY: There's no one cares to own he was born in poverty.
Is not every vagrant, when you listen to his tale,
Of ancient lineage? But yet indeed
I have known riches. But the strongest oak Must fall when the storm-wind wrecks the forest.
And we had to become geishas, to earn our living.
(to her friends) Say so!

THE FRIENDS: (corroborating) Truly!

BUTTERFLY: I frankly own it,
And don't blush for it.
(seeing that Sharpless smiles)
You're laughing? And why? That's how the world runs.

PINKERTON: (has listened with interest and turns to Sharpless)
(With her innocent baby-face when she speaks, she sets my heart on fire.)

SHARPLESS: (he also in interested in Butterfly's prattle, and continues to question her) And have you no sisters?

BUTTERFLY: None, Honorable sir, I've my mother.

GORO: (importantly) A most notable lady.

BUTTERFLY: Ma senza farle torto povera molto anch'essa.

SHARPLESS: E vostro padre?

BUTTERFLY: (si arresta sorpresa—poi secco secco risponde:) Morto.

SHARPLESS: (a Butterfly) Quanti anni avete?

BUTTERFLY: (con civetteria quasi infantile) Indovinate.

PINKERTON: Dieci.

BUTTERFLY: Crescete.

SHARPLESS: Venti.

BUTTERFLY: Calate.
Quindici, netti, netti;
sono vecchia diggià

SHARPLESS: Quindici anni! L'età dei giuochi . . .

PINKERTON: e dei confetti
(a Goro, che batte le mani, chiamando i tre servi, i quali accorrono dalla casa: Goro impartisce loro gli ordini, man mano che li riceve da Pinkerton) Qua i tre musi. Servite ragni e mosche candite.
Nidi al giulebbe e quale
è licor più indigesto
e più nauseabonda leccornia dell Nipponeria.
(Goro nel seguire i servi che rientrano in casa si accorge che altre persone saigono il colle: osserva; poi corre ad annunciare a Pinkerton e a Sharpless:)

GORO: (con importanza)
L'imperial Commissario e l'Ufficiale del registro—i congiunti.

PINKERTON: (a Goro) Fate presto.
(Goro corre in casa)

ALCUNI PARENTI: (con molta curiosità a Butterfly) Dov'è?
Dove'è?

BUTTERFLY: (indicando Pinkerton) Eccola là!

LA CUGINA: In verità bello non è.—

BUTTERFLY: (offesa) Bello è così che non si può sognar di più.

LA MADRE DI BUTTERFLY: Mi pare un re!

LO ZIO: Vale un Perù.

LA CUGINA: Goro l'offrì pur anche a me.
Ma s'ebbe un no!

BUTTERFLY: (sdegnosa) Sì, giusto tu!

BUTTERFLY: But through no fault whatever,
She is dreadfully poor.

SHARPLESS: And where's your father?

BUTTERFLY: (stops short in surprise, then answers very shortly:) Dead!

SHARPLESS: (to Butterfly) What might your age be?

BUTTERFLY: (with almost childish coquetry) Now try to guess it!

PINKERTON: Ten years.

BUTTERFLY: Guess higher.

SHARPLESS: Twenty.

BUTTERFLY: Guess lower.
Fifteen, exactly fifteen!
I am old, am I not?

SHARPLESS: Fifteen years old! The age of playthings—

PINKERTON: And of sweetmeats!
(To Goro, who claps his hands, summoning the three servants, who come running from the house: Goro gives them the orders which he takes from Pinkerton)
Call my scarecrows to hand round
Candied flies and spiders,
Preserves and pastry, and all Sorts of curious liquors,
And such most peculiar delicacies
They fancy in Japan.
(Goro is just about to follow the servants into the house, when he perceives movement climbing the hill; he goes to look then runs to announce the new arrivals to Pinkerton and to Sharpless:)

GORO: (importantly) The imperial High Commissioner—
The official Registrar—the relations

PINKERTON: (to Goro) Come now, hurry.
(Goro runs into the house)

SOME OF THE RELATIONS: (with great curiosity, to Butterfly)
Where is he? Where?

BUTTERFLY: (pointing to Pinkerton) That is he—there!

FIRST COUSIN: To tell the truth,
Handsome he's not—

BUTTERFLY: (offended) Handsomer man
You never saw—
Not in your dreams.

BUTTERFLY'S MOTHER: I think he resembles a king.

THE UNCLE: He's worth a lot!

FIRST COUSIN: Why, Goro offered him to me,
But I said no!

BUTTERFLY: (contemptuously) To you, my dear!

ALCUNI AMICI AD ALCUNE AMICHE: Ecco, perchè prescelta fu, vuol far con te la soprappiù.

ALTRE AMICHE: La sua beltà
gia disfiorì.

CUGINI E CUGINE: Divorzierà.

ALTRI: Spero di sì.—

GORO: Per carità tacete un po' chi v'insegnò la civiltà?

LA MADRE DI BUTTERFLY E ALCUNE CUGINE: Oh quelli lì non smette più

GORO: Stoltezza fu condurla qui.

LO ZIO: Vino ce n'è?

LA MADRE E LA ZIA: Guardiamo un po'.

ALCUNE AMICHE: Ne vidi già, color di thè,
à chermisì!

LO ZIO: Se ne berrò!

IL BAMBINO: E chicche?

SUA MADRE: Sì.

IL BAMBINO: (gongolante) Curucucu!

BUTTERFLY: (a sua madre) Mamma, vien qua.
(agli altri)
Badate a me:
attenti, orsù,
uno—due—tre e tutti giù.
(e tutti si inchinano innazi a Pinkerton, tranne il Commissario e l'Ufficiale)
(In tanto Goro ha fatto portare dia servi alcuni tavolini, sui quali dispongonsi varie confetture, pasticcietti, liquori, vini e servizi da thè; si portano alcuni cuscini e un tavolino a parte, coll' occorrente per scrivere. Parenti, amici guardano con molta soddisfazione i dulciani portati. Butterfly presenta i parenti à Pinkerton.)

IL COMMISSARIO IMPERIALE: (legge) E concesso al nominato
Benjamin Franklin Pinkerton,
Luogotenente nella cannoniera
Lincoln, marina degli Stati Uniti America del Nord:
ed alla damigella Butterfly
del quartiere di Omara-Nagasaki, finor non maritata e in conseguenza non divorziata mai, di unirsi in matrimonio, per diritto il primo, della propria volontà, ed ella per consenso dei parenti
qui testimoni all'atto.
(porge l'atto per la firma)

SOME MALE AND FEMALE FRIENDS: Because on her
His choice did fall,
She would look down
Upon us all!

SOME OTHER GIRL FRIENDS: I think her beauty's fading.

MALE AND FEMALE COUSINS: She'll be divorced.

OTHERS: I hope so.

GORO: For goodness sake
Be silent now—
Where did you get Your manners?

BUTTERFLY'S MOTHER AND A FEW COUSINS: Why, that one
there
Won't let her be.

GORO: You are fools
To bring her here.

THE UNCLE: Is there no wine?

THE MOTHER AND THE AUNT: Let's look about.

SOME FRIENDS: I've just seen some,
The hue of tea—
And crimson too!

THE UNCLE: I'd like a drink!

THE CHILD: And sweetmeats.

HIS MOTHER: Yes.

THE CHILD: (capering for joy) Hurrah! Hurrah!

BUTTERFLY: Mother, come here.
(to the others)
Listen to me:
All of you, look,
One—two—three—
All of you: down!
(They all bow low before Pinkerton)
(Meanwhile, Goro has made the servants bring out some small tables, on which they lay a variety of cake, sweetmeats, liquors, wines and tea-sets. They set some cushions and a small table with writing-materials apart. The friends and relations evince great satisfaction at the refreshments. Butterfly presents her relations to Pinkerton)

THE IMPERIAL COMMISSIONER: (reads) Leave is given to the undersigned Benjamin Franklin Pinkerton,
Lieutenant, serving on the gunboat
Lincoln, of the United States Navy,
Of North America;
And to the spinster, known as Butterfly,
Inhabitant of Omara-Nagasaki,
Hitherto single, and in consequence
Never divorced,
To join in bonds of wedlock; to wit
The former of his free accord and will,

GORO: (cerimonioso) Lo sposo.
(Pinkerton firma)
Poi la sposa.
(Butterly firma)
E tutto è fatto
(circondano Butterfly festiggiandola)

LE AMICHI: Madama Butterfly!

BUTTERFLY: (le corregge) Madama B. F. Pinkerton.
(L'Ufficiale della Stato Civile ritira l'atto e avverte il Commissario che tutto è finito.)

IL COMMISSARIO IMPERIALE: (congedandosi da Pinkerton) Auguri molti.

PINKERTON: I miei ringraziamenti.

IL COMMISARIO IMPERIALE: (al Console) Il signor Consol scende?

SHARPLESS: L'accompagno.

UFFICIALE: (congedandosi de Pinkerton) Posterità.

PINKERTON: Mi proverò.

SHARPLESS: (stringendo la mano a Pinkerton) Giudizio!
Ci vedrem domattina.

PINKERTON: A meraviglia.
(Pinkerton accompagna i tre sino al sentiero che scende alla città e il saluta di nuovo quando già sono fuori di vista; sono passati prima fra due schiere di parenti e di amiche che li hanno salutati con molti cerimoniosi inchini. Butterfly si è recata presso sua madre. Pinkerton ritorna, e si capisce che è deliberato di sbarazzarsi dei parenti e delle amiche).
(Ed eccoci in famiglia.) Sbrighiamoci al più presto—in modo onesto.)
Qua, signor Zio.

PINKERTON: (al bambino) A te marmocchio;
spalanca le tue maniche ed insacca chicche e pasticci a macca.
(leva il proprio bicchiere)
Ip! Ip!

TUTTI: (brindando) O Kami! O Kami!

PINKERTON: E beviamo ai novissimi legami.

TUTTI: O Kami! O Kami!
(Grida terribili dal sentiero della collina interrompono i brindisi; ad un tratto appare dal fondo uno strano personaggio, la cui vista fa allibire tutti. E il Bonzo che si fa innanzi furibondo e vista Butter-

The latter with consent of her relations,
Witnesses to the contract.
(Hands the bond for signature)

GORO: (with much unction) The bridegroom.
(Pinkerton signs)
Now the bride.
(Butterfly signs)
And all is settled.

THE GIRL FRIENDS: (surround Butterfly, congratulating her)
Dear Madam Butterfly.

BUTTERFLY: (corrects them) No,
Madam B. F. Pinkerton.
(The Civil Registrar withdraws the bond and informs the Commissioner that the ceremony is over)

THE COMMISSIONER: (taking leave of Pinkerton) The best of wishes.

PINKERTON: I thank you most sincerely.

THE COMMISSIONER: (to the Consul) May I ask, are you going?

SHARPLESS: I'll go with you.

THE REGISTRAR: (taking leave of Pinkerton) The best of luck.

PINKERTON: I'm much obliged.

SHARPLESS: (shaking hands with Pinkerton) We shall meet tomorrow! Be careful!

PINKERTON: Tomorrow, surely.
(Pinkerton accompanies the three as far as the path which leads down to the town and waves his hand to them as they vanish from sight. They had first to pass between two files of friends and relatives, who saluted them with many ceremonious bows. Butterfly has withdrawn close to her mother. Pinkerton returns and is naturally anxious to get rid of the wedding guests)
(Now quickly to get rid Of this little family party! How shall I do it?)
this way, good uncle.

PINKERTON: (to the child, giving him a lot of sweets) Your turn, young rascal;
Spread out your hands, and stuff your sleeves
With cakes and sweets and pastry.
(raising his own glass)
Hip! Hip!

ALL: (toasting) O Kami! O Kami!

PINKERTON: Let's drink to the newly-married couple.

ALL: O Kami! O Kami!
(The toasts are interrupted by strange cries from the hill; all of a sudden a weird figure appears in the background, at the sight of whom all are thunderstruck. It is the Bonze, who comes forward in fly, stende le mani minacciose verso di lei, gridando)

IL BONZO: Cio-cio-san! . . . Cio-cio-san! . . .
Abbominazione!

GORO: (infastidito dalla venuta del Bonzo) Un corno al guastafeste!
Chi ci leva d'intorno le persone moleste?! . . .
(fa cenno ai servi di asportare tavoliui, sgabelli, suscini e prudentemente se ne parte adiratissimo, borbottando)

TUTTI: (impauriti, si raccolgono in un angolo balbettando) Lo zio Bonze!
(Pinkerton guarda la strana figura del Bonzo e ride)

IL BONZO: (a Butterfly, che s'è scostata da tutti) Che hai tu fatto alla Missione?

PINKERTON: Che mi strilla quel matto?

IL BONZO: Rispondi, che hai tu fatto?

TUTTI: Rispondi Cio-cio-san!

IL BONZO: Come, hai tu gli occhi asciutti?
Son questi dunque i frutti?
(urlando)
Ci ha rinnegato tutti!

TUTTI: Hou! Cio-cio-san!

IL BONZO: Rinnegato, vi dico, degli avi il culto antico.

TUTTI: Hou! Cio-cio-san!
(Butterfly si copre il viso vergognosa)

IL BONZO: (gridando sul viso a Betterfly) All'anima tua guasta qual supplizio sovrastra!
(La madre s'interpone per difendere Butterfly, ma il Bonzo la respinge brutalmente. Pinkerton infastidito, si alza e grida al Bonzo:)

PINKERTON: (infastidito) Ehi, dico: basta, basta!
(alla voce di Pinkerton il Bonzo si arresta stupefatto! . . . poi con subita risoluzione invita i parenti e la amiche a partire)

IL BONZO: Venite tutti—Andiamo!
(a Butterfly)
Ci hai rinnegato e noi . . .

TUTTI: Ti rinneghiamo!

PINKERTON: (autorevolmente) Sbarazzate all'istante. In casa mia niente baccano e niente bonzeria.
(Tutti, parenti, amiche, il Bonzo, partono in gran fretta, scendendo la collina e continuando strilare imprecare contro Butterfly.—Le voci a poco a poco si allontanano.—Butterfly ci stette sempre immobile e muta colla faccia nelle mani, scoppia in pianto infantile. Comincia poco a poco a calare la sera: poi notte serena e stellata).

PINKERTON: (va presso Butterfly e con delicatezza le toglie le mani dal viso) Bimba, Bimba, non piangere per gracchiar di ranocchi.

BUTTERFLY: (udendo ancora le grida dei parenti, si tura colle mani le orecchie) Urlano ancor!

PINKERTON: (rincorandola) Tutta la tua tribù e i Bonzi tutti del Giappon non valgono il pianto di quegli occhi cari e belli.

BUTTERFLY: (sorridendo infantilmente) Davver? Non piango più.
E quasi del ripudio non mi duole per lo vostre parole che mi suonan così dolci nel cuor.
(si china per baciare la mano a Pinkerton)

PINKERTON: (sorpreso a quell' atto, dolcemente lo impedise) Che fai? . . . la man?

BUTTERFLY: Mi han detto che laggiù fra le gente costumata è questo il segno del maggior rispetto.

PINKERTON: (sente un sordo bisbiglio) Chi brontola lassù?

BUTTERFLY: É Suzuki che fa la sua preghiera seral.

PINKERTON: (attirandola) Viene la sera . . .

BUTTERFLY: e l'ombra e la quiete.

PINKERTON: E sei qui sola.

BUTTERFLY: Sola e rinnegata!
Rinnegata e felice!

PINKERTON: (ha battuto le mani, ed i servi sono accorsi) A voi—chiudete.

BUTTERFLY: (i servi chiudono le pareti che danno sul terrazo poi si rittrano) Sì, sì, noi tutti soli . . .
E fuori il mondo.

PINKERTON: (ridendo) E il Bonzo furibondo

BUTTERFLY: (a Suzuki, che è venuta coi servi e sta aspettando gli ordini) Suzuki, le mie vesti.
(Suzuki fruga in un cofano di lac- a towering rage, and, catching sight of Butterfly, stretches out threatening hands towards her, crying:)

THE BONZE: Cho-Cho-San! Cho-Cho-San!
Abomination!

GORO: (annoyed at the Bonze's intrusion) A plague on this intruder!
What on earth brought him here
Of all troublesome people?
(signs to the servants to remove the tables, cushions and stools; and then prudently retires himself, grumbling furiously)

ALL: (huddling together in a corner in terror) The Bonze, her uncle!
(Pinkerton looks at the Bonze's weird figure and laughs)

THE BONZE: (to Butterfly, who stands isolated from the rest) What were You doing at the Mission?

PINKERTON: What is that madman shrieking?

THE BONZE: Answer, what were you doing?

ALL: Answer, Cho-Cho-San!

THE BONZE: How, then, don't you even falter?
Are these the fruits of evil?
(shouting)
She has renounced us all!

ALL: Hou! Cho-Cho-San!

THE BONZE: She's renounced, let me tell you,
Her true religion!

ALL: Hou! Cho-Cho-San!
(Butterfly, overcome with shame, hides her face in her hands)

THE BONZE: (shouting into her face) In everlasting torment
May your wicked soul perish!
(Butterfly's mother comes forward to protect her, but the Bonze roughly pushes her away. Pinkerton loses patience, rises and shouts to the Bonze:)

PINKERTON: (out of patience) Be silent now, you hear me?
(At the sound of Pinkerton's voice, the Bonze stops short in amazement, then with a sudden resolve he invites his friends and relations to come away)

THE BONZE: Come with me, all.
We'll leave her.
(to Butterfly)
You have renounced us all—and we—

ALL: Renounce you!

PINKERTON: (authoritatively) Leave this place on the instant!
Here I am master—
I'll have no turmoil and no disturbance here!
(All the guests, including the Bonze, depart in great haste, going down the hillside and continuing to hurl threats and imprecations at Butterfly. By degrees the voices die away in the distance. Butterfly, who has been standing motionless and mute with her face buried in her hands, bursts into childish tears. Evening begins to draw in gradually, then night sets in, serene and starlit)

PINKERTON: (goes up to Butterfly and gently draws her hands from her face) Dearest, my dearest, weep no more!
Let the frogs croak their loudest.

BUTTERFLY: (still hears the yells of her relations and holds her ears) How they continue to yell!

PINKERTON: (cheering her) All your respected tribe
And all the Bonzes in Japan
Are not worth a tear
From those dear eyes of yours.

BUTTERFLY: (smiling with childlike pleasure) Indeed? I'll weep no more—
And now I'm scarcely grieved at their desertion,
So sweet are your words of comfort
Which fall like gentle balm on my poor heart.
(stoops to kiss Pinkerton's hand)

PINKERTON: (surprised at her action, gently stops her) What's this?—My hand?

BUTTERFLY: They tell me
That abroad, where the people are more cultured
This is a token of the highest honour.

PINKERTON: (hears a subdued murmuring) Who's murmuring in there?

BUTTERFLY: It is Suzuki who offers up
Her evening prayer.

PINKERTON: (drawing her close to him) Evening is falling—

BUTTERFLY: With shadows and quiet—

PINKERTON: You're here alone—

BUTTERFLY: Alone and renounced!
They've renounced me, and yet I'm happy!

PINKERTON: (has clapped his hands and the servants have hastened in) Come here—the shosi.

BUTTERFLY: (the servants close the partitions which run along the terrace, and then retire) Yes, we are all alone—
The world is yonder.

PINKERTON: (laughing) And your uncle breathing thunder!

BUTTERFLY: (to Suzuki, who has come in with the servants and is awaiting orders) Suzuki, bring my garments.

ca, mentre Pinkerton guarda i servi che stanno tramutando parte del terrazzo in una camera)

SUZUKI: (dopo di aver dato a Butterfly gli abiti per la notte ed un cofanetto coll' occorrente per la toeletta, si inchina innanzi a Pinkerton) Buona notte.
(aiutata da Suzuki, Butterfly si reca in un angolo al fondo e fa cautelosamente la sua toeletta da notte, levendosi poi la veste nuziale ed indossandone una tutta bianca. Suzuke esce. Pinkerton dondolandosi sulla poltrona e prendendo una sigarette guarda Butterfly che è intenta ad acconciarsi)

BUTTERFLY: Le sa. Forse dirle non vuole per tema d'averne a morir!

PINKERTON: Stolta paura, l'amor non uccide ma dà vita, e sorride per gioie celestiali come ora fa nei tuoi lunghi occhi ovali.
(avvicinandosi a lei a prendendole la faccia)

BUTTERFLY: Adesso voi siete per me l'occhio del firmamento.
E mi piasceste dal primo momento che vi ho veduto.—Siete alto, forte.—Ridete
con modi si palesi!
E dite cose che mai non intesi.
Or son contenta.—Vogliatemi bene, un bene piccolino,
un bene da bambino
quale a me si conviene.
Noi siamo gente avvezza alle piccole cose
umili e silenziose, ad una tenerezza
sfiorante e pur profonda come il ciel, come l'onda lieve e forte del mare.

PINKERTON: Dammi ch'io baci le tue mani care.
(prorompe con grande tenerezza)
Mia Butterfly! . . . come t'han ben nomata tenue farfalla . . .

BUTTERFLY: (a queste parole si rattrista e ritira le mani) Dicon che oltre mare se cade in man dell'uom, ogni farfalla da uno spillo e' trafitta
ed in tavola infitta!

PINKERTON: (riprendendole dolcemente le mani e sorridendo)
Un po' di vero c'è.
E lo sai tu perchè?
Perchè nen fugga più.
(abbracciandola)
Io t'ho ghermita . . .
Ti serro palpitante.
Sei mia.

(Suzuki rummages in a lacquer trunk, whilst Pinkerton watches the servants who are changing part of the terrace into a room)

SUZUKI: (after having given Butterfly her night-attire and a small box with toilet necessaries, bows low to Pinkerton) Good-night.
(Butterfly retires to a corner, and, assisted by Suzuki, carefully performs her toilet for the night, exchanging her wedding-garment for one of pure white. Suzuki goes out. Pinkerton, lolling on the wicker lounge, takes a cigarette and watches Butterfly, who is busy adorning herself)

BUTTERFLY: She knows, but perhaps will not say them,
For fear she may die of her love!

PINKERTON: Fear not, my dearest, for love does not mean dying
But rather living; and it
Radiates celestial happiness.
I see it shine, as I am gazing in your eyes.
(drawing close to her and taking her face in his hands)

BUTTERFLY: But now, beloved!
You are all the world, more than the world to me.
Indeed, I liked you the very first moment
That I saw you.—You're so strong,
So handsome!—Your laugh
Is so open and so hearty!
the things you say are so fascinating.
Now I am happy.—Ah, love me a little,
Oh just a very little,
As you would love a baby,
That is all I ask for.
I come of a race
Accustomed to little;
Grateful for love that's silent,
Light as a blossom,
And yet everlasting
As the sky, as the fathomless ocean.

PINKERTON: Give me your darling hands, that I may kiss them!
(bursts out very tenderly) My Butterfly!—aptly your name was chosen.
Gossamer creation!—

BUTTERFLY: (at these words her face clouds over and she draws away her hands) They say that in your country
If a butterfly is caught by man,
He'll pierce its heart with a needle,
And then leave it to perish!

PINKERTON: (gently taking her hands again and smiling) There is some truth in that.
And can you tell me why?
That you may not escape.
(embracing her)
See I have caught you—
I hold you as you flutter—
Be mine.

BUTTERFLY: (abbandonandosi) Sì, per la vita.

PINKERTON: Vieni, vieni.

PINKERTON: Via dall'anima in pena l'angoscia paurosa.
(indicando a Butterfly il cielo stellato)
Guarda: è notte serena!
Guarda: dorme ogni cosa!

BUTTERFLY: (estatica) Dolce notte! Quante stelle!
Non le vidi mai sì belle!
Trema, brilla, ogni favilla col baglior d'una pupilla.
Oh! quanti occhi fisi, attenti d'ogni parte a riguardare!
Lungi, via pei firmamenti, via pei lidi, via pel mare quanti fiammei sguardi pieni d'ineffabile languor!
Tutto estatico d'amor ride il cielo . . .

PINKERTON: (con cupido amore) Vieni, vieni! . . .
(Butterfly e Pinkerton entrano nella camera nuziale.)

■ ATTO II

Interno della casetta di Butterfly

PARTE PRIMA
Suzuki prega, raggomitolata davanti all' immagine di Budda; suona di quando in quando la campanella della preghiera. Butterfly sta ritta ed immobile presso un paravento.

SUZUKI: (pregnado) E Izaghi ed Izanami
Sarundazico e Kami . . .
(interrompendosi)
Oh! la mia testa!
(suona la campanella per richiamare l'attenzione dei Numi)
E tu
Ten-Sjoo-daj!
(guardando Butterfly)
Fate che Butterfly
non piango più, mai più, mai più, mai più.

BUTTERFLY: Pigri ed obesi son gli Dei Giapponesi.
L'americano Iddio son persuasa ben più presto risponde e chi l'implori.
Ma temo ch'egli ignori
che noi stiam qui di casa.
(rimane pensierosa, poi si rivolge a Suzuki che si è alzata in piedi ed ha aperto la pareto verso il giardino)
Suzuki, è lungi la miseria?

SUZUKI: (apre un piccolo mobile e vi prende poche monete mostrandole a Butterfly) Questo l'ultimo fondo.

BUTTERFLY: (throwing herself in his arms) Yes, yours for ever.

PINKERTON: Come then, come then—

PINKERTON: Love, while fear holds you trembling
Has done away with all misgivings.
(pointing to the starlit sky)
See, the night doth enfold us!
See, all the world lies sleeping!

BUTTERFLY: (enraptured) Ah!
Night of rapture! Stars unending!
Never have I seen such glory!
Throbbing, sparkling, each star in heaven
Like a fiery eye is flashing.
Oh! how kindly are the heavens!
Every star that shines afar
Is gazing on us, lighting our future for us
Ah! lovely night! Your perfect calm
Is breathing love near and far!—

PINKERTON: (with passionate longing) Come, then, come!—
(They go into the marriage chamber)

■ ACT II

Inside Butterfly's Little House

Suzuki, coiled up in front of the image of Buddha, is praying; from time to time she rings the prayer-bell. Butterfly is standing rigid and motionless near the screen.

SUZUKI: (praying) And Izaghi and Izanami
Sarundasico and Kami—
(breaking off)
My head is throbbing!
(rings the prayer-bell to invoke the attention of the Gods)
And thou
Ten-Sjoo-daj!
(looking at Butterfly)
Grant me that Butterfly
Shall weep no more, no more, no more.

BUTTERFLY: Lazy and idle
Are the Gods of Japan.
The God my husband prays to
Will give an answer far more quickly
To those who bow before Him.
But I'm afraid He knows not
That we are dwelling here.
(remains pensive, then she turns to Suzuki, who has risen to her feet and has drawn back the partition leading to the garden)
Suzuki, how soon shall we be starving?

SUZUKI: (opens a small cabinet, and, taking a few coins from it, shows them to Butterfly) This is all that is left us.

BUTTERFLY: Questo? Oh! Troppe spese!	BUTTERFLY: No more? Oh, we've been spendthrifts!
SUZUKI: (ripone il danaro e chiude il piccolo mobile, mentre sospirando dice:) S'egli non torna e presto, siamo male in arnese.	SUZUKI: (replaces the money in the cabinet, which she closes, saying with a sigh:) Unless he comes, and quickly, Our plight is a bad one.
BUTTERFLY: (decisa) Ma torna.	BUTTERFLY: (with decision) He'll come, though.
SUZUKI: (crollando il capo) Tornerà!	SUZUKI: (shaking her head) Will he come?
BUTTERFLY: (indispettita a Suzuki) Perchè dispone che il Console provveda alla pigione, rispondi, su! Perchè con tante cure la casa riforni di serrature, s'ei non volesse ritornar mai più?	BUTTERFLY: (vexed, to Suzuki) Why did he order the Consul To provide this dwelling for us? Now answer that! And why was he so careful To have the house provided with safe locks If he did not intend to come again?
SUZUKI: Non lo so.	SUZUKI: I know not.
BUTTERFLY: (meravigliata a tanta ignoranza) Non lo sai? (con orgoglio) Io te lo dico. Per tener ben fuorì le zanzare, i parenti ed i dolori e dentro, con gelosa custodia, la sua sposa che son io: Butterfly.	BUTTERFLY: (surprised at such ignorance) Know you not? (with proud confidence) Then I will tell you. It was to keep outside Those spiteful plagues, my own relations. And inside, it was to give me protection. Me, his beloved wife—his Butterfly.
SUZUKI: (poco convinta) Mai non s'è udito di straniero marito che sia tornato al nido.	SUZUKI: (still far from convinced) I never heard as yet Of foreign husband Who returned to his nest.
BUTTERFLY: (furibonda) Taci, o t'uccido. (insistendo nel persuadere Suzuki) Quell'ultima mattina: tornerete signor?—gli domandai. Egli, col cuore grosso, per celarmi la pena sorridendo rispose: (cerca imitare Pinkerton) —O Butterfly piccina mogliettina, tornerò colle rose alla stagion serena quando fa la nidiata il pettirosso. (calma e convinta) E tornerà.	BUTTERFLY: (furious) Silence, or I'll kill you. (still trying to persuade Suzuki) Why, just before he went, I asked of him: "You'll come back again to me?" And with his heart so heavy, To conceal his trouble, With a smile he made answer: (imitating Pinkerton) O Butterfly, My tiny little child-wide, I'll return with the roses, The warm and sunny season When the red-breasted robins Are busy nesting. (calm and convinced) And he'll return.
SUZUKI: (con indredulità) Speriam.	SUZUKI: (still incredulous) We'll hope so.
BUTTERFLY: (insistendo) Dillo con me: Tornerà.	BUTTERFLY: (insisting) Say it with me: He'll return!
SUZUKI: (per compiacerla ripete) Tornerà . . . (poi si mette pianger)	SUZUKI: (repeats, to please her) He'll return! (then she bursts out weeping)
BUTTERFLY: (sorpresa) Pinagi! Perchè? Ah la fede ti manca! (poi continua fiduciosa e sorridente) Senti—Un bel dì, vedremo levarsi un fil di fumo sull'estremo confin delmare. E poi la nave appare E poi la nave è bianca. Entra nel porto, romba il suo saluto. Vedi? È venuto! Io non gli scendo incontro, Io no. Mi metto là sul ciglio del colle e aspetto, aspetto gran tempo e non mi pesa, la lunga attesa. E . . . uscito dalla folla cittadina un uomo, un picciol punto s'avvia per la collina. Chi sarà? chi sarà? E come sarà giunto che dirà? che dirà? Chiamerà Butterfly dalla lontana Io senza far risposta me ne starò nascosta un po' per celia, un po' per non morire al primo incontro, ed egli alquanto in pena chiamerà, chiamerà: 'Piccina—mogliettina olezzo di verbena'' i nomi che mi dava al suo venire. (a Suzuki) Tutto questo avverrà, te lo prometto Tienti la tua paura—io con sicura fede lo aspetto. (congeda Suzuki) (Suzuki esce dalla porta di sinistra. Butterfly la segue mestamente collo sguardo) (Nel giardino campaiono Mr. Sharpless e Goro; Goro guarda entro le camera, scorge Butterfly e dice a Sharpless:)	BUTTERFLY: (surprised) Weeping? and why? Ah, it is faith you are lacking! (she then continues, full of faith, and smiling) Hear me.—One fine day we'll notice A thread of smoke arising on the sea In the far horizon, And then the ship appearing;— Then the trim white vessel Glides into the harbour, her cannon thunders forth. You see? He is coming!— I do not go to meet him. Not I. I stay Upon the brow of the hill and wait, and wait For a long time, but never weary Of the long waiting. From out the crowded city, There is coming a man— A litle speck in the distance, climbing the hill. Can you guess who it is? And when he's reached the summit Can you guess what he'll say? He will call "Butterfly" from the distance. I, without answering, Hold myself quietly concealed, A bit to tease him, and a bit so as not to die At our first meeting; and then, a little troubled, He will call, he will call: "Dear baby-wife of mine, dear little orange-blossom! The names he used to call me when he came here. (to Suzuki) This will all come to pass, just as I tell you. Banish your idle fears—for he'll return, I know it. (dismisses Suzuki, who goes out of door on left. Butterfly looks after her, sadly) (Goro and Sharpless appear in the garden; Goro looks into the room, see Butterfly and says to Sharpless:)
GORO: C'è.—Entrate. (introduce Sharpless; poi torna subito fuori, e spia di quando in quando dal giardino)	GORO: Come!—She's in here. (brings Sharpless in; then goes outside again at once, and peeps in from the garden every now and then)
SHARPLESS: (affacciandosi, bussa discretamente contro la porta di destra) Chiedo scusa . . . (vede Butterfly che udendo entrare alcuno si è mossa) Madama Butterfly . . .	SHARPLESS: (knocks cautiously at the door on the right) I am seeking— (catches sight of Butterfly, who has risen on hearing him enter) Madam Butterfly—
BUTTERFLY: (senza volgersi, ma correggendo) Madama Pinkerton Prego. (si volge, riconosce il Console e giubilante batte le mani) Oh il mio signor Console! (Suzuki entra premurosa e prepara un tavolino coll'occorrente per fumare, alcuni cuscini ed uno sgabello)	BUTTERFLY: (corrects him, without turning round) No, Madam Pinkerton, Excuse me. (she turns round, recognizes the Consul, and claps her hands for joy) Why here is the Consul; yes, the Consul! (Suzuki enters eagerly and prepares a small table with smoking materials, some cushions and a stool)
SHARPLESS: (sorpreso) Mi ravvisate?	SHARPLESS: (surprised) What, you remember—?
BUTTERFLY: (facendo gli onori di casa) Benvenuto in casa americana.	BUTTERFLY: (doing the honors of the house) You are welcome; be seated, You are most honorably welcome.
SHARPLESS: Grazie.	SHARPLESS: Thank you.

BUTTERFLY: (invita il Console a sedere presso il tavolino: Sharpless si lascia cadere grottescamente su di un cuscino: Butterfly si siede dall'altra parte e sorride con malizia dietro il ventaglio vedendo l'imbarazzo del Console; poi con molta grazia gli chiede:) Avi-antenati tutti bene?

SHARPLESS: (sorride ringraziando) Ma spero.

BUTTERFLY: (fa cenno a Suzuki che prepari la pipa) Fumate?

SHARPLESS: Grazie.
(e desideroso di spiegare lo scopo per cui è venuto, cava una lettera di tasca) Ho qui . . .

BUTTERFLY: (gentilmente interrompendolo) Signore—io vedo il cielo azzurro.
(dopo aver tirato una boccata dalla pipa che Suzuki ha preparata l'offre al Console)

SHARPLESS: (rifiutando) Grazie . . .
(e tenta riprendere il suo discorso) Ho . . .

BUTTERFLY: (depone la pipa sul tavolino e assai premurosa dice:) Preferite
forse le sigarette?
(no offre)
Americane.

SHARPLESS: (ne prende una) Ma grazie.
(si alza e tenta continuare il discorso)
Ho da mostrarvi . . .

BUTTERFLY: (porge un fiammifero acceso) A voi.

SHARPLESS: (accende la sigarette, ma poi la depone subito e presentando la lettera si siede sullo sgabello) Mi scrisse
Mr. B. F. Pinkerton . . .

BUTTERFLY: (premurosissima) Davvero!
È in salute?

SHARPLESS: Perfetta.

BUTTERFLY: (alzandosi, lietissima) Io son la donna più lieta del Giappone.—Potrei favri una domanda?
(Suzuki è in faccende per preparare il the)

SHARPLESS: Certo.

BUTTERFLY: (torna a sedere) Quando fanno il lor nido in America
i pettirossi?

SHARPLESS: (stupito) Come dite?

BUTTERFLY: Sì, prima o dopo di qui?

BUTTERFLY: (invites the Consul to be seated near the table; Sharpless drops awkwardly on to a cushion. Butterfly sits down on the other side and slyly smiles behind her fan at his discomfort, then with much grace!) And your honorable ancestors,
Is their health good?

SHARPLESS: (thanks her, smiling) I hope so.

BUTTERFLY: (signs to Suzuki, who prepares the pipe) You smoke?

SHARPLESS: Thank you.
(he is anxious to explain the object of his visit, and draws a letter from his pocket)
I've here—

BUTTERFLY: (prettily interrupting him) Honorable sir, the sky
Is quite unclouded.
(after having taken a draw at the pipe, she offers it to the Consul)

SHARPLESS: (refusing) Thank you.
(trying again to resume the thread of his talk) I've—

BUTTERFLY: (lays down the pipe on the table and says very pressingly:) You prefer most likely To smoke American cigarettes?
(offers him some)

SHARPLESS: (taking one) Well, thank you.
(rises and tries to resume)
I have to show you—

BUTTERFLY: (hands him a lighted taper) A light?

SHARPLESS: (lights his cigarette, but then puts it down at once, and showing her the letter, sits down on the stool) I've a letter from Mr. Pinkerton.

BUTTERFLY: (with intense earnestness) What? Really?
Is he in good health?

SHARPLESS: He's quite well.

BUTTERFLY: (jumping up very joyfully) Then I'm the happiest Woman in Japan. Would you
Answer me a question?
(Suzuki is busy preparing tea)

SHARPLESS: Gladly.

BUTTERFLY: (sits down again)
At what time of the year
Do robins nest in America?

SHARPLESS: (amazed) Are you serious?

BUTTERFLY: Yes.
Sooner or later than here?

SHARPLESS:
Ma . . . perchè? . . .
(Goro sale dal terrazo del giardino ed escolta, non visto, quanto dice Butterfly)

BUTTERFLY: Mio marito m' ha promesso di ritornar nella stagion beata che il pettirosso rifà la nidiata.
Qui l' ha rifatta ben tre volte, ma può darsi che di là usi nidiar men spesso.
(Goro scoppia in ridere)

BUTTERFLY: Chi ride?
(vede Goro)
Oh, c' è il nakodo.
(piano a Sharpless)
Un uom cattivo.

GORO: (ossequiso, inchinandosi) Godo . . .

BUTTERFLY: (a Goro) Zitto.
(a Sharpless)
Egli osò . . . No, prima rispondete alla domanda mia.

SHARPLESS: (imbarazzato) Mi rincresce ma . . . ignoro . . .
Non ho studiato l'ornitologia.

BUTTERFLY: (tentá di capire) Ah! l'orni . . .

SHARPLESS: . . . tologia.

BUTTERFLY: Non lo sapete insomma.

SHARPLESS: No.
(ritenta di tornare in argomento)
Dicevamo . . .

BUTTERFLY: (lo interrompte seguendo la sua idea) Ah, sì—Goro, äppena B. F. Pinkerton fu in mare mi venne ad assediare con ciarre e con presenti per ridarmi ora questo, or quel marito.
Or promette tesori per uno scimunito . . .

GORO: (per giustificarsi, spiega la cosa a Sharpless) Il ricco Yamadori.
Ella è povera in canna—I suoi parenti l'han tutti rinnegata.
(il Principe Yamadori attraversa il giardino seguito da due servi che portano fiori)

BUTTERFLY: (vede Yamadori e lo indica a Sharpless sorridendo) Eccolo. Attenti.
(Yamadori entra con grande imponenza, fa un graziosissimo inchino a Butterfly poi saluta il Console. I due servi consegnano i fiore a Suzuki e si ritirano nel fondu. Goro, servilissimo, porta uno sgabello a Yamadori, fra Sharpless e Butterfly, ed è dappertutto durante la conversazione. Sharpless e Yamadori siedono) (a Ya-

SHARPLESS: Tell me—why?
(Goro comes up from the garden on to the terrace, and listens unseen by Butterfly)

BUTTERFLY: My husband gave his promise
He would return in the joyous season,
When robin redbreasts rebuild their nests.
Here they have built them thrice already,
But I thought that over there
They might nest less often.
(Goro bursts out laughing)

BUTTERFLY: Who's laughing)
(see Goro)
Oh, the Nakodo.
(softly to Sharpless)
A wicked fellow.

GORO: (bowing obsequiously) I was—

BUTTERFLY: Silence.
(to Sharpless)
Why, he dared—No, first I'd like
An answer. Answer me what I asked you.

SHARPLESS: (embarrassed) I am sorry, but—I don't—
I never studied ornithology.

BUTTERFLY: (trying to understand) Ah! orni—

SHARPLESS: —thology.

BUTTERFLY: Ah, then
You cannot tell me?

SHARPLESS: No.
(tries to return to his point)
We were saying—

BUTTERFLY: (interrupts him, pursuing her thoughts) Ah, yes, Scarcely was B. F. Pinkerton away,
Then Goro came here
And begged me,
With arguments and presents, to remarry.
He had half-a-dozen suitors.
Now he offers me riches
If I will wed an idiot—

GORO: (to justify himself, tries to explain to Sharpless) The wealthy Yamadori.
She's as poor as she can be—and her relations
Have cast her off completely.
(Beyond the terrace the Prince Yamadori is seen, followed by two servants carrying flowers)

BUTTERFLY: (sees Yamadori, and points him out to Sharpless with a smile) Here he is. Now listen.
(Yamadori enters with much pomp, bows gracefully to Butterfly then salutes the Consul. The two servants deliver their flowers to Suzuki, and retire to the back. Goro, full of servility, brings a stool for Yamadori, between Sharpless and Butterfly, and is very much in evidence through- madori)

Yamadori—ancor . . . le pene dell'amor, non v'han deluso?
Vi tagliate ancor le vene
se il mio bacio vi ricuso?

YAMADORI: (a Sharpless) Tra le cose più moleste è l' inutil sospirar.

BUTTERFLY: (con graziosa malizia) Tante mogli omai toglieste, vi doveste abituar.

YAMADORI: Le ho sposate tutte quante
e il divorzio mi francò.

BUTTERFLY: Obbiigata.

YAMADORI: (premuroso) A voi però giurerei fede costante

SHARPLESS: (sospirando, rimette in tasca la lettera) (Temo assai che il mio messaggio a trasmetter non riesco.)

GORO: (con enfasi indicando Yamadori a Sharpless) Ville, servi, oro, ad Omura un palazzo principesco.

BUTTERFLY: (con serietà) Già legata è la mia fede.

GORO E YAMADORI: (a Sharpless) Maritata ancor si crede.

BUTTERFLY: (con forza) Non mi credo—sono—sono.

GORO: Ma la legge . . .

BUTTERFLY: (interrompendolo) Io non la so.

GORO: (continua) . . . per la moglie, l'abbandono al divorzio equiparò.

BUTTERFLY: (crollando vivamente il capo) La legge giapponese . . .
non gia delmio paese.

GORO: Quale?

BUTTERFLY: (con forza) Gli Stati Uniti.

SHARPLESS: (Oh, l' infelice!)

BUTTERFLY: (nervosissima, accalorandosi) Si sa che aprir la porta e la moglie cacciar per la più corta qui divorziar si dice.
Ma in America questo non si può.
(a Sharpless)
Vero?

SHARPLESS: (inbarazzato) Vero, . . . Però . . .

BUTTERFLY: (lo interrompe rivolgendosi a Yamadori ed a Goro, trionfante) Là un bravo giudice serio, impettito dice al marito:

out the interview. Sharpless and Yamadori sit down) (to Yamadori)
Yamadori—and have the throes
Of unrequited love not yet released you?
Do you still intend to die
If I withhold my kisses?

YAMADORI: (to Sharpless) There is naught on earth more cruel
Than the pangs of hopeless love.

BUTTERFLY: (with graceful raillery) You have had so many consorts
Surely you must be inured!

YAMADORI: Every one of them I married,
And divorce has set me free.

BUTTERFLY: Thank you kindly!

YAMADORI: (eagerly) But to you, I would swear eternal faith.

SHARPLESS: (sighing, replaces the letter in his pocket) (I am very much afraid
My message will not be delivered.)

GORO: (pointing out Yamadori to Sharpless, with emphasis) Houses, servants, treasures, and
A regal palace at Omara!

BUTTERFLY: (seriously) But my hand's bestowed already—

GORO AND YAMADORI: (to Sharpless) She believes she still is married—

BUTTERFLY: (emphatically) I don't believe, for I know it.

GORO: But the law says—

BUTTERFLY: (interrupting him)
I know it not.

GORO: (continues) For the wife, desertion
Gives the right of divorce.

BUTTERFLY: (shaking her head)
That may be Japanese law,
But not in my country.

GORO: Which one?

BUTTERFLY: (with emphasis)
The United States.

SHARPLESS: (Poor little creature!)

BUTTERFLY: (strenuously, and growing excited) I know, of course, to open the door
And to turn out your wife at any moment,
Here, constitutes divorce.
But in America, that cannot be done.
(to Sharpless)
Correct?

SHARPLESS: (embarrassed) Yes, yes—but yet—

BUTTERFLY: (interrupts him, turning to Yamadori and Goro in triumph) There, a true, honest
And unbiased judge
Says to the husband:

"Lei vuole andarsene?
"Sentiam perchè?—
"Sono seccato
"del coniugato!
E il magistrato:
"Ah, mascalzone,
"presto in prigione!
(e per troncare si alza ed ordina:)
Suzuki, il thè.
(va anche lei presso Suzuki)

YAMADORI: (sottovoce a Sharpless, mentre Butterfly prepara il thè) L'udite?

SHARPLESS: Mi rattrista una si piena cecità.

GORO: (sottovoce a Sharpless e Yamadori) Segnalata è già la nave di Pinkerton.

YAMADORI: (dispeato)
Quand'essa lo riveda . . .

SHARPLESS: (pure sottovoce ai due) Egli non vuol mostrarsi.—Io venní appunto per levarla d'inganno.—Ho qui una lettera di lui che la riflette . . .
(vedendo Butterfly che si avvicina per offrire il thè, tronca il discorso)

BUTTERFLY: (con grazia, servendo a Sharpless una tazza di thè)
Vostra Grazia permette . . .
(poi apre ventaglio e dietro a questo accenna ai due, ridendo)
Che persone moleste!
(offre il thè a Yamadori, che rifiuta)

YAMADORI: (sospirando si alza e si inchina a Butterfly, mettendo la mano sul cuore) Addio. Vi lascio il cuor pien di cordoglio:
ma spero ancor.

BUTTERFLY: Padrone.

YAMADORI: (s'avvia, poi torna presso Butterfly) Ah! se voleste . . .

BUTTERFLY: Il guaio è che non voglio . . .
(Yamadori sospira di nuovo; saluta Sharpless, poi se ne va, seguito dal servi. Butterfly fa cenno a Suzuki di spreparare il thè: Suzuki eseguisce, poi va in fondo alla camera. Goro segue premurosamente Yamadori)

SHARPLESS: (continua) "E forse Butterfly non mi rammenta più."

BUTTERFLY: (sorpresa) Non lo rammento?
(rivolgendosi a Suzuki)
Auzuki, dillo tu.
(ripete come scandolezzata le parole della lettera)
"Non mi rammenta più!"
(Suzuki accenna affermando, poi entra nella stanza a sinistra)

"You wish to free yourself?
"Let us hear why?—
"I am sick and tired
"Of conjugal fetters!"
Then the good judge says:
"Ah, wicked scoundrel,
"Clap him in prison!"
(to put an end to the subject, she orders Suzuki) Suzuki, tea.

YAMADORI: (softly, to Sharpless, whilst Butterfly makes tea) You hear her?

SHARPLESS: I am grieved at such hopeless blindness.

GORO: (whispers to Yamadori and Sharpless) Mr. Pinkerton's ship is already Signalled.

YAMADORI: (in despair) And when they meet again—

SHARPLESS: (whispers to both)
He does not want to see her.—It is for that I came
To try and prepare her.—I have here a letter
From him, which—
(seeing that Butterfly is approaching him with tea, he cuts short his sentence)

BUTTERFLY: (charmingly, offering Sharpless a cup of tea) Will your Honor allow me—(opens her fan, and behind it points to the two others, laughing)
What troublesome people!
(offers tea to Yamadori, who refuses)

YAMADORI: (rises with a sigh and bows to Butterfly with hand on heart) Farewell, then. I go, my heart heavy with sorrow,
But still I hope—

BUTTERFLY: So be it.

YAMADORI: (is leaving, but returns to Butterfly) Ah, if you would but—

BUTTERFLY: The pity is: I will not!—
(Yamadori, after having bowed to Sharpless, goes off sighing, followed by his servants. Butterfly signs to Suzuki to remove the tea. Suzuki obeys, then retires to the back of the room. Goro promptly follows Yamadori)

SHARPLESS: (continues) "And perhaps Butterfly
"Remembers me no more."

BUTTERFLY: (surprised) I not remember?
(turning to Suzuki)
Suzuki, tell him quickly.
(repeats as though scandalized at the words of the letter:)
"Remembers me no more!"
(Suzuki nods her head affirmatively, then goes into room on left)

SHARPLESS: (fra sè) (Pazienza!)
(sguitaa a leggere)
"Se mi vuole
bene ancora, se mi aspetta . . . "

BUTTERFLY: (assai commossa)
Oh le dolci parole!
(prende la lettera e la bacia)
Tu, benedetta!

SHARPLESS: (riprende la lettera e seguita a leggere imperterrito, ma con voce commossa)
"A voi mi raccomando perchè vogliate con circospezione prepararla . . . "

BUTTERFLY: (ansiosa e raggiante) Ritorna

SHARPLESS: ("al colpa . . . ")

BUTTERFLY: (salta di gioia e batte le mani) Quando?
Presto! presto!

BUTTERFLY: Ve ne prego, già l'insistere non vale,
(congeda Suzuki, la quale va nel giardino)

SHARPLESS: (scusandosi) Fui brutale, non lo nego.

BUTTERFLY: (dolorosamente, portandosi la mano al cuore) Oh, mi fate tanto male,
tanto male, tanto, tanto!

SHARPLESS: (commosso) Poveretta! . . .
(Butterfly vacilla; Sharpless fa per sorreggerla)

BUTTERFLY: (subito dominandosi) Niente, niente!
Ho creduto morir.—Ma passa presto come passan le nuvole sul mare . . .
Ah! . . . mi ha scordata?
(corre nella stanza di sinistra, rientra trionfalmente tenendo il suo bambino seduto sulla spalla e lo mostra a Sharpless gloriandosene)
E questo? . . . e questo? . . . e questo dite che lo potrà pure scordare? . . .
(depone il bambino a terra e lo tiene stretto a sè)

SHARPLESS: (con emozione) Egli è suo?

BUTTERFLY: (indicando mano, mano) Chi mai vide a bimbo del Giappone occhi azzurrini?
E il labbro? E i ricciolini d'oro schietto?

SHARPLESS: (sempre più commosso) È palese.
E . . . Pinterton lo sa?

BUTTERFLY: No. È nato quando già
egli stava in quel suo grande paese.
(accarezza il suo bambino)
Ma voi gli scriverete che lo aspetta un figlio senza pari!

SHARPLESS: (to himself) Oh, patience!
(continues reading)
"If she still
"Cares for me and expects me—"

BUTTERFLY: (deeply moved) Oh, what glorious tidings!
(takes the letter and kisses it)
You blessèd letter!

SHARPLESS: (takes the letter back and boldly resumes reading, though his voice is trembling with emotion) "On you I am relying
"To act discreetly, and with tact
"And caution to prepare her—"

BUTTERFLY: (anxiously, but radiant) He's coming—

SHARPLESS: "For the shock—"

BUTTERFLY: (jumping for joy and clapping her hands) Tell me quickly, quickly!

BUTTERFLY: I beseech you,
Let my words be quite forgotten.
(dismisses Suzuki, who goes into the garden)

SHARPLESS: (making excuses) I was brutal, I admit it.

BUTTERFLY: (sadly, laying her hand on her heart) Oh, you've wounded me so deeply
Wounded me so very deeply!

SHARPLESS: (with emotion) Poor little creature!
(Butterfly totters; Sharpless is about to support her, but she quickly rallies)

BUTTERFLY: It is nothing, nothing!
I felt ready to die!—but see, it passes, Swift as shadows that flit across the ocean.
Ah! am I forgotten?
(runs into the room on the left, and comes back in triumph, carrying her baby on her shoulder, and shows him to Sharpless, full of pride)
Look here then! look here!
Can such as this well be forgotten?
(puts the child down on the ground and holds him close to her)

SHARPLESS: (deeply touched) Is it his?

BUTTERFLY: (pointing to his features one by one) What Japanese
Baby was ever born with azure eyes?
Such lips too? and such a head
Of golden curls?

SHARPLESS: (more and more moved) It is his image.
Has Pinkerton been told?

BUTTERFLY: No, I bore him when
he
Was far off in his big native country.
(caressing the child)
But you will write and tell him
There awaits him a son, who has no e mi saprete dir s' ei non s' affretta per le terre e pei mari!

(fa sedere il bimbo sul cuscino e lo bacia teneramente)
Sai tu cos' ebbe cuore (gli indica Sharpless) di pensar quel signore?
Che tua madre dovrà prenderti in braccio ed alla pioggia e al vento
andar per la città
a guadagnarti il pane e il vestimento.
Ed alle impietosite genti, ballando de' suoi canti al suon,
gridare:—Udite, udite,
udite la bellissima canzon delle ottocentomila divinità vestite di splendor.
E passerà una fila di guerrïeri coll' Imperator, cui dirò:—Sommo duce
ferma i tuoi servi e sosta a riguardar (mostrando il bimbo e carezzandolo) quest'occhi, ove la luce dal cielo azzurro onde scendesti appar.
(si accoscia presso il bambino o continua con voce carezzante e lacrimosa)
E allor fermato il piè l'Imperator d'ogni grazia degno, (mette la sua guancia presso la guancia del bimbo) forse farà di te il principe più bello del suo regno.

SHARPLESS: (non può trattenere lagrime) (Quanta pietà!)
(poi, vincendo la propria emozione, dice:)
Vien sera. Io scendo al piano.
(Butterfly si alza in piedi e con atto gentile dà la mano a Sharpless che la stringe con ambe le mani con effusione)

SHARPLESS: Mi perdonate?

BUTTERFLY: (al bimbo) A te, dagli la mano.

SHARPLESS: (prende il bambino in braccio) I bei capelli biondi!
(lo bacia)
Caro: come ti chiamano?

equal!
And would you tell me then, that he won't hasten
Over land and over sea!
(seats the child on the cushion, and kisses him fondly)
Do you know, my sweet, what that bad man (points to Sharpless)
Had heart to fancy?
That your mother should take you on her shoulder
And forth should wander in rain and tempest
Through the town, seeking to earn enough
For food and clothing.
And then, before the pitying people to dance in measure to her song, and cry out:
"Oh, listen, good people,
"Listen for the love of all
"The eight hundred thousand gods and goddesses of Japan!"
And there will pass a band of valiant warriors
With their Emperor, to whom I'll say:
"Noble Ruler, tarry thy footsteps
"And deign to stop and look (showing the child and caressing him)
"At these blue eyes, as blue as the azure heaven
Whence you, Most High, are
come!"
(she crouches down beside the child, and continues in caressing and tearful tones)
And then, the noble King
Will stay his progress, full of gracious kindness, (pressing her cheek next to the baby's cheek)
Who knows? he'll make you
The most exalted ruler of his kingdom.
(she strains the child to her heart, and crouching down on the ground, hugs him passionately)

SHARPLESS: (cannot restrain his tears) (Poor faithful soul!)
(then, conquering his emotion, he says:) It is evening. I must be going.
(Butterfly rises to her feet and with a charming gesture gives Sharpless her hand; he shakes it cordially with both of his) You will excuse me?

BUTTERFLY: (to the child) Now you—give him your hand, love.

SHARPLESS: (takes the child in his arms) What pretty golden ringlets!
(kisses him)
Darling, what do they call you?

BUTTERFLY: Rispondi: Oggi il mio nome è: Dolore. Però dite al babbo, scrivendogli, che il giorno del suo ritorno Gioia, mi chiamerò.	BUTTERFLY: Give answer: Sir, to-day my name is Pain. But yet Write and tell my father, on the day Of his returning Joy shall be my name.
SHARPLESS: Tuo padre lo saprà, te lo prometto. (mette il bambino in terra, fa un saluto a Butterfly, ed esce rapidamento)	SHARPLESS: Your father shall be told, that I will promise. (puts down the child, bows to Butterfly, and goes out quickly by door on the right)
BUTTERFLY: (battendo le mani) Suzuki.	BUTTERFLY: (clapping her hands) Suzuki.
SUZUKI: (di fuori grida) Vespa! Rospo maledetto! (poi entra trascinando con violenza Goro che tenta inutilmente di sfuggirle)	SUZUKI: (shouting outside) Scoundrel! Rascal! Wretched coward! (she then comes in, roughly dragging in Goro, who tries in vain to escape)
BUTTERFLY: Che fu?	BUTTERFLY: Who's that?
SUZUKI: Ci ronza intorno il vampiro! e ogni giorno ai quattro venti spargendo va che niuno sa chi padre al bimbo sia! (Suzuki lascia Goro, il quale tenta di giustificarsi)	SUZUKI: He prowls around here, Evil reptile! from morn to evening, And tells this scandal All through the town: That no one knows Who is this baby's father! (she releases Goro, who tries to justify himself)
GORO: Dicevo solo che qui i vostri parenti non han pietà; che quel figliuolo padre non ha. Che stolto è lo sperare . . . (Butterfly, furente, corre al reliquiario e prende il coltello che servì per l' hari-kari—suicidio per condanna—di suo padre, gridando:)	GORO: I only told her That out in America Whenever a baby Is born in such conditions, He will be shunned throughout his life And treated as an outcast— (Butterfly, enraged, runs to the shrine, and takes down the sword which was used for the hara kiri—condemned suicide—of her father, crying:)
BUTTERFLY: Ah! menti! menti! (afferra Goro, che cade a terra, e minaccia d' ucciderlo: Goro grida disperatamente) Dillo ancora e t'uccido! . . .	BUTTERFLY: Ah, you're lying, lying! (seizes Goro, who falls down, and threatens to kill him: Goro utters desperate howls) Say it again and I'll kill you!
SUZUKI: (Intromettendosi) No! (spaventata a tale scena prende il bimbo e lo porta nella stanza a sinistra)	SUZUKI: (thrusts herself between them) No! (horrified at such a scene, she takes the baby and carries him into the room on the left)
BUTTERFLY: (presa da disgusto, respinge Goro col piede) Va via! (Goro fugge: poi Butterfly si scuote, va a riporre il coltello e volgendo il pensiero al sua bambino, esclama:) O mio piccolo amore, mia pena e mio conforto, il tuo vendicatore ci porterà lontan nella sua terra dove . . . (un colpo di cannone)	BUTTERFLY: (seized with disgust, pushes him away with her foot) Begone! (Goro makes his escape; Butterfly rouses herself and goes to put away the dagger, and her thoughts turning to her child, she exclaims:) Oh, you'll see, love of my heart, My grief and yet my comfort, That your avenger soon will be here And take you and me to his own country, Where— (a cannon-shot)
SUZUKI: (entrando affannosamente) Il cannon del porto! (corre verso il terrazzo: Butterfly la segue) Una nave de guerra.	SUZUKI: (enters breathlessly) The harbor cannon! (runs toward the terrace—Butterfly follows her) Look, it's a man-of-war.
BUTTERFLY: (giubilante, ansante) Bianca . . . bianca . . . il vessillo americano delle stelle . . . Or governa per ancorare. (prende sul tavolino un cannocchiale e corre sul terrazzo: tutta tremante per l' emozione, appunta il cannocchiale verso il porto e dice a Suzuki:) Reggimi la mano ch'io ne discerna il nome, il nome, il nome. Eccolo: Abramo Lincoln (dà il cannocchiale a Suzuki, poi in preda a grande esaltazione scendendo dal terrazzo esclama:) Tutti han mentito! tutti! . . . tutti! . . . sol io lo sapevo—io—che l'amo. (a Suzuki) Vedi lo scimunito tuo dubbio? È giunto! è giunto! proprio nel punto che mi diceva ognun: pinagi e dispera, Trionfa il mio amor, trionfa la mia fede intera. Ei torna e m'ama,— (e in preda ad una esaltazione giubilante va al terrazzo, dicendo a Suzuki:) Scuoti quella fronda e dei suoi fior m'innonda.— Nella pioggia odorosa io vo' tuffare l'arsa fronte. (singhiozzando per tenerezza)	BUTTERFLY: (breathless with excitement) White—white—the American Stars and stripes—it's putting Into port to anchor. (takes a telescope from the table and runs on to the terrace; all trembling with excitement, she directs the telescope towards the harbor, and says to Suzuki:) Keep my hand steady That I may read the name, The name, the name. Here it is: Abraham Lincoln! (gives the telescope to Suzuki, and goes down from the terrace in the greatest state of excitement) They all were liars! Liars! liars! But I Knew it always—I—who love him. (to Suzuki) Now do you see the folly of your doubting? He's coming! He's coming! Just at the moment you all were saying: Weep and forget him. My love wins the day. My love and faith have won completely— He's here—he loves me! (a prey to the greatest excitement and joy, she goes on to the terrace, saying:) Shake that cherry-tree till every flower, White as snow, flutters down— His noble brow, in a sweet scented shower I would smother. (sobbing for tenderness)
SUZUKI: (calmandola) quetatevi; quel pianto . . .	SUZUKI: (soothing her) Sweet Madam, Be calm, I pray: this weeping—
BUTTERFLY: No: rido, rido! Quanto lo dovremo aspettare? Che pensi? Un' ora?	BUTTERFLY: No, laughing, laughing! When May we expect him up here? What do you think? In an hour?
SUZUKI: Di più.	SUZUKI: Too soon.
BUTTERFLY: (giudiziosa) Certo di più Due ore forse. Tu va pei fiori. Che qui tutto sia pieno di fior, come la notte è di faville. (accenna a Suzuki di andare nel giardino)	BUTTERFLY: (thoughtfully) Yes, it's too soon. Two hours more likely. You Go for flowers. Flowers be everywhere As close together as stars are in the heavens. (signs to Suzuki to go into the garden)
SUZUKI: (dal terrazzo) Tutti i fior? . . .	SUZUKI: (from the terrace) All the flowers?
BUTTERFLY: Tutti. Pesco, vïola, gelsomino, quanto di cespo, o d' erba, o d' albero fiorì.	BUTTERFLY: All—Peaches, violets, jessamine, Every spray of gorse or grass or flowering tree.
SUZUKI: Uno squallor d' inverno sarà tutto il giardino. (scende nel giardino)	SUZUKI: Desolate as in winter the garden will appear. (goes into the garden)
BUTTERFLY: Tutta la primavera voglio che olezzi qui.	BUTTERFLY: Ah! but the balmy breath of spring shall shed her sweetness here.

SUZUKI: (appare sul terrazzo e sporge un fascio di fiori e di fronde) A voi signora.

BUTTERFLY: (prendendo il fascio) Cogline ancora.
(Butterfly spàrge i fiori nella stanza, mentre Suzuki ritorna nel giardino)

SUZUKI: (dal giardino) Soventi a questa siepe veniste a riguardare lungi, piangendo nella deserta immensità.

BUTTERFLY: Giunse l'atteso, nulla ormai più chiedo al mare; diedi pianto alla zolla, essa i suoi fior mi dà

SUZUKI: (appare nuovamente sul terrazzo con un altro gran fascio de fiori) Spoglio è l'orto.

BUTTERFLY: (prendendo i fiori) Qua il tuo carco.
Vien, m' aiuta.
(spargono fiori ovunque)

SUZUKI: Rose al varco della soglia.

BUTTERFLY: Il suo sedil di convolvi s' inghirlandi.

SUZUKI: Gigli? . . . viole? . . .

BUTTERFLY: intorno spandi.

BUTTERFLY E SUZUKI: Seminiamo intorno april.
(con leggero ondulamento di danza spargono ovunque fiori) Gettiamo a mani piene mammole e tuberose, corolle di verbene
petali d' ogni fior!
(Butterfly, aiutata da Suzuki va a prendere il necessario per la toeletta)

BUTTERFLY: (a Suzuki) Vienmi ad adornar . . .
No. Pria, portami il bimbo.
(Suzuki va nella stanza a sinistra e porta il bambino che fa sedere vicino a Butterfly, fa quale, intanto, si guarda in un piccolo specchio e dice tristamente:)
A'himè, non son più quella!
Troppi sospiri la bocca mandò,
e l'occhio riguardò
nel lontan troppo fisso.
(si getta a terra, appoggiando la testa sui piedi di Suzuki)
Suzuki, fammi bella, fammi bella!

SUZUKI: (accarezzando la testa di Butterfly, per calmarla) Gioia e riposo accrescono beltà.

GORO: (appears on the terrace and holds out a large bunch of flowers and foliage to Butterfly) Here's more, dear mistress.

BUTTERFLY: (taking the bunch) It's not enough yet.
(Butterfly distributes the flowers about the room, while Suzuki goes back to the garden)

SUZUKI: (from the garden) How often at this window you've stood and wept, and waited.
Gazing and gazing into the wide, wide world beyond.

BUTTERFLY: No more need I pray for, since the kind sea has brought him.
I gave my tears to the earth, and it returns me flowers!

SUZUKI: (reappears on the terrace with another load of flowers) Not a flower left.

BUTTERFLY: (taking the flowers) Give me your burden.
Come and help me.
(they scatter flowers everywhere)

SUZUKI: Roses shall adorn
The threshold.

BUTTERFLY: Now round his seat
Entwine convolvulus.

SUZUKI: Lillies?—Violets?

BUTTERFLY: Come, scatter flowers.

BUTTERFLY AND SUZUKI: Let us sow fair April here.
(lightly swaying their bodies to a dance measure, they scatter flowers everywhere)
In handfuls let us scatter
Violets and roses white,
Sprays of scented sweet verbena,
And the petals of all flowers!
(Butterfly, assisted by Suzuki, fetches out her toilet requirements)

BUTTERFLY: (to Suzuki) Now, come and make me fine—
No, first bring me the baby.
(Suzuki goes into the room on the left and brings the child, whom she seats near Butterfly who meanwhile looks at herself in a small hand-mirror, and says sadly:)
Alas, how changed he'll find me!
Drawn, weary mouth from too much sighing,
And poor tired eyes from too much crying.
(throws herself on the ground, laying her head on Suzuki's feet)
Suzuki, make me pretty, make me pretty!

SUZUKI: (stroking Butterfly's head, to sooth her) Rest calm and happy, and you'll be fair once more.

BUTTERFLY: Chissà! Chissà!
(si alza, torna alla toeletta e dice a Suzuki:) Dammi sul viso
un tocco di carmino . . .
(prende un pennello e mette del rosso sulle guancie del suo bimbo) ed anche a te piccino perchè la veglia non ti faccia vôte per pallore le gote.

SUZUKI: (a Butterfly) Ferma che v'ho i capelli a ravviare.

BUTTERFLY: (seguendo una sua idea) Che ne diranno ora i parenti!
E che dirà lo zio
Bonzo? Qual cicallo faranno in coro
le comari con Goro, già del mio danno
tutti contenti!
E Yamadori
coi suoi languori!
Beffati,
scornati, spennati
gl' ingrati!

SUZUKI: (ha terminato la toeletta) È fatto.

BUTTERFLY: L' obi che vestii da sposa.
(Suzuki va ad un cassettone e vi cerca la veste, mentre Butterfly attira a sè il bambino)

BUTTERFLY: (depone il bimbo) Qua ch'io lo vesta.
(mentre indossa la veste, Suzuki mette l' altra al bambino, avvolgendolo quasi tutto nella pieghe ampia e leggiere)
Vo' che mi veda indosso il vel del primo dì.
E un papavero rosso
nei capelli . . .
(Suzuki, che ha finito d'abbligliare il bambino, cerca il fiore e lo punta nei capelli di Butterfly che se ne compiace, guardandosi nello specchio)
Così
(poi fa cenno a Suzuki di abbassare lo shosi) Nello shosi or farem tre forellini per riguardar,
e starem zitti come topolini ad aspettar.
(Porta il bambino presso lo shosi, nel quale fa tre fori: uno alto per sè, uno più basso per Suzuki e il terzo ancor più basso pel bimbo, che fa sedere su di un cuscino, accennandogli di guardare attento fuori del foro preparatogli. Suzuki si accoscia e spia essa pure all'esterno. Butterfly si pone innanzi al foro più alto e spia da quello. Dopo qualche tempo Suzuki ed il bambino si addormentano. Intanto si è fatta notte ed i raggi lunari illuminano

BUTTERFLY: Who knows? who knows?
(rises, resumes her toilet and says to Suzuki:)
Put on each cheek
A little touch of carmine—(takes a paintbrush and puts a dab of rouge on the baby's cheeks)
And also for my darling
So that the watching may not make his face
Heavy and pallid.

SUZUKI: Nay, but keep still, till I've finished arranging your hair.

BUTTERFLY: (pursuing her thoughts) What a surprise
For all my relations!
And for the Bonze
My uncle! How they Will prate and shout in chorus!
Oh what a hubbub I can hear
The gossips make with Goro!
All of them sure and glad
Of my downfall!
And Yamadori
With his airs and graces!
My scorn and derision,
My jeers and contempt
For the wretches!

SUZUKI: (has finished Butterfly's toilet) I've finished.

BUTTERFLY: Bring me my wedding-garment.
(Suzuki goes to a small coffer and brings out the obi and the white garment, returns with two garments, and gives one with the obi to Butterfly)

BUTTERFLY: (puts down the child) Bring it hither quickly.
(while she puts on her garment, Suzuki dresses the child in the other one, wrapping him up almost entirely in the ample and light draperies)
I would have him see me in it
As on my wedding-day.
In my hair we will put
A scarlet poppy—
(Suzuki, who has finished dressing the baby, fetches the flower and places it in Butterfly's hair. The latter looks at herself in the glass, and is pleased with the effect)
Like this.
(she then signs to Suzuki to lower the shosi)
In the shosi we'll make three little holes that we can look out,
And still as little mice we'll stay here
To watch and wait.
(She carries the child close to the shosi, in which she makes three holes; one high up for herself, one lower down for Suzuki, and a third one lower still for the baby, whom she seats on a cushion, showing him how to look out of his hole. Suzuki crouches down and also gazes out through her hole. Butterfly stands in front of dall'esterno lo shosi. Butterfly rimane immobile, rigida come una statua.)

ATTO III

Passa la notte angosciosa.—Dal porto al basso della collina salgono voci confuse di maranai e rumori diversi.—All'alzarsi del sipario è già l'alba: Butterfly spia sempre al di fuori.

SUZUKI: (svegliandosi di soprassalto) È l' alba.
(si alza e batte docemente sulla spalla a Butterfly) Cio-Cio-San!

BUTTERFLY: (si scuote e fidente dice:) Verrà col pieno sole.
(vede il bimbo addormentato e lo prende sulle braccia).

SUZUKI: Salite a riposar, sì affranta e sì pallida sieta! Al suo venire testo vi chiamerò.

BUTTERFLY: (cantando dolcemente s' avvia per la scaletta) Dormi amor mio dormi sul mio cor.
Tu sei con Dio
ed io col mio dolor.
A te i rai degli astri d' or:
dormi tesor!
(entra nella camera superiore)

SUZUKI: (la guarda salire e dice con gran pietà:) Povera Butterfly!
(Suzuki si inginocchia innanzi al simulacro di Budda, poi va ad aprire lo shosi)
Pinkerton e Sharpless picchìano lievemente all' uscio d' ingresso.

SUZUKI: Chi sia!
(va ad aprire e rimane grandemente sorpresa)
Oh! . . .

SHARPLESS: (facendole cenno di non far rumore) Zitta! zitta!
(Pinkerton e Sharpless entrano cautamente in punta di piedi)

PINKERTON: (premurosamente a Suzuki:) Dorme? Non la destare.

SUZUKI: Ell'era tanto stanca! Vi sette ad aspettare
tutta la notte col bimbo.

PINKERTON: Come sapea? . . .

the top hole and gazes through it. After some time Suzuki and the child fall asleep. Meanwhile night has fallen, and the rays of the moon shed their lights from without the shosi. Butterfly remains motionless, rigid as a statue.)

ACT III

(The weary night of watching passes. The clanging of chains and anchors and the distant voices of sailors rise from the harbor at the foot of the hill. At the rising of the curtain is already dawn; Butterfly, still motionless, is gazing out into the distance.)

SUZUKI: (awakening with a start) It is daylight.
(rises and taps Butterfly lightly on the shoulder)
Cho-Cho-San!

BUTTERFLY: (starts, and says confidently:) He'll come; he'll come—I know he'll come.
(sees that the child has fallen asleep, and takes him in her arms)

SUZUKI: I pray you, go and rest, for you are weary,
And I will call you when he arrives.

BUTTERFLY: (singing softly as she goes up the staircase) My love, you are sleeping, Cradled on my heart;
Safe in God's keeping,
While I must weep apart;
Around they head the moonbeams dart,
Sleep, my treasure!
(goes into the room above)

SUZUKI: (watches her go, and says with deep pity:) Poor Madam Butterfly!
(Suzuki kneels before the image of Buddha, then goes to open the shosi)
Pinkerton and Sharpless knock gently at the door

SUZUKI: Who is it?
(goes to open the door, and stands greatly surprised)
Oh!

SHARPLESS: (signing her not to make a noise) Hush! Hush!
(Pinkerton and Sharpless enter cautiously on tiptoe)

PINKERTON: (anxiously, to Suzuki) Is she asleep? Do not disturb her.

SUZUKI: She was so very weary!
She stood expecting you
All through the night, with the baby.

PINKERTON: How did she know?

SUZUKI: Non giunge
da tre anni una nave nel porto, che da lunge
Butterfly non ne scruti il color, la bandiera.

SHARPLESS: (a Pinkerton) Ve lo dissi? . . .

SUZUKI: (per andare) La chiamo . . .

PINKERTON: (fermandola) Non ancora

SUZUKI: Ier sera, lo vedete, la stanza volle sparger di fiori.

SHARPLESS: (commosso) Ve lo dissi?

PINKERTON: (turbato) Che pena!

SUZUKI: (sorpresa) Pena!
(sente rumore nel giardino)
Chi c' è là fuori
nel giardino?
(va a guardare fuori dalla shosi e con meraviglia esclama:)
Una donna!! . . .

PINKERTON: (la riconduce sul davanti) Zitta!

SUZUKI: (agitata) Chi è? chi è?

SHARPLESS: Meglio dirle ogni cosa.

PINKERTON: (imbarazzato) È venuta con me.

SHARPLESS: (deliberatamente) Sua moglie.

SUZUKI: (sbalordita, alza le braccia al cielo, poi si precipita in ginocchio colla faccia contro terra)
Anime sante degli avi! . . . alla piccina s'è spento il sol!

SHARPLESS: (calmando Suzuki e sollevandola da terra) Scegliemmo quest'ora mattutina per ritrovarti sola, Suzuki, e alla gran prova un aiuto, un sostegno cercar con te.

SUZUKI: (desolata) Che giova?
(Sharpless prende a parte Suzuki e cerca colla preghiera e colla persuasione di averno il consenso: Pinkerton, sempre più agitato, si aggira per la stanza ed osserva)

SHARPLESS: (a Suzuki) Io so che alle sue pene
non ci sono conforti!
Ma del bimbo conviene
assicurar le sorti!
La pïetosa che entrar non osa materna cura del bimbo avrà.

SUZUKI: E volte ch'io chieda
a una madre . . .

SHARPLESS: (insistendo) Suvvia, parla con quella pia
e conducila qui—s'anche la veda
Butterfly, non importa.

SUZUKI: No ship has crossed the harbor these three years
Whose flags and colours Butterfly has not Eagerly examined.

SHARPLESS: (to Pinkerton) Did I not tell you?

SUZUKI: (going) I'll call her.

PINKERTON: (stopping her) No, not yet.

SUZUKI: Look around you,
Last night she had the room
Decorated with flowers.

SHARPLESS: (deeply touched) Did I not tell you?

PINKERTON: (distressed) Oh, torment!

SUZUKI: (distressed) Torment?
(hears sound from the garden)
Who's that outside there
In the garden?
(goes to look through the shosi and exclaims in surprise:)
A lady!!—

PINKERTON: (leading her forward again) Hush!

SUZUKI: (excitedly) Who's that? Who's that?

SHARPLESS: Better tell her all.

PINKERTON: (in confusion) She came with me.—

SHARPLESS: (deliberately) She's his wife.

SUZUKI: (stupified, raises her arms to Heaven, then falls on her knees with her face to the ground)
Hallowed souls of my fathers!
The world is plunged in gloom!

SHARPLESS: (calming her, and raising her from the ground) We came here so early in the morning
To find you all alone, that you might give us
Your help and guidance in our plight.

SUZUKI: (in despair) How can I?
(Sharpless takes her aside and tries with prayers and entreaties to get her consent, while Pinkerton, getting more and more agitated, wanders about the room, noting every detail)

SHARPLESS: (to Suzuki) I know that for such a trouble
There is no consolation!
But the future of the baby
Must be our first and special thought!
This gentle lady
Who dare not enter
Will give the child a mother's care.

SUZUKI: Woe is me! do you ask me
To go and tell a mother—

SHARPLESS: (persisting) Delay not, call her,
Call in that gentle lady
And conduct her here—if even

Anzi—meglio se acorrta del vero si facesse alla sua vista. Vieni, vieni! . . .	Butterfly should see her, no matter. Then with her eyes she will learn The cruel truth we dare not tell her.
SUZUKI: Oh me trista! me trista! (spinta de Sharpless va nel giardino a raggiungere Mistress Pinkerton)	SUZUKI: Oh, woe is me! (Sharpless pushes her into the garden, where she joins Mrs. Pinkerton)
PINKERTON: Oh! l'amara fragranza di questi fiori velenosa al cor mi va. Immutata è la stanza dei nostri amori . . . ma un gel di morte vi sta. (vede il proprio ritratto, lo osserva) Il mio ritratto!—Svanita è l'imagine qual foglia in chiuse pagine. (lo depone) Tre anni son passati—e noverati ella n'ha i giorni e l'ore nell'immobile fede . . . (agitassimo a queste rimembranze si rivolge a Sharpless che è ritornato a lui vicino) Non posso rimaner.—Sharpless vi aspetto per via. Datele voi . . . qualche soccorso . . . (consegna danari al Console) Mi struggo dal rimorso.	PINKERTON: Oh, the bitter fragrance Of these flowers, It is poison to my heart. Unchanged is the chamber Where once we loved— But a deathly chill haunts the air. (sees his own likeness and takes it up) And here my portrait! (puts it down) Faded is the likeness, Just like a leaf pressed between pages. Three years have passed away, And every day, every hour she counted— (agitated by these reminiscences he turns to Sharpless) I cannot remain,—Sharpless, I'll wait for you Outside. Give her this money, just to support her— (gives the Consul some money) Remorse and anguish choke me.
SHARPLESS: Non ve l'avevo detto?	SHARPLESS: Is it not as I told you!
PINKERTON: Sì. Tutto in un istante vedo il mio fallo e sento che di questo tormento tregua mai non avrò. Sempre il mite sembiante vedrò, con strazio atroce, sempre la dolce voce lamentosa udrò. Addio fiorito asil di letizia e d'amor. Non reggo al tuo squallor! Fuggo, fuggo—son vil.	PINKERTON: Yes. In one sudden moment I see my heartless action, And feel that I shall never free myself From remorse. Haunted for ever I shall be By her reproachful eyes. Farewell, O happy home! Farewell, home of love! I cannot bear to stay! Like a coward let me fly— Farewell!
SHARPLESS: Vel dissi . . . vi ricorda? quando la man vi diede: Badate, ella ci crede e fui profeta allor. Sorda ai consigli, sorda ai dubbi—vilipesa nell'ostinata attesa tutto raccolse il cor. Ma ormai quel cor sincero forse presago è già. Andate—il triste vero da sola apprenderà. (Pinkerton, strette le mani al Console, esce rapidamento, mentre Kate e Suzuki vengono dal giardino)	SHARPLESS: I warned you—you remember? When in your hand she laid hers: "Be careful, for she believes you." Alas, how true I spoke! Deaf to doubting, humiliation, Blindly trusting to your promise Her heart will break. But now this faithful heart Has perhaps already divined. Now go—the cruel truth She should hear alone. (Pinkerton, wringing the Consul's hands, goes out quickly as Kate and Suzuki come in from the garden)
KATE: (a Suzuki) Glielo dirai?	KATE: (to Suzuki) Then you will tell her?
SUZUKI: Prometto.	SUZUKI: I promise.
KATE: E le darai consiglio di affidarmi? . . .	KATE: And you will counsel her To trust me?
SUZUKI: Prometto.	SUZUKI: I promise.
KATE: Lo terrò come un figlio.	KATE: I will care for him like a son.
SUZUKI: Vi credo. Ma bisogna ch'io le sia sola accanto . . . Nella grande ora—sola!—Piangerà tanto tanto!	SUZUKI: I trust you! But I must be alone beside her In this cruel hour! She will weep so sorely!
BUTTERFLY: (dall'interno della camera superiore) Suzuki, dove sie . . . parla . . . (appare in cima alla scaletta) Suzuki! . . .	BUTTERFLY: (calling from the room above) Suzuki, Suzuki, where are you? (appears at the head of the staircase)
SUZUKI: (fa cenno agli altri di tacere, poi risponde:) Son qui . . . pregavo e rimettevo a posto . . . (Butterly scende: Suzuki si precipita verso la scaletta per impedire a Butterfly di scendere) No . . . no . . . non discendete . . .	SUZUKI: (signs to the others to keep quiet, then answers:) I'm here. I was praying, and going back to watch— (Butterfly comes down. Suzuki rushes toward the staircase to prevent her from coming) No, no, do not come down.
BUTTERFLY: (discende precipitosa, svincolandosi da Suzuki che cerca invano di trattenerla, poi si aggira per la stanza con grande agitazione, ma giubilante) È qui . . . dov'è nascosto? (vede Sharpless) Ecco il Console . . . e . . . dove? dove? . . . (cerca dietro ai paraventi) Non c'è. (si volge a vede Madama Pinkerton) Chi siete? Perchè veniste? Niuno parla! . . . Perchè piangete No: non ditemi nulla . . . nulla—forse potrei cader morta sull'attimo.—Tu Suzuki che sei tanto buona—non piangere!—e mi vuoi tanto bene un Sì od un No—di' piano—Vive?	BUTTERFLY: (comes down quickly, freeing herself from Suzuki, who tries in vain to hold her back; then she paces the room in a state of great excitement but happiness) He's here—where is he hidden? (see Sharpless) Here is the Consul—and where is?—where is?— (looks behind the screens) Not here! (turns and sees Mrs. Pinkerton) Who are you? Why have you come?—No one answers!—Why are you weeping? No, no, tell me nothing—nothing—lest I fall dead At your feet at the words I hear! You, Suzuki, Are always so faithful—do not weep, I pray! Since you love me so dearly, say "yes" or "no" quite softly, He lives?
SUZUKI: Sì.	SUZUKI: Yes.
BUTTERFLY: Ma non viene più. Te l'han detto! . . . (irritata al silenzio di Suzuki) Vespa! Voglio che tu risponda.	BUTTERFLY: But he'll come No more. They have told you! (angered at Suzuki's silence) Woman, I want you to reply.
SUZUKI: Mai più.	SUZUKI: No more.
BUTTERFLY: Ma è giunto ieri?	BUTTERFLY: He reached here yesterday?
SUZUKI: Sì.	SUZUKI: Yes.
BUTTERFLY: (guarda Kata, quasi affascinata) Quella donna bionda mi fa tanta paura! Mi fa tanta paura!	BUTTERFLY: (looks at Kate as though compelled) Who is this lady That terrifies me—terrifies me?
SHARPLESS: E la causa innocente d' ogni vostra sciagura Perdonatele.	SHARPLESS: Through no fault of her own She's the cause of your trouble. Forgive her, pray.
BUTTERFLY: Ah! è sua moglie! Tutto è morto per me! Tutto è finito!	BUTTERFLY: Ah! She is the wife All is dead for me— All is finished.

SHARPLESS: Corragio!	SHARPLESS: Courage!
BUTTERFLY: Voglion prendermi tutto! il figlio mio.	BUTTERFLY: And you will take everything from me! He is my child.
SHARPLESS: Fatelo pel suo bene il sacrifizio.	SHARPLESS: Make the sacrifice for him.
BUTTERFLY: Ah! triste madre! Abbandonar mio figlio E sia! A lui devo obbedir!	BUTTERFLY: It's hard for me, very hard. Abandoned! ah! my son! To him I owe my duty.
KATE: (dolcemente) Potete perdonarmi, Butterfly?	KATE: (gently) Can you not forgive me, Butterfly?
BUTTERFLY: (con aria grave) Sotto il gran ponte del cielo non v' è donna di voi più felice. Siatelo sempre felice e non vi rattristate mai per me. Mi piacerebbe pur che gli diceste che pace io troverò.	BUTTERFLY: (solemnly) Beneath the blue vault of heaven There is no happier lady than you are— May you remain so Nor ever be saddened through me— Yet it would please me greatly That you should tell him That peace will come to me—
KATE: (stendendo la mano) E la mano . . . la man . . . me la dareste?	KATE: (holding out her hand) Your hand—your hand, may I take it?
BUTTERFLY: (ritraendosi un poco ma rispondendo, con dolcezza) Vi prego—questo . . . no . . . Andate adesso.	BUTTERFLY: (drawing back, but replying kindly) I pray you—no—not that! Now go and leave me.
KATE: (avviandosi, dice a Sharpless:) Povera piccina!	KATE: (going away, says to Sharpless) Poor little lady!
SHARPLESS: (assai commosso) È un' immensa pietà!	SHARPLESS: (deeply moved) Oh, the pity of it all!
KATE: (sottovoce a Sharpless) E il figlio lo darà?	KATE: (whispers to Sharpless) And can he have his son?
BUTTERFLY: (che ha udito) A lui lo potrò dare se lo verrà a cercare. Fra mezz' ora salite la collina. (Suzuki accompagna Kate e Sharpless che escono dalla porta di destra. Butterfly si regge a stento: Suzuki si affretta a sorreggeria)	BUTTERFLY: (who has heard) His son I will give him If he will come and fetch him. Climb this hill in half an hour from now. (Suzuki escorts Kate and Sharpless, who go out by the door on the right; Butterfly is on the point of collapsing; Suzuki hastens to support her)
SUZUKI: (mettendo una mano sul cuore a Butterfly) Come una mosca prigioniera l' ali batte il piccolo cuor!	SUZUKI: (laying her hand on Butterfly's heart) Like to a poor imprisoned bird Beats this little fluttering heart!
BUTTERFLY: (si è riavuta e vedendo che è giorno fatto si scioglie de Suzuki dicendole:) Troppo luce è di fuor, e troppa primavera. Chiudi. (Suzuki chiude porte e tende: la camera rimane quasi in completa oscurita) (a Suzuki) Il bimbo ove sia?	BUTTERFLY: (gradually recovers; seeing that it is now broad daylight she disengages herself from Suzuki and says:) Too much light shines outside, And too much smiling spring. Close them. (pointing to the curtains) (Suzuki closes doors and curtains—the room is almost in total darkness) Where is the child?
SUZUKI: Giuoca. Lo chiamo?	SUZUKI: Playing. Shall I call him!
BUTTERFLY: Lascialo giuocar. (congedandola) Va.—Fagli compagnia.	BUTTERFLY: Leave him at his play. (dismissing her) Go—go and play with him.
SUZUKI: Non vi voglio lasciar. (si getta ai piedi di Butterfly piangendo) Resto con voi.	SUZUKI: I will not leave you alone. (throws herself weeping at Butterfly's feet) I stay with you.
BUTTERFLY: (risolutamente batte le maui) Va—va. Te lo comando. (fa alzare Suzuki a la springe fuori dell'uscio di sinistra.—Poi Butterfly accende un lumedavanti al reliquiario, si inchina e rimane immobile assorta in doloroso pensiero: va allo stipo, ne leva un grau volo bianco che getta sul paravento; poi prende il coltelloche chi, uso in un astuccio di lacca, sta appeso alla parete presso il simulacro di Budda, lo impugna e ne bacia religiosamente la lama tenendola colle due mani per la punta e per l'impugnature: quindl legge le parole che sono incise sulla lama:) "Con onor muore Chi non può serbar vita con onore." (si appunta il coltello alla gola; s'apre la porta di sinistra e si vede il braccio di Suzuki che spinge il bambino verso la madre; il bimbo entra correndo colle manine alzate; Butterfly lascia cadere il coltello, si precipita verso il bambino, lo abbraccia soffocandolo di baci.) Tu, tu, piccolo Iddio! Amore, amore mio, fior di giglio e di rosa, qui la tua testa bionda qui, ch'io nasconda la fronte dolorosa ne' tuoi capelli. Non saperlo mai per te, per i tuoi puri occhi, muor Butterfly perchè tu possa andare di là dal mare senza che ti rimorda ai dì maturi il materno abbandono. O a me, sceso dal trono dell' alto Paradiso, guarda ben fiso, fiso di tua madre là faccia! . . . che te'n resti una traccia, sia pur pallida e poca. Che non tutto consunto vada di mia beltà l'ultimo fior. (guarda lungamente il suo bimbo e lo bacia ancora) Addio! piccolo amor! Va. Gioca, gioca. (Butterfly prende il bambino, lo mette su di una stuoia col viso voltato verso sinistra, guardà in mano una banderuola americana ed una puppattola e lo invita a trastullarsi mentre delicatamente gli benda gli occhi. Poi afferra il coltello, chiude la porta di sinistra e collo sguardo sempre fisso sul figlio, va dietro il paravento. Si ode cadera a terra il col-	BUTTERFLY: (resolutely—clapping her hands) Go—go—obey my orders. (makes the weeping Suzuki rise, and pushes her outside the exit on the left. Then Butterfly goes in front of the image of Buddha, bows before it and remains motionless, lost in sad thought; she goes to the shrine and takes from it a large white veil which she throws across the screen; she takes the dagger which, in a waxen sheath, is leaning against the wall near the image of Buddha, and piously kisses the blade, holding it with both hands by the point and by the handle; then she reads the words inscribed on the blade:) "To die with honor When one can no longer live with honor." (she points the dagger at her throat; the door on the left opens and shows Suzuki's arm pushing in the child to his mother; the child runs to her with outstretched hands. Butterfly lets fall the dagger, darts towards the child and hugs and kisses him almost to suffocation) You, you beloved idol! Adoréd being! Fairest Flower of beauty! Here on your dear fair head, Here let me bury My tortured brow Among your curls. though you must never know it It is for you I'm dying, I, poor Butterfly, That you may go away Beyond the ocean, Never to feel the torment when you are older That your mother forsook you! O my son, sent to me from Heaven, Straight from the throne of glory! Take one last careful look At your poor mother's face! That its memory may linger, Even though it may be dim and faint. Let not my beauty's lingering bloom Be faded! Farewell, beloved! Go—play—play. (Butterfly takes the child, sets him on a stool with his face turned to the left, puts the American flag and a doll in his hands and motions him to play with them, while she gently bandages his eyes. Then she seizes a dagger, and her eyes still fixed on the child, goes behind the screen. The knife is heard tello, mentre il gran velo bianco sparisce come tirato da una mano invisibile. Butterfly scivola a terra, mezza fuori del paravento: il velo le circonda il collo. Con un debole sorriso saluta colla mano il bambino e si trascina presso di lui, avendo ancora forza sufficiente per abbracciarlo, poi gli cade vicino. In questo momento si ode fuori, a destra, la voce affannosa di Pinkerton che chiama ripetutamente:)

Butterfly! Butterfly!
(poi la porta di è violentemente scossa ed aperto: Pinkerton e Sharpless si precipitano nella stanza, accorrendo presso Butterfly che con debole gesto indica il bambino e muore. Pinkerton si inginocchia, mentre Sharpless prende il bimbo e lo bacia singhiozzando.)

falling to the ground, and the large white veil disappears, as though drawn by an invisible hand. Butterfly emerges from behind the screen, the large white veil is round her neck. Tottering, she gropes her way towards the child, and, smiling feebly, has just enough strength to embrace him before she falls to the ground beside him. At this moment Pinkerton's voice is heard outside, on the right, calling repeatedly:
Butterfly! Butterfly! then the door on the right is violently burst open: Pinkerton and Sharpless rush into the room and up to Butterfly, who, with a feeble gesture, points to the child and dies. Pinkerton falls on his knees, while Sharpless takes the child and kisses him, sobbing.)

La Fanciulla Del West (1910)

The Girl of the Golden West

MUSIC BY GIACOMO PUCCINI ■ LIBRETTO BY CARLO ZANGARINI & GUELFO CIVININI ■ BASED ON THE PLAY BY DAVID BELASCO

This three-act opera, set to a libretto by Carlo Zangarini and Guelfo Civinini (after David Belasco's play The Girl of the Golden West), premiered at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York on December 10, 1910. Minnie runs the Polka Saloon in the miners' camp at the foot of the Cloudy Mountains. It is the Gold Rush of 1849. Wallace sings a ballad about homesickness. An agent of the Wells Fargo Transport Company enters with the news that the infamous bandit Ramerrez and his thieves are nearby. Rance, the sheriff, declares his love for Minnie, inciting a barroom brawl. A letter from the bandit's mistress arrives, dispensing information about Ramerrez' movements. A stranger named Dick Johnson, who is really Ramerrez, enters. He and Minnie are immediately attracted to each other, making Rance jealous. Castro, one of Ramerrez' men, gives the sheriff and the miners false information as to the bandits' whereabouts. Alone with Ramerrez, Minnie tells him that the miners trust her with their gold and that she would rather die than betray them. She then invites him to her cabin. She tells Ramerrez how she ended up in the miners' camp and how much she loves her life. They confess their love for each other. The sheriff and his men come by to check on her safety, and she leads them to believe that she is alone. They tell her that Johnson and Ramerrez are the same man. She is furious at him for duping her. He tells her that his father, a bandit as well, left behind a large family to feed. She doesn't stop him from running out into the danger which awaits and he is shot. She hides him in her loft. Rance enters; a drop of blood falls from the loft, giving away Ramerrez' presence. Minnie suggests a game of poker, the outcome of which will determine Johnson's fate. If Rance wins, Johnson must pay for his crimes. If Minnie wins, Johnson will be freed. She cheats and wins. A manhunt continues in the Great Californian Forest. The miners capture Johnson. Minnie arrives on horseback, pistol in hand. She pleads with the miners to spare him, and despite Rance's objections, Johnson gains his freedom. He and Minnie go off together into the forest.

■ ATTO PRIMO

L'interno Della "Polka"
Uno stanzone costriuto rozzamente in forma di triangolo, del quale due pareti costituiscono i lati, quello a destra più sviluppato. L'angolo nel fondo è smussato da una grande apertura che forma la porta, a due battenti, che si sprangano dall'interno. In una parete laterale una scaletta porta ad un pianerottolo che sporge sulla stanza come un ballatoio dal quale pendono pelli di cervo e ruvidi drappi di vivi colori. Sotto il ballatoio un breve passaggio immette nella "sala da ballo" come indica una scritta a caratteri rossi. Il passaggio è custodito da un orso impagliato. Presso la porta di fondo, è il banco con bicchieri, bottiglie, ecc.: dietro di esso, ad un lato, una credenzetta senza sportelli, con stoviglie, e dall'altro lato, un piccolo barile nel quale i minatori depositano la polvere d'oro. Dietro il banco, nel mezzo, una finestra rettangolare con telaio a dadi: in alto, sopra la finestra è scritto a grandi lettere: "A real home for the boys." Sulla stessa parete è affisso un avviso di taglia di 5000 dollari: si leggono chiaro le cifre, il nome "Ramerrez," la firma "Wells-Fargo." Dal soffitto pende una varietà di caratteristici commestibili. Da una parte uno schermo di lamina di ferro, per riparare le persone dai colpi di pistola: dall'altro un largo camino. Verso il proscenio il tavolo del "faraone" con accessori pel giuoco—un altro tavolo verso il fondo—un altro ancora presso il banco.
(Dalla grande porta del fondo e attraverso la finestra si scorge la valle, con la sua vegetazione selvaggia di sambuchi, quercie, conifere basse, tutta avvolta nel fiammeggiare del tramonto. Lontano, le montagne nevose si sfumano di toni d'oro e di viola. La luce violeta dell'esterno, che va calando rapidamente, rende anche più oscuro l'interno della "Polka." Nel buio appena si scorgono i contorni delle cose. A sinistra, quasi al proscenio, presso il camino, si vede rosseggiare la bragia del sigaro di Jack Rance. Presso la scaletta a destra, su di una botte è seduto, con la testa fra le mani, Larkens. A un tratto si alza, si leva di tasca una lettera, la guarda con tristezza, va al banco, prende un francobollo, ve l'appiccica sopra, la depone nella cassetta e ri-

■ ACT I

Interior Of The "Polka"
A large room, roughly built in the shape of a triangle, of which two sides form the walls, with the right-hand wall further extended. The angle at the back is cut off by a large aperture forming the door—a folding door—which is barred from the inside. From a side-wall a small staircase leads to an upper landing projecting over the room like a balcony, from which hang deerskins and rough, bright-colored hangings. Underneath the balcony a short passage leads into the "Dancing Hall," as indicated by a placard in red letters. The passage is guarded by a stuffed bear. Near the door, at the back, is the bar, with glasses, bottles, etc. Behind it, on one side, is a cupboard without doors, full of kitchen utensils, and on the other side a small barrel in which the miners keep their gold dust. Behind the bar, in the middle, is a rectangular window, with diamond-shaped panes; above it, over the window, is written in big letters: "A real home for the boys." On the same wall is a reward notice of 5,000 dollars; the figures, the name of "Ramerrez" and the firm "Wells-Fargo" are clearly legible from the front. From the ceiling a variety of characteristic dried fruits, etc., is hanging. On one side is a sheet-iron screen to protect a person from pistol-shots; on the other, a big chimney-piece. Towards the footlights is the faro table, with the paraphernalia of the game—another table further back—and still another near the bar.
(The big door in the background and the window both command a view of the valley with its wild vegetation of alders, oaks and dwarf pines all wrapped in sunset glow. In the distance the snow-mountains are tinted with gold and violet. The very strong light outside, which is rapidly fading, makes the inside of the "Polka" seem all the darker. In the gloom the outlines of things can scarcely be distinguished. On the left, close to the footlights, near the chimney-piece, the glimmer of Jack Rance's cigar is seen. Near the staircase on the right, Larkens is seated on a cask, his head in his hands. Suddenly he rises, takes a letter from his pocket, looks at it sadly, goes to the counter, takes a stamp, fixes it on the letter, which he puts torna a sedere. Fuori, nella lontananza, s'incrociano grida ed echi lamentosi di canti.)

VOCI LONTANE: —Alla "Polka"!
—Alle "Palme"!
—Holla!
—Hello!
(un ritornello lontanissimo)
"Là, lontano,
Là, lontano,
quanto piangerà! . . . "
(Nick, esce dal sottoscala con una candela che ha acceso al lumino ad olio. Accende le candele sparse qua e là: sale su uno sgabello e accende al lampada di mezzo: accende i lumi della sala da ballo, poi sale ad accendere quelli della saletta superiore. La "Polka" si anima ad un tratto. Cominciano ad entrare a gruppi i minatori di ritorno dal campo.)

HARRY, JOE, BELLO ED ALTRI: (entrando) Hello, Nick!

NICK: Buona sera, ragazzi!

SID E HAPPY, SEGUITI DA BILLY: Hello!

NICK: Hello!

JOE, BELLO E GLI ALTRI: (cantarellando un ritornello americano) "Dooda, dooda, day . . . "

HARRY: (sedendosi al tavolo del faraone) Sigari, Nick!

JOE: (battendo una mano sul tavolo) E whisky!

NICK: Son qua.

BELLO: Minnie?

NICK: Sta bene.

SID: (che si è seduto al tavolo del faraone, agli altri che sono intorno) Ragazzi, un faraone!
Chi ci sta?

HARRY: Io ci stò.

HAPPY: Anch'io ci stò.

JOE: Anch'io.

BELLO: "All right!" Chi è che tiene banco?

HAPPY: (indicando Sid) Sid.

BELLO: Brutto affare.

SID: (gettando con sprezzo le carte sul tavolo) Chi vuol mischiare, mischi.
(Harry mischia le carte)

JOE: (battendo con la palma aperta sulla spalla di Sid) Holla!
(Entrano Sonora e Trin seguita da parècchi minatori [uomini del campo] con selle ed arnesi che vengone gettati rumorosamente a terra; alcuni poi salgono alle sale superiori, altri vanno nella sala da ballo e attorno ai tavolo di giuoco) into the mail-box, and sits down on the cask again. Outside in the distance are heard mingled shouts and mournful strains of song.)

VOICES IN THE DISTANCE: To the "Polka!"
—To the "Palmeto!"
—Hello!
—Hello!
(A refrain in the distance):
"In the homestead,
Far away,
How she'll weep for me!"...
(Nick comes out from under the stairs with a candle which he has lighted at the oil lamp. He lights the candles placed here and there; climbs on a stool and lights the center lamp; lights the lights in the dancing hall, then goes to light up the upper room. The "Polka" suddenly becomes full of life. Groups of miners returning from camp begin to come in.)

HARRY, JOE, HANDSOME AND OTHERS: (entering): Hello, Nick!

NICK: Hello, boys, how goes it?

SID AND HAPPY, FOLLOWED BY BILLY: Hello!

NICK: Hello!

JOE, HANDSOME AND OTHERS: (humming an American refrain): "Dooda, dooda, day"...

HARRY: (sitting at the faro table): Bring the cigars, Nick!

JOE: (banging the table with his hand): And whisky!

NICK: All right.

HANDSOME: How's Minnie?

NICK: She's jolly.

SID: (who has sat down at the faro table, to those around him): You fellows, a game of faro?
Who will play?

HAPPY: I for one.

HARRY: I'll take a hand.

JOE: And I.

HANDSOME: All right!
Say boys—who's going to be banker?

HAPPY: Sid.

HANDSOME: Rotten business.

SID: (throwing cards on table): Well, shuffle, if you want to.
(Harry shuffles.)

JOE: (clapping Sid on the shoulder): Hello!
(Other miners have come in and have gone straight to the dancing hall, humming the same refrain softly. Some have gone up to the upper room.)

SONORA E TRIN: —Da cena, Nick!
—Che cosa c'è?

NICK: C'è poco. Ostriche sott'aceto . . .

SONORA: Quello che c'è.

TRIN: . . . Con whisky.

SONORA: Hello, Larkens! (battendo sulle spalle di Larkens)

LARKENS: (con melanconia, senza alzare il capo dalle mani) Hello!

I MINATORI: (preparandosi al giuoco) Andiamo! . . .

SID: Fate il ginoco.
(Nick, affaccendato, va e viene con bottighe e bicchieri dalla saletta superiore alla sala da ballo. Apparecchia anche il tavolino di mezzo per Sonora e Trin)

JOE: (puntando) Al "giardino"!

HARRY: (c. s.) Alle "piccole"!

BELLO: (c. s.) Alle "grandi"!

I MINATORI: (dal ballatoio) Nick, da bere!

SONORA: (a Trin, sedendo al tavolino apparecchiato) Ti aspetto?

TRIN: (dal gruppo dei giuocatori, a Sonora) Vengo . . .

HAPPY: Gettoni!

SID: Un re . . . Un asso.

BELLO: (con rabbia) Maledetto!

RANCE: (a Nick che gli passa accanto, accennandogli Larkens, che ha chinato il capo sulle braccia) Larkens che ha?
Stà male?

NICK: Il suo solito male.
Nostalgia.
Mal di terra natìa!
Ripensa la sua vecchia Cornovaglia
e alla madre lontana che l'aspetta . . .

RANCE: (riaccendendo il sigaro) Che terra maledetta, quest'occidente d'oro!

NICK: Ha la malaria gialla.
L'oro avvelena il sangue a chi lo guarda.

RANCE: E Minnie, come tarda!
(Al tavolo del faraone il giuoco continua più intenso)

SID: (a Happy, indicando la puntata) Quanti dollari?

HAPPY: Dieci.

SID: (dandogli il resto) E novanta, fan cento.
Fante . . .
Regina . . .

JOE: Holla!
Evviva!

HAPPY: (con rabbia) Sacramento!

TRIN: Australiano d'inferno!

SONORA AND TRIN: (coming in): Some supper, Nick!
Got any left?

NICK: Not much. Oysters in vinegar.

SONORA: (clapping Larkens on the shoulder): Hello, Larkens!

LARKENS: (in a melancholy tone, without raising his head from his hands): Hello!

THE MINERS: (getting ready for the game): Come on, then!

SID: Put up your stakes.
(Nick comes and goes very busily, with bottles and glasses from the upper room to the dancing hall. He also gets ready the table in the middle for Sonora and Trin.)

JOE: (staking): On the queen!

HARRY: (staking): On the low!

HANDSOME: (staking): On the high!

THE MINERS: (from the balcony): Nick, some drinks!

SONORA: (to Trin, seated ready at the table): I'm waiting.

TRIN: (from the group of players, to Sonora): Coming.

HAPPY: Some chips!

SID: A king—An ace.

HANDSOME: Confound him!

RANCE: (to Nick, who is passing by, points to Larkens sitting with his head in his hands): Look, what is wrong with Larkens?

NICK: Just his usual trouble.
He is homesick:
Sick for his native country!
He's thinking of his dear old Cornwall
And his mother who is waiting for him—

RANCE: (lighting his cigar): This God-forsaken country, cursed with the lust of gold!

NICK: He's got the yellow fever;
Once get the sight of gold and you are poisoned.

RANCE: But Minnie, what has kept her?
(At the faro table the game becomes more exciting.)

SID: (to Happy, pointing to the score): How much?

HAPPY: Ten.

SID: (giving him the rest): And ninety makes a hundred.
Knave!
Queen!

JOE: Hello!
Hurrah!

HAPPY: Oh! damnation!

TRIN: Cursed Australian!

JOE: Il tre non vince mai.

TRIN: Tutto sul tre!

SID: Tre . . . Sette . . .
(i giuocatori puntano con più accanimento, s'odono parole come bestemmie represse e tintinnio di monete)

TRIN: Tutto perso.
"Good by!"
(Si stacca dal tavolo del giuoco e siede a quello dove Sonora stà mangiando. Al tavolo del giuoco si acca, orano di più le discussioni e le proteste. Nick corre di qua e di là portando bibite, sigari, ecc. Alcuni minatori salgono al piano superiore, altri ne discendono; chi va al banco, chi si sofferma al tavolo del giuoco interessandosene. Entrano pure nuovi tipi di minatori. Billy si avvicina al banco furtivamente, ruba dei sigari ed esce. Nel cielo nuvoloso si vendono grandi squarci stellati)

NICK: (rientrando dalla sala da ballo, forte a tutti) Nella sala, ragazzi, vi si vuole a ballare!

SONORA: A ballare?
Son pazzi!
Io non ballo uomini!
(a Trin)
Ti pare?

TRIN: È giusto.

SONORA: (alzandosi, in disparte a Nick che torna dal banco con la cassetta dei sigari) Minnie infine s' è decisa per me?

NICK: (furbescamente, secondandolo) Certo: ho capito che siete il preferito! . . .

SONORA: (gongolando, forte ai compagni) Sigari a tutti!

TUTTI: Hurrà!
(Nick corre a prendere la cassetta degli sigari, distribuendo; discende; dalla sala da ballo escono due giovanotti danzando).

TRIN: (fermando Nick, in disparte, sotto voce) Nick, che ti ha detto?

NICK: (furbescamente anche a lui) Mah!
Se ho ben capito siete voi il preferito.

TRIN: (gongolando) Whisky per tutti!

TUTTI: Hurrà!
(Nick porta in giro bottiglie e bicchieri)

JAKE WALLACE: (di fuori cantando) "Che faranno i vecchi miei là, lontano, là, lontano? . . .
Tristi e soli i vecchi miei piangeranno, penseranno ch'io non ritorni più!"

JOE: The three will never win.

TRIN: All on the three!

SID: Three! seven!

TRIN: I'm cleared out.
Good-bye!
(Leaves the card table and sits down at the table where Sonora is supping. The game goes on. Nick passes to and fro with trays and drinks. Billy furtively approaches the counter, steals some cigars and goes out. In the cloudy sky great patches of stars are seen.)

NICK: (coming back from the dancing room, aloud to all): To the dance hall, you fellows, if you want to dance!

SONORA: Want to dance?
The idiots!
Not with men for my partners!
No, thank you!

TRIN: No, thank you!

SONORA: (rising, aside to Nick who is coming back from the counter with a box of cigars):
Have you any news from Minnie for me?

NICK: (slyly, humoring him):
Rather: I can tell you that you're the one she's chosen!

SONORA: (jumping for joy, aloud): Cigars all round!

ALL: Hurrah! (Nick goes round with the cigars, distributing them; he goes down; two youths come dancing out of the dance-hall.)

TRIN: (taking Nick aside, sotto voce): Nick, what of Minnie?

NICK: (slyly to him also): Well!
Why, I can tell you you're the one she's chosen!

TRIN: (jumping for joy): Whisky all round!

ALL: Hurrah!
(Nick hands round bottles and glasses.)

JAKE: (singing in the distance):
"I am thinking of my folk in the homestead, way back yonder,
Are they sitting lone and sad, are they weeping?
Do they wonder when I'll come again?"

NICK: (facendosi sulla porta) Ragazzi, vi annunzio Jake Wallace il menestrel del campo!
(Ma già la canzone nostalgica ha preso tutte quelle anime avide e rudi: le teste si sollevano, gli orecchi sono tesi: il giuoco langue. Quelli del piano superiore si affacciano ad osservare: nel silenzio, il tintinnio dei gettoni adagio adagio si spegne. Jake Wallace, il cantastorie, appare sulla porta cantando e accompagnandosi sul banjo)

JAKE WALLACE: (entrando) "La mia mamma . . .
(Si ferma stupito del silenzio che l'accoglie. Tutti i minatori, col viso proteso verso di lui, gli fanno cenno con le mani di continuare).

JAKE: (continuando) . . . che farà s'io non torno, s'io non torno?
Quanto, oh quanto piangerà!"

ALCUNI MINATORI: (dal tavolo del giuoco) "Al telaio tesserà lino e duolo pel lenzuolo che poi la ricoprirà . . . "

ALCUNI MINATORI: (dal ballatoio della sala superiore) "E il mio cane dopo tanto . . .

JAKE WALLACE: Il mio cane . . .

ALTRI MINATORI: (di sopra) Il mio cane mi ravviserà?"
(Una nostalgia quasi disperata si impadronisce di tutti. Qualcuno, che ha cominciato ad accompagnare la canzone battendo col pugno dei colpi sordi sul tavolo, si interrompe)

HARRY: (prorompendo come in un singhiozzo) "O mia casa, al rivo accanto . . .

I MINATORI: (del tavolo) "Là, lontano . . .

I MINATORI: (di sopra) "Là, lontano . . .

TUTTI:
(sommessamente) . . . Chi di noi ti rivedrà?
(Il canto si spegne angosciosamente. Silenzio. Largens, al canto nostalgico, si è scosso dal suo sopore dolo)

SID: (supplichevole) Per carità! . . .

JACK RANCE: (avvicinandosi) Che succede?

BELLO: Ha barato! Avrà ciò che gli spetta! . . .

VOCI: A laccio!

NICK: (appearing in the doorway): Here, boys, here he is!
Jake Wallace, the camp minstrel!
(But the homesick refrain has caught hold of all these rough grasping souls: heads are raised, ears strained—they gradually leave off gambling. Those on the upper floor crowd out to hear better; in the silence the soft tinkling of the counters dies away; Jake Wallace, the minstrel, appears in the doorway singing and accompanying himself on his banjo.)
Enter Jake Wallace.

JAKE: "My old mother—
(He stops, amazed at the silence which greets him. All the miners, their faces turned towards him, sign to him to continue.) —How she'll fret for her sonny,
For her sonny,
How she'll weep for him!"

SOME OF THE MINERS: (from the card table): I can see her at her loom Weaving linen
For the winding sheet
To cover her—

JAKE: How are my old folk out yonder?
Do they wonder when I'll come again?

SOME OF THE MINER: (from the balcony of the floor above): And my dear old faithful dog.—

JAKE: Will he know me?

SOME OF THE MINERS: (from above): And my dog Tray, will he know me still?
(A desperate homesickness overcomes them all. Someone who has started accompanying the song with muffled fist-thumps on the table, stops short.)

HARRY: (breaking into a despairing sort of sob): Dear old home beside the river!

THE MINERS: (at the table): Far away, over yonder!

THE MINERS: (from above): Far away, over yonder!

ALL: (softly): Shall I ever see you more?
(The song dies away in an anguished silence. Larkens, roused from his mournful lethargy by the homesick song, has risen. At the last words of the chorus he bursts out weeping aloud.)

SID: (whining): For pity's sake!
Mercy, boys!—

JAKE RANCE: (approaching):
What's the matter?

HANDSOME: He's been cheating!
He'll get what he deserves!

VOICES: The gallows!
Let's hang the wretch!

RANCE: (sorride, si leva di tasca con flemma il fazzoletto, lo spiega con flemma, e si pulisce le scarpe appoggiando il piede ad una sedia.) Andiamo, ragazzi!
Un po' di calma . . .
Qua . . . vediamo.

VOCI: —Al laccio, Sid!
—A morte!
(Tutti si stringono di nuovo minacciosi attorno a Sid tremante)

RANCE: (trattenendoli, freddo)
Eh!
Cos'è poi la morte?
Un calcio dentro il buio e buona notte!
So un castigo più degno.
Datemi la sua carta . . .
(dànno a Rance il due di picche; egli con une spillo lo appunta sul petto di Sid, sopra il cuore)
Sopra il cuore, come si porta un fiore.
Non toccherà più carte.
È questo il segno.
Se si azzardasse a toglierlo, impiccatelo.
(a Bello, con autorità)
Domani al campo, tu spargi la voce.
(a Sid)
Va!

SID: (piagnucoloso, raccomandandesi) Ragazzi, siate buoni! . . .

TUTTI: (sbertandolo e spingendolo fuori)—Via di qua!
—Via!
—Fuori!
—Via di qua!
—Ladro!
—Uh!
—Uh!
(lo cacciano a pedate: Billy, che teme anch'esso un calcio di Rance, scivola fuori, circospetto. Rance, come nulla fosse avvenuto, si siede al tavolo del faraone, invitando. Harry, Joe e un minatore si siedono al tavolo di destra, bevendo)

RANCE: (a Sonora e Trin) Un poker!
(a Nick)
Nick, gettoni!
(Nick porta; giuocano. Entra Ashby)

ASHBY: Sceriffo, hello!

RANCE: (ai minatori) Ragazzi, fate largo!
Presento Mister Ashby, dell'Agenzia Wells-Fargo.
(Ashby stringe la mano a Rance, a Sonora e a Trin e agli altri più vicini. Saluta con un cenno della mano i più lontani, che rispondono con lo stesso cenno)

ASHBY: Nick, portami da bere.
(ai vicini)
Come stà la ragazza?

RANCE: (smiles laconically, takes out his handkerchief, unfolds it, and polishes his boots with it, resting his foot on a chair.) Look here, you boys; don't be hasty.—
Come; let's see!

VOICES: Let's hang the wretch!
He deserves death!
(They all draw closer around the trembling Sid, and threaten him.)

RANCE: (restraining them coldly): Is death so awful!
A sudden shock, a gasp, and all is over!
I know a much harder sentence.
Give me his card.
(They hand Rance the two of spades; he pins it onto Sid's chest above his heart.)
On his heart, just as he'd wear a flower.
He'll never touch a card again.
Let this be a warning.
If he dares to take it off, hang him!
(To Handsome):
To-morrow, pass the word in the camp.
(To Sid):
Go!

SID: (entreating them, blubbering): See here, boys, show some mercy!—

ALL: (mocking him, and pushing him away): Scoundrel!
Rascal!
You be off!
Out, rascal, out!
Ugh!
Ugh!
(They kick him out; Billy, who fears another kick from Rance, slinks away furtively. Rance, as though nothing had happened, sits down at the faro table, inviting them to join him. Harry, Joe and a miner sit down at a table on the right, drinking.)

RANCE: (To Sonora and Trin): A poker!
(To Nick):
Nick, the chips!
(While they settle to the game, enter Ashby.)

ASHBY: The Sheriff, hello!

RANCE: (to the miners): Stand back, you boys, stand back!
This is Mister Ashby, agent of Wells-Fargo.
(Ashby shakes hands with Rance, Sonora, Trin and others near him, and nods a greeting to those further off, who respond with a nod.)

ASHBY: Nick, bring me some whisky.
(To those near him):
Tell me, how is the Girl?

TUTTI: (lusingati) Grazie, bene.
(Nick porta quattro whisky al tavolo)

RANCE: Che nuove del bandito?

ASHBY: Da tre mesi lo apposto:
non è molto discosto . . .
(Nick esce)

RANCE: (a Ashby) Dicon che ruba come un gran signore!
È spagnuolo?

ASHBY: La banda di ladri, a cui comanda, è messicana: gentaccia gagliarda, astuta, pronta a tutto.
State in guardia.
Io mi sdraio.
Son stanco, ho l'ossa rotte.
A tutti, buona notte!
(Prende un mantello sotto la scala: si adagia sui sacchi, senza curarsi di quanto gli succede intorno. Nick ritorna dentro con un vassoio pieno di bicchieri con whisky e limone)

TRIN: (a Nick) Che cos' è?

NICK: Offre Minnie!

TUTTI: (con sentimento d'affetto) Viva Minnie!
Viva la nostra Minnie!

RANCE: (con sussiego) Signora Rance, fra poco.

SONORA: (scattando) No, faccia di cinese!
Minnie si prende giuoco di te!

RANCE: (alzandosi, livido) Ragazzo, è l' whisky che lavora.
Ti compatisco . . .
Di Jack Rance finora nessuno, intendi, s' è mai preso giuoco!
E buon per te ch'io non curi le offese degli ubriachi!

SONORA: (estrae la pistola, ma è trattenuto dai compagni. Nick e qualche altro che sono rientrati si barricano dietro lo schermo di lamiera, come per evitare i colpi di pistola) Vecchio biscazziere!
Minnie ti burla!

RANCE: (avanzandosi d'un passo) Provalo!

SONORA: (svincolandosi) Ti burla, muso giallo!

RANCE: Ah, miserabile! (Gli si slancia contro; si azzuffano; gli altri cercano dividerli, ma non fanno a tempo: una donna è entrata d'un balzo, li ha, con fermo polso, divisi violentemente, strappando dalle mani di Sonora la pistola. È Minn e Bello la segue, fermandosi al banco a guardare, ammirato. Un grido scoppia da tutte le parti: l'ira cade subita-

ALL: All right, thank you. (Nick brings four whiskies to the table.)

RANCE: What news of the greaser?

ASHBY: After three months' tracking,
I am close on his heels. (Nick goes out.)

RANCE: (to Ashby): I've heard it said he robs you like a gentleman.
Is he Spanish?

ASHBY: I think not.
But he heads a band of Mexican greasers: A strong, wily rabble that sticks at nothing, keep a sharp look out.
I must rest now.
I am dead beat, my bones are aching.
Good-night, all you fellows!
(Takes a cloak under the staircase—lies down comfortably without taking heed of what goes on around him.—Nick comes back with a jug of hot water and hands round glasses of whisky and lemons.)

TRIN: (to Nick): What's this?

NICK: From Minnie!

ALL: Here's to Minnie!
Here's to our Minnie!

RANCE: (impressively): Missis Rance, quite shortly.

SONORA: (bursting out): No, you yellow-faced old Chinaman!
Minnie is making game of you!

RANCE: (gets up, white with rage): Sonora, your whisky is too strong.
I'll overlook it.
I'd have you remember
That nobody has ever dared to make game of Jack Rance!
It's well for you I take no notice of insults
From one who's tipsy!

SONORA: (takes his pistol, but is held back by his mates. Nick and another hide behind the screen to get out of range of the pistol-shots): Imbecile old gambler!
Minnie is fooling you!

RANCE: (coming a step nearer): Prove it!

SONORA: (freeing himself): Is fooling you, old yellow face!

RANCE: Ah, be damned to you! (He rushes upon him; they come to blows; the others try to separate them, but are too late; a woman has come in quite suddenly, has separated them with a strong arm, snatching Sonora's pistol from him and hiding it in a box on the counter. Handsome follows her and stops by the counter watching her, full of admiration.) mente: solo Rance si apparta, tutto cupo, nella sua sedia di sinistra)

TUTTI: (con entusiasmo, agitando i cappelli) Hello, Minnie!
Hello, Minnie!

MINNIE: (avanzandosi, con autorità) Che cos' è stato? . . .
(severa, a Sonora)
Sempre tu, Sonora?

TRIN: Nulla, Minnie; sciocchezze . . .
Si scherzava!

MINNIE: (adirata) Voi manderete tutto alla malora!
Vergogna! . . .

JOE: (presentandole un mazzolino di fiori) Minnie . . .

MINNIE: Non farò più scuola.

TUTTI: No, Minnie, no! . . .

SONORA: (imbarazzato) Sai, quando tu ritardi ci si annoia . . .
Ed allora . . .

MINNIE: (scuote la testa e sorride rabbonita; avvicinandosi a banco; vede Bello in contemplazione) Bello, che fai?
Che guardi?

BELLO: (si scuote, sorridendo impacciato) Nulla . . .

ALCUNI: (ridendo) Guardava . . . te!

JOE: (offrendole il mazzolino) Minnie, li ho colti lungo il "Torrente Nero".
Al mio paese ce ne son tanti!
I prati ne son folti . . .

MINNIE: Oh grazie, grazie, Joe!

SONORA: (levandosi di tasca un nastro ripiegato) È passato pel campo oggi un merciaio di San Francisco . . .
Aveva trine e nastri.
(svolgendo il nastro)
Questo è per voi . . .
Vedete, è color porpora come la vostra bocca . . .

HARRY: (spiegando un fazzoletto di seta) E questo è azzurro, come il vostro sguardo!

MINNIE: Grazie, grazie! . . .

ASHBY: (che si è rialzato e si è avvicinato al banco, alzando il bicchiere) Gli omaggi di Wells-Fargo!

MINNIE: (ridendo) Che confusione! . . .
Siedi.
(Harry siede confuso)
A posto, Joe!
Ora leggiamo.
"Versetto secondo:
Aspergimi d'issòpo e sarò mondo . . . "

They all give a shout; their anger dies away promptly. Rance alone moves away, gloomily, to his seat on the left.)

ALL: Hello, Minnie!
Hello, Minnie!

MINNIE: What's the matter?
(Severely to Sonora.)
You again, Sonora?

TRIN: Nothing, Minnie, just nonsense.
They were fooling!

MINNIE: You'll send the whole place to rack and ruin!
Disgraceful!

JOE: (offers her a bunch of flowers): Minnie—

MINNIE: I'll give up the school.

ALL: No, Minnie, no!—

SONORA: (in confusion): Say, when you are late we get impatient—
And then we—

MINNIE: (shakes her head and smiles; she goes up to the counter and sees Handsome lost in contemplation): Handsome, why are you staring?

HANDSOME: (starts, smiling, perplexed): Nothing.

ALL: (laughing): He stared at you!

JOE: (offering the flowers): Minnie, I picked these flowers by the Black Torrent.
Lots of them grow in my country!

MINNIE: Oh, thank you, Joe!—

SONORA: (taking a folded ribbon from his pocket): This morning a trader came to the camp from San Francisco—.
He had some lace and ribbons.
(unfolding the ribbon):
This is one for you—.
Just look, bright crimson,
The color of your lips—.

HARRY: (unfolding a silk handkerchief): And this is blue as blue, just like your eyes!

MINNIE: Thank you!
Thank you!

ASHBY: (who has risen and gone to the counter, raising his glass): Regards of Wells-Fargo!

MINNIE: (laughing): O what a muddle—
Sit down.
(Harry sits down in confusion. To Joe, who has gotten up to sharpen a pencil with a huge knife.)
Sit down, Joe!
Now we'll have reading.
The second verse:
"Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean—"

TRIN: (ingenuo) Che cos' è quest' issòpo, Minnie?

MINNIE: È un'erba che fa in Oriente . . .

JOE: (dolcemente) E qui da noi non fa?

MINNIE: Sì, Joe, nel cuore ognun di noi ne serba un cespuglietto . . .

JOE: (ridendo) Nel cuore?

MINNIE: (seria) Nel cuore.
(continuando a leggere)
"Lavami e sarò bianco come neve.
Poni dentro al mio petto un puro cuore, e rinnovella in me uno spirito eletto . . . "
(interrompendosi)
Ciò vuol dire, ragazzi, che non v'è al mondo, preccatore cui non s'apra una via di redenzione . . .
Sappia ognuno di voi chiudere in sè questa suprema verità d'amore.
(Ashby e Rance si sono avvicinati e stanno anch'ess ad ascoltare. Billy entra col suo passo furtivo, si avvicina al banco e ingoia in fretta il fondo di due o tre bio chieri, leccandone l'orlo)

TRIN: (ridendo) Guarda, Minnie!

MINNIE: Che c' è?

JOE: Billy lava i bicchieri!

BILLY: (ridendo con un riso sornione e battendosi una mano sul petto) Buono . . .

MINNIE: Billy!

NICK: (allungandogli una pedata) Va via di qua, briccone!

BILLY: (lo scansa, e si avvicina a Minnie, con umiltà ipocrita) Padrona . . .

MINNIE: Che fai qui?
Sai la lezione?

BILLY: Lezione, Billy? . . .
(ridendo ebete)
He' . . .

MINNIE: Sentiamo: conta fino a dieci.

BILLY: . . . Uno . . . due . . . tre . . . quattro . . . cinque, sei, sette . . . fante, regina e re . . .
(tutti scoppiano in una risata. Minnie si alza)

MINNIE: Che stupida marmotta!
E Wowkle?
L'hai sposata?

BILLY: (con aria sorniona) Ora tardi sposare . . .
Abbiamo bimbo . . .
(Un'altra risata accoglie quest'uscita. Minnie lo chiama. Egli si avvicina a malincuore. La fanciulla gli toglie di tasca i sigari rubati)

JOE: What is this hyssop, Minnie?

MINNIE: A plant that grows in the East.

JOE: And don't it grow out here?

MINNIE: Yes, Joe, in everybody's heart
A little bit is growing—

JOE: (laughing): In the heart?

MINNIE: (gently): The heart.
(Resumes the reading): "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow.
Create in me a clean heart,
O God, renew a righteous spirit
Within me—"
(Breaking off):
And that means, you boys, that all throughout
The wide world there's no sinner
Who can't find a way or means of redemption—.
Don't we all of us know in our hearts
That best and highest teaching of love?
(Ashby and Rance have come closer and stand listening. Enter Billy with his usual stealthy steps; he goes to the counter and empties the dregs of two or three glasses, licking the brims.)

TRIN: (laughing): Look, Minnie!

MINNIE: What's up?

JOE: Billy's washing the glasses.

BILLY: (laughing slyly and smacking himself on the chest): Good—

MINNIE: Billy!

NICK: (giving him a kick): Get out of that, you rascal!

BILLY: (goes up to Minnie with feigned humility): Please, missis—

MINNIE: What d'you want?
Know your lessons?

BILLY: (as before): Lessons, Billy? . . .
(laughs drunkenly):
He!—

MINNIE: Let's hear you; count up to seven.

BILLY: —One—two—three—four—five—six, seven—knave, queen and king—
(All burst out laughing, Minnie gets up.)

MINNIE: You silly old idiot!
And Wowkle—have you married her?

BILLY: (with a sly air): Too late to marry now!—
We've got a baby—
(Another burst of laughter greets this excuse. Minnie calls him and he goes up to her reluctantly. The girl takes the stolen cigars from his pocket.)

MINNIE: Questo pezzente un giorno l'ha sedotta . . .
Furfante!
Ed hanno un bimbo di sei mesi!
Guai a te se domani non la sposi!
Ora, via!
(Lo afferra per un orecchio e tra le risa di tutti lo mette alla porta. Ritorna al banco. Rance, che per tutto il tempo ha osservato le sue mosse, si avvicina al banco. A un tratto si sente il galoppo di un cavallo)

NICK: (accorrendo alla porta) La posta!

POSTIGLIONE: (fuori, apparendo sulla porta, a cavallo) Hello, ragazzi!
(dà le lettere a Nick, che le porta dentro)
State attenti! s' è visto sul sentiero un ceffo di meticcio . . .
(Nick distribuisce; un dispaccio per Ashby; tettere a Happy, Bello e Joe; a Harry un giornale. Ashby apre il dispaccio, lo legge con stupore)

ASHBY: Postiglione!
(Entra il Postiglione. Tutti gli sono intorno. Ashby lo interroga)

ASHBY: Conosci certa Nina?
Nina Micheltorena?

MINNIE: (interponendosi, con aria di donna informata) È una finta spagnuola nativa di Cachuca, una sirena che fa molto consumo di nerofumo per farsi l'occhio languido.
. . . Chiedetene ai ragazzi!
(Trin e Sonora che sono lì presso, imbarazzati, fan cenni di diniego. Il Postiglione esce con Nick. Minnie torna al banco. Happy, Bello, Joe ed altri, in varie pose, chi più indietro, chi più avanti scorrono le loro lettere. Harry legge il giornale. Ashby e Rance si avanzano verso il proscenio) ASHBY: Sceriffo, questa sera ho Ramerrez al laccio . . .

RANCE: Come?

ASHBY: (mostrandogli il dispaccio ripiegato) L'avventuriera mi dice che sa il covo del bandito e che stanotte a mezzanotte vada
alle "Palme."

RANCE: (dubitoso) Quella Micheltorena è una canaglia.
Ashby non vi fidate: è un brutto azzardo.

ASHBY: (strizzando l'occhio)
Hum!
Vendette di donne innamorate . . .
Ad ogni modo, Rance, tengo

MINNIE: This thieving red-skin has betrayed her—
The rascal!
They've got a baby six months old!
There'll be trouble if you don't marry her tomorrow!
Off you go!
(Takes him by the ear, and, amidst general laughter, puts him out of the door. Goes back to the counter. Rance, who has been watching her movements throughout, approaches the counter. The gallop of a horse is suddenly heard.)

NICK: (running to the door): The post!

POST-BOY: (outside, appears in the doorway on horseback): Hello, you boys!
(Gives Nick the letters, who carries them in.)
Be on your guard! A greaser has been seen Hanging round the district.
(Nick distributes the post: a despatch for Ashby; letters for Happy, Handsome and Joe; a newspaper for Harry, Ashby opens his despatch, reads it with amazement.)

ASHBY: Express! (Enter the Post-Boy; all gather round him. Ashby questions him.)

ASHBY: Do you know a certain Nina?
Nina Micheltorena?

MINNIE: (interposing, full of information): She's a cute Spanish creature,
A native of Cachuca; we all know her;
A designing hussy,
Who spends her time ogling all the men—
You ask the boys about her!
(Trin and Sonora who are near her, make embarrassed negative signs. The Post-Boy goes out with Nick; Minnie goes back to the counter. Happy, Handsome, Joe, and others, in various positions, some at the back, some more in front, peruse their letters. Harry reads his paper, Ashby and Rance advance towards the footlights.)

ASHBY: Sheriff, tonight I'll have Ramerrez swinging—

RANCE: What's that?

ASHBY: (showing him the folded despatch): The adventuress, Nina, has betrayed his movements.
Tonight, at midnight, he'll be at the "Palmeto."

RANCE: (doubting): That Micheltorena is a wrong 'un.
Ashby, don't you trust her.

ASHBY: (winking his eye): Hum!
A love-lorn woman's revenge—
I've got him, Rance, absolutely.
(Rance and Ashby move away again under the stairs and continue their conversation. The miners, grouped about the stage, go on reading their letters. Minnie, at the counter, is joking with Sonora and Trin.) l'invito.

(Rance e Ashby si appartano di nuovo presso il sottoscala, continuando a parlare fra loro. Sparsi qua e là i minatori continuano a leggere le loro lettere; chi straccia con dispetto la lettera dopo averla letta, dicendo: maledetta! Altri bacia la lettera e la mette con grande cura nel portafoglio; altri leggono e ripongono le loro lettere dicendo: ve bene, Minnie, al banco, parla scherzosa con Sonora e Trin)

BELLO: (leggendo una lettera)
Ketty sposa?
E chi sposa la mia Ketty?
Senti!
L'orologiaio suo vicino . . .
Quel vecchio sordo! . . .
Mah! . . .
(sospiro di chi ricorda molte cose)
Povera Ketty!

HAPPY: (leggende, sotto voce) " . . . Perfino il pappagallo s'e avvilito; non grida più:
"Buongiorno, fratellino!" ma chiama:
"Happy" e poi dice:
"Partito!"

HARRY: (leggendo il giornale) Incendi, guerre, terremoti, piene . . .
Quante cose nel mondo!
E al mio paese, che faranno laggiù?
Staranno bene?

JOE: (leggendo) "Pur troppo, Joe, ci son notizie tristi . . . "
(continua a leggere sotto voce, poi dà un gran pugno sul tavolo e si butta di schianto sdraiato su una panca con la testa fra le mani, mugolando)

TUTTI: (facendoglisi attorno)
—Joe, che c'è?
—Brutte nuove?
—Su, coraggio!

JOE: (si alza, sbatte in terra il berretto, con ira dolorosa) Ed anche nonna se n'è andata!
(stà per dire altre parole, ma si trattiene, si morde un dito, asciuga gli occhi col dorso della mano e ordina, seccamente) Whisky!
(va al banco dove è Minnie, beve ed esce)
(Nick è uscito. Ashby saluta Rance e Minnie stringendo loro la mano, e gli altri con un gesto ed esce. Rance rimane presso al banco e guarda Minnie)

HANDSOME: (reading a letter, sotto voce, but audibly): Kitty married?
And who is marrying my Kitty?
Fancy!
The clockmaker, her neighbor—
That deaf old mummy!
Well!—
(Sighing at the memory of many things):
Poor little Kitty!

HAPPY: (reading, sotto voce): At last the poor old parrot is discouraged;
He no longer calls:
"Good morning, brother!"
But says:
"Happy," and then says:
"He's gone!"

HARRY: (reading his paper):
Great fires, wars, earthquakes, floods—
What awful disasters!—
In my own country,
How many things be there?
How are they faring?—

JOE: (reads): "Yes, truly, Joe, my news is sad"— (Continues reading sotto voce; suddenly he bangs the table with his fist, throws himself with a crash on a bench and howls, his head in his hands.)

ALL: (surrounding him):—Joe, what's wrong?
Bad tidings?
Pluck up courage!

JOE: (throwing his cap onto the ground in angry grief):
(Reads):
"Your poor old granny is no more!"
(Is about to say more, but restrains himself, bites his finger, wipes his eyes with the back of his hand, and dryly orders):
Whisky!
(Nick goes to the counter. Joe sits down again, motionless, head in hands; all round him look at him in silence. Harry folds up his newspaper, Happy and Handsome put their letters back in their pockets. Nick brings Joe the whisky and goes out with Ashby, who shakes hands with Rance and Minnie, and nods good-bye to the others. In the dancing hall the NICK: (reintrando) C'è fuori uno straniero . . .

MINNIE: Chi è?

NICK: Non l'ho mai visto . . .
Sembra di San Francisco.
Mi ha chiesto un whisky ed acqua.

MINNIE: Whisky ed acqua?
Che son questi pasticci?

NICK: È quello che gli ho detto:
Alla "Polka" si beve l' whisky schietto.

MINNIE: Bene, venga.
Gli aggiusteremo i ricci.
(Nick esce di nuovo. Intorno a un tavolo rimangono tre o quattro a giuocare ai dadi; dopo poco se ne vanno; tutti a poco a poco si squagliano, chi nella sala da ballo, chi esce, chi va sopra. Rimangono soli Minnie e Rance. Rance si fa più dappresso a Minnie, parlandole con voce tremante di desiderio)

RANCE: Ti voglio bene, Minnie . . .

MINNIE: (sorridendo, indifferente) Non lo dite . . .

RANCE: Mille dollari, qui, se tu mi baci!

MINNIE: (nervosa, ridendo)
Rance, voi mi fate ridere . . .
Su via, finitela!

RANCE: (incalzandola) Tu non puoi star qui sola!
Ti sposo . . .

MINNIE: (scansandolo, ironica)
E vostra moglie, che dirà?

RANCE: Se tu lo vuoi, mai più mi rivedrà!

MINNIE: (con fierezza)
Rance, basta!
M'offendete!
Vivo sola così, vio lo sapete, perchè così mi piace . . .
(frugandosi in petto e facendo luccicare in faccia a Rance una pistola) (basso, sommesso, ma con forza) con questa compagnia sicura e buona, che mai non m'abbandona . . .
Rance, lasciatemi in pace.
(si ripone la pistola nel petto. Rance si allontana da banco in silenzio, siede al tavolo del faraone e nervosa mente mischia le carte.)

MINNIE: (lo guarda di sottecchi, poi gli si avvicina) Siete in collera, Rance?
Perchè?
Vi ho detto il mio pensiero schietto . . .

music starts a dance. All go over there. Joe drinks his whisky off at a gulp and goes out. Rance stays by the counter watching Minnie.)

NICK: (re-entering): A stranger's just outside—

MINNIE: Who's he?

NICK: I've never seen him . . .
Seems like a San Franciscan.
He wants some whisky and water.

MINNIE: Whisky and water?
What's all this nonsense?

NICK: Why, that's just what I told him:
At the "Polka" we drink our whisky neat!

MINNIE: Fetch him in.
We'll curl his hair for him.
(Nick goes out again. Rance draws near to Minnie, and speaks to her with a voice trembling with passion.)

RANCE: I'm dead gone on you, Minnie . . .

MINNIE: (smiling, indifferent):
You don't say so . . .

RANCE: A thousand dollars down if you will kiss me!

MINNIE: (nervous, laughing):
Rance, you make me laugh at you . . .
Be off, have done with it!

RANCE: (edging up to her): You can't stay here alone!
I'll marry you . . .

MINNIE: (dodging him ironically): And your good wife?
What of her?

RANCE: You've but to say so, she'll never see me more!

MINNIE: (haughtily): Rance, stop it!
You annoy me!
If I live like this, you know quite well
It's because I like it . . .
(Feeling in her bodice and flashing a pistol before Rance's eyes):
I've got a sure and true protector by me,
Who never will desert me.
Rance, leave me in peace.
(Puts the pistol back in her bodice—Rance silently moves away from the counter, sits down at the faro table, and absentmindedly starts playing.—A pause.)

MINNIE: (looks at him surreptitiously, then goes up to him): Are you cross with me, Rance?
What for?
I've told you straight what's in my mind.—

RANCE: (getta le carte sul tavolo con un gesto violento, poi con voce aspra e tagliente) Minnie, dalla mia casa son partito, ch'è là dai monti, sopra un altro mare:
non un rimpianto, Minnie, m'ha seguito, non un rimpianto in me potea lasciare!
Nessuno mai mi amò, nessuno ho amato, nessuna cosa mai mi diè piacere!
Chiudo nel petto un cuor di biscazziere,
amaro e avvelenato,
che ride dell' amore e del destino:
mi son messo in cammino attrato sol dal fascino dell'oro . . .
È questo il solo che non m'ha ingannato.
Or per un bacio tuo getto un tesoro!

MINNIE: (sognando) L'amore è un'altra cosa . . .

RANCE: (beffardo) Poesia!

MINNIE: Laggiù nel Soledad, ero piccina, avevo una stanzuccia affumicata
nella taverna sopra la cucina.
Ci vivevo con babbo e mamma mia.
Tutti ricordo: vedo le persone entrare e uscire a sera.
Mamma facea da cuoca e cantiniera,
babbo dava le carte a faraone.
Mamma era bella, aveva un bel piedino.
Qualche volta giuocava anch'essa; ed io, che me ne stavo sotto al tavolino aspettando cader qualche moneta per comprarmi dei dolci, la vedevo serrar furtiva il piede al babbo mio . . .
Si amavan tanto! . . . Anch'io così vorrei trovare un uomo: e forse l'amerei.

RANCE: (guardandola fisso, minaccioso, poi reprimendosi)
Forse, Minnie, la perla è già trovata?
(Minnie stà per rispondere, quando Nick rientra. È con lui Dick Johnson. Ha sotto il braccio la sella del suo cavallo)

JOHNSON: (posando la sella in terra, fieramente) Chi c' è, per farmi i ricci? . . .

MINNIE: (ha uno scatto di sorpresa, come chi riconesce una persona. Ma si frena subito) Salute allo straniero!

JOHNSON: (anche lui, dopo un moto di stupore, con fare più dolce) Io son quello che chiesi whisky ed acqua.

RANCE: (throws down the cards with a violent gesture, then in a harsh and strident voice): Minnie, when I left my little home
Beyond the mountains, across the ocean:
Nobody cared, Minnie, not a creature,
Nor did I waste a tear at leaving!
No one loved me, and I loved no one,
And no one and nothing gave me pleasure!
Deep in my breast I have a gambler's heart,
Embittered, warped and poisoned,
Which laughs at love, and mocks at destiny.
I set forth on my journey,
Attracted by nothing else but gold,
And gold alone has not deceived me;
Now for a kiss from you, I'll give a fortune!—

MINNIE: (mockingly): Real love is very different.

RANCE: (mockingly): Romantic!

MINNIE: Down home in Soledad, when I was little,
I had a tiny, smoky little room above the kitchen,
In my father's inn,
And I lived there with father and mother.
Ah!—I've not forgotten;
Even now I see the men come in at sundown.
Mother saw to the cooking and to the bar.
Father dealt the cards for faro.
Mother, she was lovely, her little feet were pretty;
Sometimes she'd take a hand at faro,
And I used to hide underneath the table,
Hoping someone would drop some money;
And sometimes I'd see her snuggle her feet close up to father's.
Oh, how she loved him!
Ah!
So I don't want to take a husband
Unless I really love him.

RANCE: (sneeringly): Perhaps you have found the treasure already?
(Minnie is about to reply, when Nick re-enters, and with him is Dick Johnson.)

JOHNSON: (throwing his saddle down, haughtily): Who wanted to curl my hair?

MINNIE: (gives a start of surprise, and recognition—but controls herself at once): Good evening to you, stranger!

JOHNSON: (also gives a start of surprise, then says more gently):
I'm the man who asked for water with his whisky.

Anzi—meglio se acorrta del vero si facesse alla sua vista.
Vieni, vieni! . . .

SUZUKI: Oh me trista! me trista!
(spinta de Sharpless va nel giardino a raggiungere Mistress Pinkerton)

PINKERTON: Oh! l'amara fragranza di questi fiori velenosa al cor mi va.
Immutata è la stanza dei nostri amori . . .
ma un gel di morte vi sta.
(vede il proprio ritratto, lo osserva)
Il mio ritratto!—Svanita è l'imagine qual foglia in chiuse pagine.
(lo depone)
Tre anni son passati—e noverati ella n'ha i giorni e l'ore nell'immobile fede . . .
(agitassimo a queste rimembranze si rivolge a Sharpless che è ritornato a lui vicino)
Non posso rimaner.—Sharpless vi aspetto per via. Datele voi . . . qualche soccorso . . .
(consegna danari al Console)
Mi struggo dal rimorso.

SHARPLESS: Non ve l'avevo detto?

PINKERTON: Sì. Tutto in un istante vedo il mio fallo e sento che di questo tormento tregua mai non avrò.
Sempre il mite sembiante vedrò, con strazio atroce, sempre la dolce voce
lamentosa udrò.
Addio fiorito asil
di letizia e d'amor.
Non reggo al tuo squallor!
Fuggo, fuggo—son vil.

SHARPLESS: Vel dissi . . . vi ricorda?
quando la man vi diede:
Badate, ella ci crede
e fui profeta allor.
Sorda ai consigli, sorda ai dubbi—vilipesa nell'ostinata attesa
tutto raccolse il cor.
Ma ormai quel cor sincero
forse presago è già.
Andate—il triste vero
da sola apprenderà.
(Pinkerton, strette le mani al Console, esce rapidamento, mentre Kate e Suzuki vengono dal giardino)

KATE: (a Suzuki) Glielo dirai?

SUZUKI: Prometto.

KATE: E le darai consiglio di affidarmi? . . .

Butterfly should see her, no matter.
Then with her eyes she will learn
The cruel truth we dare not tell her.

SUZUKI: Oh, woe is me!
(Sharpless pushes her into the garden, where she joins Mrs. Pinkerton)

PINKERTON: Oh, the bitter fragrance
Of these flowers,
It is poison to my heart.
Unchanged is the chamber
Where once we loved—
But a deathly chill haunts the air.
(sees his own likeness and takes it up)
And here my portrait!
(puts it down)
Faded is the likeness,
Just like a leaf pressed between pages.
Three years have passed away,
And every day, every hour she counted—
(agitated by these reminiscences he turns to Sharpless)
I cannot remain,—Sharpless, I'll wait for you Outside. Give her this money, just to support her—(gives the Consul some money)
Remorse and anguish choke me.

SHARPLESS: Is it not as I told you!

PINKERTON: Yes. In one sudden moment
I see my heartless action,
And feel that I shall never free myself
From remorse.
Haunted for ever I shall be
By her reproachful eyes.
Farewell, O happy home!
Farewell, home of love!
I cannot bear to stay!
Like a coward let me fly—
Farewell!

SHARPLESS: I warned you—you remember?
When in your hand she laid hers:
"Be careful, for she believes you."
Alas, how true I spoke!
Deaf to doubting, humiliation,
Blindly trusting to your promise
Her heart will break.
But now this faithful heart
Has perhaps already divined.
Now go—the cruel truth
She should hear alone.
(Pinkerton, wringing the Consul's hands, goes out quickly as Kate and Suzuki come in from the garden)

KATE: (to Suzuki) Then you will tell her?

SUZUKI: I promise.

KATE: And you will counsel her
To trust me?

SUZUKI: Prometto.

KATE: Lo terrò come un figlio.

SUZUKI: Vi credo. Ma bisogna ch'io le sia sola accanto . . .
Nella grande ora—sola!—Piangerà tanto tanto!

BUTTERFLY: (dall'interno della camera superiore) Suzuki, dove sie . . . parla . . .
(appare in cima alla scaletta) Suzuki! . . .

SUZUKI: (fa cenno agli altri di tacere, poi risponde:) Son qui . . . pregavo e rimettevo a posto . . .
(Butterly scende: Suzuki si precipita verso la scaletta per impedire a Butterfly di scendere)
No . . . no . . . non discendete . . .

BUTTERFLY: (discende precipitosa, svincolandosi da Suzuki che cerca invano di trattenerla, poi si aggira per la stanza con grande agitazione, ma giubilante) È qui . . . dov'è nascosto?
(vede Sharpless)
Ecco il Console . . . e . . . dove?
dove? . . .
(cerca dietro ai paraventi)
Non c'è.
(si volge a vede Madama Pinkerton)
Chi siete?
Perchè veniste? Niuno parla! . . . Perchè piangete
No: non ditemi nulla . . . nulla—forse potrei cader morta sull'attimo.—Tu Suzuki che sei tanto buona—non piangere!—e mi vuoi tanto bene un Sì od un No—di' piano—Vive?

SUZUKI: Sì.

BUTTERFLY: Ma non viene
più. Te l'han detto! . . .
(irritata al silenzio di Suzuki)
Vespa! Voglio che tu risponda.

SUZUKI: Mai più.

BUTTERFLY: Ma è giunto ieri?

SUZUKI: Sì.

BUTTERFLY: (guarda Kata, quasi affascinata) Quella donna bionda mi fa tanta paura! Mi fa tanta paura!

SHARPLESS: E la causa innocente
d' ogni vostra sciagura Perdonatele.

BUTTERFLY: Ah! è sua moglie!
Tutto è morto per me!
Tutto è finito!

SUZUKI: I promise.

KATE: I will care for him like a son.

SUZUKI: I trust you! But I must be alone beside her
In this cruel hour! She will weep so sorely!

BUTTERFLY: (calling from the room above) Suzuki, Suzuki, where are you?
(appears at the head of the staircase)

SUZUKI: (signs to the others to keep quiet, then answers:) I'm here. I was praying, and going back to watch—(Butterfly comes down. Suzuki rushes toward the staircase to prevent her from coming)
No, no, do not come down.

BUTTERFLY: (comes down quickly, freeing herself from Suzuki, who tries in vain to hold her back; then she paces the room in a state of great excitement but happiness) He's here—where is he hidden?
(see Sharpless)
Here is the Consul—and where is?—where is?— (looks behind the screens)
Not here!
(turns and sees Mrs. Pinkerton)
Who are you?
Why have you come?—No one answers!—Why are you weeping?
No, no, tell me nothing—nothing—lest I fall dead
At your feet at the words I hear!
You, Suzuki,
Are always so faithful—do not weep, I pray!
Since you love me so dearly, say "yes" or "no" quite softly,
He lives?

SUZUKI: Yes.

BUTTERFLY: But he'll come
No more. They have told you!
(angered at Suzuki's silence)
Woman, I want you to reply.

SUZUKI: No more.

BUTTERFLY: He reached here yesterday?

SUZUKI: Yes.

BUTTERFLY: (looks at Kate as though compelled) Who is this lady
That terrifies me—terrifies me?

SHARPLESS: Through no fault of her own
She's the cause of your trouble. Forgive her, pray.

BUTTERFLY: Ah! She is the wife
All is dead for me—
All is finished.

SHARPLESS: Corragio!

BUTTERFLY: Voglion prendermi tutto! il figlio mio.

SHARPLESS: Fatelo pel suo bene il sacrifizio.

BUTTERFLY: Ah! triste madre!
Abbandonar mio figlio
E sia! A lui devo obbedir!

KATE: (dolcemente) Potete perdonarmi, Butterfly?

BUTTERFLY: (con aria grave)
Sotto il gran ponte del cielo non v' è donna di voi più felice.
Siatelo sempre felice
e non vi rattristate mai per me.
Mi piacerebbe pur che gli diceste che pace io troverò.

KATE: (stendendo la mano) E la mano . . . la man . . . me la dareste?

BUTTERFLY: (ritraendosi un poco ma rispondendo, con dolcezza) Vi prego—questo . . . no . . .
Andate adesso.

KATE: (avviandosi, dice a Sharpless:) Povera piccina!

SHARPLESS: (assai commosso) È un' immensa pietà!

KATE: (sottovoce a Sharpless) E il figlio lo darà?

BUTTERFLY: (che ha udito) A lui lo potrò dare se lo verrà a cercare.
Fra mezz' ora salite la collina.
(Suzuki accompagna Kate e Sharpless che escono dalla porta di destra. Butterfly si regge a stento: Suzuki si affretta a sorreggeria)

SUZUKI: (mettendo una mano sul cuore a Butterfly) Come una mosca prigioniera l' ali batte il piccolo cuor!

BUTTERFLY: (si è riavuta e vedendo che è giorno fatto si scioglie de Suzuki dicendole:) Troppo luce è di fuor,
e troppa primavera.
Chiudi.
(Suzuki chiude porte e tende: la camera rimane quasi in completa oscurita)
(a Suzuki) Il bimbo ove sia?

SUZUKI: Giuoca. Lo chiamo?

SHARPLESS: Courage!

BUTTERFLY: And you will take everything from me!
He is my child.

SHARPLESS: Make the sacrifice for him.

BUTTERFLY: It's hard for me, very hard.
Abandoned! ah! my son!
To him I owe my duty.

KATE: (gently) Can you not forgive me, Butterfly?

BUTTERFLY: (solemnly) Beneath the blue vault of heaven
There is no happier lady than you are—
May you remain so
Nor ever be saddened through me—
Yet it would please me greatly
That you should tell him
That peace will come to me—

KATE: (holding out her hand)
Your hand—your hand, may I take it?

BUTTERFLY: (drawing back, but replying kindly) I pray you—no—not that!
Now go and leave me.

KATE: (going away, says to Sharpless) Poor little lady!

SHARPLESS: (deeply moved) Oh, the pity of it all!

KATE: (whispers to Sharpless)
And can he have his son?

BUTTERFLY: (who has heard) His son I will give him
If he will come and fetch him.
Climb this hill in half an hour from now.
(Suzuki escorts Kate and Sharpless, who go out by the door on the right; Butterfly is on the point of collapsing; Suzuki hastens to support her)

SUZUKI: (laying her hand on Butterfly's heart) Like to a poor imprisoned bird Beats this little fluttering heart!

BUTTERFLY: (gradually recovers; seeing that it is now broad daylight she disengages herself from Suzuki and says:) Too much light shines outside,
And too much smiling spring.
Close them.
(pointing to the curtains)
(Suzuki closes doors and curtains—the room is almost in total darkness)
Where is the child?

SUZUKI: Playing. Shall I call him!

BUTTERFLY: Lascialo giuocar.
(congedandola)
Va.—Fagli compagnia.

SUZUKI: Non vi voglio lasciar.
(si getta ai piedi di Butterfly piangendo)
Resto con voi.

BUTTERFLY: (risolutamente batte le maui) Va—va. Te lo comando.
(fa alzare Suzuki a la springe fuori dell'uscio di sinistra.—Poi Butterfly accende un lumedavanti al reliquiario, si inchina e rimane immobile assorta in doloroso pensiero: va allo stipo, ne leva un grau volo bianco che getta sul paravento; poi prende il coltelloehe chi, uso in un astuccio di lacca, sta appeso alla parete presso il simulacro di Budda, lo impugna e ne bacia religiosamente la lama tenendola colle due mani per la punta e per l'impugnature: quindl legge le parole che sono incise sulla lama:)
"Con onor muore
Chi non può serbar vita con onore."
(si appunta il coltello alla gola; s'apre la porta di sinistra e si vede il braccio di Suzuki che spinge il bambino verso la madre; il bimbo entra correndo colle manine alzate; Butterfly lascia cadere il coltello, si precipita verso il bambino, lo abbraccia soffocandolo di baci.)
Tu, tu, piccolo Iddio!
Amore, amore mio,
fior di giglio e di rosa,
qui la tua testa bionda qui, ch'io nasconda la fronte dolorosa ne' tuoi capelli. Non saperlo mai per te, per i tuoi puri occhi, muor Butterfly perchè tu possa andare di là dal mare senza che ti rimorda ai di maturi il materno abbandono.
O a me, sceso dal trono dell' alto Paradiso, guarda ben fiso, fiso
di tua madre là faccia! . . .
che te'n resti una traccia,
sia pur pallida e poca.
Che non tutto consunto
vada di mia beltà l'ultimo fior.
(guarda lungamente il suo bimbo e lo bacia ancora)
Addio! piccolo amor!
Va. Gioca, gioca.
(Butterfly prende il bambino, lo mette su di una stuoia col viso voltato verso sinistra, guardà in mano una banderuola americana ed una puppattola e lo invita a trastullarsi mentre delicatamente gli benda gli occhi. Poi afferra il coltello, chiude la porta di sinistra e collo sguardo sempre fisso sul figlio, va dietro il paravento. Si ode cadera a terra il col-

BUTTERFLY: Leave him at his play.
(dismissing her)
Go—go and play with him.

SUZUKI: I will not leave you alone.
(throws herself weeping at Butterfly's feet)
I stay with you.

BUTTERFLY: (resolutely—clapping her hands) Go—go—obey my orders.
(makes the weeping Suzuki rise, and pushes her outside the exit on the left. Then Butterfly goes in front of the image of Buddha, bows before it and remains motionless, lost in sad thought; she goes to the shrine and takes from it a large white veil which she throws across the screen; she takes the dagger which, in a waxen sheath, is leaning against the wall near the image of Buddha, and piously kisses the blade, holding it with both hands by the point and by the handle; then she reads the words inscribed on the blade:)
"To die with honor
When one can no longer live with honor."
(she points the dagger at her throat; the door on the left opens and shows Suzuki's arm pushing in the child to his mother; the child runs to her with outstretched hands. Butterfly lets fall the dagger, darts towards the child and hugs and kisses him almost to suffocation)
You, you beloved idol!
Adored being! Fairest
Flower of beauty!
Here on your dear fair head,
Here let me bury
My tortured brow
Among your curls.
though you must never know it
It is for you I'm dying,
I, poor Butterfly,
That you may go away
Beyond the ocean,
Never to feel the torment when you are older
That your mother forsook you!
O my son, sent to me from Heaven,
Straight from the throne of glory!
Take one last careful look
At your poor mother's face!
That its memory may linger,
Even though it may be dim and faint.
Let not my beauty's lingering bloom
Be faded!
Farewell, beloved!
Go—play—play.
(Butterfly takes the child, sets him on a stool with his face turned to the left, puts the American flag and a doll in his hands and motions him to play with them, while she gently bandages his eyes. Then she seizes a dagger, and her eyes still fixed on the child, goes behind the screen. The knife is heard

MINNIE: Ogni notte rimangon qui a vegliarlo a turno, un po' per uno.
Stanotte son partiti sulle peste di quel dannato . . .
(con impeto)
Oh, ma, se qualcuno vuole quell'oro, prima di toccarlo, dovrà uccidermi qui!

JOHNSON: Minnie!
E potete correr tanto rischio per ciò che non è vostro?

MINNNIE: (posa il piede sul barile come per custodirlo) Oh, lo fareste anche voi!
Se sapeste quanta fatica costa, e com'è caro questo denaro!
È una lotta superba!
l'alcali, il sasso, la creta, la zolla:
tutto è nemico! S'accoscian sull'erba umida: il fango negli occhi, nell'ossa, nel cuore! E un giorno, con l'anima frolla, col dorso ricurvo, con arso il cervello, sull'orlo a una fossa,
in riva a un ruscello
s'adagian: non sorgono più!
(si sofferma, pensosa; si commove, a un ricordo; siede sul barile) Povera gente! Quanti son di loro che han lasciato lontano una famiglia, una sposa, dei bimbi,
e son venuti a morir come cani,
in mezzo alla fanghiglia, per mandare un po' d'oro ai cari vecchi, ed ai bimbi lontani!
(risoluta, con semplicità)
Ecco, Johnson, perchè chi vuol quest'oro, prima passerà su di me!

JOHNSON: (con subito impeto)
Oh, non temete, nessuno ardirà!
(con un movimento appassionato)
Come mi piace sentirvi parlare!
E me ne debbo andare . . .
Avrei voluto
salire a darvi l'ultimo saluto nella vostra capanna . . .

MINNIE: (malinconica) Dovete proprio andare?
Che peccato!
(si avvicina alla porta stà un momento in ascolto)
I ragazzi saranno qui fra poco.
Quando saran tornati, io me ne andrò.
Se volete venirmi a salutare, seguiteremo la conversazione standoci accanto al fuoco . . .

JOHNSON: (esita, poi decidendosi) Grazie, Minnie . . .
Verrò.

MINNIE: (scherzosa e triste) Non vi aspettate molto!
Non ho che trenta dollari soli di educazione . . .
(si sforza a ridere, ma gli occhi le si gonfiano di lacrime)
Se studiavo di più, che avrei potuto essere?
Ci pensate?

JOHNSON: (commosso, come fantasticando) Ciò che avremmo potuto essere!
Io lo comprendo ora soltanto che vi guardo, Minnie!

MINNIE: (asciugandosi una lacrima) Davvero? . . .
Ma che vale!
(risale la scena, appoggia le braccia al banco colla faccia nascosta, singhiozzando)
Io non son che una povera fanciulla oscura, e buona a nulla . . .

JOHNSON: (le si avvicina, con tenerezza) No, Minnie, non piangete . . .
Voi non vi conoscete.
Siete una creatura d'anima buona e pura . . .
e avete un viso d'angiolo!
(Prende la sella, si avvia verso la porta con un gesto violento. Sta un momento in ascolto, poi apre, esce rapidamente. Nick accorre, cautamente abbassa i lumi intorno. Il silenzio è profondo. Nick si fa sulla porta e l'àpre, aspettando che la padrona esca. Minnie come stordita, rimane ferma in mezzo alla stanza oscura, illuminata solo dai guizzi del lumicino del sottoscala. A un tratto, come perduta in un ricordo inebriante, mormora, piano:)

MINNIE:
Ha detto . . .
Come ha detto?
(raccogliendosi tutta in un sospiro e coprendosi il viso con le mani)
Un viso d'angiolo! . . .
(Cala la tela lentamente)

ATTO SECONDO

L'Abitazione Di Minnie
È composta di una sola stanza, alla quale sovrasta un solaio, ovesono accatastati, con un certo ordine, bauli, casse vuote ed altri oggetti. La stanza è tappezzata nel gusto dell'epoca. Nel centro, in fondo, una porta che si apre sopra un breve vestibolo. A destra e a sinistra della porta, due finestre con tendine.

MINNIE: Every night they stay here and sleep around it.
Taking turns to guard it.
To-night they're all gone off
On the track of that rascal. (Impetuously.)
Oh! whoever wants that gold,
Can only get it
If he kills me first!

JOHNSON: Minnie!
Do you mean that you would run such risks
For that which is another's?

MINNIE: (places her foot on the keg as if to guard it): Oh, but you'd do the same!
If you knew how hard they work to get it!
What all this dearly won gold means to them!
It's a desperate struggle!
Alkali, rocks, the clay, the earth:
All dead aginst 'em!
They squat on the damp and dirty ground:
Till the dirt fills their eyes,
Their bones and their hearts!
And then one day with back bent,
With spirit broken, with brain on fire,
On the edge of a sluice, on the bank of a stream,
They lie down, and they don't rise again!
(She pauses, lost in thought, and moved by a reminiscence, sits down on the keg.)
Poor, wretched fellows! Scarce a man among them
Who hasn't left some people far away.
A wife or some children;
While he has come out to die,
Like a dog or a packhorse in the mire,
Just to send home some money
To help his folk at home and his children (Determinedly):
That's why the man
Who wants to take their gold
Will have to first kill me!

JOHNSON: (on a sudden impulse): Oh, have no fears, no one will dare!
(With an impassioned movement):
How much I like to hear you speak!
But I am bound to go now, I am bound to go:
Yet I wanted to say good-bye to you once more,
In your cabin on the hillside.

MINNIE: (dejectedly): Oh, must you really go now?
What a pity!
(Goes to the door and listens for a moment.)
The boys will be back quite soon now.
When they are back again, then I can go.
If you want to come and see my cabin,
We might go on with our conversation
Cosily by my fireside.

JOHNSON: Thank you, Minnie! I'll come.

MINNIE: Don't expect too much of me!
I've only thirty dollars' worth of education.
(She attempts to laugh, but her eyes fill with tears.)
If I'd studied more, you can't tell what I might have been!
Don't you think so?

JOHNSON: (touched, half playfully): When I think of what we might have been!
I understand it, Minnie,
When I look at you!

MINNIE: (wiping away a tear):
D'you mean it?
But what good is it?
A useless, good-for-nothing—
(Comes up the stage, leans her arms against the counter, sobbing, with her face hidden.)

JOHNSON: (goes up to her, tenderly): No, do not cry, dear Minnie,
You don't know yourself.
Nothing really matters
When you've a good, pure nature.
And you've the face of an angel!
(Takes his saddle, goes to the door with a violent gesture, stands listening a moment, then opens it and goes out quickly. Nick hastens in cautiously, lowers the lights. The silence is profound. Nick goes and opens the door, waiting for his mistress to go out. Minnie, half dazed, remains standing in the middle of the dark room, lighted only by the twinkling of the little lamp beneath the staircase.—Suddenly, as if lost in an intoxicating memory, she murmurs gently.)

MINNIE: He said.—
What did he say?
(Buries her face in her hands, giving vent to her feelings in a deep sigh.)
The face of an angel!
(The curtain falls slowly.)

ACT II

Minnie's Dwelling
It consists of a single room, above which is a loft where trunks, empty boxes and various things are neatly piled up. The room is papered according to the taste of the period. In the center, at the back, is a door opening onto a short landing. On the right and left of the door, two windows with curtains.

Appoggiato ad una delle pareti il letto, con la testa spinta sotto la tettoia formata dal solaio, coperto fino a metà da un baldacchino di cretonne a fiorellini. Ai piedi del letto, un piccolo tavolo, con sopra una catinella e la brocca dell'acqua, ed un canterano sul quale stanno diversi oggetti destinati alla toilette femminile.

Da un lato, in fondo, un armadio di legno di pino, sullo sportello del quale è appeso un attaccapanni con una vestaglia, un cappellino ed uno scialletto. Accanto all'armadio, un focolare basso, sulla cui cappa stanno una vecchia pendola, un lume a petrolio senza campana, una bottiglia di whisky ed un bicchiere. Un'altra mensola a tre ripiani, accanto al focolare, con piatti, vasetti, oggetti di cucina. Dinanzi al focolare, una pelle di orso. Quasi dinanzi alla porta, un poco più verso il focolare, una tavola apparecchiata per uno. Della crema, dei biscotti, una torta, delle fette di carne, una zuccheriera. Lampada su la tavola. Fra la tavola e il focolare, una sedia a dondolo, fatta con un vecchio barile tagliato a metà e posto sopra due mezze lune di legno. Altre sedie di cuoio disposte qua e là. Alle pareti sono appese delle vecchie oleografie e molti altri bizzarri oggetti.

Non è passata un'ora dal primo atto. Fuori fischia il vento. I vetri sono appannati dal gelo.

(Quando si alza la tela Wowkle è accoccolata per terra, presso al fuoco, col bambino nella cuna portatile che ha appesa sul dorso. Con voce molle e monotona canta al bimbo una ninna nanna, cullandolo sul dorso)

WOWKLE: "Il mio bimbo è grande e piccino, è piccino e stà dentro la cuna,
è grande e tocca la luna,
tocca la luna col suo ditino.
Hao, wari! Hao, wari! . . . "
(Billy batte all'uscio ed entra. Spesso, durante la scena, i due indiani emettono un mugolio sordo, fra nasale e gutturale, molto simile ad un grugnito)

BILLY: (entrando, come un saluto) Ugh . . . (la stanza come a spiare che effetto farà la sua casa su Johnson: ha un mantello rosso sopra il suo abito del primo atto. Ella appende la lanterna al chiodo di legno dell'uscio esterno. Wowkle alza la fiamma al lume della tavola)

MINNIE: Billy, è fissato?

BILLY: Domani . . .

MINNIE: Sta bene. Va via.
(Billy esce. A Wowkle)
Stanotte, Wowkle, cena per due.

WOWKLE: Altro venire?
Ugh!
Mia prima d'ora.

MINNIE: (appende il mantello all'attaccapanni) Zitta, e pulisci!
Cio non ti riguarda.
Che ora è?
Sarà qui fra poco . . .
(vede le calze stese, le strappa via, scuote Wowkle per una spalla)
Guarda!
(butta le calze in un cassetto. Wowkle mette i piatti sulla tavola. Minnie si guarda intorno)
Dove hai messo le mie rose rosse?

WOWKLE: (indicando il canterano, col solito grugnito)
Ugh . . .

MINNIE: (si trae dal petto la pistola e la ripone nel cassetto. Prende le rose e se la appunta fra i capelli guardandosi allo specchio) Y bimbo come sta?
Billy davvero t'ha detto . . . ?

WOWKLE: Noi sposare.

MINNIE: (gettandole un nastro)
To', pel bimbo!
(Wowkle ripone il nastro, continua ad apparecchiare. Minnie ha levato dal cassetto un paio di scarpette bianche)
Vorrei mettermi queste.
Le scarpette di Monterey . . .
(si siede in terra, scalzandosi rapidamente, e incomincia a infilarsene una) Purchè mi riesca d infilarle . . .
Ahi!
Son strette!
(La scarpetta, con grande sforzo è infilata. Poi anche l'altra scarpetta è calzata. Minnie si alza. Cammina un po' zoppicando) Guardami: credi che gli piaceranno?
(va al canterano con aria contenta)
Voglio vestirmi tutta come in giorno di festa, tutta, da capo a piedi.
(si butta sulle spalle lo scialle e si guarda nello specchio)
Non son poi tanto brutta . . .
(si versa dell'acqua di Colonia nel fazzoletto)
Anche il profumo . . .
Vedi?
(si infila i guanti, stretti e troppo corti)
E i guanti . . .

Running along on one of the walls is the bed, with its head underneath the room formed by the loft. It is half covered with a canopy of flowered cretonne. At the foot of the bed a small table, with handbasin and water-jug, also a bureau on which stand various feminine toilet accessories.

On one side, at the back, a pinewood wardrobe, on the door of which a dress, a hat and a shawl are hanging from a hook. Close by, a low fireplace, on the mantelshelf of which stand an old clock, an oil lamp without a globe, a bottle of whisky and a glass. Another three-shelved bracket close to the hearth holds plates, pots, kitchen utensils. In front of the hearth, a bear skin. Almost in front of the door, rather nearer the fireplace, is a table laid for one, with cream, biscuits, a tart, some slices of meat and a sugar basin, a lamp on the table. Between the table and the fireplace is a rocking-chair, made out of an old barrel cut in half, and set on two half-moon-shaped pieces of wood. Some other leather chairs about the room. The walls are hung with old oleographs and many other quaint objects.

Only one hour has elapsed since Act I. The wind is whistling outside; the panes are covered with frost.

(When the curtain rises Wowkle is squatting on the floor near the fire, her papoose on her back in a portable cradle. Her cape is open at the neck and turned down; it is tied round the waist with a red-fringed sash; buckskin moccasins; her hair parted in the middle, falling in two plaits tied with a ribbon. Round her neck she wears a number of strings of glass beads in various colors, also white and red striped; silver earrings and bracelets. She is young, sweet-faced, plump, supple and voluptuous; the regular type of an Indian squaw. Her eyes are small and beady. In a soft, monotonous voice she sings a lullaby to her baby, rocking it on her back.)

WOWKLE: (singing and rocking the baby): "Grant, O Sungod, grant thy protection, Guard this innocent infant sleeping,
Starry guardian, ever joyful,
Faithful Moongod, ever watchful.
Hao, wari! Hao, wari!"
(Billy knocks at the door and enters. At frequent intervals during this scene the two Indians utter a low growl, half nasal, half guttural, very like a grunt.)

BILLY: (coming in, grunts a greeting): Ugh!

MINNIE: Billy, have you fixed it?

BILLY: Tomorrow . . .

MINNIE: That's right.
Now go.
(Billy goes out. To Wowkle.)
This evening, Wowkle, supper for two.

WOWKLE: Come another?
Ugh!
Never before.

MINNIE: (hangs her cloak on the hook): You just get ready!
What's the time?
He's coming quite soon.
(Sees the stockings hanging up and snatches them down, clapping Wowkle on the shoulder.)
Look there!
(Pops the stockings into a chest. Wowkle puts the plates on the table.)
Where have you put my red roses?

WOWKLE: (points to chest of drawers, with usual grunt):
Ugh . . .

MINNIE: (takes the pistol from her bodice and puts it away in the chest. Fixes the roses in her hair, looking in the mirror as she does it): And baby, how is he?
Has Billy honestly told you?

WOWKLE: We get married.

MINNIE: (throwing Wowkle a ribbon): Here!
For baby!
(Wowkle folds the ribbon and goes on with her preparations. Minnie has taken a pair of white slippers from the chest.)
Now I'm going to wear these—
These slippers from Monterey—
If only I'm able to get inside 'em.
Oh, they are tight! Oh, how tight!
Look at me: how do you think he'll like 'em?
I've got a fancy he'll like me in my best bib and tucker.
I'm going to wear all my finest!
(Drapes the shawl over her shoulders and looks in the glass.)
Well, I'm not so ugly!
(Pours some Eau de Cologne on her handkerchief.)
Now I'll scent it, see?
(Puts on her gloves, tight and too short for her.)
My gloves too, I haven't worn them for quite a year!
(Looks at herself again, very pleased with the effect, and turns to Wowkle.)
Think it looks a bit too dressy?

È più d'un anno che non li metto!
(guardandosi ancora, impacciata e contenta, e volgendosi a Wowkle) Dimmi, Wowkle, non gli farò l'effetto d'essere poi troppo elegante?

WOWKLE: (che ha assistito in piedi, immobile, alla toeletta della padrona)
Ugh . . .
(di fuori si bussa)

MINNIE: (ha un sussulto)
Wowkle, è già qui!
(si allaccia in fretta il corpetto, si tira su le calze, va ad aprire. Wowkle osserva di dietro alla cortina)

JOHNSON: (comparisce sulla porta con una lanterna in mano. È in pelliccia) Hello!

MINNIE: (presso il letto, imbarazzata, vergognosa) Buona sera!

JOHNSON: (osservandola) Uscivate?

MINNIE: (estremamente confusa) Sì . . .
No . . .
Non so.
Entrate.

JOHNSON: (posa la lanterna sul tavolo) Come siete graziosa!
(fa l'atto d'abbracciarla)

WOWKLE: Ugh! . . . (chiude la porta. Minnie si ritrae, aggrottando le sopracciglie)

JOHNSON: (si volge, vede Wowkle) (a Minnie) Perdonate.
Non avevo osservato . . .

MINNIE: (con aria offesa) Basta così, signore:
non aggiungete scuse.

JOHNSON: (continuando) Mi siete apparsa così bella . . .

MINNIE: (ancora un poco risentita, sedendosi alla tavola dalla parte del focolare) È un andare un po' troppo per le corte.

JOHNSON: (avvicinandosele) Vi prego di scusare . . .

MINNIE: (seria) Siete pentito?

JOHNSON: (scherzoso) Affatto! . . .
(Minnie, che stà a capo chino, lo guarda di sotto in su, incontra il suo sguardo ed arrossisce. Wowkle spegne la lanterna di Johnson a la posa in terra. Si toglie dalle spalle il bimbo e la posa sull'armadio)

JOHNSON: (accennando alla propria pelliccia) Mi tolgo?
(Minnie risponde con un gesto di consenso. Egli si toglie la pelliccia, la depone col cappello sulla sedia accanto alla porta) Grazie.
(si avvicina a Minnie, tendendole

WOWKLE: (who has been assisting her in stolid silence):
Ugh . . .
(A knock outside.)

MINNIE: (starting): Wowkle, here he is!
(Does up her bodice hastily; pulls up her stockings.)

JOHNSON: (appears in the doorway with a lantern in his hand. He is wearing a fur coat): Hello!

MINNIE: (by the bed, embarrassed and confused): Good evening!

JOHNSON: (looking at her dress): Going out?

MINNIE: (intensely confused):
Yes . . .
No . . .
Dunno . . .
Come in.

JOHNSON: (puts the lantern on the table): Why, how pretty you're looking!
(About to embrace her.)

WOWKLE: Ugh! . . .
(Shuts the door. Minnie draws back, frowning.)

JOHNSON: (turns and perceives Wowkle): I beg your pardon.
I had not time to notice . . .

MINNIE: (offended): That's quite enough, Mr. Johnson:
No need for more excuses.

JOHNSON: I saw you standing there so lovely . . .

MINNIE: (still rather huffy, sits on the table, near the fireplace):
Aren't you going a little bit too quickly?

JOHNSON: (going up to her): I hope you'll forgive me . . .

MINNIE: (seriously): Are you sorry?

JOHNSON: (playfully): Not at all!
(Minnie, with head bent down, looks at him from under her lashes, meets his glance and blushes. Wowkle has extinguished Johnson's lantern and puts it on the ground. She takes the baby from her shoulders and puts it in the cupboard.)

JOHNSON: (pointing to his overcoat): May I?
(Minnie makes a sign of assent. He takes off his fur coat, and puts it with his cap on the seat by the door.)
Thank you.
(He goes up to Minnie with out- la mano:)

Amici?
(Minnie, vinta, sorride e gli stende la mano. Poi rimane in atteggiamento pensoso)
Che pensate?

MINNIE: Un pensiero . . .
Questa notte alla "Polka" non veniste per me . . .
Che vi condusse, allora? Forse è vero che smarriste il sentiero della Micheltorena?

JOHNSON: (tenta ancora d'abbracciarla, come per sviare il discorso) Minnie! . . .

MINNIE: (scostandosi) Wowkle, il caffè!

JOHNSON: (guardandosi attorno) Che graziosa stanzetta!

MINNIE: Vi piace?

JOHNSON: È tutta piena di voi . . .
Che cosa strana
la vostra vita, su questa montagna solitaria, lontana dal mondo!

MINNIE: (con gaiezza) Oh, se sapeste come il vivere è allegro!
Ho un piccolo polledro che mi porta a galoppo laggiù per la campagna;
per prati di giunchiglie,
di garofani ardenti, per riviere profonde
cui profuman le sponde
gelsomini e vainiglie!
Poi ritorno ai miei pini ai monti della Sierra, così al cielo vicini che Iddio passando pare la sua mano v'inclini.
lontani dalla terra così, che vien la voglia di battere alla soglia
del cielo, per entrare

JOHNSON: (attento, sorpreso e interessato) E quando infurian le tormente?

MINNIE: Oh, allora sono occupata.
È aperta l'Accademia . . .

JOHNSON: L'Accademia?

MINNIE: (ridendo) È la scuola dei minatori.

JOHNSON: E la maestra?

MINNIE: Io stessa,
(Johnson ta guarda ammirato. Minnie offrendogli il dolce)
Del biscotto alla crema?

JOHNSON: (servendosi) Grazie . . .
Vi piace leggere?

MINNIE: Molto.

JOHNSON: Vi manderò dei libri.

stretched hand.)
Are we friends, Girl?
(Minnie, vanquished, smiles and gives her hand, then she remains in a pensive attitude.)
What are you thinking?

MINNIE: I've been thinking,
When you come to the "Polka,"
You weren't coming for me—
What took you there, then, this evening?
Was it perhaps true you mistook
The pathway that leads to Micheltorena?

JOHNSON: (tries to embrace her again as if to change the subject): Minnie!

MINNIE: (drawing back): Wowkle, the coffee!

JOHNSON: (looking about him): What a nice, cosy room!

MINNIE: D'you like it?

JOHNSON: Everything in it is like you.
How curious
To live alone
Like you on the mountain,
Far away from all the world!

MINNIE: Oh, you've no notion
How exciting my life is!
You should see my little pinto—
See him carry me at a gallop,
Right down beyond the foothills—
Thro' meadows full of lilies,
All ablaze with golden jonquils.
Then I drift down the river,
Scented all along its banks
With jessamine and wild syringa.
When I'm tired I go back
To my mountains, my Sierras.
O my dearly-loved mountains,
They are so high,
The hand of God seems to touch them!
So far from earth,
And so near to God that you're longing
To let your soul drift upwards to Heaven,
To soar on high!

JOHNSON: (struck, surprised, and interested): But when the winter storms are raging?

MINNIE: Why then, I'm very busy.
Academy is open.

JOHNSON: What academy?

MINNIE: That's the school
I run for the miners.

JOHNSON: And who's the teacher?

MINNIE: Why, I am.
(Johnson looks at her in admiration. Minnie offers him cakes.)
Will you have some cream pastry?

JOHNSON: (helping himself):
Thank you.
You fond of reading?

MINNIE: Very.

JOHNSON: I'll send you up some books.

MINNIE: Oh, grazie, grazie!
Delle storie d'amore?

JOHNSON: Se volete.
Vi piacciono?

MINNIE: (appassionatamente)
Tanto!
Per me l'amore è una cosa infinita!
Non potrò mai capire come si possa, amando una persona desiderarla per un' ora sola.

JOHNSON: Credo che abbiate torto.
Vi sono delle donne che si vorrebber nella nostra vita per quell'ora soltanto . . .
E poi morire!

MINNIE: (scherzosa, piegandosi su lui) Davvero?
E . . . quante volte siete morto?
(offrendogli un sigaro)
Uno dei nostri avana?
(a Wowkle)
La candela!
(Wowkle accende la candela e la porta a Johnson che accende il sigaro, poi Johnson va verso l'uscita, ritornando poi verso Minnie cercando di abbracciarla) (sfuggendogli)
Ah, le mie rose!
Me le sciuperete!

JOHNSON: Perchè non le togliete?
(cercando di cingere Minnie)
Un bacio, un bacio solo!

MINNIE: (sciogliendosi con dolce violenza) Mister Johnson, si chiede spesso la mano . . . per avere il braccio!

JOHNSON: Il labbro nega . . . quando il cuor concede!

MINNIE: (a poco a poco affascinata, si toglie le rose, le ripene nel cassetto coi guanti) Wowkle, tu a casa!
(Wowkle borbottando prende il bimbo dall' armadio, si lo mette sul dorso, c. si avvolge nella coperta avviandosi alla porta)

JOHNSON: Anch'io? . . .

MINNIE: (graziosa)
Voi . . . potete restare un'ora . . . o due, ancora.
(Johnson ha un piccolo grido di gioia. Wowkle apre la porta)

WOWKLE: Ugh . . . Neve!
(Il vento turbina e fischia)

MINNIE: (nervosa) Va! Riposati sul fieno.
(Wowkle esce con un ultimo brontolio, chiudendo dietro a sè la porta)

JOHNSON: (a Minnie tendendole le braccia) Un bacio, un bacio almeno, uno soltanto!

MINNIE: Oh, thank you, thank you!
Some stories of love?

JOHNSON: If you want them.
D'you like them best?

MINNIE: Yes, rather!
I think true love must last forever!
What I can't understand is how a person
Who loves another can wish to have her
Just for one short hour.

JOHNSON: There I think you're wrong.
There are some women with whom one longs to Have one hour, just one short hour of rapture,
Then to die for them!

MINNIE: (playfully, leaning towards him): Indeed, I wonder how often you have died?
(Offering him the cigars.)
One of our real Havanas?
(To Wowkle.)
The candle!
(Wowkle brings the candle. Johnson lights his cigar and then gets up laughing. He goes to the door, then comes back and tries once more to embrace Minnie.) (Escaping him.)
Ah, my roses, you'll crush them!

JOHNSON: Why don't you take them off?
(Trying to embrace Minnie.)
Just one kiss, one little kiss, dear!

MINNIE: Mister Johnson, if you give a man an inch
He'll take an ell!

JOHNSON: Your lips deny me . . . while your heart is consenting!

MINNIE: (takes off her roses and puts them in the chest with her gloves.) Wowkle, go home now!
(Wowkle, grumbling, takes the baby from the cupboard, puts it on her back, and wrapping herself up in the blanket, turns to the door.)

JOHNSON: I, too?

MINNIE: (graciously): You may stay if you like—
An hour or two.
(Johnson gives a little cry of pleasure. Wowkle opens the door.)

WOWKLE: Ugh—Snowing!
(The wind howls and whistles. As she opens the door, the bed and window curtains flutter and the lights flare up.)

MINNIE: (nervously): Go and lie down on the hay then.
(Wowkle goes out, shutting the door behind her.)

JOHNSON: (holding his arms out to Minnie): A kiss—
I must have one!

MINNIE: (si getta nelle sue braccia) Eccolo!
È tuo!
(S'apre la porta, che sbatte violentèmente a più riprese; tutto si agita al vento che entra furioso e raffiche di neve penetrano nella stanza. Minnie e Johnson abbracciandosi si baciano con grande emozione, dimentichi di tutto e di tutti.—La porta si chiude da sè; cessa il tumulto, tutto ritornando alla calma; dal di fuori si odono ancora raffiche di vento)
(S'apre la porta, che sbatte violentèmente a più riprese; tutto si agita al vento che entra furioso e raffiche di neve penetrano nella stanza. Minnie e Johnson abbracciandosi si baciano con grande emozione, dimentichi di tutto e di tutti.—La porta si chiude da sè; cessa il tumulto, tutto ritornando alla calma; dal di fuori si odono ancora raffiche di vento)

JOHNSON: (con grande emozione) Minnie . . .
Che dolce nome!

MINNIE: Ti piace?

JOHNSON: Tanto!
T'amo da che t'ho vista . . .
(Ha un improvviso movimento come di raccapriccio e si discosta da Minnie, come facendo forza a sè stesso)
Ah, no, non mi guardare, non m'ascoltare!
Minnie, è un sogno vano!

MINNIE: (non comprendendo, con voce umile) Perchè questa parola?
Lo so, sono una povera figliuola . . .
(riscotendosi, senza ripulsa, dolcissimi) Sognavo . . . Si stava tanto bene! . . . Ora conviene darci la buona notte . . . (Johnson scuote il capo triste; si domina; Minnie gli accenna il letto)
Ecco il tuo letto . . . (trae presso il focolare la pelle d'orso; cerca della guardaroba una coperta e un cuscino) Io presso il focolare . . .

JOHNSON: (opponendosi) Non vorrò mai! . . .

MINNIE: (dolcissima) Ci sono avvezza, sai? Quasi ogni notte, quando fa troppo freddo, mi rannicchio in quella pelle d'orso e m'addormento. (Minnie posa la candela sul focolare; spegna il lume sul caminetto; abbassa un poco quello del cassettone abbassa quello sopra la tavola, salendo su una sedia per giungervi; va dietro la guardaroba: si sveste, rimsnendo con la lunga camicia bianca, ricoperta da un ampio accappatoio di colore vivace; Johnson ha gettato sul letto il suo MINNIE: (throws herself in his arms): Well, if you must!

(Johnson kisses her passionately on the mouth, bending over her as she abandons herself to his caresses): I love you very dearly!
(The snowstorm reaches the height of its violence. A great gust blows the door open, the snow drifts into the room, in the draught the other doors bang, the wind howls, the lights flicker, everything is disturbed. Johnson and Minnie remain in each other's arms, motionless and oblivious of everything in the midst of the turmoil. Suddenly the clock strikes two, and they spring apart, almost violently.—For one moment they stand gazing at each other, a few steps apart.—They are breathless.—Minnie's bosom is heaving.—She goes to the door, shuts it, goes back to the table, smoothes her disordered hair and sits down. Johnson goes up to her, takes her hand and kisses it.)

JOHNSON: Minnie!
What a pretty name!

MINNIE: D'you like it?

JOHNSON: So much!
Right from the first I loved you.
(Has a sudden movement as of horror, and moves away from Minnie.)
Ah, no, don't look this way,
And don't you listen, Minnie, it's all no use!

MINNIE: (not understanding, humbly): What are you saying that for?
I know I'm very poor and humble.
I was dreaming!
I was so very happy!
But now, dear love,
We've got to say good-night.
(Johnson shakes his head sadly, controls himself. Minnie points to the bed.)
That is your bed.
(Dragging her bearskin to the fireplace.) And I will lie down here.

JOHNSON: I'd rather not!

MINNIE: (promptly): I really like it best.
How oft in winter, when it's too cold at night-time,
I lie sleeping all curled up
In my bearskin before the fire.
(Minnie puts the candle on the hearth; puts out the light on the chimney-piece; lowers the one on the chest; lowers the one above the table, climbing on a chair to reach it; goes behind the wardrobe, undresses, keeping on a long white nightgown, covered with an ample, brightly colored mantello e il cappello. Minnie riappare; guarda a Johnson; rialza un poco la fiamma del lume di mezzo)	cloak; Johnson has thrown his coat and cap on the bed. Minnie reappears, looks at Johnson, and turns up the center lamp a little again.) Now you can talk to me a little from your bed . . . Ora mi puoi parlare là, dalla tua cuccetta . . .

JOHNSON: Benedetta! (Minnie aggiusta i cuscini: calza le pianelle indiane: s'inginocchia a pregare: si ravvolge nella coperta e si corica. Vento e urli di fuori: Johnson fa per gettarsi sul letto; poi si avvicina all'uscio, origliando: parlano a bassa voce) Che sarà?	JOHNSON: Best beloved! (Minnie, after having arranged her pillows and put on her moccasins, kneels down to say her prayers. Johnson is about to throw himself on the bed—then he goes to the door listening. Minnie wraps herself in the bearskin and curls herself up. The wind howls outside.) What is that?
MINNIE: Son folate di nevischio . . .	MINNIE: The thud of falling snow.
JOHNSON: Sembra gente che chiami . . . (ritorna al lettuccio e vi si getta sopra)	JOHNSON: Sounds like people calling.
MINNIE: È il vento dentro i rami . . . (sorgendo un poco) Dimmi il tuo nome . . .	MINNIE: It's the wind against the branches. (Pause. Johnson goes back to the bed and throws himself on it. Minnie raises herself a little.) Tell me your name.
JOHNSON: Dick . . .	JOHNSON: Dick.
MINNIE: (con sentimento) Per sempre, Dick! Non conoscesti mai Nina Micheltorena?	MINNIE: Forever, Dick! Say, did you ever know Nina Micheltorena?
JOHNSON: Per sempre!	JOHNSON: Never.
JOHNSON: . . . Mai.
MINNIE: Buona notte!	MINNIE: Goodnight!
JOHNSON: Buona notte!	JOHNSON: Goodnight!
	NICK: (outside, knocking at the door): Hello! (Minnie listens; Johnson draws open the bed-curtains and puts his pistols in his pocket.)
MINNIE: (con angoscia crescente, ribellandosi) Ah! Non è vero! Io so che non è vero!	MINNIE: (with growing anguish, refusing to believe): Oh! It's not true, I know it's not true!
RANCE: (sogghignando) Bada di non fidarti troppo un'altra volta!	RANCE: (sneering): Take care Not to be so trusting another time!
MINNIE: (scattando) Non è vero! Mentite!	MINNIE: I don't believe it! No, you're lying!
ASHBY: Questa notte alla "Polka" è venuto a rubare . . .	ASHBY: To-night at the "Polka," He came to rob it.
MINNIE: Ma non rubò!	MINNIE: But he did not rob it!
SONORA: (riflettendo) Non ha rubato, è vero . . . Pure, avrebbe potuto!	SONORA: (reflecting): That's what puzzles me. He didn't, yet he easily could have!
RANCE: Ha detto Nick che Sid l'ha veduto prender questo sentiero. È vero, Nick?	RANCE: We heard from Nick That Sid had seen him head along this trail. You said so, Nick?
NICK: È vero . . . (Minnie lo fissa, egli si turba)	NICK: I said so. (Minnie looks hard at Nick, who grows uneasy.)
RANCE: Qui finisce la traccia. Tu non l'hai visto . . . (guarda Minnie fissamente) Dov'è dunque andato?	RANCE: But the trail ends here. You haven't seen him? (Looks hard at Minnie.) Then where can he be?
(Nick, girando su e giù, ha scoperto in terra lo sigaro di Johnson, caduto dal tavolo. Passa d'accanto a Minnie: Minnie lo affisa, con intenzione)	(Nick, walking up and down, has discovered Johnson's cigar on the ground, fallen from the table. He passes close to Minnie. She stares at him meaningly.)
NICK: (piano) Uno dei nostri avana! E qui! (correggendosi) Forse ho sbagliato . . . Quel Sid è una linguaccia!	NICK: (to himself): One of our best Havanas! He's here—(correcting himself.) Perhaps I'm mistaken— That Sid is such a liar!
MINNIE: (alteramente) Ma chi vi ha detto, insomma, che il bandito sia Johnson?	MINNIE: But who on earth has told you That the road-agent's Johnson?
RANCE: (guardandola) La sua donna.	RANCE: (looking at her): His woman!
MINNIE: (scattando) La sua donna? Chi?	MINNIE: (bursts out): His woman? Who?
RANCE: (sogghignando) Nina.	RANCE: (sneering): Nina.
MINNIE: Nina Micheltorena? Lo conosce?	MINNIE: Nina Micheltorena? Does he know her?
RANCE: (ironico) È l'amante. Quando capimmo d'essere giocati, traemmo dietro Castro prigioniero, e prendemmo il sentiero verso le "Palme." Eravamo aspettati. Nina era là. Ci ha fatto vedere il suo ritratto . . . (si trae di petto la fotografia) A te!	RANCE: He's her lover. When we discovered we'd been fooled, We dragged Castro behind us And took the trail to the "Palmeto." We were expected there. Nina was there. She showed us her lover's photo— (Takes Johnson's photograph from his pocket.) See here!
MINNIE: (guarda il ritratto, profondamente commossa, poi lo restituisce con una piccola risata che vuol sembrare indifferente) Ah! Ah! . . .	MINNIE: (looks at the photo, terribly upset—then gives it back to him with a little laugh, meant to seem indifferent): Ha! Ha!
RANCE: Di che ridi?	RANCE: Why are you laughing?
MINNIE: Oh, di nulla . . . (con grande ironia) La compagnia gentile ch'egli si è scelto! Nina!	MINNIE: Oh, nothing? (disdainfully.) What charming company He has been keeping! Nina!
SONORA: Impara!	RANCE: Take warning!
MINNIE: Ora, ragazzi, e tardi . . . Buona notte.	MINNIE: Now, boys, It's getting late, Good-night.
SONORA: (cavalleresco) Ti lasciamo dormire.	SONORA: (gallantly): You must go back to bed now.
MINNIE: Grazie. Ora son calma.	MINNIE: Thank you, I'm quite all right.
ASHBY: Andiamo. (si avviano: Nick ultimo)	ASHBY: Come on! (They all go off, Nick last.)
NICK: (a Minnie, mostrando che ha capito) Se lo volete . . . io resto.	NICK: (to Minnie, showing he has understood): If you like—I'll stay.
MINNIE: No. Buona notte. (escono: ella richiude; rimane immobile presso la porta. A Johnson, con freddo disprezzo) Fuori! Vieni fuori! (Johnson appare tra le cortine, vinto, disfatto) Sei venuto a rubare . . .	MINNIE: No. Good-night; (With deep contempt, turned towards Johnson.) Come out, now, come out! (Johnson appears between the curtains, wretched, broken down.) You came to rob me!
JOHNSON: No . . .	JOHNSON: No!

MINNIE: Mentisci!	MINNIE: You lie!
JOHNSON: No!	JOHNSON: No!
MINNIE: Sì!	MINNIE: Yes!
JOHNSON: Tutto m'accusa . . . Ma . . .	JOHNSON: Things look against me—But—
MINNIE: Finisci! Dimmi perchè sei qui, se non che per rubare?	MINNIE: Oh, stop it! Why are you here, then, If not to rob me?
JOHNSON: (deciso, avvicinandosi a Minnie) Ma quando io v'ho veduta . . .	JOHNSON: (after a pause): It's true—yes—but when I saw 'twas you— (Takes a step towards her.)
MINNIE: (sempre aspra, trattenendolo con gesto secco) Adagio, adagio! . . . Non muovere un passo . . . o chiamo aiuto! Un bandito! un bandito! . . . (con sorda ironia) Son fortunata! Un bandito! un bandito! Puoi andartene! Va! . . . (sta per piangere. La sua fierezza la trattiene)	MINNIE: (stopping him with an abrupt gesture): No nearer, no nearer! No, not any nearer. Or I'll call the sheriff! You a thief! You a robber! (With bitter irony.) I'm truly lucky! A thief, a robber! (Disdainfully and violently.) But now you can go! (Her pride alone prevents her from crying.)
JOHNSON: (prorompendo) Una parola sola! Non mi difenderò: sono un dannato! Lo so, lo so! Ma non vi avrei rubato! Sono Ramerrez: nacqui vagabondo: era ladro il mio nome da quando venni al mondo. Ma fino a che fu vivo mio padre, io non sapevo. Ora sono sei mesi che mio padre mori . . . E tutto appresi! Sola ricchezza mia, mio solo pane per la madre e i fratelli, alla dimane, l'eredità paterna: una masnada di banditi da strada! L'accettai. Era quello il destino mio! Ma un giorno v'ho incontrata . . . Ho sognato d'andarmene con voi tanto lontano, per redimermi tutto in una vita di lavoro e d'amore . . . E il labbro mio mormorò una preghiera ardente: Oh Dio! ch'ella non sappia mai la mia vergogna! Il sogno è stato vano! Ora ho finito . . .	JOHNSON: (bursts out): Let me just say one word, But not in self-defense: I am accursed. I know! I know! But I would not have robbed you! I am Ramerrez, vagabond by birth: From the day I was born I was reared on stolen money. But while my father was living I didn't know it. My father died just six months ago, And then I knew! The only heritage for my mother, For my brothers, to face the future, The only thing he left us, Was a gang of road-agents and robbers! I took the road. . . . It was Fate, and had to be! But then one day I saw you—. From that moment I longed to take you with me far, far away, And to start a fresh life of honest work, Honest work and love— And all the while in my heart I was uttering a prayer: O God, grant that she may never know what I am! My prayer has not been answered!— Now I've finished.
MINNIE: (commossa, senza asprezzo) Che voi siate un bandito . . . ve lo perdoni Iddio. (con grande amarezza) Ma il primo bacio mio vi siete preso, chè vi credevo mio, soltanto mio! . . . Andate, andate! Addio! . . . V'uccideranno . . . Che m'importa? . . . (dice queste parole macchinalmente, disfatta, cercando di farsi forza)	MINNIE: (moved, without harshness): I could even forgive you For being a road-agent— (Very bitterly.) But what I can't forgive is That you have taken my first, first kiss, And I trusted you—So leave me, go! Let them kill you—What's it matter? (She says these words mechanically, but is spent, trying to steel herself.)
JOHNSON: (disperato, deciso, senz armi, apre la porta, pronto al sacrificio, come a un suicidio ed esce precipitosamente) Addio!	JOHNSON: (desperate, resolutely, unarmed, he opens the door ready for sacrifice, like a suicide, and goes out): Good-bye!
MINNIE: (rasciugandosi le lagrime) È finita . . . Finita! (un colpo d'arma da fuoco, vicinissimo. Essa trasalisce) L'han ferito . . . (con uno sforzo supremo su sè stessa) Che importa? (si sente di fuori il rumore di un corpo che cade rovescio contro la porta. Minnie non resiste più, apre. Johnson si è rialzato, barcolla, sta per cadere ancora. Minnie lo sorregge, cerca di tirarlo dentro a di chiudere. Johnson è ferito al fianco; pallidissimo si preme la ferita con un fazzoletto)	MINNIE: (wipes away her tears, trying to convince herself of her indifference): That's all over— All over. (A shot outside, quite near. She starts.) They have shot him— (With supreme self-control.) No matter! (The sound of a body falling with a thud against the door is heard outside. Minnie resists no longer and opens it. Johnson has risen, staggers, and is about to fall again. Minnie supports him, tries to draw him into the cabin and to shut the door. Johnson is wounded in the side; he is livid, and tries to staunch his wound with his handkerchief.)
JOHNSON: (con voce soffocata, resistendole) Non chiudete la porta . . . Debbo uscire . . .	JOHNSON: (in faint tones of resistance): Don't shut the door—I am going—No!
MINNIE: Entra!	MINNIE: Come!—
JOHNSON: No . . .	JOHNSON: No—
MINNIE: Entra!	MINNIE: Come in!
JOHNSON: No, non chiudete! Voglio uscire!	JOHNSON: Don't shut the door. I must go out!—
MINNIE: (trascinandolo, disperata) Sta qui . . . Sei ferito! . . . Nasconditi! (chiude la porta)	MINNIE: (drags him in, in despair): Stay here— You're wounded!— (Shuts the door.) Hide yourself.
JOHNSON: Aprite la porta . . . Voglio uscire!	JOHNSON: Open the door. I want to go!
	MINNIE: Hurry! This way! Hurry!
	JOHNSON: No! No! No!
MINNIE: (vinta, perduta) Resta! T'amo! Deh, resta! Sei l'uomo che baciai la prima volta . . . Non puoi morire! (con fatica sorreggendo ancora Johnson, ha appoggiata la scala al solaio e lo sospinge a salire) Sali su . . . Presto! . . . (Rance bussa alla porta. Johnson sospinto da Minnie ha già salito i primi scalini) Salvati . . . Poi verrai con me . . . lontano!	MINNIE: I love you; this way, hurry. Ah! Aren't you the man I kissed for the first time? You shall not die! (Supporting Johnson with difficulty, has placed the ladder against the loft and helps him to go up it.) Just a step, quickly!
JOHNSON: (Quasi mancando) Non posso più . . .	JOHNSON: (his strength failing him): No! I can't! I can't!
	MINNIE: Just one step. Then you'll come with me far away. A step! Just one more step!

MINNIE: (aiutandolo ancora)
Così . . .
Lo puoi, lo devi . . .
Coraggio . . .
T'amo!
(Johnson è già sul solaio, Minnie discende, leva in fretta la scala e poi corre ad aprire. Rance entra cautamente colla pistola spianata, esplorando ogni angolo)

MINNIE: Che c'è di nuovo, Jack?

RANCE: (volgendosi, severo, imperioso) Non sono Jack . . .
Son lo Sceriffo, a caccia del tuo
Johnson d'inferno.
N'ho seguito la traccia.
Dev'esser qui.
Dov'è?

MINNIE: (aspramente) Ah, mi avete seccato con questo vostro Ramerrez!

RANCE: (spianando la pistola verso il letto e avanzi nao) È la!
Non c'è . . .
(impazientito)
Ma l'ho ferito, perdio, ne sono certo!
Non può esser fuggito!
Non può esser che qua.

MINNIE: (sempre più aspra) E cercatelo, dunque!
Rovistate dove vi pare . . .
E poi levatevi dai piedi una volta per sempre!

RANCE: (con un sussulto, abbassando la pistola) Mi giuri che non c'è?

MINNIE: (beffarda) Perchè non seguitate a cercarlo?

RANCE: (si guarda attorno, guarda Minnie, poi con un moto d'ira rattenuto) E sarà L'avrò sbagliato . . .
(volgendosi a Minnie con impeto improvviso)
Ma dimmi che non l'ami!

MINNIE: (sprezzante) Siete pazzo!

RANCE: (avvicinandosi, pallido, tremante) Lo vedi!
Sono pazzo di te!
T'amo e ti voglio!
(l'abbraccia violentemente e la bacia)

MINNIE: (svincolandosi) Ah, vigliacco! . . .
(si libera e fugge)

JOHNSON: I can't!
I can't!

MINNIE: (helping him again):
That's right!
You can!
You must!
Take heart!
Come!
I love you!
(Loud knocking at the door.)
(Johnson is already in the loft and falls down exhausted behind the boxes. Minnie draws the Indian curtain, comes down, takes away the ladder. Rance knocks again, more excitedly. Minnie runs to open, feigning surprise. Rance comes in cautiously, his pistol in his hand, and searches every corner.)

MINNIE: Why, what's the matter, Jack?

RANCE: (turning round, severe and imperious): No more "Jack."
I am the Sheriff,
After your infernal Johnson.
I have followed his trail.
He must be here!
But where?

MINNIE: (harshly): Ah, I'm sick and tired of hearing
About your Ramerrez!

RANCE: (going towards the bed with aimed pistol): He's there!
No, he's not.
(Impatiently):
But he is wounded,
I'm certain.
I hit him!
He can't have escaped!
He can only be here.

MINNIE: (still more roughly):
Well, look for him then!
Search the place wherever you please;
But then be off, and take yourself
Out of my sight forever!

RANCE: (starts and lowers his pistol): Do you swear he isn't here?

MINNIE: (mocking): You'd really better go on looking!

RANCE: (looks about; looks at Minnie, then with a gesture of suppressed anger): Well, all right!
I was mistaken.
(Turning to Minnie on a sudden impulse.)
Just tell me you don't love him!

MINNIE: (contemptuously):
You're a madman!

RANCE: (approaches her, pale and trembling): You know it!
I'm mad about you!
(Embraces her violently, kisses her.)

MINNIE: (struggling, and wrenching herself free): Ah, you coward!
(She throws him off and escapes.)

RANCE: (rincorrendola, al parossismo dell'eccitazione) Ti voglio! . . .

MINNIE: (afferra una bottiglia e lo minaccia sulla testa) Via di qua, vigliacco! . . .
Esci!
(incalza Rance verso l'uscita)

RANCE: (con atto minaccioso, fermandosi sotto il ballatoio) Sei fiera . . . L'ami!
Vuoi serbarti a lui . . .
Sì, vado.
Ma ti giuro . . .
(stende una mano verso Minnie) che non ti avrà! . . .
(una stilla di sangue, gocciando dal solaio, gli cade sulla mano. Egli si soffermo stupito)
Oh, strano!
Del sangue sulla mano . . .

MINNIE: (avvicinandosi, con voce meno aspra, un po' tremante, per sviare il sospetto) Forse v'avrò graffiato!

RANCE: (si pulisce la mano col fazzoletto) No, non c'è graffio . . .
Guarda!
(uno stillicidio insistente cade sul fazzoletto, arrossandolo)
Ah!
Sangue ancora!
(guarda il solaio, poi con un grido di gioia e d'odio, come avventandosi) È là!

MINNIE: (disperata, opponendosi a Rance con tutte le sue forze) Ah, no . . . non voglio!

RANCE: (cercando sciogliersi dalla stretta di Minnie) Lasciami!
(imperioso, rivolto verso il solaio)
Mister Johnson, scendete!
(vede la scala, l'appoggia al solaio)

MINNIE: (supplichevole) Aspettate . . .
Vedete!
Non può, non può!
(Johnson con uno sforzo supremo si alza, comincia a discendere pallido e sofferente, ma con volto fiero)

RANCE: (impaziente) Scendete!
O, perdio . . .
(spianando la pistola verso Johnson)

MINNIE: (smarrita, sempre più implorante) Un sol minuto, Rance!
Un minuto ancora!

RANCE: Un minuto?
E perchè?
Ah, ah, che mutamento! . . .
(Johnson, aiutato da Minnie, ha disceso gli ultimi scalini, si trascina verso il tavolo)
Volete ancor giuocare la partita con me, signor di Sacramento?

RANCE: (runs after her in a paroxysm of excitement): I want you!

MINNIE: (seizes a whisky bottle, and swings it up in self-defense—Rance stops, steps back): Go away, you coward!
Leave me!

RANCE: (backing, he has nearly reached the door—with a wicked sneer on his distorted features): I thought so . . .
You love him!
You're waiting here for him . . .
Yes, I'll go.
But I swear
(Stretches out a hand to Minnie.)
He shall never have you! . . .
(A drop of blood dropping from the ceiling, falls on his hand—He stops short, in amazement.)
Why, look!
Some blood on my hand!

MINNIE: (approaching, her voice trembling and less harsh, to dispel suspicion): Just now . . .
I must have scratched you!

RANCE: (wipes his hand with his handkerchief): No, there's no scratch . . .
Look!
(A steady drip on the handkerchief dyes it red.)
Ah!
Blood again!
(Looking at the ceiling, then with a cry of joy and hate.)
He's there!

MINNIE: (desperate, holds him back): Ah, no!
He's not!

RANCE: (roughly freeing himself from Minnie's grip): Let go!
(Imperiously calling up to the loft.)
Mister Johnson, come down!
(sees the ladder and leans it against the trap door.)

MINNIE: (entreatingly): Wait a minute—
He can't!
You see he can't come!—
(Johnson with a supreme effort, gets up and begins to come down the ladder, pallid and suffering, but with haughty expression.)

RANCE: Come down!
Or by Heaven—
(Levelling his pistol at him.)

MINNIE: (in anguish, entreatingly): Wait a minute, Rance!
Wait another minute!

RANCE: A minute?
What for?
Ha ha! what a change!—
(Johnson, helped by Minnie, has come down the last few steps and drags himself to the table.)
You still inclined to play a Game of poker with me,

Lascio la scelta a voi: a corda od a pistola!
(Johnson si siede di peso sulla sedia, appoggia i gomiti sul tavolo, vi abbandona sopra il capo. E svenuto)

MINNIE: (violentissima) Basta, uomo d'inferno!
Vedetelo: è svenuto.
Non può darvi più ascolto . . .
(disperata si preme le tempie con le mani, come per cercare un'ispirazione, poi si avvicina a Rance, lo guarda con gli occhi negli occhi, parlandogli con voce secca e concitata)
Parliamoci fra noi . . .
E si finisca!
Chi siete voi, Jack Rance?
Un biscazziere.
E Johnson?
Un bandito.
Io?
Padrona di bettola e di bisca vivo sul whisky e l'oro.
Tutti siam pari!
Tutti banditi e bari!
Stanotte avete chiesto una risposta alla vostra passione . . .
Eccovi la mia posta!

RANCE: (studiandola) Che vuoi dire?

MINNIE: (affannosamente) Ch'io v'offro quest'uomo e la mia vita! . . .
Una partita a poker!
Se vincete, prendetevi questo ferito e me . . .
Ma se vinco, parola di Jack Rance gentiluomo, è mio, è mio quest'uomo! . . .

RANCE: Come l'ami!
Accetto, sì!
T' avrò!

MINNIE: La parola?

RANCE: So perdere come un signore . . .
Ma perdio! son tutto della sete di te arso e distrutto . . . ma se vinco, t'avrò . . .
(Minnie si ritrae con un senso di ripulsione, va verso l'armadio e vi si indugia. Si vede che furtivamente si nasconde qualche cosa in una calza)

MINNIE: Abbassate la lampada . . .

RANCE: (impaziente) Che aspetti?

MINNIE: (indugiando) Cercavo un mazzo nuovo . . .
(si avvicina al tavola, preoccupata)
Son nervosa; scusatemi.
È una cosa terribile pensar che una partita decide d'una vita.
(si siede al tavolo in faccia a Rance)
Siete pronto?

Fine mister of Sacramento?
Well, you can choose:
The gallows or the pistol!
(Johnson sits down heavily on the chair, rests his elbows on the table, and drops his head down on his arms. He has fainted.)

MINNIE: (roughly): Stop it, wretch that you are!
Can't you see he's fainted?
Can't you see he can't hear you?
(Desperately pressing her hands on her temples, she tries to find an inspiration. Suddenly she goes up to Rance, looks him straight in the eyes, and says in a dry, excited voice):
We'll settle it between us—and make it final!
What are you, Jack Rance?
You're just a gambler, and Johnson is a thief.
And I?
I run a gambling-house and tavern,
Living on whisky and gold;
We're all three the same!
All three are thieves and gamblers!
You ask me if the answer
I gave you this evening was final—
Now I make you this offer!

RANCE: (staring at her): What d'you mean?

MINNIE: My stakes in the game
Are my life and Johnson's!
We'll play a game of poker!
If you're lucky,
You take this wounded man and me—
But if I win, your word of honor, Jack,
This man is mine!

RANCE: How she loves him!
I'll take you on!
I'll win!

MINNIE: Word of honor?

RANCE: And if I lose, I lose like a gentleman—
But, my God!
I'm just consumed with hunger and longing
Till I get you.
If I'm lucky, you're mine!
(Minnie retires behind the open door of the cupboard to gain time—one can see her hiding something furtively in her stocking.)

MINNIE: Turn the lamp down—

RANCE: (impatiently): What's that?

MINNIE: (procrastinating): A fresh pack of cards.
(Coming to the table—preoccupied.)
I'm nervous;
Have patience. It's an awful thing
To think a game of poker decides
Two people's lives.
(Sits at the table: Rance is opposite her: Johnson, unconscious,

RANCE: Son pronto.
Taglia.
A te.

MINNIE: Due mani sopra tre.

RANCE: (dà le carte) Quante?

MINNIE: Due . . .

RANCE: Ma cos'ha che l'adori?

MINNIE: (scartando le carte) Voi che trovate in me?
Che avete?

RANCE: Io re.

MINNIE: Io re.

RANCE: Fante.

MINNIE: Regina.

RANCE: Hai vinto.
Alla mano seguente!
(giocano)
Due assi e un paio . . .

MINNIE: (mostrando il suo gioco) Niente!

RANCE: (con gioia) Pari!
Siam pari!
Evviva!

MINNIE: (preoccupata) Ora è la decisiva?

RANCE: Sì. Taglia.

MINNIE: (cercando raddolcirlo) Rance, mi duole delle amare parole . . .

ATTO TERZO

La Grande Selva California
Lembo estremo della selva sul digradare lento di un contrafforte della Sierra. Uno spiazzo circondato dai tronchi enormi, diritti e nudi, delle conifere secolari, che formano intorno come un colonnato gigantesco. Nel fondo, dove la selva s'infoltisce sempre più, s'apre un sentiero, che s'interna fra i tronchi: qua e là appaiono picchi nevosi altissimi di montagne. Per lo spiazzo, che è come un bivacco dei minatori, visono stesi dei grandi tronchi di alberi tagliati alla base, che servono da sedile, accanto ad uno di questi arde un fuoco alimentato da grossi rami. Nella luce incerta della prim'alba la grandiosa fuga dei tronchi rossigni muore in un velo folto di nebbia. Da un lato, nell'ampio tronco d'un albero colassale, è scavato un ripostiglio d'arnesi da minatore—da un altro lato, tra felci ed arbusti, legato ad un ramo, un cavallo insellato.
(Rance è seduto a sinistra, presso il fuoco, con gli abiti in disordine, il viso stanco e sconvolto, i capelli arruffati; Nick, pensieroso, è seduto in faccia a Rance. Ashby e between the two. Rance, who has got out his own pack, puts it back and takes Minnie's instead.)

Are you ready?

RANCE: I'm ready, cut; your turn.

MINNIE: The best two out of three.
(Dealing.)

RANCE: What?

MINNIE: Two. . .

RANCE: What do you see in him?

MINNIE: (discarding): What do you see in me?
What've you got?

RANCE: King High.

MINNIE: King High.

RANCE: Jack.

MINNIE: Queen.

RANCE: You've got it.
Now for the next hand!
(They play.)
Two aces and a pair.

MINNIE: (showing her hand):
Nothing!

RANCE: (joyfully): Even!
We're even!
Hurrah!

MINNIE: Now it's the next; that's final?

RANCE: Yes. Cut.

MINNIE: (trying to soften him):
Rance, I'm sorry
I spoke bitterly to you.

ACT III

The Great California Forest
The extreme edge of the great Californian forest, where it gradually slopes downward on a ridge of the Sierras. An open space surrounded by enormous, straight and bare pine trees which form a gigantic colonnade round it. In the background, where the wood is still denser a trail is seen winding between the trees; here and there the snowy peaks of the highest mountains are visible. Large felled tree trunks lie scattered about the clearing, which is used as a sort of camp by the miners. These trunks serve as seats; near one of them a big log-fire is burning.
In the indistinct light of the early dawn, the lofty mass of reddish trunks is wrapt in a thick mist. On one side the trunk of an enormous tree has been hollowed out to form a depository for the miners' utensils; on the other side, among the ferns and bushes, a saddle-horse is tied to a branch.
(Rance is seated on the left, near the fire, looking tired and perturbed, his clothes untidy, his hair disordered. Nick, worried, is sdraiato in terra presso al cavallo, in ascolto. Indossano tutti e tre pesanti cappotti. Nessun rumore turba il silenzio dell'alba invernale)	walking up and down. Ashby is lying on the ground near his horse, listening. They all three wear heavy cloaks. No noise breaks the silence of the winter dawn.)

NICK: (attizzando il fuoco con la punta dello stivale, sotto voce, cupamente) Ve lo giuro, sceriffo: darei tutte le mance di dieci settimane pur di tornare indietro d'una sola, quando questo dannato Johnson della malora non ci s'era cacciato ancor fra i piedi!	NICK: (going to the fire, and stirring it with the toe of his boot): Word of honor, Sheriff: I'd gladly give the whole of My tips for seven weeks, If only we could put back The clock for one; Before that rascal Johnson,— Curses on his head,— In an evil hour had crossed our path!
RANCE: (con rabbia, cupamente) Maledetto cane! Parea ferito a morte . . . E pensar che da allora, mentre noi si gelava fra la neve, è stato là, scaldato dal respiro di Minnie, accarezzato, baciato . . .	RANCE: (grimly): Curses on the dog! I thought his wound was fatal! And to think that while we've been freezing Out in the snow upon the mountain, He's been in there, Basking in the smiles of our Minnie, Her caresses, her kisses!
NICK: (con uno scatto di protesta) Oh, Rance! . . .	NICK: (bursts out in protest): Oh, Rance!
RANCE: Un ladro del suo stampo! Avrei voluto a tutti gridar quel che sapevo . . .	RANCE: A common thief like him! I simply ached to shout out loud Where he was hiding.
NICK: (con approvazione un po' canzonatoria) E non l'avete fatto. È stato proprio un tratto cavalleresco . . .	NICK: (with rather quizzical approval): And yet you didn't; You acted like a perfect gentleman!
RANCE: (sogghignando amaramente, fra sè) Ah, sì! (a Nick, con rancore sostenuto) Ma che ci vede, dimmi, ma che ci trova la nostra bella Minnie in quel fantoccio?	RANCE: (sneering bitterly, aside): Oh, yes! (To Nick.) But what on earth, I ask you, Can our Minnie find To love in that puppy?
NICK: (sorridendo, con fare accorte) Mah! Qualcosa ci vedrà! . . . (con comica filosofia) Amore, amore! Paradíso ed inferno, è quel chè: tutto il dannato mondo s'innamora! Anche per Minnie è giunta oggi quell'ora. (A poco a poco la luce del giorno va rischiarando la scena. A un tratto un clamore lontano, vago e confuso, giunge dalla montagna. Ashby balza in piedi di scatto scioglie il cavallo, lo afferra alla briglia, si fa in mezzo allo spiazzo, nel fondo, verso il sentiero; anche Rance e Nick si alzano)	NICK: (smiling in a worldly wise way): Well! There's something, I suppose! (With droll philosophy.) Oh, love! Oh, love! Now it's heaven, now it's hell on earth! You and I and the whole damn world must catch it! And now our Minnie has caught it, very badly! (By degrees the daylight lights up the stage. Suddenly a distant noise, vague and confused, is heard from the mountain. Ashby leaps to this feet with one bound, unties his horse, seizes it by the bridle and goes off in the center background towards the path. Rance and Nick get up also.)
VOCI LONTANE: Ah! . . .	DISTANT VOICES: Ah!
ASHBY: (all'udire le voci grida) Urrah, ragazzi! . . . Urrah! . . . (rivolto a Rance) Sceriffo, avete udito? N'ero certo! Han trovato il bandito! . . . Una buona giornata per Wells-Fargo!	ASHBY: (hearing the voices, shouts): Hurrah, you fellows! Hurrah! (Turning to Rance.) Well, Sheriff, do you hear that? I knew it! They've captured the villain! It is a lucky day for Wells-Fargo!
VOCI PIÙ VICINE: (da vari punti) Hollà! Hollà! (le grida si ripetono più distinte. Rance si alza)	VOICES: (nearer, from different directions): Hallo! hallo! (The shouts are renewed more distinctly. Rance gets up.)
ASHBY: (a Rance) Non udite! Ah, questa volta non mi stuggi, brigante!	ASHBY: (to Rance): D'you hear them? Ah, this time he shan't escape me, the scoundrel!
RANCE: (amaro) Siete più fortunato di me . . .	RANCE: (bitterly): You seem to be more lucky than I!
ASHBY: (osservandolo, stringendo gli occhi con uno sguardo indagatore) Da quella notte là, alla "Polka" non vi ho capito più, Sceriffo . . . (Rance alza le spalle e non risponde)	ASHBY: (looks hard at him with a searching glance): Ever since that night at the "Polka," I've not understood you, Sheriff. (Rance shrugs his shoulders, but does not answer.)
VOCI VICINISSIME: Hollà! (Un gruppo di uomini sbucano correndo da destra, traversando la scena nel fondo con un movimento aggirante. Alcuni hanno in pugno coltellacci e pistole altri delle vanghe e dei bastoni. Gridano tutti chefusamente, come cani che inseguano un selvatico)	VOICES: (very near): Hallo! (A number of men come running on from the right, crossing the stage at the back in a straggling manner. Some carry knives and pistols, others have spades and cudgels. They all yell in confusion, like dogs on the track of a wild animal.)
ASHBY: (lanciandosi verso di loro) Hollà! . . . Fermi tutti, perdio! (La folla degli inseguitori si ferma un istante, volgendosi alle grida) Giù le armi! Egli dev'esser preso vivo! (Alcuni corrono fuori di scena gridando: "hollà, hollà." Sopraggiungono altri cinque o sei minatori che sono affrontati da Ashby e si fermano, affannati dalla corsa) Dov'è?	ASHBY: (rushing up to them): Hallo! Stop, you fellows! D'you hear? Arms down! He must be taken alive! (Some run off the stage shouting: "Hallo, hallo." Five or six others come on, who are stopped by Ashby, and pause, breathless from running.) Where is he?
ALCUNI MINATORI: S'ínsegue . . .	SOME MINERS: We're on him.
ALTRI: (indicando la direzione) Per di qua . . .	OTHERS: (pointing the direction): Over there.
ASHBY: Dove?
ALTRI MINATORI: Di là dal monte!	OTHER MINERS: Beyond the mountain.
ALTRI: Il bosco fino a valle è già tutto in allarme!	OTHERS: The forest, to the valley, Is alive with pursuers!
ALTRI: Ashby, a fra poco! Addio!	OTHERS: Back again soon, Ashby! So long!
ASHBY: (balzando in sella al cavallo) Vengo con voi!	ASHBY: (jumps into the saddle): I'm coming with you!
TUTTI: Urrah! . . . (Ashby saluta con la mano Rance e Nick e si allontana al trotto preceduto dai minatori)	ALL: Hurrah! (Ashby waves his hand to Rance and Nick and goes off at a trot, preceded by the miners.)
ALCUNI MINATORI: (indicando la direzione) Per di qua! Per di qua! (Il gruppo scompare fra gli alberi. Nick e Rance rimangono soli)	SOME MINERS: (pointing): Over there! Over there! (The party disappears among the trees. Nick and Rance remain alone.)
RANCE: (levando le braccia, come per rivolgersi verso la casa di Minnie, in uno scatto di gioia crudele) Minnie, ora piangi tu! Per te soltanto attanagliato dalla gelosia mi son disfatto per notti di pianto, e tu ridevi alla miseria mia!	RANCE: (throwing up his arms towards Minnie's cabin, in a burst of cruel joy): It is your turn now, O Minnie, to weep in vain! For you alone, I've spent so many nights awake and weeping, While you with laughter mocked at

Ora quel pianto mi trabocca in riso! Quegli che amasti non ritornerà: Minnie, ora piangi tu, che m'hai deriso! La corda è pronta che l'impiccherà! (Si getta a sedere sul tronco riverso, serbando sul viso il suo riso cattivo. Nick in disparte passeggia e si ferma a guardare lontano, in atteggiamento ansioso ed incerto. Alcuni minatori entrano in scena correndo)	my love and misery! My weeping now will soon be turned to laughter! Now, Minnie, weep in vain, 'Tis your turn now, you who used to mock me! He whom you loved will not return to you. The rope is ready from which he will swing! (Sits down on a fallen trunk, his evil smile still on his face. Nick, lost in anxious thought, keeps aloof, and resumes his pacing up and down, looking out in the distance. Some miners come rushing on.)
NICK: (ai più prossimi, interrogandoli) Dite! . . .	NICK: (to the nearest, questioning them): What news?
ALCUNI MINATORI: (seguitando la corsa) È rinchiuso!	SOME MINERS: (following on): He's surrounded!
ALTRI MINATORI: (dal fondo a quelli che li seguono) Avanti!	OTHERS: (from the back, to those behind them): Come on!
ALTRI: (a Nick, senza fermarsi) Fra poco!	OTHERS: (to Nick, without stopping): Back again soon!
ALTRI: (che sopraggiungono, incitando gli altri alla corsa) Avanti! Avanti! (La muta furiosa si è allontanata. Nick riprende la sua passeggiata, cogitabondo, poi si ferma vicino a Rance, che è ancora seduto, chiuso e torvo)	OTHERS: (who come on, encouraging the rest): Come on! Come on! (The angry band has rushed off. Nick resumes his walk, lost in thought, then he stops close to Rance, who is still seated, surly and reserved.)
VOCI INTERNE: Urrah!	VOICES BEHIND: Hurrah!
NICK: Sceriffo, avete udito?	NICK: Sheriff, did you hear them?
RANCE: (senza rispondergli, con ira sorda, guardando in terra) Johnson di Sacramento, un demonio t'assiste! Ma, perdio! . . . se ti prendono al laccio e non ti faccio scontare ogni tormento, puoi sputarmi sul viso! . . . (Giunge un'altra turba urlante d'uomini a cavallo e a piedi. Vedendo Rance e Nick si fermano. Harry e Bello sono avanti a tutti)	RANCE: (without answering him, looking down at the ground in dull anger): Johnson of Sacramento, The devil's fighting on your side! But by heaven, If they take you alive, And I don't make you pay For all I have suffered, You may spit in my face! (Another yelling band of men on horse and foot rush on; seeing Nick and Rance, they stop. Harry and Handsome are in front of the rest.)
VOCI: (confuse) Fugge! Fugge!	VOICES: (confusedly): Bolted! Bolted!
RANCE: (scattando in piedi e slanciandosi verso Harry) Ah, perdio!	RANCE: (bounding to his feet and rushing up to Harry): By the Lord!
HARRY: È montato a cavallo!	HARRY: He has jumped on a horse!
RANCE: (facendosi in mezzo alla turba in clamore, gridando) Come? Dove?	RANCE: (pushing his way into the midst of the noisy crowd, shouts): How? Where?
BELLO: (ansando) Alla Bota già un uomo gli era sopra . . .	HANDSOME: (out of breath): At the Bota, A man was right upon him.
HARRY: Sembrava ormai spacciato!	HARRY: We thought him done for, that time!
UN MINATORE: Non gli restava scampo!	A MINER: And no escape was possible!
UN ALTRO: Già l'aveva acciuffato pei capelli . . .	ANOTHER: Tight by his hair, The man had got him—
UN TERZO: Quand'ecco . . .	A THIRD: When suddenly—
RANCE: Racconta . . . avanti . . . avanti . . .	RANCE: Go on—Go on—
BELLO: Quand'ecco il maledetto con un colpo lo sbalza giù d'arcioni, s'afferra ai crini, balza in sella, sprona, e . . . via come un lampo! (Alcuni accompagnano il racconto con un concerto di esclamazioni irose; altri lo continuano con un grande agitare delle braccia in gesti violenti)	HANDSOME: When suddenly the ruffian, with a blow, Knocks him clean off the saddle, And seizing the horse's mane, Leaps into the saddle, Spurs, and is off like lightning! (Some accompany his words with a chorus of angry ejaculations; others brandish their arms in intense excitement.)
VOCI: (varie) Gli uomini di Wells-Fargo l'inseguono a cavallo! —Ashby è con la sua gente! —Gli son tutti alle spalle! —Han passato il torrente! —Corron giù per la valle! —È un turbine che passa! . . . (Un urlo formidabile, selvaggio, echeggia in distanza. Tutti tacciono, si volgono, restano un attimo sospesi. L'urlo si ripete. La turba scoppia in un grido:) —Urrah! —Via, ragazzi! —Alla caccia! —Via! Via tutti . . . —Alla valle! (Stanno per lanciarsi nuovamente, quando il galoppo lontano di un cavallo a corsa sfrenata li arresta)	VOICES: (mixed): All the men of Wells-Fargo Are chasing him on horseback! Ashby and all his men Are very close on his heels! They've got across the water! Now they're close on his heels! They're flying like a whirlwind! (A formidable savage yell resounds from the distance. All are silent, turn around and remain in suspense for a moment. The yell is heard once more. The crowd then bursts out shouting also.) Hurrah! Come on, boys! Join the chase! Come on! To the valley! (They are about to rush off again, when the sound of a galloping horse in the distance makes them pause.)
JOE: (indicando in direzione degli alberi, a destra) È Sonora, guardate!	JOE: (pointing right, towards the trees): It's Sonora—d'you see?
SONORA: (da lontano) Hollà!	SONORA: (from afar): Hallo!
JOE ED ALTRI: Hollà! Hollà! (Sonora entra a galoppo. Rance afferra per la briglia il cavallo e lo ferma. Sonora scende da cavallo)	JOE AND OTHERS: Hallo! Hallo! (Sonora comes galloping on. Rance seizes the horse by the bridle and stops it. Sonora dismounts.)
RANCE: (afferrando Sonora per un braccio) Racconta!	RANCE: (catching hold of Sonora's arm): Tell us, what news?
SONORA: (con un grido strozzato) È preso!	SONORA: (with a hoarse shout): We've got him!
TUTTI: (in un solo grido) Urrah! (Arrivano altri gruppi di uomini correndo. Tutti si stringono attorno a Sonora chiedendo notizie. Billy sbuca di fra gli alberi. Ha in mano una lunga corda che va gettando qua e là attraverso i rami, per trovarre uno adatto al capestro)	ALL: (shout): Hurrah! (Other groups of men come running on. All press round Sonora, clamoring for news. Billy emerges from among the trees. He has a long rope in his hand, which he slings now and again over a branch, looking for a suitable one from which to hang it.)
VOCI: (confuse) —Come fu? . . . —Dov'è stato? —L'hai visto? —L'han legato? —Di' su, presto!	VOICES: (in confusion): Tell us, how? . . . Tell us, where? . . . Did you see him? . . . Come on, hurry!
RANCE: Racconta!	RANCE: Do hurry!

SONORA: (fa cenno d'essere affannato dalla corsa) L'ho veduto!
Perdio!
Pareva un lupo stretto dai can!
Fra poco sarà qui.

ALCUNI MINATORI: Maledetto spagnuol!
Che ne faremo? . . .

ALTRI: (indicando l'albero dove Billy prepara il laccio): Un ottimo pendaglio!
Lo faremo ballare appena arriva.
E quando ballerà
Pam!
Pam!
Pam!
Pam!
tireremo al bersaglio!
(si muovono tutti in massa, gridando e cantando il ritornello: "Dooda, dooda, day!")

RANCE: Minnie, Minnie, è finita!
Io non fui, non parlai!
tenni fede al divieto!
A che ti valse, a che ti vale, ormai!
Il tuo bel vagheggino dondolerà da un albero al rovaio!
(si siede affronto)
(Rimangono soli Rance, Nick e Billy, ancora occupato indifferentemente nelle sue prove crudeli. Silenzio grave, rotto soltanto da un vago clamore lontano. La luce del giorno è ormai chiarissima. Le vette nevose scintillano al sole fra gli alberi).

NICK: (portando con violenza Billy sul davanti della scena e dandogli una manciata d'oro) (rapidamente, sotto voce) Questo è per te . . .
Ritarda a fare il laccio . . .
Ma guai se mi tradisci!
(puntandogli la pistola in faccia)
In parola di Nick, bada, t'ammazzo!
(Nick fugge precipitosamente. Un'orda precede l'arrivo di Johnson)
(Appare Johnson in mezzo a uomini a cavallo e alla folla dei minatori e degli uomini del campo; è sconvolto, pallido, col viso graffiato e gli abiti stracciati, ha una spalla nuda)

TUTTI: (entrando in scena con gesti di minaccia) A morte!
Al laccio!
Al laccio lo spagnuolo!

ASHBY: (a Rance) Sceriffo Rance!
Consegno a voi quest'uomo perchè sia dato alla comunità.
Faccia essa giustizia!
(monta a cavallo)

TUTTI: La farà!

ASHBY: (a Johnson, da lontano, mentre se ne va) Buona fortuna, mio bel gentiluomo!
(Tutti si dispongono a gruppi a

SONORA: (out of breath still):
Yes, I've seen him!
By heaven! 'twas like a wolf
Set upon by dogs!
In a minute he'll be here!

SOME MINERS: To hell with the Spaniard!
What shall we give him? . . .

SOME: (Pointing to the tree where Billy is preparing the noose): The very finest hanging!
We'll teach him how to dance
When we have caught him!
And while he does his dance,
Pom!
Pom!
Pom!
Pom!
He'll be sport for our rifles!
(The miners all run off in a body, shouting and singing the refrain: "Dooda, dooda, day!")

RANCE: Minnie, Minnie, it's all over!
'Twas not I that told!
I kept my word of honor!
What has it helped you,
What will it help you now?
Your fascinating swell has got to swing
From a tree in the North wind!
(Sits down wearily.)
(Only Rance, Nick and Billy remain, the latter still lackadasically busy with his cruel experiments. Intense silence, only broken by a confused din in the distance. Broad daylight now. Between the trees the snow-peaks glitter in the sun.)

NICK: (roughly drags Billy to the front and giving him a handful of gold, says quickly, sotto voce):
This is for you,
Don't make the noose until I tell you.
If you play me false, upon my word, look out,
I'll kill you!
(Levels pistol at him.)
(Nick goes off hurriedly. A crowd precedes Johnson's arrival.)
(Johnson appears in the midst of a crowd of horsemen, miners and camp followers; he is defeated, ashy pale, his face scratched, his clothes torn, one shoulder bare.)

ALL: (coming on with threatening gestures): We'll hang him!
The scoundrel!
String up the cursed Spaniard!

ASHBY: (to Rance): Sheriff Rance,
I give this man into your charge.
Deliver him at once to the community.
Justice must be done.
(Mounts his horse.)

ALL: So it shall!

ASHBY: (to Johnson, as he is riding off): I wish you luck, my fine gentleman!
(They all arrange themselves in guisa di un tribunale, i cavalli nel fondo, abbrigliati agli alberi. Johnson è nel mezzo, solo)

RANCE: (dopo aver acceso un sigaro, si avvicina a Johnson e gli getta una lunga boccata di fumo in viso. Con ironia:) E così, Mister Johnson, come va?
Scusate se vi abbiamo disturbato . . .

JOHNSON: (sdegnoso, guardandolo fisso) Purchè facciate presto!

RANCE: Oh, quanto a questo basteranno a sbrigarci
pochi minuti . . .

JOHNSON: (indifferente) E quello che desidero.

RANCE: (con cortesia affettata) E che desideran tutti, vero?
(La turba dei minatori si stringe atterno ai due uomini con un brontolìo iroso e impaziente)
(Il brontolìo sordo che corre fra i minatori scoppio ad un tratto in un tumulto rabbioso, vio'entissimo Tutti sono intorno a Johnson, che li fronteggia colla sua fierezza sdegnosa, il busto eretto, la fronte aggrottata, e lo investono con gesti e voci minacciose. Anele gli uomini a cavallo sono scesi di sella, lasciando i cavalli nel fondo e si sono uniti alla turba)

VOCI VARIE: (con violenza)—Al laccio!
—A morte!
—Cane!
Figlio di cane!
—Ladro!

HARRY: (con accanimento, avanzandosi verso Johnson) Hai saccheggiato tutto il paese!

BELLO: (c. s.) La tua banda ladra ha rubato ed ucciso!

JOHNSON: (scattando) No!

TRIN: (con accanimento avanzandosi verso Johnson) La squadra di Monterey, bandito, fu massacrata dalle faccie gialle (avvicinando la faccia a Johnson) di quelle tue canaglie messicane!

HARRY: Pugnalasti alle spalle il nostro Tommy!

JOHNSON: (pallidissimo) Non è vero!

HAPPY ED ALTRI: Sì!

VOCI: A morte!
A morte!

HARRY: Non è un mese, alla valle fu ucciso un postiglione!

BELLO: Tu lo uccidesti!

VOCI: A morte!
A morte!

groups in the manner of a tribunal; the horses at the back, fastened to trees. Johnson in the middle, alone.)

RANCE: (lights a cigar, goes up to Johnson, and deliberately puffs the smoke into his face. Ironically): And now, Mr. Johnson, how are you?
Do pray excuse us if we have disturbed you!

JOHNSON: (contemptuously, looking him straight in the face):
Only get it over quickly!

RANCE: Oh, as for that,
Two minutes will be quite enough
To despatch you!

JOHNSON: (indifferently): That's all I'm asking for.

RANCE: (with mock courtesy):
And all that everyone's asking for,
Isn't it?
(The crowd of miners closes in round the two men with angry and impatient mutterings.)
(The subdued mutterings of the miners suddenly burst out in a rabid and most violent tumult. They are all round Johnson, who confronts them with defiant pride, erect, with raised eyebrows. They close in upon him with threatening gestures and cries. The horsemen have got off their saddles and joined the crowd, leaving their horses in the background.)

DIFFERENT VOICES: (violently):
To death with him!
Dog!
Son of a Dog!
Robber!

HARRY: (furiously, going towards Johnson): You've sacked
The whole of the country!

HANDSOME: (as above): Your gang of robbers
Has plundered and murdered!

JOHNSON: (bursts out): No!

TRIN: (furiously, going up to Johnson): The squadron of Monterey was murdered,
Massacred foully, wiped out altogether!
By your accursed gang of Mexican butchers!

HAPPY: It was your vile hand
That stabbed poor Tommy!

JOHNSON: (ashy pale): No!
It's not true!

HAPPY AND OTHERS: Yes!

HARRY: In this valley quite lately
A post-boy was killed!

HANDSOME: 'Twas you that killed him!

VOICES: Let's hang him!
Let's hang him!

JOHNSON: (fierissimo, alzando il capo, con gli occhi sfavillanti sotto le sopracciglia corrugate) No!
Maledizione a me!
Fui ladro, ma assassino mai!

JOE ED ALTRI: Non è vero!

HARRY: Se pure, fu la sorte che ti aiutò!

TRIN: (sommessamente, con accento drammatico) Alla "Polka" quella notte venisti per rubare . . .

SONORA: Furon gli occhi e il sorriso di Minnie, a disarmarti!

BELLO: Anche lei ci hai rubato!

SONORA: Ladro!
L'hai stregata.

HARRY: Ladro!
ladro!

BELLO: Ladro d'oro e di ragazze!

VOCI VARIE: —Al laccio lo spagnuolo!
—A morte!
—A morte!
—Billy ha la mano maestra!
E sarai fatto re della foresta!
(coro di risa feroci)

TRIN—HARRY—JOE: Ti faremo ballare l'ultima contraddanza . . .

SONORA—BELLO—HAPPY: Ti faremo scontare le carezze di Minnie . . .

BELLO: Ti faremo cantare da Wallace la romanza della "Bella fanciulla"!
(Spingono brutalmente Johnson verso l'albero dove sta Billy col laccio)

RANCE: (battendo sulla spalla a Johnson, ridendo) Non vi preoccupate, caballero!
È una cosa da nulla . . .

JOHNSON: (freddamente, poi esaltandosi) Risparmiate lo scherno . . .
Della morte non mi metto pensiero:
e ben voi tutti lo sapete!
(con sprezzo altezzoso)
Pistola o laccio è uguale . . .
Se mi sciogliete un braccio, mi sgozzo di mia mano!
D'altro voglio parlarvi:
(con grande sentimento) della donna che amo . . .
(Un mormorio di sorpresa serpeggia fra la folla dei minatori)

RANCE: (ha uno scatto, fa come per avventarsi su Johnson, poi si frena e gli dice con freddezza guardando l'orologio) Hai due minuti per amarla ancora . . .
(Il brontolio dei minatori si muta in uno scoppio di voci irose)

JOHNSON: (very haughtily, raising his head, his eyes flashing beneath his frowning brows): No!
It's true I've been a thief,
But never stooped to murder!

JOE AND OTHERS: That's a lie!

HARRY: Or, if it's true,
'Twas only a chance that stopped you!

TRIN: (in low-pitched, dramatic accents): At the "Polka" that night
You came to rob it!

SONORA: It was Minnie's eyes
And smiles that stopped you!

HANDSOME: And of those you have robbed us!

HARRY: Robber!
Robber!

HANDSOME: Thief of gold and of women!

DIFFERENT VOICES: Let's hang the dirty Spaniard!
We'll hang him!
Billy has the master-hand!
Now we will make you king of the forest!
(Chorus of fierce laughter.)

TRIN, HARRY, JOE: We'll teach you to dance,
Teach you the very latest dance!

SONORA, HANDSOME, HAPPY:
We'll make you pay most dear
For Minnie's caresses!

HANDSOME: We'll make you sing
The famous ballad of
The "Fair and Lovely Lady"!
(They roughly push Johnson towards the tree where Billy is standing with the noose.)

RANCE: (clapping Johnson on the shoulder, laughing): Pray don't let it agitate your lordship!
It's a mere nothing . . .

JOHNSON: (coldly, then growing excited): At least spare me your mocking. As to death,
I don't care when I meet it:
I've run the risk of death too often!
(With supreme contempt.)
I care not how or when.
Untie my arm and I'll cut my throat
With my own hand!
It is of something else I must speak—
(With deep feeling.)
Of the girl whom I love.
(A murmur of surprise runs through the crowd of miners.)

RANCE: (has a sudden movement as if about to throw himself on Johnson; then he restrains himself, and looking at his watch, says coldly): You've just two more minutes left to love her.
(The miners' mutterings change into a burst of angry voices.)

VOCI VARIE: (con accento represso d'ira)—Basta!
—Alla corda!
—Fatelo star zitto!
—Parlerà da quel ramo!

SONORA: (dominando il tumulto) Lasciatelo parlare!
E nel suo dritto!
(Si fa accanto a Johnson e lo guarda fisso, combattuto fra l'odio, l'ammirazione e la gelosia. Tutti tacciono)

JOHNSON: (sorpreso) Ti ringrazio, Sonora!
(rivolto a tutti)
Per lei, per lei soltanto, che tutti amate, a voi chiedo una grazia e una promessa . . .
Ch'ella non sappia mai come son morto!
(mormorii sommessi in vario senso)

RANCE: (guardando l'orologio, nervoso) Un minuto . . . sii breve.

JOHNSON: (con grande espressione, esaltandosi, col viso quasi sorridente) Ch'ella mi creda libero e lontano, sopra una nuova via di redenzione!
Aspetterà ch'io torni . . .
E passeranno i giorni, ed io non tornerò . . .
Minnie, della mia vita unico fiore,
Minnie, che m'hai voluto tanto bene!

RANCE: (si slancia su Johnson, lo colpisce con un pugno sul viso)
Ah, sfacciato!
(tutti disapprovano l'atto di Rance)
Hai null'altro da dire? . . .

JOHNSON: (con alterigia) Nulla.
Andiamo!
(Si avvia con passo sicuro verso l'albero, al cui piede Billy attende immobile, reggendo il laccio. La folla lo segue in un silenzio quasi rispettoso. Sei uomini con le pistole in pugno si dispongono ai due lati del tronco. Rance rimane fermo a guardare con le braccia incrociate)
(Un grido acutissimo giunge da destra col rumore sordo di un galoppo. Tutti si fermano e si volgono)

VOCI VARIE: —È Minnie!
È Minnie!
È Minnie!
(Scena confusa. Tutti guardano verso il fondo da dove apparirà Minnie a cavallo seguita da Nick pure a cavallo).

RANCE: (slanciandosi verso Johnson e gridando come un forsennato) Impiccatelo!
(Nessuno più bada a Rance. Tutti guardano verso il fondo e si agitano per l'arrivo di Minnie).

DIFFERENT VOICES: (with restrained anger): Enough!
Get the rope ready!
Make him shut up!
He can speak from that branch!

SONORA: (dominating the crowd): No, let him have his say!
It is his right!
(He goes up to Johnson and looks at him, torn between hatred, admiration and jealousy. All are silent.)

JOHNSON: (surprised): I thank you, Sonora!
(Turning to all.)
For her, for her alone
Whom you all love.
I now ask a kindness and your promise;
That she may never know how I have died!
(Subdued murmurs for and against.)

RANCE: (looking at his watch, nervously): One more minute.
Look sharp.

JOHNSON: (with intense expression, growing excited and almost smiling): Let her believe that I have gained my freedom,
Living the better life that she has taught me!
Let her await my coming.
The days will pass away,
And I shall not return.
Minnie, star of my wasted life, that lights my journey.
Minnie, true heart, that loved me so very dearly!

RANCE: (rushes up to Johnson and hits him in the face): How dare you?
(They all disapprove of Rance's action.)
Have you no more to say?

JOHNSON: (haughtily): Nothing!
Come on!
(He goes with a firm step towards the tree, at the foot of which Billy is waiting motionless, holding the noose. The crowd follows him in silence which is almost respectful. Six men with pistols draw themselves up on either side of the tree. Rance stands still, with folded arms, watching them.)
(A piercing cry is heard from the right, and the sound of a galloping horse. All pause and turn around.)

DIFFERENT VOICES: It's Minnie!
It's Minnie!
(Scene of confusion. All look towards the background whence Minnie will appear on horseback, followed by Nick, also on horseback.)

RANCE: (rushing towards Johnson and shouting like a madman): Hang him, I tell you!
(No one pays any more heed to Rance. They all gaze towards the background and grow excited at (Minnie arriva in scena a cavallo, discinta, i capelli al vento, stringendo fra i denti una pistola. Nick la segue, scende e corre verso il gruppo che circonda Johnson). (La folla dei minatori si ritrae, Johnson rimane immobile in mezzo ai sei uomini armati).

MINNIE: (balza in terra abbandonando il cavallo. Con un grido disperato:) Ah, no!
Chi l'oserà?

RANCE: (facendolesi innanzi) La giustizia lo vuole!

MINNIE: (fronteggiandolo) Di quale giustizia parli tu
Che sei la frode istessa?
Vecchio bandito?

RANCE: (fa segno di minaccia e s'avvicina a Minnie) Bada, donna, alle tue parole!

MINNIE: (guardandolo negli occhi) Che puoi tu farmi?
Non ti temo!

RANCE: (scostandola violentemente, ai minatori con voce imperiosa:) Orsù!
Impiccate quest'uomo!
(Qualcuno dei minatori risolutamente si avvicina a Johnson)

MINNIE: (d'un balzo si pone dinanzi a Johnson spianando la pistola) Non lo farete!
No.
Nessuno l'oserà . . .
(La turba indietreggia mormorando alla minaccia di Minnie)

RANCE: (incitando la folla) Strappatela di là!
Nessun di voi ha sangue nelle vene?
Una gonna vi fa sbiancare il viso?
(La turba non si muove, come affascinata dallo sguardo di Minnie)

MINNIE: Osate!
Osate!
(si stringe più accanto a Johnson, appoggia il viso sulla sua spalla continuando a fissare lo turba con uno sguardo di sfida, sempre spianando la pistola)

RANCE: (come pazzo di rabbia) Orsù!
Finiamola!
Bisogna che giustizia sia fatta!

VOCI VARIE: Basta!
Al laccio!
(La turba esaltandosi a poco a poco si stringe attorno a Minnie e a Johnson).
(La turba ripresa dal suo furore d'odio e di gelosia si avanza più minacciosa. Due degli uomini armati che fiancheggiano l'albero afferrano Minnie alle spalle; essa si svincola e si aggrappa a Johnson alzando rapidamente la pistola)

MINNIE: Lasciatemi, o l'uccido, e m'uccido!

SONORA: (con un grido, gettandosi fra lei e la turba) Lasciatela!
(Tutti si ritraggono. Rance, pallido e torvo, si discosta e si siede nel cavo dell'albero dov'era il fuoco. Sonora rimane in piedi presso Minnie e Johnson minaccioso)

MINNIE: (pallidissima, tremante di sdegno, la voce sibilante) Non vi fu mai chi disse
"Basta!"
Quando per voi davo i miei giovani anni . . . quando, perduta fra bestemmie e risse, dividevo gli affanni e i disagi con voi . . .
Nessuno ha detto allora "Basta!"
(La turba tace colpita. Molti abbassano il capo)
Ora quest'uomo è mio com'è di Dio!
Dio nel cielo l'aveva benedetto!
Se ne andava lontano,
verso nuovi orizzonti!
Il bandito che fu
è già morto lassù, sotto il mio tetto,
Voi non potete ucciderlo!
(Una commozione rude comincia ad impadronirsi di tutti gli animi. Nessuno più protesta)

SONORA: (con un grido che pare un singhiozzo) Ah, Minnie, più dell'oro ci ha rubato, un tesoro . . . il tuo cuore!

MINNIE: (rivolgendoglisi, fatta d'un subito affettuosa) Oh il mio Sonora buono, sarà primo al perdono . . .

SONORA: (soggiogato, commosso, abbassa gli occhi) Minnie!

MINNIE: Perdonerai come perdonerete tutti . . .

VOCI: (commossi e a testa bassa) No!
Non possiamo!

MINNIE: Si può ciò che si vuole!
(va verso Joe)
E anche tu lo vorrai,
Joe . . .
Non sei tu quei che m'offeriva i fiori, colti per me lungo il torrente azzurro, simili a quelli delle tue brughiere?
(rivolgendosi a Harry, accarezzandogli la mano)
Harry, e tu, quante sere t'ho vegliato morente . . .
e nel delirio credevi in me vedere la tua piccola Maud,

Minnie's arrival.)
(Minnie—followed by Nick—comes on, on horseback, dishevelled, her hair flying in the wind, a pistol between her teeth; she gets down and runs to the group of men surrounding Johnson.)
(The crowd of miners draws back. Johnson remains motionless in the middle of the six armed men.)

MINNIE: (jumps down from her horse with a desperate shriek): Ah no!
Who will dare?

RANCE: (going up to her): Justice demands it.

MINNIE: (confronting him):
And who are you
To talk of justice?
Rascal yourself!

RANCE: (goes up to Minnie threateningly): Best take care
What you say to me!

MINNIE: (looking him straight in the face): What can you do?
I don't fear you!

RANCE: (pushing her away roughly—to the miners in imperious tones): Now then!
Make haste and hang this fellow!
(Some of the miners resolutely approach Johnson.)

MINNIE: (with one bound places herself in front of Johnson and levels the pistol at the crowd): Oh, no, you won't!
Not a man of you will dare!
(The crowd draws back, muttering at Minnie's threats.)

RANCE: (urging on the crowd):
Tear her away from there!
Is there not one of you that has an ounce of courage?
Does a petticoat make your faces grow white?
(The crowd remains motionless, as if spell-bound by Minnie's look.)

MINNIE: I dare you! I dare you!
(She presses close to Johnson, leans her face on his shoulder, and continues to gaze on the crowd with defiance, keeping the pistol levelled at them.)

RANCE: (half mad with rage):
Now then!
Now make an end!
You know that justice must be done!
Enough!

DIFFERENT VOICES: Stop it!
Let's hang him!
Stop it!
(The crowd, growing gradually more excited, presses close around Minnie and Johnson. Then succumbing again to its rage of hatred and jealousy, it advances more threateningly. Two of the armed men beside the tree seize Minnie by the shoulders; she wrenches herself free and clings to Johnson again, swiftly raising her pistol.)

MINNIE: Stand off, or I'll kill him and myself, too!

SONORA: (with a shout, throwing himself between Minnie and the crowd): Oh, let her go!
(All draw back. Rance, ashy pale and grim, goes apart and sits down in the hollow of the tree near the fire. Sonora remains standing in a threatening attitude near Minnie and Johnson.)

MINNIE: (white as death, trembling with disdain, in strident tones): Was ever one of you who said "Stop it,"
When I gave up the best of my days to you?
When in the midst of oaths and quarrels I used to Share your worries and your want with you
Like a comrade?
Not one of you did ever then say
"Stop it!"
(The crowd is guiltily silent. Many lower their heads.)
I claim this man as mine,
Mine from God!
God in his heaven above had blessed him;
He was going away, going to start a new life;
And the robber that was,
Died a week ago in my cabin;
You cannot kill him!
(A rough feeling of emotion steals into their hearts. No one offers any further protest.)

SONORA: (with a cry which is almost a sob): Ah, Minnie, the gold wouldn't matter,
But he's robbed us of your heart!

MINNIE: (turning round, suddenly affectionate): My good old Sonora, Always the first to forgive.

SONORA: (conquered, moved, lowers his eyes): Minnie!

MINNIE: You will forgive,
As you will all forgive . . .

VOICES: (moved, with bent heads): No!
We can't!

MINNIE: You can do what you want!
(Goes up to Joe.)
And surely you will want it,
Joe . . .
Wasn't it you that would bring me flowers
You picked by the Torrent, like the ones
That grow in your country?
(Turns to Harry, stroking his hand.)
Harry, how many evenings,
When we thought you were dying, la sorella che adori,

venuta di lontano . . .
(a Trin con dolcezza)
E tu mio Trin, a cui ressi la mano quando scrivevi
le prime incerte lettere, che partivan di qui per San Domingo . . .
(rivolgendosi a Happy, poi a Bello, accarezzandolo alla guancia)
E tu, buon Happy, e tu,
Bello, che hai gli occhi ceruli d'un bimbo, (rivolgendosi a tutti)
e voi tutti, fratelli del mio cuore, anime rudi e buone . . .
(gettando via la pistola)
ecco, getto quest'arma!
Torno quella che fui per voi, l'amica, la sorella che un giorno v'insegnò una suprema verità d'amore:
fratelli, non v'è al mondo peccatore cui non s'apra una via di redenzione!

SONORA: (ad un gruppo di minatori) —E necessario . . .
—Troppo le dobbiamo!
(ad uno)
—Deciditi anche tu!

UN MINATORE: No, non possiamo!

SONORA: (ad Happy) Tu taci!
E il suo diritto!

ALCUNI MINATORI: E che deá Ashby?

SONORA: Quel che vorrà!
I padroni siam noi!
(investendone uno)
Non t'opporre, tu!
(ad altri) Andiamo!
(ad altro gruppo)
È necessario alfin . . .
(ad un altro)
Deciditi anche tu.

I MINATORI: (stringendosi nelle spalle) E se' tu che lo vuoi . . .

SONORA: (ad uno) Anche tu, via!

HAPPY: (allo stesso) Anche tu . . .

TRIN: (asciugandosi una lagrima) Sì, tu m'hai fatto piangere!
Guardate come l'ama!

HAPPY: E com'è dolce è bella!

I MINATORI: È una viltà!
Rideranno di noi!

And you tossed on your bed in delirium,
Have I watched by your side,
While you thought I was Maud,
Your little sister come from home.
(To Trin, very gently.)
And you, my Trin, whose big hand I have guided,
When you scrawled the first
Unsteady letters that we sent from here
To San Domingo.
(Turning to Happy, then to Handsome, stroking his cheek.)
And you, dear old Happy,
And you, Handsome, with big blue eyes like a baby . . .
(Turning to all.)
And you all, who are dear to me as brothers,
Honest and faithful souls . . .
(Throws away her pistol.)
Look, I throw away my pistol!
Once again let me be as before,
Your loving friend, your sister,
Who once, not long ago, taught you
The best and highest teaching of Love:
That the very worst of sinners
May be redeemed and shall find the way to Paradise!

SONORA: We must . . .
We owe her too much!
(To one of the men.)
You surely will agree!

A MINER: No, we can't!

SONORA: (to Happy): You're silent!
It is her right!

SOME MINERS: And what will Ashby say?

SONORA: Who cares what he will say?
We are the masters here!
(Going up to one.)
You must give in, too!
(To others.)
Come on!
(To others.)
I say we must!
(To another.)
You surely will agree!

SOME MINERS: (shrugging their shoulders): If you say so . . .

SONORA: (to one): You, too, come on!

HAPPY: (to the same one): You, too!

TRIN: (wiping away a tear): Yes, you have made me cry!
See how she loves him!

HAPPY: And how sweet and kind she is!

THE MINERS: It's a shame—
We'll be a laughing stock.

JOE, HARRY, SONORA E BELLO: Minnie merita tutto!

SONORA: (rivolto a tutti) Per lei per me, lo fate!
(i minatori con moti espressivi assentono)
(Johnson s'inginocchia commosso, bacia il lembo della veste di Minnie mentre essa pone la mano sulla testa di lui quasi benedicendolo)

SONORA: (stringe ad alcuni le mani e si avanza verso Minnie che lo guarda ansiosa, sorridendogli fra le lacrime)
(a Minnie) Le tue parole sono di Dio.
Tu l'ami come nessuno al mondo!
(Sonora rialza Johnson; con un coltello taglia rapidamente la corda che gli lega le mani) In nome di tutti, io te lo dono.
(piangendo)
Va, Minnie, addio!
(Le sue parole finiscono in un singhiozzo. Minnie bacia Sonora, poi, con un grido di gioia, si avvinghia a Johnson nascondendo nel di lui petto il suo pianto di felicità)

JOHNSON: (sorreggendola e guardando la turba silenziosa dalla quale si elevano singhiozzi sommessi) Grazie, fratelli!

MINNIE: (commossa) Addio!

TUTTI: (sommessamente, commossi) Mai, mai più!
(Minnie stringe le mani a Nick, accarezzandolo, e ad altri vicini a lei; poi ritorna verso Johnson)
(Nick commosso piange)

JOHNSON E MINNIE: (Minnie e Johnson, abbracciati, si avviano)
Addio, mia dolce terra, addio, mia California!
Bei monti della Sierra, o nevi, addio!
(escono di scena).
(La turba è accasciata. Alcuni sono a terra e piangono, altri appoggiati ai loro cavalli, altri agli alberi, si abbandonano al dolore—altri ancora, tristamente, fanno cenni di addio a Minnie che va allontanandosi)

LE VOCI DI MINNIE E DI JOHNSON: (interne, allontanandosi)
Addio, mia California, addio!

LA TURBA: (sotto voce, singhiozzando) Mai più ritornerai . . . mai più . . . mai più!

(Sipario lentissimo)

JOE, HARRY, SONORA AND HANDSOME: Minnie is worth it all!

SONORA: (turning to all): For her, for my sake, do it!
(The miners signify their assent.)
(Johnson kneels down deeply touched; he kisses the hem of Minnie's gown while she places her hand on his head as if blessing him.)

SONORA: (shakes hands with some of them and goes up to Minnie):
(To Minnie.):
O, Girl,
Your words must come from God,
Your love is something high and holy!
(Sonora raises Johnson from the ground; with his knife he quickly cuts the rope which binds his hands.)
In the name of all
I give him to you!
(Crying.)
Go, Minnie, good-bye!
(His words end in a sob. Minnie kisses Sonora, then with a cry of joy she clings to Johnson, crying with joy, her face buried on his shoulder.)

JOHNSON: (supporting her and looking at the silent crowd from which subdued sobs are heard):
You shall not regret it!

MINNIE: (touched): Good-bye!

ALL: (in low tones, very moved):
Good-bye!
(Minnie wrings Nick's hands very affectionately, and shakes hands with others near her; then she goes up to Johnson.)
(Nick, deeply touched, is crying.)

JOHNSON AND MINNIE: (Johnson, his arm round Minnie, goes off with her): Good-bye, beloved country; good-bye, my California,
My mountains, my Sierra Mountains—Good-bye!
(They go off the stage.)
(The crowd is in a state of dejection. Some are on the ground, crying; others, leaning against their horses or the trees, give way to their grief, others again wave good-bye, sadly, to Minnie, as she disappears.)

THE VOICES OF MINNIE AND JOHNSON: (behind in the distance): Good-bye, my California, good-bye!

THE CROWD: (sotto voce, weeping): You'll never come again!
Good-bye!
Good-bye!

(THE CURTAIN FALLS SLOWLY.)

La Rondine (1917)

The Swallow

MUSIC BY GIACOMO PUCCINI ■ LIBRETTO BY GIUSEPPE ADAMI

La Rondine, set to a libretto by Giuseppe Adami, premiered at the Théâtre du Casino in Monte Carlo on March 27, 1917. Magda de Civry, mistress of the banker Rambaldo, is giving a party at her beautiful Parisian home. Prunier, a poet and living-room philosopher, speaks derisively about romantic love. Prunier, who also claims to be a palm-reader, reads Magda's hand, pronouncing that she will fly away to the sea like a sparrow. A new guest arrives—Ruggero Lastouc, an old friend of Rambaldo's father. This is his first time in Paris, and Magda's maid, Lisette, suggests that he go to Bullier's cafe. Magda decides to go as well–dressed in Lisette's clothes. At Bullier's cafe, Magda sits down at a table already occupied by Ruggero, who does not recognize his hostess from earlier. Overwhelmed by memories of her earlier life, when she was poor and dreamed of passionate love, she gives in to her growing attachment to Ruggero. She leaves behind her Parisian comforts, flying to the sea like a sparrow, and lives with Ruggero in a little house on the Côte d'Azur. He wants to marry her and writes to his mother for her consent, which she grants—if his intended is virtuous. Magda knows that her past life deems her fit only to be Ruggero's mistress. She tells him who she really is. Desperately unhappy, she realizes that the swallow must fly back. She returns to her life in Paris with Rambaldo.

■ ATTO PRIMO	■ ACT I
Un salone elegantissimo in casa di Magda, A Parigi. Nell'angolo di destra una serra-veranda a grandi vetrate, oltre le quali si vede una parte delle Tuilleries in pieno crepuscolo. La porta d'entrata, assai grande e decorata da un ricco cortinaggio, è un poco a sinistra, nella parete di fondo. A sinistra—in primo piano—una piccola porta conduce al boudoir. Vi si accede per una scaletta di pochi gradini, con ringhiera di legno. Nel fondo, a destra—primo piano—un caminetto di marmo sormontato da un grande specchio. Presso il caminetto due poltrone e un piccolo tavolo basso. Molti altri piccoli tavoli, poltrone, sedie, divani, son distribuiti qua e là con arte e con gusto. Presso la veranda, un paravento. Sulle pareti arazzi e stampe preziose. Sui mobili ninnoli e fiori. A destra—a metà sala—un pianoforte a coda ricoperto da un ricco broccato. Sul piano un vaso di rose rosse. Vicino al pianoforte una lampada a stelo con grande abat-jour. Altre piccole lampade velate da abat-jour a diversi colori, sui tavoli, diffondono una luce intima e sobria. Quando si schiude il velario i riflessi rossastri del tramonto illanguidiscono. Rambaldo Fernandez è a destra, verso il fondo, e insieme con lui sono gli amici Perichaud, Gobin, Crebillon. Yvette, Bianca e Suzy si sono avvicinate a Prunier, il quale appoggiato al pianoforte, le intrattiene con sottile vivacità. Magda sta versando il caffè che Lisette serve, scodinzolando rapidissima e petulante da un gruppo all'altro. Poi ritirerà le tazze che raccoglierà in un vassoio d'argento posato sul piccolo tavolo.	An elegant salon in Magda's house in Paris. In a corner, at the right, a covered veranda with large windows, from which the Tuilleries are seen in the twilight. The entrance door is large and draped with a rich portière—It is a little to the left of the rear wall. To the left—on the first floor—a small door leads to the boudoir. It is reached by a stairway of a few steps with a wooden banister. To the rear, at the right,—on the first floor—a marble mantelpiece surmounted by a large mirror. Near the fireplace two armchairs, and a small low table. Scattered around artistically and in good taste are more small tables, armchairs, chairs and divans. Near the veranda, a screen. On the walls hang tapestries and priceless prints. On the tables, nicknacks and flowers. To the right—halfway—a grand piano covered with rich brocade. On the piano a vase full of red roses. Near the piano a pedestal lamp with a large shade. Other smaller lamps, shaded in various colors, on the tables, shed a subdued light. At the rising of the curtain, the reddish reflexes of the sunset linger on the scene. Rambaldo Fernandez is seen to the right, towards the rear, and with him are his friends, Perichaud, Gobin, Crebillon. Yvette, Bianca and Suzy are near Prunier, who, leaning against the piano, is entertaining them in a very lively manner. Magda is pouring out coffee and Lisette is handing it round, turning quickly and saucily from one group to the other. She then gathers up the cups and puts them on a silver tray, on a small table.
YVETTE: (con una risata) Ah! no! no!	YVETTE: (with a burst of laughter) Ah! no! no!
BIANCA: Non dite questo!	BIANCA: Don't say that!
PRUNIER: Signore! Vi contesto il diritto di ridere! . . .	PRUNIER: Ladies, I challenge your right to laugh!
YVETTE: E noi quello di parlare sul serio!	YVETTE: And we, yours to talk seriously!
PRUNIER: È pura verità!	PRUNIER: And yet, I tell you it is true!
MAGDA: (avvicinandosi) La verità sarebbe?	MAGDA: (approaching) What is true?
PRUNIER: Una cosa assai grave: A Parigi si ama! Imperversa una moda nel gran mondo elegante: L'Amor sentimentale!	PRUNIER: A very serious matter; Love has broken out in Paris! The fashion of sentimental Love Rages in the highest places!
LISETTE: (interrompendolo vivacemente) Amor sentimentale? . . . Ma non dategli retta! Storie! . . . Si vive in fretta: "Mi vuoi? . . ." "Ti voglio . . ." È fatto!	LISETTE: (interrupting with vivacity) Sentimental Love? . . . Don't listen to him! Rubbish! . . . ! We all live in a hurry: "Do you want me?" "All right!" . . . It is done!

PRUNIER: (con esagerato risentimento si rivolge a Magda accennando a Lisette) Scacciatela! . . .
Il contatto con una cameriera . . . mi ripugna!

MAGDA: (intervenendo benevolmente) Poeta, perdonate! . . .
In casa mia
L'anormale è una regola . . .
(a Lisette)
Tu via!

LISETTE: (con un inchino) Io ritorno al mio servizio se del mio giudizio non si sa che far!
(esce rapida)

MAGDA: (sedendo presso a Prunier) Unque . . . raccontavate? . . .

PRUNIER: Che la moda è romantica:
Sguardi amorosi,
streete furtive,
baci, sospiri,
ma niente più

YVETTE—BIANCA—SUZY: (giocando comicamente intorno a Prunier)
—Amore!
—O cielo!
—Svengo! . . . !
—Io struggo!
—Cedo! . . .
—Muoio! . . .
—Illanguidisco tutta!
—Consolami, Poeta!
—Assistimi fortuna!
—Dammi un chiaro di luna . . .
E un verso del Musset!

MAGDA: (interrompendo il gioco delle amiche)
Non scherzate!

PRUNIER: (colpito dal gesto di Magda)
Che c'è?
La moda v'interessa?

MAGDA: Può darsi! . . .
Continuate.
(Nel frattempo Crebillon che sfogliava un giornale, pare colpito da una notizia che s'affretta a indicare agli altri. Tutti si aggruppano vicino a lui leggendo, poi sembrano discutere animatamente.)

PRUNIER: La malattia . . . diciamo epidemia . . .
meglio è dire follia,
fa grande strage
nel mondo femminile! . . .
(Tutte gli si avvicinano attente)
E un microbo sottile
che turbina nell'aria . . .
Vi prende di sorpresa
E il cuor non ha difesa!

TUTTE: (con comica preoccupazione) È un microbo sottile
Che turbina nell'aria? . . .
Ci prende di sorpresa
E il cuor non ha difesa? . . .

PRUNIER: (with exaggerated resentment to Magda, pointing at Lisette) I wish you would discharge her! . . .
Contact with a maid . . . is repugnant to me!

MAGDA: (interrupting, kindly) Forgive her, Poet! . . .
Abnormality is the Rule in my house . . .
(to Lisette)
You can go!

LISETTE: (with a curtsy) I'll go back to my work, since you are not Able to appreciate my wit!
(hurries out)

MAGDA: (seating herself near Prunier) Well . . . you were saying? . . .

PRUNIER: Romance is the fashion:
Loving glances,
Hands meeting stealthily,
Kisses, sighs . . .
And that's all!

YVETTE—BIANCA—SUZY
(playing around Prunier for the fun of it) —Love!
Ye Heavens!
I'm fainting!
I'm consumed!
I surrender!
I'm dying!
I'm languishing! Poet, console me!
Ye Fates help me!
Ah! for a moonbeam!
For a verse by Musset!

MAGDA: (interrupting her friends' game)
Don't laugh!

PRUNIER: (struck by Magda's behavior)
What do you say?
The fashion interests your?

MAGDA: Perhaps! . . . Go on.
(Meanwhile, Crebillon, who is reading the paper, seems to be struck by some item of news, which he is anxious to impart to the others. They all gather around him while he reads. They discuss the matter with animation.)

PRUNIER: This sickness . . .
Or rather epidemic . . .
Better still, this madness,
Is making terrible inroads
In the feninine world! . . .
(all draw near and listen attentively)
It is a tiny microbe
Which gyrates in the air . . .
It takes you by surprise
And no heart is proof against it!

ALL: (with comic earnestness) A tiny microbe
Which gyrates in the air . . .
It takes you by surprise
And no heart is proof against it! . . .

PRUNIER: Nessuno può salvarsi tanto è oscura l'insidia! . . .

TUTTE: (a bassa voce, quasi con terrore) Nessuna?

PRUNIER: Nessuna!

TUTTE: (c. s.) Nessuna! . . .

PRUNIER: (gravemente ripete)
Nessuna! . . .
Anche Doretta . . .

TUTTE: Doretta?
E chi sarebbe?

PRUNIER: La mia nuova eroina:
una cara donnina
che fu presa dal male e immortalai tal quale nell'ultima canzone . . .

TUTTE: La vogliamo sentire!

PRUNIER: (con comica ironia)
Ne potreste soffrire!

TUTTE: Non fatevi pregare!

MAGDA: Vi impongo di cantare!
(e voltandosi dal gruppo degli uomini)
E voi laggiù, silenzio!
(con esagerata solennità)
Il poeta Prunier, gloria della nazione,
Degna le nostre orecchie d'una nuova canzone!

RAMBALDO: (alzandosi) Argomento?

PRUNIER: L'Amore!

RAMBALDO: (sedendo) Il tema è un po' appassito!
(Perichaud, Gobin, Crebillon annuiscono)

MAGDA: L'amore è sempre nuovo!
(a Prunier, invitandolo al piano)
Su, Poeta!

PRUNIER: Mi provo!
(Egli accende la lampada a stelo vicino al pianoforte, poi siede e abbozza i primi accordi. Nella sala si fa un grande silenzio)
Chi il bel sogno di Doretta
potè indovinar?
Il suo mistero nessuno mai scoprì!
Un bel giorno il re la bimba volle avvicinar:
—"Se tu a me credi,
se tu a me cedi,
ti farò ricca!
Ah! cretura!
Dolce incanto!
La vana tua paura,
il trepido tuo pianto
ora sparirà!"
—"No! mio sire!
No, no piango!
Ma come son, rimango, chè l'oro non può dare
la felicità!"
(poco a poco Magda s'avvicina)
(Pruiner si alza)

MAGDA: Perchè non continuate?

PRUNIER: No one can save himself,
So subtle is the snare!

ALL: (in low tones, almost in terror) No one?

PRUNIER: No one!

ALL: (same as above) No one!

PRUNIER: (repeats gravely) No one! . . .
Not even Doretta . . .

ALL: Pray, who may Doretta be?

PRUNIER: My new heroine:
A charming little lady
Who was struck with the evil.
I have immortalized her
In my latest song . . .

ALL: Let's hear it!

PRUNIER: (with comic sarcasm)
It might cause you pain!

ALL: Don't let us have to ask you twice!

MAGDA: I command you to sing!
(turning from the group of men)
Silence, over there!
(with exaggerated solemnity)
Prunier, the Poet, the Glory of the Nation,
Will condescend to honor our ears with a new song!

RAMBALDO: (rising) The subject?

PRUNIER: Love!

RAMBALDO: (taking his seat again) That subject is a little bit off color!
(Perichaud, Gobin, Crebillon assent)

MAGDA: Love is always new!
(to Prunier, motioning him to the piano)
Begin, Poet!

PRUNIER: Let's see, if I can!
(He lights the lamp near the piano, sits down, and strikes a few chords. Silence in the room)
Who can guess Doretta's dream?
Who can solve her mystery?
The King approached the Maid one day:
"Put your trust in me;
Be mine and riches shall be yours
Ah! creature of enchantment sweet,
Your fears and weeping soon will cease!"
"No Sir! I am not shedding tears!
I will remain just as I am, for
No gold can buy me happiness!"
(Magda approaches slowly)
(Prunier rises)

MAGDA: Why don't you go on?

PRUNIER: Il seguito mi manca: Se voi l'indovinate Vi cedo la mia gloria!	PRUNIER: I don't seem to get the end: If you have guessed it, I cede my glory to you!
MAGDA: La conquista mi tenta, e la semplice istoria! . . . (Siede al pianoforte. L'attenzione si far ancor più viva) Chi il bel sogno di Doretta potè indovinar? Il suo mistero come mai finì? Ahimè! un giorno uno studente in bocca la baciò e fu quel bacio rivelazione: Fu la passione! Folle amore! Folle ebbrezza! Chi la sottile carezza D'un bacio così ardente mai ridir, potrà?	MAGDA: The conquest tempts me, It is a simple story! . . . (she seats herself at the piano) (attention is still more eager) Who can guess Doretta's dream? What was the solution of the mystery? Woe is me! One day a student Kissed her lips and that kiss revealed to her Passion! Love's madness! And wild exuberance! For who can recount The subtle caress Of so ardent a kiss?
TUTTI: (sussurando sommessamente)—Deliziosa!	ALL: (in a low voice) Delightful!
MAGDA: (con crescente calore) Ah! mio sogno! Ah! . . . mia vita!	MAGDA: (with increasing passion) O! dream of mine! O Life!
TUTTI: —È squisita! . . . —È squisita! . . .	ALL: Exquisite! . . . Exquisite!
MAGDA: —Che importa la ricchezza Se alfine è rifiorita la felicità! (Non appena il suo canto è finito, Prunier prende dal vaso che è sul pianoforte le rose rosse e le sparge lentamente ai piedi di Magda)	MAGDA: —What matter riches If happiness returns at last! (She has hardly come to the end of her song, when Prunier, taking the vase of red roses from the piano, slowly scatters them at the feet of Magda)
PRUNIER: Ai vostri piedi Tutte le grazie della Primavera!	PRUNIER: At your feet all the gifts of Spring!
MAGDA: (alzandosi sorridente e stringendo le mani che gli amici le tendono)—No . . . Adesso non burlatemi . . .	MAGDA: (rising with a smile and clasping the hands of her friends) No . . . Now, don't laugh at me . . .
PERICHAUD: Vi ripeto: squisita!	PERICHAUD: I assure you: exquisite!
CREBILLION: Che arte!	CREBILLON: What art!
GOBIN: Che finezza!	GOBIN: What finesse!
RAMBALDO: Che calore!	RAMBALDO: What passion!
MAGDA: (stupita, a Rambaldo) Come? . . . voi . . . l'uomo "pratico"? . . .	MAGDA: (stupified, to Rambaldo) What? . . . you . . . the "practical" man? . . .
RAMBALDO: (allargando le braccia, con rassegnazione) La corrente trascina!	RAMBALDO: (spreading his arms, with resignation) The current drags me under!
MAGDA: (ironica) Merito di Prunier, nostra rovina!	MAGDA: (with irony) Prunier's merit is our ruin!
PRUNIER: Non sono io! . . . Nel fondo d'ogni anima c'è un diavolo romantico ch'è più forte di me, di voi, di tutti!	PRUNIER: It is not I! . . . In the depths of each Soul there lurks a devil of romance, Which is stronger than I, you, or anyone!
RAMBALDO: —No! Il mio diavolo dorme!	RAMBALDO: —No! My devil is asleep!
YVETTE: (ingenuamente) Che peccato! Perchè?	YVETTE: (innocently) What a pity! Why? . . .
RAMBALDO: Mi armo di acqua santa e lo sconfiggo. Lo volete vedere? (leva dal taschino un astuccio contenente una collana di perle e l'offre a Magda) Ecco!	RAMBALDO: I arm myself with Holy Water and cast him out. Do you want to see him? (He takes from his pocket a jewel case containing a pearl necklace and offers it to Magda) —There!
MAGDA: (prendendo il gioiello, un po' meravigliata)—A me?	MAGDA: (takes the necklace somewhat surprised)—For me?
RAMBALDO: Certo! . . . la mia intenzione era di offrirvelo prima di pranzo . . . me ne dimenticai . . . ma l'occasione sembra inventata apposta!	RAMBALDO: For you! . . . —It was my intention to give it to you Before dinner . . . but I forgot . . . however, the Moment seems very well chosen!
MAGDA: Ho una sola risposta: Non cambio d'opinione . . .	MAGDA: I have just one reply: I adhere to my opinion . . .
RAMBALDO: Non lo esigo! . . . (S'allontana mentre gli altri si raggruppano intorno a Magda. Gobin, Perichaud, Crebillon, dopo essersi passati l'uno all'altro il gioiello, quasi per valutarne il prezzo, e dopo aver espressa la loro ammirazione, si staccano dal gruppo avviandosi verso la veranda, dove si fume)	RAMBALDO: I do not expect the contrary! (He goes off while the others group around Magda. Gobin, Perichaud, Crebillon, after having passed the jewel to each other, as if to place a valuation on it, and after having expressed their admiration, leave the group and pass on to the veranda to have a smoke)
PRUNIER: —La Doretta della mia fantasia non si turba . . . ma, in verità, mi pare che vacilli quella della realtà!	PRUNIER: —The Doretta Of my fantasy is adamant . . . But it seems to me that the One in the flesh is surrendering!
LISETTE: (Entra rapidissima da destra, si dirige verso Rambaldo e trascinandolo in disparte gli sussurra con incredibile velocità) Un momento: scusi, ecco: quel signore giunse ancora. Gli risposi: "Calma! Aspetti!" Mi rispose: "Già da un'ora Sto in istrada passeggiando In attesa d'un comando! Che mi dica se non può! . . ."	LISETTE: (Enters in a hurry, on the right, she goes to Rambaldo and drawing him aside whispers to him with incredible velocity) One moment: excuse me: That man has come again. I told him: "Calm yourself! Wait!" He replied: "I have been walking Around the streets already for an hour . . . Awaiting a sign! . . . Let him tell me, if he can't . . ."
RAMBALDO: (parlato) Non ho capito una parola!	RAMBALDO: (spoken) I haven't understood a word!
LISETTE: (come prima) Auff! Quel signore che le dissi La cercava poco fa . . .	LISETTE: (flustered as before) Oh, dear! The man I told you about, The one who was looking for you a little while ago . . .
RAMBALDO: Ebbene?	RAMBALDO: Well?
LISETTE: Non si muove, non la smette, sette volte già tornò!	LISETTE: He won't budge, He just keeps on, He has returned seven times!
RAMBALDO: Sette volte?	RAMBALDO: Seven times?
LISETTE: Sette! Sette! Le ripeto: non la smette . . . fra un minuto tornerà.	LISETTE: Yes, seven! Seven! And I tell you: he just keeps on . . . He will be back again in a minute.
RAMBALDO: (avvicinandosi a Magda) Scusate, Magda: Mi permettete di ricevere qui il figlio d'un mio amico d'infanzia? Da due ore m'aspetta . . .	RAMBALDO: (going up to Magda) Excuse me, Magda: Will you allow me to receive here The son of a friend of my childhood? He has already been waiting for me two hours . . .
MAGDA: Ma fate pure! Siete in casa vostra.	MAGDA: Do as you like! You are in your own house.

RAMBALDO: Razie.
(a Lisette)
Ditegli allora
Che passi pure qui.
(Lisette esce rapida)
(Rambaldo si avvia verso la serra)

PRUNIER: (a Magda, accennando a Lisette) Come fate a sopportarla?
È un mulinello!

MAGDA: (bonariamente) No. E una brava ragazza . . .
Forse invadente,
ma divertente . . .
Un po' di sole nella mia vita!

BIANCA: La tua vita è invidiabile!

YVETTE: Rambaldo generoso!

BIANCA: Credi a me che nessuna ebbe la tua fortuna

MAGDA: Che importa la fortuna!
(Prunier nel frattempo ha raggiunto gli altri nella veranda)

SUZY: La vita è assai difficile!

BIANCA: Costa tanto il denaro!

MAGDA: Denaro . . . denaro . . .
Nient'altro che denaro! . . .
Ma via! Siate sincere!
Son sicura che voi m'assomigliate e spesso rimpiangete la piccola "grisette"
ch'è felice col suo innamorato!

BIANCA: Sono sogni!

MAGDA: Può darsi! . . .
Ma che non si dimenticano più! . . .
Ah, quella sera che son scappata alla mia vecchia zia!
Mi pare ieri! . . .
E perchè non potrebbe essere anacora domani? . . .
Perchè? . . .
(assorta nella visione lontana)
Ore dolci e divine di lieta baraonda
fra studenti e sartine
d'una notte a Bullier! . . .
Come andai? Non lo so!
Come uscii? . . . No lo so!
Cantava una lenta canzone
la musica strana
e una voce lontana
mi diceva così:
"Fanciulla, è sbocciato l'amore!
Difendi, difendi il tuo cuore!
Dei baci e sorrisi l'incanto
Si paga con stille di pianto! . . ."
. . . Quando ci sedemmo, stanchi, estenuati dalla danza, la gola arsa, ma 'lanima
piena d'allegrezza, mi parve che si schiudesse
tutta una nuova esistenza! . . .
Due bocks—egli disse—al garzone!
Stupita fissavo quel grande scialone!
Gettò venti soldi. Aggiunse: Tenete! . . .

YVETTE: Che gesto da Creso!
(le amiche ridono)

SUZY—BIANCA: Che nobile gesto!
Che lusso!—Che sfarzo!

YVETTE: —C'è tutto compreso?

BIANCA—SUZY: —La birra ed il resto?

BIANCA—SUZY—YVETTE: Vogliamo la chiusa!
Vogliamo la fine!

MAGDA: (riprendendo)
—"Piccola adorata mia il tuo nome vuoi dir?"
Io non glielo dissi
Ma sul marmo scrissi:
Ed egli accanto
Il nome suo tracciò . . .
E là fra la mattana di tutta quella gente, ci siamo guardati
ma senza dir niente . . .

YVETTE: Oh! strano! . . . senza dir niente?

BIANCA: E allora?

MAGDA: M'impaurii? . . . Non lo so!
Poi fuggii! . . . Più non so! . . .
Cantava una triste canzone
la musica strana,
E una voce lontana
mi diceva così:
"Fanciulla è sbocciato l'amore!
Difendi, difendi il tuo cuore!
Dei baci e sorrisi l'incanto
Si paga con stille di pianto! . . . "
(alzandosi)
Potessi rivivere ancora la gioia di un'ora!

YVETTE: E poi?

MAGDA: Basta . . . È finito . . .

BIANCA: (con delusione) Finito così?

MAGDA: Il profumo squisito della strana avventura, amiche, è tutto qui.

BIANCA: (a Prunier che resale dal fondo) Poeta, un argomento!

YVETTE—BIANCA—SUZY: (alternandosi) "Storia d'un puro amore fra Magda giovinetta
E un ignoto signore . . .
Incontro ed abbandono
In meno di due ore . . ."

PRUNIER: Due ore? . . .
È quanto basta!

BIANCA: No: l'avventura è casta.

PRUNIER: Date i particolari!

RAMBALDO: Thanks.
(to Lisette)
Tell him to come in.
(Lisette goes out hurriedly)
(Rambaldo goes to the covered veranda)

PRUNIER: (to Magda, pointing to Lisette) How can you put up with her?
A regular idiot!

MAGDA: (good humoredly) No.
She is a good girl . . .
Perhaps officious,
But amusing . . .
A little sunshine
In my life!

BIANCA: Your life is to be envied!

YVETTE: With Rambaldo, so generous!

BIANCA: Believe me, no one has had your good luck.

MAGDA: What is the use of good luck!
(meanwhile Prunier has rejoined the others)

SUZY: Life is hard enough!

BIANCA: Money costs so much!

MAGDA: Money . . .
Money . . .
Nothing but money! . . .
Get along with you!
Be sincere!
I am sure that you are just as I am,
And many a time you regret the little "grisette"
So happy with her lover!

BIANCA: Those are only dreams!

MAGDA: Maybe! . . .
But they are unforgettable! . . .
Oh that night, when I ran away from my old aunt!
It seems like only yesterday! . . .
And why should the same tomorrow not be? . . .
Why? . . .
(absorbed in a far away vision)
What hours of sweetness divine,
Of joyful revelry,
Between students and seamstresses,
A night at Bullier! . . .
How I went? I cannot say!
How I left? I do not know!
Strange music droned in a slow rhythm
And a distant voice said:
Child, love has awakened!
Defend, defend your heart!
The incantation of kisses and smiles
Must be repaid with tears and anguish . . .
When we rested
Tired and extenuated
From the dance, our throats parched,
But our souls alive with joy,
It seemed to me as if a new existence
Had sprung into being . . .
Two bocks—he said—to the waiter!
Stupified I stared at that spendthrift
As he flung him twenty sous, adding:
Keep it! . . .

YVETTE: The act of a Croesus!
(the friends laugh)

SUZY—BIANCA: What a noble act!
What luxury!
What extravagance!

YVETTE: —And was everything comprised?

BIANCA—SUZY: The beer and the rest?

BIANCA—SUZY—YVETTE: We want to hear the rest!
We want the end!

MAGDA: (continuing) —"Little adored one Tell me your name?"
I would not tell him
But on the marble table wrote:
And he, next to mine, traced his . . .
And there, amongst that seething crowd,
We gazed into each other's eyes
Without a word . . .

YVETTE: How funny! Without a word?

BIANCA: And then?

MAGDA: I felt frightened! . . . I know not why!
And I fled! . . . I know no more! . . .
Strange music droned in a slow rhythm
And a distant voice said:
"Child, love has awakened!
Defend, defend your heart!
The incantation of kisses and smiles
Must be repaid with tears and anguish! . . . "
(she rises)
Could I but live once more
The joy of that one hour!

YVETTE: And then?

MAGDA: That's all . . . It is finished . . .

BIANCA: (disappointed) Finished in that way?

MAGDA: The exquisite perfume
Of that strange adventure
Still lingers.

BIANCA: (to Prunier who approaches from the rear) Poet, a subject!

YVETTE—BIANCA—SUZY:
"The story of a pure love
Between Magda, as a young girl,
And an unknown man . . .
Meeting and desertion
In less than two hours . . ."

PRUNIER: Two hours? . . .
Well, isn't that enough?

BIANCA: No: the adventure is chaste!

PRUNIER: Let's hear the particulars!

BIANCA: Una fuga, una festa,
un po' di birra . . .

YVETTE: A casa, tutta sola,
la vecchia zia che aspetta,

BIANCA: E due baffetti bruni
che fan girar la testa!

PRUNIER: (equivocando per gioco) La zia coi baffi bruni che beve della birra?
Curiosa! . . .
Non m'attira!

MAGDA: (sorridendo) V'attira la nipote?

PRUNIER: Può darsi . . . ma qualora essa risponda ai miei gusti d'artista!
La donna che conquista dev'essere raffinata,
elegante, perversa . . .
Degna insomma di me:
Galatea, Berenice,
Francesca, Salomè! . . .

YVETTE: (impressionata) O che uomo difficile!

BIANCA: (c. s.) Che nomo complicato!

PRUNIER: Non ne ho colpa: son nato per le grandi avventure!

MAGDA: Ma come le scoprite tante virtù: Poeta?

PRUNIER: È semplice: la mèta d'ogni donna è segnata nel palmo della mano . . .

MAGDA: Davvero?

BIANCA: —O strano!

YVETTE: —Strano!

PRUNIER: Se volete provare . . .
Ma esigo un gran mistero.
(indicando)
Il paravento!

BIANCA: Presto!
(Corre al fondo e aiutana da Suzy e Yvette transporta il paravento che è collocato dopo molte prove in modo da formare un piccolo recesso vicino al pianoforte. Le donne vi si raccolgono sedendo intorno a Prunier)

PRUNIER: Un angolo appartato . . .
(allundendo agli uomini che sono nella veranda)
Laggiù il volgo profano! . . .
E qui, bellezza e . . .
Scienza! . . .
(le donne ridono)

MAGDA: (alle amiche, con comico rimprovero) Serietà, ve ne prego!

PRUNIER: Incomincio?

MAGDA: (tendendo la destra)
Son pronta!
Dite!

BIANCA: —Svelateci!

YVETTE: —Scoprite!

BIANCA: A flight, a feast.
A little beer.—

YVETTE: At home, all alone,
An old aunt waiting.

BIANCA: And a pair of side whiskers
Send a head a' spinning!

PRUNIER: (misinterpreting for fun) What, an aunt with side whiskers, Drinking beer?
Strange! . . .
That doesn't attract me!

MAGDA: (smiling) But the niece does?

PRUNIER: Maybe . . . providing she measures up
To my artistic taste!
The woman who conquers
Must be refined,
Elegant, perverse . . .
In short, worthy of me:
A Galatea, Bernice,
Francesca, Salomé . . .

YVETTE: (very much impressed)
What a fastidious man!

BIANCA: (the same) What a complicated creature!

PRUNIER: It isn't my fault. I was born for great adventures!

MAGDA: But hów can you find out all these virtues, Poet?

PRUNIER: It is quite simple: the fate of every woman
Is marked within the palm of her hand.

MAGDA: Really?

BIANCA: How strange!

YVETTE: How strange!

PRUNIER: Do you want to know . . .
But I require the greatest secrecy.
(indicating)
The screen!

BIANCA: Quickly!
(She runs to the rear and with the help of Suzy and Yvette carries the screen near the piano, where, after many trials, it is adjusted to form a small recess. The ladies seat themselves around Prunier)

PRUNIER: A select angle . . .
(alluding to the men who are on the veranda)
Over there vulgar profanity! . . .
Here, Beauty and . . . Science!
(the women laugh)

MAGDA: (to her friends, scolding them for fun) Can't you be serious, please!

PRUNIER: I'm starting!

MAGDA: (presenting her right hand)—I'm ready!
Go ahead!

BIANCA: Unfold our lives!

YVETTE: Disclose!

SUZY: Anch'io voglio sapere!
(Lisette entra da destra recante su un vassoio una carta che porge a Rambaldo)

RAMBALDO: (dropo aver letto)
Ah! Ruggero Lastouc . . .
Fate passare . . .
(Lisette solleva la portiera, entra Ruggero)

RAMBALDO: (movendogli incontro) O mio giovine amico . . .
Dovete perdonare . . .

RUGGERO: (impacciato e timido) Son io che chiedo scusa . . .
ecco . . . con questa lettera mio padre mi presenta . . .
Vi scrive . . . leggerete . . .

RAMBALDO: (prendendo la lettera e disponendosi a leggere) Ma vi prego . . . sedete.

PRUNIER: (dopo aver scrutata la mano di Magda) Vi siete rivelata!
L'avvenire
è grave e misterioso . . .

TUTTI: —Sentiamolo!

PRUNIER: —Non oso!
È troppo sibillino . . .

MAGDA: Non turbatevi . . . Osate . . .

PRUNIER: (grave) Vi trascina il Destino! . . .
Forse, come la rondine,
migrerete oltre il mare,
verso un chiaro paese
di sogno . . . Verso il sole, verso l'Amore . . .
E forse . . .

MAGDA: (interrompendolo) Un cattivo presagio?

PRUNIER: —No. Il Destino
Ha un suo duplice viso:
Un sorriso o un'angoscia? . . .
Mistero!

RAMBALDO: (deponendo la lettera—a Ruggero) . . . Ed è la prima volta Che venite a Parigi?

RUGGERO: La prima . . .

PRUNIER: (dopo aver esaminato la mano di Bianca)—A voi la folta contorsione dei segni suggerisce un "Et ultra!"

BIANCA: Significa?

PRUNIER: —Più avanti!
Chi più offre la vince su tutti gli aspiranti . . .
(Lisette entra e reca una coppa di champagne che colloca sul tavolo davanti a Ruggero. Questi fa un cenno di ringraziamento e vi accosta appena le labbra. Lisette sorride e si avvicina al gruppo di sinistra)

SUZY: I also want to know!
(Lisette enters to the right with a visiting card on a tray, which she hands to Rambaldo)

RAMBALDO: (after glancing at the card) Ah!
Ruggero Lastouc . . .
Tell him to come in . . .
(Lisette raises the portière—Ruggero enters)

RAMBALDO: (going to meet him)
My dear young friend . . .
You must forgive . . .

RUGGERO: (embarrassed and timid) I ought to excuse myself . . .
Well . . . with this letter . . .
My father introduces me . . .
He writes to you . . . read it . . .

RAMBALDO: (taking the letter, starts reading) Please be seated.

PRUNIER: (after having scrutinized Magda's hand) You have revealed yourself!
The future is serious and mysterious . . .

ALL: —Let's hear what it all is about!

PRUNIER: I hardly dare!
It is too sibylic . . .

MAGDA: Don't be confused . . .
start . . .

PRUNIER: (gravely) Fate is drawing you! . . .
Perhaps, like a swallow,
To migrate beyond the seas,
Into a sunny land of dreams . . .
Towards the sun, towards Love . . .
And perhaps . . .

MAGDA: (interrupting) A bad omen?

PRUNIER: —No, fate is double faced:
A smile or anguish? . . .
Mystery!

RAMBALDO: (lays down the letter)—(to Ruggero) . . . Is it the first time you are in Paris?

RUGGERO: The first time . . .

PRUNIER: (after having examined Bianca's hand)—There is obstruction;—
Confusion of the signs
Suggests an "Et ultra"!

BIANCA: What does that mean?

PRUNIER: —Forward!
He who offers most Wins over all other aspirants . . .
(Lisette enters with a cup of champagne, which she places on the table in front of Ruggero. The latter thanks her and hardly touches it with his lips. Lisette smiles and joins the group on the left)

RAMBALDO: (chiamando Prunier) Poeta raffinato, dite un po', dove si può mandare un giovinotto che vuol passar la sera allegramente?

PRUNIER: (interrompe il gioco, si alza, e movendo verso Rambaldo)—A letto!

RAMBALDO: —Non scherzate.

PRUNIER: È verità.
(avvicinandosi a Ruggero, con superiorità)
La prima serata a Parigi
Non è che una vana leggenda
È tempo oramai di sfatarla!

LISETTE: (prorompendo fra lo stupore di tutti)—No! no! mille volte no!
Non è vero! . . .
Io sono parigina
nell'anima e difendo il regno della donna!
(Le donne incuriosite, spiano nel frattempo il nuovo arrivato. Quando Lisette prorompe, s'avvicinano tutte, meno Magda che si tiene sempre in disparte conversando con Perichaud.—Gobin e Crebillon invece attratti dal prorompere di Lisette si avvicinano ridendo)

PRUNIER: (interrompendola)
Storie!
Ma che!

LISETTE: Non ascoltatelo!
Parigi è piena di fascini, sorprese e melaviglie!

TUTTI: Brava . . .

PRUNIER: (sbracciandosi) Esigo un contegno!

LISETTE: (senza badargli con crescente calore) La prima sera a Parigi è come vedere il mare per la prima volta!
Mai si è immaginato niente di più grande e di più bello!

PRUNIER: Basta!
Basta!
Mettetela alla porta!

LISETTE: (agli altri, accennando a Prunier) Lasciatelo ai suoi sdegni!
Aiutatemi voi!

PRUNIER: (che ha razgiunto Magda dalla parte opposta) Essa è troppo insolente!

MAGDA: Compatite, poeta!
(E segue Prunier cercando di calmarlo e avviandosi con lui verso la veranda dove resteranno appartati)

RAMBALDO: (a Lisette) Avanti, dunque!
Indica tu la mèta!

RUGGERO: (a Rambaldo) Vi ringrazio!

LISETTE: (agli altri) Dove lo mandiamo?

YVETTE: Ora penseremo . . .

RAMBALDO: (calling to Prunier)
Astute Poet, tell me,
Where can I send a youth
Who wants to spend a happy evening?

PRUNIER: (interrupting the game, rising and going over to Rambaldo)—To bed!

RAMBALDO: No joking.

PRUNIER: That's the truth.
(going over to Ruggero, in a superior manner)
The first night in Paris
Is but a vain legend,
Which it is time to destroy!

LISETTE: (interrupting to the discomfort of all) No! no! a thousand times no!
It is not true! . . .
I am a Parisian
And with all my soul I will defend woman's kingdom!
(The women, in the meanwhile, drawn by curiosity, join the new arrival. At Lisette's interruption, they all draw near, with the exception of Magda, who remained at a distance talking with Perichaud.—Gobin and Crebillon attracted by Lisette's remark, draw near laughing)

PRUNIER: (interrupting) Rubbish!
Nothing but rubbish!

LISETTE: Don't listen to him!
Paris is full of fascination, surprises and wonders!

ALL: That's right . . .

PRUNIER: (infuriated) What behavior!

LISETTE: (without noticing him, with increased vivacity) The first night in Paris
Is like the first sight of the sea!
Nothing greater or more beautiful could be imagined!

PRUNIER: That's enough!
That's enough!
Turn her out!

LISETTE: (to the others, pointing to Prunier) Leave him to his anger!
And all of you help me!

PRUNIER: (who has rejoined Magda on the other side of the room) She is too insolent!

MAGDA: Be lenient, Poet!
(She follows Prunier, trying to calm him and walks with him to the veranda where they remain)

RAMBALDO: (to Lisette) Go on!
Let's hear the means!

RUGGERO: (to Rambaldo) I thank you!

LISETTE: (to the others) Where shall we send him?

YVETTE: Let us think . . .

BIANCA: Ci vuole una trovatta che sia degna di noi!

YVETTE: Lisette, tocca a voi!

BIANCA: Tocca a voi!

LISETTE: Tocca a me? . . .
(va a prendere dal tavolo una matita e un foglio)
Prendete nota, mio signor! . . .
(gli porge carta e matita)
Scrivete qua . . .
(gli indica il tavolo)
. . . Presto! Orsù!
(Ora tutti sono intorno a Ruggero, suggerendogli scherzosamente i più noti ritrovi notturni)

LE DONNE: (l'una dopo l'altra)
Le Bal Musard!
Prè Catelan!
A Frascati!
Meglio Cadet! . . .
Tutta Parigi scintilla!
Tutta Parigi sfavilla! . . .

LISETTE: (dopo aver nel frattempo riflettuto, dominando il piccolo tumulto) No! . . .
Da Bullier!

TUTTI: (approvando) Sì! Da Bullier! ! . . .
Bullier!
È questa la scelta miglior!

LISETTE: (indicando a Ruggero di prenderne nota) Qua!
Segnate! . . .
E andate! . . .
(E mentre Ruggero si alza, s'accomiata da Rambaldo e si avvia, Lisette, tenendo sollevata la portiera, dice:)
Amore è là, gioia e piacer . . .
Scegliete il cuor che vi convien . . .
Ma ricordate che da Bullier
Tra risa, luci e fior
Canta più ardente Amor! . . .
(Ruggero esce. Lisette lo segue. Gli altri prorompono in una risata Magda e Prunier che dal limitare della veranda hanno assistito alla scena, ora si avanzano. Magda tiene in mano la collana di perle e ne fa mulinello per gioco, con noncuranza)

MAGDA: No . . . povero figliolo!
Un poco di pietà . . .
Me l'avete intontito.

RAMBALDO: Laggiù si sveglierà!

BIANCA: Bullier fa dei miracoli!

MAGDA: (vagamente) Bullier! . . .
(considera la collana un momento e la getta con noncuranza su un tavolo)

PRUNIER: Avea tutto il profumo della sua gioventù.
L'aria è pregna di lavanda . . .
(annusando comicamente)
Non sentite?

BIANCA: We must find someplace worthy of us!

YVETTE: Lisette, it is your turn!

BIANCA: It's your turn!

LISETTE: My turn?
(she picks up a pencil and paper from the table)
Just make a note of this, Sir! . . .
(she hands him the paper and pencil)
Write . . .
(and tells him to draw near the table) Quickly!
Now!
(All stand around Ruggero, laughingly suggesting the most notorious night resorts)

THE WOMEN: (each in her turn)
Le Bal Musard!
Pré Catalan!
Frascati!
Or better . . . Cadet! . . .
All Paris is aflame!
All Paris is a'glitter! . . .

LISETTE: (after having reflected awhile, dominating the tumult)
No! . . . To Bullier!

ALL: (approvingly) Yes!
To Bullier! ! . . .
Bullier!
That's the best choice!

LISETTE: (telling Ruggero to make a note of it) There!
Write it down! . . .
And go! . . .
(And while Ruggero rises and takes leave of Rambaldo, Lisette holding back the portière, says:)
Love is there, joy and pleasure . . .
Choose the heart that appeals to you . . .
But remember that at Bullier's
Between laughter, light and flowers;
Love sings most ardently of all! . . .
(Ruggero goes. Lisette follows him. The others burst out laughing. Magda and Prunier, who, from the veranda have witnessed the scene, now join the others, Magda playing with her pearl necklace and whirling it around carelessly)

MAGDA: No . . . the poor boy!
You should have shown a little mercy . . .
You quite bewildered him.

RAMBALDO: He'll wake up over there!

BIANCA: Bullier works miracles!

MAGDA: (vaguely) Bullier! . . .
(She looks at the pearl necklace for an instant and then throws it carelessly on the table)

PRUNIER: He was in the full bloom of his youth.
The air is full of lavender . . .
(sniffing comically)
Can't you smell it?

RAMBALDO: (accomiatandosi)
Sento . . . e scappo!
Buona sera.
(gli ospiti tutti seguono il suo esempio e salutano Magda)

MAGDA: Buona sera . . .

PERICHAUD: Vi ringrazio . . .

BIANCA E YVETTE: A domani . . .

PRUNIER: Buona sera . . .
(tutti escone)
(Magda ritorna lentamente sui suoi passi. Va alla parete di sinistra, suona il ampanello. Poi si abbatte sulla poltrona, aspettando. Entra Lisette)

MAGDA: La carrozza.

LISETTE: Va bene.
(fa per avviarsi)

MAGDA: (d'improvviso richiamandela) No, Lisette.
Non esco.
Accendete di là! . . .
(Lisette va verso il boudoir, accende la luce)

LISETTE: Ricordo alla signora che più tardi non mi troverà:
è serata d'uscita.

MAGDA: Andate pure.

LISETTE: Grazie.
(Esce rapida, spegnendo le luci della sala. Dalla serra soltanto viene una debole luce)

MAGDA: (resta un momento assorta, ripetendo a sè stessa l'enigmatica profezia di Prunier)
. . . Forse, come la rondine migrerò verso il mare,
verso un chiaro paese
di sogno . . . Verso il sole!
(Fa qualche passo verso destra vicino al posto che era occupato da Ruggero. Il foglio da lui dimenticato, sul quale poco prima aveva segnato i nomi dei ritrovi notturni, la colpisce. Lo prende lo lascia cadere come se una risoluzione improvvisa la decidesse)

MAGDA: Bullier! . . .
(Il suo viso s'illumina di un sorriso, e corre rapida verso il boudoir richiudendone la porta)
(La scena resta per un momento deserta. Poi Lisette a passettini svelti appare dalla serra. Reca in mano un vistoso cappello e sul braccio un mantello di seta. Attraversa in punta di piedi la sala, si ferma ad origliare dietro l'uscio del boudoir, risale tutta rassicurata incontrandosi con Prunier che, in soprabito col bavero rialzato e cilindro, le si avvicina e la bacia)

PRUNIER: (con esagerato slancio) T'amo! . . .

LISETTE: (scostandosi violentemente) Menti!

RAMBALDO: (taking leave) I can smell it . . . and escape!
Good night.
(all the guests follow his example and take leave of Magda)

MAGDA: Good night . . .

PERICHAUD: I thank you . . .

BIANCA AND YVETTE: Till tomorrow . . .

PRUNIER: Good night . . .
(all leave)
(Magda turns back slowly. She goes towards the wall to the left and touches the bell. She then drops into an armchair and waits. Enter Lisette).

MAGDA: The carriage.

LISETTE: All right.
(she is on the point of leaving)

MAGDA: (recalling her suddenly)
No, Lisette. Don't go.
Turn the light on in there! . . .
(Lisette goes into the boudoir and turns on the light)

LISETTE: I would like to remind you
That you will not find me in later,
As it is my evening out.

MAGDA: You can go, Lisette.

LISETTE: Thank you.
(She goes out hurriedly, after turning the lights out in the drawing room. From the covered veranda a feeble light flickers).

MAGDA: (remains absorbed for a moment, repeating to herself the enigmatic prophesy of Prunier)
. . . perhaps, like a swallow,
To migrate beyond the seas,
Into a sunny land of dreams . . .
Towards the sun! . . .
(She takes a few steps to the right, near the seat which had been occupied by Ruggero. The sheet forgotten by him, on which a little while ago he had marked down the names of the night resorts, is noticed by her. She picks it up, then drops it, as if decided by a sudden resolution)

MAGDA: Bullier! . . .
(Her face lights up in a smile. She runs hurriedly to the boudoir and closes the door behind her).
(The scene remains deserted for a while. Then Lisette, with hurried short steps, appears on the veranda. She carries a very showy hat in her hand and on her arm a silk wrap. She hurries through the room on tip-toe; stops at the boudoir door and listens; reassured she turns back—meets Prunier who, in his overcoat with upturned collar and wearing a top hat, approaches and kisses her) PRUNIER: (in exaggerated tone) I love you! . . .

LISETTE: (violently struggling to be free) You lie!

PRUNIER: (con comica enfasi)
No! Tu sapessi a quale prezzo ti disprezzo! . . .
Tu non sai che la mia gloria vuole orpello e falsità?
Non può amar che donne ricche un poeta come me!
Io lo dico, c'è chi crede, ed invece son per te! . . .

LISETTE: (avvicinandosi a lui dolcemente) Che silenzio!

PRUNIER: Che mistero!

LISETTE: M'ami!

PRUNIER: T'amo!

LISETTE: T'avvilisce?

PRUNIER: Ne son fiero!
(Lisette mette il cappello)

LISETTE: Ora andiamo! . . .
Tutto tace! . . .

PRUNIER: No!
Il cappello non mi piace!

LISETTE: Non ti piace? . . .
È il suo migliore!

PRUNIER: Non s'intona con il resto!

LISETTE: Cambio?

PRUNIER: Cambia? . . . Ma fa presto!
(Lisette esce di corsa lasciando cadere la borsetta)
Nove Muse, a voi perdono
Se discendo così in basso!
L'amo, l'amo . . . e non ragiono!
Nove Muse a voi perdono!

LISETTE: (rientrando con un nuovo cappello) Questo è meglio?

PRUNIER: È originale!

LISETTE: E il mantello?

PRUNIER: Non è tale
da strapparmi un'ovazione.

LISETTE: Vuoi che metta quella cappa che indossavo l'altra sera?

PRUNIER: Si: la cappa in seta nera!
. . .
(Lisette esce ancora di corsa)
Nove Muse, a voi perdona
Se mi abbasso a consigliarla,
Ma da esteta quale sono,
No, non posso abbandonarla!

LISETTE: (rientrando con il nuovo mantello e girando intorno a Prunier) Son completa?

PRUNIER: Sei squisita!

LISETTE: La borsetta?

PRUNIER: (raccogliendola da terra) Eccola qua.

LISETTE: (aprendo la borsetta e disponendosi a un rapido "maquillage") Vuoi rossetto sulle labbra?

PRUNIER: Si. Il tuo labbro fiorirà!

LISETTE: (eseguendo) Sulle gote?

PRUNIER: (with comic emphasis)
No!
You know little of how I despise you!
You don't seem to understand that my glory requires tinsel and deceit!
A poet, such as I, can only love wealthy women!
And yet, believe it or not, I am yours! . . .

LISETTE: (approaching him sweetly) What silence!

PRUNIER: What mystery!

LISETTE: You love me?

PRUNIER: I love you!

LISETTE: You lower yourself?

PRUNIER: I pride myself on it!
(Lisette puts on her hat)

LISETTE: Let's go! . . . There is silence everywhere! . . .

PRUNIER: No! I cannot stand that hat!

LISETTE: You don't like it? It's her best!

PRUNIER: It doesn't harmonize with the rest!

LISETTE: Shall I change it?

PRUNIER: Change it! . . .
Make haste!
(Lisette runs off and drops her purse)
O, you nine Muses, I crave your pardon,
If I fall so low! I love her, I love her . . .
I no further reason! Forgive me, you nine Muses!

LISETTE: (returning with a new hat) Do you like this better?

PRUNIER: It's original!

LISETTE: And the wrap?

PRUNIER: It is not such as to draw from me an ovation.

LISETTE: Would you rather I put on the coat she wore the other evening?

PRUNIER: Yes, the black silk wrap . . .
(Lisette runs out again)
Oh nine Muses, forgive me,
If I fall so low as to guide her;
But aesthetic as I am, I would willingly forsake her!

LISETTE: (returning with the new wrap and walking around Prunier) Now, I am complete!

PRUNIER: You are exquisite!

LISETTE: My purse?

PRUNIER: (picking it up) Here it is.

LISETTE: (opening her pocketbook and starting to paint herself quickly) Shall I rouge my lips?

PRUNIER: Yes, let your lips bloom!

LISETTE: (rouging) My cheeks?

PRUNIER: (annuendo) Sian due rose!

LISETTE: Nero agli occhi?

PRUNIER: Pochi tocchi!

LISETTE: Ecco!

PRUNIER: Fatto?

LISETTE: Fatto!

PRUNIER: (con un sospiro di soddisfazione) Là!
(si avviano lentamente)

LISETTE: Che silenzio!

PRUNIER: Che mistero!
(la recinge con un braccio)

LISETTE: (con abbandono) Chi ci chiama?

PRUNIER: Il nostro amore!

LISETTE: Chi mi ama?

PRUNIER: Questo cuore!

LISETTE: Chi mi bacia?

PRUNIER: (baciandola) Il labbro mio!

LISETTE: (con un fil di voce)
Perchè bacia?...
Di'?...
Perchè?...

PRUNIER: Per ridirti: io sono te!
(un nuovo bacio ed escono)

MAGDA: (Ora, lentamente, la porticina del boudoir si apre. Appare Magda vestita assai semplicemente da "grisette," e pettinata diversamente in modo da esser quasi irriconoscibile. S'accosta a un vaso di fiori, ne toglie una rosa rossa, va a uno specchio, punta il fiore fra i capelli, sussurrando)
Chi mi riconoscerebbe?...
(poi si drappeggia sulle spalle uno scialle e s'avvia, canterellando)
"Chi il mistero di Doretta
potè indovinar?..."
(Giunta sulla soglia ha una breve esitazione. Ritorna allo specchio, si considera, ripete)
Ma sì!... Chi mi riconoscerebbe?
(ed esce rapida)

SIPARIO

ATTO SECONDO

Da Bullier.—Si scende nella sala da una ricca scala a sinistra. Nella sala è un grande audirivieni di folla una folla mista di studenti, di artisti, di "grisettes," di mondane, di avventori, di curiosi.
Alcuni sono seduti qua e là ai tavoli variamente disposti. Altri a gruppi o soli, entrano scendendo la gradinata. Altri ancora salgono quella che conduce alle loggie.
Nel fondo il giardino, illuminato da piccole lampade bianche ed opache.
Nella parete di sinistra sono due grandi finestroni ad arco coperti di tende, oltre i quali è la strada che sale.
Sui tavoli, nella sala, nella loggia vasi di fiori in grande profusione.
Alcune fioraie si aggirano tra la folla che entra, esce, siede, si alza, chiama, dà ordini, confusamente.
I camerieri vanno e vengono da un tavolo all'altro.

UN GRUPPO DI BEVITORI: Via, su! Presto!
Cameriere!
Qua da bere!
(il cameriere accorre e serve)

LE FIORAIE: Fiori freschi!...

UN AVVENTORE: (alzandosi)
Cameriere: Dammi il resto!
(paga e se ne va)

UN GIOVANE: (offrendo) Vuoi, tu, bionda?
(la bionda accetta i fiori e s'allontana)

UN BORGHESE: (ad un altro) Oh!
La strana baraonda!

LE FIORAIE: (offrendo)—Le violette?
—Belle rose?

TRE UOMINI E TRE DONNINE:
Via, non fate le ritrose!
Sulla loggia o nel giardino?
(salgono verso la loggia)

UN AVVENTORE E ALCUNE "GRISETTES": —Paghi!
—Pago!
—Birra!
—Grazie!

DUE AMANTI: (litigando in disparte)—Non far scene!
—Sono stanca!
—Mi vuoi dir quel che ti manca?
—Vieni!
—Resto!
—No, ti prego!
—(l'amante transcina la ritrosa—Si confondono nella folla)

DUE DONNE E UN GIOVINE: — Scegli!
—È grave!
—Su!... Coraggio!
—Io son grassa!
—Sono magra!
—Sono oca!
—Sono scaltra!
—Per avere l'equilibrio
Io vi scelgo l'una e l'altra!

ALCUNE DONNE AD ALCUNE ALTRE: —In giardino già si balla!
—Voi restate?
—Vi seguiamo.

PRUNIER: (consenting) Let them be two roses!

LISETTE: Black for my eyes?

PRUNIER: A few touches!

LISETTE: There!

PRUNIER: That's done!

LISETTE: That's done!

PRUNIER: (with a satisfied sigh) There!
(they go off slowly)

LISETTE: What silence!

PRUNIER: What mystery!
(puts his arm around her)

LISETTE: Who calls us?

PRUNIER: Our Love!

LISETTE: Who loves me?

PRUNIER: This heart!

LISETTE: Who'll kiss me?

PRUNIER: (kissing her) My lips!

LISETTE: (in a whisper) Why do you kiss me?...
Tell me?
Why?...

PRUNIER: To tell you: I am yours!
(they kiss again and go)

MAGDA: (Slowly the door of the boudoir is opened and Magda appears, dressed with simplicity, like a "grisette," her hair done in a way that changes her appearance. She takes from a flower vase a red rose, goes over to the looking glass, fixes it in her hair, and whispers)
Who can recognize me now?
(she drapes a shawl around her shoulders and goes off humming)
"Who can guess Doretta's mystery?
..."
(at the door, she hesitates somewhat. Returns to the looking glass, and repeats)
Well!
Who can recognize me now?
(and goes out quickly)

CURTAIN

ACT II

At Bullier.—A sumptuous stairway, to the left, leads to the Amusement Hall. In the Hall a dense crowd of students, artists, "grisettes," adventurers and curiosity seekers.
Groups are seen here and there at tables, disposed in various ways.
Other groups or people alone are seen entering and descending the stairs. While others again ascend the stairs to the balcony.
In the background, the garden illuminated with small opaline lamps.
The wall on the left has two arched and curtained windows, beyond which is seen the street sloping upward.
Everywhere, on the tables, in the hall, on the balcony, a profusion of flowers in vases.
Several flower girls accost the entering crowds, who come, go, seat themselves, rise, call to each other and give their orders in confusion.
The waiters come and go from one table to the other.

A GROUP OF DRINKERS: Hi there!
Waiter!
Let's have something to drink!
(the waiter runs up and serves them)

FLOWER GIRLS: Fresh flowers!

A CUSTOMER: (getting up) Waiter: Let me have my change!
(he pays and goes)

A YOUNG MAN: Do you want them, blondie?
(the blonde woman accepts the flowers and goes)

ONE BOURGEOIS: (to the other)
What a motley crowd!

FLOWER GIRLS: (offering flowers)
Violets?
Beautiful roses!

THREE MEN AND THREE WOMEN: Come along, don't make a fuss!
On the balcony or in the garden?
(they go up to the balcony)

A CUSTOMER AND SEVERAL GRISETTES: —You pay?
—I pay!
—Beer!
Thank you!

TWO LOVERS: (quarreling—aside)—Now, don't make a scene!
—I'm tired!
What's the matter with you?
—Come!
—I shan't!
—No, please!
(the lover drags his stubborn sweetheart away—They disappear in the crowd).

TWO WOMEN AND A YOUNG MAN: —Choose!
—That's dangerous!
—Come along!...
Courage!
—I'm fat!
—I'm slim!
—I'm a goose!
—I'm smart!
To keep my balance, I'll choose you both!

SEVERAL WOMEN TO SEVERAL OTHERS: —They are already dancing in the garden!
—Are you going to stay here?
—We will follow later.

UN GRUPPO D'UOMINI: (ad alcune donne impazienti)—Un momento che veniamo.

LE DONNE IMPAZIENTI: Gia la danza ferve e snoda
Il suo ritmo e la sua grazia.

GLI UOMINI: (battendo sui tavoli) Cameriere!
Presto! . . .
Il conto!

UN GRUPPO: (attorniando una mondana)—Senza te la vita era troppo amara.

ALTRI: (sopraggiungono e completano)—Ma con te la vita costa troppo cara.

LA FOLLA: —Qui si trinca!
—Là si balla!

UN GRUPPO DI STUDENTI: (che ha imprigienata una modella, passandosela dall'uno all'altro e baciandola)—A chi tocca tocca!
—Dammi la tua bocca!
—Dammi la tua bocca! . . .

UN GRUPPO DI BEVITORI: (seduti a un tavolo) Fino a che non spunta il giorno Guai a chi farà ritorno!
Nel bicchiere è l'ideal!
(entra il vecchio Edoardo. I pittori lo circondano subito)

I PITTORI: —Siete voi dei nostri?
Sì!
—Siete voi che paga? . . .
Sì!
—Scorra a fiumi lo champagne!
(chaimando)
—Qua, ragazze!
—Cose pazze!
(il gruppo con le donnette si avvia verso il giardino cantando e saltando) —Su, beviamo! Su, danziamo! . . .
Giovinezza, eterno riso, fresco fiore che incorona delle donne il dolce viso! . . .
Sol tu illumini e incateni le illusioni degli amanti! . . .
(sfollano)
(Entrano dal giardino, diretti verso l'uscita, un Giovine elegante che tiene strette al braccio due belle donnine)

PRIMA DONNINA: (puntando l'indice sullo sparto del giovine)
Questa è una perla vera?

IL GIOVINE: Vera come il Vangelo!

SECONDA DONNINA: Siete ricco?

IL GIOVINE: (enigmatico) Talvolta!

PRIMA DONNINA: (conciliante)
A noi basta stasera!
(escono)
(Alcune "grisettes" poco disoste dal tavolo al quale è seduto Ruggero, considerano il giovine che è là tutto solo e silenzioso. Altre "grisettes" si avvicinano alle amiche e chiedono) —Che guardate? . . .

A GROUP OF MEN: (to several women who show signs of impatience)—Wait a moment, we are coming.

THE WOMEN: —This air with its rhythm and grace
Sways me and sets me dancing.

THE MEN: (knocking on the table) Waiter!
Quick! . . .
The bill!

A GROUP: (around a cocotte)—Without you
Life was too sad.

OTHERS: (arriving and finishing the sentence)—But with you
Life is too dear.

THE CROWD: —Here they drink!
—There they dance!

A GROUP OF STUDENTS: (who have captured an artist's model, passing her along to each other and kissing her) Your turn!
My turn!
Right on the lips . . .

A GROUP OF DRINKERS: Woe to him that talks about leaving before dawn!
The Ideal is only to be found at the bottom of one's cup!
(Old Edward enters and is immediately surrounded by artists)

THE ARTISTS: Are you one of us?
Yes!
You'll do the paying! . . .
Yes!
Let champagne run in torrents!
(calling) Here, girls!
The sky is the limit!
(the group with their women go towards the garden, dancing and singing)
Let's sing!
Let's dance! . . .
Youth, eternal joy,
Flowers which engarland
Woman's countenance fair!
Sun which lightens and retains
The lover's illusions . . .
(they disappear in the crowd)
(From the garden a smart youth and two beautiful women trend their way toward the door)

FIRST WOMAN: (pointing to the youth's shirt front) Is that a real pearl?

THE YOUTH: Real like the Gospel!

SECOND WOMAN: Are you rich?

THE YOUTH: (enigmatically) Sometimes!

FIRST WOMAN: (in a conciliatory tone) It would only be for tonight!
(they go out)
(Several "grisettes" near the table at which Ruggero is sitting watch the young man alone and silent. Other "grisettes" go up to their friends and ask) —What are you looking at?

V'attira la conquista?
(le "grisettes" di prima, rispondono)
—Che pena! . . .
Così solo! . . .
È funebre! . . .
Rattrista! . . .
(poco a poco s'avvicinano al tavolo)
—È un solitario . . . un timido . . .
Un giglio . . . Una mimosa . . .
—Non degna d'un sorriso, d'uno sguardo!
(Reggero le guarda, fra seccato e stupito. E allora le ragazze sempre più vicine, lo interrogano chiassosamente) —Suvvià! Come ti chiami?
—Armando? . . . No? . . . Abelardo?
—Marcello? Enrico? Alberto?
—Tommaso? Ernesto? Dario?
—Domenico? Giovanni?
—Carlo? Luigi? Mario?
—Santi del calendario,
fornite l'inventario.
Se trovato non fu,
il nome dillo tu!
(Ma Ruggero ha un gesto dispetto e le ragazze, canzonandolo, con risatine sommesse, e allontanandosi, commentano)
—È un principe che viaggia in incognito stretto!
Vien da remota spaggia!
Rifiuta il nostra letto! . . .

UNA GRISETTE: (ad un'amica)
Non avresti per caso
Un po' di cipria?
Ho rosso il naso!
(L'amica leva dalla borsetta la cipria. L'altra, sporgendo il visetto insolente, fa un rapido col piumino)
(Magda è apparsa sulla gradinata. Guarda interno incerta, titubante. Scende un altro gradino, si ferma, torna a guardare. Alcuni giovanotti si avvedono di lei, notamo la sua invertezza, le muovono incontro)

I GIOVANI: (sommessamente, accennando a Magda)—Chi è?
—Mai vista!
—Esita!
—Una donna per bene?
—Dimessa, ma graziosa!
—Nuova per queste scene!

UN GIOVINE: (più audacemente degli altri, salendo la scala incontro a Magda) Posso offrirvi il mio braccio?

MAGDA: (con grande imbarazzo) No . . . grazie . . .

Does that conquest draw you?
(the former "grisettes" reply)
—What misery! . . .
What loneliness! . . .
—A funeral! Piteous!
(little by little they draw near to the table)
—He is a hermit . . . shy . . . a lily . . .
a mimosa . . .
—He does not deign to smile or to look!
(Ruggero gives them a look of annoyance and surprise. The girls draw nearer and question him noisily)
Wake up, now!
What's your name?
Armando? . . .
No? . . .
Abelardo?
Marcello?
Enrico?
Alberto?
Tommaso?
Ernesto?
Dario?
Domenico?
Giovanni?
Carlo?
Luigi?
Mario?
Oh saints of the calendar,
Furnish the inventory . . .
If we cannot guess it,
Tell us your name yourself!
(But Ruggero only makes a gesture of annoyance and the girls, laughing at him, turn away saying)
It is a Prince traveling
In strictest incognito!
He comes from distant shores!
And has no use for us!

A GRISETTE: (to a friend) Do you happen to have a little powder?
My nose is all red!
(The friend takes her powder out of her bag. The other girl jerks her face forward insolently and touches it up with the powder puff) (Magda appears on the staircase. She looks around hesitating and timid. She walks down a few steps, stops and looks around. Several young men notice her hesitation and approach her)

THE YOUNG MEN: (whispering, and looking at Magda)—Who is she?
—Never seen her before!
—She is hesitating!
—She seems well bred!
—Poorly dressed, but charming!
—New to these surroundings!

A YOUTH: (bolder than the others, going up the stairs to meet Magda) Can I offer you my arm?

MAGDA: (very much embarrassed) No . . . thank you . . .

GLI ALTRI: (incoraggiati dall'esempio circondano Magda)
—Siamo studenti . . .
—Artisti . . .
—Gaudenti . . .
—Un poco audaci . . .
—Molto loquaci . . .
—Ricchi di gioia!
—Prodighi in baci!
—Molto più rari
Sono i denari!
—Siamo studenti!
—Se non trova di meglio,
Non faccia complimenti!

MAGDA: (è venuta scendendo la scala sempre più stretta fra il gruppo) Grazie . . . grazie . . . non posso . . .

UN GIOVINE: C'è già un impegno?

MAGDA: (approfittando dell'occasione offertale con questa domanda per sbarazzarsi degli importuni) Ecco . . . Precisamente . . .

UN GIOVINE: E il luogo del convegno?

MAGDA: Siete troppo curiosi!

UN GIOVINE: Siamo gelosi!

MAGDA: Di già?

PERICHAUD: Noi si fa presto!

UN ALTRO: Indicate l'eletto!

MAGDA: (smarrita) Non so . . . non so . . . vi ho detto . . .

IL GIOVINE DI PRIMA: Se il mistero ci svelate alla mèta vi guidiamo!

MAGDA: (a sè) Che dire? . . .
(Gira intorno lo sguardo smarrito. I suoi occhi si posano istintivamente su Ruggero che la guarda. I Giovani se ne avvedono e dicono) —Eccolo . . . È là!
(Con molto grazia trascinano Magda riluttante verso il tavolo di Ruggero che stupefatto senza capire, guarda ora Magda, ora i Giovani)

I GIOVANI: Amanti godete la giovine vita!
(e si allontanano, ridendo)

MAGDA: (a Ruggero, con esitazione e semplicità) Scusatemi . . . scusate . . .
Ma fu per liberarmi
Di loro, che volevano invitarmi
A danzare . . . Risposi: "Sono attesa . . ."
Han creduto che voi mi aspettavate . . .
Ora, quando non vedono, vi lascio . . .

RUGGERO: (colpito dalla sincerità della giovane e facendole cenno di sedere) No . . . Restate . . . Restate . . .

THE OTHERS: (encouraged by the example, surrounded Magda) We are students . . .
—Artists . . .
—Pleasure seekers . . .
—Somewhat audacious . . .
—Free of speech . . .
—Rich in humor!
—Prodigal in kisses!
—Scarce of funds!
—We are students!
—If you can't find anything better,
Don't stop for compliments!

MAGDA: (Magda has walked to the bottom of the stairway—the group closing around her) Thanks . . . thanks . . . I cannot . . .

A YOUTH: You already have an appointment?

MAGDA: (takes advantage of the opportunity offered her with this question to rid herself of the annoyance) That's it . . . Precisely . . .

A YOUTH: And the place of meeting?

MAGDA: You are by far too curious!

A YOUTH: We are jealous!

MAGDA: Already?

A YOUTH: We don't lose any time!

ANOTHER: Show us the elect one!

MAGDA: (bewildered) I don't know . . . I don't know . . . I have already told you . . .

FIRST YOUTH: Unveil the mystery to us
And we will guide you to the goal!

MAGDA: (to herself) What shall I say? . . .
(She looks around bewildered, and her eyes fall instinctively on Ruggero, who is watching her. The youths notice this and say) Oh! There he is!
(They drag Magda gently towards Ruggero's table, who surprised, and not understanding, looks first at Magda and then at the youths)

THE YOUTHS: Lovers, enjoy
Your young lives!
(they depart, laughing)

MAGDA: (to Ruggero, with hesitation and simplicity) Excuse me . . . excuse me . . .
But I had to get rid of them,
As they wanted to invite me to dance . . .
I told them you were waiting for me . . .
As soon as they have turned their backs, I will leave you . . .

RUGGERO: (struck by the sincerity of the young woman, motions her to sit near him) No . . . stay . . . stay . . .

Siete tanto graziosa e mi sembrate Così diversa da tutte . . .

MAGDA: (sedendo) Veramente?

RUGGERO: Veramente.

MAGDA: (sorridendo) Perchè?

RUGGERO: Così timida e sola assomigliate
Alle ragazze di Montauban,
Quando vanno a ballare, alla carezza
D'una musica vecchia,
Tutte sorriso e tutte giovinezza.

MAGDA: (con piccola ironia) Ne sono lusingata!

RUGGERO: (un poco confuso)
Cercate di capirmi . . .
Le ragazze, laggiù, son molto belle
E semplici, e modeste . . .
Non sono come queste:
Basta al loro ornamento
Un fiore nei capelli . . .
Come voi . . .

MAGDA: . . . Se sapessi ballare
Come si balla a Montauban! . . .

RUGGERO: (offrendole il braccio) Volete che proviamo?

MAGDA: Proviamo . . .
Ma se poi
Vi mancassi alla prova?

RUGGERO: No, no . . .
Ne sono certo:
Ballate meglio voi!
(Porge il braccio. Magda vi si appoggia languidamente)

MAGDA: (quasi a sè) Oh! . . .
L'avventura strana . . .
Come nei dì lontani . . .

RUGGERO: Che dite?

MAGDA: Son contenta
D'essere al braccio vostro! . . .
Nella dolce carezza della danza
Chiudo gli occhi per sognar.
Tutto è ornamai lontano,
Niente mi può turbar . . .
E il passato
Sembrami dileguar! . . .
(si confondono colla folla)

LA FOLLA: (danzando) "Vuoi tu dirmi che cosa più ti tormenta quando ride giocondo amor?
Quando lo stesso petto
chiude lo stesso cuor,
Quando un bacio
Brucia d'unguale ardor!
Baci lievi e tremanti,
Baci folli e vibranti,
Sono vita per gli amanti! . . .
Dammi nel bacio la vita
E vivi per baciar! . . . . "
(la danza prende movimento e calore. Grida allegre e gioiose della folla)

You are so charming and seem to me
So different than the others . . .

MAGDA: (seating herself) Is that true?

RUGGERO: Quite true.

MAGDA: (smiling) Why?

RUGGERO: So timid and lonely, you resemble
The girls of Montauban,
When they dance to the strain
Of an old air . . .
All smiles, all youth.

MAGDA: (somewhat ironically) I am deeply flattered!

RUGGERO: (confused) Try and understand me . . .
The girls over there are very beautiful,
Simple and modest . . .
Not like the girls here.
All they need as ornament
Is a flower in their hair . . .
Just like you . . .

MAGDA: . . . If only I could dance as they do
In Montauban! . . .

RUGGERO: (offering her his arm) Shall we try?

MAGDA: Let's try . . .
But should I fail
At the lesson?

RUGGERO: No, no . . . I am certain.
You dance better than I do!
(he offers her his arm. Magda leans on it languidly)

MAGDA: (to herself) O! . . . What a strange adventure . . .
Just like old times . . .

RUGGERO: What did you say?

MAGDA: I am happy to be in your arms!
In the sweet caressing melody of the dance
I can close my eyes to dream.
Everything seems far, far away . . .
Nothing can disturb me . . .
And the past seems to be vanishing . . .
(they are lost in the crowd)

THE CROWD: (dancing) "Can you tell me what causes you torment
When love mirthfully smiles?
When the same bosom enfolds the same heart.
When a kiss burns with ardor intensive!
Kisses trembling on your lips,
Kisses mad and burning;
They are life's breath to the lover!
Let your kiss be life to me
And let me live to kiss you . . . "
(the dance gets more lively and colorful. Cries of joy arise from the crowd)

LE VOCI DI MAGDA E RUGGERO: (dal giardino)—Dolcezza! . . .
—Ebbrezza! . . .
—Incanto!
—Sogno! . . .
—Per sempre!
—Per sempre!
—Eternamente! . . .
(le voci si perdono)
(entrano le coppie delle danzatrici raffiguranti la Primavera)

CORO A DANZA: O profumo sottil
D'una notte d'April!
L'aria è tutta piena di primavera e languor! . . .
Sboccian fiori ed amor di Primavera al tepor! . . .

LE VOCI DI MAGDA E RUGGERO: (lontane) Come batte il tuo cuor!
O primavera d'amor! . . .

IL CORO: "Vuoi tu dirmi che cosa più ti tormenta
Quando ride giocondo amor?
Quando lo stesso petto
Chiude lo stesso cuor,
Quando un bacio
Brucia d'uguale ardor! . . .
(Nel frattempo, mentre la folla ritorna verso il giardino, entrano Prunier e Lissete)

PRUNIER: (con esagerate compostezza) Ti pregno: dignità, grazia, contegno! . . .

LISETTE: (alzando le spalle un po' seccata) Ti voglio bene, Anche ti ammiro,
Ma se mi agito,
Se guardo, giro,
Ballo, scodinzolo,
Rido, saluto,
Canto, sternuto,
Ecco il tuo monito
Come una morsa
Prendermi, stringermi
Nella mia corsa! . . . .

PRUNIER: Se mi confondo
A dar lezione
È per rifarti
L'educazione!
Questo è il mio còmpito,
Sarà un miracolo,
Solo chi ama
Non guarda ostacolo:
Ti rifarò! . . .
(essi hanno attraversata la scena e si sono uniti alla folla, ballando)
(Durante le scene che seguono, di tratto in tratto nuovi arrivi di tipi e di coppie diverse, dalla scala d'entrata)
(Magda e Ruggero rientrano, accaldati, stanchi di danzare, pieni di allegrezza, e si precipitano al tavolo occupato prima, abbandonandosi sulle sedie)

THE VOICES OF MAGDA AND RUGGERO: (in the garden)—
What sweetness!
—Inebriation!
—Enchantment!
—A dream! . . .
—Forever!
—And forever!
—Eternally!
(the voices fade away)
(enter dancing couples representing Spring)

CHORUS AND DANCE: O subtle perfume
Of an April night!
The languor of Spring
Is in the air! . . .
The breath of Spring
Brings forth flowers and love!

THE VOICES OF MAGDA AND RUGGERO: (from a distance)
How your heart throbs!
O Spring of Love . . .

CHORUS: "Can you tell me what causes you torment
When love mirthfully smiles?
When the same bosom enfolds the same heart?
When a kiss burns with ardor intensive . . .
(Meanwhile, while the crowd returns to the garden, Prunier and Lisette are seen entering)

PRUNIER: (with exaggerated composure) Please!
Be dignified, gracious and composed! . . .

LISETTE: (shrugging her shoulders and somewhat annoyed) I like you,
And even admire you,
But the least thing I do—
Whether I look around,
Dance, jest,
Laugh, nod,
Sing, sneeze,
You immediately call me to order—
You tighten the rein,
You pull me up and
Stop me in my course! . . .

PRUNIER: If I take the trouble
Of giving you lessons,
I am trying to
Mend your education!
I've set myself the task,
And it will be short of miraculous,
But he who loves
Knows of no impediment:
I'll remake you! . . .
(They walk across the stage and join the dancing crowd. During the scene which follows, new arrivals of individuals and couples are seen on the stairway)
(Magda and Ruggero reenter, tired from dancing and in buoyant spirits, they rush to the table which they had occupied before and drop into their seats)

MAGDA: (agitando un piccolo fazzoletto) Ah!
Che caldo!
Che sete!

RUGGERO: (subito, ad un cameriere che passa) Due bocks!

MAGDA: (con gioia, quasi rivivesse un ricordo) Presto! . . .
Presto! . . .
(poi a Ruggero)
Posso chiedervi una grazia?

RUGGERO: Tutto quello che volete!

MAGDA: (accennando al cameriere) . . . . Dategli venti coldi,
E lasciategli il resto!

RUGGERO: (sorridendo, senza capire) Tutto qui? . . .
Che idea strana! . . . .

MAGDA: (con molta grazia, vagamente)
È un piccolo ricordo
D'una mia zia lontana . . .
"Una fuga, una festa,
Un po' di birra! . . .
A casa, tutta sola,
La vecchia zia che aspetta,
E due baffetti bruni
Che fan girar la testa! . . . "

RUGGERO: Cosa andate dicendo?

MAGDA: Fantasie! . . .
Fantasie!
(il cameriere reca la birra)

RUGGERO: (alzando il bicchiere)
Alla vostra salute!

MAGDA: (imitandolo) Ai vostri amori!

RUGGERO: (colpito, con gesto di dispetto depone improvvisamente il bicchiere) Non ditelo!

MAGDA: Perchè

RUGGERO: (seriamente) Perchè se amassi . . . allora . . .
Sarebbe quella sola,
È per tutta la vita!

MAGDA: (colpita dalla sincerità della sue parole, ripete quasi a sè stessa) Ah! Per tutta la vita! . . .
(un silenzio)

RUGGERO: (fissando Magda e notando il suo cambiamento, con molta dolcezza) Siamo amici . . . e non so ancora il vostro nome . . .
Qual'è? . . .

MAGDA: Volete che lo scriva?
(Ruggero le offre una piccola matita. Essa segna sul marmo del tavolo)

RUGGERO: (leggendo mentre Magda scrive) "Paulette . . . ." mi piace . . .

MAGDA: E il vostro? . . .

RUGGERO: (segnando il suo nome vicino all'altro) Io mi chiamo Ruggero!

MAGDA: Oh!
The heat!
I'm so thirsty!

RUGGERO: (immediately, to a passing waiter) Two bocks!

MAGDA: (full of joy, as if she were reliving the past) Quick! . . .
Quick! . . .
(then to Ruggero)
May I ask you a favor?

RUGGERO: Anything you wish!

MAGDA: (including the waiter)
. . . Give him twenty sous,
And let him keep the change!

RUGGERO: (smiling, without understanding) Is that all?
What a strange idea!

MAGDA: (gracefully and vaguely) A little remembrance
Of an aunt far away . . .
"A flight, a feast,
A little beer,
At home, all alone,
An old aunt waiting,
And a pair of side whiskers
Sending a head a'spinning!"

RUGGERO: What are you talking about?

MAGDA: Fantasies, fantasies! . . .
(the waiter brings the beer)

RUGGERO: (raising his glass)
Your health!

MAGDA: (imitating him) To your loves!

RUGGERO: (struck by her manner, puts his glass down with a contemptuous gesture) Do not say that!

MAGDA: Why not?

RUGGERO: (seriously) Because if I did love . . .
It would be she alone
Throughout life!

MAGDA: (struck by the sincerity of his words, repeats almost inaudibly) Ah! Throughout life! . . .
(silence)

RUGGERO: (looking at Magda and noting the change in her, with much tenderness) We are friends and yet I don't even Know your name . . .
What is it . . .

MAGDA: Shall I write it down?
(Ruggero offers her a small pencil. She writes on the marble table)

RUGGERO: (reading while Magda writes) "Paulette . . . "
I like that name . . .

MAGDA: And yours? . . .

RUGGERO: (writing his next to hers) My name is Ruggero!

MAGDA: (puntando l'indice sul tavolo) Qualche cosa di noi che resta qui!

RUGGERO: No . . . Questo si cancella . . .
In me resta ben altro! . . .
Resta il vostro mistero.

MAGDA: (fissandolo con tenerezza) Perchè mai cercare di saper
Chi'io sia e quale il mio mister? . . .
Non vi struggete
E m'accogliete
Come il destino mi portò!

RUGGERO: (predendole le mani che essa gli tende) Io non so chi siate voi, perchè Per qual via, giungeste fino a me.
Ma pure sento
Strano un tormento
Dolce, infinito, nè so dir qual'è! . . .
(con crescente commozione)
Sento che tu non sei un'ignota,
Ma sei la creatura
Attesa dal mio cuor! . . .

MAGDA: (con abbandono, chiudendo gli occhi, come cullata da un fascino travolgente) Parlami ancora . . .
Lascia ch'io sogni . . .

RUGGERO: No!
Questa è vita,
Questa è realtà! . . .
(insieme)
Mio amor! . . . (un lungo bacio spezza la parola)
(I giovani di prima rientrano dal giardino. Vedendo i due innamorati sostano additandoseli l'un l'altro, silenziosamente)

UN GIOVANE: Zitti!
Non disturbiamoli!

UN ALTRO: Due cuori che si fondono! . . .

UN TERZO: (ad alcuni che ridono) Non facciomo umorre!

ALCUNI ALTRI: (sommessamente) Rispettiamo l'amore! . . .
(Lisette e Prunier si sono avanzati più degli altri che ora alla spicciolata s'allontanano. Lisette fissa Magda, indietreggia quasi con un grido di stupore)

LISETTE: Dio!
Lei!

PRUNIER: (stupito) Chi?

LISETTE: Guardala! . . .
La padrona!
(Magda e Ruggero, al grido di Lisette, si sono staccati. Magda voltandosi si incontra con lo sguardo di Prunier che la fissa. Essa gli fa un rapido cenno di tacere. Prunier risponde con un altro segno: "ho capito" e voltandosi a Lisette dice)

PRUNIER: È il vino che ti ha dato un po' alla testa!

LISETTE: Eppure . . . è tutta lei . . .

MAGDA: (pointing with her finger on the table) Something of ourselves which will remain here!

RUGGERO: No . . . This will be blotted out . . .
But more than that will remain within me . . .
Your mystery will linger.

MAGDA: (looking at him tenderly) Why should you try and fathom
My being or my mystery? . . .
Do not long to know.
Take me as I am,
Since fate has brought us together!

RUGGERO: (clasping her hand) I know not who you are and Why you came to me as you did.
But I feel within me a torment, sweet
And infinite, which I cannot define!
(with increased emotion)
I feel that you are no stranger to me,
But the creature of my heart's desire . . .

MAGDA: (passionately, closing her eyes, as if culled by incantation) Speak to me again . . .
Let me dream . . .

RUGGERO: No! This is life,
This is reality! . . .
(together)
My love! . . .
(their words are lost in a long embrace)
(The same youths return from the garden and seeing the lovers, nudge each other, silently)

A YOUTH: Silence! Don't disturb them!

ANOTHER: Two hearts are overflowing!

A THIRD: (to others who are laughing) Don't be too funny!

OTHERS: (softly) All honor to love! . . .
(Lisette and Prunier, who have drawn nearer than the others, now hurry away. Lisette staring at Magda and walking backwards with a stiffled cry of astonishment)

LISETTE: Heavens!
She!

PRUNIER: (stupified) Who?

LISETTE: Look at her! . . .
My Mistress!
(Magda and Ruggero draw away from each other at Lisette's cry. On turning round Magda catches Prunier's eye. She makes a quick sign to him to be silent)

PRUNIER: The wine has got into your head!

LISETTE: And yet . . . It is exactly like her . . .

PRUNIER: Ne vuoi la prova?
(trascina Lisette verso Ruggero e Magda)

LISETTE: (riconoscendo Ruggero, sempre più stupefatta) E l'altro è lui . . . non sbaglio!

PRUNIER: (salutando Ruggero)
Buona sera!
(poi a Lisette)
Si . . . lui te lo concedo, ma l'altra che par lei,
Non è lei, guardala bene.

LISETTE: (quasi a sè stessa senza più capire) Sono o non sono la sua cameriera?

PRUNIER: Lo sei—ma non di lei—
Che non è lei
Ma sembra lei . . .
E ubbriaca tu sei!
(a Ruggero)
La mia amica Lisette vuole sapere
Se il suo consiglia vi portò fortuna . . .

RUGGERO: (indicando Magda)
Lo vedete!

PRUNIER: È carina!
Volete presentarla?

RUGGERO: (presentando) La mia amica Paulette!

PRUNIER: (a Lisette) Sei convinta, Lisette?

RUGGERO: (presentando Prunier) Il signore è un poeta . . .
Amico d'un amico di mio padre . . .

PRUNIER: (completando) E quindi amico vostro! . . .

RUGGERO: Ne son proprio onorato! . . .

MAGDA: (a Lisette) Che cosa v'ha turbato? . . .
Continuate a guardarmi . . .

LISETTE: (a sè) Non so raccapezzarmi . . .
(poi, sedendo vicino a Magda, confidenzialmente)
Strano! . . . c'è una persona
Che pare il vostro ritratto!

MAGDA: (divertendosi al gioco e provocandolo) E chi sarebbe?

PRUNIER: (facendo cenno a Lisette di tacere) Ma no!

LISETTE: (senza curarsene) La mia padrona!

PRUNIER: È una sua fissazione!

RUGGERO: (interessato) La padrona è carina?

LISETTE: (indicando Magda)
Come lei . . . se lei fosse elegante!

MAGDA: (ridendo) Se io fossi elegante!
(poi considerando le vesti di Lisette, con comica ammirazione)
Voi elegante lo siete!

PRUNIER: Do you want a proof?
(he draws Lisette towards Ruggero and Magda)

LISETTE: (recognizes Ruggero, still more surprised) And the other one is he . . . I'm making no mistake!

PRUNIER: (taking his hat off to Ruggero) Good evening!
(then turning to Lisette)
Yes . . . I'll grant you it is he, but the other one is not Magda,
It isn't, look at her well.

LISETTE: (almost inaudibly to herself) Am I or am I not her maid?

PRUNIER: You are—but not hers—
As this isn't her . . .
It only looks like her . . .
You are drunk! . . .
(to Ruggero)
My friend Lisette wants to know
Whether her advice has brought you luck . . .

RUGGERO: (indicating Magda)
You can see for yourself!

PRUNIER: She's charming!
Please, introduce her?

RUGGERO: (introducing her) My friend Paulette!

PRUNIER: (to Lisette) Now, are you convinced, Lisette?

RUGGERO: (introducing Prunier) The gentleman is a poet . . .
A friend of my father . . .

PRUNIER: (finishing the sentence) And consequently a friend of yours . . .

RUGGERO: I am very much honored . . .

MAGDA: (to Lisette) What is worrying you? . . .
You keep on staring at me . . .

LISETTE: (to herself) I don't seem to remember . . .
(then seating herself near Magda, confidentially)
It's strange! . . . but there's someone
Who seems the image of you.

MAGDA: (enjoying the fun and trying to draw her) And who could that be?

PRUNIER: (making a sign to Lisette to stop) But no!

LISETTE: (without taking the slightest notice) My mistress!

PRUNIER: It's an obsession with her!

RUGGERO: (interested) Is your mistress nice?

LISETTE: (indicating Magda) Just like her, . . . if she were elegant!

MAGDA: (laughingly) If I were elegant!
(after having examined Lisette's attire, with comic admiration)
But how elegant you are!

LISETTE: (ridendo) Oh! Non mi costa fatica!

MAGDA: Che bel cappelo!

LISETTE: (battendo confidenzialmente su un ginocchio di Magda) È il suo!

MAGDA: (con finto stupore) Ma davvero?

LISETTE: Tutto ciò che ammirate
L'ho sottratto abilmente!

MAGDA: (con grazioso gesto di ammonimento) Non lo dite, che è troppo imprudente!
(Prunier scoppia in una risata)

LISETTE: (rivoltandosi, offesa)
No! Prunier non ridete!
(Ruggero chiama un cameriere e gli dà ordini a voce bassa. Il cameriere esce)

PRUNIER: Rido, non so di che cosa!

MAGDA: (piano a Prunier, accennando a Lisette) È Salomè o Berenice?

PRUNIER: (umiliato) Siate pietosa!

MAGDA: (ridendo) Può Lisette
L'una o l'altra a sua scelta imitar!
(il cameriere reca lo champagne)

RUGGERO: Già che il caso ci unisce inneggiamo all'amore!

TUTTI: Inneggiamo alla vita
Che ci donò l'amor!

RUGGERO: (alzando il calice e guardando Magda) Bevo al tuo fresco sorriso, Bevo al tuo sguardo profondo,
Alla tua bocca che disse il mio nome!

MAGDA: Il mio cuore è conquiso!

RUGGERO: T'ho donato il mio cuore,
O mio tenero, dolce mio amore!
Custodisci gelosa il mio dono
perchè viva sempre in te!

MAGDA: È il mio sogno che si avvera! . . .
Ah! se potessi sperare
che questo istante non muore, che il mio rifugio saran le tue braccia,
la salvezza il tuo amore,
Sarei troppo felice nè più altro vorrei dalla vita!
Oh! godere la gioia infinita
che soltanto il tuo bacio può dar!

RUGGERO: Piccola ignota t'arresta!
No, questo istante non muore!
A me ti porta il clamor d'una festa ch'è una festa d'amore, ch'è una festa di baci!
Nè più altro domando alla vita che godere l'ebbrezza infinita
che soltanto il tuo bacio può dar!

LISETTE: (laughingly) Oh! It does not cost me much!

MAGDA: What a delightful hat!

LISETTE: (touching Magda's knee confidentially) It is hers!

MAGDA: (with feigned surprise) Really?

LISETTE: Everything you have admired
I have cleverly sneaked from her!

MAGDA: (with a charming gesture of reproach) Do you really mean it—that's awfully impudent!
(Prunier bursts out laughing)

LISETTE: (turns round, offended)
Please, Prunier, don't laugh!
(Ruggero calls a waiter and gives his order in a low voice. The waiter goes off)

PRUNIER: I don't know what I am laughing at.

MAGDA: (in a whisper to Prunier, and indicating Lisette) Is that Salomé or Bernice?

PRUNIER: (humiliated) Be merciful!

MAGDA: (laughing) Let Lisette play at being either one or the other at her choice.
(the waiter brings the champagne)

RUGGERO: Since fate has united us, let us
Raise our glasses to Love!

TOGETHER: Let us toast Life
Which gives us Love!

RUGGERO: (raising his cup and looking at Magda) I drink to your inebriating smile,
And to your eyes so deep—
To your mouth which spoke my name!

MAGDA: My heart is conquered!

RUGGERO: I have given you my heart,
O dearest and sweetest love!
Jealously guard my gift
That it may live in you forever!

MAGDA: My dream is coming true!
Ah! If I could but hope for
This moment never to pass!
Let my refuge be in your arms,
My redemption in your love,
It would be too much happiness;
Nothing more could I hope from life!
To live in the infinite joy
That only your kiss can give!

RUGGERO: Little unknown one, it shall linger—
This moment cannot die!
Has it not brought us the clamor of a feast?
A Feast of Love and a Feast of Kisses!
I ask no more of life than to enjoy
The infinite inebriation
Which only your kiss can give!

LISETTE: Dimmi le dolci parole che la divina tua musa ricama per colorire di grazia la trama di gioconde canzoni.
Le tue ardenti fantasie io raccoglier saprò nel mio cuor.
E saranno poesie
tutte mie,
che, gelosa, asconderò.

PRUNIER: Ogni tuo bacio è una strofa
Ogni tuo sguardo è una facile rima.
Tu sei la sola—perchè sei la prima—che ha parlato al mio cuore.
Inspirato dal tuo amore, le canzoni dirò
sol per te.
E saran tutte tue,
le poesie! . . .
Tutte tue! . . .

LISETTE: (con grande dolcezza)
Tutte mie!

MAGDA: Fa che quest'ora si eterni!
vedi io son tutta tua.
e per sempre! . . . Per sempre con te!

RUGGERO: Deve ques'ora segnare un avvenire d'amore!
E per sempre! Per sempre con me!

LISETTE: Le mie virtù sono poche, ma, se le vuoi, te le dono,
e felice, per sempre sarò!

PRUNIER: Le tue virtù le raccolgo, l'anima mia ne ravvolge,
più poeta sarò . . .

LA FOLLA: (Che nel frattempo si è avvicinata con cautela, commentata sommessamente, invadendo a poco la sala e la loggia) Guardo!
Fermo!
Vedi la!
È l'amor che non ragiona!
E l'amor che non nasconde!
Fate piano! . . .
Fate piano! . . .
State attenti!
Non lasciamoci scoprire!
Sull'amore fiori e fronde!
Per le Muse una ghirlanda!
Al poeta una corona!
Sian sorpresi nel momento
del più dolce giuramento!
Intercciamo i quattro cuori
con i fiori! . . .
Soffochiamo i quattro amori
con i fiori!
(E così: mentre un duplice bacio unisce gli amanti, dai lati, dal fondo, dall'alto, la folla getta fiori sulle due coppie)
(Alcune ragazze hanno intessuta una corona e ne recingono a testa del Poeta; poi tutti tornano a sbandarsi) (Lo stupore dei quattro sorpresi è

LISETTE: Repeat to me the sweet words
Which your divine muse spins
To give color and grace to the plot
Of joyous songs.
Your ardent fantasy shall flood my heart
With poetry all mine own,
Which I will jealously guard.

PRUNIER: Your every kiss is a verse
Your every look an easy rhyme.
You are the only one—because the very first—
To speak to my heart.
Inspired by your love,
My songs will be for you alone,
My verses will be yours . . .
All yours . . . . . .

LISETTE: (with deep tenderness)
All mine!

MAGDA: Make this hour to last into eternity!
I am yours forever . . .
To be with you always

RUGGERO: This hour is the forerunner
Of a future full of love!
And forever and ever with me!

LISETTE: My virtues are but few,
But, if you want them,
Take them, and I will be Happy forevermore.

PRUNIER: I will enfold your virtues
And enclose them within my heart,
To blossom into poetry!

THE CROWD: (Which meanwhile has gathered around cautiously, whispers softly, invading little by little both hall and balcony) Look!
Stop!
Watch them!
Love which knows no reasoning!
Love which has no hiding place!
Softly! . . . Softly! . . .
Take care!
Don't let us be caught watching!
Scatter flowers and leaves on Love!
And garlands for the Muses!
For the poet a crown!
Let us surprise them in their moment
Of sweetest troth!
Let us bind these four hearts
With flowers! . . .
Let us stifle these four loves
With flowers!
(While the lovers embrace, the crowd scatters flowers on them. Girls make a garland and crown the poet. The crowd then retires)
(The surprise of the four at being thus caught is interrupted by Prunier, who has seen Rambaldo on the stairs watching Magda and Ruggero) subito rotto da Prunier Egli ha visto Rambaldo fermo sulla scala dala quale allora allora è disceso, fissare Magda e Ruggero)

PRUNIER: (rapido, a voce bassa, a Magda) Rambaldo!

MAGDA: (Soffocando un grido) Ah! M'aiutate!
Ruggero allontanate!

PRUNIER: Ci penso io!
(forte) Lisette!
Attenta!
C'è il padrone!

LISETTE: (sconvolta) Dov'è?
Dov'è?

PRUNIER: Sta ferma!
(La folla comincia ad andarsene ridendo e parlando sommessamente. Chi si indugia. Chi si avvia verso l'uscita. Altri aiutati dai servi indossano il soprabito. Altri si trattengono a pagare, ecc. ecc.)

PRUNIER: (a Ruggero concitatamente) Ve l'affido, Ruggero, Portatela laggiù!

RUGGERO: (premurosamente) Fidatevì di me, non dubitate!
(Una grisette ha levato di testa il cilindro a un signore grave, e cacciatoselo in capo s'avvia. Questi appena se ne accorge la insegue, smettendo di pagare il conto. Il cameriere dopo un attimo di sorpresa li insegue)

PRUNIER: (Chiamando con doppio giucco in disparte Lisette, rapido e sommesso) Tu trattienlo laggiù, mi raccomando.
(Ora il cameriere ritorna soddisfatto, e a un gruppetto che lo interroga, mostra il danaro ricevuto)
(Ruggero prende sottobraccio Lisette e la trascina rapido verso il giardino dove si confonde con la gente che esce)

ALCUNE RAGAZZE E ALCUNI UOMINI: Via ci intenderem,
Se ci accompagnate!
(a un recalcitrante)
Perchiè non vuoi venir?
(Altri insistòno. Egli segue il gruppetto che esce)

MAGDA: (che è rimasta ferma al suo posto) M'ha vista?

PRUNIER: (scrutando i movimenti di Rambaldo) S'avvicina!
Io resto.
Voi andate!

TRE STUDENTI: Che aspettate ancor?

MAGDA: (risoluta) Non mi muovo di qua!

TRE SARTINE: Sol voialtri tre!

PRUNIER: (in a low voice to Magda) Rambaldo!

MAGDA: (stifling a cry) O! Help me!
Ruggero, go!

PRUNIER: Leave it to me!
(aloud)
Lisette!
Look out!
There's the master!

LISETTE: (upset) Where? Where?

PRUNIER: Keep still!
(The crowd disperses laughing and speaking softly. Some stay on. Some leave the ball. Others are helped into their coats by the ushers, or stop to pay, etc., etc.)

PRUNIER: (excitedly to Ruggero) I leave her to you, take her over there!

RUGGERO: (earnestly) Come with me, have faith in me!
(A grisette has taken the top hat from the head of a very serious gentleman and has put it on her own. As soon as he finds this out, he runs after her, leaving the account unpaid. The waiter, after recovering from his surprise, runs after them)

PRUNIER: (Calling Lisette, and motioning the others aside, quickly and excitedly) You stay over there,
Now, don't fail me.
(The waiter now returns satisfied, a group starts questioning him, and he shows them the money he has just received)
(Ruggero, taking Lisette by the arm, drags her quickly towards the garden, where they are lost in the crowd)

SEVERAL GIRLS AND MEN: We'll arrive at some kind of an understanding,
If you will come with us
(to one resisting)
Why won't you come with us?
(Others press him and he follows the group as they go out)

MAGDA: (who has remained where she was) Did he see me?

PRUNIER: (watching Rambaldo's movements) He's coming!
I'll remain here.
You go away.

THREE STUDENTS: What are you waiting for?

MAGDA: (resolutely) I won't move from here!

THREE DRESSMAKERS: You three, of course!

PRUNIER: Incauta! Non pensate

QUATTRO DONNE: (Dopo essersi aiutate a infilarsi il mantello) È tardi, quasi l'alba . . .
(al cameriere che accorre)
Pagherem doman! . . .
(escono)

MAGDA: (subito) No! Chi ama non pensa!
(E resta immobile, quasi rigida, appoggiata al tavolo)

PRUNIER: (Non sapendo che altro fare muove incontro a Rambaldo cercando di coprire Magda al suo sguardo) Buona sera, Rambaldo!
(Rambaldo senza rispondergli gli tende la mano)

PRUNIER: (Tenendo fra le sue la mano di Rambaldo e considerando i suoi anelli) Oh! che grosso smeraldo!

RAMBALDO: (bruscamente) Lasciatemi, vi prego! . . .
(Il suo tono è tale da non ammettere repliche. Prunier fa un gesto come per dire "Sarà quel che sarà" e s'avvia verso il giardino. Sparisce. Rambaldo resta fermo dinnanzi a Magda che alza francamente su di lui gli occhi aspettando ch'egli parli. Un breve silenzio)

RAMBALDO: (serio, grave, contegnoso) Che significa questo?
Mi volete piegare?

MAGDA: (freddamente) Non ho niente da aggiungere ciò che avete visto.

RAMBALDO: (più dolce, quasi conciliante) Dunque, niente di grave . . .
Una scappata . . .
Andiamo! . . .

UN GRUPPO: (sbadigliando) Che sonno, ahimè! . . .
non mi reggo più! . . .
(escono)
(Ora la sala e il giardino sono quasi completamente sfollati. Non resta che qualche piccolo gruppo di ritardatari)

MAGDA: (recisa) Inutile!
Rimango!

RAMBALDO: (stupito) Restate?

MAGDA: (prorompendo) L'amo! . . .
L'amo!

RAMBALDO: Che follia vi travolge?

UN ULTIMO GRUPPO (sfollando) Ah!
Viva Bullier!
Qui soltanto regna
la felicità!
(le loro voci si perdono)

PRUNIER: Don't be so foolish!
Think . . .

FOUR WOMEN: (After having helped each other into their coats) It's late, almost dawn . . .
(to the waiter who comes up quickly)
We'll pay tomorrow! . . .
(they leave)

MAGDA: No! He who loves does not think!
(She remains stubbornly, leaning against the table)

PRUNIER: (Not knowing what to do, goes to meet Rambaldo, meanwhile, trying to hide Magda from his sight) Good evening, Rambaldo!
(Rambaldo without replying takes his hand)

PRUNIER: (Holding Rambaldo's hand in his and looking at his rings) Oh! What a big emerald!

RAMBALDO: (roughly) Let me go, please!
(The tone of his voice is such as not to admit of any reply. Prunier's gesture seems to indicate the words "Let it come to the worst!" He goes off towards the garden. Rambaldo remains standing in front of Magda, who raises her eyes frankly towards him and waits for him to speak. A short pause)

RAMBALDO: (serious, grave and dignified) What is the meaning of this?
Do you want to break me?

MAGDA: (coldly) I have nothing to add to What you have seen.

RAMBALDO: (in a more conciliatory tone) Well then, nothing much . . .
An escapade . . .
Let's go!

A GROUP: (yawning) I'm dead beat . . . Oh dear I can't move!
(they go off)
(The ball and the garden are now almost deserted. Only here and there are seen small groups of stragglers) MAGDA: (resolutely) It's no use!

I'll stay!

RAMBALDO: (astounded) You want to stay?

MAGDA: (interrupting) I love him! . . . I love him!

RAMBALDO: What madness possesses you?

THE LAST GROUP: (dispersing)
Hurrah for Bullier!
Here happiness only reigns!
(their voices are lost)

MAGDA: Ma voi non lo sapete cosa sia aver sete d'amore
e trovare l'amore, aver voglia di vivera
e trovare la vita?
Lasciatemi seguire il mio destino
Lasciatemi! . . .
È finita! . . .
(Rambaldo la fissa intontito, quasi non credendo a ciò che ascolta. E alora la donna, turbata e pentita, gli tende la mano dolcemente, susurrando)

MAGDA: Perdonate, Rambaldo,
Se vi reco un dolore . . .
Ma non posso . . . non posso . . .
È più forte il mio amore!

RAMBALDO: (dopo un breve silenzio) Possiate non pentirvene!
(s'inchina, s'avvia senza più voltarsi, unendosi agli ultimi che escono)
(Magda s'abbatte sfibranta su una sedia, guardando innanzi a sè fissamente, come se interrogasse il suo stesso destino)
(Ora la sala è deserta. Nel giardino si sono spente le luci. I primi chiarori freddi dell'alba non illuminano che tavoli in disordine, fiori sparsi e sfogliati per terra, bicchieri rovesciati. Tutta l'infinita tristezza d'una festa passata è in queste prime luci mattutine. Dalla strada una voce che canta. Attraverso le vetrate, nella strada, i primi indizi del risveglio della città. Carretti che passano, finestre che s'aprono, ecc.)

LA VOCE LONTANA: Nella trepida luce d'un mattin M'apparisti ricinta di rose . . .
E ti vidi leggera camminar
Seminando di petali il ciel.
—Mi vuoi dir
Chi sei tu?
—Son l'aurora che nasce per fugar
Ogni incanto di notte lunar!
—Nell'amor
Non fidar!
(dal fondo appare Ruggero che reca lo scialle di Magda)

RUGGERO: (avvicinandosi) Paulette! . . .
(Magda trasalisce, si risolleva, si volta. Ruggero non s'avvede del suo pallore mortale e l'avverte)

RUGGERO: I nostri amici
Son già partiti . . .
Sai, è l'alba . . .
Vuoi che andiamo?

MAGDA: (con voce spenta) Un momento! . . .

RUGGERO: (accorrendo presso di lei, con ansia) Che hai? . . .
(Magda sembra svegliarsi improvvisamente da un sogno. Tutta la sua energia la riprende essa tende le braccia verso l'amato, come se si aggrappasse alla sua stessa speranza) Niente . . . niente . . .
Ti amo! . . .
Ma tu non sai . . .
Tu non sai! . . .
Vedi, ho tanta paura! . . .
Sono troppo felice!
È il mio sogno, capisci?
Tremo e piango . . . mia vita . . . mio amore! . . .

SIPARIO

MAGDA: How little you know what it means
To be thirsting for love
And to find love,
To long to live and
To find life!
Leave me to my fate!
Leave me! . . .
It is finished!
(Rambaldo looks at her astounded and cannot believe her words. The woman, then feeling compassion and remorse, takes his hand and whispers gently)

MAGDA: Forgive me, Rambaldo,
If I give you so much pain . . .
But, I cannot . . . I cannot
My love is too great!

RAMBALDO: (after a short silence) May you not regret it!
(He bows to her, and goes without once turning round, following the last stragglers out)
(Magda drops into a chair unnerved, her eyes fixed into the distance, as if she were interrogating her own destiny)
(The hall is empty. The lights are out in the garden. The first cold rays of dawn faintly illuminate a disorderly scene of tables, faded flowers littering the floor and overturned glasses. The whole sadness of a consummated feast is reflected in the cold light of dawn. From the street a voice is heard singing. From the windows of the hall, the first signs of a waking city are visible. Vehicles are passing, windows are being opened, etc.)

A DISTANT VOICE: In the early dawn of the morn
You appear to me wreathed in roses . . .
And I watch you glibly following your course
Strewing petals all over the skies.
—O, tell me who you are?
—I am the Dawn, born but to dispel
The enchantment wrought by the beams of the moon!
Beware of Love and do not trust it!
(Ruggero enters from the rear and brings Magda her shawl)

RUGGERO: Paulette! . . .
(Magda starts, rises and turns around. Ruggero does not seem to notice her deathly pallor and says)

RUGGERO: Our friends have already left . . .
The day is dawning . . .
Shall we go?

MAGDA: (in a colorless voice) One moment . . .

RUGGERO: (going to her, anxiously) What is it? . . .
(Magda seems to suddenly awaken as from a dream. Her energy returns. She extends her arms towards her lover, as if anxious to cling to her one hope) Nothing . . .
Nothing . . .
I love you!
But you don't know,
You can't understand!
I am so frightened! . . .
I am too happy!
This is my dream, can you realize it!
I tremble and weep . . . my life . . . my love . . .

CURTAIN

■ ATTO TERZO

Un piccolo padiglione sopra un'altura che degrada su uno spiazzo erboso. Dinanzi al padiglione una piccola terrazza ove sono un tavolo e alcune sedie da giardino. Attraversa tortuosamente un ruscelletto tagliato da un ponticello di legno. Qua e là alberi sottili e in fiore. Nel fondo è un muro aperto nel mezzo: sul muro edera e rose rampicanti. Al di là le chiome rade degli ulivi attraverso le quali si vede un lembo della Costa Azzurra. Da questa apertura si scende verso il mare. È il pomeriggio avanzato d'una magnifica giornata di primavera. Voli di rondini nel cielo lontano. Magda a Ruggero, presso il tavolo sul quale è stato portato il tè, sembrano assaporare la dolcezza intima dell'ora e del paesaggio.

MAGDA: Senti? . . .
Anche il mare respira sommesso . . .
L'aria beve il profumo dei fiori! . . .
(Lentamente si alza. Porge all'amante la tazza nella quale ha versato il tè. S'avvicina a lui con grazia e gli sussurra con mistero)
So l'arte strana di comporre un filtro che possa rendere vana
ogni tua stanchezza . . .
(e come Ruggero la guarda sorridendo, riprende)
Dimmi che ancora, che sempre ti piaccio!

RUGGERO: Tutto, mio amore, mi piace di te!

MAGDA: La solitudine, di, non ti tedia?

RUGGERO: Non son più solo con l'amor tuo che si risveglia ogni giorno più ardente, più intenso, più santo! . . .
(Magda, piena di riconoscenza commossa, lo cinge con le sue braccio. E Ruggero le sussurra) Ecco, il tuo braccio lieve mi circonda come un dolcissimo laccio che nessuno spezza! . . .

■ ACT III

A little cottage on a hillock and fields beyond. The frontage has a small terrace, on which are a table and a few garden chairs. A winding rivulet with a small rustic bridge. Here and there trees and flowers. At the rear is seen a wall with an opening in the middle. On the wall, climbing roses and ivy. Further still an olive grove, through the scant foliage of which is seen the Azure Coast; from there a path leading to the sea.
It is the afternoon of a glorious Spring day. Flights of swallows against the distant sky.
Magda and Ruggero are seated at a table on which tea has been served; they seem imbued with the sweetness of the hour and the beauty of the scenery.

MAGDA: Don't you have the sensation of the sea breathing softly? . . .
The air absorbs the scent of the flowers!
(Rises slowly. She hands her lover the cup of tea she has just poured out and going up close to him whispers as if divulging a secret)
I know of a strange art;
The composition of a filter
Which will make your lassitude vain . . .
(and while Ruggero gazes at her smiling, she continues)
Tell me once more that I still please you!

RUGGERO: Everything, my love, pleases me in you!

MAGDA: This loneliness does not annoy you, does it?

RUGGERO: How can I be lonely when your love
Grows more ardent each day,
More intense, more sacred! . . .
(Magda, deeply moved and thankful, embraces him. Ruggero whispers to her)
Your arm encircles
And enfolds me
In so tender an embrace
That nothing could divide us . . .

MAGDA: (tutta stretta a lui) Ah! ti ricordi ancora il nostro incontro laggiù? T'ho visto, e ho sognato l'Amore!	MAGDA: (nestling close to him) Do you remember our meeting there? I saw you and Love entered my heart!
RUGGERO: E siam fuggiti qui per nasconderlo!	RUGGERO: And we fled to hide it away!
MAGDA: Il nostro amore nato tra i fiori!	MAGDA: That love of ours born among the roses!
RUGGERO: Tra i fiori vivo!	RUGGERO: I live with the flowers!
MAGDA: Inghirlandato di canti e danze!	MAGDA: Engarlanded by songs and dances!
RUGGERO: Di primavera! . . . (Magda corre a raccogliere delle rose)	RUGGERO: Of Spring! (Magda runs to gather roses)
MAGDA: (con languoroso abbandono gettando con grazia delle foglie di rose su Ruggero) Oggi lascia che ancora il nostro amore inghirlandi! Lascia che ti avvolga Tutta la mia tenerezza! . . . Senti la mia carezza Trepida come il mio cuore?	MAGDA: (with languorous abandonment and grace she strews rose petals on Ruggero) Let this day still be the witness Of our love amid the roses! Let me encircle you with All my tenderness . . . Feel how my caresses flutter, Like the beating of my heart!
RUGGERO: Benedetto l'amore e benedetta la vita! La tua grazia squisita, la tua fiorente beltà!	RUGGERO: Blessed by Love— And blessed be Life! Your exquisite grace And your beauty so fair! . . .
MAGDA: Taci . . . Non parlare . . . Stringimi, stringimi a te! . . . (i due amanti restano per un momento così, assorti e avvinti)	MAGDA: Silence . . . Do not speak . . . Just hold me tightly, tightly to you . . . (the lovers remain a few instants lost in silence)
RUGGERO: Oggi meriti molto!	RUGGERO: Today you deserve a great lot!
MAGDA: Un premio?	MAGDA: A prize?
RUGGERO: No. Un segreto.	RUGGERO: No. A secret.
MAGDA: Un segreto?	MAGDA: A secret?
RUGGERO: Nascosto con ogni precauzione. Non volevo parlartene se prima non giungeva la risposta paterna . . . Ma la risposta tarda.	RUGGERO: Hidden with the greatest precaution. I did not want to tell you about it Before receiving my parent's reply . . . However, the reply has been delayed.
MAGDA: (transalendo) Hai scritto?	MAGDA: (starting) Have you written?
RUGGERO: Son tre giorni . . . Domandavo il denaro (leva di tasca alcune carte) per levarci d'impiccio. In ogni tasca guarda, c'è una richiesta, un conto . . .	RUGGERO: Three days ago . . . I asked for money (he draws from his pocket several letters) To get us out of this muddle. Look, in each pocket I have Demands for money or bills . . .
MAGDA: (tristemente) Per colpa mia! . . .	MAGDA: (sadly) All my fault . . .
RUGGERO: (sorridendo) La colpa va divisa! . . . È una pioggia insistente . . . Anche l'albergatore ha la faccia un po' scura . . .	RUGGERO: (smiling) The fault is divided . . . It just rains bills . . . Even the hotel proprietor is making a sour face . . .
MAGDA: Povero mio Ruggero!	MAGDA: My poor dear Ruggero!
RUGGERO: (ridendo allegramente) Andremo a mendicare: "Chi vuole aprir le porte a due amanti spiantati? . . ."	RUGGERO: (laughingly) We had better go out and beg. "Who'll open the door To two lovers dead broke? . . ."
MAGDA: (con pena) on dire! . . .	MAGDA: (sadly) Don't! . . .
RUGGERO: Ma che importa! . . . Che m'importa di questo! Il segreto è più grande!	RUGGERO: What does it matter . . . What do I care! The secret is of more importance!
MAGDA: Parla, dimmi, fa presto!	MAGDA: Tell me, tell me, quickly!
RUGGERO: Non l'hai indovinato?	RUGGERO: Haven't you guessed it yet?
MAGDA: Che posso dirti?	MAGDA: How could I?
RUGGERO: Ho scritto per avere il consenso al nostro matrimonio!	RUGGERO: I have written to obtain permission for our marriage!
MAGDA: (arretrando, colpita) Ruggero, hai fatto questo?	MAGDA: (drawing back as if stung) Ruggero, you did that?
RUGGERO: Perchè? . . . non vuoi?	RUGGERO: Why? . . . don't you want to?
MAGDA: Che dirti? . . . Non so, non m'aspettavo . . . Non sapevo . . . pensavo . . .	MAGDA: What can I say? . . . I don't know . . . I never expected . . . I didn't know . . . I thought . . .
RUGGERO: Che io non lo facessi?	RUGGERO: That I would not do it?
MAGDA: No . . . Non so . . . dimmi tutto!	MAGDA: No . . . I don't know . . . tell my everything!
RUGGERO: Non c'è altro di più. Se ti amo e mi ami, voglio che sia per sempre!	RUGGERO: There is nothing more to be said. If I love you and you love me, I want it to be for always!
MAGDA: "Per sempre! . . ." Mi ricordo . . . Lo dicesti laggiù! . . .	MAGDA: "For always . . ." I remember . . . Back there you said the same.
RUGGERO: E laggiù non sapevo ancora chi tu fossi, Tu che non sei l'Amante, ma l'Amore! (attirando a sè Magda, così vicina che le sue parole possano sfiorarla sul viso) Dimmi che vuoi seguirmi alla mia casa Che intorno ha un orto e in faccia la collina Che si risveglia al sole, la mattina ed è piena, alla sera, d'ombre strane! . . . Il nostro amore trovera in quell'ombra la sua luce più e più serena . . . la santa protezione di mia madre sopra ogni angoscia e fuori d'ogni pena! E chi sa che a quel sole mattutino un giorno non si tenda lietamente la piccola manina d'un bambino . . . E chi sa che quell'ombra misteriosa non protegga i giocondi sogni d'oro della nostra creatura che riposa . . . (Magda singhiozzando sommessamente, a poco a poco si è tutta ripiegata su di lui) (Ruggero, dolcemente staccandosi la bacia teneramente sui capelli ed esce rapido. Magda lo segue con lo sguardo fin che può, intensamente. Poi uno smarrimento, un terrore quasi, pare stringa la sua anima in tumulto: E guardando inanzi a sè, fissamente, come scrutasse l'oscurità del futuro, sussurra)	RUGGERO: And back there I did not yet know who you were, That you were not a lover, but Love! (drawing Magda towards him, so near to him that his words seem to caress her face) Tell me that you will follow me to my house, Surrounded by an orchard and facing the hill, Which awakens to the rays of the sun in the morning And at night is full of strange shadows! . . . Our life will find in those shadows A purer light and more serenity . . . The sacred protection of my mother Against all anguish and all pain! And who knows but that to the morning sun Some day in joy and pleasure A little child's hand may not be outstretched! And who knows whether those mysterious shadows Do not hide the joyous golden dream Of a dormant hope . . . (Magda sobs softly in his arms) (Ruggero, rising slowly, kisses her tenderly and goes) (Magda follows him with her eyes as long as she can. Then a terror seizes and oppresses her and she gazes fixedly into the distance, as if scrutinizing her unfathomable destiny, whispering)
MAGDA: Che più dirgli? . . . Che fare? . . . Continuar a tacere . . . O confessare, Ma come to potrei? . . . Con un solo mio gesto far crollare	MAGDA: What more can I say to him? . . . What can I do? . . . Continue in silence . . . or confess?, But, how can I? . . .

Sogni, felicità, passione, amore! . . .
No!
Non devo parlare! . . .
(poi come stupita della sua stessa affermazione)
Nè tacere io posso! . . .
Contnuare l'inganno per conservarmi a lui?
O mio povero cuore!
Quanta angoscia!
Che pena!
(lenta, tutta ripiegata nel suo dolore, s'avvia verso il padiglione, entra le voci di Prunier e di Lisette da destra)

LISETTE: —E' qui?

PRUNIER: —Non so!

LISETTE: —La rivedrò?

PRUNIER: —Speriam
(Prunier entra. Lisette lo segue. Essa appare in preda a un vivo, a un esagerato terrore)

PRUNIER: Avanti, vile!
Vieni!
Fa presto!
Il padiglione? . . .
Eccolo: è questo.
Che fai?
Che temi?
Esagerata!
Non c'è nessuno!

LISETTE: M'hai rovinata!

PRUNIER: Non mi stupisce la ricompensa!
Volli innalzare la mia conquista improvvisandoti canzonettista.
Ma non appena scoperto, l'astro morì, si spense!

LISETTE: Dio!
Che disastro!
Sempre mi pare di risentire il sibilare di quella gente!

PRUNIER: Che conta un fischio?
Che vale?
Niente!
Ora dimentica: qui tutto tace.

LISETTE: Dammi, ti prego, dami la pace!

PRUNIER: La gloria, o donna, volevo darti!

LISETTE: No, no.
Ti supplico: non esaltarti.

PRUNIER: Io m'illudevo, in una sera, di soffocare la cameriera!

LISETTE: Pur di non essere così fischiata
Anche la vita l'avrei donata!
(con improvviso terrore)
Guarda! non vedi? . . .
Laggiù . . . qualcuno! . . .

PRUNIER: Ma no, vaneggi!
Non c'è nessuno!

LISETTE: Di proseguire più non m'arrishcio!
(sobbalzando, livida)
Ahimè!
Non senti?

With one single word destroy
Dreams, happiness, passion, love?
No! I must not speak! . . .
(then, as if surprised at her own decision)
And yet I cannot remain silent . . .
And continue this deception
To keep him for myself? . . .
O my poor heart? . . .
What anguish! . . .
What pain!
(slowly, bowed down by grief, walks towards the cottage and enters; the voices of Prunier and Lisette are heard from the left)

LISETTE: —Is it here?

PRUNIER: —I don't know!

LISETTE: —I wonder, if I'll find her?

PRUNIER: —Let's hope so! (Prunier enters. Lisette follows. She seems to be the prey of a wild and exaggerated terror)

PRUNIER: Go on, coward!
Come along!
Make haste!
The cottage? . . .
Why, there it is.
What are you doing?
What are you afraid of?
Don't be so exaggerated!
There's no one!

LISETTE: You've ruined me!

PRUNIER: I am not surprised at the reward!
I wanted to raise my conquest
In making you a diseuse.
But hardly had I discovered the star
When it faded, and vanished.

LISETTE: Oh heavens!
What a disaster!
I am still haunted by the hisses of those people!

PRUNIER: What does a hiss mean?
What is it worth?
Nothing!
Now, forget it all: everything is still here.

LISETTE: Leave me alone, please;
leave me in peace!

PRUNIER: It is glory, oh woman, I would give you!

LISETTE: No, no.
I beg of you: don't get excited.

PRUNIER: And I who dreamed, in one evening,
To stamp out the servant!

LISETTE: I would rather have died
Than be hissed in that way!
(with sudden terror)
Look!
Don't you see?
There's some one over there! . . .

PRUNIER: False alarm!
There's no one!

LISETTE: I'm afraid of going any further!
(starting, deathly pale)
O, dear! Don't you hear?

PRUNIER: Che cosa?

LISETTE: Un fischio!

PRUNIER: Decisamente vittima sei dei nobilissimi consigli miei!

LISETTE: Dimmi, dovremo girare ancora per ritrovare la mia signora?

PRUNIER: E se ciò fosse?

LISETTE: Non lo potrei!

PRUNIER: Bisogna vincersi!

LISETTE: Prima vorrei frugare ogni angolo, esser sicura che qui nessuno può far paura.

PRUNIER: Ti riconduco alla tua mèta!
In questa placida oasi segreta
Gli amanti tubano fuori del mondo!
La solitudine, vedi, è completa!
Nizza è lontana, Nizza è là in fondo!

LISETTE: (ripresa dal terrore) No!
Non m'inganno! . . .
Laggiù c'è un uomo.

PRUNIER: (dopo aver guardato)
Lo riconosco, è il maggiordomo.
(Infatti a destra s'avanza il maître d'hôtel recando alcune lettere su un vassoio. Vedendo Prunier gli si avvicina ossequiente)

IL MAGGIORDOMO: Desidera che avverta la signora?

PRUNIER: Le direte soltanto così:
Un amico e un'amica di Parigi l'aspettano qui.
(il maggiordomo s'inchina, entra nel padiglione)

LISETTE: (a Prunier) Hai fatto male!
Io non sono sua amica!

PRUNIER: Che cosa sei?

LISETTE: (vagamente) Vedrai prima di sera!

PRUNIER: Quali stolte intenzioni ti passan per la testa?

LISETTE: (con uno scatto ribelle)
Alla fine m'hai seccata!
Troppe, troppe osservazioni!
Non mi sono ribellata
Ma tramontan le illusioni!
Sono stanca di tutto!

PRUNIER: (freddo e ironico) Quali sono i tuoi sogni?

LISETTE: I miei sogni?
Che t'importa!
So ben io quello che sogno!
Ho bisogno di calma!
Di star sola ho bisogno!

PRUNIER: La gratitudine non è il tuo forte!

LISETTE: Non intrometterti nella mia sorte!

PRUNIER: What?

LISETTE: A hiss!

PRUNIER: There is no further doubt, you are the victim
Of my noble endeavors!

LISETTE: Do we have to run around much longer
To find my mistress?

PRUNIER: Well, supposing we had to?

LISETTE: I couldn't do it!

PRUNIER: You must control yourself!

LISETTE: First of all, let me look into every corner,
I want to make sure there's no one to frighten me.

PRUNIER: I'll return you to your own calling!
In this peaceful and secret oasis
Lovers retire from the maddening crowd!
Solitude here, as you see, is complete!
Nice is far away; Nice is right in the distance over there!

LISETTE: (again in sudden terror) No! I'm not mistaken! There's a man over there.

PRUNIER: (after looking around)
I recognize him, it is the steward.
(In fact, the Maitre d'Hôtel is seen approaching from the left. He carries a few letters on a tray. Prunier goes to meet him)

THE STEWARD: Do you wish me to call the lady?

PRUNIER: You will only tell her that:
Two friends from Paris
Await her here.
(the Steward bows and goes into the cottage)

LISETTE: (to Prunier) You did wrong!
I'm not her friend!

PRUNIER: What are you then?

LISETTE: (vaguely) You'll see that on the first night!

PRUNIER: What foolish ideas are now passing through your head?

LISETTE: (in sudden rebellion)
I've had enough of you now!
With all your remonstrances!
I did not revolt;
But my illusions have faded
And I am sick of everything!

PRUNIER: (coolly and with irony) Let's hear your dreams?

LISETTE: My dreams?
What business are they of yours?
My dreams are my affair!
I want peace!
I want to be left alone!

PRUNIER: Gratitude is not your chief virtue!

LISETTE: Don't interfere with my fate!

PRUNIER: (sdegnoso) Misera sorte!
Povera mèta!

LISETTE: (con gesto di disprezzo) Ah! lo so bene!
Grande poeta!

PRUNIER: (offeso) M'insulti?

LISETTE: (soffiandogli le parole sul viso) Ti spezzo!
(Appare Magda seguita dal maggiordomo che si inchina ed esce Prunier e Lisette si ricompongono subito. Movendole incontro) MAGDA: Ma come?

Voi, che ricordate ancora la vecchia parigina? . . .

LISETTE: (con tenerezza) Mia signora!

PRUNIER: Siam venuti a turbare il vostro nido . . .
Siete dunque felice?

MAGDA: (con un velo di tristezza) Interamente.

PRUNIER: Se ne parla, a Parigi! . . .
Si ricorda! . . .
E . . . devo dirvi tutto? . . .
Non si crede.

MAGDA: Non si crede? . . .
Perchè? . . .

PRUNIER: Perchè la vostra vita non è questa, tra piccole rinuncie e nostalgie, con la visione d'una casa onesta che chiude l'amor vostro in una tomba!

MAGDA: (interrompendolo vivamente) No, Prunier!
Non sapete quanto male mi fate a dir così! . . .
(poi per sviare)
Or parliamo di voi . . . che fate qui?

PRUNIER: Il teatro di Nizza iersera decretò che Lisette non ha stoffa per la gloria, e perciò io che vedo e capisco ve la restituisco!
L'artista di una sera tornerà cameriera!

LISETTE: (a Magda) Sarò quella d'allora, se volete!

MAGDA: Ma certo!

LISETTE: (con un gran sospiro) Finalmente!

PRUNIER: (a Magda, accennando a Lisette) È una donna felice: lo vedete?
Torna l'anima antica a palpitare.
Anche voi, come lei, Magda, dovrete
Se non oggi, domani abbandonare una illusione che credete vita . . .

MAGDA: (subito) Tacete.

PRUNIER: È mio dovere.
Ho avuto questo incarico e lo compio!

PRUNIER: (scornfully) Such a fate! A miserable existence!

LISETTE: (with a gesture of scorn) I know it only too well!
Great Poet!

PRUNIER: (offended) You insult me?

LISETTE: (throws the words directly into his face) I despise you!
(Magda appears followed by the Steward, who bows to her and goes. Prunier and Lisette compose themselves and go to meet her)

MAGDA: What, you?
So you still remember the old Parisienne? . . .

LISETTE: (with tenderness) My mistress!

PRUNIER: We have come to disturb you in your nest . . .
Are you really happy?

MAGDA: (with a tinge of sadness) Absolutely.

PRUNIER: It is the talk of Paris . . .
Do you remember? . . .
And . . . if I am to tell the truth?
Nobody believes it.

MAGDA: Nobody believes it? . . .
But why? . . .

PRUNIER: Because you are not made for such a life,
Of petty tribulations and longings,
With the vision of an honest home
That buries your love as in a tomb!

MAGDA: (interrupting) No, Prunier!
You don't know how you hurt me
Speaking thus! . . .
(to broach another subject)
Tell me about yourselves . . . what are you doing here?

PRUNIER: The Theatre in Nice decreed yesterday
That Lisette is not made of the stuff
That reaps glory; therefore,
Seeing and understanding, as I do,
I return her to you!
The artist of one evening
Will return to her maid's service!

LISETTE: (to Magda) I shall be what I was formerly, if you wish it!

MAGDA: I certainly do!

LISETTE: (with a deep sigh) At last!

PRUNIER: (to Magda, pointing to Lisette) She is a happy woman: you see?
She has found herself back into her place.
You likewise, Magda, will have to—
Be it today or tomorrow—give up
An illusion which you believe real.

MAGDA: (suddenly) Stop.

PRUNIER: It is my duty.
I was given this message
And I have delivered it!

MAGDA: Da chi?

PRUNIER: Da chi vi aspetta,
Sa dei vostri imbarazzi,
ed è pronto a salvarvi in ogni modo!

MAGDA: (vivamente) Non più! . . .
Non più! . . .

PRUNIER: Mi basta: ho detto!
(poi volgendosi verso Lisette)
Addio per sempre.

MAGDA: Ve ne andate?

PRUNIER: (accennando Lisette) Parto: Con certa gente non ho più a che fare . . . (bacia la mano a Magda)

LISETTE: (a Prunier con un inchino) Ne son felice!

PRUNIER: (a Lisette) Solo una preghiera . . .

LISETTE: (con comica concessione) Dite pure: vi ascolto.

PRUNIER: (a Magda) Permettete signora?
(Magda ha un piccolo gesto di acconsentimento. E allora il poeta sussurra a Lisette)
A che ora sei libera stasera?

LISETTE: Alle dieci.

PRUNIER: Ti aspetto! (ed esce con molta dignità)

LISETTE: (gettando vivamente mantello e cappello) Mi dia da fare subito!
Chi sa quanto disordine ci sarà senza di me!

MAGDA: (distrattamente) Davvero t'ho rimpianta!

LISETTE: La scena è un precipizio!
ma la follìa passò!
Ora, immediatamente
vedrà, rimedierò.
(ed esce rapida)
(dopo un attimo riappare in aspetto di cameriera)
Un grembiulino bianco,
e riprendo servizio!
(fa un inchino e rientra)

RUGGERO: (entra di corsa da destra tenendo in mano una lettera)
Amore mio!
Mia madre!
È mia madre che scrive!

MAGDA: (vacillando, terribilmente pallida) Tua madre?

RUGGERO: (sostenendola e rianimandola) Perchè tremi?
Non lo sai che acconsente? . . .
(porgendole gioiosamente la lettera)
Guarda!
Leggi tu stessa!
(la fa sedere, le siede vicino)

MAGDA: By whom?

PRUNIER: By one who awaits you,
Who knows of your embarrassment,
And is ready to save you at whatever cost!

MAGDA: (quickly) Never! . . .
Never! . . .

PRUNIER: That's enough: I have spoken!
(then turning to Lisette)
Goodbye forever.

MAGDA: What, you are going?

PRUNIER: (pointing to Lisette) I go:
I will have nothing to do with certain persons . . .
(he kisses Magda's hand)

LISETTE: (to Prunier with a curtsy) I am delighted!

PRUNIER: (to Lisette) Only one favor . . .

LISETTE: (with comic concession) Speak: I am listening.

PRUNIER: (to Magda) With your permission, Madame?
(Magda makes a gesture of assent. And the poet whispers to Lisette)
At what time will you be free tonight?

LISETTE: At ten o'clock.

PRUNIER: I will meet you?
(he goes off with great dignity)

LISETTE: (quickly throwing her coat and hat aside) Give me something to do, immediately!
Goodness only knows how untidy everything is Since I am not there!

MAGDA: (hardly heeding) Yes, I have missed you!

LISETTE: The theatre is a regular pitfall!
But I have recovered from my madness!
I'll get back to work, immediately,
You'll see, everything will be in order.
(she goes off quickly)
(reappears immediately after in her maid's dress)
My white apron,
And I begin service again!
(she curtsies and reenters)

RUGGERO: (enters running, holding a letter in his hand) Dear heart!
My mother!
My mother writes!

MAGDA: (staggering, deathly pale) Your mother?

RUGGERO: (assisting and reviving her) Why do you tremble?
She is consenting . . .
(handing her the letter joyously)
Look! Read it yourself!
(he makes her sit down near him)
Come . . . quite close to me . . . No, closer,

Così . . .
Vicina a me . . .
No, più vicina,
che il tuo viso mi sfiori!

MAGDA: (come intontita, ripete)
Tua madre!

RUGGERO: Leggi!
Leggi!

MAGDA: (Compiendo un grande sforzo su sè stessa, comincia a leggere con voce lenta e tremante)
"Figliuolo, tu mi dici che una dolce creatura ha toccato il tuo cuore . . .
Essa sia benedetta
Se la manda il Signore . . ."
(piega la testa, commossa)

RUGGERO: Continua . . .
Leggi!
Leggi!

MAGDA: "Penso con occhi umidi di pianto
Ch'essa sarà la madre dei tuoi figli . . .
È la maternità che rende santo l'amore . . ."

RUGGERO: Amore mio!

MAGDA: "Se tu sai ch'essa è buona, mite, pura,
Che ha tutte le virtù, sia benedetta!
Mentre attendo con ansia il tuo ritorno, la vecchia casa onesta dei tuoi vecchi
Si rischiara di gioia per accoglier l'eletta . . .
Donale il bacio mio!"

RUGGERO: Il bacio di mia madre!
(attira a sè Magda per baciarla in fronte)

MAGDA: (scostandosi vivamente) No! non posso riceverlo!

RUGGERO: Non puoi?

MAGDA: No! Non devo ingannarti!

RUGGERO: Tu?

MAGDA: Ruggero!
Il mio passato non si può scordare . . .
Nella tua casa io non posso entrare!

RUGGERO: Perchè?
Chi se?
Che hai fatto?

MAGDA: Sono venuta a te contaminata!

RUGGERO: Che m'importa!

MAGDA: (incalzando perdutamente) Tu non sai tutto!

RUGGERO: So che sei mia!

MAGDA: Trionfando son passata tra la vergogna e l'oro!

RUGGERO: No! Non dirmi! . . .
Non voglio! . . .

I want to feel your face near mine!

MAGDA: (stupefied, repeats)
Your mother!

RUGGERO: Read! Read!

MAGDA: (making a great effort, begins reading in a stifled and slow voice) "My son, you tell me
That a dear sweet woman
Has entered your heart . . .
May she be blessed,
If it is the will of the Lord . . ."
(she bows her head, very much affected)

RUGGERO: Continue . . . Read!
Read!

MAGDA: "My eyes are stained with tears
When I think that she will be
The mother of your children . . .
Motherhood sanctifies Love . . ."

RUGGERO: My love!

MAGDA: "If you feel that she is good, meek and pure,
And possesses all the virtues, she is blessed . . .
I await with anxiety your return.
The old home of your fathers
Will be full of joy
To receive your bride . . .
Give her a kiss from me!

RUGGERO: My mother's kiss!
(he draws Magda towards him to kiss her forehead)

MAGDA: (tearing herself away)
No! I cannot receive it!

RUGGERO: You cannot?

MAGDA: No! I cannot deceive you!

RUGGERO: You?

MAGDA: Ruggero!
My past life cannot be forgotten . . .
I cannot enter your home!

RUGGERO: Why?
Who are you?
What have you done?

MAGDA: I came to you contaminated!

RUGGERO: What does it matter!

MAGDA: (continuing, in despair) You do not know all!

RUGGERO: I only know that you are mine!

MAGDA: In triumph I lived
Between shame and money!

RUGGERO: No! Not that! . . .
Don't . . .

MAGDA: Tu m'hai dato un tesoro . . .
la tua fede, il tuo amore,
ma non devo ingannarti!

RUGGERO: Quale inganno?

MAGDA: Posso esser l'amante, non la sposa, la sposa che tua madre vuole e crede!

RUGGERO: (disperatamente) Taci! Le tue parole son la mia perdizione!
Che farò senza te che m'hai svelato quanto si possa amare? . . .
Ma non sai che distruggi la mia vita?

MAGDA: E non sai che il mio strazio è così grande che mi par di morire? . . .
Ma non devo,
non devo più esitare:
nella tua casa io non posso entrare!

RUGGERO: No!
Non dir questo!
Guarda il mio tormento!

MAGDA: Tua madre oggi ti chiama!
e devo abbandonarti perchè t'amo e non voglio rovinarti!

RUGGERO: No!
Non lasciarmi solo!
No!
Non lasciarmi solo!
(e aggrappandosi a lei, intensamente)
Ma come puoi lasciarmi se mi struggo in pianto,
se disperatamente io m'aggrappo a te!
O mia divina amante
o vita di mia vita non spezzare il mio cuor!

MAGDA: Non disperare, ascolta:
Se il destino vuole
che tutto sia finito pensa ancora a me!
Pensa che il sacrificio che compio in questo istante io lo compio per te!

RUGGERO: No!
Rimani!
rimani!
Non lasciarmi!

MAGDA: Non voglio rovinarti!

RUGGERO: No! Rimani!

MAGDA: (Afferrando fra le sue mani il volto di Ruggero, e fissandolo intensamente come se volesse imprimersi negli occhi la visione ultima di questo dolore) L'anima mia che solo tu conosci, l'anima mia è con te, con te per sempre!
(Ruggero reclina la testa, abban-

MAGDA: You gave me a treasure . . .
Your faith and your love,
I cannot deceive you!

RUGGERO: What, deception?

MAGDA: I can be the lover, but not the wife,
The wife your mother wishes and hopes for!

RUGGERO: (desperately) Stop!
Your words
Are my undoing!
What shall I do without you
Who have revealed to me
How much I can love? . . .
But, don't you realize that you are destroying my life?

MAGDA: And don't you know that my misery is such
That I would welcome death? . . .
No, I must not,
I must hesitate no longer:
I cannot enter your home!

RUGGERO: No! Do not say that!
See what torment you cause me.

MAGDA: This day your mother calls you!
And I must leave you.
Because I love you and do not wish for your ruin.

RUGGERO: No! Do not leave me!
Do not leave me!
(clinging to her with all intensity)
How can you leave me when I am consumed in misery, when
I cling to you in despair!
O my divine love,
Life of my life,
Do not break my heart!

MAGDA: Do not despair, listen:
If destiny ordains
That all be finished,
Think of me still.
Think that the sacrifice
I now make, is made for you!

RUGGERO: No! Remain! Remain!
Do not leave me!

MAGDA: I do not want to ruin you!

RUGGERO: No! Stay!

MAGDA: (Taking Ruggero's face in her hands, looks at him intently as if she wanted the last vision of this anguish to remain unforgettable in her mind) My soul which only you know—
My soul is with you forever!
(Ruggero drops his head in despair)

dono, senza speranza)
Lascia che io ti parli
Come una madre al suo figiuolo caro . . .
(accarezzandolo dolcemente sui capelli)
Quando sarai guarito, te ne ricorderai . . .
Tu ritorni alla casa tua serena . . .
io riprendo il mio volo e la mia pena . . .

RUGGERO: Amore . . .

MAGDA: Non dir niente . . .
più niente . . . che sia mio questo dolore . . .
(Ruggero s'abbatte singhiozzondo)
(Ora Lisette appare dal padiglione. Vede. Intuisce. Avanza lentamente, s'avvicina a Magda, la sorre ge. Magda ha un ultimo, lungo, tenerissimo sguardo verso Ruggero accasciato, il viso tra le mani. Poi, appoggiandosi tutta a Lisette—che con il suo fazzolettino le asciuga le lagrime—s'avvia per il declivio, nel silenzio, fra i richiami delle campane, le ombre della prima sera, e il sommesso singhiozzare dell'amnate)

SIPARIO

Let me talk to you
As a mother would to her child . . .
(fondling his hair quietly)
When you will have got over this, it will be but a memory.
You will return to your people
And I to my life and my sorrow . . .

RUGGERO: My love . . .

MAGDA: Say no more . . . no more . . .
Let this sorrow be mine alone . . .
(Ruggero falls prostrate weeping)
(Lisette now appears from the cottage. Looks around. Understands. Advances slowly towards Magda and assists her. Magda looks at Ruggero for the last time long and tenderly, then buries her face in her hands. Leaning on Lisette—who dries her tears with her handkerchief—she walks down the incline, in silence, amid the calls of the woods, the shadows of the twilight, and the sobs of her lover)

CURTAIN

Gianni Schicchi (1918)

Music by Giacomo Puccini ■ Libretto by Giovacchino Forzano

This one-act opera is set to a libretto by Giovacchino Forzano from an episode in Dante's Inferno. In Florence during the year 1299, Buoso Donati has just died, surrounded by his family. There is a rumor that he has bequeathed his entire fortune to the monks of Signa in atonement for his sins. The family is very upset by this. They search the house for a will. Rinuccio, Zita's nephew, discovers the all-important piece of paper, but before he will give it to his aunt he demands that she consent to his marriage to Lauretta, whose father, Gianni Schicchi, is of humble birth. The will confirms the rumor. Rinuccio urges his family to send for Gianni Schicchi, as he may be able to help them. He arrives with Lauretta and receives such an unfriendly greeting that he prepares to depart at once. But Lauretta threatens to throw herself into the Arno if she is not permitted to purchase a wedding ring. Schicchi gives in and devises a plan in which he will pretend to be the dying Donati and dictate his will to a notary. The family greets this plan with great enthusiasm, and each member privately attempts to bribe Schicchi in order to receive the greatest share of the inheritance. Attired in Donati's clothes and lying in his bed, Schicchi dictates a will that leaves the lion's share of the inheritance to him. The family is totally shocked but cannot say anything because under Florentine law the penalty for fraud—in which they are all implicated—is exile and the loss of one hand. When the notary departs, Schicchi throws Donati's family out of the house. Rinuccio and Lauretta embrace, and Schicchi bids his audience farewell, saying that for this plan he will go to hell. But if the audience enjoyed it as much as he did, then these were "extenuating circumstances."

■ ATTO UNICO	■ ACT I
Ai lati del letto quattro condelabri con quattro ceri accesi.	At the four corners of the bed, four tall candlesticks with four lighted candles.
Davanti al letto, un candelabro a tre candele, spento. Luce di sole e luce di candele: sono le nove del mattino.	In front of the bed, a three-branch candelabrum—unlighted. There is sunshine and the glow of candles. It is nine o'clock in the morning.
Le sarge del letto, semichiuse, lasciano intravedere un drappo rosso che ricopre un corpo.	Through the half open bed-curtains can be seen a red silk drapery covering a body.
I parenti di Buoso sono in ginocchio, con le mani si coprono il volfo e stanno molto curvati verso terra. Gherardino è a sinistra vicino alla parete; è seduto in terra, volta le spalle ai parenti e si diverte a far ruzzolare delle palline. I parenti sono disposti in semicerchio; a sinistra del letto la prima è la vecchia, poi Rinuccio, Gherardo e Nella, quindi Betto di Signa, nel centro resta un po' isolato perchè essendo povero, mal vestito e fangoso è riguardato con disprezzo dagli altri parenti; a destra, la Ciesca Marco e Simone che sarà davanti alla vecchia.	Buoso's relatives, kneeling, with their faces buried in their hands, bend down close to the ground. Gherardino, seated on the floor, to the left and near the wall, turns his back to the other relatives, intent at playing with marbles. The relatives form a semi-circle; on the left side of the bed, first of all can be seen the old woman, then Rinuccio, Gherardo and Nella; Betto of Signa remains somewhat isolated in the center because his poverty and his shabby appearance make the other relatives look upon him with contempt. To the right, Ciesca, Marco and Simone are facing the old woman.
Da questo gruppo parte il sordo brontolio di una preghiera. Il broniolio è interrotto da singhiozzi, evidentemente fabbricati tirando su il fiato a strozzo. Quando Betto di Signa si azzarda a singhiozzare, gli altri si sollevano un po', alzano il viso dalle mani e danno a Betto una guardataccia. Durante il brontolio si sentono esclamazioni soffocate di questo genere:	From this group rises the customary mumbling sound of prayers. This mumbling is interrupted by sobs, plainly forced and fabricated by a drawing of the breath through the throat. Each time that Betto of Signa takes a chance at a sob, the other relatives raise their faces from between their hands and frown upon Betto. During the mumbled prayers the following exclamations are heard:
LA VECCHIA: Povero Buoso!	THE OLD WOMAN: My poor, poor Buoso!
SIMONE: Povero cugino!	SIMONE: Poor, poor, poor dear cousin!
RINUCCIO: Povero zio!	RINUCCIO: Poor, poor dear Uncle!
MARCO E LA CIESCA: Oh! Buoso!	MARCO AND CIESCA: Oh! Buoso!
GHERARDO E NELLA: Buoso!	GHERARDO AND NELLA: Buoso!
BETTO: O cognato! Cognà . . . . (È interrotto perchè Gherardino butta in terra una sedia e i parenti, con la scusa di zittire Gherardino, fanno un formidabile sciiii sul viso a Betto.)	BETTO: My good brother-in-law! . . . . (He is interrupted by Gherardino letting a chair drop to the floor with a crash, and the relatives, with the excuse of quieting Gherardino throw a formidable "hush" in Betto's face.)
GHERARDO: Io piangerò per giorni e giorni. (a Gherardino che si è alzato e lo tira per la veste dicendogli qualche cosa:) Sciò!	GHERARDO: For days and days I'll shed bitter tears. (To Gherardino who is pulling at this coat tails, saying something): Hush!
NELLA: Giorni? Per mesi! . . . . (come sopra): Sciò! (Gherardino va dalla vecchia):	NELLA: Days, you said? Months! . . . . ('s above): Hush! (Gherardino goes to the old woman.)
LA CIESCA: Mesi? Per anni ed anni!	CIESCA: Months! Why, for years and years!
LA VECCHIA: Ti piangerò tutta la vita mia! . . . . (allontanando Gherardino, seccata si volge a Nella e a Gherardo): Portatecelo voi; Gherardo, via! (Gherardo si alza, prende il fi-	THE OLD WOMAN: I know I'll weep all my life! (She pushes Gherardino away, annoyed. She turns to Nella and Gherardo): Don't bother! Can't you send that child away?

gliolo per un braccio e, a strattoni, lo porta via dalla porticina di sinistra.)

TUTTI: Oh! Buoso, Buoso,
Tutta la vita
Piangeremo la tua dipartita!

NELLA: (Betto, curvandosi a sinistra, mormora qualcosa all'orecchio di Nella): Ma come? Davvero?

BETTO: Lo dicono a Signa.

RINUCCIO: (curvandosi fino a Nella, con voce piangente): Che dicono a Signa?

NELLA: Si dice che . . . .
(Gli mormora qualcosa all'orecchio.)

RINUCCIO: (con voce naturale): Giaaaaa?!

BETTO: Lo dicono a Signa.

LA CIESCA: (curvandosi fino a Betto, con voce piangente): Che dicono a Signa?

BETTO: Si dice che . . . .
(Le mormora qualcosa all'orecchio.)

CIESCA: (con voce naturale): Nooooo!?
O Marco, lo senti che dicono a Signa? Si dice che . . . . (Gli mormora all'orecchio.)

MARCO: Eeeeeh?!

BETTO: Lo dicono a Signa.

LA VECCHIA: (con voce piagnucoloso): Ma insomma possiamo . . . .
sapere che diami— . . . .
— . . . .ne dicono a Signa?

BETTO: Ci son delle voci . . . .
. . . .Dei mezzi discorsi . . . .
Dicevan iersera dal Cisti fornaio: 'Se Buoso crepa, per i frati è manna!
Diranno; pancia mia, fatti capanna! . . . ."
E un altro: "si, si, si, nel testamento ha lasciato ogni cosa ad un convento! . . . ."

SIMONE: (A metà di questo discorso si è sollevato anche lui ed ha ascoltato): Ma che?!?! Chi lo dice?

BETTO: Lo dicono a Signa.

SIMONE: Lo dicono a Signa????

TUTTI: Lo dicono a Signa!
(Un silenzio. Ora i parenti sono, sì, sempre in ginocchio, ma bene eretti sul busto.)

GHERARDO: O Simone?

LA CIESCA: Simone?

(Gherardo gets up, takes the boy by the hand, and dragging him along, takes him away through the small door at left.)

ALL: Oh! Buoso, Buoso,
From Paradise
See how we mourn for you in your demise!

NELLA: (Betto bending to his left whispers a few words into Nella's ear): Impossible! . . . . Truly?

BETTO: It is rumored in Signa.

RINUCCIO: (bending towards Nella, in a lamenting tone): What's rumored in Signa?

NELLA: They're saying that . . . .
(She whispers into his ear.)

RINUCCIO: (in a natural voice): No..o..o..o..!

BETTO: It is rumored in Signa!

CIESCA: (bending towards Betto, in a lamenting tone): What's rumored in Signa?

BETTO: They're saying that . . . .
(He whispers into her ear.)

CIESCA: (in her natural voice): No..o..o..!
Marco, you know
What's rumored in Signa?
They're saying that . . . .
(She whispers into his ear.)

MARCO: What-a-at? . . . .

BETTO: It is rumored in Signa.

THE OLD WOMAN: (in a lamenting tone): Can't we all know now Whatever may be
That's rumored in Signa?

BETTO: There are many rumors . . . .
. . . .Half words here and there . . . .
For instance, somewhere
Someone did declare:
"If old man Buoso now gives up his ghost
The convent and the monks will get the most" . . . .
Another said . . . . "I know that in his will
He has left to the monks even his mill' . . . .!

SIMONE: (in the middle of this narrative has also gotten up to listen with the others): Indeed? . . . . And who said it?

BETTO: It is rumored in Signa.

SIMONE: It is rumored in Signa? . . . .

ALL: It is rumored in Signa!
(A pause. Though still kneeling, the relatives now keep their bodies erect.) GHERARDO: Oh! Simone!

CIESCA: Simone!

LA VECCHIA: Parla, tu se' il più vecchio . . . .

MARCO: Tu che sei stato podestà a Fucecchio . . . .

LA VECCHIA: Cosa ne pensi?

SIMONE: (Riflette un istante, poi, gravemente): Se il testamento è in mano d'un notaio, chi lo sa? . . . . Forse è un guaio!
Se però ce l'avesse lasciato in questa stanza,
guaio pe' frati, ma per noi: speranza!

TUTTI: Se il testamento fosse in questa stanza . . . .
guaio pe' frati, ma per noi: speranza!
(Tutti istintivamente si alzano di scatto. Simone e Nella si dirigono allo stipo nel fondo. La Vecchia, Marco, Ciesca allo stipo che è sul davanti alla parete di destra. Gherardo torna ora in scena senza il ragazzo e raggiunge Simone e Nella. Rinuccio si dirige verso lo stipo che è in cima alla scala.) RINUCCIO: (O Lauretta, Lauretta, amore mio, speriam nel testamento dello zio!)

(E una ricerca febbrile. Fruscio di pergamene buttate alll' aria. Betto, scacciato da tutti, vagando per la stanza adocchia sul tavolo il piatto d'argento col sigillo d'argento e le forbici pure d'argento. Cautamente allunga una mano. Ma dal fondo si ode un falso allarme di Simone che crede di aver trovato il testamento.)

SIMONE: Ah!
(Tutti si voltano. Betto fa il distratto. simone guarda meglio una pergamena):
No. Non è!
(Si riprende la ricerca. Betto agguanta le forbici e il sigillo; li striscia al panno della manica dopo averli rapidamente appannati col fiato, li guarda e li mette in tasca. Ora tira al piatto. Ma un falso allarme de La Vecchia fa voltare tutti.)

LA VECCHIA: Ah!
(Guarda meglio):
No. Non è!
(Si riprende la ricerca. Betto agguanta anche il piatto e lo mette sotto il vestito temendolo assicurato col braccio.)

THE OLD WOMAN: Speak! You are the oldest here . . . .

MARCO: You who have been town sheriff all this year! . . . .

THE OLD WOMAN: What's your opinion?

SIMONE: (thinks a while, then with an air of gravity): If Buoso's will was filed in the town hall
There is no hope for us, at all!
But if by mere good luck
The will is in this room
The flower of our hopes again might bloom!

ALL: If Buoso's will is hidden in this room
The flower of our hopes again might bloom!
(Instinctively, they all jump to their feet. Simone and Nella move towards the chest of drawers up stage. The old woman, Ciesca and Marco rush to the coffer down front, along right hand wall. Gherardo, who returns without the boy, joins Simone and Nella. Rinuccio goes towards the chest on top of the stairs.)

RINUCCIO: Oh Lauretta, Lauretta, my sweetheart
Let's hope from now on we'll never part!
(A feverish search for the will. Rustling of parchments being thrown in haste and confusion. Betto, chased away by everybody, wanders about the room, when, suddenly, his glance falls upon the silver tray bearing on top a silver seal and silver scissors. Cautiously, he stretches his hand towards the tray. But from up stage at this moment comes a false alarm from Simone who thinks he has found the will.)

SIMONE: Ah! . . . .
(All turn around. Betto has an innocent look upon his face. Simone, scanning a parchment more closely):
No! . . . . I'm wrong!
(The search starts again. Betto grabs the seal and scissors; he rubs them hard on the cloth of his sleeve after first breathing hard upon them several times. He examines them critically and puts them in his pocket. He is now slowly pulling the tray towards himself; but an exclamation from the Old Woman makes all turn around.)

THE OLD WOMAN: Ah! . . . .
(She scans a parchment more closely):
No. I'm wrong!
(The search starts again. Betto grabs the tray and puts it under his coat, holding it tight in place with his arm.)

RINUCCIO: Salvàti!
(Legge sul rotolo di pergamena.)
"Testamento di Buoso Donati."
(Tutti accorrono con le mani protese per prendere il testamento. Ma Rinuccio mette il rotolo di pergamena nella sinistra, protende la destra come per fermare lo slancio dei parenti e, mentre tutti sono in un'ansia spasmodica):
Zia, l'ho trovato io! . . . .
Come compenso, dimmi . . . .
Ah! dimmi, se lo zio
—povero zio!—m'avesse
lasciato bene bene,
se tra poco si fosse tutti ricchi . . . .
in un giorno di festa come questo, mi daresti il consenso di sposare la Lauretta figliola dello Schicchi?
Mi sembrerà più dolce il mio redaggio . . . .
potrei sposarla per Calendimaggio!

TUTTI TRANNE LA VECCHIA: —Ma sì!
—Ma sì!
—C'e tempo a riparlarne!
—Qua, presto il testamento!
—Non lo vedi
che si sta con le spine sotto i piedi?

RINUCCIO: Zia! . . . .

LA VECCHIA: Se tutto andrà come si spera, sposa chi vuoi, magari . . . . la versiera!

RINUCCIO: Ah! lo zio mi voleva tanto bene, m'avrà lasciato con le tasche piene!
(a Gherardino che torna ora in scena)
Corri da Gianni Schicchi, digli che venga qui con la Lauretta;
c'è Rinuccio di Buoso che l'aspetta!
(Gli dà due monete)
A te, due popolini:
comprati i confortini!
(Gherardino corre via.)
(Rinuccio dà a Zita il testamento: tutti seguono Zita che va al tavolo. Cerca le forbici per tagliare i nastri del rotolo, non trova nè forbici nè piatto. Guardaintorno i parenti; Betto fa una fisionomia incredibile. Zita strappa il nastro con le mani. Apre Appare una seconda pergamena che avvolge ancora il testamento. Zita vi legge sopra.)

LA VECCHIA: "Ai miei cugini Zita e Simone!"

SIMONE: Povero Buoso!

LA VECCHIA: Povero Buoso!

RINUCCIO: We're saved!
(Reading from a roll of parchment):
"The last will of Buoso Donati."
(All rush towards him with outstretched hands to grab the will, but Rinuccio, holding the parchment tightly in his left hand, raises his right to stop the avalanche of relatives who, burning with impatience, cannot keep still.)
Aunt, I found the will! . . . .
As a recompense, tell me . . . .
Ah, tell me if Uncle Buoso—poor Uncle!
Has made me legatee;
If we find all of us suddenly rich,
On this joyous occasion
Would you consent that I should marry
Lauretta, Schicchi's fair daughter?
That thought would make me happier on this day
And I could make her mine the first of May!

ALL: (except the Old Woman): All right!
All right!
There's time to talk it over!
Come, come, show us the will!
What do you fear?
We're all on pins and needles waiting here!

RINUCCIO: Aunt!

THE OLD WOMAN: If in that will there be no hitch
I leave you free to wed even a witch!

RINUCCIO: Uncle Buoso who cared so much for me
No doubt has left me there enough for three!
(to Gherardino who comes back):
Run, run to Gianni Schicchi
Tell him to come right over with his girl
As Rinuccio's poor head is in a whirl!
(Giving him two coins):
These pennies will be handy
For you to buy some candy!
(Gherardino rushes out.)
(Rinuccio hands the will to Zita; all follow Zita who moves toward the table. She looks for the scissors to cut the ribbons around the roll, but she finds neither the scissors nor the tray. She looks around, scanning the faces of the other relatives. Betto's expression is incredible! Zita tears the ribbon off with her fingers. She unrolls the parchment from which a second roll appears—the one containing the will.)

THE OLD WOMAN: (reading):
"To my dear cousins
Zita and Simone!"

SIMONE: Dear, dearest Buoso!

THE OLD WOMAN: Dear, dearest Buoso!

SIMONE: (In un impeto di riconoscenza accende anche le tre candele del candelabro spento):
Tutti la cera
tu devi avere!
Insino in fondo
si deve struggere!
Sì! godi, godi!
Povero Buoso!

TUTTI: (mormorano): Povero Buoso!
—Se m'avesse lasciato questa casa!
—I mulini di Signa!—
—E poi la mula!
—Se m'avesse lasciato . . . .

LA VECCHIA: Zitti! È aperto!
(La vecchia col testamento, in mano; vicino al tavolo ha dietro a si un grappolo umano. Marco e Betto sono saliti sopra una sedia. Si vedranno bene tutti i visi assorti nella lettura. Le bocche si muoveranno come quelle di chi legga senza emettere voce. A un tratto i visi si cominciano a rannuvolare . . . . arrivano ad una espressione tragica . . . . finchè la Vecchia si lascia cadere seduta sullo sgabello davanti alla scrivania. Simone è il primo, del gruppo impietrito, che si muove; si volta, si vede davanti le tre candele testè accese, vi soffia su e le spegne; cala le sarge del letto completamente; spegne poi tutti i candelabri. Gli altri parenti lentamente vanno ciascuno a cercare una sedia e vi seggono. Sono còme impietriti con gli occhi sbarrati fissi; chi quà, chi là.)

SIMONE: Dunque era vero! Noi vedremo i frati ingrassare alla barba dei Donati!

LA CIESCA: Tutti queri bei fiorini accumulati finire nelle tonache dei frati! . . . .

GHERARDO: Privare tutti noi d'una sostanza,
e i frati far sguazzar nell'abbondanza!

BETTO: Io dovrò misurarmi il bere a Signa,
e i frati beveranno il vin di vigna! . . . .

NELLA: Si faranno slargar spesso la cappa, noi schianterem di bile, e loro . . . . pappa!

RINUCCIO: La mia felicità sarà rubata dall' "Opera di Santa Resparata!"

SIMONE: (In an impulse of gratitude lights the three candles on the candelabrum): All these three candles
Will burn for you!
Melting 'till ended
Inside the lee!
Rest in peace
Dear, dearest Buoso!

ALL: (whispering): Dear, dearest Buoso!
—I hope he has bequeathed me this house!
—The old saw-mills of Signa!
—And then his mule!
—I hope he has bequeathed . . . .

THE OLD WOMAN: Hush! it's open!
(Behind the old woman standing close to the table, the relatives press on top of each other as tight as they can. Marco and Betto have climbed on a chair. All their faces can plainly be seen, absorbed in the reading of the will. All mouths can be seen moving as when people read without emitting actual sounds. Suddenly, a cloud overshadows all faces . . . . until they take a tragic look . . . . till the old woman fairly drops on the stool placed in front of the desk. Simone is the first of the petrified group to move; he turns around and seeing the three candles he had lighted a few moments before, blows on them and puts them out; he drops the bed curtains completely, then he puts all the candles out. Slowly, the other relatives move towards different chairs and sit down. There they stay, like graven images, eyes wide open and staring straight ahead.)

SIMONE: So it was true! The convent and the priest
Will fatten on the wealth of that old beast!

CIESCA: All the good florins made by theft and lurch
Are now to fill the coffers of the church!

GHERARDO: Fine trick to cut us off without a thought
To let the monks and nuns feast at will!

BETTO: I will have to restrain my constant thirst
While the monks drink to the fill!

NELLA: They will feast in full joy, ever content
And we'll pine in distress without a cent!

RINUCCIO: All happiness is stolen thus from me
To fully satisfy the Holy See!

MARCO: Aprite le dispense dei conventi!
Allegri frati, ed arrotate i denti!

LA VECCHIA: (feroce): Eccovi le primizie di mercato!
Fate schioccar la lingua col palato! . . . .
A voi, poveri frati: tordi grassi!

SIMONE: Quagliè pinate!

NELLA: Lodole!

MARCO: Ortolani!!

BETTO: E galletti!

TUTTI: Galletti?? Galletti-ni!! . . . .

RINUCCIO: Gallettini di canto teneriiini!

LA VECCHIA: E con le facce rosse e ben pasciute, schizzando dalle gote la salute,
ridetevi di noi: ah! ah! ah! ah!
Eccolo là un Donati, eccolo là!
E la voleva lui l'eredità . . . .

TUTTI: (Con un riso che avvelna si alzano accennandosi l'un l'altro): —Ah! ah! ah! ah! ah! ah! ah!
ah! ah! ah!
—Eccolo là un Donati!
—Eccolo là
—E la voleva lui l'eredità! . . . .
—Ah! ah! ah! ah!
—Ah! ah! ah! ah!
(erompendo a pugni stretti):
Sì, sì, ridete! Sì, ridete, o frati!
Ingrassati alla barba dei Donati!
(Cadono anchora a sedere. Pausa. Ora c'è piange sul serio.)

LA VECCHIA: Chi l'avrebbe mai detto . . . .
che quando Buoso andava al cimitero, noi . . . . si sarebbe . . . .
pianto . . . . per davvero!

VOCI: —E non c'è nessun mezzo . . . .
—Per cambiarlo . . . .
—Per girarlo . . . .
Addolcirlo . . . .
—O Simone? Simone? . . . .

LA VECCHIA: Tu se' anche il più vecchio! . . . .

MARCO: Tu che sei stato podestà a Fucecchio! . . . .

SIMONE: (Fa un gesto come per dire: impossibile!)

RINUCCIO: C'è una persona sola che ci può consigliare . . . .
forse salvare . . . .

TUTTI: Chi?

MARCO: What cheer in the cellars of the convent!
Raise up, ye monks, your heads in prayer bent!

THE OLD WOMAN: The fat of the whole land will be for you
While we will have to live on watery stew!
Fat squabs and juicy steaks will be your fare!

SIMONE: Thick mutton chops!

NELLA: And pork loin . . .

MARCO: Fresh-killed hare!

BETTO: And fat pheasants!

ALL: Yes, pheasants and spring chickens!

RINUCCIO: Of course, who could forget that tasty bite!

THE OLD WOMAN: And with your cheeks so rubicund and bloated
Full of health by Donati's gold promoted
You will laugh in our faces: ah! ah!
ah!
They thought they would inherit!
ah! ah! ah!
Those fool Donati geese! ah! ah! ah!

ALL: (all rise, pointing at each other. With poisoned laughter):
Ah! ah! ah! ah! ah! ah! ah! ah! ah! ah!
See, there goes a Donati!
—See him down there?
He thought he'd be his Uncle's heir for sure!
Ah! ah! ah! ah!
Ah! ah! ah! ah!
(Bursting with anger, with clenched fists):
Yes, yes, we know you smile amid your prayers
At the wonderful joke on Buoso's heirs!
(Again they sit down with a thump. A pause. A few are now really weeping.)

THE OLD WOMAN: Who would ever have thought
When Buoso would be taking his last journey,
We would be crying and sobbing without faking!

VOICES: Couldn't we find any scheme . . . .
—To change that will . . . .
To upset it . . . .
—To alter it! . . . .
Oh! Simone! Simone!

THE OLD WOMAN: You are the oldest here!

MARCO: You who have been townsheriff all this year!

SIMONE: (makes a gesture as if to say: Impossible!)

RINUCCIO: I know there's but one man
Who could advise this clan . . . .
And who might save us . . . .

ALL: Who? . . . .

RINUCCIO: Gianni Schicchi!
(Tutti gesto di disillusione).

LA VECCHIA: (furibonda): Di Gianni Schicchi, della figliola,
non vo' sentirne
parlar mai più!
E intendi bene! . . . .

GHERARDINO: (Entra di corsa urlando): È qui che viene!

TUTTI: Chi?

GHERARDINO: Gianni Schicchi!

LA VECCHIA: Chi l'ha chiamato?

RINUCCIO: (accennando il ragazzo): Io; l'ho mandato
Perchè speravo . . . .

ALCUNI: È proprio il momento d'aver Gianni Schicchi tra' piedi!

LA VECCHIA: (interrompendolo)
Ah! bada! se sale gli fo ruzzolare le scale!

GHERARDO: (a Gherardino) Tu devi obbedire soltanto a tuo padre:
là! là!
(Sculaccia Gherardino e lo butta nella stanza a destra in cima alla scala.)

SIMONE: Un Donati sposare la figlia d'un villano!

LA VECCHIA: D'uno sceso a Firenze da! contado!
Imparentarsi colla gente nova! . . . .
Io non voglio che venga!

RINUCCIO: Avete torto!
È fine! . . . . astuto . . . .
Ogni malizia di leggi e codici conosce e sa.
Motteggiatore! . . . . Beffeggiatore! . . . .
C'è da fare una beffa nuova e rara?
È Gianni Schicchi che la prepara!
Gli occhi furbi gli illuminan di riso lo strano viso, ombreggiato da quel suo gran nasone che pare un torracchione per così!
Vien dal contado? Ebbene? E che vuol dire?
Basta con queste ubbie grette e piccine!
Firenze è come un albero fiorito, che in piazza dei Signori ha tronco e fronde, ma le radici forze nuove apportano dalle convalli limpide e feconde;
e Firenze germoglia ed alle stelle salgon palagi saldi e torri snelle!
L'Arno prima di correre alla foce canta, baciando piazza Santa Croce e il suo canto è sì dolce e sì sonoro chè a lui son scesi i ruscelletti in coro! . . . .
Così scendano i dotti in arti e

RINUCCIO: Gianni Schicchi!
(They all make a gesture of disappointment.)

THE OLD WOMAN: You will do well to speak no more of Gianni
Schicchi And his fair daughter!
No more I say! . . . .

GHERARDINO: (rushing in out of breath, yells at the top of his voice): He's on his way!

ALL: Who? . . . .

GHERARDINO: Gianni Schicchi!

THE OLD WOMAN: Who sent for him?

RINUCCIO: I sent for him
Because I hoped . . . .

A FEW: This is not the moment to have Gianni Schicchi come here and bother us!

THE OLD WOMAN: (stopping him short) Look here! if he comes!
I will surely kick him down-stairs!

GHERARDO: (to Gherardino)
You are to take orders from no one but your father! There! there!
(He spanks Gherardino and throws him into the room to the right on top of the stairs.)

SIMONE: A Donati can't marry the daughter of a peasant!

THE OLD WOMAN: One who came into Florence from the backwoods!
It's always wrong to mix with the new rich!
I don't want him to come!

RINUCCIO: You are all wrong!
He's smart . . . . and keen-eyed . . . .
He knows the law
And all the tricks
That lawyers practice.
Always good-humored, and full of fun!
At all parties, when looking for some jest
Gianni Schicchi finds the best!
His bright brown eyes light up with charm and grace
That strangest face
Upon which his big nose projects a shade
That never seems to fade.
Just like that!
What matters one's ancestors' wondrous fame?
Deeds count nowadays and not your name!
Our Florence is a great, big, robust tree
That covers with its shade Signoria
Square;
But its roots get more strength and longer life
From the new streams that flow from everywhere;
And our Florence grows large, and broad and high scienze

a far più ricca e splendida Firenze!
E di Val d'Elsa giù dalle castella ben venga Arnolfo a far la torre bella!
E venga Giotto del Mugel selvoso e il Medici mercante coraggioso! . . . .
Basta con gli odi gretti e coi ripicchi!
Viva la gente nuova e Gianni Schicchi!
(Si bussa alla porta)
E lui! lo faccio entrare?
(I parenti fanno un gesto che non significa niente. Rinuccio apre; entrano):

GIANNI SCHICCHI E LAURETTA:

GIANNI: (Si sofferma sull'uscio: dà un'occhiata ai parenti): (Quale aspetto sgomento e desolato! . . . .
Buoso Donati, certo, è migliorato!)

RINUCCIO: (a Lauretta, fra il pianerottolo e la porta) (Lauretta!—
—Rino!
—Amore mio!
—Perchè si pallido? . . . .
—Ahimè, lo zio . . . .
—Ebbene, parla . . . .
—O Amore! Amore!
Quanto dolore!
Quanto dolore! . . . .)
(Gianni lentamente avanza verso la Vecchia che gli volta le spalle; avanzando vede i candelabri intorno al letto.)

GIANNI: Ah! . . . .
Andato??
(E perchè stanno a lacrimare? ti recitano meglio d'un giullare!)
(falso, forte)
Ah! comprendo il dolor di tanta perdita . . .
Ne ho l'anima commossa . . . .

GHERARDO: Eh! la perdita è stata proprio grossa!

GIANNI: (come chi dica parole studide di circostanza):
Eh! . . . . Sono cose . . . . ..
Mah! . . . . Come si fa!
In questo mondo
una cosa si perde . . . .

While new towers and domes rise to the sky!
Before reaching its mouth the Arno river
Doth send through Santa Croce a joyous quiver
With its singing so sweet, so full of fire
That brooks and torrents join with their full choir!
Thus do come men of skill in art and science
To make more rich and splendid our Florence!
Let from Val d'Elsa's hills come every year
One more Astolfo, builder without peer!
And let come Giotto from the Mugel forest
And the Medicis, merchants fair and honest!
Dismiss all thoughts derived from snobbish lore
And welcome be Gianni Schicchi to our door.
(A knock is heard at the door):
It is he! May he come in?
(The relatives make a meaningless gesture. Rinuccio opens the door and Gianni Schicchi enters with Lauretta.)

Gianni Schicchi and Lauretta

GIANNI: (stops on the threshold and looks around at the relatives): (To judge from their air so grave and sad Buoso Donati's state can't be so bad!)

RINUCCIO: (to Lauretta, between the landing and the door) Lauretta!
Rino!
—My dear sweetheart!
—Why pale and haggard?
—What piercing dart!
—Do speak, I beg you!
—My dear sweetheart
—What cruel dart!
—What cruel dart!
(Gianni slowly moves towards the Old Woman, who turns her back on him. Coming further front he notices the candelabra around the bed!)

GIANNI: Ah!
He's dead!
Why this air of solemn vesper?
(aside):
They are all better actors than a jester!
(low, falsely)
I comprehend your grief at such a loss!
I feel it heart and soul!

GHERARDO: It wasn't a partial loss, it was the whole!

GIANNI: (like a person saying anything coming to his mind):
Well! . . . . in these matters! . . . . Well, what can you do? . . . .
In this old world, so vain, una si trova . . . .

(seccato che facciano la commedia con lui):
si perde Buoso,
e c'è l'eredità . . . .

LA VECCHIA: (Gli si avventa come una bestia feroce): Sicuro! Ai frati!

GIANNI: Ah! Diseredati?

LA VECCHIA: Diseredati! Si! Diseredati! E perciò ve lo canto:
pigliate la figliola,
levatevi di torno,
io non do mio nipote
ad una senza—dote!

RINUCCIO: O Zia! io l'amo, l'amo.

LA VECCHIA: Non me ne importa un corno!

LAURETTA: Babbo! Babbo! Lo voglio!

GIANNI: Figliola, un po' d'orgoglio!

GIANNI: (erompe): Brava la vecchia; Brava! Pel la dote sacrifichi mia figlia e tuo nipote!
Vecchia taccagna!

LAURETTA: (tendendosi il braccio libero): Rinuccio, non lasciarmi!
Ah! tu me l'hai giurato sotto la luna a Fiesole quando tu m'hai baciato!

RINUCCIO: Lauretta mia, ricordati!
tu m'hai giurato amore!
E quella sera Fiesole sembrava tutto un fiore!
(a due)

LAURETTA, RINUCCIO: Addio, speranza bella, s'è spento ogni tuo raggio;
non ci potrem sposare
per il Calendimaggio!

LAURETTA: (Gli sfugge e corre a Rino.) Babbo, lo voglio!
Babbo, lo voglio!
Amore!

RINUCCIO: (Le sfugge e corre a Lauretta.) O Zia, la voglio!
O Zia, la voglio!
Amore!

GIANNI: (tirando Lauretta verso la porta) Vecchia taccagna!
Stillina!
Spilorcia! Gretta!
Vieni, Lauretta,
rasciuga gli occhi,
sarebbe un parentado
di pitocchi!
Ah! vieni, vieni!
(Riprende la figlia.)
Un po' d'orgoglio,
un po' d'orgoglio!
Via, via di qua!

If you lose on one side
You still may gain . . . .
(Annoyed at seeing them playing their part in front of him):
You lose your Buoso
And find his hoarded money!

THE OLD WOMAN: (rushing towards him like a wild beast): All for the convent!

GIANNI: Oh, what a portent!

THE OLD WOMAN: It is a portent, yes it is a portent!
That's why I tell you now;
Go home with your fair daughter
Go away, go away from here
For I won't let my nephew
Get married to a pauper!

RINUCCIO: My aunt I am in love!

THE OLD WOMAN: Well, I don't give a rap!

LAURETTA: Father, father, I love him!

GIANNI: More pride, my little dove!

GIANNI: (bursting with indigation): So for the greed that stills your vile old heart!
Your nephew from my girl would tear apart!
You mean old wretch!

LAURETTA: (each stretching towards the other the arm they have free): Rinuccio, do not leave me!
Remember our great bliss!
When one bright night in Fiesole
I did consent to a kiss!

RINUCCIO: Lauretta, dear, remember!
You promised to be true
And that bright night, all Fiesole
Was singing, dear, of you!
(Together:)

LAURETTA, RINUCCIO: Farewell, oh fondest hope,
Extinguished is thy ray;
We can't be joined together
Upon the first of May!

LAURETTA: (escapes and rushes to him) Papa, I want him!
Papa, I want him!
Sweetheart!

RINUCCIO: (escapes and rushes to Lauretta) My aunt, I want her!
My aunt, I want her!
Sweetheart!

GIANNI: (pulling his daughter towards the door) Miserly woman!
Mean, avaricious!
You greedy wench!
Come, come, Lauretta
Dry quick your dearest eyes,
This match would surely cost you
Far more sighs!
Come on, child, come!
(taking back his daughter)
More pride, my dove!
More pride, my dove!
Come, I say, we must go!

ZITA: (tirando Rino a destra)
Anche m'insulta!
Senza la dote
non do il nipote,
non do il nipote!
Rinuccio, vieni,
lasciali andare,
ah! sarebbe un volerti
rovinare!
Ma vieni, vieni! . . . .
(Riprende Rinuccio.)
Ed io non voglio,
ed io non voglio!
Via, via di qua!
(I parenti restano neutrali e si limitano ad esclamare di tanto in tanto.)

I PARENTI: —Anche le dispute fra innamorati!
—Proprio il momento! —Pensate al testamento!
(Gianni, quasi sulla porta, è per portar via Lauretta.)

RINUCCIO: (liberandosi): Signor Giovanni!
Rimanete un momento!
(alla Vecchia):
Invece di sbraitare,
dategli il testamento!
(a Gianni):
Cercate di salvarci!
A voi non può mancare un'idea portentosa, una trovata, un rimedio, un ripiego, un espediente! . . . .

GIANNI: (accennando ai parenti): A pro di quella gente? Niente! Niente!

LAURETTA: (Gli si inginocchia davanti): O mio babbino, caro, mi piace, è bello bello, vo'andare in Porta Rossa
a comperar l'anello!
Sì, sì, ci voglio andare!
E se l'amassi indarno, andrei sul Ponte Vecchio
ma per buttarmi in Arno!
Mi struggo e mi tormento, oh! Dio vorrei morir!
(Piange; una pausa.)

GIANNI: (come chi è costretto ad accondiscendere.) Datemi il testamento!
(Rinuccio glielo dà. Gianni legge e cammina. I parenti lo seguono con gli occhi poi inconsciamente finiscono per andargli dietro come i pulcini alla chioccia, tranne Simone che siede sulla cassapanca a destra, e, incredulo, scrolla il capo. Ansia.)

GIANNI: Niente da fare!
(I parenti lasciano Schicchi e si avviano verso il fondo della scana.)

ZITA: (pulling Rinuccio to the right) Stop your cheap insults!
Without a dowry
I will say no!
I will say no!
Rinuccio, come
Stop all that nonsense!
I'm sure you cannot love her!
Nonsense! Nonsense!
Come, Rino, come!
(taking back Rinuccio)
You're not in love!
You're not in love!
Come, I say, we must go!
(The relatives remain neutral and content themselves with a few exclamations now and then.)

THE RELATIVES: —Who cares to listen to quarrels of lovers!
—Oh! what a pill!—Let's see about the will!
(Gianni, almost at the door, moves to drag Laurette away.)

RINUCCIO: (freeing his hand from his aunt's grasp): Master Giovanni!
Will you please wait a moment?
(To the old woman):
Instead of losing your temper
Show him that testament!
(To Gianni):
Do see if you can help us!
I know you will invent
Some device, a new scheme, a trap, a plot
A way out of this mess: I know you can!

GIANNI: (pointing to the relatives): To help that crowd? No sir, I'm not the man!

LAURETTA: (kneeling in front of him): Oh, my beloved Daddy
He's handsome as a King
I'm going to Porta Rossa
To buy our wedding-ring!
Yes, father, I do mean it!
And if you still say no
I swear from Ponte Vecchio
I'll throw myself below!
What shivers! What a chill!
Poor me, I want to die!
(She weeps.—A pause.)

GIANNI: (in the tone of a man who feels constrained to condescend): Give me Donati's will!
(Rinuccio hands it to him. Gianni reads it as he paces up and down the room. The relatives first follow him with their eyes, then, unconsciously, start walking in his footsteps, like chicks after a hen, with the exception of Simone who remains seated on the bench to the right and shakes his head doubtfully. Great anxiety prevails.)

GIANNI: It can't be done!
(The relatives leave Schicchi and move up stage.)

RINUCCIO, LAURETTA: Addio, speranza bella,
s'è spento ogni tuo raggio,
non ci potrem sposare
per il Calendimaggio!

GIANNI: (Riprende a leggere e a camminare): Niente da fare!
(I parenti si lasciano cadere sulle sedie.)

RINUCCIO, LAURETTA: Addio, speranza bella,
s'è spento ogni tuo raggio . . . .

GIANNI: (tonante): Però!
(Tutti i parenti si alzano di scatto e corrono a Gianni.)

RINUCCIO, LAURETTA: (Forse ci sposeremo per il Calendimaggio!)

GIANNI: (Si ferma nel mezzo della scena col viso aggrottato come perseguendo un suo pensiero gesticola parcamente guardando avanti a sè. Tutti sono intorno a lui; ora, anche Simone; più bassi di lui, con i visi voltati verso il suo viso come uccellini che aspettino l'imbeccata. Gianni a poco a poco si rischiara, sorride, guarda tutta quella gente . . . . alto, dominante; troneggiante.)

TUTTI: (con un filo di voce): Ebbene?

GIANNI: (infantiel): Laurettina!
Vai là sul terrazzino,
port i minuzzolini all'uccellino.
(e perchè Rinuccio la vorrebbe seguire, egli la ferma):
Sola.—
(Lauretta va sul terrazzino a sinistra, Gianni la segue con gli occhi; appena la figlia è fuori di scena egli si volge al gruppo dei parenti sempre intorno a lui):
Nessuno sa
che Buoso ha reso il fiato? . . . .

TUTTI: Nessuno!

GIANNI: Bene! Ancora
Nessun deve saperlo!

TUTTI: Nessuno lo saprà!

GIANNI: (assalito da un dubbio): Ma i servi?

LA VECCHIA: (con intenzione): Dopo l'aggravamento . . . .
in camera . . . ., nessuno!

GIANNI: (a Marco e Gherardo; tranquillizzato, deciso): Voi due partate il morto e i candelabri (accenna al sottoscala):
là dentro nella stanza di rimpetto!
(a Ciesca e Nella): Donne! Rifate il letto!

LE DONNE: Ma . . . .

RINUCCIO AND LAURETTA:
Farewell, oh fondest hope
Extinguished is your ray
We cannot be united
Upon the first of May!

GIANNI: It can't be done!
(At this, all the relatives drop again upon their chairs with a thud.)

RINUCCIO AND LAURETTA:
Farewell, oh fondest hope,
Extinguished is your ray . . . .

GIANNI: (in a thundering voice): And yet! . . . .
(All the relatives jump to their feet and rush towards Gianni.)

RINUCCIO AND LAURETTA: Perhaps we will be wedded
Upon the first of May!

GIANNI: (stops in the center of stage a frown upon his face, as if in hot pursuit of an idea. He makes quiet gestures, looking straight ahead. All the relatives crowd around him, Simone included. As Gianni towers above them, the relatives keep their faces upturned to him, like chicks awaiting their food. Slowly, Gianni's face becomes severe, he smiles and looks down at the crowd around him . . . . He stands tall, dominating, imposing.)

ALL: (almost in a whisper): Do tell us!

GIANNI: (in a child-like voice): Laurettina!
Go out, my darling daughter
And bring the little birdie bread and water!
(As Rinuccio moves to follow her, Gianni stops him):
Alone.—
(Lauretta goes out onto the terrace on the left. Gianni follows her with his eyes, and, as soon as the girl has disappeared, he turns to the group of relatives crowding around him):
Who knows outside
That he gave up his ghost?

ALL: No one!

GIANNI: Good! Again I say
No one is to be told!

ALL: No one will know a thing.

GIANNI: (seized by a doubt): And the servants?

THE OLD WOMAN: (in a meaning tone): Since he became unconscious
No one has entered here!

GIANNI: (to Marco and Gherardo, his mind now at ease and fully made up): You two will bring the dead man with those candles.
(Pointing to the stairs):
In yonder room overlooking Buoso's shed!
(to Ciesca and Nella):
And you will make the bed!

THE WOMEN: But . . . .

GIANNI: Zittè. Obbedite!
(Marco e Gherardo scompaiono fra le sarge del letto e ricompaiono con un fardello rosso che portano a destra ne la stanza sotto la scala, Simone, Betto e Rinuccio portano via i candelabri. Ciesca e Nella ravviano il letto.)
(Si bussa alla porta.)

GIANNI: (contrariatissimo, con voce soffocata): Chi può essere?
Ah! . . . .

LA VECCHIA: (a bassa voce):
Maestro Spinelloccio
il dottore! . . . .

GIANNI: Guardate che non passi!
Ditegli qualche cosa . . . .
che Buoso è migliorato . . . . che riposa . . . .
(Betto va a chiudere le impannate e rende semioscura la stanza. Tutti si affollano intorno alla porta e la schiudono appena.)

MAESTRO SPINELLOCCIO: (accento bolognese): L'è permesso? . . . .

TUTTI: Buon giorno,
Maestro Spinelloccio!
Va meglio!
—Meglio!
—Meglio! . . . .

MAESTRO SPINELLOCCIO: Ha avuto il benefissio? . . . .

TUTTI: Altro che! Altro che! . . . .

MAESTRO SPINELLOCCIO: A che potensa
l'e arrivata la sciensa!
Be', vediamo, vediamo . . . .
(per entrare.)

TUTTI: (fermandolo): No! riposa!

MAESTRO SPINELLOCCIO: Ma io . . . .

GIANNI: (seminascosto fra le sarge del letto, contraffacendo la voce di Buoso, tremolante): No!
No! Maestro Spinelloccio! . . . .
(Alla voce del morto i parenti danno un traballone, poi si accorgono che è Gianni che contraffa la voce di Buoso. Ma nel traballone a Betto è scivolato il piatto, d'argento e gli è caduto.)

MAESTRO SPINELLOCCIO: Oh!
Messer Buoso!

GIANNI: Ho tanta
voglia di riposare . . . .
potreste ripassare questa sera? . . . .
Son quasi addormentato . . . .

MAESTRO SPINELLOCCIO: Si,
Messer Buoso! . . . .
Ma va meglio? . . . .

GIANNI: Da morto, son rinato!

GIANNI: Hush! Do what I say!
(Marco and Gherardo disappear under the bed-curtains and come out again carrying a long red bundle which they bring to the right to the room under the stairs. Simone, Betto and Rinuccio carry the candelabra away. Ciesca and Nella re-arrange the bed. There is a knock at the door.)

GIANNI: (very much put out, in a stifled voice): What's that? . . . .
Who might it be?

THE OLD WOMAN: (in a whisper): It is Master Spinelloccio
The physician! . . . .

GIANNI: Don't let him get in here!
Give him some excuse . . . .
Tell him Buoso's now taking a quiet rest . . . .
(Betto goes to the window, and by closing the shutter makes the room almost dark. All crowd around the door and hold it barely ajar.)

MASTER SPINELLOCCIO: (with a foreign accent): May I come in?

ALL: Good morning,
Good Master Spinelloccio!
He's better!
—Better!
—Better!

MASTER SPINELLOCCIO: Did he get full relief? . . . .

ALL: You bet he did! You bet! . . . .

MASTER SPINELLOCCIO: What wondrous height
Has now reached Science's light!
Well, let's see him, let's see him!
(He moves to enter.)

ALL: (stopping him): No! he's sleeping!

MASTER SPINELLOCCIO: (insisting): But I . . . .

GIANNI: (half hidden behind the bed-curtains and imitating Buoso's quavering voice): No! no! no!
Master Spinelloccio!
(At the sound of the dead man's voice, all the relatives start with fright, but they soon realize it is Gianni imitating Buoso's voice. However, in his fright, Betto has let the silver tray fall to the floor.)

MASTER SPINELLOCCIO: Oh!
Master Buoso!

GIANNI: Doctor,
I feel so tired and sleepy . . . .
Couldn't you return to see me some time tonight?
Yes, as late as you can . . . .

MASTER SPINELLOCCIO: So, Master Buoso . . . .
You feel better?

GIANNI: I feel like a new man!
Until tonight!

MAESTRO SPINELLOCCIO: A stasera!
(al parenti)
Anche alla voce sento: è migliorato!
Eh! a me non è mai morto un ammalato!
Non ho delle pretese, il merito l'è tutto
della scuola bolognese!
A questra sefa.
—Schicchi!!!!
—Schicchi!!!!
—Schicchi!!!!
—Schicchi!!!!

LA VECCHIA: (a Rinuccio): Va corri dal notaio!
(Via Rinuccio):

I PARENTI: (Si abbracciano, si baciano con grande effusione):
—Caro Gherardo!
—O Marco!
—O Ciesca!
—O Nella!
—Zita, Zita!
—Simone!

GIANNI: (O quale commozione!)

TUTTI: Oh! giorno d'allegrezza!
La burla ai frati è bella!
Ah! felici e contenti!
Com'è bello l'amore fra i parenti!

SIMONE: O Gianni, ora pensiamo un po' alla divisione:
i fiorini in contanti . . . .

TUTTI: In parti eguali!
(Gianni dice sempre di si con la testa.)

SIMONE: A me i poderi di Fucecchio.

LA VECCHIA: A me quelli di Figline.

BETTO: A me quelli di Prato.

GHERARDO: A noi le terre d'Empoli.

MARCO: A noi quelle di Quintole.

LA VECCHIA: Resterebbero ancora:
la mula, questa casa,
e i mulini di Signa!

MARCO: Son le cose migliori.
(Pausa; i parenti cominciano a guardarsi in cagnesco.)

SIMONE: (falsamente ingenuo):
Ah! capisco! capisco!
perchè sono il più vecchio
e sono stato potestà a Fucecchio, volete darli a me! Io vi ringrazio!

LA VECCHIA: No, no, no, no! Un momento!
Se tu se' vecchio, peggio per te!

MASTER SPINELLOCCIO: Until tonight
(To the relatives):
Even his voice now seems clearer and high!
It is a fact, my patients never die!
Praise I am not begging here
All credit must be given
To our school which has no peer!
Until tonight!
—Schicchi!!!!
—Schicchi!!!!
—Schicchi!!!!
—Schicchi!!!!
-Schicchi!!!!

THE OLD WOMAN: (to Rinuccio): You run and fetch the notary!
(Exit Rinuccio in haste.)

THE RELATIVES: (kissing and embracing each other with great effusion):
—Dearest Gherardo!
—Oh Marco!
—Oh Ciesca!
—Oh Nella
—Zita! Zita!
—Simone!

GIANNI: How much they love each other!

ALL: Oh! happiest of our born days!
The joke is on the convent!
We couldn't be more content!
How beautiful is love among relations!

SIMONE: Now Gianni, let us settle
The question of division:
All cash will go in hand . . . .

ALL: In equal shares!
(Gianni keeps on nodding assent.)

SIMONE: To me the farmlands
Of Fucecchio.

THE OLD WOMAN: For me those of Figline.

BETTO: For me the farm of Prato.

GHERARDO: For us the lands of Empoli.

MARCO: For us all those of Quintole.

THE OLD WOMAN: That would leave undivided:
The mule, this ancient palace
And the saw mills of Signa!

MARCO: The best of the whole lot!
(A pause. The relatives begin to eye each other askance.)

SIMONE: (simulating ignorance): Oh! I see now! I see now!
Being the oldest here
And having been town-sheriff for a year
You say they'll be for me! Thank you! Thank you!

THE OLD WOMAN: No, no, no, wait a moment!
If you are old, so much worse for you!

MARCO E GLI ALTRI: Sentilo, sentilo il potestà!
Vorrebbe il meglio dell'eredità!

GIANNI: (da una parte) (Quanto dura l'amore tra' parenti!
(ride.)

TUTTI: La casa la mula i mulini di Signa
La mula i mulini di Signa la casa
La mula la casa i mulini di Signa
Di Signa i mulini la mula la casa
La mula i mulini di Signa la casa toccano a me.
toccano a noi.
toccano a noi.
toccano a me.
La casa . . .
di Signa . . . .
la mula . . . .
i mulini . . . .
(Si odono i rintocchi di una campana che suona a morto. Tutti cessano di gridare ed esclamano):
L'hanno saputo!
(ascoltando la campana, con voce soffocata)?
Hanno saputo che Buoso è crepato!
(Gherardo corre alla porta e scende le scale a precipizio.)

GIANNI: Tutto crollato!

LAURETTA: (affacciandosi da sinistra): Babbo, si può sapere? . . . .
L'uccellino non vuole più minuzzoli . . . .

GIANNI: (nervoso): Ora dagli da bere!
(Lauretta rientra.)

GHERARDO: (Risale affannoso, non può parlare. Fa segno di no): . . . È preso un accidente al moro battezzato del signor capitano!

TUTTI: (allegramente): Requiescat in pace!

SIMONE: (con autorita): Per la casa, la mula ed i mulini propongo di rimetterci alla giustizia, all'onestà di Schicchi.

TUTTI: Rimettiamoci a Schicchi.

GIANNI: Come volete!
Datemi i panni per vestirmi, presto!
(La Vecchia e Nella prendono dall'armadio e dalla cassapanca, che è in fondo al letto la cappellina, la pezzolina e la camicia.)

MARCO AND OTHERS: With his modesty he gives us a thrill!
He'd claim the fattest share in the new will!

GIANNI: (aside) How lasting is love among relatives.
(he laughs)

ALL: The palace, the mule, the saw mills of Signa
The mule, the saw mills of Signa, the palace
The mule, the palace, the saw mills of Signa
Of Signa the saw mills, the mule, the palace
The mule, the saw mills of Signa, the palace are all for me
are all for us
are all for us
are all for me
The palace . . . .
of Signa . . . .
the mule . . . .
the saw mills . . . .
(The slow and mournful pealing of a bell announces that someone is dead. All stop shouting and exclaim):
How did they know?
(With stifled voices):
How did they learn he'd given up his ghost?
(Gherardo rushes out of the room and rushes down-stairs.)

GIANNI: The game is lost!

LAURETTA: (peeping in from left): Papa, what do you think
Of the bird. He now refuses to eat!

GIANNI: (nervously): Well, give him a drink!
(Lauretta goes out again.)

GHERARDO: (comes again panting and out of breath. He cannot speak, but motions "no" with his head.)
. . . A stroke has just brought down
The moorish major-domo
Of the mayor of the town!

ALL: (gaily): Requiescat in pace!

SIMONE: (with an air of authority): As to the house, the mule and the saw mills
I move to leave that matter
To the high sense of fairness of Gianni Schicchi!

ALL: We leave it all to Schicchi.

GIANNI: Just as you say!
Give me the clothes! I must get ready quick!
(The old woman and Nella take from the wardrobe and the chest, on the other side of the bed, a nightcap, a lace handkerchief and a night-gown.)

LA VECCHIA: Ecco la cappellina!
(a bassa voce a Schicchi):
(Se mi lasci la mula questa casa e i mulini
di Signa,
ti do trenta fiorini!)

SCHICCHI: (Sta bene).
(Via la Vecchia verso l'armadio, fregandosi le mani.)

SIMONE: (avvicinandosi con fare distratto a Schicchi; a bassa voce): (Se lasci a me la casa la mula e i mulini
di Signa,
ti do cento fiorini!)

GIANNI: (Sta bene!)

BETTO: (furtivo, a Schicchi): (Gianni, se tu mi lasci questa casa la mula ed i mulini di Signa, ti fo gonfio di quattrini!)
(Nella parla a parte con Gherardo.)

GIANNI: (Sta bene!)
(La Ciesca parla a parte con Marco.)

NELLA: (lasciando Gherardo che ora la sta a osservare, mentre essa parla a Gianni): Ecco la pezzolina!
(Se lasci a noi la mula i mulini di Signa e questa casa, a furia di fiorini ti s'intasa!)

GIANNI: (Sta bene!)
(Nella va da Gherardo, gli parla all'orecchio e tutti e due si fregano le mani.)

LA CIESCA: Ed ecco la camicia!
(Se ci lasci la mula i mulini di Signa e questra casa, per te mille fiorini!)

GIANNI: (Sta bene!)
(La Ciesca va da Marco, gli parla all'orecchio; si fregano le mani. —Tutti si fregano le mani.)
(Si infila la camicia. Quindi con lo specchio in mano si accomoda la pezzolina e la cappellina cambiando l'espressione del viso come per trovare l'atteggiamento giusto. Simone è alla finestra per vedere se arriva il notaio. Gherardo sbarazza il tavolo a cui dovrà sedere il notaio. Marco e Betto tirano le sarge del letto e ravviano la stanza.)

ZITA—NELLA—CIESCA: (Guardano Gianni comicamente, quindi):

NELLA: Spogliati, bambolino, chè ti mettiamo a letto,
e non aver dispetto
se cambi il camicino!
Si spiuma il canarino,

THE OLD WOMAN: Here is the night cap for you!
(aside to Schicchi):
If you leave me the mule
The palace and the mills
Of Signa
You will get thirty florins!

SCHICCHI: You'll get them!
(The old woman moves towards the wardrobe rubbing her hands.)

SIMONE: (drawing near Gianni, with an air of nonchalance): If you leave me this house
The mule and the saw mills
Of Signa
You'll get a hundred florins!

GIANNI: (You'll get them!)

BETTO: (to Schicchi, afraid of being noticed): Gianni, if you leave me
This palace with the mule and all the saw mills
I'll fill with gold your pocket until it spills!
(Meanwhile, Nella is talking aside to Gherardo.)

GIANNI: You'll get them!
(Ciesca is now talking aside to Marco.)

NELLA: (moving away from Gherardo who follows her with his eyes while she speaks to Schicchi): Here is a bit of old lace!
If you leave us the mule
We'll make you as rich and fat as the old miller!
All the saw mills of Signa and this villa

GIANNI: You'll get them!
(Nella returns near Gherardo and whispers something in his ear. All are rubbing their hands gleefully.)

CIESCA: And here is the night-gown!
If you leave us the mule
The saw mills of Signa and this villa
For you there is a thousand florins!

GIANNI: Good! You'll have them.
(Ciesca goes near to Marco, whispers in his ear and they rub their hands gleefully, as do all the others.)
(Gianni puts on the night-gown. Then, mirror in hand, he arranges the night-cap and chin band, his face changing expression as if to find the right adjustment. Simone is at the window watching for the notary. Gherardo clears up the table for the notary to write on. Marco and Betto pull the bed-curtains and put the room in order.)

ZITA—NELLA—CIESCA: (first look at Gianni comically, then):

NELLA: Undress, dear little tot
For it is now bed-time
Don't think it is a crime
To change and wash a lot
All birds do change their plumage la volpe cambia pelo, il ragno ragnatelo,

il cane cambia cuccia,
la serpe cambia buccia . . . .

LA CIESCA: Fa' presto, bambolino, chè devi andare a letto, se va bene il giuochetto
ti diamo un confortino!
L'uovo divien pulcino, il fior diventa frutto
e i frati mangian tutto,
ma il frate impoverisce,
la Ciesca s'arricchisce . . . .

LA VECCHIA: È bello! Portentoso!
chi vuoi che non s'inganni?
è Gianni che fa Buoso . . . .
o Buoso che fa Gianni?
Un testamento è odioso?
Un camicion maestoso,
il viso dormiglioso,
il naso poderoso,
l'accento lamentoso . . . .
e il buon Gianni cambia panni, cambia viso,
muso e naso,
cambia accento e testamento per poterci servir! . . . .

GIANNI: Vi servirò a dovere! . . . .
Contenti vi farò!

LE DONNE: O Gianni, Schicchi, nostro salvator!
È preciso?

GLI UOMINI: —Perfetto!

TUTTI: —A letto! A letto!
(Spingono Gianni verso il letto, ma egli il ferma con un gesto quasi solenne.)

GIANNI: Prima un avvertimento!
O messeri, giudizio!
Voi lo sapete il bando?
"Per chi sostituisce se stesso in luogo d'altri in testamenti e lasciti, per lui e per i complici c'è il taglio della mano e poi l'esilio!"
Ricordàtelo bene! Se fossimo scoperti:
la vedete Firenze?
(accennando la torre di Arnolfo che appare dalla finestra aperta):
Addio Firenze, addio cielo divino,
ti saluto con questo moncherino,
e vo' randagio come un Ghibellino! . . . .

TUTTI: (soggiogati, impauriti, ripetono): Addio Firenze, addio, cielo divino,
ti saluto con questo moncherino
e vo' randagio come un Ghibellino! . . . .
(Si bussa. Gianni schizza a letto; i parenti rendono la stanza semioscura; mettono una candela sul tavolo dove il notaio deve scrivere; buttano un mucchio di roba sul letto; aprono.)

RINUCCIO: Ecco il notaro ed ecco i testimoni.

MESSER AMANTIO, PINELLINO, GUCCIO

I TRE: (mestamente): Messer Buoso, buon giorno!

GIANNI: Oh! siete qui?
Grazie, messer Amantio!
O pinellino calzolaio, grazie!
Grazie, Guccio tintore, troppo buoni di venirmi a servir da testimoni!

PINELLINO: (commosso, fra sè è sè): Povero Buoso! . . . .
il l'ho sempre calzato . . . .
verderlo in quello stato . . . .
vien da piangere!

GIANNI: Il testamento avrei voluto scriverlo con la scrittura mia, me lo impedisce la paralisia . . . .
perciò volli un notaio
solempne et leale . . . .
(In questo tempo il notaio ha preso dalla sua cassetta le pergamene, i bolli, ecc., e mette tutto sul tavolo.)

MESSER AMANTIO: O messer Buoso, grazie!
Dunque tu soffri di paralisia?
(Gianni allunga in alto le mani agitandole tremolanti. Gesto di compassione di tutti, —voci: Povero Buoso!)
Oh! poveretto! basta! I testi videro, testes viderunt!
Possiamo incominciare . . . .
Ma . . . . i parenti? . . . .

GIANNI: Che restina presenti!

MESSER AMANTIO: Dunque incomincio:
In Dei nomini, anno D. N. J. C. ab eius salutifera incarnatione millesimo, ducentesimo nonagesimo nono, die prima septembris, indictione undecima, ego notaro Amantio di Nicolao, civis Florentiae, per voluntatem Buosi Donati scribo hunc testamentum

GIANNI: (con intenzione, scandendo ogni parola): Annullans, revocans et irritans omne aliud testamentum!

I PARENTI: —Che previdenza!
—Che previdenza!

The foxes shed their fur,
The spider spins his web,
The dog seeks a new layer
And snakes cast their skin

CIESCA: Undress, dear little mite
For it is now bed-time
If this game comes out right
You'll get a gingerbread?
An egg becomes a chick
For flowers become fruit
Monks eat and grow fat
But monks will grow poor
While Ciesca rich for sure!

THE OLD WOMAN: It is wondrous! Portentous!
One must fall in this trap!
For who could tell that Buoso
Is not this other chap?
You hate a fellow's will,
A long white gown with frill
A face hard like a mill
A nose just like a bill
A voice so weak and still. .
. . . . Gianni express
Change dress
Changes face
Nose and mug
Changes voice
Will and choice
To aid us in this pass!

GIANNI: I'll fix you up all right
And happy you will be!

THE WOMEN: O Gianni Schicchi, our saviour you are!
Does he look the part?

THE MEN: Great!

ALL: To bed, it's late!
(They push Gianni towards the bed, but he stops them with a solemn gesture.)

GIANNI: First, you must heed my warning!
My dear friends, do be careful!
And keep in mind this law!
"Whoever substitutes
Himself in place of others
To falsify a will
Will lose, with his accomplices,
One hand, and all will have to leave the State."
So do keep well in mind! In case we are found out
Do you see there our Florence?
(pointing to Arnolfo's tower which is plainly visible through the open window):
Florence, farewell, farewell, city of charm!
I wave good-bye with this poor, handless arm!
My fate is now to beg from farm to farm!

ALL: Florence, farewell, farewell, city of charm!
I wave good-bye with this poor, handless arm!
My fate is now to beg from farm to farm!
(A knock is heard at the door. Gianni jumps into the bed, the relatives close the shutters so as to darken the room and place a candle on the table at which the notary is to sit to write out the will. They throw all sorts of things in a heap on the bed and then open the door.)

RINUCCIO: Here is the notary and here the witnesses!

Masters Amantio, Pinellino, Guccio

THE THREE: (sadly): Master Buoso, good day!

GIANNI: Oh! are you here?
Thank you, Master Amantio!
O Pinellino, the shoemaker, thank you!
Thank you, Guccio, the dyer, you are too good
To come and act as witnesses for me!

PINELLINO: (very much moved, aside): Poor Master Buoso! . . . .
I have served him for years
And the state he appears
To be in, makes me cry!

GIANNI: It was my firm intention to write out
My own will with my hand
Paralysis forbids me! . . . . understand . . . .
Therefore I want a notary.
Solempne et leale . . . .
(In the meantime the notary has taken from his box parchments, seals, etc., disposing them all on the table.)

MASTER AMANTIO: Thank you, good Master Buoso!
Are you sure it's paralysis that ails you?
(Gianni raises his trembling hands from under the covers. A movement of general pity. Several are heard to mutter: "Poor Buoso.")
Oh! that will do! both witnesses have seen!
"Testes viderunt!"
Let's begin! Do you want these folks to hear?

GIANNI: Yes, yes, they can stay here!

MASTER AMANTIO: Then I'll commence!
In Dei nomini, anno D. N. J. C., al eius salutifera incarnatione millesimo, ducentesimo monagesimo nono, die prima septembris indictione undecima, ego notaro Amantio di Nicolao, civis Florentiae, per voluntatem Buosi Donati scribe hunc testamentum . . . .

GIANNI: (with intention and emphasizing each word): Annullans, revocans Et irritans aliud testamentum!

THE RELATIVES: Wonderful foresight!
—Wonderful foresight!

MESSER AMANTIO: Un preambolo: dimmi, i funerali, (il più tardi possibile) il vuoi ricchi? Fastosi? Dispendosi? . . . .

GIANNI: No, no, pochi quattrini!
Non si spendano più di due fiorini!

I PARENTI: —Oh! che modestia!
Oh! che modestia!
—Povero zio! che animo!
—che cuore! . . . .
—Gli torna a onore!

GIANNI: Lascio ai frati minori e all'opera di Santa Reparata . . . . .
(I parenti, leggermente turbati, si alzano lentamente): . . . . cinque lire!

I PARENTI: (tranquillizzati): —Bravo! —Bravo!—
—Bisogna sempre pensare alla beneficenza!

MESSER AMANTIO: Non ti sembra un po' poco? . . . .

GIANNI: Chi crepa e lascia molto alle congreghe e ai frati fa dire a chi rimane:
eran quattrin rubati!

I PARENTI: —Che massime!
—Che mente!
—che saggezza!

MESSER AMANTIO: Che lucidezza!

GIANNI: I fiorini in contanti il lascio in parti eguali fra i parenti.

I PARENTI: —Oh! Grazie, zio!
—Grazie! Grazie, cugino!

GIANNI: Lascio a Simone i beni di Fucecchio.

SIMONE: Grazie!

GIANNI: Alla Zita i poderi di Figline.

LA VECCHIA: Grazie!

GIANNI: A Betto i campi a Prato.

BETTO: Grazie, cognato!

GIANNI: A Nella ed a Gherardo i beni d'Empoli.

NELLA E GHERARDO: Grazie, grazie!

GIANNI: All Ciesca ed a Marco i beni a Quintole!

LA CIESCA E MARCO: Grazie!

TUTTI: (fra i denti): (Ora siamo alla mula, alla casa e a' mulini.)

GIANNI: Lascio la mula mia, quella che costa 300 fiorini, ch'è la migliore mula di Toscana . . . .

MASTER AMANTIO: First of all, do tell me: about your funeral
(I hope as late as possible)
Must it be grand? Expensive? Impressive?

GIANNI: I haven't that kind of pride!
You may spend two florins at the most

THE RELATIVES: Oh! what modesty!
Oh! what modesty!
Wonderful man! What soul!
—Generous heart!
He's good and smart!

GIANNI: I leave to the monastery
And the order of Santa Reparata . . . .
(The relatives, somewhat worried, slowly get up):
Say . . . . five liras! . . . .

THE RELATIVES: (now easy in their minds): Splendid! Splendid!
—It is fair
To keep in mind our duty towards the poor!

MASTER AMANTIO: Methinks it's a small sum!

GIANNI: Who leaves a lot of money
For poverty's relief
Will make the people say
"He must have been a thief!"

THE RELATIVES: What principles!
—What mind!
—What great wisdom!

MASTER AMANTIO: Wonderful keenness!

GIANNI: All bonds and cash in hand
I leave in equal shares to my relations!

THE RELATIVES: Oh! Thank you, uncle!
—Thank you! Thank you, dear cousin!

GIANNI: To Simone the farm lands of Fucecchio.

SIMONE: Thank you!

GIANNI: And to Zita my corn fields of Figline!

THE OLD WOMAN: Thank you!

GIANNI: To Betto, Prato's meadows.

BETTO: Thank you! Thank you!

GIANNI: To Nella and to Gherardo, Empoli's lands!

NELLA and GHERARDO: Thank you! Thank you!

GIANNI: To Ciesca and to Marco all in Quintole.

CIESCA AND MARCO: Thank you!

ALL: (with clenched teeth): Now we get to the mule,
To the house and to the saw mills.

GIANNI: I leave my own young mule,
For which I paid three hundred florins al mio devoto amico . . . . Gianni Schicchi.

TUTTI I PARENTI: (scattando): Come? Come? —Com'è? . . . .

NOTAIO: Mulam relinquit eius amico devoto Joanni Schichi.

TUTTI: Ma . . . .

SIMONE: Cosa vuoi che gl'importi
a Gianni Schicchi
di quella mula? . . . .

GIANNI: Tienti bono, Simone!
Lo so io quel che vuole Gianni Schicchi!
Lascio la casa di Firenze al mio caro devoto affezionato amico
Gianni Schicchi!

I PARENTI: (erompono) —Ah questo no!
—Un accidente
a Gianni Schicchi!
—A quel furfante!
—Ci ribelliamo!
—Ci rebelliamo!
—Sì, sì, piuttosto . . . .
—
Ci . . . ri . . . be . . . Ah! Ah! Ah! Ah! . . . .

GIANNI: Addio, Firenze . . . .
Addio, cielo divino . . . .
Io ti saluto . . . .
(A questa vocina si calmano fremendo.)

NOTAIO: Non si disturbi del testatore la volontà!

GIANNI: Messer Amantio, io lascio a chi mi pare!
Ho in mente un testamento e sarà quello, se gridano sto calmo . . . . e canterello! . . . .

GUCCIO — PINELLINO: Oh! Che uomo! Che uomo!

GIANNI: (continuando a testare): E i mulini di Signa . . . .

I PARENTI: I mulini di Signa? . . . .

GIANNI: I mulini di Signa (addio, Firenze) li lascio al caro (addio, cielo divino) affezionato amico . . . . Gianni Schicchi!
(Ti saluto con questo moncherino! . . . .)
Ecco fatto!
(I test ed il notaio sono un po' sorpresi):
Zita, di vostra borsa date 100 fiorini al buon notaio!
e 20 ai testimoni!

And which is the best mule of Tuscany . . . .
To my devoted friend . . . . Gianni Schicchi.

THE RELATIVES: (all jumping up at once): What's that? What's that?—What's that?

THE NOTARY: Mulan relinquit eius amico devoto Joanni Schicchi.

ALL: But . . . .

SIMONE: What use do you suppose
Could be that mule
To Gianni Schicchi? . . . .

GIANNI: Do please keep quiet, Simone!
I know what things our Gianni Schicchi likes best!
I leave my house in Florence to my dear
Most affectionte and devoted friend,
Gianni Schicchi!

THE RELATIVES: (in an outburst of rage)—That is too much!
—Not on your life!
—To Gianni Schicchi!
—That cursed rascal!
—We all rebel!
—We all rebel!
—Rather we would . . . .
—
We . . . . all . . . . re . . . .
Ah! . . . .
—Ah! Ah! Ah!

GIANNI: Florence, farewell!
Farewell, city of charm . . . .
I wave good-bye
(At the sound of Gianni's thin, little voice, all relatives calm down, fuming.)

THE NOTARY: Don't you disturb
The final will
Of Master Buoso!

GIANNI: Master Amantio, I leave to whom I choose!
That is my will and such it must remain.
If they yell . . . . I will sing the old refrain! . . . .

GUCCIO AND PINELLINO: What a wonderful man!

GIANNI: (continuing his dictation): And the saw mills of Signa . . . .

THE RELATIVES: Yes, the saw mills of Signa?

GIANNI: And the saw mills of Signa
(farewell, Florence)
Go to my dear . . . . (farewell, city of charm)
And most devoted friend . . . .
Gianni Schicchi!
(I wave good-bye with this poor, handless arm!)..
And that is all!
(The witnesses and the notary seem rather surprised.)
Zita, from your own purse
You'll give one hundred florins to the notary
And twenty to the witnesses!

MESSER AMANTIO — PINELLINO — GUCCIO: (Non sono più sorpresi): O Messer Buoso! Grazie! . . . . (Fanno per avviarsi verso il letto.)	AMANTIO, PINELLINO, GUCCIO: (no longer surprised): O Master Buoso! Thank you! (They move towards the bed.)
GIANNI: (arrestandoli con un gesto della mano tremolante): Niente saluti! Nienti. Andate, andate . . . . Siamo forti!	GIANNI: (stopping them with a wave of his trembling hand): Kind friends! No farewells! Please be going! Let's be brave! . . . .
MESSER AMANTIO — GUCCIO — PINELLINO: (commossi, avviandosi verso la porta): —Ah! che uomo! . . . . —Che uomo! —Che peccato! Che perdita! . . . . —Che perdita! . . . . (ai parenti): Coraggio! (Escono.) (Appena usciti il notaio e i testi, i parenti restano un istante in ascolto fichè i tre si sono allontanati, quindi tutti, tranne Rinuccio che è corso a raggiungere Lauretta, sul terrazzino.)	AMANTIO, GUCCIO, PINELLINO: (very much upset move towards the door): What a wonderful man! . . . . It's a real pity! What a loss! . . . . What a loss! (To the relatives): Take heart, good people! (exeunt.) (As soon as the notary and his witnesses have gone out, the relatives at first remain quiet a moment listening to the vanishing footsteps of the three men. Then, all, with the exception of Rinuccio, who has rushed out to join Lauretta on the terrace.)
I PARENTI: (a voce suffocata da prima, poi urlando ferroci contro Gianni): —Ladro! Ladro! Furfante! —Traditore! Birbante! —Iniquo! Ladro! Ladro! (Si slanciano contro Gianni che, ritto sul letto, si difende come può; gli riducono la camicia in brandelli.)	THE RELATIVES: (with hissing voices at first, then with ferocious yells): Robber! Robber! Vile scoundrel! Traitor! Traitor! Cheap counsel! Imposter! Robber! Robber! (They all rush in a mass towards Gianni, who, standing on the bed, defends himself as best he can. They tear his night-gown to shreds.)
GIANNI: Gente taccagna! Senza la dote non do il nipote! . . . . non do il nipote! . . . . Ora la dote c'è! ora la dote c'è! . . . . (Afferrando il bastone di Buoso, che e a capo del letto, dispensa colpi . . . .) Vi caccio via! È casa mia! È casa mia!	GIANNI: You miserly lot! Without a good dowry I won't consent! I won't consent! There is a dowry now! There is a dowry now! (Grabbing Buoso's stick hanging from a bed post, he wields it around with wonderful effect): Get out, swine! This house is mine! This house is mine!
TUTTI: —Saccheggia! Saccheggia! —Bottino! Bottino! —La roba d'argento! . . . . —Le pezze di tela! . . . . —Saccheggio! Saccheggio! —Bottino! Bottino! —Ah! Ah! Ah! . . . . (I parenti corrono qua e là rincorsi da Gianni. Rubano. Gherardo e Nella salgono a destra e ne tornano carichi con Gherardino carico. Gianni tenta difendere la roba. Tutti, mano a mano che son carichi, si affollano alla porta, scendono le scale— Gianni li rincorre— La scena resta vuota.)	ALL: —Let's rummage! Yes, let's pillage! —Let's grab all we can! —The fine silverware! —Silk, velvets and linen! —Let's rummage! Come, let's pillage! —Let's grab all we can! Ah! ah! ah! (The relatives run around here and there pursued by Gianni. They steal all that comes under their hands. Gherardo and Nella go up stairs and come back laden with loot. Gianni does all he can to prevent the relatives from carrying away too much. All, as they have their arms full crowd around the door and rush downstairs. Gianni runs after them. The stage remains empty.)
RINUCCIO: (Dal fondo apre di dentro le impanute del finestrone; appare Firenze inondata dal sole; i due innamorati restano sul terrazzo): Lauretta, mia Lauretta! Staremo sempre qui! Guarda! Firenze è d'oro! Fiesole e bella!	RINUCCIO: (way up stage, opens the large window. Florence appears, bathed in glorious sunshine. The two lovers remain on the terrace): Lauretta, my dear Lauretta! This house will be our own! Behold our radiant Florence! Fiesole is beautiful!
LAURETTA: Là mi giurasti amore!	LAURETTA: You promised love eternal!
RINUCCIO: Ti chiesi un bacio;	RINUCCIO: I begged a kiss!
LAURETTA: Il primo bacio!	LAURETTA: Yes, my first kiss!
RINUCCIO: Tremante e bianca —Volgesti il viso . . . . (a due):	RINUCCIO: All white and trembling You turned your face . . . . (together):
RINUCCIO, LAURETTA: Firenze da lontano Ci parve il Paradiso! . . . . (Si abbracciano e restauo mel fondo abbracciati.)	RINUCCIO, LAURETTA: And Florence in the valley, Looked like a Paradise! (They embrace and remain upstage clasped in each other's arms.)
GIANNI: (Torna risalendo le scale, carico di roba che butta al suolo): La masnada fuggi! (Di colpo s'arrest—vede i due—si pente di aver fatto rumore—ma i due non si turbano— Gianni sorride—è commosso—vienne alla ribalta e accennando gli innamorati . . . . con la berretta in mano): (Licenziando senza cantare) Ditemi voi, Signori, se i quattrini di Boso potevan finir meglio di cosi! Per questa bizzarria m'han cacciato all'Inferno . . . . e cosi sia; ma, con licenza del gran padre Dante, Se stasera vi siete divertiti . . . . concedetemi voi . . . . (Fa il gesto di applaudire): l'attenuante!— (si inchina graziosamente.)	GIANNI: (returns, laden with bundles which he throws on the floor): That pack of thieves have fled! (Suddenly he stops. Seeing the two lovers, he is sorry for having been noisy, but the young people do not seem to mind. Gianni's face is smiling. Very much moved, he comes to the footlights, cap in hand, and pointing to the lovers.) (Taking leave of the audience, without singing) Tell me, Ladies and Gentlemen, Whether you could imagine A better use for Buoso's hoarded money! For my trick, those good men Have sent my soul to Hades . . . . well, amen! But, giving Dante credit for this plot If a good time has been tonight your lot I hope to learn your verdict is . . . . (Makes motion of applause): . . . not guilty! (He bows gracefully to the audience.)
VELARIO.	CURTAIN

Il Tabarro (1918)

The Cloak

MUSIC BY GIACOMO PUCCINI ■ LIBRETTO BY GIUSEPPE ADAMI

This one-act opera is set to a libretto by Giuseppe Adami from Didier Gold's play La Houppelande. Michele, Giorgetta's husband, gazes at the sunset from the helm of his barge, which is moored in the Seine. An organ-grinder plays a waltz. Michele expresses his sympathy to Giorgetta for Luigi, a young, penniless stevedore. A song-seller's voice is heard from the distance. Luigi, Giorgetta's lover, is tired of his miserable existence and unable to stand his secret love any longer. He tells Michele that he is going to leave his employ as soon as the barge reaches Rouen. While Michele is below, Giorgetta and Luigi sing about their guilty love and their desire for one last hour of bliss. They agree to Giorgetta's usual all-clear signal—the striking of a match. Luigi departs and Michele returns. He reminds her of how, in the days when they were happy together, he would wrap his cloak around her. He knows she no longer loves him and this makes him sad. She is uncomfortable with him and he wonders if she has a lover. He considers three possibilities—Talpa, who is too old; Tinca, who is too drunk; and Luigi, who is leaving. Michele lights his pipe and Luigi, watching from the riverbank, rushes onto the barge. Michele now realizes the truth. He forces a confession from Luigi and strangles him, hiding the dead man under his cloak. Giorgetta, frightened by the noise, approaches Michele. She pretends that she regrets her earlier discomfort with him and asks him to wrap his cloak around her like he used to. Michele opens the cloak, revealing Luigi's dead face.

Quando si apre il velario, Michele—il padrone del barcone—è seduto presso il timone, gli occhi fissi a contemplare il tramonto. La pipa gli pende dalle labbra, spenta.	As the curtain rises, Michele, the skipper, seated close to the tiller, can be seen steadily gazing at the wondrous sunset. His unlighted pipe is hanging from his lips.
Dalla stiva al molo vanno e vengono gli scaricatori trasportando faticosamente i sacchi, e cantando questa loro canzone:	From the hold to the wharf, longshoremen come and go, backs bent under heavy bags, and singing their customary song:
Oh! Issa! oh! Un giro ancor! Se lavoriam senza ardore, si resterà ad ormeggiare, e Margot con altri ne andrà. (Sulla Senna, di tratto in tratto, la sirena d'un rimorchiatore lancia il suo grido lugubre. Qualche cornetta d'automobile lontano.)	Oh! hoist! hoist! oh! Another trip to go! If we labor without zest, We'll remain at anchor forever! And Margot will go With others! (Now and then there comes from the river the whistle of the passing tugs. Automobile horns are heard in the distance.)
Oh! Issa! oh! Un giro ancor! Non ti stancar, battelliere, dopo potrai riposare, e Margot felice sarà! Oh! Issa! oh! Un giro ancor! Ora la stiva è vuotata, chiusa è la lunga giornata, e Margot l'amor ti darà!	Oh! hoist! hoist! oh! Another trip remains! Don't grow weary, sailor boy Leisure and rest will come later And Margot Will be full of glee! Oh! hoist! hoist! oh! Another trip remains! The hold is now empty and clean You can fold your weary arms And Margot will go with you!
(Giorgetta esce dalla cabina senza avvedersi di Michele. Accudisce alle sue faccende; ritira alcuni panni stesi ad asciugare; cava una secchia d'acqua dal fiume e innaffia i suoi fiori; ripulisce la gabbia dei canarini.) Finalmente si accorge che il suo uomo è laggiù, e facendo schermo con la mano agli occhi, tanto è vivo il riflesso del sole che tramonta, lo chiama:)	(Giorgetta emerges from the cabin, not noticing Michele. She takes her wash down from the line. She draws up a bucket of water from the river and waters her flowers; then she cleans the bird cage. She finally sees her husband still seated motionless near the tiller, and, shading her eyes with her hand to protect them from the glare, she calls out):
GIORGETTA: O Michele? . . . . Michele? . . . . Non sei stanco d'abbacinarti al sole che tramonta? Ti sembra un gran spettacolo?	GIORGETTA: O Michele? . . . . Michele? . . . . Are you not tired Of blankly gazing there at that bright sunset? Is it truly a wondrous sight?
MICHELE: Sicuro!	MICHELE: Truly it is!
GIORGETTA: Lo vedo bene: dalla tua pipa il fumo bianco non sbuffa più!	GIORGETTA: Indeed it must be so; I knew it was For your pipe, Michele, now smokes no more!
MICHELE: (accennando agli scaricatori) Han finito laggiù?	MICHELE: (pointing to the stevedores) Are they all through down there?
GIORGETTA: Vuoi che discenda?	GIORGETTA: Shall I go and see?
MICHELE: No. Resta, Andrò io stesso.	MICHELE: No; stay. I will go myself.
GIORGETTA: Han lavorato tanto! . . . . Come avevan promesso, La stiva sarà sgombra, e per domani si potrà caricare. Bisognerebbe, ora, compensare questa loro fatica; un buon bicchiere.	GIORGETTA: The men toiled hard all day! And they fulfilled their promise The hold will sure be emptied, and tomorrow We can take in new cargo. As a fair token of your appreciation For their efforts, I think a glass of wine . . . .
MICHELE: Ma certa. Pensi a tutto, cuore d'oro! Puoi portare da bere.	MICHELE: Of course! You have a heart of gold! Never forgetting anyone! Fetch the wine!
GIORGETTA: Sono alla fine: prenderanno forza.	GIORGETTA: They're almost through. A drink will give them courage.

MICHELE: Il mio vinello smorza la sete, e li ristora.
E a me, non hai pensato?

GIORGETTA: A te? . . . . Che cosa?

MICHELE: (cingendola con un braccio) Al vino ho rinunciato, ma, se la pipa è spenta,
mon è spento il mio ardore . . . .
Un tuo bacio, o mio amore . . . .
(La bacia; essa si scansa voltando il viso. Michele un po' contrariato s'avvia, verso la stiva e discende.)

LUIGI: (passando dallo scalo al battello) Si soffoca, padrona!

GIORGETTA: Lo pensavo.
Ma ho io quel che ci vuole.
Sentirete che vino!
(Si avvia verso la cabina, dopo aver lanciata un'occhiata espressiva a Luigi.)

TINCA: (salendo dalla stive) Sacchi dannati! . . . .
Mondo birbone! . . . .
Spicciati, Talpa!
Si va a mangiare!

TALPA: Non aver fretta! non mi seccare!
Ah! questo sacco spacca il groppone!
(Scotendo la testa e tergendosi il sudore col rovescio della mano.)
Dio! che caldo! . . . . O Luigi, ancora una passata.

LUIGI: (indicando Giorgetta che reca la brocca del vino e i bicchieri) Eccola la passata! . . . . Ragazzi, si beve!
Qui, tutti insieme, lesti!
(Tutti accorrono alla chiamata, facendosi intorno a Giorgetta che distribuisce bicchieri e versa mescendo.) Ecco! Pronti!
Nel vino troverem l'energia per finir!
(e beve.)

GIORGETTA: (ridendo) Come parla difficile! . . . . Ma certo:
vino alla compagnia!
Qua, Talpa!
Al Tinca! . . . . A voi! Prendete! . . . .

IL TALPA: Alla salute vostra il vino si beva!
S'alzi il bicchiere lieti!
Tanta felicità
per la gioia che dà!
(e s'asciuga la bocca con il dorso dalla mano.)

GIORGETTA: Se ne volete ancora! . . . .

MICHELE: My wine helps in quenching
Thirst, and lightens their labor.
But, didn't you think of me?

GIORGETTA: Of you? . . . .
What can I? . . . .

MICHELE: (gently putting an arm around her waist)
No wine touches my lips now,
But, if my pipe is out,
My desire is aflame . . . .
Just one little kiss, sweetheart . . . .
(Michele kisses Giorgetta, who turns her face away. Disappointed, Michele walks off and goes down into the hold.) LUIGI: (coming from the wharf to the barge) Oh! what heat! It's awful!

GIORGETTA: I am sorry!
But I have what will bring coolness!
Wait, and taste our new wine!
(Giorgetta walks towards the cabin after exchanging an expressive glance with Luigi.)

TINCA: (coming up from the hold) Some weight to carry! . . . .
A life all burdens! . . . .
Hurry, Talpa,
It is time for supper!

TALPA: Why should I hurry? Just stop your shouting!
More yet to hoist and my back is breaking!
(He shakes his head and wipes the perspiration from his brow with the back of his hand.)
Heavens! What heat! Oh, Luigi,
We have another trip to make!

LUIGI: (pointing to Giorgetta who appears with a pitcher of wine and glasses) There comes our other trip! Now come and be merry!
Here, all together,
Quick! Quick!
(They all rush around Giorgetta who distributes glasses and pours out the wine.)
Now then! Ready!
This wine will give us strength
For the rest of our work!
(He gulps down his wine.)

GIORGETTA: (laughing) Your words are hard indeed! . . . . But anyway Wine, wine, for the whole party!
Here, Talpa!
You, Tinca! . . . . Now then!
Drink, boys! . . . .

TALPA: To your good health we drink with all our hearts!
Friends, lift your glasses!
Drink on!
And thank with all your heart
Our hospitable hostess!
(He wipes his mouth with the back of his hand.)

GIORGETTA: Come forth, come with your glasses!

IL TALPA: Non si rifiuta mai!
(e porge ancora il bicchiere.)

GIORGETTA: (agli altri) Avanti coi bicchieri!

LUIGI: (indicando un suonatore di organetto che passa sulla panchina) Guarda là l'organetto!
È arrivato in buon punto.

IL TINCA: (alzando il bicchiere)
In questo vino affogo i tristi pensieri.
Bevo al padrone!
Viva!
(Beve. Giorgetta torna a mescere.)
Grazie! Grazie!
L'unico mio piacer sta qui in fondo al bicchier!

LUIGI: (al suonatore) Ei, là! Professore! Attacca!
(agli amici.)
Sentirete che artista!

GIORGETTA: Io capisco una musica sola:
quella che fa ballare.

IL TINCA: (offrendosi) Ma sicuro!
Ai suoi ordini sempre, e gamba buona!

GIORGETTA: (ridendo) To'! Vi prendo in parola.

IL TINCA: (lusingatissimo) Ballo con la padrona!
(Si ride. Ma si ride anche di più perchè il Tinca non riesce a prendere il passo e a mettersi d'accordo con Giorgetta.)

LUIGI: La musica e la danza van d'accordo.
(al Tinca)
Sembra che tu pulisca il pavimento!

GIORGETTA: Ahi! mi hai pestato un piede!

LUIGI: (allontanando il Tinca con una spinta e sostituendolo)
Va! Lascia! Son qua io!
(E serra Giorgetta fra le braccia. Essa s'abbandona languidamente. La danza continua mentre dalla stiva appare Michele.)

IL TALPA: (con rapida mossa) Ragazzi, c'è il padrone!
(Luigi e Giorgetta si staccano. Luigi getta qualche moneta al suonatore, poi assieme agli altri s'avvia verso la stiva, mentre Michele procede verso Giorgetta.)

GIORGETTA: (dopo essersi ricomposta e ravviati i capelli, s'avvicina a Michele, con stentata naturalezza) Dunque, che cosa credi? Partiremo la settimana prossima?

MICHELE: (vagamente) Vedremo.
(da lontano il sibilo d'una sirena.)

TALPA: We never will say no! (He extends his glass.)

GIORGETTA: (to the others)
Come on! There is still more!

LUIGI: (pointing to an organ-grinder who is passing along the wharf) Look at the organ-grinder! . . . .
He comes at the right moment.

TINCA: (raising his glass) In this good wine we drown all thoughts of sadness.
To our kind master!
Good health!
(He drinks. Giorgetta pours out more wine.)
Thanks, ma'am! Thanks, ma'am!
The only good of life
Lies at the bottom of my glass!

LUIGI: (to the organ-grinder) Say, there! Professor! Music!
(to the men)
You will hear a great artist!

GIORGETTA: I understand only one sort of music:
The kind that's good for dancing.

TINCA: (approaching her) Very good and I am here at your orders
. . . . I love dancing!

GIORGETTA: (laughing) I'll take you at your word!

TINCA: (highly flattered) I dance with our fair mistress!
(They all laugh, and the merriment increases because, in spite of all his efforts, Tinca does not succeed in keeping step with Giorgetta.)

LUIGI: (to Tinca) Say, Tinca, what's the matter with your dancing?
What are you trying to do? Polish the floor?

GIORGETTA: Ouch! You stepped on my foot, Tinca!

LUIGI: (shoving Tinca aside and taking his place) Stop it! You don't know how!
(He takes Giorgetta into his arms and holds her tightly. She abandons herself languidly. They are still dancing as Michele emerges from the hold.)

TALPA: (quickly) Oh, boys, the boss is coming!
(Luigi and Giorgetta stop dancing. Luigi throws a few coins to the organ-grinder; then, together with the other men, proceeds towards the hold, while Michele approaches his wife.)

GIORGETTA: (after putting her disheveled hair in order, with forced composure) Tell me, Michele! Are we going to sail Away from here next week?

MICHELE: (vaguely) We'll see!
(From afar is heard the shrill whistle of a tug.)

GIORGETTA: Il Talpa e il Tinca restano?	GIORGETTA: Will Tinca work with Talpa?
MICHELE: Resterà anche Luigi.	MICHELE: And with them also Luigi!
GIORGETTA: Ieri non lo pensavi.	GIORGETTA: You didn't think so before . . . .
MICHELE: Ed oggi, penso.	MICHELE: But now I think . . . .
UN VENDITORE DI CANZONETTE: (lontano) Chi la vuole l'ultima canzonetta? . . . Chi la vuole?	A SONG PEDDLER: (in the distance) Who will buy the latest and newest song? Who will buy? . . . .
GIORGETTA: (avvicinandosi) Perchè?	GIORGETTA: (drawing near Michele) Why? . . . .
MICHELE: Perchè non voglio ch'egli crepi di fame.	MICHELE: Because I fear He might die of starvation!
GIORGETTA: Quello s'arrangia sempre.	GIORGETTA: He always gets around.
MICHELE: Lo so: s'arrangia, è vero. Ed è per questo che non conclude nulla.	MICHELE: I know he does: that's true! And for that reason He'll never get ahead!
GIORGETTA: (seccata) Con te non si sa mai chi fa male o fa bene!	GIORGETTA: (annoyed) With you one never can tell If one is right or wrong!
MICHELE: (semplicemente) Chi lavora si tiene.	MICHELE: (simply) He who works gets along.
GIORGETTA: Già discende la sera . . . . Oh che rosso tramonto di settembre! Che brivido d'autunno!	GIORGETTA: Night already descends What a clear crimson sunset of September! How chilly is the air!
IL VENDITORE: (più vicino) Con musica e parole, chi la vuole?	THE SONG PEDDLER: (coming nearer) The music and the words . . . . who wants my ballad?
GIORGETTA: Non sembra un grosso arancio questo sole che muore nella Senna? (indicando al di là della Senna.) Guarda laggiù la Frugola! La vedi? Cerca di suo marito. Non lo lascia!	GIORGETTA: Oh! look at the huge sun, as red as blood Fast dying out in the Seine! (She points beyond the river) Oh! see who comes! . . . . it is Frugola in quest Of her fool husband. She is like his shadow . . . .
MICHELE: È giusto. Beve troppo!	MICHELE: She's right. He drinks too much!
GIORGETTA: Non lo sai ch'è gelosa?	GIORGETTA: Why! Don't you know she is jealous?
MICHELE: (non risponde.) (N'el frattempo il cantasterie è apparso sulla strada, al di la della Senna, seguito da un gruppo di midienttes che escono da una casa di mode e che si fermano ad ascoltarlo.)	(Michele does not answer. In the meanwhile the song peddler has appeared on the street beyond the Seine, followed by a group of milliners who have rushed out of a near-by shop and stop to listen.)
IL VENDITORE DI CANZONETTE: Chi vuole la canzone?	THE SONG PEDDLER: Who wants to hear my ballad?
LE MIDINETTES: Bene! bene! sì! sì!	THE MILLINERS: Go on! Go on! Quick! Quick!
IL VENDITORE: 'Primavera, primavera, non cercare più i due amanti là fra l'ombre della sera. Chi ha vissuto per amore per amore si morì . . . . E la storia di Mimi	THE SONG PEDDLER: Spring, beloved! Spring, beloved! No longer are the youthful lovers sitting In the dark and lonely corners. Those who love with fervid passion No more will see their dear ones . . . . It is the story of Mimi! . . . .
GIORGETTA: (che ha sempre scrutato Michele) O mio uomo, non sei di buon umore! Perchè? . . . . che hai? . . . . Che guardi? . . . . E perchè taci?	GIORGETTA: (who has been watching Michele) Oh, Michele, you seem so strange this evening Say why! Do tell! What ails you? Why so silent?
MICHELE: T'ho mai fatto scenate?	MICHELE: I treat you well, Giorgetta.
GIORGETTA: Lo so bene: tu non mi batti!	GIORGETTA: Yes, Michele, I get no abuse.
MICHELE: Forse lo vorresti?	MICHELE: Have you lacked attention?
GIORGETTA: Ai silenzi talvolta, sì, preferirei lividi di percosse!	GIORGETTA: No, but to your dull silence I would fain prefer Bruises, blows and rough handling!
MICHELE: (senza rispondere risale il barcone.)	(Not replying, Michele walks to the other end of the barge. Giorgetta follows him, with insistence.)
GIORGETTA: (seguendolo con insistenza.) Dimmi almeno che hai!	Michele! Tell me what ails you!
MICHELE: Ma nulla! . . . . Nulla!	MICHELE: Why, nothing! . . . . Nothing!
IL VENDITORE: 'Chi aspettando sa che muore conta ad ore le giornate con i battiti del cuore. Ma l'amante non tornò, e i suoi battiti finì anche il cuore di Mimì!' (Il cantore si allontana. Le ragazze, leggendo le parole sui foglietti comperati, sciamano ripetendo la strofa. Le loro voci si perdono.)	THE SONG PEDDLER: 'He who knows he soon must die By the hour his days will reckon With his heart's quickening pulsation. But her beau did not return And The heart of poor Mimi is as still as still can be. (The peddler disappears in the distance. The girls, reading the words on the sheets they have purchased, rush away, repeating the verse. Their voices grow fainter and fainter.)
GIORGETTA: Quando siamo a Parigi io mi sento felice.	GIORGETTA: When we linger in Paris I am full of contentment!
MICHELE: Si capisce.	MICHELE: Yes, of course!
GIORGETTA: Perchè? (La Frugola è apparsa sul molo; attraversa la passerella e sale sul barcone. È una figura cenciosa e caratteristica. Ha sulle spalle una vecchia sacca gonfia di agni sorta di roba raccattata.)	GIORGETTA: Why so? (Frugola appears on the wharf; she comes up the gang plank and jumps onto the barge. She is a dirty, ragged woman, but still presents a characteristic figure. Frugola carries on her shoulder a large knapsack filled with the rubbish she has picked up.)
LA FRUGOLA: Eterni innamorati, buona sera.	FRUGOLA: Oh, perennial lovers! Good evening!
GIORGETTA: O buonasera, Frugola! (Michele, dopo di avere salutato con un gesto la Frugola, entra nella cabina.)	GIORGETTA: How do you do, dear Frugola? (Michele greets Frugola with a gesture, then enters the cabin.)
LA FRUGOLA: Il mio uomo ha finito il lavoro? Stamattina non ne poteva più dal mal di reni. Faceva proprio pena. Ma l'ho curato io: una buona frizione e il mio rum l'ha bevuto la sua schiena! (ride rumorosamente, poi getta a	FRUGOLA: Is my husband Through with his work yet? You know this morning He was all pains and aches, my poor old man! Worse than ever, Giorgetta. I patched him up all right, though! Rubbed and rubbed and rubbed Until his back had sponged up all terra la sacca e vi fruga dentro con voluttà cavandone vari oggetti.) Giorgetta, guarda: pettine fiammante! Se lo vuoi, te lo dono. È quanto di più buono ho raccolto in giornata.	my good rum! (She laughs boisterously, then throws her bag down on the floor, and greedily rummages through it, bringing forth several objects.) Giorgetta, look! A comb, brand new and shining! If you want it, dear, take it! It is the best result Of all my work today!

GIORGETTA: (prendendo il pettine) Hanno ragione di chiamarti Frugola: tu rovisti ogni angolo ed hai la sacca piena.	GIORGETTA: (accepting the comb) Our friends were right in calling you Frugola . . . . For you search every corner to daily fill your bag.
LA FRUGOLA: Qui dentro è un po' di tutto! (mostrando di mano in mano le cose che nomina.) Se tu sapessi—gli oggetti strani che in questa sacca—sono racchiusi! . . . . Ciuffi di piume—velluti e trine, stracci, barattoli—vechie scarpine. Vi son confusi—strane reliquie, i documenti—di mille amori. Gioie e tormenti—quivi raccolgo senza distinguere—fra il ricco e il volgo!	FRUGOLA: A thousand and one quaint objects . . . . (She shows Giorgetta the various articles as she goes on naming them.) . . . .of every order. Things rare and common huddle together— In this, my grab bag! Laces and feathers—silk scarves and velvets, Cream pots and ruffles—old silver bracelets Here in confusion—quaint and strange memories, Documents true of love and deep passion— Pleasures and torments, are kept here in jumble Making no caste line between rich and humble . . . .
GIORGETTA: E in quel cartoccio?	GIORGETTA: And in that bundle?
LA FRUGOLA: Qui c'è una cena! (e ridendo dello stupore di Giorgetta, spiega) Cuore di manzo per Caporale, il mio soriano dal pelo fulvo, da l'occhio strano, che non ha uguale!	FRUGOLA: This is the supper (And laughing at Giorgetta's amazement, she explains) Beef-heart for dearest old Caporale My fine Angora With snow-white fur And deep blue eyes! Most rare, I tell you!
GIORGETTA: (ridendo) Gode di privilegi il tuo soriano!	GIORGETTA: (laughing) A real privileged beast, your white Angora . . . .
LA FRUGOLA: Li merita! Vedessi! È il più bel gatto e il mio più bel romanzo Quando il mio Talpa è fuori, il soriano mi tiene compagnia. Insieme noi filiamo i nostri amori senza puntigli e senza gelosia. Vuoi saperla la sua filosofia? Ron ron: meglio padrone in una catapecchia che servo in un palazzo. Ron ron: meglio cibarsi con due fette di cuore che logorare il proprio nell'amore! (Il Talpa appare dalla stiva, seguito da Luigi)	FRUGOLA: He truly is deserving. The dearest cat and my most fond romance; When my husband is out Caporale, good boy, stays home with me. Together, we two dream of a new life Without distrust, or jealousy or strife! Do you want me to tell you his philosophy? Purr! Purr! Better be master In your own little shanty Than servant in a mansion. Purr! Purr! You're better off Eating heart, hard as stone Thank in a fruitless love wearing out your own. (At this moment Talpa emerges from the hold.)
IL TALPA: To'! guarda la mia vecchia! . . . . Che narravi?	TALPA: Well, see there my old girl! What's all about?
LA FRUGOLA: Parlavo con Giorgetta del soriano.	FRUGOLA: I was telling Giorgetta of our Angora.
MICHELE: (uscendo dalla cabina, si avvicina a Luigi) O Luigi, domani si carica del ferro. Vieni a darci una mano?	MICHELE: (steps out of the cabin and approaches Luigi) Oh, Luigi, tomorrow We take in heavy steel bars. Will you come too and help?
LUIGI: Verrò, padrone.	LUIGI: I certainly will!
IL TINCA: (venendo dalla stiva seguito dagli altri scaricatori che se ne vanno pel molo dopo di avere salutato Michele) Buona notte a tutti.	TINCA: (comes up from the hold, followed by the other stevedores, who scatter off on the wharf after saluting Michele) Good-night! Until tomorrow.
IL TALPA: Hai tanta fretta?	TALPA: Why such a hurry?
LA FRUGOLA: Corri già a ubbriacarti? Ah! se fossi tua moglie!	FRUGOLA: Bound for the saloon, I suppose? If you were my husband . . . .
IL TINCA: Che fareste?	TINCA: What would you do?
LA FRUGOLA: Ti pesterei finchè non la smettessi di passare le notti all'osteria. Non ti vergogni?	FRUGOLA: I'd keep on beating you until you'd give up Consuming all your nights in the wine shop. Don't you know better?
IL TINCA: No. Fa bene il vino! S'affogano i pensieri di rivolta: chè se bevo non penso, e se penso non rido! (Michele discende nella stiva.)	TINCA: No. Wine's the spice of life! In wine we drown all thoughts of revolution, When I drink, I don't think! And when I think, I'm gloomy! (Michele descends into the hold.)
LUIGI: Hai ben ragione; meglio non pensare, piegare il capo ed incurvar la schiena. Per noi la vita non ha più valore ed ogni gioia si converte in pena. I sacchi in groppa e giù la testa a terra. Se guardi in alto, bada alla frustata. (con amarezza) Il pane lo guadagni col sudore, e l'ora dell'amore va rubata . . . . Va rubata fra spasimi e paure che offuscano l'ebbrezza più divina. Tutto è conteso, tutto ci è rapito . . . . la giornata è già buia alla mattina. Hai ben ragione: meglio non pensare.	LUIGI: Quite right you are. It is vain for us to ponder; With bended heads and backs we will fare better In this cruel world where life is nothing but hard toil, Where every joy soon turns into a new fetter! Down with your heads and backs, herd of the soil, Heads down, or you will bend under the lash! (With bitter resentment.) To earn our bread, we work year after year, Our hour of love is stolen with trembling fear, The hour we steal is fraught with mortal anguish And on our face is slammed love's blissful portal. All is forbidden us, all is a crime, Our hours of dawn are dark, more than night-time. Quite right you are . . . . It is vain for us to ponder!
IL TINCA: Segui il mio esempio: bevi.	TINCA: Then follow my example: Drink!
GIORGETTA: Basta!	GIORGETTA: Enough!
IL TINCA: Non parlo più! A domani, ragazzi, e state bene! s'incammina e scompare su per il molo.)	TINCA: I say no more! . . . . Until tomorrow, friends! God be with you! (He walks away and disappears on the wharf.)
IL TALPA: (alla Frugola) Ce ne andiamo anche noi? Son stanco morto.	TALPA: (to Frugola) Shall we go home? I am too tired to stay.
LA FRUGOLA: (stancamente) Ah! quando mai potremo comprarci una bicocca? Là ci riposeremo.	FRUGOLA: (with lassitude) I wish were here the day When we can buy a shanty Where we can rest at last!
GIORGETTA: È la tua fissazione la campagna!	GIORGETTA: Always you've dreamt of living in the woods!

LA FRUGOLA: (cantilenando) Ho sognato una casetta con un piccolo orticello. Quattro muri, stretta stretta, e due pini per ombrello. Il mio vecchio steso al sole, ai miei piedi Caporale, e aspettar cosi la morte ch'è il rimedio d'ogni male!	FRUGOLA: (with rythmical cadence) I have dreamt of a small house With a garden filled with roses Just four walls, under fine old trees A dear home of my own . . . . My old man stretched in the sun, At my feet old Caporale Quietly waiting for Death's call Which is cure for every ill!
GIORGETTA: (vivamente) È ben altro il mio sogno! Son nata nel sobborgo e solo l'aria di Parigi m'esalta e mi nutrisce! Oh! se Michele, un giorno, abbandonasse questa logora vita vagabonda! Non si vive là dentro, fra il letto ed il fornello! Tu avessi visto la mia stanza, un tempo!	GIORGETTA: (with excitement) Oh! My dream is quite different! I was born in the suburbs, and the air Of my Paris is life and joy to me! Oh! If we could some day give up forever Our vagarious and stupid, bleak, existence! It is no life for a woman, in that dark, dingy cabin . . . . You should have seen the room of my young days!
LA FRUGOLA: Dove abitavi?	FRUGOLA: Where did you live, then?
GIORGETTA: Non lo sai?	GIORGETTA: Don't you know?
LUIGI: (avanzando d'improvviso) Belleville!	LUIGI: (suddenly) Belleville!
GIORGETTA: Luigi lo conosce!	GIORGETTA: Luigi knows the village!
LUIGI: Anch'io ci sono nato!	LUIGI: The place where I was born!
GIORGETTA: Come me, l'ha nel sangue!	GIORGETTA: Like me, he loves it still.
LUIGI: Non ci si può staccare!	LUIGI: I can't forget that town!
GIORGETTA: Bisogna aver provato! (con crescente entusiasmo) Belleville è il nostro suolo e il nostro mondo! Noi non possiamo vivere sull'acqua! Bisogna calpestare il marciapiede! . . . . Là c'è una casa, là ci sono amici, festosi incontri, piene confidenze	GIORGETTA: Yes, it's all in the knowing . . . . (with growing enthusiasm) Belleville is our own soil and all our world! We cannot live forever on the water! We want to hear our footsteps on the flag-stones! Our home is there, and our best friends live there With joyous meetings of fond and true hearts!
LUIGI: Ci si conosce tutti! S'è tutti una famiglia!	LUIGI: There we all know each other! There we are all related!
GIORGETTA: (continuando) Al mattino, il lavoro che ci aspetta. Alla sera i ritorni in comitiva . . . . Botteghe che s'accendono di luci e di lusinghe . . . . vetture che s'incrociano, domeniche chiassose, piccole gite in due al Bosco di Boulogne! Balli all' aperto e intimità amorose!? . . . . È difficile dire cosa sia quest'ansia, questa strana nostalgia	GIORGETTA: (continuing) In the morning, there's work awaiting us. And at night we come back home all together; The shops in their bright splendor Of light, and things attractive! . . . . And carriages rushing forth, The merriment of Sundays, Excursions two by two To the Bois de Boulogne! Feasts in the open And amorous intimacy! It is hard to comprehend; unless you witness This frenzy of ours, this impelling home sickness!
LUIGI e GIORGETTA: (con esaltazione) Ma chi lascia il sobborgo vuol tornare, e chi ritorna non si può staccare. C'è là in fondo Parigi che ci grida con mille voci il fascino immortale! . . . . (I due amanti restano per un attimo assorti, la mano nella mano, come se lo stesso pensiero e la stessa anima li trascinasse. Poi, riprendono instantaneamenta la coscienza che gli altri li guardano, e si staccano.)	LUIGI AND GIORGETTA: (with excitement) But all those who depart crave to return, Their hearts constantly burn with boundless love. Down yonder rises Paris, ever calling Her children with undying fascination! . . . . (The two lovers remain a while as if transfigured, hand in hand, as if spellbound by the same thought, one soul. Then, realizing that others are present, they drop each other's hands.)
LA FRUGOLA: (dopo un breve silenzio) Adesso ti capisco: qui la vita è diversa	FRUGOLA: (after a brief pause) Oh! Now I understand. Life is different on board!
IL TALPA: (che s'è poco interessato dello sfogo di Giorgetta) Se s'andasse a mangiare? . . . . (a Luigi) Che ne dici?	TALPA: (who is not interested in Giorgetta's outburst) What about my supper? (to Luigi) Won't you join us?
LUIGI: Io resto: ho da parlare col padrone.	LUIGI: No, thanks! I've got to wait and see Michele.
IL TALPA: Quand'è così, a domani.	TALPA: Well, then, until tomorrow!
GIORGETTA: Miei vecchi, buona notte! (Il Talpa e la Frugola s'incamminano canterellando: 'Ho sognata una casetta' . . . . Le loro voci si perdono.)	GIORGETTA: My friends, goodnight! (Talpa and Frugola walk off, singing . . . . 'I dream of a small house' . . . . Their voices are lost in the distance.)
GIORGETTA: (sommessa, ma con ardore) O Luigi! Luigi! (e come Luigi fa l'atto di avvicinarsi, essa con un gesto lo ferma.) Bada a te! Può salir fra un momento! Resta pur là, lontano!	GIORGETTA: (low, but fervidly) O Luigi! Luigi! . . . . (But as Luigi rushes towards her, she stops him with a gesture.) Do take care! He'll return here any moment! Stay where you are! Remain!
LUIGI: Perchè dunque inasprisci il tormento? Perchè mi chiami invano?	LUIGI: Why, then, embitter my dreadful torment? Why call me here in vain?
GIORGETTA: Vibro tutta se penso a iersera, all'ardor dei tuoi baci!	GIORGETTA: A new thrill pervades my whole body At the thought of your kisses last night!
LUIGI: In quei baci tu sai cosa c'era	LUIGI: And your kisses felt like burning blades!
GIORGETTA: Sì, mio amore . . . . Ma taci!	GIORGETTA: Oh, my love! . . . . But hush! . . . . Hush!
LUIGI: Quale folle paura ti prende?	LUIGI: By what sudden new fear are you seized?
GIORGETTA: Se ci scopre, è la morte!	GIORGETTA: If he knew, he would kill us!
LUIGI: Preferisco morire, alla sorte. che ti tiene legata!	LUIGI: Death is better than living at the cost Of constant separation!
GIORGETTA: Ah! se fossimo soli, lontani	GIORGETTA: Ah! To be alone with you, far away . . . .
LUIGI: E sempre uniti!	LUIGI: With you, forever! . . . .
GIORGETTA: E sempre innamorati . . . . Dimmi che non mi manchi!	GIORGETTA: Ever loving and true . . . . Swear that you are true, Luigi!
LUIGI: Mai! (e fa l'atto di correre a lei.)	LUIGI: True! (He rushes towards her.)
GIORGETTA: (bruscamente) Sta attento! (Infatti Michele risale dalla stiva.)	GIORGETTA: (hastily) Be careful! (In fact, Michele comes up out of the hold.)
MICHELE: (a Luigi) Come? Non sei andato?	MICHELE: (to Luigi) Still here? What made you stay? . . . .

LUIGI: Padrone, v'ho aspettato, perchè volevo dirvi quattro sole parole: intanto ringraziarvi per avermi tenuto . . . . Poi volevo pregarvi, se lo potete fare, di portarmi a Rouen e là farmi sbarcare	LUIGI: Kind sir, I thought I'd wait Until you came up again To speak with you alone. I wanted first to thank you For keeping me at work . . . . Then I wished to ask you, If such a thing be possible, To take me to Rouen And let me off down there!
MICHELE: A Rouen? Ma sei matto? Là non c'è che miseria: ti troveresti peggio.	MICHELE: To Rouen? Are you crazy? There's no work for you there! You'd be worse off, by far!
LUIGI: Sta bene. Allora resto.	LUIGI: All right. I'll have to stay, then!
MICHELE: (senza rispondere s'avvia verso la cabina.)	(Michele moves towards the hold.)
GIORGETTA: (a Michele) E adesso dove vai?	GIORGETTA: (to Michele) And now, where are you going?
MICHELE: A preparare i lumi	MICHELE: I go to light the lanterns.
LUIGI: Buona notte, padrone	LUIGI: Good-night, sir!
MICHELE: Buona notte. (entra nella cabina.) (Luigi è quasi presso la passerella. Giorgetta lo raggiunge rapidamente—Il dialogo che segue è rapido, concitato, sommesso, ma pieno di intensità amorosa.)	MICHELE: Good-night! (He enters the cabin. Luigi is almost on the gangplank when Giorgetta rushes up to him. The ensuing dialogue is quick, in an undertone full of amorous intensity.)
GIORGETTA: Dimmi: perchè gli hai chiesto di sbarcarti a Rouen?	GIORGETTA: Tell me, why did you ask him To take you to Rouen?
LUIGI: Perchè non posso dividerti con lui!	LUIGI: Because I cannot Share you with him, Giorgetta!
GIORGETTA: Hai ragione: è un tormento . . . . Anch'io ne sono presa, anch'io la sento ben più forte di te questa catena! . . . . È un'angoscia, è una pena, ma quando tu mi prendi, è più grande il compenso!	GIORGETTA: You are right: It is a torment . . . . It gnaws . . . . it preys on me, and I lament The cruel chain that binds mine to his fate! It is far harder than hate! But then your ardent kisses Well reward my deep anguish!
LUIGI: Par di rubare insieme qualche cosa alla vita!	LUIGI: As if we two were stealing keener raptures from life!
GIORGETTA: La voluttà è più intensa!	GIORGETTA: A more intense delight!
LUIGI: È la gioia rapita fra spasimi e paure	LUIGI: An enchantment with strife Amid ecstasy and fear . . . .
GIORGETTA: In una stretta ansiosa	GIORGETTA: We two, clasped together . . . .
LUIGI: Fra grida soffocate	LUIGI: With stifled sobs and cries . . . .
GIORGETTA: E parole sommesse	GIORGETTA: And low voiced, burning words . . . .
LUIGI: E baci senza fine!	LUIGI: And kisses without end!
GIORGETTA: Giuramenti, promesse	GIORGETTA: Solemn oaths, sincere promises . . . .
LUIGI: D'essere soli noi	LUIGI: To be joined forever . . . .
GIORGETTA: Noi, soli, via, lontani!	GIORGETTA: We two, in distant lands!
LUIGI: Noi tutti soli, lontani dal mondo! . . . . (poi sussultando come se avesse sentito dei passi) È lui?	LUIGI: We two, together, away from the world . . . . (He starts as if he heard footsteps.) Is it he?
GIORGETTA: (rassicurandolo) No . . . . non ancora . . . . (con ardore) Dimmi che tornerai più tardi	GIORGETTA: (soothingly) No, not yet, darling! (with passion) Tell me you will return . . . . Won't you?
LUIGI: Sì . . . . fra un'ora	LUIGI: In an hour . . . .
GIORGETTA: Ascolta: come ieri lascerò la passerella . . . . Sono io che la tolgo . . . . Hai le scarpe di corda?	GIORGETTA: Now, listen! as last night, I shall leave the gang-plank there . . . . That's a nightly task of mine. Have you on corded shoes?
LUIGI: (alzando il piede) Sì . . . . Fai lo stesso segnale?	LUIGI: (showing his feet) See? . . . . What signal will you give?
GIORGETTA: Sì . . . . il fiammifero acceso! . . . . Come tremava sul mio braccio teso la piccola fiammella! Mi pareva d'accendere una stella, fiamma del nostro amore, stella senza tramonto!	GIORGETTA: You know . . . . I will light a match. It shook and trembled in my hand last night That tiny wooden bar . . . . I thought I had set fire to a new star, Flame of our ardent love, A star that will never set!
LUIGI: Io voglio la tua bocca, voglio le tue carezze!	LUIGI: I crave your dear, sweet lips, And your bewitching kisses!
GIORGETTA: Dunque anche tu lo senti il folle desiderio!	GIORGETTA: So then, you also are held By that immense attraction?
LUIGI: (con grande intensità) Folle di gelosia! Vorrei tenerti stretta come una cosa mia! Vorrei non più soffrire che un altro ti toccasse, e per sottrarre a tutti il corpo tuo divino, te lo giuro, non tremo a vibrare il coltello e con gocce di sangue fabbricarti un gioiello!	LUIGI: (with great intensity) Burning with jealous fire, I want to hold you entwined Like ivy on a spire! I will no longer suffer Another to approach you . . . . And to forbid to all men Sight of your divine form I would kill without fear And with drops of red blood Make you a rare jewel!
GIORGETTA: (con improvviso scatto lo spinge via. Poi, sola risalendo lentamente e passandosi una mano sulla fronte) Come è difficile esser felici! . . . . (Ora l'oscurità è completa. Michele, recando i fanali accesi, viene dalla cabina.)	GIORGETTA: (startled, suddenly pushes him away; then, alone and walking up stage, she wearily passes her hand over her forehead) It is hard indeed to find real joy on earth! (Now darkness is complete; Michele emerges from the cabin carrying the lighted lanterns.)
MICHELE: Perchè non vai a letto?	MICHELE: Why don't you go to bed?
GIORGETTA: E tu?	GIORGETTA: And you?
MICHELE: No . . . . Non ancora . . . . (Un silenzio.—Michele ha collocato i fanali sul barcone.)	MICHELE: No . . . . not just yet . . . . (A deep pause. Michele sets the lanterns in place.)
GIORGETTA: Penso che hai fatto bene a trattenerlo.	GIORGETTA: You were quite right in keeping him at work.
MICHELE: Chi mai?	MICHELE: Him? . . . . Who? . . . .
GIORGETTA: (semplicemente) Luigi.	GIORGETTA: (negligently) Luigi.
MICHELE: Forse ho fatto male. Basteranno due uomini: non c'è molto lavoro.	MICHELE: Perhaps I was wrong . . . . As two hands would suffice . . . . Our work will not be heavy.

GIORGETTA: Il Tinca lo potresti licenziare . . . . beve sempre	GIORGETTA: Well, then, why not dismiss that fellow Tinca? He's always drunk . . . .
MICHELE: S'ubriaca per calmare i suoi dolori . . . . Ha per moglie una bagascia . . . . Beve per non ucciderla . . . . (Giorgetta non risponde. Ma appare turbata e nervosa.)	MICHELE: Yes, he drinks To forget his fearful sorrows . . . . For his wife was never faithful . . . . He drinks so as not to kill her . . . . (Giorgetta does not answer, but she seems troubled and nervous.)
MICHELE: Che hai?	MICHELE: What ails you?
GIORGETTA: Son tutte queste storie . . . . A me non interessano	GIORGETTA: Why all this foolish gossip? I really don't care to hear . . . .
MICHELE: (improvvisamente avvicinandosi a lei con angoscia e con commozione) Perchè non m'ami più? . . . . Perchè non m'ami?	MICHELE: (close to her, with anguish) Why don't you love me, dear? Why can't you love me?
GIORGETTA: Ti sbagli . . . . T'amo . . . . Tu sei buono, onesto . . . (poi, per troncare) Ora andiamo a dormire	GIORGETTA: You're wrong! . . . . I love you . . . . you are kind and honest! (Then, to cut the conversation short) It's time to go to sleep!
MICHELE: (fissandola) Tu non dormi!	MICHELE: (staring at her) You don't sleep!
GIORGETTA: Lo sai perchè non dormo . . . . E poi . . . . là dentro soffoco . . . . Non posso!	GIORGETTA: You know the reason why . . . . And then I stifle in there . . . . It's suffocating!
MICHELE: Ora le notti sono tanto fresche E l'anno scorso là in quel nero guscio eravamo pur tre . . . . c'era il lettuccio del nostro bimbo	MICHELE: But now the nights are cool and so refreshing It was just last year that there, in our dark cabin We lived happy, all three . . . . there was the cradle Of our dear child . . . .
GIORGETTA: (sconvolta) Il nostro bimbo! . . . . Taci!	GIORGETTA: (painfully) My little baby! Darling!
MICHELE: (insistendo, commosso) Tu sporgevi la mano, e lo cullavi dolcemente, lentamente! . . . . e poi sul braccio mio t'addormentavi	MICHELE: (insisting, deeply moved) You would put out your hand and would rock him So tenderly . . . . Gently, softly . . . . And then you'd fall asleep quietly on my arm.
GIORGETTA: (c. s.) Ti supplico, Michele: non dir niente	GIORGETTA: (as above) I beg of you, Michele . . . . do keep silent!
MICHELE: (c. s.) Erano sere come queste . . . . Se spirava la brezza, vi raccoglievo insieme nel tabarro, come in una carezza . . . . Sento sulle mie spalle le vostre teste bionde . . . . Sento le vostre bocche vicino alla mia bocca . . . . Ero tanto felice! . . . . Ora che non c'è più, i miei capelli grigi mi sembrano un insulto alla tua gioventù!	MICHELE: (as above) Evenings were they, like this clear night . . . . If the breeze was too brisk I would wrap you both tightly in my old cloak, As in one fond embrace . . . . I felt upon my shoulder Your two beloved heads . . . . I felt your fragrant lips There, close to my own! I was so warm and happy! Now that he is no more My gray and scanty hairs Seem like a gross insult That I bring to your door!
GIORGETTA: No . . . . calmati, Michele . . . . Sono stanca . . . . Non reggo . . . . Vieni	GIORGETTA: Hush! Hush! . . . . Keep quiet, Michele . . . . I am weary So weary . . . . Come, dear!
MICHELE: (aspro) Ma non puoi dormire! Sai pure che non devi addormentarti!	MICHELE: And yet you can't sleep! You know that you won't sleep at all tonight!
GIORGETTA: (atterrita) Perchè mi dici questo?	GIORGETTA: (frightened) Oh, tell me why you say so?
MICHELE: Non so bene . . . . Ma so che è molto tempo che non dormi! (Poi ancora dominandosi e cercando di attirare Giorgetta fra le sue braccia) Resta vicino a me! . . . . Non ti ricordi altre notti, altri cieli ed altre lune? . . . . Perchè chiudi il tuo cuore? Rammentati le ore che volavano via su questa barca trascinate dall'onda!	MICHELE: I'm not sure . . . . But I do know it's long since you could sleep! (Then, mastering himself and trying to draw Giorgetta into his arms.) Stay here . . . . here, close to me! . . . . don't you remember Other nights, other skies and other moonlights? Why do you close your dear heart? Remember the sweet hours, The fleeting hours we spent happily together, Swept away by the tide!
GIORGETTA: Meglio non ricordare . . . . Oggi è malinconia	GIORGETTA: I'd rather not remember . . . . It is cruel to make me pine.
MICHELE: Ritorna come allora . . . . ritorna ancora mia! quando anche tu m'amavi ardentemente, e mi cercavi, e mi baciavi, ed i primi chiarori del mattino risvegliavan due corpi ancora stretti nell'amplesso divino! Resta vicino a me! La notte è bella!	MICHELE: Oh, love me, love me again And be forever mine! Remember how you loved me With ardent passion . . . . Ever sealing my lips With burning kisses . . . . And the first crimson fires of the new sun Would then gild our two bodies, still entwined . . . . Two souls merged into one! Stay here! Keep close to me! The night is divine!
GIORGETTA: Che vuoi! S'invecchia! Non son più la stessa. Tu pure sei cambiato . . . . Diffidi . . . . Ma chè credi?	GIORGETTA: We're growing old . . . . I no longer feel the same . . . . You also seem another . . . . You doubt me? What's on your mind?
MICHELE: Non so nemmeno io!	MICHELE: Truly, I don't know myself!
GIORGETTA: (per tagliar corto) Buona notte, Michele . . . . Ho tanto sonno	GIORGETTA: (to cut short) Well, good-night now, Michele! I am sleepy . . . .
MICHELE: (con un sospiro) E allor va pure . . . . Ti raggiungo	MICHELE: (with a sigh) Yes, yes, good-night . . . I'll soon be over!
GIORGETTA: Buona notte!	GIORGETTA: Good-night!
MICHELE: (cerca di baciarla, ma Giorgetta si schermisce e s'avvia. Michele, guardandola allontanarsi, mormora cupamente) Sgualdrina! (Sulla strada due ombre d'amanti passano) —Bocca di rosa fresca . . . . —E baci di rugiada . . . . —O labbra profumate . . . . —O profumata sera . . . . —C'è la luna che illumina la strada . . . . —La luna che ci spia . . . . —A domani, mio amore . . . . —Domani, amante mia!	MICHELE: (tries to kiss her, but Giorgetta escapes him and runs away.) (As he follows her with his eyes, he savagely mutters) Vile wench, you! (On the boulevard, the shadows of two lovers, entwined, pass by. They sing) 'Mouth like vermillion roses And kisses fresh as dew— O lips so sweet and pungent . . . . O night, so clear and starlit! See the moon shining brightly upon our path

(Da una caserma suona il silenzio.)
(Michele ha preso il suo tabarro, se n'è avvolte le spalle, e, appoggiato al timone del barcone, contempla fissamente la Senna che scorre silenziosamente.)

MICHELE: Scorri, fiume eterno!
Scorri!
Come il tuo mistero è fondo!
Ah! l'ansia che mi strugge non ha fine!
Passa, fiume eterno; passa!
E me pure travolgi!
Quante son le rovine
che calmò la tua onda!
Tu della miseria
hai segnata la fine! . . . .
E sempre calmo passi, e non ti ferma dolore nè paura nè tormento nè volgere di anni!
Continui la tua corsa,
continui il tuo lamento! . . . .
Sono i lamenti, forse, dei tuoi morti?
Di migliaia di morti che portasti l'un dopo l'altro verso il gran destino sulle tue braccia lugubri ma forti!
Sono i dolori che tu soffocasti chiudendo l'urlo estremo in un gorgoglio?
Acqua misteriosa e cupa,
passa sul mio triste cuore!
Lava via la pena e il mio dolore, fa pur tua la mia sorte! . . . .
E se non puoi la pace,
allor dammi la morte!
(S'accascia sfibrato. Macchinalmente leva di tasca la pipa e l'accende. Alla luce del fiammifero Luigi cautamente attraversa la passerella e balza sul barcone. Michele vede l'ombra, sussulta, si mette in agguato, riconosce Luigi e di colpo si precipita afierrandolo per la gola.)

MICHELE: T'ho colto!

LUIGI: (dibattendosi) Sangue di Dio! Son preso!

MICHELE: (con voce roca e sommessa) Non gridare!
Che venivi a cercare?
Volevi la tua amante?

LUIGI: Non è vero!

MICHELE: Mentisci! Confessa! La tua amante!

LUIGI: (tentando di levare il coltello) Ah! perdio!

The moon so sweetly smiling,
Until tomorrow, sweetheart
Good-night, my own beloved!
(From a near-by barracks taps are sounded. Michele, taking his big, black cloak, throws it upon his shoulders, and leaning upon the tiller of the barge, he steadily gazes upon the still river.)

MICHELE: Flow on, eternal river!
Flow, deep and mysterious waters!
The anguish that pervades my soul is endless!
Pass on, pass, eternal river!
Drag me on, engulf me!
How many profound sorrows
Were soothed by the waves?
Of many dire distresses
You have marked the vile end!
Forever calm, you flow, never halted
By laments, nor sorrows, nor cringing fear
Nor lapsing of long years!
Forever flowing on
Moaning on your way!
Are those perhaps the moans of icy corpses
The thousands of dead men that you carried
In quick succession towards their fatal goal,
Upon your slimy arms, nor did you tarry?
Are those perhaps the sorrows that you quelled
By choking in your vortex their last yell?
O mysterious, silent waters
Flow on, pass over my broken heart!
Wash away my tears and my bitter sorrow!
Dispose of my fate too,
And if peace you cannot give me
Then let me die with you!
(At these words he collapses entirely. Mechanically he takes his pipe from his pocket and lights it. At the flaring of the match, Luigi cautiously moves towards the gang-plank and jumps onto the barge. Michele, seeing the shadow, is startled; he hides, then recognizing Luigi, he throws himself upon him and catches him by the throat.)

MICHELE: I've got you!

LUIGI: (struggling to free himself) By all the Saints! I'm caught!

MICHELE: (hoarsely and almost voiceless) Don't scream now!
How and why did you return?
Are you looking for your mistress?

LUIGI: I am not!

MICHELE: You are lying! Confess!
You seek your mistress!

LUIGI: (trying to get at his knife)
By all angels!

MICHELE: (serrandogli il braccio) Giù il coltello!
Non mi sfuggi, canaglia!
Anima di forzato! . . . . Verme!
Volevi andar giù, a Rouen, non è vero?
Morto ci andrai! Nel fiume!

LUIGI: Assassino! Assassino!

MICHELE: Confessami che l'ami!

LUIGI: Lasciami!

MICHELE: No! Confessa!
Infame! Infame! . . . . Infami! . . . .
Se confessi, ti lascio!

LUIGI: Si . . . .

MICHELE: Ripeti!

LUIGI: Si L'amo!

MICHELE: Ripeti!

LUIGI: L'amo!

MICHELE: (stringendolo furiosamente) Ancora!

LUIGI: (rantolando)
L'amo . . . . Ah! . . . .
(e resta aggrappato a Michele in una contorsione di morte.) (Dall'interno della cabina la voce di Giorgetta chiama: 'Michele?.. Un silenzio. Michele sente, e rapidissimo siede e ravvolge il tabarro sopra il cadavere aggrappato a lui.)
(Giorgetta appare sulla porta, indagando con lo sguardo smarrito.)

GIORGETTA: (a mezza voce) Ho paura, Michele . . . .
(poi, vedendo il marito seduto e calmo, rassicurata, soggiunge)
No . . . . Ho avuto paura . . . .
(S'avvicina lentamente a Michele, sempre guardando intorno con ansia.)

MICHELE: (calmissimo) Avevo ben ragione: non dovevi dormire . . . .

GIORGETTA: (con sottomissiome) Son presa dal rimorso d'averti dato pena . . . .

MICHELE: Non è nulla . . . . i tuoi nervi . . . .

GIORGETTA: Ecco . . . . è questo . . . . hai ragione . . . .
Dimmi che mi perdoni . . . .
(insinuante)
Non mi vuoi più vicina? . . . .

MICHELE: Dove? . . . . Nel mio tabarro?

MICHELE: (pinioning his arms)
Drop your knife!
No escape for you, scoundrel!
Vile beast, fit for the gallows! Monster!
You would have me take you to Rouen? . . . . True?
Dead you'll go . . . . there's the river!

LUIGI: Help! Assassin! Assassin!

MICHELE: Confess now that you love her!

LUIGI: Let me go!

MICHELE: No. Confess!
You rascal! Scoundrel! Scoundrels! . . . .
Confess, and I'll let you go!

LUIGI: Yes . . . .

MICHELE: Repeat it!

LUIGI: I love her!

MICHELE: Repeat it!

LUIGI: I love her!

MICHELE: (tightening his hold of Luigi's throat) Once more!

LUIGI: (with a raucous cry) I love her . . . . Ah!
(And he remains holding on to Michele in a death-like contortion.)
(From inside the cabin, Giorgetta's voice is heard calling: Michele! A deep pause. Hearing her voice, Michele quickly sits down throwing his cloak over the corpse still clinging to him. Giorgetta appears on the threshold and looks about her, frightened.)

GIORGETTA: (in a low voice) I'm afraid, Michele!
(Then, as she sees her husband quietly seated, she is calmer and continues)
No . . . I did feel afraid . . . .
(She draws near Michele always looking around anxiously.)

MICHELE: (very calm) Didn't I tell you before that you were not to sleep?

GIORGETTA: (meekly) I am sorry, Michele,
For having been so horrid!

MICHELE: Don't worry . . . .
You are nervous . . . .

GIORGETTA: Yes, I know . . . . you are right.
Tell me that you forgive me!
(coquettishly)
Don't you want me near you?

MICHELE: Where? . . . .
Where? . . . . Under my cloak?

GIORGETTA: Sì . . . . vicina . . . . vicina . . . .
(con voce tremante)
Sì . . . . mi dicevi un tempo:
'Tutti quanti portiamo un tabarro che asconde qualche volta una gioia qualche volta un dolore . . . ."

MICHELE: (selvaggiamente) Ma talvolta un delitto!
Vieni nel mio tabarro! . . . .
Vieni! . . . . Vieni! . . . .

GIORGETTA: Yes, quite close . . . . very close . . . .
(with trembling voice)
You know, you used to tell me . . . .
'Every man needs to carry
Some great cloak, where he hides
Sometimes a wondrous joy
Sometimes a profound sorrow."

MICHELE: (savagely) Sometimes a crime . . . . a murder . . . .
Come, hide beneath my cloak!
Come here! Come here! . . . .

(Si erge terribile, apre il tabarro; il cadavere di Luigi rotola ai piedi di Giorgetta che lancia un grido terribile e indietreggia con orrore. Ma Michele le è sopra, l'afferra, e la trascina, e la piega violentemente contro il volto dell'amante morto.)

VELARIO

(He rises, throws open the cloak. Luigi's dead body falls at Giorgetta's feet. With a great cry she draws back, horror stricken. But Michele rushes upon her and violently throws her upon the body of her dead lover.)

CURTAIN

Suor Angelica (1918)

Sister Angelica

MUSIC BY GIACOMO PUCCINI ■ LIBRETTO BY GIOVACCHINO FORZANO

This one-act opera is set to a libretto by Giovacchino Forzano. The time is the end of the seventeenth century. Angelica's noble family forces her to retire to a convent because of an illicit relationsip that produced an illegitimate son seven years earlier. Sister Genovieffa shows the sisters the rays of the setting sun which, three times a year, cause the fountain to glow as if the water was pure gold. The sisters sprinkle this water on the tomb of one of their members. They speak of earthly desires. Sister Genovieffa says she longs to hold a lamb, as she used to be a sheperdess. Sister Angelica says she desires nothing. But the others know she is unhappy because she hasn't heard from her family since she arrived. A grand carriage arrives. It is her aunt, the Princess, who has come to request that she sign away her inheritance and to tell Angelica that her young son has died. Angelica is filled with unhappiness; when darkness falls, she signs the document. After the Princess departs, she cries over the death of her child. The sisters try to comfort her, but she has already decided that she will poison herself. As she prays for forgiveness for this sin, a heavenly choir sings to her. The Virgin appears, bathed in light, leading a child to Angelica. She raises her arms to the child, who comes to her, and as the voices sing of her salvation, she collapses to the ground in death.

■ ATTP UNICO	■ ACT I
LA PREGHIERA	THE PRAYER
Si apre il velario. Tramonto di primavera. Un raggio di sole batte al di sopra del getto della fonte. La scena è vuota. Le suore sono in chiesa e cantano.	The curtain rises. A clear spring sunset. A ray of sunshine strikes above the spout on the fount. The stage is empty. The sisters are in the church, singing.
Due Converse, in ritardo per la preghiera, traversano la scena; si soffermano un istante ad ascoltare un cinguettio che scende dai cipressi, quindi entrano in chiesa.	Two postulants, late for prayers, cross the stage. They pause an instant to listen to the chirping of birds, coming from atop the cypresses, then enter the church.
Suor Angelica, anch'essa in ritardo, esce da destra e si avvia in chiesa, apre la porta e fa l'atto di penitenza delle ritardatarie che le due converse non hanno fatto, ossia si inginocchia e bacia la terra; quindi richiude la porta. La preghiera termina. Le monache escono dalla chiesa a due per due. La Badessa si sofferma devanti alla croce. Le monache, passandole innanzi, fanno atto di reverenza. La Badessa le benedice, quindi si ritira a sinistra.	Sister Angelica, also late, enters from right and moves towards the church. She opens the door, and makes the act of penance customary with late-comers (which was not done by the two postulants) that is to say, she kneels down and kisses the ground; then she closes the door. The sisters come out of the church two by two. The Abbess stops in front of the Cross. The sisters, as they file past the Abbess, bow reverently. The Abbess blesses them, then withdraws to the left.
(Le suore restano unite formando, a piccoli gruppi, una specie di semicerchio. La Sorella zelatrice viene nel mezzo.)	The sisters remain together, forming, in small groups, a semi-circle. The Monitor comes forward to the center.
LE PUNIZIONI	THE PENANCES
LA SORELLA ZELATRICE: (alle due converse): Sorelle in umiltà mancaste alla quindéa, ed anche Suor Angelica, che però fece contrizione piena. Invece voi, sorelle, peccaste in distrazione e avete perso un giorno di quindéna!	THE MONITOR: (to the two postulants). My sisters in the Lord You missed one tridual day; So did Sister Angelica Who, however, did not forget to pray. Instead, you both, my sisters, Omitted a plain duty And thus you both have lost one tridual day!
LA CONVERSE: M'accuso della colpa e invoco una gran pena, e più grave sarà, più grazie vi dirò. sorella in umiltà. (Restano in attesa della penitenza mentre la zelatrice medita.)	THE POSTULANTS: I own that I am guilty And beg for a harsh penance! Let it be in accord With my base, foolish sin My sister in the Lord! (They await their penance, while the Monitor remains absorbed in deep meditation.)
LA MAESTRA DELLE NOVIZIE: (alle due novizie): (Chi arriva tardi in coro, si prostri e baci terra.)	THE MISTRESS OF NOVICES: Late comers to church service Must kneel and kiss the threshold.
LA SORELLA ZELATRICE: (alle converse): Farete venti volte la preghiera mentale per gli affitti, gli schiavi e per quelli che stanno in peccato mortale.	THE MONITOR: (to the postulants). For twenty times repeat Our usual mental prayer For the slaves, for the needy, For, all men and all women who are In need of absolution.
LA CONVERSE: Con gioia e con fervore! Cristo Signore, Sposo d'Amore, io voglio sol piacerti, ora e nell'ora della mia morte. Amen. (Si ritirano compunte sotto gli archi di destra.)	THE POSTULANTS: With joy and with true fervor! Christ, Blessed Saviour, And loving Spouse I will serve you only In life and in the hour Of my last breath. Amen! (They withdraw, full of compunction, under the right hand arcade.)
LA SORELLA ZELATRICE: (a Suor Lucilla): Suor Lucilla, il lavoro. Ritiratevi e osservate il silenzio.	THE MONITOR: (to Sister Lucilla). You, Lucilla, to work now. Please withdraw And observe strictest silence.

(Suor Lucilla si avvia sotto gli archi di destra, prende la rocca che è sopra una panca e si mette a filare.)

LA MAESTRA DELLE NOVIZIE: (alle novizie): (Perchè stasera in coro ha riso e fatto ridere.)

LA SORELLA ZELATRICE: (a Suor Osmina): Voi, Suor Osmina, in chiesa tenevate nascoste nelle maniche due rose scarlattine.

SUOR OSMINA: (indocile): Non è vero!

LA SORELLA ZELATRICE: (severa ma senza asprezza): Sorella, entrate in cella.
(Suor Osmina scuote le spalle):
Non tardate! La Vergine vi guarda!
(Suor Osmina si avvia sensa far parola. Le suore la seguono con lo sguardo fino a che non è scomparsa nella sua cella e mormorano: Regina virginum, ora pro ea.)

LA RICREAZIONE

LA SORELLA ZELATRICE: Ed or, sorelle in gioia, poichè piace al Signore e per tornare
più allegramente a faticare per amor Suo, ricreatevil!

LE SUORE: Amen!
(Le figure binache delle suore si sparpagliano per il chiostro e oltre gli archi. Suor Angelica sappetia la terra e innaffia l'erbe e i fiori.)

SUOR GENOVIEFFA: (gaiamente): Oh sorelle! Sorelle!
Poichè il Signore vuole, io voglio rivelarvi che una spera di sole è entrata in clausura!
Guardate dove batte,
là, là fra la versura!
Il sole è sull'acoro!
Commincian le tre sere
della fontana d'oro!

ALCUNE SUORE: —È vero, fra un istante vedrem l'acqua dorata!
—È per due sere ancora!
—È Maggio! È Maggio!
—È il bel sorriso di Nostra Signora che viene con quel raggio.
—Regina di Clemenza, grazie!

UNA NOVIZIA: Maestra, vi domando licenza di parlare.

LA MAESTRA DELLE NOVIZIE:
Sempre per laudare
le cose sante e belle.

(Sister Lucilla goes under the arch on the right and taking down a spinning-wheel, begins to spin.)

THE MISTRESS OF NOVICES: (to the Novices). Because today at psalms
She caused outbursts of laughter!

THE MONITOR: (to Sister Osmina). Sister Osmina, in church
You had hidden today into your sleeves
A bunch of scarlet roses!

SISTER OSMINA: (restive). Not so!

THE MONITOR: (severely, but not harshly). My sister, to your cell!
(Sister Osmina shrugs her shoulders.)
Do not tarry! The Virgin is there watching!
(Sister Osmina starts out without saying another word. The sisters follow her with their eyes until she disappears, and murmur: Regina virginium ora pro ea, etc.)

THE RECREATION

THE MONITOR: And now, beloved sisters
Since that is our Lord's pleasure
And that we may
With more contentment
Return to work
To please our Master,
Relax and play!

THE SISTERS: Amen!
(The white silhouettes of the sisters scatter through the cloister and beyond the arches. Sister Angelica is busy hoeing and watering the grass and flowers.)

SISTER GENEVIEVE: Oh, my sisters! My sisters!
Since that is our Lord's way
I'm going now to tell you
That a bright, golden sun ray
As silent as a mouse
Has stealthily entered here.
See, there amongst the boughs!
So that we may now count
The first of our three evenings
Of the fair golden fount!

A FEW SISTERS: It is true, within an instant
The water will be golden,
Resplendent as a fairy!
It is May! It is May!
The smiling face of our beloved Mary
Comes to us with that sun ray.
Oh Queen who is so merciful, we thank you!

A NOVICE: My teacher, with your leave
I wish to speak a word.

THE MISTRESS OF NOVICES: Provided it is in praise
Of matters holy and choice.

LA NOVIZIA: Qual grazia della Vergine rallegra le sorelle?

LA MAESTRA DELLE NOVIZIE:
Un segno risplendente
della bontà di Dio!
Per tre sere dell'anno solamente,
all'uscire dal coro,
Dio ci concede di vedere il sole che batte sulla fonte e la fà d'oro.

LA NOVIZIA: E le altre sere?

LA MASESTRA DELLE NOVIZIE:
O usciamo troppo presto e il sole è alto
o troppo tardi e il sole è tramontato.

ALCUNE SUORE: (con un accento di grande malinconia): —Un altr'anno è passato! . . . .
—E passato un altr'anno! . . . .
—E una sorella manca! . . . .
(Le suore, assorte, sembrano rievocare l'immagine della sorella che non è più.)

SUOR GENOVIEFFA: (improvvisamente, con accento ingenuo e quasi lieto): O sorelle in pio lavoro, quando il getto s'è indorato, non sarebbe ben portato un secchiello d'acqua d'oro sulla tomba a Bianca Rosa?

LE SUORE: Sì, la suora che riposa lo desidera di certo!

SUOR ANGELICA: I desideri sono i fior dei vivi, non fioriscon nel regno delie morte, perchè la Madre Vergine soccorre, e in Sua benignità
liberamente al desiar precorre;
prima che un desiderio sia fiorito la Madre delle Madri l'ha esaudito.
O sorella, la morte è vita bella!

LA SORELLA ZELATRICE: Noi non possiamo nemmen da vive avere desideri.

SUOR GENOVIEFFA: Se son leggieri e candidi perchè?
Voi non avete un desiderio?

LA SORELLA ZELATRICE: Io no!

UN'ALTRA: Ed io nemmeno!

UN'ALTRA: Io no!

UNA NOVIZIA: (timorosa): Io no!

SUOR GENOVIEFFA: Io sì.
E lo confesso:
(Volge lo sguardo in alto):
Soave Signor mio,
tu sai che prima d'ora
nel mondo ero pastora . . . .
Da cinqu'anni non vedo un agnellino;

THE NOVICES: About what special grace do
My sisters now rejoice?

THE MISTRESS OF NOVICES: A splendid, wondrous sign
Of God's unbounded mercy!
For three nights every year our Lord benign
When our work is all done,
Grants us the grace, as we return from prayers
To see the fount made golden by the sun!

THE NOVICE: And other evenings?

THE MISTRESS OF NOVICES: We leave either too soon in full daylight
Or much too late, long after shadows fall!

A FEW SISTERS: (with great melancholy). Another year has gone! . . . .
Another year has gone! . . . .
One sister dear is missing! . . . .
(The sisters, absorbed in thought, seem to make an effort to bring back to their eyes the image of the dead sister.)

SISTER GENEVIEVE: (suddenly, with simplicity and almost gaily).
My dear sisters, I propose
When the fount is all aglow
That we carry, in a row,
A few drops of golden water
On the tomb of Sister Rose.

THE SISTERS: Our dear friend, in her repose
Must be wishing that, for sure!

SISTER ANGELICA: Wishes are buds adorning living bodies
Never blooming where death holds her calm sway
Because the Virgin Mother's watchful eye
Is always fixed on her flock
Anticipating wishes from on high.
Before one lone desire is born in you,
The Mother of all Mothers makes it true!
Oh, my sister, we die to live anew!

THE MONITOR: We're not allowed
Even in life, to nurture vain desires.

SISTER GENEVIEVE: Even though light, and candid and unselfish?
Do you not ever wish for things?

THE MONITOR: Not I.

ANOTHER SISTER: The same with me.

ANOTHER SISTER: Nor I.

A NOVICE: (timidly). Nor I.

SISTER GENEVIEVE: I do.
I will confess it now . . . .
(with uplifted eyes):
Oh, sweetest Lord and Master,
You know I used to be
A shepherdess . . . .
It has been five years since I've seen a little lamb!

Signore, ti rincresco se dico che desidero vederne uno piccino, poterlo carezzare, toccargli il muso fresco e sentirlo belare? Se è colpa t’offerisco il Miserere mei. Perdonami, Signore, Tu che sei l’Agnus Dei.	Oh, Lord, am I capricious For wishing I might see One lamb all white and small To hold and hug a while Its darling, fuzzy head And hear its tender call? . . . . If wrong, I beg to offer The "Miserere mei," Forgive me, oh Master You are "Agnus Dei."
SUOR DOLCINA: (grassottella e rubiconda): Ho un desiderio anch’io!	SISTER DOLCINA: (rosy cheeked and rather stoutish). I have a wish to make!
LE SUORE: —Sorella, li sappiamo i vostri desideri! . . . . —Qualche boccone buono! —Della frutta gustosa! —La gola è colpa grave! . . . . (alle novizie): (È golosa! È golosa! . . . .) (Suor Dolcina resta mortificata e interdetta.)	THE SISTERS: Oh, Sister, we all know What are your fond desires! . . . . —Something really good to eat! —Candy and the best of meat! —A sin among the blackest! (to the novices): A gourmande! A gourmande! (Sister Dolcina looks highly mortified and dejected.)
SUOR GENOVIEFFA: (a Sour Angelica che sta annaffiando i fiori): Suor Angelica, e voi avete desideri?	SISTER GENEVIEVE: Angelica, do tell . . . . Have you had wishes, ever?
SUOR ANGELICA: (volgendosi verso le suore): . . . . Io . . . . no, sorella mia. (si volge ancora ai fiori):	SISTER ANGELICA: (turning towards the sisters). I . . . . no . . . . my sister . . . . never . . . . (She again turns towards the flowers.)
LE SUORE: (facendo gruppo dalla parte opposta a Suor Angelica. A bassa voce): -Che Gesù la perdoni, ha detto una bugia! —Ha detto una bugia!	THE SISTERS: (grouping themselves on the side opposite to Sister Angelica, whispering). Pray that Jesus forgive her! She told a fearful lie! She told a fearful lie!
UNA NOVIZIA: (avvicinandosi, curiosa): Perchè?	A NOVICE: (drawing near, full of curiosity). Why?
ALCUNE SUORE: (piano):—Noi lo sappiamo, ha un grande desiderio! —Vorrebbe aver notizie della famiglia sua! —Sono più di sett’anni, da quando è in monasterio, che non ha avuto nuove! —E sembra rassegnata, ma è tanto tormentata! —Nel mondo era ricchissima, lo disse la Badessa. —Era nobile! —Nobile! —Nobile? Principessa! —La vollero far monaca sembra . . . . per punizione! —Perchè? . . . . —Perchè? . . . . —Mah!? . . . . —Mah!?	A FEW SISTERS: (in low tone). Because we know! She wishes more than ever To hear what has become Of all her kin and friends! —It’s been over seven years Since she entered here And has not heard from home! —She seems to be resigned, In truth she pines away! —She comes of wealthy family So said our Mother Abbess, —She was noble! —Rich and noble! —Noble? She was a Princess! —She had to make her vows Forcibly . . . . and in punishment! —Why? . . . . —Why? . . . . —Oh! . . . . —Oh! . . . .
LA SORELLA INFERMIERA: (Accorre affannata): Suor Angelica, sentite!	THE SISTER NURSE: (rushing in, out of breath). Oh, Angelica, do help me!
SUOR ANGELICA: O sorella infermiera, che cosa accadde, dite!	SISTER ANGELICA: Oh, my sister, my dear nurse, What has happened, do tell me!
LA SORELLA INFERMIERA: Suora Chiara, là nell’orto, assettava la spalliera delle rose; all’improvviso tante vespe sono uscite, i’han pinzata qui nel viso! Ora è in cella e si lamenta. Ah! calmatele, sorella, il dolor che la tormenta!	THE SISTER NURSE: Sister Chiara, in the garden Went on trimming a new rose-bush When a swarm of frantic wasps Stung her on the head! She’s bemoaning in her cell! Her distress is hard to tell! Do help her, beloved sister!
ALCUNE SUORE: Poveretta! Poveretta!	A FEW SISTERS: Oh, poor Chiara! Oh, poor Chiara!
SUOR ANGELICA: Aspettate, ho un’erba e un fiore! (Corre cercando fra i fiori e l’erbe.)	SISTER ANGELICA: Wait, I have fine herbs and flowers! (She rushes about in search of herbs and flowers.)
LA SORELLA INFERMIERA: Suor Angelica ha sempre una ricetta buona, fatta coi fiori, sa trovar sempre un’erba benedetta per calmare i dolori!	THE SISTER NURSE: Sister Angelica has always a good recipe made with flowers She will find a blessed herb to sooth and cure all pain.
SUOR ANGELICA: (alla Suora infermiera porgendole alcune erbe): Ecco, questa è calenzólà: col latticcio che ne cola le bagate l’enfiagione; e con questa, una pozione. Dite a sorella Chiara che sarà molto amara ma che le farà bene. E le direte ancora che punture di vespe sono piccole pene; e che non si lamenti, chè a lamentarsi crescono i tormenti.	SISTER ANGELICA: (to the Sister Nurse, handing her some herbs). Now this herb is something fine! Aromatic more than pine! It will help, used as a lotion, And with this you’ll make a potion. Please tell our dear sister To drink it, although bitter It will help her a whole lot . . . . And also please tell Chiara That a sting in the main Means just a little pain; That if she laments More severe will be her torments.
LA SORELLA INFERMIERA: Le saprò riferire. Grazie, sorella, grazie.	THE SISTER NURSE: Your directions I’ll observe Thanks, my dear sister, thanks!
SUOR ANGELICA: Sono qui per servire.	SISTER ANGELICA: I am here, glad to serve.

IL RITORNO DALLA CERCA

THE RETURN FROM THE QUEST

(Dal fondo a sinistra entrano due Suore cercatrici conducendo un ciuchino carico di roba.)	(From rear, left, enter two Questuants leading a little donkey loaded with all sorts of things.)
LE CERCATRICI: Laudata Maria.	THE QUESTUANTS: God bless the Virgin Mary!
TUTTE: E sempre sia!	ALL: Amen!
LE CERCATRICI: Buona cerca stasera, sorella dispensiera! (Le Suore si fanno intorno al ciuchino; le cercatrici scaricano e consegnano le limosine alla Sorella dispensiera.)	THE QUESTUANTS: Our quest has been successful As all of you can see! (The sisters crowd around the donkey; the Questuants unload, and turn the gifts over to the sister housekeeper.)
UNA CERCATRICE: Un otre d’olio.	A QUESTUANT: Ten gallons of oil.
SUOR DOLCINA: (che non può stare): Uh! buono!	SISTER DOLCINA: (who cannot resist her craving for good things). Oh, fine!
L’ALTRA CERCATRICE: Nocciòle, sei collane.	OTHER QUESTUANT: New filberts, fifty pounds.
UNA CERCATRICE: Un panierin di noci.	A QUESTUANT: A basket full of walnuts.
SUOR DOLCINA: Buone con sale e pane!	SISTER DOLCINA: So good with salt and biscuits!
LA ZELATRICE: (riprendendola): Sorella!	THE MONITOR: (reproachfully). Now, sister!

UNA CERCATRICE: Qui farina, e qui una caciottella
che suda ancora latte,
bona come una pasta!
Un sacchetto di lenti,
dell'uova, burro e basta.

ALCUNE SUORE: Buona cerca stasera, sorella dispensiera!
(Una cercatrice porta via il ciuchino.)

L'ALTRA CERCATRICE: Per voi sorella ghiotta . . . .

SUOR DOLCINA: (felice): Un tralcetto di ribes!
(vedendo che le altre si scandalizzano):
Degnatene, sorelle!

UNA SUORA: (scherzosamente):
Uh! Se ne prendo un chicco la martorio!

SUOR DOLCINA: No, no, prendete!

ALCUNE SUORE: Grazie!
(Formano un gruppetto a desira e beccano il ribes, fra risatine discrete.)

LA CERCATRICE: Che è venuto stasera in parlatorio?

ALCUNE SUORE: —Nessuno.
—Nessuno.
—Perchè?

LA CERCATRICE: Fuor del portone c'è fermata una ricca berlina.

SUOR ANGELICA: (volgendosi, come assalita da una improvvisa inquietudine.) Come, sorella?
Come avete detto?
Una berlina è fuori? . . . .
Ricca? . . . . Ricca? . . . . Ricca? . . . .

LA CERCATRICE: Da gran signori.
Certo aspetta qualcuno che è entrato nel convento e forse fra un momento suonerà la campana a parlatorio.

SUOR ANGELICA: (conansia crescente): Ah! ditemi sorella, com'era la berlina?
Non aveva uno stemma?
Uno stemma d'avorio? . . . .
E dentro tappezzata d'una seta turchina ricamata in argento? . . . .

LA CERCATRICE: (interdetta): Io non lo so, sorella;
ho veduto soltanto
una berlina . . . . . bella!

LA SUORE: (osservando suor Angelica):—È diventata bianca . . . .
—Ora è tutta vermiglia! . . . .
—Poverina!
—È commossa!

A QUESTUANT: Lots of flour!
See here this fine pot-cheese
As fresh as morning dew
The best I can recall!
A small bag of new lentils,
Eggs, butter, and that's all!

A FEW SISTERS: The quest has been successful
As all of us can see.
(One of the Questuants leads the donkey away.)

OTHER QUESTUANT: For you who like good cheer . . . .

SISTER DOLCINA: (happy). A whole branch of raspberries!
(Noticing the other sisters' teasing attitude):
Oh, sisters, do have some!

A SISTER: (teasingly). I'd be afraid to take one! Thank you, no!

SISTER DOLCINA: No, no, do take some!

A FEW SISTERS: Thanks, dear!
(They form a group to the right, picking berries from the branch. There is subdued laughter.)

THE QUESTUANT: Who is now at the convent? Do you know?

A FEW SISTERS: —No one.
—Yes, no one
—Tell us why.

THE QUESTUANT: Outside the gate
A gorgeous, magnificent coach is standing.

SISTER ANGELICA: (turning around as if seized by a sudden fear). What is it, sister? Just what did you say?
You said a coach outside? . . . .
Gorgeous? . . . . Gorgeous? . . . . Gorgeous?

THE QUESTUANT: Truly imposing.
It is waiting for someone.
Who has come to the convent,
And maybe in a moment
The great bell will announce the visitor.

SISTER ANGELICA: (with growing trepidation). Oh do tell me, my sister,
What did that coach look like?
Did you notice its blazon?
A blazon made of ivory? . . . .
And inside all upholstered
With a rare azure damask
And embroidered with silver? . . . .

THE QUESTUANT: (somewhat confused). I really couldn't tell, my sister;
All I know is I saw
A splendid coach . . . . my sister!

THE SISTERS: (all watching Sister Angelica).—She was as white as snow . . . .
—And now is red as fire! . . . .
—The poor darling!
—She is trembling!

—Supra che sien persone di famiglia!
(Una campanella rintocca; le suore accorrono da ogni parte.)

LE SUORE: —Vien gente in parlatorio!
—Una visita viene!
—Per chi?
—Per chi sarà?
—Fosse per me!
—Per me!
—Fosse mia madre
che ci porta le tortorine bianche!
—Fosse la mia cugina di campagna che porta il seme di lavanda buono! . . . .
(Suor Genovieffa si avvicina alle compagne e quasi interrompe queste esclamazioni indicando con un gesto pietoso Suor Angelica.)

SUOR ANGELICA: (volgendo gli occhi al cielo, mormora): O Madre eletta, leggimi nel cuore, volgi per me un sorriso al Salvatore . . . .
(Il gruppo delle suore si avvicina in silenzio a Suor Anelica. —Suor Genovieffa esce dal gruppo e con grande dolcezza):

SUOR GENOVIEFFA: (a Suor Angelica): O sorella in amore, noi preghiamo la Stella delle Stelle che la visita, adesso, sia per voi.

SUOR ANGELICA: (commossa):
Buone sorelle, grazie!
(Da sinistra entra la Badessa per chiamare la suora che dovrà audare al parlatorio.—L'attesa è viva.—In quell'attimo di silenzio tutte le suore fanno il sacrificio del loro desiderio a pro della sorella in gran pena.—Suor Angelica ha sempre gli occhi volti al cielo, immobile come se tutta la sua vita fosse sospesa.)

LA BADESSA: (chiamando): Suor Angelica!
(Fa cenno che le suore si ritirino.)

LE SUORE: (come respirando, finalmente): Ah! . . . .
(Il getto della fonte si è indorato, le suore riempiono un secchiello d'acqua, si avviano, serso il cimitero e scompaiono.)

SUOR ANGELICA: Madre, Madre, parlate! chi è, Madre . . . . chi è?
Son sett'anni che aspetto! . . . .
Son sett'anni che aspetto una parola . . . .
una nuova, uno scritto . . . .

—She hopes someone has come to inquire for her!
(The bell rings; the sisters rush in from all sides.)

THE SISTERS: —The bell announcing strangers!
—A visitor is coming!
—For whom?
—For whom will it be?
—Maybe for me!
—For me!
—Perhaps my mother
Is bringing us a pair of dear, white doves!
—I wish it were my cousin from the mountains
Who brings us lavender and other seeds! . . . .
(Sister Genevieve draws near her companions and almost interrupts their exclamations by pointing to Sister Angelica with a gesture of pity.)

SISTER ANGELICA: (with uplifted eyes, whispers). Oh! Blessed Mother, read within my mind
And smile for me to Jesus, pure and kind!
(The group of sisters silently approaches Sister Angelica.—Sister Genevieve comes out of the group and addresses Sister Angelica with exquisite sweetness.)

SISTER GENEVIEVE: (to Angelica). Oh! sister, kind and true!
We shall implore the Star of all the Stars
That the visit announced be for you.

SISTER ANGELICA: (with great emotion). Good sister, I thank you!
(From the left enters the Abbess who is to announce for which sister is the visit. Expectancy is very high. In that moment of silence, all the sisters offer their desire in sacrifice in favor of the afflicted sister. Sister Angelica, her eyes still uplifted, remains motionless, as if her whole being were being held in suspense.)

THE ABBESS: (calling). Sister Angelica!
(With a wave of her hand she directs the other sisters to withdraw.)

THE SISTERS: (as if breathing at last). Ah! . . . .
(The spout of the fount is now the color of purest gold. The sisters fill a small watering pot with the golden water, they move away in the direction of the cemetery and disappear.)

SISTER ANGELICA: Mother, Mother, oh, tell me
Who came, Mother? . . . . who came?
Seven years I've been waiting
Seven years, spent without a single word

Tutto ho offerto alla Vergine in piena espiazione . . . .
che adesso vi scompone!

LA BADESSA: Offritele anche l'ansia
che adesso vi scompone!
(Suor Angelica, affranta, si curva lentamente in ginocchio e si raccoglie.)
(De voci delle suore arrivano dal cimitero.)

LE VOCI DELLE SUORE: Requiem aeternam dona ei, domine,
et lux perpetua
luceat ei—Requiescat in pace—
Amen.

SUOR ANGELICA: (alzando gli occhi): Madre, sono serena e sottomessa.

LA BADESSA: È venuta a trovarvi vostra zia Principessa.

SUOR ANGELICA: Ah! . . . .

LA BADESSA: In parlatorio si dica quanto
vuole ubbidienza,
necessità.
Ogni parola è udita dalla Vergine Pia.

SUOR ANGELICA: La Vergine m'ascolti e così sia.

LA ZIA PRINCIPESSA

(La Badessa si avvia e scompare a sinistra. Suor Angelica si avvia verso gli archi del parlatorio. Guarda ansiosamente verso la porticina. Si ode un rumore di chiavi. La porta viene aperta in dentro dalla Suora clavaria che rimarrà a finaco della porta, nella penombra della stanza. Quindi si vedrà la Badessa che si sofferma davanti alla Suora clavaria. La due Suore fanno ala e fra le due figure bianche, che si curvano lievemente in atto di ossequio, passa una figura nera, severamente composta in un naturale atteggiamento di grande dignità aristocratica; la zia Principessa. Entra. Cammina lentamente appoggiandosi ad un bastoncino di ebano. Si sofferma: getta per un attimo lo sguardo sulla nipote, freddamente e senza tradire nessuna emozione; Suor Angelica invece alla vista della zia è presa da grande commozione, ma si frena perchè la figura della clavaria e della Badessa si profilano ancora nell'ombra. La porticina si richiude. Suor Angelica, commossa; quasi vacillante va incontro alla zia, ma la vecchia protende la sinistra come per consentire soltanto all'atto sottomesso del baciamano. Suor Angelica prende la mano che le viene tesa, la porta alle labbra e, mentre la siede, ella cade in ginocchio, senza porter parlare.

Or a letter, or news . . . .
All have I offered to the Virgin
In fullest expiation . . . .

THE ABBESS: To the Virgin offer also Your present exaltation!
(Sister Angelica, crushed, slowly bends her knees and concentrates in prayer. The voices of the sisters are heard from the cemetery.)

THE VOICES OF THE SISTERS: Requiem aeternam
Don ei, domine,
Et lux perpetua
Luceat ei—Requiescat in pace—
Amen!

SISTER ANGELICA: (raising her eyes). Mother, I am serene and blessed by God.

THE ABBESS: I announce a visit
From your aunt, the Princess!

SISTER ANGELICA: Ah! . . . .

THE ABBESS: Your words will be Full of humility
And all submission! . . . .
On this occasion! . . . .
All you say will be known
To the Virgin, in Heaven!

SISTER ANGELICA: I pray the Blessed Virgin to hear, Amen!

THE PRINCESS

(The Abbess moves away towards left of stage and disappears. Sister Angelica walks towards the reception arcade and anxiously looks in the direction of the little door. A noise of keys. The door is opened outwardly by the sister portress who remains standing alongside the door in the shadow of the room. Then appears the Abbess who stops next to the sister portress. The two sisters stand one on each side of the door, and, between the two white figures, bending in a deferential attitude, passes a dark figure severely composed in a deportment of aristocratic dignity. Enter the Princess, who walks rather slowly, leaning on a thin ebony stick. She stops and throws a glance at her niece, coldly and without a trace of emotion. Sister Angelica, at sight of her aunt, is very much moved, but controls herself because the figures of the Abbess and the sister portress are seen at the door. The little door is closed again. Sister Angelica, full of emotion, and almost staggering, moves towards her aunt, but the old lady merely stretches out her left hand as if to indicate that she will only consent to Sister Angelica kissing it. Sister Angelica seizes the outstretched hand, raises it to her lips, and while the Princess sits down, she falls upon her knees, unable to utter a single word. A moment of silence. Sister Angelica, with tears streaming down her cheeks, imploringly keeps her eyes upon her aunt's face. But the old lady ostentatiously stares straight ahead.)

Un attimo di silenzio. Suor Angelica, con gli occhi pieni di lacrime, non ha mai tolto lo sguardo dal volto della zia, uno sguardo pietoso, implorante. La vecchia invece ostentatamente guarda avanti a sè.)

LA ZIA PRINCIPESSA: Il Principe Gualtiero vostro padre, la Principessa Clara vostra madre, quando venti anni or sono
vennero a morte . . . .
(La vecchia si interrompe per farsi il segno della croce):
mi affidarono i figli ancor fanciulli
e tutto il patrimonio di famiglia.
Io dovevo dividerlo quando ciò ritenessi conveniente, e con giustizia piena.
È quanto ho fatto. Ecco la pergamena.
Voi potete osservarla, discuterla, firmarla.

SUOR ANGELICA: Dopo sett'anni . . . . son davanti a voi . . . .
Ispiratevi a questo luogo santo . . . .
È luogo di clemenza . . . .
È luogo di pietà . . . .

LA ZIA PRINCIPESSA: Di penitenza.
Io debbo rivelarvi la ragione perchè addivenni a questa divisione:
vostra sorella
Anna Viola
anderà sposa.

SUOR ANGELICA: Sposa?! . . . .
Sposa la piccola
Anna Viola?
Sposa la sorellina,
la piccina?
(Si interrompe; pensa un attimo):
piccina?! . . . . Ah! . . . . Son sett'anni! . . . .
Son passati sett'anni!
O sorellina bionda che vai sposa,
o sorellina mia, tu sia felice!
E chi la ingemma?

LA ZIA PRINCIPESSA: Chi per amore condonò la colpa di cui macchiaste il nostro bianco stemma.

SUOR ANGELICA: Sorella di mia madre, voi siete inesorabile!

LA ZIA PRINCIPESSA: Che dite? E che pensate?
Implacata son io? Inesorabile?
Vostra madre invocate quasi contro di me?
Di frequente, la sera,
là, nel nostro oratorio,
io mi raccolgo

THE PRINCESS: Your father, the all powerful, Prince Gualtiero
And your beloved mother, Princess Clara,
Upon their death
Twenty years ago . . . .
(The old lady stops to cross herself):
Entrusted to my care their little children
Together with their ample patrimony:
I was to subdivide it
With wisdom and all fairness
In case I should have deemed it opportune.
This I have done.
Here is the document.
You may have it, examine and sign it.

SISTER ANGELICA: After seven years . . . . I am before you May this blessed ground touch your heart, my aunt . . . .
This place ought to entrance
Your clemency and pity . . . .

THE PRINCESS: And also your penance.
I must, however, tell you now the reason
That made imperative this subdivision;
Your little sister,
Anna Viola,
Will soon be married.

SISTER ANGELICA: Married? . . . .
Married, my little
Anna Viola?
My darling little sister
Still so young!
(She stops and thinks a moment):
Why so young? . . . . Seven years! . . . .
Seven years have gone by!
Oh! sister blond and fair, you will be married,
My darling little pet, may you be happy!
Who is the bridegroom?

THE PRINCESS: A man who has forgiven the black stain
Cast upon our unblemished blazon.

SISTER ANGELICA: Oh, sister of my mother
You are so hard and merciless.

THE PRINCESS: How dare you speak that way?
You call me hard? . . . . You dare call me merciless?
Your mother you would sway
Almost against your aunt?
Very often at night
In our chapel at home

Nel silenzio di quei raccoglimenti, il mio spirito par che s'allontani e s'incontri con quel di vostra madre in colloqui eterei e arcani!
Come è penoso
udire i morti dolorare e piangere!
Quando l'estasi mistica scompare per voi serbata ho una parola sola:
espiare! Espiare! . . . .
Offritela alla Vergine
la mia giustizia!

SUOR ANGELICA: Tutto ho offerto alla Vergine . . . . sì . . . . tutto!
Ma v'è un'offerta che non posso fare! . . . .
Alla Madre soave della Madri non posso offrire di scordar . . . . mio figlio, mio figlio! Il figlio mio
La creatura che mi fu strappata, che ho veduto e baciato una sol volta!
Creatura mia! Creatura mia lontana!
È questa la parola
che imploro da sett'anni!
Parlatemi di lui!
Com'è, com'è mio figlio?
Com'è dolce il suo volto?
Come sono i suoi occhi?
Parlatemi di lui,
di mio figlio . . . . mio figlio!
(Un silenzio; la vecchia tace, guardando la madre in angoscia):
Perchè tacete?
Perchè tacete?
Un altro istante di questo silenzio
e vi dannate per l'eternità!
La Vergine vi ascolta e Lei vi giudica!

LA ZIA PRINCIPESSA: Or son due anni venne colpito da fiero morbo . . . .
Tutto fu fatto per salvarlo.

SUOR ANGELICA: È morto?
(La zia curva il capo e tace): Ah!
(Suor Angelica, con un grido, cade di schianto in terra, in avanti, col volto sulle, mani. La zia si alza come per soccorrerla credendola svenuta; ma, al singhiozzare di Suor Angelica, frena il suo movimento di pietà; in piedi si volge verso un'immagine sacra che è al muro, alla sua destra, e con le due mani appoggiate al bastoncino di ebano, con la testa curva, in silenzio, prega. Il pianto di Suor Angelica continua suffocato e straziante.—Nel parlatorio è già la semioscurità della sera.—Si ode la porta aprirsi. Suor Angelica si solleva restando sempre in ginocchio e col volto coperto. Entra la Suora clavaria con una lucernina accesa che pone sul tavolo. La zia Principessa parla alla Suora. La Suora esce e ritorna con la Badessa recando in mano una tavoletta, un calamaio e una penna. Suor Angelica ode entrare le due Suore si volge, vede, comprende; in silenzio si trascina verso il tavolo e con mano tremante firma la pergamena. Quindi si allontana di nuovo e si ricopre il volto con le mani. Le due Suore escono. La zia Principessa prende la pergamena, fa per andare verso la nipote, ma al suo avvicinarsi Suor Angelica fa un leggiero movimento con tutta la persona come per ritrarsi. Allora la zia procede verso la porta, batte col bastoncino, la clavaria apre, prende il lume, va avanti. La zia Principessa la segue. Di sulla soglia volge uno sguardo alla nipote. Esce. Scompare. La porta si richiude.—La sera è calata; nel cimitero le Suore vanno accendendo i lumini sulle tombe.)

I kneel in prayer
In the stillness of that religious solitude
I feel my spirit sallying forth from me
To encounter the spirit of your mother!
In ethereal and lofty reverie!
It is sad and painful
To hear the dead's long sighs when they bemoan!
When the mystical vision fades away
Of you remains in me one thought alone:
She must pay for her sin! . . . .
Now offer to the Virgin
My sternest justice!

SISTER ANGELICA: All have I offered her . . . . yes . . . . all I had!
But there's an offer I can never make!
To that Mother, the sweetest of all Mothers
I cannot offer to forget . . . . my son.
My son! . . . . my darling son!
The sweet, dear baby torn away from me
Whom I have seen and kissed but once!
My darling child! My darling child so distant!
This is the word I've expected
For seven years!
Do speak to me of him!
Tell me what he looks like!
Hasn't he the sweetest face?
Are his eyes like stars?
Do speak to me of him
Of my son . . . . of my son!
(A pause. The old lady does not answer while gazing at the distracted mother):
Why don't you speak?
Why don't you speak?
Another instant of this gruesome silence
And for all time you'll damn your cruel soul!
The Virgin, is there listening. She will judge!

THE PRINCESS: It has been two years since
The child was stricken
By fatal sickness . . . .
No care was spared to save his life.

SISTER ANGELICA: He's dead? . . . .
(The aunt silently bends her head):
Ah!
(Sister Angelica, with a heartbreaking cry, drops to the ground face downwards. Her aunt gets up to aid her, thinking she has fainted; but, hearing Sister Angelica's sobs, she controls her movement of pity. Standing up, she turns towards a sacred image on the wall to her right and, leaning with both hands on the ebony stick, with bent head, she prays in silence. Sister Angelica's sobs continue, stifled and heartrending. Darkness now begins to pervade the entire scene. The door opens. Sister Angelica raises herself from the ground, but remains kneeling with both hands covering her face. The portress enters with a small light which she places on the little table. The Princess speaks to the portress, who leaves only to return immediately with the Abbess carrying in her hand a tablet, and ink-well and a quill. Sister Angelica hears the sisters approaching, turns around and understands. In silence, she drags herself up to the table and with trembling hand affixes her signature to the parchment. Then she moves away, and, again, she covers her face with both hands. The two sisters leave. The Princess takes the parchment, then moves towards her niece; but, as she draws near, Sister Angelica shrinks away from her with a slight movement of her whole body. Then the Princess proceeds towards the door, strikes it with her cane, the portress opens, takes up the lantern and shows the Princess her way out. The Princess follows her. From the threshhold she again glances back to her niece. She goes out and disappears. The door is again closed. Night has fallen. In the cemetery the sisters are lighting the small lanterns on the various tombstones.)

LA GRAZIA

SUOR ANGELICA: (rimasta sola): Senza mamma, bimbo, tu sei morto!
Le tue labbra
senza i baci miei, scoloriron
fredde, fredde!
E chiudesti,
bimbo, gli occhi belli!
Non potendo carezzarmi, le manine
componesti in croce!
E tu sei morto senza sapere quanto t'amava
questa tua mamma!
Ora che sei un angelo del cielo,
ora tu puoi vederla la tua mamma, tu puoi scendere giù pel firmamento ed aleggiare intorno a me ti sento.
Sei qui, baci e m'accarezzi.
Ah! dimmi, quando in ciel potrò vederti?
Quando potro baciarti?
O dolce fine d'ogni mio dolore, quando in cielo con te potro salire?
Quando potrò morire?
Dillo alla mamma, creatura bella,
con un leggero scintillar di stella.
Parlami, amore, amor!

THE GRACE

SISTER ANGELICA: (alone).
Without your mother,
Dearest, you died!
Your sweet lips
Without my fond kisses
Grew white and Cold as snow!
And your eyes
You did close, my darling!
Then, unable
To caress me,
Your tiny hands
Were crossed on your chest!
And you died
Without ever knowing
With what wild passion
Your mother loved you!
Now that you are an angel of the heavens
You will at last behold your mother's face.
You can descend to me from up above
And I seem to hear your flight through the space.
I feel your kisses and caresses!
Oh tell me, when may I see you in heaven?
When will I know your kisses?
Oh sweetest end of all my bitter sorrows,
Tell me when I may hope to fly to

(I lumi del cimitero sono tutti accesi: il chiostro è ormai quasi oscuro. Le Suore escono dal cimitero e si avviano verso Suor Angelica che è come in estasi. Il gruppo delle Suore si avvicina in silenzio. Nella semioscurità sembra che le figure bianche, camminando, non tocchino terra.)

LE SUORE: Sarete contenta, sorella, la Vergine ha accolto la prece.
Sarete contenta, sorella,
la Vergine ha fatto la grazia.
(Suor Angelica si leva come in preda ad un'esaltazione mistica.)

SUOR ANGELICA: La grazia è discesa, dal cielo già tutta già tutta m'accende, risplende! risplende! risplende!
Già vedo, sorelle, la meta . . . .
Sorelle, son lieta! son lieta!
Cantiamo! Già in cielo si canta . . . .
Lodiamo la Vergine santa!

TUTTE: Lodiamo la Vergine santa!
(Si ode dal fondo a destra il segnale delle tavolette. Le Suore si avviano verso l'arcata di destra e la teoria bianca scompare nelle celle.)

LA VOCE DI ANGELICA: La grazia è discesa dal ciel! . . . .
(La notte avvolge il chiostro. Sulla chiesetta si va illuminando a poco a poco una scintillante cupola di stelle. La luna dà sui cipressi—Si apre una cella: esce Suor Angelica.)

SUOR ANGELICA: (Ha in mano una ciotola di terracotta che posa a piè di un cipresso; raccoglie un fastelletto di sterpi e rami, raduna dei sassi a mo' d'alari e vi depone il fastelletto; va alla fonte e riempie la ciotola d'acqua: accende con l'acciarino il fuoco e vi mette su la ciotola. Quindi si avvia verso la fiorita.)
Amici fiori, voi mi compensate di tutte le premure mie amorose!
(come chiamando per nome il fiore e l'erba che coglie.)
Vieni, oleandro.
Pruno lauro, ove sei? . . . .
Atropo bello, vieni! . . . .
Ed ora a te, cicuta viperina! . . . .
Mi dici: "Non scordarmi!"
No, non ti scordo, vieni ad aiutarmi!

you
When will death overtake me?
Do tell your mother, sweetest of all children,
With the bright light of yonder flickering stars,
Speak, oh speak, my sweetheart!
(The lanterns are all lighted in the cemetery; the cloister is now shrouded in almost complete darkness. The sisters come out of the graveyard two by two and draw near Sister Angelica, now absorbed in ecstasy. The group of the sisters draws closer, in silence. In the penumbra it seems as if the white-clad shadows scarcely touch the ground as they walk along.)

THE SISTERS: Your wish will be granted, dear sister,
The Virgin has heard your heart's prayer.
Your wish will be granted, dear sister,
The Virgin takes you in her care!
(Sister Angelica rises as if under the spell of a mystic exaltation.)

SISTER ANGELICA: Her blessing has come down from Heaven
And pours in my soul new delight,
Resplendent, so brilliant, so bright!
I see now, dear sisters, my goal
And filled with great joy is my soul!
Sing, sisters, the angels are singing . . . .
Our souls to the Virgin are clinging!

ALL: Our souls to the Virgin are clinging!
(From back stage, to the right, is heard the rattle. The sisters move in the direction of the arcade and the white theory vanishes into the cells.)

ANGELICA'S VOICE: Her blessing has come down from Heaven!
(The cloister is now submerged in complete darkness. Upon the little church, gradually, is lighted a shining cupola of stars. The moon rises above the cypresses—A cell-door opens. Sister Angelica appears.)

SISTER ANGELICA: (carries in her hand an earthen jar which she puts down at the foot of a cypress; she makes a small bunch of brambles and branches, heaps up a few stones in the fashion of andirons and places the bunch upon them. She goes to the fount and fills the jar with water. She lights the fire with a piece of flint and puts the jar on the fire. Then she walks towards the shrubbery): Oh, friendly flowers, you are fair compensation
For all the sorrows flung on me by love!
(As if calling by name the flowers and herbs she is picking):
Come, oleander.
Where are you, darkest laurel? . . . .

(volgendosi e stringendo i fiori al petto):
E siate benedetti, amici fiori, che consolate tutti i miei dolori!
(Fa un pugnello delle erbe e dei fiori colti e li getta nella ciotola fumante, guarda un attimo il formarsi del veleno, prende la ciotola e la posa a piè della croce; quindi si volge a destra verso le cellette.)
Addio, buone sorelle, addio, addio!
Io vi lascio per sempre.
M'ha chiamata mio figlio!
Dentro un raggio di stelle m'è apparso il suo sorriso, m'ha detto: Mamma, vieni in Paradiso!
Addio! Addio!
Addio, chiesetta! In te quanto ho pregato!
Buona accoglievi preghiere e pianti.
È discesa la grazia benedetta!
Muoio per lui e in ciel lo rivedrò!
(Esaltata, abbraccia la croce, la bacia, si curva rapidamente, prende la ciotola, si volge verso la chiesa e guardando al cielo beve il veleno. Quindi si appoggia ad un cipresso e comprimendosi il petto con la sinistra e abbandonando lentamente il braccio destro lascia cadere la ciotola a terra.
L'atto del suicidio ormai compiuto sembra la tolga dalla esaltazione a cui era in preda e la riconduca alla verità. Un rapido silenzio. Il suo volto prima sereno e sorridente si atteggia in una espressione angosciosa come se una rivelazione improvvisa e tremenda le fosse apparsa.)
(Le nubi coprono adesso la luna e le stelle; la scena è oscura.)
(Si leva un grido disperato):

Beautiful nightshade, come! . . . .
It is now your turn, oh powerful, bitter hemlock!
You say: "Forget me not!"
How could I! Come, I have fought enough!
(Turning around and pressing the flowers to her breast):
And you be blessed all, oh fragrant flowers,
You who will quench the pain of my last hours!
(She takes a handful of the herbs and flowers she has picked and throws them into the boiling water, looks a while at the poison being formed, takes the jar and places it at the foot of the cross; then turns to the right, toward the cell):
My dear sisters, farewell, farewell, farewell!
I am leaving for ever.
My son is calling!
Among the flickering stars
I saw his smile so dear!
He said from Heaven:
"Mother, come, come here!"
Farewell! farewell!
Farewell, dear church! Wherein I prayed so much!
Friendly shelter for my sobs and my prayers.
From Heaven did descend the Virgin's blessing!
I die for him and rush into his arms!
(In an impulse of irresistible exaltation she embraces and kisses the cross, then, bending rapidly, she picks up the jar, turns towards the church and with her eyes fixed in the heavens, drinks the poison. Then she leans against a cypress and, pressing her chest with her left hand and slowly dropping her right arm, she lets the jar fall to the ground.
The act of suicide she has committed seems to free Sister Angelica from the exaltation that had seized her, bringing her back to reality. A brief pause. Her face, so serene and smiling before, now takes an expression of intense anguish, as if a sudden and terrible revelation had come upon her.)
(Clouds now cover the moon and the stars; the stage is very dark. A desperate cry is heard.)

IL MIRACOLO

Ah! Son dannata!
Mi son data la morte!
Io muoio in peccato mortale!
(Si getta disperatamente in ginocchio.)
O Madonna, Madonna, per amor di mio figlio
smarrita ho la ragione!
non mi fare morire in dannazione!
Dammi un segno di grazia! grazia!
Dammi un segno di grazia! grazia!
O Madonna, salvami!

THE MIRACLE

Ah, I am lost!
I have taken my life!
I die with the blackest of sins!
(In despair, she throws herself to the ground):
Oh! Madonna, Madonna!
It was the love of my child
That made me lose my reason.
Don't let me die, Madonna, in disgrace!
Give me a sign of your mercy!
Give me a sign of your mercy!

Una madre ti prega,
una madre t'implora . . . .
O Madonna, salvami!
(Già le sembra udire le voci degli angeli imploranti per lei la Madre delle Madri.)

GLI ANGELI: O gloriosa virginum
Sublimis inter sidera,
Qui te creavit, parvulum
Lactente nutris ubere.
Quod Heva tristis abstulit
Tu reddis almo germine:
Intrent ut astra flebiles,
Coeli recludis cardines.
(Suor Angelica vede il miracolo

Oh, Madonna, save me!
It is a mother that prays to you!
It is a mother imploring . . . .
Oh, Madonna, save me!
(She seems to hear the voice of angels imploring for her, the Mother of all Mothers.)

THE ANGELS: O gloriosa Virginum
Sublimis inter sidera,
Qui te crevait, parvulum
Lacente nutris ubere.
Quod Heva tristis abstulit
Tu reddis almo germine:
Intrent ut astra flebiles,
Coeli recludis cardines.
(Sister Angelica sees the miracle compiersi: la chiesetta Sfolgora di mistica luce, la porta si apre: apparisce la Regina del conforto, solenne, dolcissima e, avanti a Lei, un bimbo biondo, tutto bianco.)

SUOR ANGELICA: Ah! . . . .
(La Vergine sospinge, con dolce geto, il bimbo verso la moribonda)

SUOR ANGELICA: Ah!
(Muore.)

Velario.

taking place. The little church suddenly becomes resplendent with mystic light. The door opens and the Queen of comfort appears, solemn, with a su eet expression on her face and, in front of her, a blond child, all white, is seen.)

SISTER ANGELICA: Ah!
(The Virgin gently, with the kindest of gestures, pushes the child towards the dying mother)

SISTER ANGELICA: Ah!
(she dies.)

CURTAIN.

Dido and Æneas (1689)

Music by Henry Purcell ■ Libretto by Nahum Tate

This three-act opera, set to a libretto by Nahum Tate based upon the fourth book of the Aeneid by Virgil, was premiered at Hosiah Priest's Boarding School for Girls, London in October or December, 1689. The opera begins at the royal palace at Carthage, where Belinda pleads with Dido to be calm. But Dido has fallen in love with Aeneas, who has recently come from overseas. Belinda reassures Dido that Aeneas is in love with her, and the chorus urges Dido to marry him. Aeneas indeed confesses his love to Dido, who begs him to follow his destiny. Belinda calls upon the goddess of Love to assist in their union. In the cave of the witches, a Sorceress tells of her plan to separate the lovers and ruin Carthage. She sends her elf, disguised as Mercury, to Aeneas, instructing him with a fake message from Jupiter to leave Dido and Carthage behind. Aeneas, Dido and Belinda are out hunting with their retainers when the Sorceress raises a storm, forcing them to leave the woods. Aeneas is told by the elf to leave Carthage that very night. Aeneas' sailors prepare to depart. The sorceress and the witches enter, delighted about Dido's soon-to-be-ruin and the fleet's destruction. Aeneas is about to leave, and Dido laments to Belinda about her loss. Aeneas, caught between obeying the orders of Love and Jupiter, chooses Jove. Grief-stricken, Dido orders him to go and, left alone with Belinda, prays that her mistakes will not cause Aeneas harm. She dies, and the chorus asks Love to scatter rose petals upon her body.

NOTE: The music for this opera was written for the following original English libretto and therefore has not been edited in any way.

■ Act I

Scene the Plaza

(Enter Dido and Belinda, and Train.)

BEL: Shake the Cloud from off your Brow, Fate your wishes doth Allow.
Empire Growing,
Pleasures Flowing,
Fortune Smiles and so should you,
Shake the Cloud from off your Brow,

CHO: Banish Sorrow, Banish Care,
Grief should ne'er approach the Fair.

DIDO: Ah! Belinda I am prest,
With Torment not to be Confest,
Peace and I are Strangers grown,
I Languish till my Grief is known,
Yet wou'd not have it Guest.

BEL: Grief Encreasing, by Concealing,

DIDO: Mine admits of no Revealing.

BEL: Then let me Speak the Trojan guest,
Into your tender Thoughts has prest.

2 WOMEN: The greatest blessing Fate can give,
Our Carthage to secure, and Troy revive.

CHO: When Monarchs unite how happy their State,
They Triumph at once on their Foes and their Fate.

DIDO: Whence could so much Virtue Spring,
What Stormes, what Battels did he Sing.
Anchises Valour mixt with Venus's Charmes,
How soft in Peace, and yet how fierce in Armes.

BEL: A Tale so strong and full of wo,
Might melt the Rocks as well as you.

2 WOMEN: What stubborn Heart unmoved could see,
Such Distress, such piety.

DIDO: Mine with Stormes of Care opprest,
Is Taught to pity the Distrest.
Mean wretches grief can Touch,
So soft so sensible my Breast,
But Ah! I fear, I pity him too much.

BEL and ATTENDANT: Fear no danger to Ensue,
The Hero Loves as well as you.
Ever Gentle, ever Smiling,
And the Cares of Life beguiling.
Cupid Strew your path with Flowers,
Gathered from Elizian Bowers.
(AEneas Enters.)

BEL: See your Royal Guest appears,
How God like is the Form he bears.

AEN: When Royal Fair shall I be blest,
With cares of Love, and State distrest.

DIDO: Fate forbids what you pursue,

AEN: Æneas has no Fate but, you.
Let Dido Smile, and I'le defie,
The Feeble stroke of Destiny.

CHO: Cupid only throws the Dart.
That's Dreadful to a Warriour's Heart.
And she that Wounds can only cure the Smart.

AEN: If not for mine, for Empire's sake,
Some pity on your Lover take.
Ah! Make not in a hopeless Fire,
A Hero fall, and Troy once more Expire.

BEL: Pursue they Conquest, Love—her Eyes,
Confess the Flame her Tongue Denyes.

CHO: To the Hills and the Vales, to the Rocks and the Mountains
To the Musical Groves, and the cool Shady Fountains.
Let the Triumphs of Love and of Beauty be Shown,
Go Revel ye Cupids, the day is your own.

■ Act II

Scene the Cave.

(Enter Sorcerer.)

SORC: Weyward Sisters you that Fright,
The Lonely Traveller by Night.
Who like dismal Ravens Crying,
Beat the Windows of the Dying.
Appear at my call, and share in the Fame,
Of a Mischief shall make all Carthage Flame.
(Enter Inchanteresses.)

INCHA: Say Master what's thy will,
Harms our Delight and Mischief all our Skill,

SORC: The Queen of Carthage whom we hate,
As we do all in prosperous State.
E're Sun set shall most wretched prove,
Deprived of Fame, of Life and Love.

CHO: Ho, ho, ho, ho, ho, ho, &c.

INCHA: Ruin'd e're the Set of Sun.
Tell us how shall this be done.

SORC: The Trojan Prince you know is bound
By Fate to seek Italian Ground,
The Queen and He are now in Chase,
Hark, how the cry comes on apace.
But when they've done, my trusty Elf
In form of Mercury himself.
As sent from Jove shall chide his stay,
And Charge him Sail to Night with all his Fleet away.
Ho, ho, ho, ho, &c.

SORC: But e're we, we this perform.
We'l Conjure for a Storm
To Mar their Hunting Sport,
And drive 'em back to Court.

CHO: In our deep-Vaulted Cell the Charm wee'l prepare,
Too dreadful a Practice for this open Air,
(Inchanteresses and Fairees.)
(Enter AEneas, Dido and Belinda, and their Train.)

Scene the Grove.

BEL: Thanks to these Lonesome Vailes,

CHO: These desert Hills and Dales.
So fair the Game, so rich the Sport.
Diana's self might to these Woods Resort.

2D. WOM: Oft she Visits this Loved Mountain,
Oft she bathes her in this Fountain.
Here Acteon met his Fate,
Pursued by his own Hounds,
And after Mortal Wounds.
Discovered, discovered too late.

AENEAS: Behold upon my bending Spear,
A Monsters Head stands bleeding.
With Tushes far exceeding,
These did Venus Huntsmen Tear.

DIDO: The Skies are Clouded, heark how Thunder
Rends the Mountain Oaks asunder.

BEL. AND CHORUS: Hast, hast, to Town this open Field,
No Shelter from the Storm can yield.
(The Spirit of the Sorceress descends to AEneas in likeness of Mercury.)

SPIR: Stay Prince and hear great Joves Command,
He summons thee this Night away.

AEN: To Night.

SPIR: To Night thou must forsake this Land,
The Angry God will brook no longer stay,
Joves Commands thee wast no more,
In Loves delights those precious Hours,
Allowed by the Almighty Powers.
To gain th' Hesperian Shore,
And Ruined Troy restore.

AEN: Joves Commands shall be Obey'd,
To Night our Anchors shall be weighed,
But ah! what Language can I try,
My Injured Queen to pacify.
No sooner she resignes her Heart,
But from her Armes I'm forc't to part.
How can so hard a Fate be took,
On Night enjoy'd, the next forsook.
Your be the blame, ye Gods, for I
Obey your will—but with more Ease cou'd dye.

Act III

Scene the Ships.

(Enter the Saylors.)

(The Sorceress and her Inchanteress.)

CHO: Come away fellow Saylors, your Anchors be weighing,
Time and Tide will admit no delaying.
Take a Bouze short leave of your Nymphs on the Shore,
And Silence their Morning,
With vows of returning.
But never intending to Visit them more.

SORC: See the Flags and Streamers Curling,
Anchors weighing, Sails unfurling,
Phoebus pale deluding Beames,
Guilding more deceitful Streams.
Our Plot has took,
The Queen forsook, ho, ho, ho.
Elisas ruin'd, ho, ho, ho,
Our next motion
Must be to storme her Lover on the Ocean.
From the Ruines of others our pleasure we borrow,
Elisas bleeds to Night, and Carthage Flames tomorrow.

CHO: Destruction our delight, delight our greatest Sorrow,
Elisas dyes to Night, and Carthage Flames to Morrow.

(Enter Dido, Belinda, and Train.)

DIDO: Your Councel all is urged in vain,
To Earth and Heaven I will Complain.
To Earth and Heaven why do I call,
Earth and Heaven conspire my Fall.
To Fate I Sue, of other means bereft,
The only refuge for the wretched left.

BEL: See Madam where the Prince appears,
Such Sorrow in his Looks he bears,
As you'd convince you still he's true,

Æneas Enters.

AEN: What shall lost Æneas do.
How Royal fair shall I impart,
The Gods decree and tell you we must part.

DIDO: Thus on the fatal Banks of Nile,
Weeps the deceitful Crocodile.
Thus Hypocrites that Murder Act,
Make Heavens and Gods the Authors of the Fact.

AEN: By all that's good,

DIDO: By all that's good no more,
All that's good you have Forsworn.
To your promised Empire fly,
And let forsaken Dido dye.

AEN: In spite of Joves Command I stay,
Offend the Gods, and Love obey.

DIDO: No faithless Man thy course pursue,
I'm now resolved as well as you.
No Repentance shall reclaim,
The Injured Dido's lighted Flame.
For 'tis enough what e're you now decree,
That you had once a thought of leaving me.

AEN: Let Jove say what he will I'le stay.

DIDO: Away.

(Exit Aen.)

To Death I'le fly, if longer you delay.
But Death, alas? I cannot Shun,
Death must come when he is gone.

CHO: Great minds against themselves Conspire,
And shun the Cure they most desire.

DIDO: Thy Hand Belinda—darkness shades me,
On thy Bosom let me rest,
More I wou'd but Death invades me.
Death is now a Welcom Guest,
When I am laid in Earth may my wrongs Create,
No trouble in thy Breast,
Remember me, but ah! forget my Fate.

CHO: With drooping Wings you Cupids come,
To scatter Roses on her Tomb.
Soft and Gentle as her Heart,
Keep here your Watch and never part.

Finis.

L'Heure Espagnole (1911)

The Spanish Hour

MUSIC BY MAURICE RAVEL ■ LIBRETTO BY FRANC-NOHAIN

This one-act comédie musicale, set to a libretto by Maurice Etienne (written under Etienne's pen name, Franc-Nohain), premiered at the Opéra-Comique in Paris on May 19, 1911. The story is set in eighteenth-century Toledo at the shop of Torquemada, the clock-maker. Ramiro, a muleteer, brings an old watch to Torquemada for repair. Concepción, Torquemada's wife, reminds her husband to check all of the town clocks as he does every Thursday. Torquemada leaves and asks Ramiro to wait for him to return. This angers Concepción, who is waiting for her liaison with Gonzalve, her young lover. She asks Ramiro to carry a heavy Catalan clock upstairs for her. Gonzalve enters and recites poems to her. She tells him how much she has looked forward to seeing him again. When Ramiro returns, she asks him to go back upstairs, bring the first clock down and take a second one upstairs in its place. When Ramiro leaves the room, she hides her lover inside the second clock. The situation becomes further complicated when Inigo Gomez, an influential banker, arrives. He is also an admirer of hers, but she is very upset by his arrival on the scene. Ramiro enters with the first clock and puts the second clock, with Gonzalve hiding inside, on his shoulder with no effort. This time Concepción goes upstairs with him as Gomez hides inside the first clock in order to trick her. Ramiro comes back with Concepción, who is annoyed that her lover is all talk and no action. She tells Ramiro that the clock in her bedroom is too noisy and asks him to bring it downstairs once more. Gomez decides to tell Concepción that he loves her. Once the clock he is in has been carried to the bedroom, he finds himself too fat to get out from the clock! Concepción, thoroughly disgusted by her two lovers, decides to leave them shut in their respective clocks and retires with Ramiro, whom she has grown to admire immensely. Her erstwhile lovers escape their clocks at last, but they stay in the shop too long and are discovered by Torquemada. They pretend that they are customers; he pretends to believe their story and sells them the two clocks, though he of course knows the truth. The story ends as Torquemada informs his wife that they no longer have the two clocks. She answers that it doesn't matter because Ramiro will come by every day to tell the time!

La boutique d'un horloger espagnol, port au fond a gauche, large fenêtre au fond au milieu, a gauche escalier menant a l'appartement de CONCEPCION, a droite au premier plan deux grandes horloges catalanes c'est a dire normandes, ça et là des automates: un oiseau des îles, un petit coq, des marionettes a musiques—Au lever du rideau, TORQUEMADA, le dos tourné au public, est assis devant son établi. On entend les balanciers qui s'agitent, et toutes les pendules de la boutique sonnent des heures différentes.

SCENE I

RAMIRO (entrant). Senor Torquemada, horloger de Tolède.

TORQUEMADA: Torquemada, c'est moi, Monsieur.

RAMIRO: Ma montre, à chaque instant s'arrête.

TORQUEMADA: Voilà qui va des mieux, voilà qui va des mieux.

RAMIRO: Or, je suis a votre service,
Muletier du gouvernment
Connaitre l'heure exactement
En conséquence est mon office

The shop of a spanish clockmaker; a door at the back left, a large window at the back center, at the left a staircase leading to the apartment of Concepcion; to the right on the first floor two large Catalan clocks, i, e., Norman, here and there some automatics; a bird of passage, a little rooster, some musical marionettes —. At the rising of the curtain. Torquemada, his back to the audience, is seated before his store. The movement of pendulums is heard, and all the clocks in the shop strike different hours.

SCENE I

RAMIRO: (entering). Señor Torquemada, clockmaker of Toledo!

TORQUEMADA: Torquemada, that's me, Monsieur!

RAMIRO: My watch stops every second.

TORQUEMADA: Here is one that will go better.

RAMIRO: I'm at your service,
A muleteer in government employ,
Consequently, it behooves me to know
Always the exact time;

Car chaque jour, a heure fixe
Mes mulete doivent, sur leur dos,
Emporter les colis postaux.

TORQUEMADA: Voyons la montre
(Il la prend et l'examine).
Elle est de style!

RAMIRO: (gravement). Oui c'est un bijou de famille,
Mon oncle, le toréador,
Par elle fut sauvè des cornes de la mort.
Aux arènes de Barcelone
Alors que le taureau fonçait,
Cette montre en son gousset,
Le prèserva du coup de corne;
Mais si le monstre par la montre fut arrêté
C'est a présent la montre qui s'arrête.

TORQUEMEDA: Nous allons donc la démonter

CONCEPCION: (Dans la coulisse). Totor!

TORQUEMEDA: On m'appelle. . .
.ma femme. . . Totor est de Torquemeda,
Le diminutif plein de charme

For each day at a set hour,
My mules must carry, on their backs,
The parcels of mail.

TORQUEMADA: Let us see the watch.
(He takes it and examines it).
Quite stylish.

RAMIRO: (gravely).
Yes, it is a family treasure.
My uncle, the toreador,
Was saved by it from the horns of death.
In the arena of Barcelona
While the bull was rushing upon him,
This watch, in the gusset of his shirt,
Saved him from the thrust of the horn;
But if the beast was then stopped by the watch,
It is now the watch which stops itself.

TORQUEMADA: Now we'll take it apart.

CONCEPCION: (Behind the scenes). Totor!

TORQUEMADA: My wife . . . calls me . . .
'Totor' is the charming pet name
Formed from Torquemada.

SCENE II	SCENE II
CONCEPCION: (entrant). Eh! quoi! vous n'êtes point parti? L'étourderie est sans égale! Vous souvient il plus qu'aujourd'hui Il faut aller régler comme chaque jeudi Les horloges municipales?	CONCEPCION: (entering). Eh! What, not yet gone? This carelessness passes belief! Have you forgotten that today, Like every Thursday, it is necessary to go To regulate the municipal clocks?
TORQUEMADA: Mais quelle heure est il done?	TORQUEMADA: What time is it then?
RAMIRO: Comment?	RAMIRO: Pardon?
TORQUEMADA: Que voulez vous! Les horloges, Monsieur, on n'entend plus leurs coups: Ce serait a devenir fou!	TORQUEMADA: The clocks, Monsieur, their strokes are no longer audible. It will drive me mad.
CONCEPCION: (Montrant les horloges). Pourquoi, depuis que je vous en réclame une pour ma chambre a coucher Garder ici ces deux horloges catalanes!	CONCEPCION: (Pointing to the clocks). Why should you keep here those two Catalan clocks, After I have already asked for one for my bedroom?
TORQUEMADA: Si vous croyez que c'est léger, Une horloge, et façile a prendre!	TORQUEMADA: Perhaps you think it is light, Perhaps you think it is easy to carry a clock.
CONCEPCION: (Avec un mépris très significatif et a mi-voix). De force musculaire, oui, vous avez sujet De vous montrer avare, ou du moins. ménager: Vous n'en avez pas a revendre! (Haut). Mais plus longtemps ne faites pas attendre Les balanciers municipaux.	CONCEPCION: (With very significant and half-expressed scorn). Ay, you have reason to show your miserliness Of your muscles, or at least, to husband them; You've none to spare! (Aloud). But do not keep waiting any longer The municipal pendulums.
TORQUEMADA: (S'apprêtant a sortir). J'ai mes outils? J'ai mon chapeau?	TORQUEMADA: (Getting ready to go out). Have I my tools, my hat?
RAMIRO: (intervenant). Pardon . . . Monsieur . . . pardon . . . ma montre? . . .	RAMIRO: (Interrupting). Pardon, Monsieur, my watch.
TORQUEMADA: Je cours, mon cher Monsieur, je cours Demeurez jusqu'a mon retour!	TORQUEMADA: I am in haste, Monsieur, I run, And you wait here till I return!
CONCEPCION: (àpart). Voilà qui ne fait pas mon compte!	CONCEPCION: (aside). This did not enter in my calculation.
TORQUEMADA: Excusez moi. Je reviens de ce pas: L'heure officielle n'attend pas. (Il sort).	TORQUEMADA: Excuse me, I'll return directly The official clock must not wait. (Exit)

SCENE III	SCENE III
CONCEPCION: Il reste, voilà bien ma chance! Le jour de la semaine où mon époux est loin, Mon unique jour de vacances, Me sera t'il gâté par ce fâcheux tèmoin?	CONCEPTION: He remains, Now's my chance. My husband's day away from home. My only day of liberty. Will it be ruined by this annoying witness?
RAMIRO: (a part). Il faut pourtant qu'avec la senora je cause. Mais . . . de quoi diable lui parler? J'aurais mieux fait de m'en aller, Car je n'ai jamais su dire aux femmes des choses . . .	RAMIRO: (aside). I ought to speak with this woman. But what the devil can I speak about? I had done better had I gone away. For I never did know how to talk to women . . .
CONCEPCION: (Hésitante, montrant a RAMIRO une des deux Horloges). Cette horloge, Monsieur, la jugez vous d'un poids Tel, pour la déplacer, qu'il faille L'effort de deux hommes ou trois?	CONCEPTION: (hesitating, showing RAMIRO one of the two clocks). This clock, Monsieur, do you think it has such a weight That, to move it, would require The labor of two or three men?
RAMIRO: Ca, Madame? C'est une paille, C'est une coquille de noix, On lève ça avec un doigt, C'est de la très petite ouvrage. Votre chambre?	RAMIRO: This Madame? Why it is a straw. It is a nutshell, One could lift it with a finger. A trifling bit of work. Your room?
CONCEPCION: Au premier étage . . . Mais.	CONCEPTION: On the first floor. But . . .
RAMIRO: Je vais l'y porter!	RAMIRO: I'll carry it.
CONCEPCION: Quoi! vous consentiriez?	CONCEPTION: How! Would you do it?
RAMIRO: C'est dit, senora , je m'en charge!	RAMIRO: It is said, señora, I'll do it.
CONCEPCION: Je n'osais pas vous en prier!	CONCEPTION: I never dared to ask you.
RAMIRO: Il fallait oser au contraire! Tout muletier a dans son coeur Un déménageur amateur Et voilà qui va me distraire En attendant votre mari.	RAMIRO: It would be necessary to dare the contrary. Every muleteer is in his heart An amateur mover of household goods. With that I'll occupy myself, while I await your husband.
CONCEPCION: Je suis confuse!	CONCEPTION: I am confused.
RAMIRO: Celà m'amuse!	RAMIRO: This amuses me.
CONCEPCION: (a art). Tout s'arrange fort bien ainsi! (Haut). L'escalier est au fonds du couloir que voici . . . Vraiment, Monsieur, vraiment, j'abuse!	CONCEPTION: (aside). Everything works well this way. (Aloud). The staircase is at the end of the passageway. Indeed, Monsieur, I am imposing upon you.
RAMIRO: C'est moi, senora qui m'excuse: Je fais si piètre mine, Hélas! dans un salon! . . . Les muletiers n'ont pas de conversation (On entend vocaliser GONZALVE dans la coulisse, RAMIRO sort, emportant l'horloge sur son épaule).	RAMIRO: It is I, señora, I beg your pardon For making so pitiful a face. Alas! In a parlor Muleteers are a crude lot. (GONZALVE is heard singing in the passageway). (Exit RAMIRO carrying the clock up on his shoulder).

SCENE IV	SCENE IV
CONCEPCION: (Qui quette a la fenêtre). Il était temps voici Gonzalve!	CONCEPTION: (Who is watching at the window) It was time, there is Gonzalve!
GONZALVE: Enfin revient le jour si doux Harpes, chantez, éclatez salves! Enfin revient le jour si doux, Le jour où d'un époux jaloux, Ma maitresse n'est plus l'esclave.	GONZALVE: At last the sweet day returns, Sing, harps, burst into praise! At last the sweet day returns, The day that my mistress is no longer The slave to a jealous husband.
CONCEPCION: (passionément). Gonzalve! Gonzalve! Gonzalve!	CONCEPTION: (passionately). Gonzalve! Gonzalve! Gonzalve!
GONZALVE: Enfin revient le jour si doux . . .	GONZALVE: At last the sweet day returns!
CONCEPCION: Oui mon ami . . . Dépêchons nous, Ne perdons pas, à de vaines paroles L'heure qui s'envole, Et qu'il faut cueillir.	CONCEPTION: Ay my friend. Let us make haste Let us not lose, to vain words, The fleeting hour. The hour which must be plucked, GONZALVE: (déclamant).

L'email de ces cadrans dont s'orne ta demeure,
C'est le jardin de mon bonheur émaillé d'heures,
Que l'on voit éclore et fleurir . . .

CONCEPCION: (impatiente).
Oui, mon ami . . .
(A t part).
Le muletier va revenir . . .

GONZALVE: Cette image est trè poétique.
J'en veux faire un sonnet et le mettre en musique
"Le Jardin des Heures . . ." sonnet!

CONCEPCION: (àpart). Si le muletier revenait! . . .
(Haut).
Oui, mon ami, mais profitons de l'heure unique . . .
Tiens, sens, comme battait mon coeur en l'attendant!

GONZALVE: (déclamant). Horloge, c'est ton coeur, le rythme en est le même.
Ton coeur ballant, ton coeur battant,
Que, mélancolique, on entend . . .
"Le Coeur de l'Horloge . . . " poème!

CONCEPCION: (àpart). Le muletier va revenir dans un instant!
(Haut).
Oui mon, ami, mais vois, le temps s'achève,
Où réaliser le doux rêve.

GONZALVE: (distrait). La, la, la, la, . . . La, la, la, la.

CONCEPCION: Après lequel nous soupirons.

GONZALVE: Les baisers qu'appellent tes lèvres
Egrèneront leurs carillons!

CONCEPCION: (excédée). Oh!
(A mi-voix).
Mon ami . . . Oui, mon ami,
Mais l'heure fuit, prends garde.
Le temps nous est mesuré sans pitié!

GONZALVE: "Le Carillon des Amours" . . . sérénade.

CONCEPCION: (Avec dépit, apercevant RAMIRO qui revient). Et puis, voici le muletier.

SCENE V

RAMIRO: C'est fait! l'horloge est a sa place,

CONCEPCION: Déjà? Ah! Monsieur, que de grâces!
(A part).
Il n'y a pas à dire, il faut
Que' à nouveau
Je m'en débarasse!
(Haut).
Vous allez me trouver bien folle,

GONZALVE: (pompously). The enamel of these dials, gracing your home,
Is the garden of my happiness enamelled with hours,
Blooming and bursting into flower.

CONCEPTION: (impatiently). Ay, my friend . . .
(Aside)
The muleteer will return.

GONZALVE: This image is very poetic.
I will make of it a sonnet, and set it to music
"The Garden of the Hours', a sonnet!

CONCEPTION: (aside). If the Muleteer returned! . . .
(Aloud).
Ay, my friend, but let us profit by the single hour —
Come, feel the impatient beating of my heart.

GONZALVE: (pompously). The clock, that is your heart, its rhythm is the same,
Your dancing heart, your beating heart,
Which, melancholy, is heard —
"The Heart of the Clock." A poem . . .

CONCEPTION: (Aside). The muleteer will return in an instant —
(Aloud).
Ay, my friend, but see, the time is here,
To realize the sweet dream . . .

GONZALVE: (distracted). La, la, la, la, — La, la, la, la, —

CONCEPTION: For which we are sighing, longing.

GONZALVE: The kisses which your lips call forth,
Will evoke their chimes!

CONCEPTION: (Beside herself).
Oh . . .
(In a low voice)
Oh, my friend . . . Yes, my friend,
But the hour is passing, take care,
Time is doled out to us pitilessly!

GONZALVE: "The Chime of Loves" . . . A serenade

CONCEPTION: (With vexation, perceiving the returning RAMIRO). And now, here's the muleteer.

SCENE V

RAMIRO: It is done. The clock is in its place.

CONCEPTION: Already? Ah! Monsieur, I thank you (Aside).
There is nothing left to say,
I must
Rid myself of him! (Aloud). I fear, Monsieur, you'll think me silly,
I know not how to confess it to you.

cher Monsieur,
Comment vous faire cet aveu?
Donc, à peine étiez vous parti
Avec l'horloge vers ma chambre,
(Montrant l'autre horloge).
J'ai réfléchi
Que celle ci
Y serait mieux . . .
Que vous en semble?

RAMIRO: Senora, c'est votre plaisir?
Je suis tout a votre service!

CONCEPCION: Tant d'indulgence à mon caprice! . . .
Ah! Monsieur, je me sens rougir!

RAMIRO: Voilà
C'est celle ci, à l'instant que j'emporte . . .

CONCEPCION: (vivement)
Quand vous aurez remporté l'autre! . . .
Quelle courtoisie est la votre! . . .
Vous êtes un vrai paladin.

GONZALVE: C'est ainsi que ton coeur, éternel féminin, Apparait plus mouvant que les plis d'une jupe!
"Çaprice de Femme" . . . Chanson!

RAMIRO: (s'éloignant). Moi, ca m'est égal ça m'occupe.

GONZALVE: (Lui lancant un regard dédaigneux). Le muletiers n'ont pas de conversation.

SCENE VI

CONCEPCION: (Ouvrant précipitamment le coffre de l'horlage). Maintenant, pas de temps a perde!
Lá dedans, vite, il faut entrer!

GONZALVE: (tragique).
Dans cette boite de cyprés,
De sapin, de chêne, ou de cêdre?

CONCEPCION: Oui, c'est fou je te le concéde,
Mais céde!
Songe donc, ici de nous voir
En tête-a-tete, nul espoir!
Car le muletier à l'oeil noir
Se dresse entre nous, et je tremble!
Au contraire, sans le savoir,
L'horloge et toi, tous deux ensemble,
Il vous emporte dans ma chambre!

GONZALVE: Il me plait de franchir ton seuil,
Entre ces planches clos, comme dans un cercueil . . .
J'y goterai des sensations neuves,
(Il s'installe dans l'horloge).
Et cette horloge ou m'enferme le sort,
O mon amante, est-ce pas une épreuve
De l'amour plus fort
Que la mort?

For, hardly had you left
With the clock for my room
(Pointing to the other clock).
When I thought
That this one would be better.
What think you of it?

RAMIRO: Señora. That is your pleasure?
I am entirely at your service!

CONCEPTION: So much patience with my whims!
Ah, Monsieur, I feel that I am blushing.

RAMIRO: There
This one here, when I bring the other one . . .

CONCEPTION: (vivaciously).
When you will have brought the other one! . . .
How courteous you are!
Indeed you are a Paladin.

GONZALVE: Such always is your heart, eternal feminine,
More ephemeral than the folds of a skirt!
"Capriciousness of Women." A Song!

RAMIRO: (moving away). To me it is all the same, it keeps me busy . . .

GONZALVE: (Throwing after him a disdainful glance). Muleteers are a dumb lot!

SCENE VI

CONCEPTION: (Suddenly opening the chest of the clock). Now we've no time to lose!
Quick, you must go in there!

GONZALVE: (tragically). In this box of cypress,
Pine, oak, or cedar?

CONCEPTION: It is silly, I admit,
But yield to me!
For think, were we to be seen here, all alone,
Then we were hopeless!
For the black-eyed muleteer,
Stands between us, and I tremble!
On the contrary, without knowing it,
He'll carry the clock and you, both together, into my room.

GONZALVE: It pleases me to cross your threshold,
Between closed boards, as in a coffin,
There I shall taste new sensations
(He gets into the clock).
And this clock, in which I am enclosed by Fate,
Oh, my beloved, is this a test of love,
Stronger than death?

CONCEPCION: (Sombre et tragique). Oui, mon ami . . .
(A part).
Il exagère!

SCENE VII

DON INIGO GOMEZ: (Passant devant la fenêtre). Salut à la belle horlogère!

CONCEPCION: (Fermant brusquement l'horloge). Don Inigo Gomez!
Qui peut ici lui plaire?

INIGO: Sournoise qui le demanda!
Eh! le seigneur Torquemada
Ne serait il pas chez l'Alcade?

CONCEPCION: Vous voulez le voir?

INIGO: Dieu m'en garde!
Aurais je s'il n'était parti,
Pris le chemin de sa boutique?
Moi qui, précisément, usai de mon crédit
Pour faire confier á cet heureux mari
Le soin des horloges publiques?
Car il est raisonnable, il est juste, il est bon Que l'époux ait dehors une occupation
Réguliére et périodique

CONCEPCION: Don Inigo Gomez est un seigneur puissant!

INIGO: Que ma puissance apparait vaine,
Si, quand son mari est absent,
Certaine belle me consent
A se montrer un peu moins inhumaine
Vous seule pouvez tout!
(Il veut lui prendre la main).

CONCEPCION: (se dégageant).
Excusez moi, seigneur!
(Avec un regard inquiet sur l'horloge où se cache GONZALVE).
Parlez plus bas . . . les horloges ont des oreilles!

INIGO: (plaintif). J'attends de votre arrêt l'excès de mon malheur . . .
(Résolu).
Ou félicité sans pareille!
(Il la presse, elle se dégage encore. On voit poindre l'extrémité de l'horloge que RAMIRO rapporte sur son epaule).

CONCEPCION: (Dans la plus grande agitation). Seigneur, excusez moi!
J'ai les déménageurs!

SCENE VIII

RAMORI: (posant l'horloge). Voilà!
Et maintenant à l'autre!
(Il va pour prendre la 2ème horloge dans laquelle est enfermé GONZALVE).

CONCEPTION: (Somber and tragic). Ay, my friend.
(Aside).
He exaggerates.

SCENE VII

DON INIGO GOMAZ: (Passing before, the window). Hail to the beautiful wife of the clockmaker!

CONCEPTION: (Closing brusquely the clock). Don Inigo Gomez!
Who can be here of service?

INIGO: Sly woman, that you ask!
Eh! Signor Torquemada,
Is he not at the Alcada?

CONCEPTION: You want to see him?

INIGO: God forbid!
Would I have taken the road to his shop,
Had he not gone?
I, who used my influence,
To secure for this happy husband the care
Of the public clocks?
For it is reasonable, it is just, it is good,
That the husband have an outside occupation,
That is regular and constant.

CONCEPTION: Don Inigo Gomez is a powerful gentleman.

INIGO: How useless would my power appear
If, in the absence of her husband,
A certain beautiful woman did not consent
To show herself, a bit more human.
You alone can do all!
(He tries to take her hand).

CONCEPTION: (Disengaging herself). Excuse me, seigneur!
(With an anxious look at the clock wherein GONZALVE is hiding).
Speak lower . . . Clocks have ears.

INIGO: (pleadingly). I expect from your decision a great misfortune.
(Resolutely).
Or matchless happiness!
(He presses her, she again disengages herself. The end of the clock, which RAMIRO carries on his shoulder, is seen to break).

CONCEPTION: (With great agitation). Excuse me, signor!
Today I have the movers of furniture!

SCENE VIII

RAMIRO: (Setting down the clock). There! And now for the other one!
(He goes to fetch the second clock in which GONZALVE is enclosed).

CONCEPCION: Celle ci est peut être un peu . . .
Je vous préviens . . . un peu plus lourde . . .

RAMIRO: (Chargeant la 2 ème horloge sur son épaule). Peuh!
C'est seulement que l'on dirait que ça ballette . . .
Mais ça n'en est pas plus ardu . . .
C'est moins le poids, ces objets là que le volume,
Car, pour le poids, c'est un fétu,
C'est une plume! . . .
(Il fait passer l'horloge d'une épaule à l'autre avec une aisance prodigieuse).
On porte ça, les bras tendus,
Des combles jusqu'à la cave . . .

CONCEPCION: (à part). Cet homme a des muscles de fer!
Mais s'il secoue ainsi Gonzalve,
Il finira par lui donner le mal de mer . . .
Je vous accompagne . . .

RAMIRO: (s'eloignant). Inutile!

INIGO: Quoi! faut il que vous me quittiez?

CONCEPCION: (à INIGO). Le mécanisme est très fragile,
Et notamment le balancier . . .
J'en demande pardon a votre Seigneurie! . . .
(Elle s'éloigne).

SCENE IX

INIGO: Evidemment, elle me congédie,
Et s'il me fallait écouter
Les conseils de ma dignité,
J'abandonnerais la partie . . .
Cependant je n'ai qu'une envie,
Et cette envie est de rester!
Dans ces conjonctures extrêmes
Un amant, pensèje, avec art
S'introduirait dans un placard:
Tant pis, ma foi, si je déroge!
Je conçois à l'instant le fantasque projet
De me cacher
Dans cette horloge
Ces horloges sont les placards des horlogers.
(Il s'introduit avec effort dans l'horloge trop étroit pour sa corpulence).
Ma mine imposante et sévère
A la pauvrette faisait pour.
Montrons un autre caractère
Conforme a sa galante humeur,
Et que nous sommes, au contraire,
Dans le fond, un petit farceur!
(Il entend des pas).
Elle revient . . . coucou . . .
(RAMIRO parait. INIGO referme brusquement l'horloge).

CONCEPTION: This one is perhaps a little bit . . .
I warn you . . . a little bit heavier . . .

RAMIRO: (Taking the second clock up on his shoulder). Pheu! It is only, as one would say, that it is not steady,
But it is no heavier . . .
It is less their weight, these objects, than their size,
For, as for the weight, it is a trifle.
It is a feather! . . .
(He shifts the clock from one shoulder to the other with a tremendous nonchalance).
It is thus, with outstretched arms, one carries,
Heaps of goods to the cellars.

CONCEPTION: (Aside). This man has iron muscles!
But if thus he tosses Gonzalve,
He'll end by making him so dizzy . . .
I'll go with you . . .

RAMIRO: (moving off). It is not necessary.

INIGO: How? Must you leave me?

CONCEPTION: (To INIGO). The mechanism is very fragile, Especially the pendulum . . .
I beg your Highness' pardon! . . .
(She goes off).

SCENE IX

INIGO: Evidently, I am dismissed,
And if I were to heed the Counsels of my dignity,
I should abandon the business . . .
Meanwhile, I have but one desire
And that is to remain.
In these extreme positions,
A lover would, artfully,
Conceal himself in a cupboard:
So much the worse, my soul, if I demean myself.
I conceive this instant the fantastic scheme
Of hiding myself
In this clock.
These clocks are the cupboards of the clockmakers.
(He squeezes himself, with great effort, into the clock, which is too narrow for his corpulence).
My stern and pompous bearing
Scared the poor little woman.
I'll assume another manner,
More suited to her passionate temper
And show her that I am, at bottom
Something of a wag.
(He hears a step).
She is returning . . . coucou . . .
(RAMIRO appears. INIGO closes the clock brusquely).

SCENE X

(RAMIRO seul, INIGO dans l'horloge).

RAMIRO: Voilà ce que j'appelle une femme charmante!
Maintenant elle me demande
De venir garder la boutique . . .
Voilà qui est bien compris et pratique,
Et c'est ainsi qu'une maitresse de maison
A chaque visiteur doit assigner un rôle
En rapport avec ses facons,
Moi, ma facon . . . c'est mes épaules!
Quand je vois ici rassemblés
Toutes ces machines subtiles.
Tous ces ressorts menus, â plaisir embroillés,
Je songe au mécanisme qu'est
La femme mécanisme autrement compliqué
S'y reconnaitre est difficile!
A Dieu ne plaise aussi que je m'arroge
Le soin minutieux d'en toucher les resserts.
Tout le talent que m'a donné le sort
Se borne a porter des horloges . . .

SCENE XI

CONCEPCION: (Accourant vers RAMIRO). Monsieur! Ah! Monsieur!
(A part).
Dans ma gorge
Les mots s'arrêtent de dépit
(Haut).
Traitez moi de folle, tant pis
Mais comment voulez vous qu'en ma chambre je garde
Une horloge qui va, Monsieur, tout de travers, (Douloureusement).
Quel martyre affreux pour mes nerfs!

RAMIRO: La rapporter, ca me regarde . . .
A tout à l'heure!

SCENE XII

INIGO: (Entrouvant l'horloge, à mi-voix).
Enfin, il part!
Dieu! que ces muletiers sont de fâcheux bavards! . . .
(Haut).
Coucou . . .
(A part).
Amusons cette belle! . . .
(Haut).
Coucou . . .

CONCEPCION: (Se retourant vers l'horloge dont INIGO a refermé aussitôt la porte sur lui). Tiens, l'horloge . . .

SCENE X

(RAMIRO alone, INIGO in the clock).

RAMIRO: That's what I call a charming woman!
Now she asks me to watch the shop;
A good and practical woman,
And besides a capable manager,
To assign to each visitor a role
Conforming to his talents.
I . . . my talents . . . are my shoulders!
When I see here assembled
All these subtle machines,
All these slender springs, wound for pleasure,
I think of the mechanism which is Woman, a mechanism far more complex,
To know which were difficult!
It would displease God mightily were I to tamper
In the slightest with those springs.
All the talent that Fate has given me
Is limited to the carrying of clocks . . .

SCENE XI

CONCEPTION: (Running toward RAMIRO). Monsieur! Ah! Monsieur!
(Aside).
The words are stopped in my throat
From vexation.
(Aloud).
Treat me as a fool,
So much the worse, but how do you expect me
To keep in my room a clock in which, Monsieur,
Everything goes wrong?
(Mournfully).
What a terrible trial for my nerves!

RAMIRO: To carry it again, that means me . . .
Presently . . .

SCENE XII

INIGO: (Slightly opening the clock, in an undertone). At last, he's gone.
God! What nuisances these muleteers are!
(Aloud).
Coucou . . .
(Aside).
Let's have some fun with this beauty.
(Aloud).
Coucou . . .

CONCEPTION: (Returning toward the clock in which INIGO has closed the door). Ah, the clock . . .

INIGO: (Même jou). Coucou . . .

CONCEPCION: (rageuse).
L'allusion est de haut goût, par
Saint Jacques de Compostelle!
Et le moment est bien choisi
Pour parler de coucou ici! . . .

INIGO: (Même jou). Coucou . . .

CONCEPCION: (apercevant INIGO). Don Inigo!

INIGO: Coucou! . . . Coucou! . . .
(Noblement).
Oui dà vous avez devant vous
Don Inigo Gomez, roi de la haute banque!
Et même y serais-je à genoux,
Si ce n'était que la place me manque..

CONCEPCION: Cessez ce jou, Don Inigo, vous êtes. fou!

INIGO: Oui, fou de toi, ô ma jolie.
Fou a faire mille folies!
Ceci n'est qu'un commencement,
Un tout petit exercice d'entrainment!

CONCEPCION: Mais je n'en veux point davantage!
Tenez vous en là simplement!
Et sortez, je vous y engage,
De ce bizarre logement!

INIGO: Eh quoi! lorsque j'eus de peine,
Tant de peine à entrer, faut il déjà sortir?
Où il y eut beaucoup de gêne,
On mérite un peu de plaisr!
Manqué je à votre fantaisie,
De jeunesse, de poésie?
Trop de jeunesse aussi a son mauvais côté,
Un jeune homme est souvent inexpérimenté!

CONCEPCION: (nostalgique). En vérité! . . . en vérité!

INIGO: Un rien l'arrête et l'embarasse! . . .
Et les poètes, affairés
A poursuivre un rêve éthéré,
Oublient que la réalité sous leur nez passe . . .

CONCEPCION: (Avec une conviction navrée). Si vous saviez combien vous dites vrai! . . .

INIGO: Un amant comme moi offre plus de surface!

SCENE XIII

RAMIRO: (entrant avec l'horloge où est enfermé GONZALVE). Voilà l'objet! Que faut il que j'en fasse?

CONCEPCION: (indifférente). Ah! l'horloge! . . .
C'est bon! . . . Merci! . . . mettez ça là . . .

INIGO: (Still in fun). Coucou . . .

CONCEPTION: (Raging). The allusion is in good taste, by St. Jacques de Compostelle!
And the moment is well chosen
To speak here of cuckoos!

INIGO: (Still in fun). Coucou . . .

CONCEPTION: (perceiving INIGO). Don Inigo!

INIGO: Coucou! Coucou!
(Nobly).
Yes, you have before you,
Don Inigo Gomez, king of the upper bench!
I would be there, even on my knees,
If it were not that there were no room.

CONCEPTION: Quit this fooling, Don Inigo, you are crazy!

INIGO: Crazy for you my pretty one.
Enough to commit a thousand follies.
This is but a beginning,
Just a little exercise . . .

CONCEPTION: But I want no more of it!
Be satisfied with that!
and leave, I beseech you,
This strange prison.

INIGO: And how? After I had gone to so much pain,
Such trouble to go in, must I go out already?
After so much uneasiness,
One deserves a bit of pleasure!
Do I lack, for your fancy,
Youth, poetry?
Too much of youth has too its evil side,
A young man is often inexperienced.

CONCEPTION: (Despairingly). True . . . true . . .

INIGO: A trifle halts him and confuses him . . .
And the poets, occupied
In pursuing a flimsy dream,
Forget that reality is beneath their nose.

CONCEPTION: (With broken-hearted desperation). If you knew how true you spoke!

INIGO: A lover like me offers more breadth!

SCENE XIII

RAMIRO: (Entering with the clock in which GONZALVE is enclosed). Here it is. Now what must I do with it?

CONCEPTION: (Indifferently). Ah! The clock!
Well! Thanks! Place it there.

RAMIRO: (après avoir posé l'horloge, montrant celle d''INIGO). Et maintenant, c'est celle là Que dans votre chambre l'on place?

CONCEPCION: (troublée). Dans ma chambre? . . .

INIGO: (par l'horloge entr'ouverte). Dans votre chambre!

RAMIRO: Vous n'avez qu'un mot a dire et je l'enlève!

CONCEPCION: (bas à INIGO). C'est un guet apens!

INIGO: (bas à CONCEPCION en lui baisant la main). C'est un rêve! . . .

RAMIRO: Est ce dit, senora?

INIGO: O ivresse! . . .

CONCEPCION: (se décidant brusquement). Enlevez! . . .
Mais n'est ce pas plus lourd?

RAMIRO: (chargeant l'horloge sur son épaule). Goutte d'eau, grain de sable.

CONCEPCION: (le regardant pleine d'admiration, cependant qu'il emporte l'horloge, et INIGO dans cette horloge, avec la plus grande facilité). A coup sûr cet homme est doué.

SCENE XIV

CONCEPCION: (ouvrant l'horloge où est GONZALVE). Ah! vous, n'est ce pas, preste! leste!
Trêve aux poèmes étoilés!
Vous aller, j'espère filer,
Et sans demander votre reste.

GONZALVE: (exstatique). O impérieuse maîtresse, Laisse!

CONCEPCION: (évasive et rageuse, entre ses dents). La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la.

GONZALVE: Je veux graver ici nos chiffres enlacés
Au tour d'un coeur, de flèches transpersé
Comme font emmi les sites sylvestres
Où l'amour complaisant égara leurs baisers.

CONCEPCION: (excédée). Ah! . . .

GONZALVE: Comme font deux amants sur l'écorce des trembles . . .

CONCEPCION: Demeurez donc, si bon vous semble,
Mais n'attendez pas, s'il vous plait,
Que j'écoute encore les couplets
De la romance
Qui recommence
Vous avez de l'esprit, mais manquez d'à-propos . . .
J'en ai assez, de vos pipeaux!
(Elle sort).

RAMIRO: (After having placed it in position, pointing to that in which INIGO is).
And now, that one there
Goes into your room?

CONCEPTION: (troubled). In my room?

INIGO: (Through the slight opening in the clock). In your room!

RAMIRO: You have but to speak, and it shall be done.

CONCEPTION: (Softly, to INIGO). This is a bad fix.

INIGO: (Low, to CONCEPTION, kissing her hand). It is a dream.

RAMIRO: Well, signora?

INIGO: Oh, joy!

CONCEPTION: (Making up her mind brusquely). Lift it up!
But is it not heavier?

RAMIRO: (Placing the clock upon his shoulder). A drop of water, a grain of sand.

CONCEPTION: (Looking at him, admiringly, while he carries the clock, and INIGO, in this clock, with the greatest ease). This man is gifted, indeed.

SCENE XIV

CONCEPTION: (Opening the clock in which GONZALVE is) Ah, You no? Quick, quick.
A truce to starry poems!
Quick, let us not lose time,
Nor wait.

GONZALVE: (Ecstatically). O imperious mistress,
Leave me!

CONCEPTION: (Evasively and angrily, between her teeth). La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la.

GONZALVE: I am going to cut our monogram,
Around a heart, pierced with arrows.
As the interwined verdure of wild landscapes do,
Wheather passionate love drives their kisses.

CONCEPTION: (Beside herself). Ah!

GONZALVE: As two lovers do on the aspen barks.

CONCEPTION: Then stay, if you like it better,
But please do not expect me
To hear more of your couplets,
Of endless romance.
You have enough of spirit, but lack timeliness . . .
I have enough of your bird-calls.
(Exit).

SCENE XV

GONZALVE: (seul, dans l'horloge). En dèpit de cette inhumaine, Je ne veux pas quitter l'enveloppe de chêne
Où le destin me fit entrer,
Sans évoquer les nymphes des forêts
Qu'emprisonnait une semblable gaîne.
On n'a pas toujours un motif
Pour traiter ce sujet au vif:
"Impressions d'Hamadryade" . . .
(Il entend revenir RAMIRO).
Mais prenons garde
Car le muletier revient:
Ces gens là goûtent peu les symboles paiens! . . .

SCENE XVI

(GONZALVE, enfermé dans l'horloge, RAMIRO, puis CONCEPCION).

RAMIRO: Voilà ce que j'appelle une femme charmante!
M'avoir si gentiment ce labeur ménagé,
Tantôt emménager, tantôt déménager!
Voilà ce que j'appelle une femme charmante!
Et puis cette boutique est un plaisant séjour;
Entre chaque montée, après chaque descente,
Nul importun, par ses discours,
N'y vient troubler ma quiétude nonchalante . . .
Rien à dire, rien à penser;
On n'a qu'à se laisser bercer
Au tic tac régulier de tous ces balanciers!
Et les timbres de ces pendules
Joyeusement tintinnabulent
Tout ainsi que, par les sentiers
Muletiers
Sonnent les grolots de mes mules . . .
Si je devais mon sort changer,
N'étais-je muletier, je serais horloger,
Dans cette horlogerie, avec cette horlogère.

CONCEPCION: (entrant brusquement à RAMIRO). Monsieur!

RAMIRO: L'horloge encor ne fait pas votre affaire?
Bon! Bien! laissez, laissez! je la vais rechercher! . . .
(Il sort).

SCENE XVII

CONCEPCION: Oh! la pitoyable aventure!
Et faut il que, de deux amants, L'un manque de tempérament,
Et l'autre, à ce point de nature!
Oh! la pitoyable aventure!
Et ces gens là se disent Espagnols

SCENE XV

GONZALVE: (Alone, in the clock). Despite this inhuman woman,
I do not want to leave this oaken envelope.
Into which Destiny has ordered me,
Without calling the forest nymphs,
Imprisoned by a similar fate.
There is not always an opportunity
For handling this subject realistically:
"Impressions of Hamadryade . . .
(He hears RAMIRO returning).
But let us beware,
For the muleteer is returning:
Those people have little taste for pastoral symbols.

SCENE XVI

(GONZALVE in the clock; RAMIRO, then CONCEPTION).

RAMIRO: That's what I call a charming woman!
To have managed so gently this labor,
No sooner planned than moved!
That's what I call a charming woman!
Then this shop is a pleasant place;
After each step, after each trip,
No word of impatience in her speech
Came to trouble my careless quietude.
Nothing to say, nothing to think;
Nothing to do but sleep in peace,
To the regular tictac of the pendulums!
And the sounds of these pendulums
Joyously jingling,
Just as the muleteers,
On the highway, sound the little bells on the mules.
If I could change my fate,
I should not be a muleteer,
I should be a clockmaker,
In this clock-shop, with this women as wife.

CONCEPTION: (Entering brusquely, to RAMIRO). Monsieur!

RAMIRO: The clock does not yet suit?
Well. I'll go see to it. (Exit)

SCENE XVII

CONCEPTION: Oh, pitiful adventure!
And is it necessary that of two lovers,
One lacks temperament,
And the other, this natural essential.

Dans le pays de dona Sol,
A deux pas de l'Estramadure! . . .
Le temps me dure, dure,
dure . . .
Oh! la pitoyable aventure!
L'un ne veut mettre ses efforts,
Qu'à composer des vers baroques,
Et l'autre, plus grotesque encor,
De l'horloge n'a pu sortir rien qu'à mi corps,
Avec son ventre empêtré de breloquez! . . .
Maintenant, le jour va finir.
Et mon époux va revenir:
Et je reste fidèle et pure . . .
A deux pas de l'Estramadure
Au pays du Guadalquivir! . . .
Le temps me dure, dure,
dure! . . .
Ah! pour ma colère passer,
Avoir quelque chose a casser,
A mettre en bouillie, en salade!
(Elle frappe du poing l'horloge où est GONZALVE).

GONZALVE: (entr'ouvrant l'horloge). "Impressions d'Hamadryade" . . .

SCENE XVIII

RAMIRO: (rapportant sur son épaule l'horloge qui renferme INIGO) Voilà! . . .
Et maintenant, senora, je suis prêt à rementer dans votre chambre
L'autre horloge, si bon vous semble,
Voire même les deux ensemble . . .
Ce sera comme vous voudrez!

CONCEPCION: (à part). Quelle sérénité, quelle aisance il conserve,
Et comme il jongle avec les poids!
Il les soulève, les enlève . . .

RAMIRO: Senora, faites votre choix!

CONCEPCION: (à part). Et toujours le sourire aux lèvres! . . .
Vraiment cet homme a des biceps
Qui dépassent tous mes concepts . . .
Avec lui, pas de propos mièvres!
(Haut, très aimable).
Dans ma chambre, Monsieur, il vous plait romenter?

RAMIRO: Mais laquelle y dois je porter
De ces horloges?

CONCEPCION: (Simple et nette).
Sans horloge!
(Elle sort précédée de RAMIRO).

SCENE XIX

(INIGO et GONZALVE chacun dans son horloge).

Oh, pitiful adventure!
And these people call themselves Spaniards
In the country of the Sun,
Two steps from Extramadura
Time hangs heavy upon my hands.
Oh, pitiful adventure!
One does not want to take pains,
Except of compose florid verses,
And the other, still more grotesque,
Could come only halfway out of the clock,
With his belly entangled with trinkets,
Now, the day nears its end.
And my husband will return,
And I remain faithful and pure.
Two steps from the Extramadura
In the country of the Guadalquivir!
Time hangs heavy upon my hands.
Ah! To end my anger,
To have something to break,
To smash, to shatter . . .
(She smashes her fist into the clock wherein is GONZALVE)

GONZALVE: (Slightly opening the clock). "Impressions of Hamadryad."

SCENE XVIII

RAMIRO: (Bearing upon his shoulder the clock enclosing INIGO). There!
And now, senora, I am ready to go up again to your room.
The other clock
If it suits you,
To see both together,
It will be as you desire.

CONCEPTION: (Aside). What serenity, what nonchalance,
And, like the juggler with his weights,
He throws them up, and drops them..

RAMIRO: Senora, make your choice!

CONCEPTION: (Aside) And always with a smile upon his lips . . .
Truly that man has biceps
Surpassing my conception . . .
His lips frame no sly words.
(Loud, very amiably).
Into my room, Monsieur,
Does it please you to go up?

RAMIRO: But which of these clocks
Shall I bring up?

CONCEPTION: (Simply and innocently). Without the clocks!
(Exit with RAMIRO leading).

SCENE XIX

(INIGO and GONZALVE each in his clock).

(INIGO entr'ouvre la porte de l'horloge, un coucou chante, il referme précipitamment la porte, puis la rouvre, une horloge sonne, il rentre, puis reparait).

INIGO: Mon oeil anxieux interroge,
Mélancolique, l'horizon:
Amour! Amour! méchant garçon,
A quelle enseigne tu me loges! . . .
Comme on doit être bien chez soi,
Dans un large fauteuil, les pieds dans ses pantoufles!
Quand je languis ici, tellement à l'étroit,
Que celà me coupe le souffle! . . .
Et personne pour me haler! . . .
Personne! . . .
Cordon, s'il vous plaît!
La porte! la porte! la porte!
(Il la referme sur lui, au bruit que fait GONZALVE entr'ouvrant à son tour l'horloge).

GONZALVE: Il m'a semblé qu'on appellait? . . .
Aussi bien, il est, je crois, sage D'abandonner notre ermitage.
Adieu, cellule, adieu, donjon!
Adieu, cuirasse et morion
Qu'au chevalier fit revêtir sa dame!
Adieu, tables du violon
Dont, poète amant, je fus l'âme.
Adieu cage pour ma chanson.
Cheminée aussi pour ma flamme . . .
Adieu!
(Apercevant TORQUEMADA qui rentre).
Sacrebleu!
Voilà le mari!
Pour nous éviter le souci
D'explications sans charme,
Regagnons au plus vite un asile opportun . . .
Dépêchons!
(Il se trompe d'horloge).

INIGO: (apparaissant dans l'horloge). Il y a quelqu'un!

SCENE XX

(TORQUEMADA, GONZALVE, INIGO que l'on voit blotti dans l'horloge).

TORQUEMADA: (entrant). Il n'est, pour l'horloger, de joie égale à celle
De trouver au logis nombreuse clientèle!
Messieurs, soyez les bienvenus,
Et veuillez m'excuser: vous avez attendu?

INIGO: (dans l'horloge, un peu embarrassé). Mais comment donc, je vous en prie!

GONZALVE: (avec un enthousiasme feint). Vos montres sent de purs bijoux . . .

(INIGO slightly opens the doors of the clock; a cuckoo sings, he suddenly closes the door, then reopens it, one clock sounds, then returns, then reappears).

INIGO: My anxious eye
Scans sadly over the horizon.
Love, love, wicked boy,
In what a fix you place me!
Just when I ought to be comfortably at home,
In a large armchair, feet in slippers,
I languish here, thus cramped.
How it cuts off my breath.
And nobody to haul me out!
No one!
A rope, please, somebody
The door the door, the door!
(He closes it upon himself, to the noise made by GONZALVE in his turn, opening the clock).

GONZALVE: Did someone call?
Well enough, methinks, and wise,
To abandon our retreat.
Adieu, my cell, adieu, dungeon!
Adieu, breast-plate and morion,
With which the lady fits her cavalier!
Adieu, violin, of which I,
The loving poet, was the soul,
Goodbye, cage of my song.
Outlet, for my flame . . .
Adieu!
(Perceiving TORQUEMADA re-entering).
Sacrebleu!
There's the husband!
Let us avoid the trouble
Of painful explanations,
By returning at once to some handy hiding-place . . .
Let us make haste
(He gets the wrong clock).

INIGO: (Appearing in the clock).
There's someone!

SCENE XX

(TORQUEMADA, GONZALVE, INIGO cowering in the clock).

TORQUEMADA: (entering).
There is no joy, for a clockmaker,
Like finding a large clientele waiting for him!
Welcome, gentlemen.
And I crave your pardon. Have you waited long?

INIGO: (In the clock, a little embarrassed). How, what, I beg you?

GONZALVE: (With feigned enthusiasm). Your clocks are jewels!

TORQUEMADA: (le ramenant à l'horloge où se tient INIGO). C'est de cette horloge, surtout, Que vous me direz des nouvelles.

INIGO: Devant que vous veniez, je la considérais,
Précisément avec tant d'intérê . . .

TORQUEMADA: La curiosité est toute naturelle!

INIGO: Qu'à l'intérieur j'ai voulu pénétrer.
Pour examiner de plus près
Le fonctionnement merveilleux du pendule . . .

TORQUEMADA: Quais!
Mais je ne trouve pas celà si ridicule!
Et croyez moi, vous en aurez pour votre argent!
Car vous prenez, bien entendu, l'horloge?

INIGO: Certes!

TORQUEMADA: (à GONZALVE).
Allons, ne soyez pas jaloux!
(Montrant l'autre horloge).
J'ai la pareille au même prix: elle est à vous:
C'est une chance!

GONZALVE: Mais . . . sans doute . . .
(À part).
Impossible de dire non,
Il faut endormir ses soupçons;
Mais que ce trafiquant âpre au gain me dégoûte!

TORQUEMADA: Eh bien! nous voilà tous d'accord!

INIGO:
Je voudrais seulement vous demander encor
De me tirer de cette boîte:
Car, soit dit sans reproche,
Elle est un peu étroite . . .

TORQUEMADA: (tirant INIGO et prenant GONZALVE par la main).
Vouillez seconder mes efforts, Monsieur . . .
(Tous deux tirent).
Hé là donc . . . je t'en souhaite! . . .
(Cependant que TORQUEMADA et GONZALVE s'efforcent, INIGO aperçoit RAMIRO qui revient, suivi de CONCEPCION).

SCENE XXI

INIGO: (appelant RAMIRO). Pardieu, déménageur, vous venez à propos!

TORQUEMADA: (apercevant RAMIRO). Je l'avais oublié: où avais je la tête?
(À CONCEPCION).
Ma femme, vous non plus, vous

TORQUEMADA: (Leading him to the clock in which INIGO is hiding). Above all, tell me some news
About that clock.

INIGO: Before you came, I was considering,
With so much interest . . .

TORQUEMADA: Curiosity is very natural!

INIGO: That I wanted to penetrate into the interior.
To examine from as near as possible
The marvellous operation of the pendulum . . .

TORQUEMADA: I see.
But that's not so ridiculous.
And believe me, you will get enough for your money!
For, of course, you will take the clock?

INIGO: Certainly!

TORQUEMADA: (To GONZALVE). Come, do not be jealous!
(Pointing to the other clock).
I have a similar one at the same price.
It is at your disposal.
It is a bargain.

GONZALVE: But . . . Without doubt . . .
(Aside).
Impossible to say No,
I must lull his suspicions:
How this vile trafficker disgusts me!

TORQUEMADA: Well, now, we are agreed!

INIGO: I would only ask you, in addition,
To pull me out of this box,
For, faultless though it is,
It is a little narrow.

TORQUEMADA: (Pulling Inigo and taking Gonzalve by the hand). Please help me, gentlemen . . .
(Both pull).
He . . . la! There! I'll help you out of it!
(Meanwhile, while Torquemada and Gonzalve are striving, Inigo perceives Ramiro returning, followed by Conception.)

SCENE XXI

INIGO: (calling Ramiro). By God, mover of furniture, you come just in time!

TORQUEMADA: (perceiving Ramiro). I had forgotten him; where was my head?
(To Conception).
My wife, you too, all can help!

n'êtes pas de trop! . . .
(TORQUEMADA, GONZALVE, CONCEPCION font la chaîne et tirent INIGO, mais la chaîne se romp et INIGO est toujours dans l'horloge. RAMIRO prend INIGO à bras le corps et l'enlève de l'horloge le plus naturellement du monde).

RAMIRO: Voilà.

INIGO: Sacrebelu, quelle peigne!

CONCEPCION: De sa vigueur chacun témoigne!

TORQUEMADA: (à CONCEPCION). Vous n'aurez pas encor d'horloge, chère amie . . .

CONCEPCION: (montrant RAMIRO). Régulier comme un chronomètre,
Monsieur passe, avec ses mulets
Chaque matin, sous ma fenêtre . . .

TORQUEMADA: (à RAMIRO).
Chaque matin, donc, s'il vous plait,
Vous lui direz l'heure qu'il est.
(Les acteurs viennent avec intention se placer sur le devant de la scène, après s'être offert mutuellement, en des cérémonies affectées, l'honneur de commencer l'addresse au public).

QUINTETTE FINAL

GONZALVE: Un financier . . .

INIGO: Et un poète . . .

CONCEPCION: (pouffant de rire).
Un époux ridicule . . .

TORQUEMADA: Une femme coquette . . .
(Ensemble).

GONZALVE: Qui se servent, dans leurs discours,
De vers tantôt longs, tantôt courts . . .
Au rythme qui se casse, à la rime cocasse.
(Tous approuvent).

RAMIRO: Avec un peu d'Espagne autour.

CONCEPCION: C'est la morale de Boccace:
Entre tous les amants, seul amant efficace.

RAMIRO: Il arrive un moment, dans les déduits d'amour

CONCEPCION: Où le muletier a son tour.

TOUS: Il arrive un moment dans les déduits d'amour
Où le muletier a son tour.

RIDEAU.

(Torquemada, Gonzalve, Conception make a chain and pull INIGO. But the chain breaks and Intigo is still in the clock. Ramiro takes Inigo around the body and pulls him out of the clock just as naturally as you please).

RAMIRO: There!

INIGO: Sacrebleu, what a fix!

CONCEPTION: Each one bears witness to his strength!

TORQUEMADA: (To Conception)
You still want a clock from me, dear friend?

CONCEPTION: (Pointing to Ramiro). Regular as a chronometer, Monsieur passes, with his mules,
Each morning, beneath my window . . .

TURQUEMADA: (to Ramiro).
Each morning, then if you please,
You will tell her what time it is.
(The actors come with the intention of placing themselves before the fore-scene, after having mutually paid their respects to one another, in affected ceremonies, and offering each other the opportunity to commence the address to the public).

FINAL QUINTETTE

GONZALVE: A financier—

INIGO: And poet—

CONCEPTION: (Bursting into laughter). A ridiculous husband . . .

TURQUEMADA: A coquettish wife . . .
(Together).

GONZALVE: Who use, in their speech,
Verses now long, now short . . .
In broken rhythm, in ridiculous rhyme . . .

RAMIRO: With a bit of Spain around.

CONCEPTION: This is the moral of Boccaccio;
Among all lovers, the only efficient lover . . .

RAMIRO: There arrives a time, in the occupations of love.

CONCEPTION: When the muleteer has his turn.

ALL: There arrives a moment, in the occupations of love,
When the muleteer has his turn.

CURTAIN.

Salammbo (1890)

Music by Ernest Reyer ■ Libretto by Camille Du Locle ■ Based on a novel by Gustave Flaubert

---

This five-act opera, set to a libretto by Camille du Locle (based on Flaubert's novel), premiered at the Théâtre de la Monnaie in Brussels on February 10, 1890. The story takes place in Carthage in 240 BC. Salammbo, daughter of Hamilcar, walks into the gardens of Hamilear at Megara, and reprimands the mercenaries who are drinking a toast to their gods and celebrating their victories. Matho, one of the barbarian chiefs, offers her a glass of wine as Narr'Havas, a king of Numidia, looks on with jealousy. When Salammbo departs, Spendius tells Matho that he can win Salammbo if he will lead a revolt of the mercenaries. Matho's task is to steal Zaimph, a sacred veil of tanit, which is the symbol of Carthage's greatness and security.

Salammbo comes to the high priest and begs him to let her keep the sacred veil as she is afraid for the welfare of her city, but the priest considers this a sacrilege. Matho comes in from his hiding place in the shadows with Spendius, and he gives her the veil. She thinks that he is a god and prepares to worship him. When he tells her he loves her and proves his mortality, she is angry. Her cries are heard by the priests, who enter—but Matho makes his escape, wrapped in the Zaimph.

Hamilcar is dismayed when told about the revolt of the mercenaries, the disappearance of the holy veil and Salammbo's love for Matho. Meanwhile, Salammbo, reproaching herself for the disappearance of the veil, is convinced by Shahabarin to go to the barbarian camp in order to retrieve it. She meets Matho who refuses to give her the sacred veil until they both give in to their love, and he wraps the veil around her. They are exchanging vows when Hamilcar and his generals interrupt them. Salammbo shows the sacred veil in triumph, and Matho, defeated by Narr'Havas, is sentenced to be sacrificed on the alter of Tanit by Hamilcar. It is Salammbo's wedding day to Narr'Havas, and a happy throng gathers in the forum of Carthage. Matho is brought forth to be sacrificed, and Salammbo is given the honor of executing him as she is the rescuer of the sacred veil. Instead, the crowd watches in horror as she stabs herself and Matho, taking the same sword, kills himself.

■ ACTE PREMIER	■ ACT I
Le festin des mercenaires. Les jardins d'Hamilcar, à Mégara, près de Carthage. Au fond, une grande terrasse d'où l'on descend par un large escalier. Au-dessus de la terrasse, le palais. A gauche, les logements des esclaves. A droite, au loin, la mer et les édifices de Carthage.	(Gardens of Hamilcar at Megara, near Carthage. Back a terrace and extensive stairs. Above, the palace. Left, the slaves' lodgings. Right, in distance, the sea and buildings of Carthage).
SCÈNE PREMIÈRE	SCENE I
Matho, Autharite. Les Mercenaires assir au festin.
LE CHOEUR: Héos victorieux, Aux jardins d'Hamilcar, Sur des lits de brocart, Buvons, pareils aux dieux!	MATHO, AUTHARITE and MERCENARY SOLDIERS: (seated at festival). Victorious heroes, in the gardens of Hamilcar, let us drink to the gods on brocaded seats.
QUATRE CHEFS DES MERCENAIRES: Carthage est riche et ne sait pas la guerre! Grâce à nos bras vaillants, elle est debout encor Que les festins, les voluptés et l'or Payent sa dette au soldat mercenaire!	FOUR CHIEFS: Carthage is rich, knows nothing of war; and thanks to our arms is proud as ever. So let feats, pleasure and gold, give the price to the mercenary.
LE CHOEUR: Héos victorieux, Aux jardins d'Hamilcar, Sur des lits de brocart, Buvons, pareils aux dieux!	CHORUS: (Repeat). Victorious heroes in the gardens of Hamilcar, etc.
LES GRECS: (élevant leurs coupes). A toi, dieu rayonnant cher à notre patrie, Jupiter, qu'on adore au temple d'Olympie!	THE GREEKS: (raising their cups). To you, shining god of our soil, to Jupiter, whom we worship on Olympus.
LES ÉGYPTIENS: (de même). O vierge qu'on adore en notre doux pays, A toi, reine du Nil.	EGYPTIANS: (same action.) Oh, virgin, we adore in our own sweet land. To you, queen of Nile, goodly Isis.
LES GAULOIS: (de même). Teutates, dont la voix dans les orages gronde, A toi, dieu dont le temple est la forêt profonde!	GAULS: (same action). Teutates to you, whose voice is in the storm and also in darkest forest.
LES SYRIENS: (de même). A toi, reine d'amour, reine de volupté, O Vénus Syrienne, ô brillante Astarté!	SYRIANS: (same action). To you, Queen of Love, Queen of Pleasure, to you, Syrian Venus, brilliant Astarte.
LA VOIX DES ESCLAVES: (dans l'ergastule). O fils d'une terre étrangère, Heureux qui jouit ici-bas De l'air divin, de la lumière! O Liberté! Soleil! ô biens perdus! hélas!	VOICES OF SLAVES: (outside). Oh; sons of foreign countries, happy are those who breathe the air of liberty, see light. Oh, beneficent sun, lost forever alas!
DEMI-CHOEUR: Ecoutez! Qui gémit dans cette voix plaintive?	CHORUS: Listen who speak in such plaintive tone.
DEMI-CHOEUR: Le vent dans les palmiers ou le flot sur la rive!	OTHERS: The sighing of the palms or the lapping on the shore.
LE CHOEUR: Héros victorieux, Aux jardins d'Hamilcar Sur des lits de brocart, Buvons, pareils aux dieux!	ALL: (Repeat). To victorious heroes in gardens of Hamilcar, etc. (Enter Narr'Havas).

AUTHARITE: (désignant les Numides qui entrent). Ces cavaliers hardis, alliés de Carthage,
Comme nous, ont, par leur courage,
Soutenu sa fortune et sauvé son destin!
Offrons-leur prés de nous une place au festin!
(Les Mercenaires accueillent les Numides.)

NARR'HAVAS: (á Matho). Guerrier, quel est ton nom, et quelle est to patrie?
Je t'ai vu combattre avec nous,
Et parmi les vaillants, le plus vaillant de tous!

MATHO: (à Narr'Havas). Guerrier, quel est ton nom?
où reçus-tu la vie?
Oui, tu combattis près de moi.
Nul parmi les vaillants n'est plus vaillant que toi!

NARR'HAVAS: Mon nom est Narr'Havas, et la plaine numide Mon pays!

MATHO: Je suis né dans la Lybie aride,
Et mon nom est Matho.

NARR'HAVAS: Parmi les bataillons
J'ai grandi.

MATHO: J'ai grandi, moi, chassant les lions.
Je suis fils d'un berger.

NARR'HAVAS: Moi, je suis roi!
Soyons Amis . . . .

MATHO: Asseyons-nous côte à côte . . . .

NARR'HAVAS: Et buvons!

LA VOIX DES ESCLAVES: (dans l'ergastule). O fils d'une terre étrangère, Heureux qui jouit ici-bas
De l'air divin, de la lumière!
O Liberté!
Soleil! ô biens perdus!..
helas! . . . .

LA CHOEUR: Quoi? ce chant douloureux
Dans les airs monte encore?.

MATHO: Qui sont ces malheureux
Dont la voix nous implore?

NARR'HAVAS: Ne prenous d'eux aucun souci.

MATHO: (se levant). Dans ce jour triomphant, qui nous invoque ainsi?

NARR'HAVAS: (l'arretant). Garde en paix ton épée, et laisse sans scrupule,
Se plaindre au fond d l'ergastule
Les esclaves d'Hamilcar.
Ce qui les fait fèmir, ces pâles misérables,
C'est l'odeur du festin qui fait ployer nos tables
E le parfum de ce nectar!

AUTHARITE: (pointing at Numidians). These hardy horsemen allied to Carthage have, like us, by their courage, saved her destiny. So let us offer them a place at our table.
(All fraternize.)

NARR'HAVAS: (to Matho). Warrior, what is your country and what is your name. I have seen you fight, and among the bold, you are the boldest of all.

MATHO: And your name, the place of your birth. You struggled by my side, nor one more bold than you.

NARR: My name is Narr'havas, and the Numid land my country.

MATHO: My place of birth was arid Lybia. My name is Matho.

NARR: I grew among soldiers.

MATHO: And I hunting the lion; yet son of a shepherd.

NARR: I am a king, but let us be friends.

MATHO: And sit side by side.

NARR: A drink and a toast.

THE SLAVES: (outside, repeating). Oh, sons of foreign countries, happy are those who breathe the air of liberty, etc.

CHORUS: What! this plaintive chant breaks again upon our hearing.

MATHO: Who are these unfortunates whose voices implore us?

NARR: Let's give them little worry.

MATHO: On this triumphal day who calls upon us?

NARR: (stopping him). In peace keep your sword and have no scruple in leaving Hamilcar's slaves in their dungeon. What makes them cry out is the odor of the meats they smell from afar and the perfume of the wine.

MATHO: Des esclaves, dis-tu?
Non! par tout où nous sommes
Il n'est plus d'esclaves!
(Aux Lybiens.)
Allons!
(Matho sort à la tête des Lybiens.)

NARR'HAVAS: (riant) Des esclaves sont ils des hommes? . . . .
Eh quoi? quitter pour eux la table où nous buvons?

AUTHARITE: (aux Mercenaires qui l'entourent). Amis! celui qui va délivrer ces esclaves
Il est fort, il est juste, et brave entres les braves.
Si Carthage, encore aujourd'hui
Manquant à la foi solennelle,
Retient l'or, prix du sang par nous versé pour elle;
S'il faut pour nous venger un chef, que ce soit lui!

MATHO: (rentrant avec ses compagnons et ramenant les esclaves delivres). Calmez vos cris, séchez vos larmes, Saluez un meilleur destin.
Melez-vous parmi nous, prenez part au festin,
Demandez à la fois une coupe et des armes!

SPENDIUS: Salut à mes libérateurs!
Salut á vous, dieux protecteurs,
Dieux d'Ionie!
Salut, riant éclt des cieux,
Astre d'or au char radieux,
Splendeur bénie!
Salut, sylvains, fils des forêts,
Et nous nymphes des autres frais,
Et des fontaines!
Salut, hommes fiers et vaillants
Dont l'épée aux éclairs brillants
Brisa mes chaînes!

MATHO: Prends cette coup et bois!

SPENDIUS: Pourquoi ne vois-je pas
Entre vos mains victorieuses
Entinceler les coupes glorieuses
Ou l'on boit à Carthage, au retour des combats?.
Je me souviens!
La légion sacrée
Boit seule aux coupes d'or relique vénérée
Que le Sénat, jaloux, conserve en son trésor!.

LE CHOEUR: Nous voulons boire aux coupes d'or!.

NARR'HAVAS: Non,..craignez les Baals! c'est un voeu sacrilège!

SPENDIUS: En Grèce, mon pays, il n'est nul privilège
Qu'un dieu jaloux dispute à des soldats vainqueurs!

LE CHOEUR: Les coupes!.

NARR'HAVAS: Giscon vient, au nom des sénateurs.

SPENDIUS: La légion sacrée a formé son cortège.
(Entrée de Giscon, avec sa suite.)

MATHO: Slaves, you say? I know no slaves wherever I may be. (To his men,) Come.
(He heads his followers and exits.)

NARR: (laughing). Slaves are not men, and why leave the table for them.

AUTHARITE: (to the Mercenaries). Friends, the one who delivers these slaves is strong, he is just and bravest of all, and if Carthage today abjuring her vow, keeps our gold, the price of blood spent for her, if for vengeance, a chief we must have, let it be be.

MATHO: (returning with his companions and bringing with him the delivered slaves). Calm yourselves. Dry your tears. Bow to a happier fate. Join us; take part in the feast. Ask at once to drink and to fight.

SPENDIUS: Joy to my liberators. Joy to the protecting gods, gods of Ionio. Joy, light and air, oh, sun, in your splendor. Joy to the sylvan glades, to the nymphs of the forest and of the fountains. Homage to the proud and valiant men whose shining swords broke my chains.

MATHO: Take this cup and drink.

SPENDIUS: Why do I not see in your victorious hands bristle the glorious cups they drink from in Carthage after a fight. I remember. Alone the Senate drinks from these venerated and sacred cups of gold. The Senate, jealous, keeps its treasure.

CHORUS: Let us all drink from the golden cups.

NARR: No! Fear Baal, this is an impious thing.

SPENDIUS: Greece is my country, and there is nothing a conquerer may not have.

CHORUS: The cups—the wine.

NARR: Giscon, in the name of the senate, now comes.

SPENDIUS: The sacred legion has formed itself in line.
(Formal entry of Giscon, escorted).

LE CHOEUR: Nous voulons boire aux coupes d'or!. L'ingrate cité nous outrage Elle tombait, sans notre effort! Nous avons pour sauver Carthage, Bravé le feu, le fer, la mort! Nous voulons boire aus coupes d'or.	CHORUS: We wish to drink in golden cups, for Carthage has insulted us. Without us she would have fallen. To save Carthage we've met fire, iron, death, and now we'll drink in cups of gold.
GISCON: O sauvers de Carthage! ô fils de la victoire! Nul honneur n'est pour vous trop haut, trop plein de gloire!	GISCON: Saviors of Carthage, oh, sons of victory . No honor is too great for you or any too great glory.
LE CHOEUR: C'est vrai! vivat!	CHORUS: It is true. Hurrah!
GISCON: Mais de nos dieux jaloux, Ne nous demandez pas d'éveiller le courroux!	GISCON: But do not arouse the rancor.
SPENDIUS: Plaisants dieux, pour troubler coeur vaillant d'un homme Que ces dieux qui, sans vous, partaient captifs pour Rome! . . .	SPENDIUS: Pleasant gods that would trouble valiant men, and these gods without you would depart captive for Rome.
LE CHOEUR: Vengeance!.	CHORUS: Vengeance!
MATHO: Apportes-tu l'or Qu'on nous doit encor Pour prix de notre sang versé dans vingt batailles?	MATHO: Do you bring us the gold won by our blood in twenty battles?
LE CHOEUR: Notre solde . . .	CHORUS: Our pay.
GISCON: Allez tous camper hors des murailles Et vous serez payés..	GISCON: All go camp outside the walls and you'll be paid.
DEMI-CHOEUR: Non! Carthage est à nous!	HALF CHORUS: No, Carthage belongs to us.
DEMI-CHOEUR: C'est un piège!	OTHER HALF: It is a trick.
DEMI-CHOEUR: On nous chasse!	HALF CHORUS: We're dismissed.
DEMI-CHOEUR: On ment!	OTHER HALF: And he lies.
MATHO: On nous outrage! Qu'elle tremble Carthage!	MATHO: They outrage us. Let Carthage tremble.
LE CHOEUR: Des haches! des torches! courez!	CHORUS: Axes, torches—anything.
GISCON: Par Tanit et Moloch, vous tous repentirez!	GISCON: By Tanit and Moloch, you'll all repent.
MERCENAIRES: Dans mes mains la foudre résonne! Mon glaive laboure et moissonne! Le maître du monde, c'est moi. Tous tremblant devant ma colère; Tous, prosternés dans la poussière, M'appellent seigneur et grand roi! (Giscon est sorti avec son escorte. Les jardins sont mis au pillage. les tables sont enversées. L'incendie commence à luire au millieu des arbres.) (Les Prêtres de Tanit apparaissent au sommet de l'escalier du palais, puis Salammbô.)	MERCENARIES: (and all Chorus join.) It is in our hands the thunder growls. It is in our hands the harvest grows. The Master of Earth is ourself, and bend before choler. All humbly in the dust speak of us only as lord and great king. Enough. (GISCON leaves with escort. The gardens are put to pillage, table thrown about. Fires begin to burn). (The Priests of Tanit appear at head of stairs then Salammbo.)
LES PRÊTRES: Tanit, déesse austère, Qui verses sur la terre, Ton lait et ta lumière! Tanit, astre changeant Dans l'azur dirigeant Ta nacelle d'argent! Tanit, ô bonté sage, Qui vis dans ton image Aux autels de Carthage! Tanit, verse su nous Dans des rayons plus doux Des regards sans courroux! (Salammbô parait au scull du palais.)	PRIESTS: (chant). Tanit, austere goddess that our earth gives milk and light, Tanit, in the milky way, direct your silver ship, Tanit, oh, wise and good, who lives in your image on the altars of Carthage, Tanit pour upon us in peaceful fashion your looks without anger (Salammbo appears at steps of palace).
LE CHOEUR: Voyez! dans sa beauté supreme Est-ce la déesse elle-même?	CHORUS: See in her splendid beauty—she is the goddess herself.
NARR'HAVAS: Le regard De Tanit est moins pur et moins beau, Et c'est la fille d'Hamilcar, C'est Salammbô!	NARR'HAVAS: The mere look of Tanit is less and no more. This is the daughter of Hamilcar. It is Salammbo.
SALAMMBÔ: Qu'avez-vous fait O cité lamentable! O Carthage! Où sont-ils tes défenseurs, tes fils, Qui t'avaient faite et grande et redoutable? Où sont-ils tes guerriers qui labouraient jadis Les flots, par qui les flots se couronnaient d'épis? Carthage! ôsol sacré dont se sépare: Cite sainte qui'insulte une horde barbare!	SALAMMBO: What have you done? oh, lamentable city. Oh, Carthage, where are your defenders, your sons. Those who made you great and redoutable. Where are your seamen, who a short while ago ploughed the sea and brought grain in abundance? Carthage! Oh, Carthage! Tanit is aghast, for now you are ploughed by a barbarian horde.
LE CHOEUR: Un éclair surhuman a brillé dans ses yeux! On entend dans sa voix quelque chose des dieux!	CHORUS: Great heaven, we see the supernatural in her eyes. We hear something in her voice.
SALAMMBÔ: Des glaives, des flambeaux, courage! Livrez au feu ce toitsacré. Hamilcar est loin de Carthage, Je suis seule et je m'enfuirai! Sur ces murs de cédre et d'ivoire Portez vos sacrilèges mains; Tout y raconte notre gloire Et les défaites des Romains! Un serpent noir, vivant mystère, Dort là-haut, parmi les lotos Pour me suivre dans ma galère. A ma voix il fendra les flots! O ciel, où naissent les ètoiles, Cache ton azur obscurci, Tanit, cache-toi dans tes voiles, Un autre va regner ici!	SALAMMBO: I want swords, torches, courage. Give this sacred roof to the flammes. Hamilcar is now far from Carthage I am alone, and I shall fly. Upon these walls of cedar and ivory bring at once your sacrilegious hands. All here accounts our glory and the routs of the Roman bands, A serpent black, a living mystery lives above among the lotos. Let to follow me in my galère—he will defy the sea. Oh heaven, where stars are born, hide your blue azure. Oh Tanit, get behind your veil for another will reign in your precinct.
LES PRÊTRES: Tanit, déese austère Qui verses sur la terre Ton lait et ta lumière!	PRIESTS: Tanit, austere goddess, that to our earth gives light and strength, have mercy for our wrongs.
SALAMMBÔ: Déese, exauce-moi!
LES PRÊTRES: Tanit, verse sur nous, Dans des rayons plus doux, Des regards sans courroux . . . . !
SALAMMBÔ: Déese, apaise-toi!	SALAMMBO: Oh, Goddess forgive us.
NARR'HAVAS: Non! ne redoute rien, ô vierge, de leurs armes! Qui voudrait de tes yeux faire couler des larmes? Chacun de nous frappe de respect transporte D'amour, en toi, grâce exquise, ô beauté, Voit la divinité Qui régne en sa patrie!	NARR'HAVAS: No, fear nothing; oh, virgin, from their arms. Who would wish to cause your alarms. Every one and all of us with respect and joy welcome your beauty. It is with love we look upon a divinity who reigns in her native country.
LES ÉGYPTIENS: (s'inclinant). Isis!	EGYPTIANS: (bowing). Isis!
LES ITALIOTES: (de même). Vesta.	ITALIANS: (bowing). Vesta!

LES SPARTIATES: (de méme). Pallas!	GREEKS: (bowing). Pallas!
LES SYRIENS: (de méme). O Venus Astarté!	SYRIANS: (bowing). Oh, Venus Astarté.
LES IONIENS: (de méme). O Venus Uranie	IONIANS: (bowing). No, Venus Urania!
MATHO: (s'agenouillant devant Salammbô). Oui devant toi, qui de nous Ne sent fléchir ses genoux?	MATHO: (on his knees). Let who would not bow before you—on his knees.
SALAMMBÔ: (à Matho). Comme gage de paix et d'heuseuse espérance, Soldat, prends cette coupe, où de mes mains versés Les flots de ce vin pur scellent no alliance. Bois, soldat!Soix heureux!	SALAMMBO: (to Matho). As a gage of peace and happy hope—soldier take this cup by my own hand filled. May the toast seal the alliance between us. Soldier drink, and be happy.
AUTHARITE: Salut aux fiancés!	AUTHARITE: To the bride and bridegroom.
MATHO et NARR'HAVAS: Que dit-il?	MATHO and NARR: What does he say?
SPENDIUS: (riant). Il dit vrai! verser dans un cratère.	SPENDIUS: (laughing). He say that to drink pure wine from a glass together to a man of war means among the Gauls to offer your love.
MATHO et NARR'HAVAS: Que dit-il? Le vin pur, et l'offrir à quelqu'homme de guerre, Aux pays des Gaulois, c'est offrir son amour!
MATHO: (vidant la coupe). Je bois à Salammbô! J'accepte cet augure!	MATHO: (emptying his glass). I drink to Salammbo and accept the augury.
NARR'HAVAS: (à Matho). Je l'aime, et depuis plus d'un jour, Entends-tu bien?	NARR: (to Matho). I have loved her for a day and more. Understand me well.
MATHO: Je l'aime, et pour jamais! (Narr'Havas se precipite sur Matho). (blessé). Parjure! (Il prend une table et la jette à Narr'havas Salammbô et les Prêtres ont disparu.) (Matho s'assied. Spendius s'approche de lui.)	MATHO: I love her and for her always. (Narr'Havas throws himself on Matho, who is wounded. Matho seizes a table, which he dashes at Narr. crying "coward!") (Salammbo and the Priests are gone. Matho, wounded, seats himself. Spendius comes near.)
MATHO: Va-t'en!	MATHO: Go away.
SPENDIUS: Non! . . . Spendius par tes mains delivre T'appartient! Commande et j'obiérai! . . . Laisse-moi panser ta blessure! . . . (Matho le repousse.)	SPENDIUS: (throwing himself at his feet). No—Spendius, by your hands delivered, belongs to you. Command, and I obey. Let me bathe your wound. (Matho repulses him.)
SPENDIUS: Ecoute . . . je connais Chaque détour de ce palais Splendide, Je serai, si tu veux, Vers des tresors prodigieux, Ton guide . . . De vertige surpris, Le coeur devant ces biens sans prix Palpite. Viens et tout est a toi, Or, perles, diamants, suis-moi, Viens vite!	SPENDIUS: Listen! I know every detour of this splendid palace. I shall be your guide to enormous treasures. The heart beats at the thought of such priceless things. Come, all is for you—gold, pearls, diamonds—come now.
MATHO: (à part). Ah! Moloeh m'a maudit! Le feu Dans mes veines circule La colere ardente du dieu Embrase mon coeur et me brûle!	MATHO: Moloch has cursed me. I feel now in my veins that the warm anger of the god has taken hold of my heart annd burns me.
SPENDIUS: Tu ne me responds pai?tu méprises cet or? Vois! Je puis t'offrir plus encor . . . (Montrant la cité lointaine.) Veuxta mettre demain cette ville au pillage?	SPENDIUS: You do not answer—you despise this gold. Look, I can offer even more. (Showing the distant city). Would you wish to pillage it?
MATHO: (le repoussant). Non!	MATHO: (pushing him aside). No.
SPENDIUS: A son fier Sénat veux-tu dicter des lois?	SPENDIUS: Dictate its laws to the proud Senate?
MATHO: Non.	MATHO: No.
SPENDIUS: Veux-tu voir trembler a tous genoux Carthage?	SPENDIUS: Wuold you like to see at your knees—Carthage?
MATHO: Non.	MATHO: No.
SPENDIUS: Veux-tu pour ton front le bandeau d'or des rois?	SPENDIUS: Would you wish for your forehead the gold circle of the kings?
MATHO: Non.	MATHO: No.
SPENDIUS: Quel demon, l'agite?	SPENDIUS: What devil seizes him?
MATHO: (comme dans un rêve). Où donc est-elle?	MATHO: (as in a dream). Where can she be?
SPENDIUS: (indiquant le bras blessé de Matho.) Tu souffres?	SPENDIUS(touching his arm). You suffer.
MATHO: (frappant sa poitrine). Elle est là, la blessure mortelle!	MATHO: (striking his breast). The wound is here and mortal.
MATHO: Ah! Moloch m'a maudit! Le feu Dans mes veines circule La colere ardente du Dieu Embrase mon coeur et ma brûle!	MATHO: Yes, Moloch has cursed me. The fire in my veins runs wild. The anger of the deity burns my heart and all.
SPENDIUS: (à part). Tel sous sa tunique de feu Se plaignait le divin Hercule; Eros des pleurs se fait un jeu Et d'un trait vainqueur il le brûle! (Autharite, les Mercenaires entrant).	SPENDIUS: Thus under his tunic of fire found divine Hercules. Thus Eros makes play of tears and in a second burns him to death. (Autharite and the Mercenaries enter.)
AUTHARITE: Le clairon retentit dans l'aire! La cite jette au loin comme un grand bruit de houle, De sinistres clameurs s'elèvent de la foule . . .	AUTHARITE: The trumpet resounds in the air. The distant city is in great clamor and sinister clamors arise from the crowd.
SPENDIUS: On prépare pour vous, non de l'or, mais du fer!	SPENDIUS: They prepare not gold, but the sword.
LE CHOEUR: Oui! c'est la guerre!Allons choisissons le plus brave Pour notre chef!	CHORUS: Yes, it is war; let us choose the most valiant for our chief.
AUTHARITE: Matho!	AUTHARITE: Matho.
LE CHOEUR: Matho nous conduira! . . . Oui! donnons-lui la pourpre! . . . (Matho refuse du geste.)	CHORUS: Yes, Matho now shall lead us—we'll place the purple on him (Matho makes gesture of refusal.)
SPENDIUS: (à Matho.) Ah! crois-en ton esclave. Accepte, et je le jure, elle t'appartiendra! (On jette sur les épaules de Matho un manteau de pourpre, les enseignes se rangent autour de lui, etc., etc.)	SPENDIUS: (to Matho). Believe in your slave. Accept, and I swear that she shall belong to you. (They throw over Matho's shoulders a purple mantle and the troops align round him).

LE CHOEUR: (Chant de Mercenaires.) Dans mos mains la foudre résonne!
Mon glaive laboure et moissonne!
Le maître du monde, c'est moi.
Tous tremblant devant ma colere,
Tous prosternés dans la poussièrre,
M'appellent Seigneur et grand Roi!
(Salammbo fuyant vers Carthage apparait dans un char, sur la terasse supérieure. Matho et les Mercenaires se précipitent vers elle. Elle les arrete d'un ste et poursuit son chemin.)

■ ACTE DEUXIÈME

Tanit.
(L'enciente sacrée du temple de Tanit. Les Prêtres prosternes attendant, en invoquant Tanit, Shahabarim est debout prés d'un trepiêd.)

LES PRÊTRES ET LES PRÊTRESSES: Anaïtis, Derceto, Mylitta,
O Rabbetna, Baalet, Tyratha, Tanit, parais!

SHAHABARIM: Sors des flots, déesse éclante,
Et sur Carthage, où tu te plais,
Verse de tes rayons la splendeur bienfaisante!
Viens, et recois de nous ô maîtresse du ciel,
Avec l'encens, le vin mêlé de miel!
(Dans des Courtisanes Sacrées.)

LES PRÊTRES ET LES PRÊTRESSES: Anaïtis, Derceto, Mylitta,
O Rabbetna, Baalet, Tyratha, Tanit, parais!
(La lune, brille un disque d'argent.)

LE CHOEUR: Tanit, Salut!
Carthage te bénit!
Retentissez, cris d'allégresse!
Sonnesz, clairons sacrés! hymnes religieux,
Élancez-vous aux cieux,
Saluez la déesse!
La lune descend lentement.
(Pendant que la lumière decend,)
O Tanit, blanche déité,
Beinfaitrice féconde,
O clair miroir, ô pureté,
Vers dans ta sérénité
Tes rayons sur le monde!
Elle fuit ton char radieux,
L'horreur de la nuit sombre;
Et les monstres mystérieux,
Sitôt que tu parais aux cieux,
Rentrent au sein de l'ombre.
Que tu glisses légèrement
Dan les vapeurs humides!
Les astres d'or au firmament
Comme un troupeau, docilement
S'en vont où tu les guides!
Tu règnes sur les profondeurs
Où la vague déferle,
Tu remplis l'air de tes splendeurs
Semant sur la terre les fleurs,
Au sein des mers la perle!

CHORUS: (Repeat). It is in our hands the thunder sounds. It is in our hands the harvest grows. The Master of Earth is ourself, and bend before our anger. All buried in the dust proclaim you Lord and Great King.
(Salammbo flying toward Carthage, appears in a chariot on the terrace above. Matho and the Mercenaires make a dash toward and are stopped by a motion of her hand. She moves on.)

■ ACT II

Tanit.
(The surroundings of the Temple of Tanit. Priests are worshipping. Shahabarim stands by a censer.)

PRIESTS AND PRIESTESSES: Anaitio, Derceto, Mylitta, oh, Rabetna, Baalet, Tyratha. Tanit appear!

SHAHABARIM: From the deep, magnificent deity. On Carthage, the town you love. Throw down your sunbeams in splendid fashion. Come and receive, oh, Mistress of Heaven, with incense the honey mixed with the wine.
(Dance of the sacred women.)

PRIESTS AND WOMEN: (they repeat first refrain, ending as Tanit appears. While the moon slowly rises and illuminates the scene.)

CHORUS: Tanit, we bow, Carthage loves you. Ring again shouts of joy. Bray again you sacred brasses. Sound high to heaven—sound for the deity.
(The moon gradually descends.)
Oh Tanit, white deity, goodness fecund, oh mirror of purity, send in severity your beams on the world. Your radiant chariot is in horror of somber night. So mysterious monsters, as soon as you appear, return to the desolate gloom. How lightly you slip through the clouds moist and clear. The golden stars in the firmament, like a flock docilely go where you guide them. You reign on the ocean where the wave mounts on high; fill the air with your splendor, carpeting earth with flowers, at the bottom of the sea the pearl. The crowd madly in love follows you enchantress. You take them in your course, changing as you do every day, only more youthful tomorrow. Oh, Tanit, white goddess, goodness fecund, oh, mirror of purity, send your beams on the world in severity.

La foule ardente des amours
Te suit, enchanteresse!
Tu les entraînes dans ton cours
Changeant comme toi tous les jours
Pour rajeunir sans cesse!
O Tanit, blanche déité,
Bienfaitrice féconde,
O clair miroir, ô pureté,
Vers dans ta sérénité
Tes rayons sur le monde

LE CHOEUR: Tanit, Salut!
Carthage te bénit!
Retentissez, cris d'allégresse,
Sonnez, clairons sacrés, hymnes religieux,
Elancez-vous aux cieux!
Saluez la déesse
(Danse des Courtisanes Sascrées,)

SHAHABARIM: La déesse a rempli tout l'azur de sa gloire!
Ouvrons donc les portes d'ivoire
Du sanctuaire redouté,
Adorons le manteau que Tanit a jeté
Sur sa mystérieuse image,
Le Zamïph qui, gardien des destins de Carthage,
Est une part de la divinité!
(Marche. Shabavarim entre dans le sanctuaire. Spendius et Matho entrent furtivement.) SPENDIUS: (à Matho). Suis-moi!

MATHO: Par cette route sombre,
En franchissant les murs et nous glissant dans l'ombre,
Ou donc m'as-tu conduit?

SPENDIUS: Au temple de Tanit!
Veux-tu voir tes soldats vainqueurs, Carthage en flamme?
Veux-tu voir à tes pieds cette orgueilleuse femme
Qui torture ton coeur, qui t'a vole ton âme?

MATHO: Ah! revoir Salammbô, puis s'il le faut, mourir!

SPENDIUS: Il est un voile saint qu'en ce temple on vénère.
Il couvre la déesse au fond du sanctuaire.
Qui le posséderait serait un dieu sur terre!

MATHO: Eh bien?

SPENDIUS: Jet'ai conduit ici pour le ravir!

MATHO: (épouvanté). O sacrilège!

SHAHABARIM: (paraissant au seuil du sanctuaire, portant le Zaïmph). Priez!
Adorez ce voile
Où frémit l'âme des dieux,
Le Zaïmph mystérieux
Tissu des feux d'une etoile!

LE CHOEUR: O Rabbetna, Baalet, Tyratha!

SPENDIUS: (à Matho). Que le Zaïmph dans tes mains resplendisse!

CHORUS: Tanit, Carthage, salutes you. Sound sacred cymbals, religious tones—let them be heard up even to heaven.
(Dance of the Sacred Women.)

SHAHABARIM: The goddess has filled the heavens with her glory. Then let us open the ivory gates of the dreaded sanctuary. Let us adore the mantle that Tanit threw upon her mysterious symbol. The Zaimph, which guardian of Carthage is part of her divinity.
(March. Shabaharim enters the sanctuary while Spendius and Matho come in furtively.)

SPENDIUS: (to Matho). Follow me!

MATHO: By this roundabout way, climbing ditches and walls, where have you brought me?

SPENDIUS: To the Temple of Tanit. Would you see your soldiers victorious, Carthage in flame? Would you see at your feet this imperious woman who has tortured your heart, who has stolen your soul?

MATHO: See Salammbo once more? Yes, perhaps, then die.

SPENDIUS: There is in this temple a sacred veil, that covers the goddess in the depths of the sanctuary. Who possesses it is a god on this earth.

MATHO: Well?

SPENDIUS: I brought you here to ravish it.

MATHO: (frightened). A sacrilege!

SHAHABARIM: (appearing on steps). Pray all adore this veil, wherein is the soul of the gods, the mysterious Zaimph made from a fiery star.

CHORUS: Oh, Rabetna, Baalat, Tyratha!

SPENDIUS: (to Matho). May the Zaimph in your hands be resplendent.

MATHO: Pour ce forfait, cherche un autre complice!	MATHO: For this crime find some other accomplice.
LE CHOEUR: Anaïtis, Dercéto, Mylitta!	CHORUS: Anaitis, Derceto, Mylitta.
SHAHABARIM: Priez! ce voile est un gage De victore et de splendeur! Il est le gardien, l'honneur, La fortune de Carthage!	SHAHABARIM: Pray all for this veil is the symbol of victory and splendor. It is the keeper of the honor and fortune of Carthage.
LE CHOEUR: O Rabbetna, Baalet, Tyratha!	CHORUS: Oh Rabetna, Baalet, Tyratha!
SPENDIUS (à Matho). Vois! c'est pour toi la foudre vengeresse!	SPENDIUS: See for you it is a vengeful thunder.
MATHO: Non! ce serait te braver, ô déesse!	MATHO: No, I dare not outrage the deity.
LE CHOEUR: Anaïtis, Dercéto, Mylitta!	CHORUS: Anaitis, Derceto, Mylitta!
SHAHABARIM: Priez!ce voile est terrible! Celui qui le toucerait, Maudit des dieux, tomberait Frappé d'un fer invisible!	SHAHABARIM: Pray all, this veil is terrible—whoever should touch, cursed by the gods would fall stricken by invisible arm.
LE CHOEUR: O Rabbetna, Baalet, Tyratha!	CHROUS: Oh, Rabetna, Baalet, Tyratha!
SPENDIUS: (à Matho). Crains-tu la mort? tu tardes encore?	SPENDIUS: (to Matho). Do you fear death?—Why you still wait?
MATHO: Je crains les dieux et mon coeur les honore!	MATHO: I fear the gods, whom in my heart I honor.
LE CHOEUR: Anaïtis, Dercéto, Mylitta! (Shahabarim rentre dans le sanctuaire où il dépose le Zaïmph, puis il en sort en en laissant les portes ouvertes.)	CHORUS: Anaitis, Derceto, Mylitta! (Shahabarim re-enters the sanctuary, where he deposits the Zaimph, leaving open the doors.)
SHAHABARIM, LE CHOEUR: Tanit, reine immortelle, Nous te glorifions, Astre dont étincelle Le front ceint des rayons!	SHAHABARIM AND CHORUS: Tanit, immortal queen, we glorify you, star whose light makes the whole world white.
SPENDIUS: (à Matho). Où donc est ton amour? Ta force où donc est-elle?	SPENDIUS: (to Matho). Where is your love? Your strength, where does it lie?
MATHO: Je crains les dieux! fuyons! (Spendius et Matho se sont écartes. On frappe aux portes du temple.)	MATHO: I fear the gods; let's fly. (Spendius and Matho part. Knocking at door of temple.)
SHAHABARIM: Qui donc, frappant au sanctuaire Ose troubler ce saint mystère?	SHAHABARIM: Who knocks at the sanctuary; who dares disturb the sacred mystery.
UN PRÊTRE: C'est Salammbô!	A PRIEST: It is Salammbo!
MATHO: Salammbô! Justes dieux!	MATHO: Salammbo, great gods!
SPENDIUS: (à Matho). Elle est pour toi, la fortune prospere! (Spendius disparait. Matho reste caché dans l'ombre. Salammbô entre.)	SPENDIUS: (to Matho). She belongs to you, fortune favors you. (Spendius disappears, Matho remains hidden; Salammbo enters.)
SHAHABARIM: O fille d'Hamilcar, que veux-tu donc?	SHAHABARIM: Oh, daughter of Hamilcar, what would you do?
SALAMMBÔ: O pére! Toi qui dans les choses des cieux Daignas instruire ma jeunesse, Toi dont l'esprit est plein de l'antique sagesse, Prends en pitié ma douleur, mon effroi. Pontife saint apaise la déesse . . . Son courroux pése sur moi!	SALAMMBO: Oh, father, you who in the things of heaven deigned to instruct my youth. You whose mind is full of ancient wisdom, take pity on my weakness, my fear. Blest pontiff soften the heart of the goddess. Her anger weighs upon me.
SHAHABARIM: Parmi les parfums, parmi les prières Jusqu'ici tes jours coulaient purs et doux. Dans les rites saints dont ils sont jaloux As-tu donc blessé nos dieux tutélaires?	SHAHABARIM: Amid the perfumes, amid the prayers—until now your days were simple and pure. In the holy rites of which they're so jealous, how did you wound the gods of your land?
SALAMMBÕ: Je nes sais. Tout m'accable et le repos me fuit! J'ai supplié les Baals redoutables, Eschmoun qui se déroule aux astres de la nuit, Khamon etincelant aux flèches implacables! J'ai conjure les dieux ancêtres d'Hamilcar; Les Kabyres, caches dans les feux de la terre; J'ai dormi, pâle et solitaire, Sous l'olivier d'or de Melkarth. C'est en vain!	SALAMMBO: You know not. Everything weighs upon me and oppresses. I have to the fearsome Baals, Eschmoun, who waits in the watches of the night; Khamon, whose quivers never, never fail. I have begged of the gods, ancestors of Hamilcar, to the Kabyles hidden in the center of the earth. I have slept sick and solitary under the golden olive tree of Melkarth. All in vain!
SHAHABARIM: Je sais ta grande âme! Jamais dans le sein d'une femme N'a battu coeur plus fier, plus digne d'un héros. Ce coeur saigne des maux Dont Carthage est la proie!	SHAHABARIM: I follow your great soul. Never in bosom of woman beat a heart more proud, more worthy of hero. This heart beats the agonies of which Carthage is the victim.
SALAMMBÔ: Peut-être! Qui connaît le repos et la joie? Le barbare insolent sous nos murs est campé! Pourtant, si mon espoir, prêtre, n'est point trompé Tu peux rendre le calme à mon âme blessée!	SALAMMBO: It may be! You who know quietude and happiness. But the insolent barbarian is camped beneath our walls. Still if my hope is not mistaken, you can give some balm to my wounded soul.
SHAHABARIM: Parle . . . as-tu peur de ta pensée?	SHAHABARIM: Speak—do you fear your own thought?
SALAMMBÔ: Au sein des ombres de la nuit, Dans l'extase de la priere, Des voix qui n'ont rien de la terre Me répètent ces mots dont l'horreur me poursuit . . . "Salammbô, le voile bénit "C'est le salut de ta patrie. "Donne ton coeur, ton sang, ta vie "Sauve le voile de Tanit!	SALAMMBO: In the midst of the shadows of night—in the ecstacy of prayer, voices that nothing terrestrial, spoke words of horriful vent— "Salammbo, the sacred veil, it is the saving of your land. Give your heart, your blood, your life. But save the veil of Tanit."
SHAHABARIM: (á part). Etrange illusion!	SHAHABARIM: (aside). Strange illusion.
SALAMMBÔ: Ce voile saint, ô père, Je veux le voir, apaiser Mon trouble en le pressant sur mon sein le baiser L'adorer! viens . . . montons au sanctuaire. Marchons!	SALAMMBO: This sacred veil, oh, father, I would see it, calm my trouble and pressing it to my bosom, kiss it, adore it. Come to the sanctuary—come!
SHAHABARIM: Impie et téméraire Sacrilège!où veux-tu courir? Je sais-tu pas que nul profane ne contemple? Le voile de Tanit; mystère de son temple? Que le pontife seul le touche sans mourir?	SHAHABARIM: Impious and audacious—a sacrilege—where would you go? Know you not that no one profane can contemplate Tanit's veil, the mystery of her temple, that only the archpriest can touch it without death.
SALAMMBÔ: Viens! guide-moi!	SALAMMBO: Come, guide me!

SHAHABARIM: C'est marcher à l'abîme!

SALAMMBÔ: Viens! par pitie!

SHAHABARIM: Tu mourrais sur le seuil!

SALAMMBÔ: Je veux le voir!

SHAHABARIM: Ces mots seuls sont un crime.

SALAMMBÔ: Tanit, m'appelle!

SHAHABARIM: Illusion!
Orgueil!
Le sanctuaire est là! rien n'en défend l'entrée.
Monte, et brave Tanit jusqu'au fond du saint lieu,
Ou déplore a genoux ton audace abhorée.
Sois, a ton gré, pieuse ou sacrilège.
Adieu!

SALAMMBÔ: 'O ceil! me voilà seule en ce lieu redoutable.
La déesse est presente et sous sa majesté
Qui m'accable
Mon coeur frémit épouvanté!
Qu'exiges-tu, Tanit, de l'esclave tremblante
Qui t'implore et t'adjure, embrassant ton autel?
Que me veulent ces voix, dans un doute cruel
Plongeant mon âme éperdue, hesitante?
Que ne puis-je au sein de la nuit
Et dans les flots purs des fontaines,
Dans le rayon qui passe et fuit,
Dans la brise aux tiédes haleines,
M'anéantir, glisser, couler,
Et jusqu'à toi, mère adorable,
Parfum, rayon, souffle impalpable,
Dans l'éther, dans l'azur, voler!
Voeux superflus!mon âme est liée à la terre!
Tanit, malgré ta volonté,
La prêtre a repoussé mon ardente prière,
Je n'ose le franchir, le seuil du sanctuaire
Et je ne verrai rien de ta divinité!

MATHO: Que tes voeux soient comblés!
(Il monte au sanctuaire.)

SALAMMBÔ: (Épouvantée, sans voir Matho). Qu'entends-je? quel mystère?

CHOEUR INVISIBLE: Salammbô, le voile bénit
C'est le salut de ta patrie.
Donne ton coeur, ton sang, ta vie!
Sauve le voile de Tanit!

SALAMMBÔ: Les voix parlent encore! ô
Tanit, tu m'appelles!
J'obéis!
(Elle se dirige vers le sanctuaire.)

MATHO: (paraissant couvert du Zaïmph). Salammbô!
(Salammbô tombant à genoux).
Puissances éternelles!

SHAHABARIM: You go to an abyss.

SALAMMBO: In pity's name, guide me.

SHAHABARIM: Would you die upon the threshold?

SALAMMBO: I must see it.

SHAHABARIM: The wish alone is a crime.

SALAMMBO: Tanit calls upon me.

SHAHABARIM: It is illusion, pride. The sanctuary is there. Naught prevents your entrance. Go and brave Tanit in the depths of her sainted home or on your knees deplore your awful audacity. Be as you wish, either pious or bold—farewell!

SALAMMBO: Great heaven, alone in this dreaded place—the goddess is here and in her majestic presence that overwhelms me; my heart almost stops beating. What would you Tanit from your trembling slave, who implores you, adjures you, kisses your altar?
What say the voices in such cruel doubt, thus making my soul unable to speak.
Why cannot I in the night, in the pure waters of fountains, in the ray that flits and passes, in the breeze that softly blows—reach chaos to live and yet die, to join you, adorable mother, and have my own place in the sky. A riffle, a thought, a mere zephyr, but fly to you now in the sky.
Vain thoughts; no, I am bound to earth, alas, and Tanit, in spite of your will, the priest has denied my prayer. I dare not cross your sacred precinct. I shall not see you, nor dare.

MATHO: (walking to the sanctuary). Your wish shall be accomplished.

SALAMMBO: (frightened, not seeing Matho). What do I hear—what new mystery?

INVISIBLE CHORUS: Salammbo, the sacred veil is the emblem of your country. Give your heart, your blood, your life, but save the veil of Tanit.

SALAMMBO: The voices speak again.
Oh, Tanit, you call me—I obey.
(She goes toward the sanctuary.)

MATHO: (appearing, covered with the Zaimph). Salammbo!
(Salammbo falling on her knees.)

MATHO: Le voilà, ce voile sacré,
Le voilà, ce voile adoré.
Que l'on vénère dans la poudre . . .
D'éclat divin et de splendeur
Enivre tes yeux et ton coeur,
Et que sur moi tombe la foudre!

SALAMMBÔ: Toi qui m'aparais au seuil du saint lieu,
Parmi les rayons, dans l'éclat d'un dieu,
Vêtu des splendeurs de l'aurore;
Toi, qui viens vers moi pieux et clément
O consolateur, dieu jeune et charmant
Dis-moi sous quel nom l'on t'adore?

MATHO: Je t'aime?

SALAMMBÔ: Ah! daigne t'approcher
De ce coeur qui frémit d'ivresse!

MATHO: Je t'aime!

SALAMMBÔ: Ah! si j'osais toucher
Le voile saint de la déesse!

MATHO: Je t'aime . . .

SALAMMBÔ: Ah! Je la sentirais
Ainsi, se répandre en moi-même!

MATHO: Je t'aime!

SALAMMBÔ: Ah! viens! plus près! plus près!
O divine extase!

MATHO: (prèt à prendre Salammbô dans ses bras). Je t'aime!

SALAMMBÔ: O consolateur, dieu jeune et charmant,
Dis-moi sous quel nom l'on t'implore.

MATHO: Celui que tu crois quelque dieu clément
Ce n'est qu'un mortel qui t'adore!

SALAMMBÔ: (reculant, effrayée)
Qui donc es-tu, si tu n'es pas un dieu?
J'ai déjà vu, peut-être en un rêve, le feu
Terrible et doux dont ton regard S'eclaire?

MATHO: Je suis le mercenaire
Dont tu remplis la coupe aux jardins d'Hamilcar,
Je suis un soldat, un barbare,
Au camp barbare on m'obéit!
Vainqueur de tes dieux, je m'empare
Du voile sacre de Tanit,
Son pouvoir me fait plus qu'un homme.
Je puis braver Carthage ou Rome, Et ceindre le bandeau royal.
Viens!
Je t'aime à perdre la vie!
Vierge dont mon âme est ravie,
Veux-tu ce manteau nuptial?

SALAMMBÔ: O terreur! tout mon sang se glace!
Ah Tanit! a puni mon désir insultant!

MATHO: Salammbô! par grâce.

MATHO: Here is the sacred veil, the veil you all adore, that is venerated in the dust, of divine beauty and splendor. Let this sight rejoice you. Upon my head the anger of the gods.

SALAMMBO: You who appear in this sacred place, amid the rays in the garb of a god, clothed in the splendors of the dawn. You who greet me pious and forgiving, consoler, young and graceful god. Under what name shall I worship you?

MATHO: I love you.

SALAMMBO: Would you deign to approach this heart, now wild with joy?

MATHO: I love you.

SALAMMBO: If I only dared touch the sacred veil of the goddess.

MATHO: I love you.

SALAMMBO: The delight would permeate my being.

MATHO: I love you.

SALAMMBO: Oh, come nearer, yes nearer—divine ecstacy.

MATHO: (about to take her in his arms). I love you.

SALAMMBO: Great consoler, god young and charming. Tell me by what name they worship you.

MATHO: The one you think is some forgiving god is only a mortal who adores you.

SALAMMBO: (drawing back terrified). Who are you then, if not a god. I have already seen as in a dream the fire of your eyes, terrible, yet gentle. Speak.

MATHO: I am the mercenary whose cup you did fill in the gardens of Hamilcar; a soldier, a barbarian. In the camp they obey me. Conquerer of your gods, I hereby hold the sacred veil of Tanit. Its power makes me more than man. I can dare both Carthage and Rome, and assume the royal bandelet. Come to me, I love you more than life. Virgin who melts my soul. Take this nuptial garment.

SALAMMBO: Oh, horror, my blood freezes in my veins. Oh, Tanit has punished my impious desire.

MATHO: Salammbo, I beg you.

SALAMMBÔ: Va-t'en! Va, sacrilège exécrable, Va, monstre infâme et maudit! Tombe et péris, misérable, Sous les flèches de Tanit! Va, que le dieu des batailles Ouvre tes flancs douloureux: Que le dieu des funérailles T'étouffe en ses bras affreux! Quel'horreur en toi circule, Et que prompt à s'enflammer Celui qu'on n'ose nommer Te brûle . . .	SALAMMBO: Go! Vanish! Sacrilegious wretch! Go, infamous and cursed monster. Miserable wretch, fall and perish. Go may the god of battles open your wounds afresh. May the god of death stifle you in his horrible arms. Let horror be your lot. Burn in a hell where flames are everlasting.
MATHO: Salammbô! par pitie! Tais-toi! Je sens ma poitrine frappée Comme par le fer d'une épée, Epargne-moi!! (La lune s'est éteinte peu à peu.)	MATHO: Salammbo, in pity spare me. I feel myself hurt as by stroke of steel. Spare me! (The moon is growing dim.)
SALAMMBÔ: O forfait inouï! dans la voûte étoilée, Tu le vois, Tanit s'est voilée! Accorez! venez tous! un infâme! un maudit! Un sacrilège a dérobé Tanit! (Les Prêtres, accourant.)	SALAMMBO: Oh, inconceivable sin in the starry vault, look, Tanit hides her face. Come one, come all! Infamous one, accursed. A sacrilege has come upon Tanit! (The priests rush in.)
LE CHOEUR: O terreur! ô mortelle offense! Accourez tous! Vengeance!	CHORUS: Oh, terror! Oh, mortal offense. Come all; we cry for vengeance.
MATHO: (tirant son épée). Malheur à qui m'ose approcher! Craignez cette arme vengeresse! (Remettant son épeé au fourreau.) Mais qui donc oserait toucher Au voile saint de la déesse?	MATHO: (drawing his sword). He who dares approach me may be unhappy. Be fearful of this vengeful arm. (Putting back his sword.) But who would dare place hands on the sacred veil of the goddess.
LE CHOEUR: (menacant Matho). Sois maudit! sois brûle! que Moloch te torture! Que ta chair aux lions soit jetée en pâture! Tombe sous les traits de Tanit, Sacrilège! Infâme! Maudit! (Matho se dirige vers la porte, Shahabarim apparait.)	CHORUS: (threatening Matho). Be accursed! burn! May Moloch torture you. Fall under the ban of Tanit. Horror of horrors. Perish accursed! (Matho directs his steps toward the gate.) (Shahabraim appears.)
SHAHABARIM: Outragée en sainte image, Dans sa juste indignation Tanit abandonne Carthage!	SHAHABARIM: Outraged in her sacred image Tanit in her indignation leaves Carthage.
SALAMMBÔ: (désespérée). Tanit abandonne Carthage!
TOUS: O malediction! (Matho sort couvert du Zaïmph.)	ALL: Malediction! (Matho exits, covered by the Zaimph.)

ACTE TROISIÈME

SCÈNE I

ACT III

SCENE I

Le Conseil des Anciens. (Le sanctuaire du temple de Moloch avec la statue du dieu, élevée sur un piedestal.) (Les anciens de Carthage, Giscon, Shahabarim, les Grands Prêtres.)	Council of the Ancients. (Sanctuary of the Temple of Moloch with the statue of the god on a pedestal.) (The ancients of Carthage, Giscon, Shahabarim and High Priests.)
LES ANCIENS: Hélas! hélas! le courroux des dieux S'est appesanti sur Carthage! Hélas! les Baals, soutiens des aeïux, Ont de ce rivage Detourne les yeux!	THE ANCIENTS: Alas! Alas! The anger of the gods has fallen upon Carthage. Alas, great Baal, god of our ancestors, has withdrawn his aid from our shores.
UN GRAND PRÊTRE: Khamon! dieu du soleil splendide, Souviens-toi de nous!	ONE HIGH PRIEST: Khamon! god of the splendid sun—take pity on us.
LE GRAND PRÊTRE D'ESCHMOUN: Eschmoun! dieu de la nuit limpide Souviens-toi-de nous!	SECOND HIGH PRIEST: Eschmoun! god of the liquid night, take pity on us.
LE GRAND PRÊTRE DE MOLOCH: Moloch! dieu de larmes avide Calme ton courroux!	THIRD HIGH PRIEST: Moloch! god of tears and anger, avert that your vengeance.
LES ANCIENS: (à Shahabarim). Toi, prêtre de Tanit, quel noir penser t'ègare? Ne peux-tu te lever á ton tour, et prier?	ANCIENTS: (to Shahabarim). And you, Priest of Tanit, what black thoughts take your mind. Can you not also rise and pray?
SHAHABARIM: (avec désespoir). Qui m'entenderait?qui supplier? La déesse irritée est au camp du barbare!	SHAHABARIM: Who would hear me—who to pray to? Our outraged goddess is now in the barbarian's camp.
LES ANCIENS: Hélas! hélas! Le courroux des dieux S'est appesanti sur Carthage Helas! les Baals, soutiens des aeïux, Ont de ce rivage Détourne les yeux!	CHORUS: Alas! Alas! the anger of the gods has fallen upon Carthage. Alas! great Baal, god of our ancestors, has withdrawn his aid from our shores.
CHOEUR: (lontain). C'est le salut! c'est la victoire! Notre bouclier et notre rempart, Fortune et gloire Eu suffète Hamilcar! (Un esclave est entre et a remis à Giscon des tablettes.)	CHORUS: (in distance). It is salvation! It is victory! our shield is our protection. Honor and glory to great Hamilcar. (Slave enters and hands tablets to Giscon.)
GISCON: Hamilcar débarque au rivage, Le peuple l'acclame au passage, Il va parmi nous arriver . . .	GISCON: Hamilcar debarks on the shore. The people acclaim his presence. He will soon arrive among us.
DES ANCIENS: Pour parler en tyran!	THE ANCIENTS: To order as a tyrant.
D'AUTRES ANCIENS: Non! non! pour nous sauver!	OTHER ANCIENTS: No, No! To save us.
LE CHOEUR: (au dehors, rapprochè). C'est le salut! c'est la victoire! Notre bouclier et notre rempart, Fortune et gloire Au suffète Hamilcar! (Les mémes, Hamilcar.)	CHORUS: (outside, but nearer). It is salvation! His victory! our shield is our protection. Honor and glory to great Hamilcar. (Enter Hamilcar).
HAMILCAR: Salut à vous d'abord, ô dieux de la patrie; Vous par qui je revois cette terre bénie, Où dorment mes aïeux! Salut, pontifes saints, interprètes des dieux! Anciens . . . Sénat auguste et sage . . . Gardiens, défenseurs de Carthage, Salut à vous!	HAMILCAR: First, thanks to you, oh gods of our country. To you thanks for seeing once more this blessed land, where my fathers sleep. Ancients, Senate, just and strong keepers and guardians of Carthage, long life to you!

LES PONTIFES ET LES ANCIENS: Suffète de la mer, prends place parmi nous!	PRIESTS AND ANCIENTS: Commander of the seas, take your place among us.
HAMILCAR: (prenant place). Et maintenant, veuillez me dire Quels sont ces crimes, ces malheurs Dont le bruit monte à moi dans de vagues rumeurs?	HAMILCAR: (taking his seat). And now, pray tell me, what crimes and misfortunes I vaguely hear have happened in this land.
LES ANCIENS: Giscon, parle pour l'en instruire!	ANCIENTS: Giscon, speak, that he may know.
GISCON: Les Mercenaires révolté Assiègent les murs de Carthage, Livrant à la flamme, au pillage Nos faubourgs èpouvantes.	GISCON: Revolted mercenaries besiege the walls of Carthage, giving to flame and pillage our homes without the walls.
HAMILCAR: Quels griefs sont les leurs? Voulant le ciel propice, Avez-vous avec vous le droit et la justice?	HAMILCAR: What wrongs are theirs? Wishing heaven's blessing, have you in fact the right upon your side?
DES ANCIENS: La justice?	ANCIENTS: The right.
DES ANCIENS: Il dit bien.	OTHER ANCIENTS: He speaks justly.
DES ANCIENS: Il trahit!	ANCIENTS: He talks treason.
DES ANCIENS: Respectons Hamilcar!	OTHER ANCIENTS: Hamilcar! Respect him.
DES ANCIENS: Paix!	STILL OTHERS: Peace!
LES PONTIFES: Il prend leur défense!	HIGH PRIESTS: He undertakes their defense.
LES PONTIFES: Écoutons!	OTHER PRIESTS: Let us listen!
HAMILCAR: Avez-vous payé leur service? Leur solde?	HAMILCAR: Have you paid their service, their wage?
GISCON: (avec embaras). On n'a pu l'acquitter encore.	GISCON: (embarrassed). We have not been able to do it.
DES ANCIENS: (hypocritement). Où trouverait-on tout cet or?	ANCIENTS: (hypocritically). Where could we find all this gold?
HAMILCAR: Vous faites détester partout la foi punique! Pour briser notre République, Le monde s'unira dans un immense effort; Des peuples accourront jusque des Atlantides! Les Lybiens viendront de leurs deserts arides, On verra d'Occident descendre les Numides, Les nomades du Sud, et les Romains du Nord; Tu tomberas, Carthage!	HAMILCAR: You make all detest the Punic war. To kill our republic the world will join in one immense effort. The people invade us even from the Atlantic coast. The Lybians from their aird deserts. We shall see the Occident send their Numidians and the Nomads of the South, and the Romans on the North. You will fall, poor Carthage!
LES ANCIENS: (se voilant de leurs manteaux). Horreur!	ANCIENTS: (covering their faces). Oh, horror!
LES PONTIFES: Dieux! détournez ce funeste présage!	HIGH PRIESTS: Oh gods, do not allow such a thing to occur!
DES ANCIENS: (entre eux). Lui seul peut nous sauver . . . parle-lui, toi, Giscon.	ANCIENTS: (among themselves). He alone can save us—speak to him, Giscon.
GISCON: Suffète, acceptes-tu le commandement?	GISCON: Great chief, will you accept the command?
HAMILCAR: Non! Qui peut vaincre avec vous?	HAMILCAR: No! Who can win with you?
DES ANCIENS: Il a peur!	ANCIENTS: He's afraid.
DES ANCIENS: Il ménage Les barbares.	OTHER ANCIENTS: He is in league with the barbarians.
DES ANCIENS: Non! non!	OTHER ANCIENTS: No—no!
DES ANCIENS: Il veut se faire roi! (Une partie des anciens se précipite du côté d'Hamilcar en brandissant des poignards. D'autres cherchent a les arrêter.)	ANCIENTS: He wants to be king. (One section of the ancients goes to side of Hamilcar, shaking their daggers. Others try to stop them).
HAMILCAR: (défiant ses agresseurs). Osez porter la main sur moi, Courage! Et répandez ce sang Verse vingt fois pour la patrie!	HAMILCAR: Dare to put a hand upon me! Have courage and let the blood flow, spent twenty times for our country.
LES PONTIFES: (s'interposant). Carthage vous supplie, Songez au peril menaçant! (Les anciens reprennent leurs places.)	PRIESTS: (interposing). Carthage supplicates you; think of the dire peril that greets us.
HAMILCAR (aux Pontifes). Avez-vous Tanit favorable? (Un silence.) Vous vous taisez? Vous baissez tous les yeux? (À Shahabarim.) Parle, pontif vénérable, Gardien du voile saint ou vit l'ame des dieux!	HAMILCAR: (to Priests). Is Tanit favorable? (Silence). You wait, you are silent, drop your eyes. (To Shahabarim) Speak, venerable pontiff, keeper of the sainted veil, the soul of the gods.
SHAHABARIM: Le manteau de Tanit est au camp du barbare!	SHAHABARIM: The mantle of Tanit is in the barbarian camp.
HAMILCAR: O juste ciel!	HAMILCAR: Great god!
SHAHABARIM: Leur chef audacieux Est venu le ravir.	SHAHABARIM: Their audacious chief came here to ravish it.
DES ANCIENS: (ironiquement à Hamilcar). Un homme vigoureux, Alerte!	ANCIENTS: (ironically). Yes, a strong man, vigorous, alert!
DES ANCIENS: (aux autres). Taisez-vous!	OTHER ANCIENTS: Keep quiet!
DES ANCIENS: Oui! d'une force rare. Plus grand que toi, suffète, et de plus amoureux De Salammbô qui l'aime. Ah! c'est un homme heureux!	ANCIENTS: Yes, with marvelous force. Larger than you, Commander, and besides in love with Salammbo, who loves him. Oh, a happy man.
HAMILCAR: Par tout ce qui brûle et devore! Par le feu des volcans, par la soif des deserts, Par l'abîme sale des mers. Par la foudre grondante et par le meteore, Devant Moloch a tête de taureau, Je le jure, Ma fille est sans reproche et pure! Tous avez menti tous, accusant Salambô! (Un silence) (toujours menaçant). Vous me choisissez tous pour chef, et sans partage?	HAMILCAR: By all that burns and devours. By the fire of volcanoes; by the thirst of the desert; by the salted abysm of the seas; by the grinding thunder, and all the meteors. Before Moloch, with his head of a bull, I swear to you, my daughter is pure, without reproach. You have lied, all accusing Salammbo! (General silence. Hamilcar, still menacing). You choose me all for chief, and now without a partner.
LES ANCIENS: (terrifies). Oui!	ANCIENTS: (terrified). Yes!
HAMILCAR: De votre or, de vous, pouvant tout exiger?	HAMILCAR: Of your gold, of you, everything exacting?
LES ANCIENS: Oui!	ANCIENTS: Yes!
HAMILCAR: Commandant à tous, dans l'armèe, á Carthage?	HAMILCAR: Mind you, commanding all the army of Carthage?
LES ANCIENS: Oui!	ANCIENTS: Yes, yes!
HAMILCAR: J'accepte!	HAMILCAR: Then I accept.
LES PONTIFES: Les dieux puissent te protéger!	HIGH PRIESTS: May the gods all protect you.

HAMILCAR: (terrible). Puissent-ils aussi me venger!
(Montant à la statue de Moloch.)
Pour que Moloch cruel et sanglant soit propice.
Je lui voue un cruel et sanglant sacrifice!

LES ANCIENS: (suppliant). Non! non!
Oh par pitié! grâce!
Ne parle pas!

HAMILCAR: Qui!
que Moloch en feu reçoive entre ses bras Vingt de vos fils, rançon du succès de nos armes!

LES ANCIENS: (épouvantés).
Dieux!

LES PONTIFES: Sois content, Moloch!
Enivre-toi de larmes!

LES ANCIENS: Horreur!
Effroi mortel!
Nos fils!
O dieux!
Héas!
(Les anciens, désespérés, tombent prosternés autour de Moloch, devant qui Hamilcar est debout.)

(Rideau de manoeuvre.)

SCENE II

(La terrasse de Salammbô, d'où l'on voit l'acropole de Carthage.)

SALLAMBÔ: (perdue dans ses pensées). Oui de ce sacrilège affreux je suis coupable!
Oui je sens de Tanit le courroux redoutable
Peser sur Carthage et sur moi.
Et toujours, toujours je le voi
Lui . . . ce ravisseur exécrable
Dans les splendeurs de ce voile de feu
Descendant vers moi tel qu'un dieu!
Tout m'épouvante et m'accable . . . Mon père,
Quand les bras ouverts je marchais vers lui,
A détourné son front sévère
Et son regard glacé m'a fui!
(Douloureusement.)
Mon père!
(Salammbô, Shahabarim.) (Shahabarim à paru.)

SHAHABARIM: (s'approchant de Salammbô.) Il est parti pour commander l'armée!
Dans un cercle de fer Carthage esten fer fermée;
Il va le briser ou mourir!

SALAMMBÔ: Heureux qui comme lui peut vous donner sa vie,
O foyers, ô tombeaux des aïeux!
O patrie,
Désespérer de toi, c'est te trahir!

SALAMMBÔ: Les barbares sont là, campès devant nos portes?

HAMILCAR: (angry). May they also revenge me.
(Going up to statue of Moloch.)
To that Moloch, cruel and propitious, I vow to him a cruel and bloody sacrifice.

ANCIENTS: (supplicating). No, no, for pity's sake do not speak.

HAMILCAR: Yes, holding his embrace in fire, may take twenty of your sons; of his success, a ransom to our arms.

ANCIENTS: (in terror). Great gods!

HIGH PRIESTS: (praying). Be Moloch, happy, be happy with our tears.

ANCIENTS: Horror, mortal terror, our sons; oh, gods, alas!
(The ancients in despair fall prone before Moloch, while Hamilcar stands defiant.)

CURTAIN.

SCENE II

(The terrace of Salammbo looking upon the Carthaginian Acropolis.)

SALAMMBO: (alone). Yes, in this sacrilege I feel myself guilty; I feel more of Tanit the angry, fierce vengeance that weighs on Carthage and on me. Yet always, always I see—He! the execrable one, who ravished, in the splendors of this veil of fire, coming down to me like a god. Everything frightens and unmoves me. Even my father, when I walked, open armed, toward him, turned away his severe face, and his icy glance froze my veins (dolorously.) Oh, father!

SHAHABARIM: (who has appeared). He has departed to command the army. Carthage is incerned in a circle of iron. He will break it or die.

SALAMMBO: Happy like he who can give you his life. Oh, homes! oh, tombs of my ancestors; oh, country, to despair of you would be treason.

Salammbo: Barbarians are there before our very doors.

SHAHABARIM: Oui.

SALAMMBÔ: Leur chef?

SHAHABARIM: C'est Matho.

SALAMMBÔ: C'est bien.
De leurs cohortes
Sait-on le nombre?
De combien
De soldats sont-elles formées?

SHAHABARIM: Cent mille soldats . . . trois armées!

SALAMMBÔ: C'est bien . . .
(Shahabarim observe toujours Salammbô. Au loin, une clarté rouge est apparue.)

SALAMMBÔ: Là bas quel feu s'eleve?

SHAHABARIM: A Moloch on prépare
Un cruel sacrifice.

SALAMMBÔ: O terreur!
Et c'est moi! c'est mon crime!
Horreur!
Ah! j'irai dans le camp barbare!
Je ne veux pas mourir
Laissant un nom maudit.
Je veux reconquérir
Le voile de Tanit!

SHAHABARIM: Tu le pourrais peut-être!

SALAMMBÔ: Oui . . . du camp de Matho je prendrai le chemin.
Je saurai m'y glisser une arme dans la main.

SHAHABARIM: (l'interrompant). Non, ce n'est point ainsi . . .

SALAMMBÔ: Comment donc?
parle, prêtre!
Tu te tais? ton regard
Se trouble!
Ah! je ne crains la mort ni la torture.

SHAHABARIM: Il est une arme plus sûre,
Plus têrrible que le poignard!
Va, souriante, avec ta plus riche parure.
Si tu dois mourir . . . ce sera plus tard.

SALAMMBÔ: Aller ainsi vers lui!
Tu me l'as dit, ô père,
L'âme des dieux parfois s'incarne sur la terre;
Et Matho, c'est Moloch peut-être!
Dans le feu De son regard, oui, j'ai senti le dieu!

SHAHABARIM: Delivre done Tanit de Moloch prisonnière!
Va sauver Hamilcar, va sauver ton pays!

SALAMMBÔ: Tanit m'appelle et j'obéis!
Ordonne . . .

SHAHABARIM: En parure de fête,
Dès que viendra la nuit, sois prête.
Un homme sûr te guidera.

SALAMMBÔ: Toi, prêtre?

SHAHBARIM: It is true.

SALAMMBO: Who is their chief?

SHAHABARIM: One Matho.

SALAMMBO: It is well.
Do they know the number of their cohorts? Of how many soldiers are they formed?

SHAHBARIM: One hundred thousand—three armies!

SALAMMBO: Good.
(Shahabarim continues to observe Salammbo. Far away a red light appears.) SALAMMBO: Beyond there what light appears?

SHAHABRIM: To Moloch they prepare a cruel sacrifice.

SALAMMBO: And it is me. It is my crime! Horror, I shall go in the barbarians' camp. I do not wish to die, leaving a cursed name. I wish to reconquer the Veil of Tanit.

SHAHABARIM: Perchance you might do it.

SALAMMBO: Yes, to the camp of Matho I might find the road and do it with a dagger in my hand.

SHAHABARIM: (interrupting).
No, it cannot be thus.

SALAMMBO: What do you mean, speak, Priest—you are silent, you look away. I do not fear either death or torture.

SHAHABARIM: There is an arm more sure, more terrible than the poignard—go smiling in your richest dress, then if you must die—well it will be later.

SALAMMBO: Go thus to him—you told so, oh, father, sometimes the souls of gods are incarnated on the earth. Perhaps Matho is Moloch. In the fire of his eyes I felt the real god.

SHAHABARIM: Then deliver from Moloch the prisoner, Tanit—go, save our Hamilcar and our country.

SALAMMBO: Tanit calls and I shall obey. Command.

SHAHBARIM: In costume of feast, as soon as night comes, be ready. A trusty man shall guide you.

SALAMMBO: You, oh Priest?

SHAHABARIM: Un homme sur au camp te conduira.
(Shahabarim sort. Taanach parait.)

SALAMMBÔ: Taanach, prends dans le coffre aux clous de diamant
Ma parure, d'or pâle et de perles brodée

TAANACH: (avec joie). Celle pour tes noces gardée?
Maîtresse, se peut-il?

SALAMMBÔ: Obéis seulement!
(Toilette de Salammbô.)

TAANACH: Admire en ce miroir fidèle
Ta parure splendide, aux brillantes couleurs,
A ses noces bientôt, sous l'or et sous les fleurs,
La fille d'Hamilcar ne sera pas plus belle!

SALAMMBÔ: Mes noces!

TAANACH: Quoi! Tes yeux se remplissent de pleurs?

SALAMMBÔ: (à Taanach). Vois là-haut dans le ciel passer ce blanc nuage . . .
Nous sommes dans ces tristes jours
Où les colombes de Carthage
Partent pour abriter loin d'elle leurs amours . . .
Regarde . . . elles vont disparaître,
Avec elles l'amour fuit ces bords délaissés.

TAANACH: Mais elles reviendront, maîtresse.

SALAMMBÔ: Je le sais.

TANNACH: Et tu les reverras . . .

SALAMMBÔ: Peut-être!
(Taanach sort. La nuit vient lentement.)

SALAMMBO: (seule). Qui me donnera, comme à la colombe,
Des ailes pour fuir dans le soir qui tombe?
Qui m'emportera libre de tourments, D'angoisses mortelles,
Vers de dieux plus doux, des cieux plus cléments?
Qui me donnera, colombes, vos ailes?
Pareille à la victime enchaînée à l'autel,
Qui tremblante et parée attend le coup mortel,
J'attends! je frémis! quel abîme
Devant mes pas va s'ouvrir?
Je ne sais rien sinon que je suis la victime,
Et que bientôt je dois mourir.
Qui me donnera, comme à la colombe, Des ailes pour fuir dans le soir qui tombe?
Qui m'emportera libre de tourments, D'angoisses mortelles,
Vers des dieux plus doux, des cieux plus cléments?
Qui me donnera, colombes, vos ailes?
(La nuit est presque venue. Fanfares au loin dans le temple de Tanit.)
Dieux . . . Déjà retentit la trompette sacrée.
L'Orient se remplit d'une lueur nacrée.
C'est l'heure! Ah! quel mortel effroi
M'a glacée!
O Tanit! qu'exiges-tu de moi?
Ah! dérobez-moi sous votre ombre,
Portiques de ce palais sombre.
Dieux pitoyables aux mortels,
Sauves-moi; gardez-moi, doux foyers paternals!
(La lune apparait sur la mer.)

CHOEUR: (au loin dans le temple de Tanit). Retentissez, cris d'allégresse, Sonnez, clairons sacrés, hymnes religieux,
Saluez la déesse,
Elancez-vous aux cieux!

SALAMMBÔ: O Tanit, pardonne!
A toi je me devoue, a toi je m'abandonne!
(Shahabarim déguise, suivi d'un autre homme, parait Salammbô va vers eux.)

ACTE QUATRIÈME

SCÈNE I

Le Camp.
La tente de Matho, trophèes d'armes au milieu duquel le Zaïmph est caché sous un peau de lion; au fond, le camp des Mercenaires. Effect de soleil couchant.
(Spendius, Autharite, Mercenaires, Soldats, Danseuses jouent aux dés. On entend le bruit joyeux du camp.)
(A la fin du ballet, les clarions se font entendre au dehors.)

NARR'HAVAS: (à Matho). Terreur et fléau de Carthage,
Toi, que le voile saint dont tu t'es emparé
A fait de tous ceux qu'elle outrage
Le chef superbe et vénéré;
Matho, je viens à toi t'offrant mon alliance,
J'ai des élephants, de l'or, je suis roi!
Dix mille cavaliers, combattent avec moi!
Contre Carthage, unis dans la meme vengeance,
Nous pourrons la briser comme un faible roseau!
Comme je brise cette lance!
(A part, à Matho.)
Pardonne un jour d'ivresse folle . . .

SHAHBARIM: He will be sure and to the camp will take you.
(Shahabarim exits, Taanach appears.)

SALAMMBO: Taanach, take from the coffer with nails of diamonds my parure of pale gold and embroidered with pearls.

TAANACH: (joyfully). Those selected for your wedding—good mistress is it possible?

SALAMMBO: Simply obey.

TAANACH: Admire in this faithful mirror the splendid jewels of brilliant colors. At her wedding under gold and with flowers, the daughter of Hamilcar could not be more beautiful.

SALAMMBO: My wedding!

TAANACH: What! Why do your eyes fill with tears?

SALAMMBO: (to Taanach). Do you see that fleecy cloud pass n the heavens. We are in the saddest days when the doves of Carthage go far away to make love and be loved Look—see—they will disappear and with them love leaves these wretched shores.

TAANACH: But, mistress, they will come back.

SALAMMBO: I know it.

TAANACH: And you will see them.

SALAMMBO: Perhaps.
(Taanach exits, Night comes slowly.)

SALAMMBO: (alone). Who would give me as the dove wings to fly in the twilight that falls. Who would take me away free from torment and mortal misery. Toward gods more good, toward heavens more sweet, give me, oh, dove, your wings to fly. Like the victim enchained to the altar—which appareled and trembling waits the fatal stroke, I wait—I tremble—what abyss before my steps will disclose. I know nothing beyond I'm the victim and that soon I must die. Who will give me wings as the dove has to fly away and on high. In the twilight, etc. (repeat)
(Night has come, Trumpets in Temple of Tanit.)
Oh gods, already the sacred brass. The east already shows the color of dawn. The hour has come. What mortal terror has frozen my veins—what exact you from me? Oh hide me beneath your shadow, gates of this somber palace, gods fearful of human beings, place me beneath your portals—save me paternal home.
(The moon comes up.)

CHORUS: (in Tanit's temple). Ring out songs of joy, Resound your sacred brasses and religious hymns, Sing now to the goddess, sound to the heavens!

SALAMMBO: Oh, Tanit, forgive—to you I vow my life; to you my soul, my all.
(Shahabarim disguised followed by another, appears. Salammbo goes toward them.)

CURTAIN.

ACT IV

SCENE I

The Camp.
(The tent of Matho. A trophy of arms in the midst of which is the Zaimph hidden under a lion's skin. At back the camp of the Mercenaries. Effect of setting sun.)
(Spendius, Autharite, Mercenaries, Soldiers, Female dancers. They are playing dice. The joyful sounds of the camp are heard.)
(At end of ballet the bugles are heard outside.)

NARR'HAVAS: (to Matho). Terror and curse of Carthage, who has taken the sacred veil has made you the superb and venerated chief by all whom it outrages! Matho, I come to you offering my alliance. I have elephants and gold. I am king. Ten thousand horsemen combat with me. Against Carthage united in the same vengeance, we can break its power like a feeble reed-just as I break this lance!
(Aside to Matho.) Forgive a day of silly folly—Salammbo. None will see her again. She has fled from the palace of her father this night.

Salammbô.
Nul ne doit la revoir.
Du palais de son père
Cette nuit a fui . . .

MATHO: Grands dieux.

NARR'HAVAS: Une galère
Sans doute la conduit à quelque bord lointain.

MATHO: J'accepte, ô roi, voici ma main!

AUTHARITE: Qui trahait aujourd'hui pourra trahir demain!

MATHO: Vous chefs, et vous
Soldats, jurez tous avec nous!
(Matho, Narr'Havas, Spendius, Autharite, les chefs numides mettent l'épée à la main et les reunissent sur le meme bouclier, les Mercenaires les entourent l'épée haute.)

MATHO, NARR'HAVAS, SPENDIUS, AUTHARITE ET COEUR:
Soyes témoins, dieux des batailles,
Soyez témoins, dieux infernaux!
Nous jurons de combattre en frères, en héroes!
Nous jurons de braver les mêmes funérailles!
Nous jurons de mêler notre sang et nos os!
Soyez témions, dieux des batailles!
Soyez témoins, dieux infernaux!
(La nuit est venue.)

MATHO: Voici la nuit!
Interrompez les jeux . . .
Rentrez au camp sans tarder davantage
Et que partout étincellent les feux.
(Salammbô voilée, conduite par Shahabarim déguise, parait au dehors de la tente.)

AUTHARITE: Deux transfuges sont là qui viennent de Carthage
Et demandant à voir le chef très valeureux.

MATHO: Sur-le-champ, dans ma tente, introduis-les tous deux.

NARR'HAVAS: (à part). Si c'était, Salammbô qui parût en ces lieux Esclave d'un amour sacrilège, odieux,
Pour la reconquérir, pour venger mon injure
Rein ne me coûterait, pas même le parjure.
(Il s'élance vers Salammbô, mais Shahabarim se place entre elle et lui et se jetant a ses pieds, découvre le visage. Narr'Havas reconnait Shahabarim qui lui fait un geste de silence et l'entraine vers le camp. La tente se referme.)

SALAMMBÔ: (jetant son voile).
La voix des dieux à moi s'est fait entendre, Je viens vers toi, soldat, pour te reprendre, Le voile divin!
Je n'ai tremblé de la nuit, ni des piques
Ni d'être ici, soldat, les dieux puniques Me donnaient la main!
Je viens sans arme et pourtant vengeresse,
Pour déliverer, soldat, notre déesse, Sauver mon pays.
Rends-moi le voile, âme de ma patrie,
Ou frappe-moi, soldat, et prends ma vie.
J'ordonne! obéis!

MATHO: O charme cruel et supreme, Maudis-moi, mais ne me fuis pas!
Ah! je voudrais mourir entre tes bras . . .
Je suis à toi, tout à toi!
je t'aime!

VOIX DES SENTINELLES: Des feux ont brillé là-bas!
Soldats, veillez! Veillez, soldats!
(Sur un geste de Salammbô, Matho s'approche du trophée et decouvre le Zaïmph qui apparaît resplendissant.)

MATHO: Le voilà, ce voile sacré
Le voilà, ce voile adoré
Vois, son tissu divin rayonne! . . .
De son éclat, de sa splendeur
Enivre tes yeux et ton coeur.
Il est à toi, je te le donne!

SALAMMBÔ: (s'agenouillant).
Anaïtis,
Dercéto, Mylitta,
O Rabettna, Baalet, Tyratha!

LES VOIX DES SENTINELLES: (au dehors). Soldats, veillez!
Veillez, soldats!
Des feux ont brillè là-bas!
(Salammbô se releve s'approche du Zaïmph et va pour le prendre.)

MATHO: (l'arrétant). Que fais-tu?

SALAMMBO: Je retourne à Carthage!

MATHO: (prennant son épée). Ah! tu viens
Reprendre le Zaïmph pour me livrer aux tiens.
Désarme, ma force abattue?
N'essaye pas de t'enfuir! Je te tue!
Vierge insolente, aux fiers regards, tu m'appartiens!
Je suis le maître et toi l'esclave et la servante!
Tes temples, tes palais, dans les cris, l'épouvante
S'écrouleront en feu sous le ciel rougissant!
Tes vaisseaux flotteront sur des vagues de sang!
Pas un palmier sur ce rivage, Pas une pierre ne dira:
Elle était là, Carthage!

SALAMMBÔ: (se jetant a lui).
Frappe-moi donc la première!

MATHO: (laissant tomber son épée). Ah! pardon!
Pitié! j'ai perdu la raison!

SALAMMBÔ: (à part). Ah! garde-moi, bonté supreme!
Tanit, sauve-moi di moi-même!

MATHO: Great gods!

NARR'HAVAS: A vessel, no doubt, took her to foreign shores.

MATHO: I accept, oh, king; here is my hand.

AUTHARITE: Who betrays today may betray tomorrow.

MATHO: Chiefs, all of you, and soldiers too, swear with us.

PRINCIPALS AND CHORUS: Be witness, gods fo battles. Be witness, gods of the inferno. We swear to fight as brothers, as heroes. We swear to confront the same deaths on the field. We swear to mingle our bones and our blood. Be witness, gods of battle—be witness, gods of war.
(Night has come).

MATHO: Night has come, stop your playing. Go back to your camps without further murmur, and at once put out the fires that flame.
(Salammbo veiled, guided by Shahabarim disguised, appears outside the tent.)

AUTHARITE: Here come two refugees from Carthage who ask to see our valorous chieftain.

MATHO: On the spot in my tent, introduce them—would see them.

NARR'HAVAS: (aside). If it were Salammbo who appeared in this place, slave of a sacrilegious and odious love. Now to regain her, to revenge wrong done to me; nothing would cost me, not even perjury.
(He leaps toward Salammbo, but Shahabarim places himself between the two, throws himself at his feet, discovers his face. Narr. recognizes Shahabarim, who makes a move of silence and drags him toward the camp. The tent closes.)

SALAMMBO: (opening her veil). The voices of the gods have come to me. I come to you, soldier, to take back from you the divine veil. I have not trembled of the night, nor from anger, nor even to be here. Soldier, the punic gods would give me their aid. I come without arms and still an avenger, to deliver, soldier, our goddess, and save my country. Give me back the veil, soul of my land, or strike me here, soldier, and take my life. I order! Obey!

MATHO: Oh, cruel and supreme charm! Curse me, but do not go away. Ah, that I could die in your arms. I am yours, yes all yours. I love you!

VOICES OF SENTINELS: Fires have burned on the ramparts. Be watchful, be careful! Watch!
(On a motion of Salammbo, Matho approaches the trophy and uncovers the Zaimph, which appears resplendeut.)

MATHO: It is there, the mystic veil. It is there, this veil so adored. See its exquisite tissue divinely shines. From its beauty, its splendor, make glad your eyes and your heart. It is yours, it is my gift.

SALAMMBO: (kneeling). Anaitis, Deceto, Mylitta; oh, Rabettna, Baalet, Tryatha!

VOICES OF SENTINELS: Be watchful, be careful! Watch! Fires have burned on the ramparts.
(Salammbo rises and goes to take the Zaimph.)

MATHO: (stopping her). What would you do?

SALAMMBO: Why! Return to Carthage!

MATHO: (taking his sword). Ah, then, you come to take the Zaimph so as to deliver me to your people. Disarmed, my strength gone and finished. Do not try to escape, I'd kill you. Insolent virgin, in spite of your haughty look, you now belong to me. I'm now the master, you the servant and slave. Your temples, your palaces, amid the shrieks and the terror, will die out in flames under a reddening sky. Your vessels shall float on a sea of blood! Not a palm tree on this shore, not a stone erect shall say, Here was Carthage.

SALAMMBO: (throwing herself at him). Then let me be the first one stricken!

MATHO: (letting fall his sword). Oh, pardon; have pity; I've lost my reason.

SALAMMBO: (aside). Oh keep me, great gods on high. Tanit, save me even from myself!

MATHO: Ne les détourne pas, ces regards radieux, Profonds comme la mer et purs comme l'aurore.
Je m'abandonne à toi!
Tes dieux seront mes dieux,
O Salammbô, mon bien, mon âme, je t'adore!

SALAMMBÔ: (à part). Dieux!
Quel trouble s'éveille en mon coeur éperdu!
Quel feu divin en moi s'est répandu?

MATHO: (suppliant). O Salammbô, mon bien, mon âme, je t'adore!

SALAMMBÔ: Ah! l'univers est oublié quand il m'implore!
(Matho va prendre le Zaïmph: a ce moment l'orage. Appels de clairons se repandant.)

VOIX: (au dehors). Alerte compagnons!
Aux armes! les clairons!
C'est l'ennemi! les soldats de Carthage
L'ennemi vient pendant l'orage,
Alerte, compagnons!

SALAMMBÔ: (repoussant le Zaïmph que Matho lui offre). Non! garde ton présent et laisse-moi partir!
C'en est fait!
Laisse-moi suivre ma destinée.
Va! nos dieux m'ont abandonnée.
Matho . . . Je ne puis te haïr!

MATHO: Salammbô!

VOIX: (au dehors). Trahison! les perfides!
Aux armes! les Numides!

SALAMMBÔ: On t'appelle au combat! adieu, va, laisse-moi Partir!

MATHO: Non, non! ma vie et ma glorie, c'est toi! (Jetant le Zaïmph sur les épaules de Salammbô.)
Ah! Je t'aime à perdre la vie!
Vierge dont mon âme est ravie,
Violá ton manteau nuptial!

SALAMMBÔ: (faiblissant) A quel pouvoir fatal
Tu me livres déesse!

MATHO: Viens sur ce coeur
Que tu remplis d'ivresse!

SALAMBÔ: O souffrance adorable ineffable langueur!
Un ordre des Baals m'entraîne et me soulève
Dans des nuages d'or m'emportant comme un rêve!
La force m'abandonne et mes yeux pleins de pleurs
Se violent! dans l'effroi, dans l'extase je meurs!

MATHO: Sois à moi pour jamais!

SALAMMBO: Ah! voile ton flambeau, Tanit! . . . Ah! Moloch! tu me brûles!

MATHO: Do not turn from me those radiant glances. Deep as the sea and pure as the dawn, I give myself to you. Your gods shall be my gods. On Salammbo, my own, my soul, I adore you.

SALAMMBO: Oh gods what strange feeling has come in my heart. What divine fire has captured my whole being.

MATHO: (supplicating). Oh Salammbo, my own, my soul, I adore you!

SALAMMBO: Oh, the world is forgotten when thus he implores. (Matho goes to take the Zaimph, and at the moment a storm bursts, and then bugle calls are heard.)

VOICE: (outside). To arms! companions, to arms! Sound trumpets. The enemy is here, the soldiers of Carthage! They come, thinking the storm will protect them, on foot!

SALAMMBO: (giving back the veil Matho offers her). No keep your present and let me go. It is done! Let me meet my fate. Go! Our gods have abandoned me. But Matho, I should, but I cannot hate you.

MATHO: Salammbo.

SHOUTS: (outside). Treason, oh, treason; the Numids to arms!

SALAMMBO: They call you to arms. Farewell! Go, let me leave.

MATHO: No, no, my life, my glory, it is you. (Throwing the Zaimph on her shoulders). Ah, I love you enough to forfeit my life. Virgin, of whom my soul is in flame, here is your nuptial mantle!

SALAMMBO: (weak and aflame). To what fatal power do you give me up, oh, goddess.

MATHO: Come to my heart, you fill me with ecstacy.

SALAMMBO: Oh, adorable suffering, oh, ineffable languor. An order of the gods carries me and lifts me into golden clouds appearing like a dream. My strength gives way, my eyes, so full of tears—are blind . . . in terror and ecstacy I die!

MATHO: Be mine forever.

SALAMMBO: Put out your torch, Tanit, oh, Moloch, do not burn me.

MATHO: (la prenant dans ses bras).Salammbô!
(Violent coup de tonnerre. Le fond de la la tente gagnée par les flammes, s'écroule et laisse voir le camp tout en feu.)

VOIX: (au dehors). Matho!
Matho!

MATHO; (comme s'éveillant).
Ciel!
Quelles voix m'appellent?
Tout le camp est en feu!
Des armes étincellent
Au combat! au combat!
(S'arrachant à Salammbô, éperdué)
Adieu!
(Il prend son épée et s'élance.)

SALAMBÔ: (seule). Le voile saint est reconquis.
Mais que la foudre me dévore,
O dieux cruels, je vous abhorre
Et vous maudis!!!
(Elle va pour sortir couverte du Zaïmph)

SCÈNE II

Le champ de Bataille.
(Decouvre le champ de bataille jonché de ruines et de morts. Au fond le camp barbare détruit dont les ruines fument encore. A l'extreme lointain, Carthage.)

HAMILCAR, NARR'HAVAS, LE CHOEUR DES CARTHAGINOIS ET DES NUMIDES: Triomphe! gloire!
Victorie!

HAMILCAR: Carthage est libre et ses farouches ennemis Sont dispersés, anéantis!
Du bataillon sacré la valeur était vaine,
Déjà nos éléphants s'enfuyaient dans la plaine,
Mais un secours du ciel est sur nous descendu.
Oui, Tanit apaisée, oubliant sa colère,
A répandu sur nous sa force tutélaire . . .
Tanit pour nous a combattu!

SHAHABARIM: Que partout l'encens fume
Sur les autels de la cité!
O Tanit, que le feu consume
Un holocauste offert à ta divinité!

CHOEUR: Triomphe!
Glorie!
Victorie!

NARR'HAVAS: Hamilcar, tu le sais, dans un jour de folie,
Aux ennemis de ta patrie
J'avais promis mon appui . . .
Ces liens
Je les ai détestés, ma colére anvolée,
Et suis venu vers toi: dans le mêlée
Mes cavaliers se sont unis aux tiens!

MATHO: (holding her in his arms). Salammbo!
(Violent stroke of thunder; tent in flames falls, giving view of camp alight.)

VOICES: Matho! Matho!

MATHO: (as if awakening). Heavens, what voices call me. All the camp is afire. The men are all in arms. To the fight, to the fight (tearing himself away from Salammbo). Farewell! (He seizes his sword and rushes out.) SALAMMBO: (alone). The sacred veil is recovered. But let the lightning devour me. Oh, cruel gods, I abhor and detest you.

(She exits, covered with the Zaimph).

SCENE II

The Battle.
(The scene shows the ruins and the dead. The destroyed Barbarian camp and the smoking tents. In the distance—Carthage.)

HAMILCAR, NARR'HAVAS, CARTHAGINIANS and NUMIDIANS: (on stage.) Triumph, glory and victory.

HAMILCAR: Carthage is free and her ferocious enemies are dispersed and at an end. Of the sacred battalion the valor was in vain. Already our elephants were flying in the plain, when from heaven a sudden succor came. Yes, Tanit, appeased, forgetting her anger, spread over us her tutelary strength. Tanit spoke and fought for us!

SHAHABARIM: That everywhere incense burns, on the altars of the city. Oh Tanit may the fire consume a holocaust offering to your divinity.

CHORUS: Triumph, glory and victory!

NARR'HAVAS: Hamilcar, you know upon a day of folly, to the enemies of your country I promised help and aid. These bonds I detested once my anger gone, and thus came back to you. In the battle my horsemen quickly joined your own.

HAMILCAR: (froidement). J'ignore, ô roi, quel prix t'offriront les anciens, Mais Hamilcar n'est point ingrat . . .	HAMILCAR: (coldly). I know not, oh, king, what price they will offer you, but Hamilcar is not ungrateful.
NARR'HAVAS: La récompense La plus charmante et le prix le plus beau, Hamilcar, sont en ta puissance. (Montrant Salammbô qui parait.) Ta fille!	NARR'HAVAS: The recompense, most charming, and the prize most rich, Hamilcar, are in your power. (Showing Salammbo, who appears).
HAMILCAR, SHAHABARIM ET LE CHOEUR: Salammbô! (Salammbô, couverte d'un long manteau noir, descend lentement.)	HAMILCAR, SHAHABARIM and CHORUS: Salammbo! (Salammbo, covered with black, comes slowly.)
LE CHOEUR: Quelle pâleur mortelle! Qu'elle est touchante et belle, Marchant ainsi d'un pas religieux Et sans lever sur nous les yeux!	CHORUS: What mortal pallor, how touching and how lovely; coming thus with religious mien, not even lifting her eyes.
SALAMMBÔ: (encore au fond). Le gage à qui vous devez la victoire, Le manteau de Tanit rayonnant de sa glorie, Il est reconquist! Le voilà! (Elle écarte son manteau, et l'on voit le Zaïmph.)	SALAMMBO: (still at back). The prize to which you owe the victory, the great veil of Tanit, splendid in its glory, is reconquered—here it is. (She pulls back her mantle and the Zaimph is seen.)
LE CHOEUR: O joie! espoir! orgueil! c'est notre bon génie! Salammbô, sois bénie!	CHORUS: Oh, joy, hope and pride our good genius has returned. Salammbo, you're blessed.
LE CHOEUR ET SHAHABARIM: (adorant le Zaïmph). Anaïtis! Dercéto! Mylitte! O Rabbetna, Baalet, Tyratha!	SHAHABARIM AND CHORUS: (adoring the Zaimph). Anaitis! Derceto! Mylitta! Oh Rabetna, Baalet, Tyratha!
NARR'HAVAS: (à part). Matho sans doute est'mort en trompant ma colère!	NARR'HAVAS: (aside). Matho no doubt is dead while deserving my anger!
HAMILCAR: (à Salammbô.) Qu'as-tu fait?	HAMILCAR: (to Salammbo). What did you do?
SALAMMBÔ: J'ai sauvé ma patrie et mon père! (Shahabarim, suivi des prêtres, sort en emportant le Zaïmph.)	SALAMMBO: Saved my country and my father! (Shahabarim, followed by priests, exits with the Zaimph, as on come Spendius, Autharite, barbarian chiefs and prisoners.)
LE CHOEUR: Des chefs prisonniers! (Les mêmes, Spendius, Autharite, chefs, barbares, prisonniers.)
LE CHOEUR: Maudits! Sacrilèges!bandits! Scélérats! détestable engeance! La croix, la torture! Vengenace!	CHORUS: Be accursed, sacrilegious bandits. Scoundrels detestable wretches—to the cross, to the torture! vengeance!
AUTHARITE ET LES PRISONNIERS: Nous saurons subir notre sort. Nous ne demandons point de grâce Nous serions sans pitié, vainqueurs a votre place. Envoyez-nous donc à la mort!	AUTHARITE AND PRISONERS: We know how to meet our fate and ask no sort of mercy. Without pity, had we been the conquerers, so send us now to death!
SPENDIUS: (aux pieds d'Hamilcar). Noble Hamilcar, sauve moi! Ce lambeau De pourpre, je l'arrache et redeviens esclave! O pâle mort, qu'un autre et t'appelle et te brave! Sauve-moi; Narr'Havas! Sauve-moi, Salammbô!	SPENDIUS: (at the feet of Hamilcar). Noble Hamilcar, save me! These rags of purple I'll tear away, become again a slave. Oh, pallor of death, let some other than myself now mock you. Save me, Narr'Havas—save me, Salammbo.
AUTHARITE: O honte! devant un maître Lâchement s'humilier, Et lâchement supplier Jusqu'a Narr'Havas, ce traître!	AUTHARITE: Oh, shame! Before a master, cowardly humiliant, and cowardly begging even to the traitor Narr'Havas.
HAMILCAR ET SHAHABARIM: Tous á la mort! Que l'on dresse leurs croix! (Pendant la scéne suivante, on voit des croix, s'élevant lentement, se détacher sur le ciel au lointain.)	HAMILCAR AND SHAHABARIM: All to the death—let the crosses be raised. (During the following scene crosses are seen slowly erected in the distancee).
MATHO: (s'élançant, son épée brisée à la main). Et la mienne aussi.	MATHO: (rushing on, sword in hand). Give me also mine.
SALAMMBÔ: Grands dieux! . . . je le revoi!	SALAMMBO: Great gods! I see him once more!
TOUS: Matho! Dans l'agonie horrible Le lion est encore terrible!	ALL: Matho! Even in his horrible agony the lion still is terrible.
MATHO: Pourquoi ces cris et cet effroi? Quoi! vous reculez tous? aves-vous peur de moi? Ne craignez rien! ma force est épuisée. (Il jette son épée.) Mon épée brisée! Mon coeur aussi!	MATHO: Why these cries and this fright? What, you all fall back? Are you afraid of me? Fear nothing, for my strength is gone. (Throws away his sword.) My word is broken, also my heart.
SALAMMBÔ (à part). Dieux! faites-moi mourir! Votre victime est lasse de souffrir!	SALAMMBO: (aside). Oh, gods, let me die; your victim is tired of suffering.
MATHO: (à Hamilcar) Toi qui n'as pas rogi de souiller tant de gloire En achetant ce misérable roi! (A Narr'Havas.) Toi qui vas lâchement où s'en va la victoire, Courtisan couronné qui hier étais à moi! (A Salammbô.) Toi, plus que le destin, et fatale et cruelle, O Salammbô, si perfide et si belle! (S'attendrissant). Salammbô! Salammbô! (Avec force.) Je vous déteste tous! O dieux vengeurs, tenez vos foudres prêtes! Dieux infernaux, épousez mon courroux, Semez le désespoir et la mort sur leurs têtes!	MATHO: (to Hamilcar). You who have not blushed to soil glory so great in buying this miserable king. (To Narr'Havas). You! you coward, who at the moment of victory, deserted, Crowned courtesan who but yesterday belonged to me. (To Salammbo). You, more than destiny fatal and cruel; oh, Salammbo, so false and so beautiful. (Weeping). Salammbo! Salammbo! (With force.) I detest you all, oh avenging gods, keep your thunders ready. Gods of infernal depths, join in my anger, let only death and despair fall on their heads.
TOUS: (moins Salammbô et les captifs). Dieux infernaux, épargnez-nous! Au supplice!	ALL: (excepting Salammbo and captives). Gods infernal, spare us. To the torture.
SALAMMBÔ: (épouvantée). Au supplice!	SALAMMBO: (fearful). To the torture!
HAMILCAR: Non! Matho doit vivre un jour encore, Et son sang doit rougir l'autel où l'on t'adore, Tanit!	HAMILCAR: No! Matho shall live one day longer. His blood shall redden the altar where you adore—Tanit!

LE CHOEUR: Quels cris de joie aux cieux s'éleveront!

HAMILCAR: Expirant, il verra Carthage triomphante,
Narr'Havas épousant dans la pompe éclatante
Celle qui délivra le voile de Tanit.

SALAMMBÔ: Grand Dieux!

NARR'HAVAS: Demain tu mourras!

MATHO: Déliverance!

HAMILCAR: C'est ainsi qu'Hamilcar récompense
Et punit!
(On sépare Matho des autres captifs, Matho est emmens chargé de chaines. Hamilcar arrête Salammbô qui fait un mouvement vers Matho.)

(Rideau.)

■ ACTE CINQUIÈME

Les noces de Salammbô.
(Le forum de Carthage. La foule couvre les terrasses. Tout est en fête.)
(Au lever du rideau, les cinq pontifes sont debout au pied de la statue de Tanit.)

CHOEUR: O fête! ô triomphe! ô joie! ô délire!
Carthage ton sol sacré
Du barbare est délivre!
Brûlez pour les dieux l'encens et la myrrhe!
Salammbô va devant nous
S'unir à son jeune époux!
Mêlez à vos chants la flûte et la lyre!
Voile saint, trésor sans prix,
Salammbô t'a reconquis!
O fête! ô triomphe! ô joie! ô délire!

SHAHABARIM: Peuple, tes dieux
Partageant ton ivresse,
Frémissent d'allégresse Au sein des cieux!
Quittant sa demeure étoilée
Pour se livrer à ton amour,
Devant toi Tanit pour un jour S'est dévoilée.

LES PONTIFES ET LES PRÊTRES:
Peuple, tes dieux
Partageant ton ivresse
Frémissent d'allégresse
Au sein des cieux!

LE CHOEUR: O fête! ô triomphe! ô joie! ô délire!
Carthage, ton sol sacré
Du barbare est délivre!
Brûlez pour les dieux l'encens et la myrrhe
Salammbô va devant nous
S'unir â son jeune époux.
Mêlez â vos chants la flûte et la lyre!
Voile saint, trésor sans prix,
Salammbô t'a reconquis . . .
O fête! ô triomphe! ô joie! ô délire!

CHORUS: What shouts of joy will go up to heaven.

HAMILCAR: Expiring, he will see Carthage triumphant and Narr'Havas' wedding in splendor and in pomp, the one who rescued the veil of Tanit.

SALAMMBO: Great gods!

NARR'HAVAS: Tomorrow you die.

MATHO: Good deliverance.

HAMILCAR: Thus it is that Hamilcar punishes and awards.
(They take Matho away from the other captives. Matho is put in chains. Hamilcar stops Salammbo, who wants to run to Matho.)

CURTAIN.

■ ACT V

Wedding of Salammbo.
(The forum of Carthage. The crowd swarms about the terraces. All is noise and joy.)
(At rise of curtain the High Priests stand at the foot of the statue of Tanit.)

CHORUS: Oh, let us feast on triumph, on joy, on a craze. Sacred land of Carthage, is delivered from barbarians. Burn the incense and the myrrh for the gods. Salammbo goes before us to join her youthful spouse. Join in your songs both flute and lyre. Sainted veil, priceless treasure, Salammbo has reconquered you. Oh, triumph, let's feast; oh, joy, let us feast!

SHAHABARIM: People, your gods join in your happiness; they tremble with joy beyond bounds to the very heaven. Giving up her starry abode to deliver herself to your love. Before you for a day Tanit is uncovered.

HIGH PRIESTS AND OTHERS:
Oh, people, your gods partaking in your joy would feast with you in heaven itself.

CHORUS: Let us feast on triumph, on joy, on a craze. Your sacred soil, oh, Carthage, is delivered from the Nomad. Burn for the gods the incense and the myrrh. Salammbo goes before to join her young spouse. Join your songs the flute and the lyre. Sacred veil, priceless treasure, Salammbo has reconquered it. Let's feast and drink and celebrate the day.

CHOEUR: Voyez! entendez! l'air résonne
Des saintes clameurs des clairons . . .
Les dieux marchent vers nous!
Salammbô qu'environne
Leur gloire, vient parmi l'encens et les rayons!
(Marche triomphale.)
(Le cortège des prêtres. Les Anciens, Trophées des victoires d'Hamilcar. Enfin Narr'Havas, puis, sur un char de triomphe, Hamilcar et Salammbô).

CHOEUR: (a l'apparition de Salammbô). Salut! et sois bénie
Au nom de la patrie,
Des vieillards, des enfants!
Salut! et sois heureuse,
Fortune radieuse,
Suis ses pas triomphants!
(Des prêtres apportent l'appareil des sacrifices.)

LES PONTIFES: (à Salammbô et à Narr' Havas). Avant que le ciel vous unisse, Roi Narr'Havas, et toi notre orgueil, Salammbô!
Nous devons à Tanit un sanglant sacrifice.

HAMILCAR: Amenez la victime!

SALAMMBÔ: O dieux sauvers!
(Grand mouvement dans le peuple. Matho amene par des gardes est jete devant la statue de Tanit; il vient tomber devant Salammbô, aupres de l'autel.)

TOUS: Matho!

LE CHOEUR: Eh bien? pourquoi tarder!à l'autel!le couteau!
Sacrilège! bandit! ravisseur! lâche! traître!

SHAHABARIM: (prenant une épée). Accepte donc ce sang, Tanit!

LE CHOEUR: Non, pas le prêtre!!
Celle qui délivra le voile!
Salammbô!!

HAMILCAR, NARR'HAVAS, MATHO, SHAHABARIM, LES PONTIFS, LES PRÊTRES DE TANIT: Salammbô!dieux!

SALAMMBÔ: (s'avançant). J'entends ce que le peuple ordonne!

HAMILCAR: Quoi! tu veux obéir!

NARR'HAVAS: (voulant l'arreter). Salammbô!

SALAMMBÔ: Prêtre, donne!
(Elle prend l'épée et descend pres de Matho agenouillé a l'autel. Matho lève vers elle des regards pleins d'amour. Salammbô fait un effort surhumain pour soulever l'épée. Son bras retombe.)

TOUS: Quoi?
De sa main le glaive échappe!
Venge Tanit, Salammbô, frappe!

MATHO: Frappe!

OTHERS: Oh, hear, oh hear, the very air resounds with sacred clamors of the brass. The gods come near us. In the midst of their glory Salammbo comes amid perfume and incense.
(Triumphal march. Procession of Priests, people and ancients and trophies of Hamilcar, and last Narr'Havas, and on a triumphal chariot Hamilcar and Salammbo.)

CHORUS: (as Salammbo appears). In the name of our country be blessed and be happy; the vow of old and young, we bend the knee, be happy. May radiant fortune follow her radiant course.

PRIESTS: (bringing the sacrificial altar). Before heaven joins you together with King Narr'Havas, and you, our pride, Salammbo, we owe to Tanit a bloody sacrifice.

HAMILCAR: Bring forth the victim.

SALAMMBO: Oh, protecting gods.
(Great emotion among the people. Matho dragged in by the guards in thrown before the statue of Tanit. He falls in front of Salammbo by the altar.)

ALL: Matho.

CHORUS: Well, why wait—to the altar, to the knife. Sacrilegious bandit! ravisher! coward traitor!

SHAHABARIM: (taking the sword). Accept this blood, oh Tanit.

CHORUS: No—not the priest! The one who rescued the veil—Salammbo!

HAMILCAR AND THE REST: Salammbo! oh gods on high.

SALAMMBO: (coming forward) I hear what the people ordain.

HAMILCAR: What, and you would obey?

NARR'HAVAS: (trying to stop her) Saslammbo!

SALAMMBO: Priest, give me the knife.
(She takes the sword and goes toward Matho, who is kneeling by the altar. He looks toward her, his eyes full of love. Salammbo makes a superhuman effort to lift the sword. Her arm falls.)

ALL: What? the sword escapes from her hand Revenge Tanit, Salammbo, strike!

MATHO: Strike!

SALAMMBÔ: (levant l'épée). Accepte donc, Tanit, Le sange qui va couler! Que par cette rosée, Ta vengeance soit apaisée! Quiconque ta toucha, voile saint et bénit, Doit mourir! (Elle se frappe.)	SALAMMBO: (raising the sword). Then Tanit accept the blood that now will run. Thus by this dew let your vengeance be appeased—whoever touched your saintly and blessed veil—must die. (She strikes herself.)
TOUS: O dieux! ô jour lamentable!	ALL: Oh gods, lamentable day!
MATHO: (brisant ses liens, s'armant de l'épée et pregnant Salammbô dans ses bras.) N'approchez pas! elle est à moi! Salammbô, je t'adore et je m'en vais à toi! (Il se frappe et tombe tenant entre ses bras Salammbô expirante.)	MATHO: (breaking his bonds, taking the sword and holding Salammbo in his arms). Do not approach, for she is mine. Salammbo, I adore you and with you I die. (He delivers the fatal stroke, holding the dying Salammbo.)
TOUS: Quiconque aura touché ton voile vénérable Devra mourir, ô déesse implacable!	ALL: Whoever shall hold this awful veil must die, unforgiving goddess.
LES PONTIFES ET LES PRÊTRES: Anaïtis, Dercéto, Mylitta, O Rabbetna, Baalet, Tyratha! (Rideau.)	HIGH PRIESTS AND OTHERS: Anaitis, Derceto, Mylitta, oh Rabetna, Baalet; Tyratha.
FIN.	CURTAIN.

Snégurotchka (1882)

The Snow Maiden

MUSIC BY NIKOLAI ANDREEVICH RIMSKY-KORSAKOFF ■ LIBRETTO BY ALEXANDRE OSTROVSKY

This four-act opera (a spring fairy tale) with a prologue is set to a libretto by the composer (based upon Alexander N. Ostrovsky's comedy). It premiered at the Maryinski Theatre in St. Petersburg on February 10, 1882. The opera opens with the Spring fairy, who does not want to end the winter, telling the birds that she doesn't want to leave her daughter, Snégurotchka, whose father is Old Winter. The birds know that Snégurotchka will die if Yarilo, the sun, ever sees her. Winter is afraid that Yarilo will make his daughter fall in love with him, causing her heart (which is made of ice) to melt. He places her in the care of the Spirit of the Woods, and she is adopted by Bobil and Bobilicka, a peasant couple who live at the entrance to Tsar Berendey's village. Snégurotchka is not happy there, and Kupava, her closest friend, invites her to her wedding and introduces her to Mizgir, her fiancé. He falls in love with Snégurotchka at once and leaves Kupava, who appeals to Tsar Berendey for assistance. Berendey questions Snégurotchka, who answers that she loves no one, and he invites the two friends to the a ball celebrating the end of winter as a way of reconciling them. Snégurotchka remains immobile throughout the ball, but Kupava accepts the love of a shepherd, Lehl, who wants to marry her. Mizgir tells Snégurotchka that evening that he is in love with her. She returns to the woods and pleads with her mother to give her the ability to love. The Spring fairy comes, bearing flowers for her. Snégurotchka feels a deep new emotion as she goes to meet her beloved, and she accepts his marriage proposal. Just before the wedding, Mizgir asks the Tsar for his blessing, but a sun ray melts Snégurotchka completely away. Mizgir, deeply grieved, throws himself into the lake and drowns. As soon as Snégurotchka has melted, the sun shines once more.

PROLOGUE.

Commencement du printemps; il fait nuit; la Montagne Rouge est couverte de neige. A droite, des buissons, un bouquet de bouleaux clairsemés et sans feuilles. A gauche, une épaisse forêt de pins et de sapins. Les branches plient sous le poids de la neige. Au fond, au pied de la montagne, un fleuve; les trous dans la glace sont entourés de petits sapins. De l'autre côté du fleuve le bourg de Berendeyeff, capitale du tzar Berendey; les palais, les maisons et les izbas sont en bois ornés de découpures peintes en différentes couleurs. Les fenêtres sont éclairées. La pleine lune argente tout le terrain de£couvert. Au loin, les coqs chantent.

SCÈNE I.

LE FAUNE, LA FÉE PRINTEMPS et les OISEAUX.

Le Faune est assis sur un souche déssechée. Le ciel tout entier se couvre peu à peu d'oiseaux arrivés d'au-delà des mers.

LE FAUNE: Adieu l'hiver! Les coqs ont chanté,
La Fée Printemps va naître avec l'aurore,
Voici le temps, où finit ma garde.

PROLOGUE.

It is at the beginning of spring; night has fallen, and the Red Mountain is covered with snow. To the right, bushes, a scattered cluster of leafless birches. To the left, a thick forest of pine and fir trees, their branches bending beneath the weight of the snow. At the back, at the foot of the mountain, a river; holes in the ice are surrounded by small firs. On the other side of the river, the town of Berendeyeff, the capital of the Tzar Berendey. Its palaces, houses and izbas are of wood, ornamented with carvings painted in various colors. Lights shine in the windows. A full moon silvers the open country. In the distance the cocks are crowing.

SCENE I.

THE FAUN, FAIRY SPRING and the BIRDS.

The Faun is seated in a hollow tree. Little by little, the entire sky is covered with birds arriving from beyond the seas.

THE FAUN: Farewell winter! The cocks have crowed,
And Fairy Spring will come to earth with dawn.
The time's at hand when my long vi-

Je puis dormir en paix.
(Il disparaît dans le creux de l'arbre).
(Les oiseaux arrivent de plus en plus nombreux.)
(La Fée Printemps, portée par les cigognes, les cygnes et les oies, et entourée d'une suite d'oiseaux, descend sur la Colline Rouge.)

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: A l'heure dite, au jour marqué dans l'ordre
Des temps, je viens au pays des Berendeys,
Pays du froid, pays des long hivers,
Pays muet, pays de triste accueil.
Où sont, hélas! les pays,
Les beaux pays du soleil?
Le pays toujours heureux
Au bord des flots d'azur?
Là-bas, les prés fleuris,
Les sombres bois de myrtes
Et les jardins de roses
Embaument l'air des soirs;
Un tiède et doux parfum
S'exhale de la terre.
Là-bas, la lune d'argent,
La lune tendre et calme,
Caresse de ses rayons
Les arbres tout en fleurs;
Dans l'âme des hommes
J'éveille l'amour,
Dans l'ombre immense et morne des bois en deuil,
Je fais du sol glacé jaillir des fleurs.
(S'adressant aux oiseaux qui grelottent de froid.)

gil is over,
I'll once more sleep in peace.
(He disappears in the hollow of the tree.)
(The birds continue to arrive in increasing numbers.)
(Fairy Spring, borne through the air by storks, swans and geese, and surrounded by a retinue of birds, alights on the Red Mountain.)

FAIRY SPRING: At the hour given, the day is marked in the calends
Of time, I seek the country of the Berendeys;
A land of cold, a land of winters long,
A silent land, whose welcome does not cheer.
Where are, alas, those lands,
Those lovely lands of sunshine?
The land whose joy endures,
Beside the azure waves?
Yonder, the flowering meads,
The somber myrtle thickets,
And gardens full of roses
Scent all the evening air.
A fragrance warm and sweet
Is breathed forth by the earth.
Yonder, a silver moon,
A tender moom and calm,
Caresses with its rays
The blossom-laden trees,
And in men's souls
I waken love.
Now in the very shadow, vast and chill, of woods that mourn,
I bid the flowers spring up from the Mes chers oiseaux, vous mes commères pies

Voilà seize ans déjà, par pur caprice,
J'ai voulu faire la coquette avec l'hiver,
Galant au coeur gelé. Depuis ce jour
C'est moi qui suis esclave. Une fille
Nous est née; en son pouvoir
Il garde mon enfant chérie
Snégourotchka.
Dans ces forêts où l'ombre est éternelle,
Au plus profond des bois toujours glacés,
Le père en son palais retient ma fille,
Je la voudrais heureuse et je l'adore;
Il faut pour l'amour d'elle me soumettre
Au vieux Bonhomme Hiver, tyran morose
De ce pays et de moi-même.
Il ne veut pas au doux printemps céder la place,
Vite, vite, dansez en rond, dansez pour vous chauffer,
Dansez, dansez, ainsi que font les hommes!
(Quelques oiseaux prennent leurs instruments, d'autres commencent à chanter, d'autres encore dansent.)

CHOEUR DES OISEAUX: D'un bout à l'autre
Du vaste monde
Les oiseaux accourent;
Devant leur reine,
Sujets fidèles,
Les oiseaux s'assemblent.
Qui dans notre peuple
Sont les forts, les maîtres?
Les petits, les faibles?
Qui dans notre peuple
Sont les forts, les maîtres?
Les petits, les faibles?
(Le givre, puis des flocons de neige commencent à tomber sur les oiseaux qui dansent; le vent se lève, le ciel se voile de nuages qui couvrent la lune; le brouillard s'étend sur le lointain.)

LES OISEAUX: (se pressant, en criant, autour de la Fée Printemps). Ah! Ah! Il neige! Il neige à gros flocons!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: Bein vite, entrez sous bois, Voici venir le vieil Hiver!
(Les oiseaux se cachent dans les buissons. Le Bonhomme Hiver sort de la forêt.)

SCÈNE II.

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS, LE BONHOMME HIVER.

frozen sod.
(Speaking to the birds, who are trembling with cold.)
Dear birds of mine, you gossips dear to me,
It was sixteen years ago, moved by mere caprice,
That I coquetted with old Winter here,
Galant with heart of ice. And since that day,
I am his slave. A girl
Was born to us, and is in his power.
He keeps my child, my cherished Snegurotchka,
In these vast forests of eternal shade,
Deep in the heart of woods that never thaw,
Her father in his place guards my child;
I, who adore her, willingly would see her happy,
For love of her I must submit
To my old husband Winter, despot morose,
Ruling this land and me.
He will not, does not wish to yield his place to gentle Spring!
Come, come, dance a round, dance to warm yourselves,
Dance, dance, as dance the sons of men!
(Some birds seize their instruments, others begin to sing, while still others dance.)

CHORUS OF BIRDS: From one end to the other
Of this vast world,
The birds come hastening;
To their queen's presence,
Subjects loyal,
The birds assemble.
Who among our folk
Are the strong, the masters?
Who are the small and weak?
(Hail, followed by snowflakes, commences to fall on the dancing birds; the wind begins to blow, the sky is veiled in clouds which hide the moon; the storm spreads afar.)

THE BIRDS: (crowding around Fairy Spring, cry out). Ah, ah! It is snowing! The big flakes are falling!

FAIRY SPRING: Quick! Into the woods!
King Winter himself is coming!
(The birds hide in the bushes. King Winter comes out of the forest.)

SCENE II.

FAIRY SPRING, KING WINTER.

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Quand le froid fait craquer la charpente
Et les murs des maisons,
Quand le froid fait grincer sur leurs gonds
Les grand' portes des cours,
La fumee qui s'élève au-dessus des maisons,
La légère fumée qui s'envole et s'enfuit
Sous le souffle du vent,
Je la gèle soudain
Je la gèle et la tiens
Suspendue—
Sur la plaine, sur les arbres;
Suspendue
Quel plaisir pour moi,
Quel plaisir!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: La fête a bien assez duré. Allons, Sois raisonnable, et pars! En route!

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Laisse donc,
Je vais partir—mais tu ne m'aimes plus.
Il ne te souvient pas du temps passé.

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: Mais à qui Veux-tu laisser ta fille?

LE BONHOMME HIVER: La voilà
Déjà grande et sage, et d'âge à se conduire;
Sa retraite est sûre, nul chemin n'y mène:
Elle peut y demeurer en paix.

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: Folie!
Non, c'est la liberté qu'il faut aux filles.

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Je sais que le soleil
Veut la mort de notre enfant chérie,
Que le soleil brûlant veut embraser et fondre
Au feu du ciel, au feu d'amour le coeur
De notre enfant Snégourotchka.
Mais elle,
Tant qu'elle restera candide et pure,
N'a rien à craindre du soleil. Ecoute!
Jamais fille n'est trop bien gardée.
Bobyl, le pauvre diable, est sans enfants,
Donnons-la-lui, et qu'elle soit sa fille!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: J'accepte.

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Petite Snégourotchka, viens vite ici!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: (met la tête à la lisière du bois). Holà! Holà!
(Entre en scène en courant et s'approche de son père.)

SCÈNE III.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA, LE BONHOMME HIVER et LA FÉE PRINTEMPS, plus tard le FAUNE.

KING WINTER: When the cold cracks the timbers,
And the walls of the houses;
When the frost makes the great courtyard gates
Creak on their hinges,
Then the smoke rising over the dwellings,
The smoke floating upward to vanish
Beneath the breath of the wind,
I freeze of a sudden.
Aye, I freeze it and hold it
Suspended;
Over the plain, above the trees
Suspended
What pleasure it gives me,
How I enjoy it!

FAIRY SPRING: Your holiday has lasted long enough. Come,
Be reasonable, and go! Off with you!

KING WINTER: Let be!
I'm going—You no longer love me, though.
No longer do you recall the days gone by.

FAIRY SPRING: Now to whom
Will you trust your daughter?

KING WINTER: She is here,
Already grown up, steady, old enough to behave;
No road leads to her refuge safe:
There she can stay all undisturbed.

FAIRY SPRING: Madness!
No, liberty is what a young girl needs.

KING WINTER: Well do I know the sun
Would gladly slay our darling child,
I know the burning sun would clasp and melt
In the sky's fire, in passion's flame the heart
Of our child Snegurotchka. She, however,
As long as she is pure and innocent,
Need never fear the burning sun.
Listen!
No girl can ever be too virtuously guarded.
Bobyl, the poor devil, he is childless,
We'll give her to him, she shall be his daughter!

FAIRY SPRING: I am willing.

KING WINTER: Little Snegurotchka, come here quickly!

SNEGUROTCHKA: (peering out from the edge of the forest). Hallo! Hallo!
(She runs out on the stage and goes up to her father.)

SCENE III.

SNEGUROTCHKA, KING WINTER and FAIRY SPRING, afterward the FAUN.

Scene III

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: Pauvre petite neige, fleur sauvage, Vien vite près de moi que je t'embrasse!
(Caressant Snégourotchka.)
Ma belle, veux-tu vivre seule et libre
Chez les humains?

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Oh oui, oh
oui, ma mère!
Aller au bois cueillir la framboise,
Répondre aux voix joyeuses des compagnes,
A-ou, A-ou!
Chanter en choeur, redire après Lel
Les chants joyeux qui fêtent le printemps,
Oi, Lado Lel!
Voilà mon rêve et mon bonheur;
Je ne puis vivre sans chansons.
Consens, mon père, et quand tu reviendras Avec l'hiver, dans les grands bois épais,
Le soir, le soir, je chanterai, je chanterai,
Pour égayer la solitude,
Les plus gais de mes refrains.
Le beau Lel me les apprendra,
Je les saurai bien vite.

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Ce beau
Lel qui te l'a fait connaître?

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: De ma cachette
Je l'ai vu passer, j'ai vu les jeunes filles
Venir à lui, promettre à ce berger
Le plus doux baisers, s'il veut chanter pour elles,
Lui dire des noms tendres; gentil
Lel.
O Lel charmant, o Lel chéri!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: Ce Lel
Chante-t-il donc si bien, mignonne?

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Mère! Je connais, Je connais, ma mère, tous les chants les plus beaux,
Le chant de l'alouette qui monte et rit au ciel d'été,
Et le plaintif appel du cygne sur
l'eau dormante de l'étang.
Et je connais, oui, je connais
La voix sublime et pure du rossignol,
Charmeur divin des nuits profondes: j'aime mieux les chants de
Lel,
Oui, j'aime mieux les chants de Lel;
le jour, la nuit,
Sans trève et sans repos
J'écoute, j'écoute
Et sens mon coeur se fondre.

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Fondre! fondre!
Mot redoutable, mot d'affreux présage!
Snégourotchka, fuis Lel, ma fille,
Crains ses chansons et ses paroles.

FAIRY SPRING: Poor little flower, poor wild flower,
Come to me quickly, come into my arms!
(Caressing her.)
My sweet, would you live alone and free
Among mere men?

SNEGUROTCHKA: Oh yes, oh yes,
dear mother!
To go strawberrying in the woods,
Replying to merry-voiced companions,
A-ou, A-ou!
To sing in chorus, after Lel repeat
The joyous songs that celebrate the spring,
Oi, Lado Lel!
Such is my dream, were my delight;
For without song I cannot live.
Consent, dear father, and when you return,
With winter to deep forest fastnesses,
At fall of night when I will sing, I'll sing,
To lend our loneliness a needed
cheer,
The gayest of the songs I know.
It is handsome Lel who'll teach me
them,
And I'll be quick to learn.

KING WINTER: This handsome
Lel, who made him known to you?

SNEGUROTCHKA: From out of my hiding place
I've seen him passing. I have seen the girls
Go to him, promising the shepherd boy
The sweetest kisses if he'd sing for them,
And call him tender names: You handsome Lel!
You charming Lel, Oh Lel beloved!

FAIRY SPRING: This Lel,
Say, does he sing so well, my pet?

SNEGUROTCHKA: Mother! I know
I know, dear mother mine, all of the loveliest songs,
The lark's which rises laughing to the skies,
And the swan's plaintive call,
sounding over lakes adream.
Yes, and I know, I know
The nightingale's pure voice, her song sublime,
Enchantress of profoundest night;
but I love Lel's songs best of all.
Yes, I love best the songs of Lel, and day and night,
Without rest or repose
I hark and listen;
And feel my whole heart melt.

KING WINTER: Melt! Melt!
O dreaded word! Word filled with evil omen!
Snegurotchka, avoid Lel, my daughter,
Mistrust his song and pleasant words!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: O ma fille,
Ta mère t'aime et veillera sur toi!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Je suis enfant soumise et sage, mais je Ne crains vraiment ni Lel, ni ses chansons.

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS:
Snégourotchka, si tu dois être
Un jour dans l'angoisse et la douleur, Viens me trouver dans le val du dieu Yarilo,
Appelle-moi et quoi que tu demandes
Je le ferai pour toi!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Merci, ma mere.

VOIX DANS LA FORÊT: A-ou! A-ou!
(Le Faune sort du creux d'un arbre desséché, s'étirant et baillant.)

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Faune, écoute:
Si Lel où si quelque autre de ces hommes
Poursuit jamais la fille de neige,
De leur coupable atteinte défends-la;
Egare-les, attire-les au fond des fourrés sombres,
Embourbe-les dans les tourbières!

LE FAUNE: Bien, mon maître!
(Croise ses bras au-dessus de la tête et disparaît dans sons creux d'arbre.)
(Les Berendeys conduisent le carnaval derrière la scène.)

CHOEUR: Oï, oï, oï,
Oï! beau carnaval, carnaval,
Oï! beau carnaval, carnaval!

LE FÉE PRINTEMPS: Ce sont les chants joyeux des Berendeys.
Partons, bonhomme!
Snégourotchka, adieu,
Et sois heureuse, ô mon enfant!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: O ma mère
Qu'on puisse ou non trouver le bonheur, je veux le chercher!

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Adieu, ma fille si chérie!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: Allons, que
l'hiver cesse!
Plus de brouillards, plus de frimas.
Pars vite et N'attriste pas ainsi le gai cortège du carnaval!

LE BONHOMME HIVER: Fini le froid, fini l'hiver!
(Sort en faisant signe de son bonnet.) (*La chasse-neige cesse, les nuages s'en vont. Le temps redevient serein comme au début de l'acte.
Foule des Berendeys. Les uns poussent vers la forêt le traîneau portant le mannequin du carnaval (Ier choeur), d'autres restent un peu plus loin (IIe choeur).*

FAIRY SPRING: O my daughter,
Your mother loves you, and will watch over you!

SNEGUROTCHKA: I am a child both prudent and discreet, but I Fear neither Lel, nor yet the songs he sings.

FAIRY SPRING: Snegurotchka, if it should chance that you
Some day are filled with anguish and with grief,
Come seek me in the vale of the god
Yarilo,
Call on my name, and whatever you demand,
That will I do for you!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Thanks, mother of mine.

VOICES IN THE FOREST: A-ou! A-ou!
(The Faun comes out of the hollow tree trunk, stretching and yawning.)

KING WINTER: Hark to me, Faun:
If Lel, or any other of these men, Ever pursues the daughter of the snow,
Against their culpable attempts, defend her;
Lead them astray amid the tangled thickets,
And set them floundering in the water bogs!

THE FAUN: I shall, my master!
(Crossing his arms above his head he disappears in the hollow trunk.)
(The Berendeys are celebrating the carnival, offstage.)

CHORUS: Oi, Oi, Oi,
Oi, fair carnival, carnival!
Oi, fair carnival, carnival!

FAIRY SPRING: They are the joyous songs sung by the Berendeys.
King Winter, let us be off! Snegurotchka, farewell!
Be happy now, O child of mine!

SNEGUROTCHKA: O mother of mine,
Whether or not I may find happiness, at least I'll seek it!

KING WINTER: So long, my so beloved daugther.

FAIRY SPRING: Come now, let winter cease!
A truce to hailstorms and to frosts!
Go swiftly,
Do not sadden the merry carnival cortege!

KING WINTER: A truce to cold,
the winter's over!
(Off, making a sign with his cap.)
(*The snowfall ceases, the clouds disappear. The weather becomes clear as at the beginning of the act. A crowd of the Berendeys.
Some are pushing the sleigh bearing the mannikin representing the Carnival toward the forest (Chorus I.); others remain somewhat further to the rear (Chorus* Snégourotchka se tient derrière les buissons, près du creux d'arbre.)

SCENE IV.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA, BOBYL, BOBYLICKA, BERENDEYS.

II. CHOEUR: (entrant en scène).
Oï, Oï, Oï!
Oï! beau carnaval, Oï! beau carnaval!
(Conduite du Carnaval.)

I. CHOEUR: Les coqs chantent depuis l'aurore
Annonçant le doux printemps,
Adieu, adieu, carnaval, adieu!
Tu nous as gorgés de bonne chère,
Enivrés d'hydromel et de bière,
Adieu, adieu, carnaval, adieu!
Le bon vin coulait comme un fleuve,
Le bon vin coulait à flots,
Adieu, adieu, carnaval, adieu!
Te voilà debout glorieux et fier,
Bourré de foin, vêtu de mousse,
Adieu, adieu, carnaval, adieu!
On te rend ici des honneurs royaux,
On te mène aux bois dans un beau traîneau,
Adieu, adieu, carnaval, adieu!
Nous allons te quitter tout à l'heure
Et nos yeux ne te verront plus,
Adieu, adieu, carnaval, adieu!
(Le Ier choeur pousse le traîneau vers la forêt et se met à l'écart.)

II. CHOEUR: Oï, Oï, Oï!
Oï, beau carnaval, Oï! beau carnaval, oï!
Pendant un an tu dormiras,
Et l'an prochain t'éveilleras, Adieu!

CARNAVAL: L'été qui vient bientôt fuira,
Adieu, soleil de flamme et d'or!
Après l'été fuira l'automne,
Adieu, moissons, adieu, vendange!
Voici les mois aux longues nuits.
Voici l'hiver tout blanc de neige.
Mais déjà le jour s'allonge et le Soleil devient plus chaud, quand le
Dégel viendra, quand les oiseaux
Boiront l'eau vive des ruisseaux,
Alors vous reverrez Carnaval!
(Il disparaît. Bobyl s'accroche au train vide, sa femme s'accroche à lui.)

II.). Snegurotchka remains behind the bushes, near the hollow tree.)

SCENE IV.

SNEGUROTCHKA, BOBYL, BOBYLICKA, BERENDEYS.

CHORUS II: (entering upon the stage). Oi, Oi, Oi!
Oi, fair carnival! Oi, fair carnival!
(Carnival procession.)

CHORUS I: The cocks have crowed since dawn began,
Announcing merry carnival,
Farewell, farewell, Carnival, farewell!
You have gorged us with good food,
Made us tipsy with hydromel and beer,
Farewell, farewell, Carnival, farewell!
Good wine has been running in streams,
Good wine has been running like water,
Farewell, farewell, Carnival, farewell!
There you stand, so haughty and proud,
Stuffed with straw, dressed in moss,
Farewell, farewell, Carnival, farewell!
Royal honors have been paid you here,
We lead you to the woods in a handsome sleigh,
Farewell, farewell, Carnival, farewell!
We shall leave you in a moment or so,
And our eyes shall see you no more,
Farewell, farewell, Carnival, farewell!
(Chorus I pushes the sleigh toward the forest and steps aside.)

CHORUS II: Oi, Oi, Oi!
Oi, fair Carnival, Oi, fair Carnival, oi!
A whole year long there you shall sleep,
And when next year comes awake again. Farewell!

CARNIVAL: The coming summer soon will fly,
Farewell, sun of gold and flame!
Fall will take flight when summer's gone,
Farewell, crops, harvests farewell!
Then come the months whose nights are long,
The winter white with fallen snows.
Already, though, the day grows long, the Sun grows hotter. When
The thaw sets in, and when the birds once more
Drink running water from the brooks,

BOBYLICKA: Allons, rentrons!

BOBYL: Arrête!
Quoi! ma femme, c'est donc fini déjà,
Fini de rire? on ne va plus
Manger ni boire aux frais des autres?
Il va falloir peiner et se serrer le ventre?
Merci, merci, vraiment, ce n'est pas mon compte.
Bobyl, que faire, hélas!
Mon pauvre ami, comment rester sans boire?
(Il danse.)
Le plus gueux de tous les gueux,
C'est Bobyl—la Misère.
Il n'a rien sur la terre,
Sou ni maille, feu ni bien.

BOBYLICKA: Veux-tu rentrer, ivrogne!

CHOEUR DES BERENDEYS: Bah, laisse donc!
(Bobyl se dirige vers la forêt. Snégrourotchka se montre. Tout le monde s'approche du creux d'arbre.)

BOBYL: Bonnes gens, venez et voyez tous cette merveille!

CEOEUR DES BERENDEYS: Une princesse! Vivante! Vivante!
Avec ses gants, ses bottes, sa pelisse!

BOBYL: Princesse, dites-nous où vous allez,
Comment vous vous nommez! Parlez, princesse!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA:
Snégourotchka! où je vais, qu'en sais-je?
Mais si vous êtes bons, soyez mes hôtes,
Je veux vous suivre en votre bourg.
Celui qui m'a su trouver
Qu'il me prenne pour fille.

BOBYL: Eh bien, je suis à présent grand seigneur,
Venez vous tous, venez dans mon palais,
Dans mon palais aux sept piliers de marbre,
Venez, boyards et princes, venez tous!
Apportez-moi vos dons les plus superbes
Et moi, pas fier, je vous ferai risette.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Adieu, mon père, adieu, adieu, ma mère!
O forêt, adieu, adieu!

VOIX DANS LA FORÊT: Adieu, adieu, adieu, adieu!
(Les arbres et les buissons saluent Snégourotchka en s'inclinant.)

You will see Carnival again!
(He disappears. Bobyl catches hold of the empty sleigh, his wife clings to him.)

BOBYLICKA: Come, let us go back!

BOBYL: Now wait!
What, wife of mine, is it already over?
Our laughter done? Are we no more
To eat and drink at the expense of others?
Must we now toil and tighten up the belt?
Thanks, thanks! In truth, that will not do for me.
Bobyl, what shall we do, alas!
Poor dear, how can we manage without drink?
(He dances.)
Most beggarly of all beggars
Is Bobyl!—named wretchedness.
He has nothing here on earth,
To spend or wear, no goods nor chattels.

BOBYLICKA: Will you come back here, drunkard!

CHORUS OF BERENDEYS: Bah, let him be!
(Bobyl moves off toward the forest. Snegurotchka shows herself. Everybody draws near the tree-trunk.)

BOBYL: Good people, come and see this wondrous miracle!

CHORUS OF BERENDEYS: A princess! A live one, a real one!
With her gloves, her boots and her pelisse!

BOBYL: Princess, tell us where you're going!
What shall we call you? Speak, Princess!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Snegurotchka!
Where I go how can I tell?
Yet if you be kind, then be my hosts,
And I will follow you into your town.
He who had the wit to discover me
Let him take me for his daughter.

BOBYL: Ah well, then I'm a great lord this moment.
Come all of you, come step into my palace,
Enter my palace with its seven marble pillars.
Come, boyars and princes, come one and all!
Bring to me all your most splendid gifts
And I, who am not proud, will smile on you.

SNEGUROTCHKA: Farewell, father, farewell, farewell, my mother!
Oh forest, farewell, farewell!

VOICES IN THE FOREST: Farewell, farewell, farewell, farewell!
(The trees and bushes salute Snegurotchka, bending down before her.)

CHOEUR DES BERENDEYS: A-ou, a-ou! quelle épouvante!
Aie, aie, aie, aie, aie!
(La foule se disperse épouvantée.)

RIDEAU.

IER ACTE.

Faubourg de Berendey, au-delà du fleuve. A droite, la pauvre maison de Bobyl avec sa façade croulante; devant la maison un banc; à gauche, la maison peinte en différentes couleurs de Koupava; au fond, une rue; de l'autre côté de la rue une houblonnière et un rucher. Entre eux, un sentier, menant à la rivière.—C'est le soir; on entend les cors des bergers. Les habitants du faubourg se réunissent, parmi eux Bobyl.

SCÈNE I.

BOBYL, LEL, SNÉGOUROTCHKA, plus tard plusieurs JEUNES FILLES.

LEL: (Entre en jouant de son chalumeau. Bobyl l'invite par un geste à entrer chez lui). Pour un aimable accueil
Le pauvre Lel ne peut rien t'offrir,
Il n'a que sa musique et ses chansons,
Ami, veux-tu qu'il chante?

BOBYL: La musique, je ne l'aime guère,
Chante plutôt pour Snégourotchka;
Mais prends garde de perdre tes chansons,
Elle est avare de ses faveurs
Et froide comme neige,
Tu n'auras d'elle qu'un merci et qu'un adieu.
(Il sort.)

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Bonjour, beau Lel, bonjour, viens près de moi.

LEL: Faut-il chanter?

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Ah! Lel, j'osais à peine t'en faire la prière.

LEL: Fillette, il est un prix
Que je préfère pour mes chansons.
Fillette, par un peu de tendresse,
Le berger, le pauvre Lel,
Serait mieux payé, ou bien par un baiser.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Vraiment, c'est là ta récompense?
Un baiser vaut-il si cher?
En échange un baiser est peu de chose Et je ne t'embrasserai pas, Lel!

LEL: Cueille une fleur dans l'herbe,
Offre-la-moi pour ma chanson!

CHORUS OF BERENDEYS: A-ou, a-ou! How terrifying!
Aie, aie, aie, aie, aie!
(The crowd disperses in a panic.)

CURTAIN.

ACT I.

A suburb of Berendey, across the river. To the right, Bobyl's wretched hut, with its crumbling front; before it, a bench. To the left, Koupava's house, painted with various colors. At the back, a street; at the other end of the street a hop garden and a beehive. Between them, a path leading to the river. It is evening; the horns of the shepherds are heard. The inhabitants of the suburb gather together, among them Bobyl.

SCENE I.

BOBYL, LEL, SNEGUROTCHKA, somewhat later, YOUNG GIRLS.

LEL: (He enters, playing his shepherd pipe. Bobyl signs to him to enter his hut). For your kindly greeting Poor Lel has nothing to offer you,
He has only his music and his songs.
Say, friend, would you have him sing?

BOBYL: For music I have no great liking,
Sing for Snegurotchka rather than for me;
But watch out for fear that your songs be sung in vain.
She is sparing with her favors,
And cold as the snow,
You'll get but a word of thanks and—farewell!
(Off.)

SNEGUROTCHKA: Good day, handsome Lel, good day!
Come closer!

LEL: Shall I sing?

SNEGUROTCHKA: Ah, Lel, I hardly dared to beg you to.

LEL: Little maid, there is a price
Which I prefer to others for my songs.
Little maid, with a little kindness
Poor Lel, the shepherd
Rather would be paid, or with a kiss.

SNEGUROTCHKA: In truth, is that the price you ask?
A kiss is it so dear?
A kiss is not enough to pay your songs,
And therefore I'll not kiss you, Lel!

LEL: Then pick a flower amid the grass,
And offer me it for my song!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: (cueillant une fleur). Voici, prends-la!

LEL: Si l'on demande
Qui me l'offrit, je répondrai: c'est toi!
(Snégourotchka pose, presque en pleurant, sa main sur l'épaule de Lel.)
La forêt gaîment s'éveille
Et là-bas le pâtre chante;
Ah! que vivre est doux!
Le soleil rayonne et luit,
Parmi les branches, les bouleaux d'argent
Frissonnent sous la brise,
Ah! que vivre est doux!
A travers les buissons, au loin,
Par l'étroit sentier du bois,
Une fille accourt à pas pressés;
Elle court et court toujours plus vite,
Elle porte deux bouquets de fleurs,
Pour elle et pour son ami.

CHOEUR DES JEUNES FILLES:
Lel, Lel, Lel, beau Lel,
Loeli, Loeli, Lel si doux, si joli,
Notre Lelionka, Lel, notre Lel, beau Lel, Viens donc vite, Lelionka.
(Lel jette la fleur donnée par Snégourotchka et veut aller vers les jeunes filles.)

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Où cours-tu donc? Ma fleur, tu la rejette?

LEL: Que puis-je en faire? Elle est déjà fanée!
Où je m'en vais? Tu vois sur cette branche L'oiseau posé. Il va chanter un peu
Et puis s'envoler. Peux-tu le retenir?

SCÈNE II.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: (seule). Ah! que j'ai mal! et que mon coeur a de peine!
Comme une lourde pierre cette fleur
Que Lel a rejettée a meurtri mon coeur.
Les autres filles savent le charmer,
Leur rire est plus ardent, plus chaude est leur voix.
Hélas! ici je reste seule et je pleure,
Car Lel me dédaigne et fuit loin de moi!
Mon père Hiver, quel mal m'as-tu donc fait!
Maman Printemps, sois bonne, et donne-moi
Un peu d'ardente flamme et de soleil,
Pour réchauffer enfin mon pauvre coeur!

SCÈNE III.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA, KOUPAVA.

SNEGUROTCHKA: (picking a flower). Here, take it then!

LEL: If any ask
Who offered it to me I shall say it was you!
(Snegurotchka stands, nearly in tears, her hand resting on Lel's shoulder.)
The forest gaily awakens
And yonder the herdsman sings;
Ah, how sweet it is to live!
The sun shines radiantly
Among the branches, the silver birches
Quiver when blows the breeze.
Ah, how sweet it is to live!
Amid the bushes, in the distance,
By the narrow woodland path,
A maid comes running hurriedly;
She runs and runs, fast and ever faster,
She bears two bouquets of flowers,
For her lover and herself!

CHORUS OF YOUNG MAIDENS:
Lel, Lel, Lel, handsome Lel.
Loeli, Loeli, Lel, so kind, so graceful!
Our Lelionka, Lel, our Lel, handsome Lel,
Come join us quickly, Lelionka!
(Lel casts away the flower given him by Snegurotchka, and is about to go toward the Young Maidens.)

SNEGUROTCHKA: To where are you going? Do you reject my flower?

LEL: What shall I do with it? It has already faded!
Where do I go? Behold, on yonder branch,
That perching bird. He'll pipe a snatch of song
Then fly away. Say, can you hold him?

SCENE II.

SNEGUROTCHKA: (alone). Ah, how ill I feel, and how my poor heart suffers!
Like some heavy stone the flower
Lel cast aside has bruised this heart of mine!
The other girls know how to charm him,
With laugh more kindling, and with warmer voices,
Alas, I stay alone here and I weep,
For Lel disdains me, flees afar from me!
O Father Winter, what evil you have done me?
O Mother Spring, be kind, and give to me
A bit of ardent sunshine and of flame,
To warm again this poor cold heart of mine!

SCENE III.

SNEGUROTCHKA, KOUPAVA.

KOUPAVA: Snégourotchka, je suis heureuse,
Je suis heureuse et je voudrais jeter mes bras
Au cou de tout venant et lui crier ma joie.
Ecoute-moi, Snégourotchka, et prends ta part de mon bonheur!
A l'aube je cueillais des fleurs sur la colline
Ensoleillée; auprès de moi parut
Un beau jeune homme aux longs cheveux bouclés,
Au doux regard; tu sais toi-même,
On ne peut vivre sans amitié,
Un jour où l'autre il faut aimer.
D'un coeur sincère, il m'a juré
Qu'à l'aube, au jour sacré du dieu Yarilo
Devant le tzar il me mettrait des fleurs au front,
Et qu'il ferait de moi sa femme.
Snégourotchka, bientôt mon cher Mizguir
Ici viendra chercher sa fiancée
Parmi les autres filles. Mais le voici!
(Au loin se montre Mizguir avec deux serviteurs. Les Jeunes filles et Lel rentrent en scène.)

SCÈNE IV.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA, KOUPAVA, MIZGUIR, LEL, des SERVITEURS, JEUNES FILLES et JEUNES HOMMES.

(Mizguir et ses deux serviteurs entrent, ils portent des sacs.)

(Koupava court se cacher au milieu des jeunes filles.)

KOUPAVA: Jeunes filles, o mes compagnes,
Hélas voici venir l'amant qui veut me prendre
A mes parents chéris, à mon village.
Ne livrez pas votre soeur, ô mes compagnes!
Ou s'il le faut, ne la livrez pas sans rançon!

MIZGUIR: O belles jeunes filles, plus qu'à vous
Koupava m'est utile. Je n'ai personne
Pour prendre soin de moi, de ma demeure,
Et pour orner mes longs cheveux bouclés.

CHOEUR DES JEUNES FILLES: Il faut payer rançon pour conquérir la beauté Que parmi nous tu viens chercher.
Donne-nous bien vite un rouble, un demi rouble
Et Koupava t'appartient.

KOUPAVA: Snegurotchka, I am happy,
I'm happy, and would like to throw my arms around
The neck of every passerby, and shout my joy.
Listen, Snegurotchka, and share with me the joy I feel!
At dawn I gathered flowers on the hill
In the sunshine; when I saw appear
A handsome youth with long and curly hair,
His glance was kind; and well you know yourself,
That without friendship it is vain to live.
Some one day or another we must love . . . .
He swore and meant it honestly,
At dawn, the day held holy to god Yarilo,
Before the tzar he'd crown my brow with flowers,
And make me his wife.
Snegurotchka, soon my dear Mizguir
Will hasten here, seeking his betrothed
Among the other maids. Look, here he comes!
(Mizguir makes his appearance in the distance, with two servitors. The young maidens and Lel reenter.)

SCENE IV.

SNEGUROTCHKA, KOUPAVA, MIZGUIR, LEL, SERVITORS, YOUNG MAIDENS and YOUNG MEN.

(Mizguir and his two servitors enter bearing bags.)

(Koupava hastens to hide among the young maidens.)

KOUPAVA: Young maidens, my comrades dear,
Ah, here comes the lover who would bear me off
From my loving parents and my village home!
Do not yield up your sister, comrades!
Or if it must be, let there be ransom paid!

MIZGUIR: O fair young maidens, of more use than to you Koupava is to me. I have no one
To care for me and for my dwelling-place
No one to comb my long and curling hair.

CHORUS OF YOUNG MAIDENS:
He must pay ransom who would gain the beauty
Whom you come seeking in our midst.
Give us a rouble, a half a rouble, quickly,
And you shall have Koupava.

MIZGUIR: (prend de l'argent dans un sac que tient un serviteur et le donne aux jeunes filles). Voici de l'or, prenez, mes belles filles,
Je suis joyeux de vous payer rançon.
(Il leur donne un sac plein de noix et de pains d'épice.) Voici pour vous des sacs remplis d'épices, Prenez encore!
(Les jeunes filles commencent une chanson de mariage, les jeunes gens entourent Koupava.)

CHOEUR DES JEUNES FILLES:
Dans sa gloire, il marche superbe
Comme un paon, lorsqu'il fait la roue;
Mais les plumes qu'il perd sont en or.
C'est l'époux qu'a choisi Koupava.
Pour le suivre, pour le suivre
Elle est prête à fuir ses compagnes.

CHOEUR DES JEUNES GENS: Tu n'auras pas Koupava, gardons-la bien, Défendons-la, ne la donnous pas pour rien;
Ou bien chacun croira qu'il peut venir nous prendre
A son plaisir les belles filles du village.
(Ils présentent leurs chapeaux.)

MIZGUIR: (vers les jeunes gens). A vous, je veux parler d'un autre ton!

KOUPAVA: Mon doux ami, mon doux ami,
Je quitte mon village et mes parents,
Je quitte tout pour toi, mon bien aimé.
N'afflige pas Koupava, ne brise pas son coeur fidèle et tendre.
Mes chères soeurs, chantons un chant de fête
Et dans le pré dansons joyeusement!

CHOEUR DES JEUNES FILLES:
Ah, dans la plaine, ah dans la plaine
Est un tilleul;
Sous le tilleul, sous le tilleul
Est une tente.
(Mizguir et Koupava s'approchent de Snégourotchka.)

KOUPAVA: Snégourotchka, fais-moi plaisir encore;
Pour la dernière fois menons la danse!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Allez danser, quel Lel nous suive!
Je range mon fuseau et vous rejoins en hâte.
(Rentre dans son izba.)

KOUPAVA: Mon doux ami, partons, ils vont nous suivre.

MIZGUIR: Arrête! Arrête!

MIZGUIR: (taking money from a bag which a servitor holds, and giving it to the maidens). Here, take this gold, you handsome maidens,
It gladdens me to pay the ransom to you.
(He hands them a bag full of walnuts and gingerbread.)
Here are some bags of spiced cake for you,
Accept them, pray!
(The young maidens begin to sing a wedding chorus, while the young men surround Koupava.)

CHORUS OF YOUNG MAIDENS:
Filled with pride, he struts superbly,
Just like a peacock when he spreads his tail;
Yet golden are the feathers he is molting.
It is the bridegroom by Koupava chosen,
Him to follow, him to follow
She is ready to desert her comrades!

CHORUS OF YOUNG MEN: You shall not have Koupava, we'll protect her!
We'll defend her, nor yield her up for nothing,
Or everyone may think that they can come and take
Our loveliest village maids if so inclined.
(They hold out their hats.)

MIZGUIR: (to the young men.) To you, I'll speak in quite another tone!

KOUPAVA: O my dear love, my dearest love,
I leave my parents and my village home,
I leave them both for you, my well-beloved.
Bid not Koupava sorrow, nor break her heart so faithful and tender.
My dear sisters, now sing a festive chorus
And let us dance gaily in the meadow!

CHORUS OF YOUNG MAIDENS:
Ah, in the plain, ah, in the plain,
Stands a linden tree;
Beneath the linden, beneath, the linden tree
Is a tent.
(Mizguir and Koupava draw near to Snegurotchka.)

KOUPAVA: Snegurotchka, to please me, once again;
For the last time come dance with us!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Go dance then, let Lel follow us!
I'll lay my spindle down and quickly join you.
(She goes into her izba.)

KOUPAVA: My dear love, let us go, and they will follow!

MIZGUIR: O wait! Do wait!

KOUPAVA: Les filles du pays nous attendant làbas.
(Snégourotchka revient, derrière elle sortent Bobyl, et sa femme.)

MIZGUIR: Cette fillette est
Snégourotchka; mais Lel,
Qui donc est-il?

SCÈNE V.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA, KOUPAVA, MIZGUIR, LEL, BOBYL, BOBYLICKA.

KOUPAVA: Snégourotchka, sans Lel, serait bien triste.

MIZGUIR: Crois-tu vraiment? Avec Mizguir, je pense, Elle aurait plus de joie encore.

KOUPAVA: Mais moi, Mizguir?

MIZGUIR: Eh bien, que Lel te prenne!

KOUPAVA: Mon bien aimé, je suis à toi,
La tombe seule peut nous séparer.

MIZGUIR: Va-t-en où tu voudras!
Pour moi, je reste ici.

BOBYL: Je te salue!

KOUPAVA: D'un flot de lave ardente
Aveugle mes deux yeux,
Et sous la lourde meule
Écrase-moi le coeur.
Alors, aime une autre femme, car mes yeux
Ne pourront plus voir ton crime,
Et mon coeur ne pourra sentir sa peine!
Oh! rends-moi, Snégourotchka cruelle,
Rends-moi mon bien aimé!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Koupava, ma pauvre âme, et toi, son fol ami,
Allez en paix, Snégourotchka ne veut plus vous connaître.
(Elle vent s'en aller.)

MIZGUIR: (la retenant). Oh non!
Snégourotchka, demeure,
Dis, quel est ton heureux amant?

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Personne!

MIZGUIR: Alors ce sera moi!
(À Koupava.)
Vois-tu là-bas, Koupava, le soleil
Qui déjà descend dans l'ombre et va s'éteindre?
Peut-il se rallumer au ciel?

KOUPAVA: Soleil couché n'a plus de flamme!

MIZGUIR: Amour défunt ne peut renaître!
En vain tu veux le ranimer, Koupava!

KOUPAVA: Malheureuse, malheureuse!

KOUPAVA: The village girls are waiting for us yonder.
(Snegurotchka returns, Bobyl, and Bobylicka coming behind her.)

MIZGUIR: This little maid is Snegurotchka; but Lel, Say, who is he?

SCENE V.

SNEGUROTCHKA, KOUPAVA, MIZGUIR, LEL, BOBYL, BOBYLICKA.

KOUPAVA: Without Lel, Snegurotchka will be very sad.

MIZGUIR: You think, so, eh? With Mizguir, I am sure
That she would be far happier.

KOUPAVA: But Mizguir, what of me?

MIZGUIR: O well, then Lel shall have you!

KOUPAVA: My well-beloved, I am your own;
The grave alone can part us.

MIZGUIR: Go where you choose!
For my part, here I stay.

BOBYL: I greet you!

KOUPAVA: A flood of burning tears
Now blinds my eyes,
The mill-stone of his scorn
Crushes this heart of mine.
Go, love another woman, since my eyes
No longer can behold the wrong you do;
Nor my heart feel the agony you cause!
Oh, Snegurotchka, cruel one,
Return to me my well-beloved!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Koupava, hapless friend, and you, mad love of hers,
Depart in peace, Snegurotchka would no longer know you.
(She endeavors to leave them.)

MIZGUIR: (holding her back).
Ah, no! Snegurotchka, remain.
Tell me what is your happy lover's name?

SNEGUROTCHKA: I have none!

MIZGUIR: Then I shall be your lover!
(To Koupava.)
Look yonder, Koupava, do you see the sun
Already seek the shadows, soon to vanish?
Will he again illumine the skies?

KOUPAVA: Suns that have set have lost their flame!

MIZGUIR: A dead love is not born again!
Vainly you would rekindle it, Koupava!

KOUPAVA: Misfortune is my fate!

SCÈNE VI.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA, MIZGUIR, BOBYL, LEL, KOUPAVA, BERENDEYS et FEMMES DES BERENDEYS.

KOUPAVA: (revenant). Aidez-moi dans ma détresse!

CHOEUR DU PEUPLE: O malheureuse amie, comme il t'outrage!
Ah! quel indigne outrage, quel indigne outrage!
Ah! quel affront pour nos jeunes filles!

KOUPAVA: Dis-moi, cruel, devant tout notre peuple,
Ton coeur trahissait-il la foi jurée
Dans le temps même où tu disais m'aimer?
Ou ce seul jour t'a-t-il rendu parjure?
Réponds!

MIZGUIR: J'ai pu t'aimer jadis, j'en aime une autre:
Snégourotchka.

CHOEUR DU PEUPLE: Sa lâche trahison nous offense toutes,
O honte pour nous toutes!
Jamais chez nous n'advint malheur semblable!

MIZGUIR: Tes yeux au fond des miens plongeaient
Sans crainte; ta voix était ardente,
Et je pensais en te voyant si libre
Qu'un jour quelque autre amant
Prendrait ma place.

KOUPAVA: Ah! mon père, Ah! mon père!
Qui donc voudra défendre moi?

CHOEUR DU PEUPLE: Le juste protecteur de ceux qui souffrent
C'est notre tzar. Va voir le tzar, Koupava!

KOUPAVA: Mizguir! ô désespoir! ô désespoir!
(Elle tombe évanouie, Lel la soutient.)

FIN DE L'ACTE PREMIER.

IIE ACTE.

Une antichambre ouverte dans le palais de Berendey. Au fond, derrière la balustrade de la galerie, on voit les sommets des arbres, ainsi que des tours et des balcons en bois, ornés de découpures.

SCENE VI.

SNEGUROTCHKA, MIZGUIR, BOBYL, LEL, KOUPAVA, BERENDEYS and WIVES of the BERENDEYS.

KOUPAVA: (reenters). Aid me in my distress!

CHORUS OF THE PEOPLE: O hapless friend, how he has outraged you!
What an unworthy insult, what an unworthy insult!
What an affront for our young maidens!

KOUPAVA: Tell me, cruel one, before all the people,
Did your heart then betray the faith you pledged
At the same time when you declared you loved me?
Or this one day, has it made you a perjurer?
Answer!

MIZGUIR: I might have loved you always, now
I love another;
Snegurotchka!

CHORUS OF THE PEOPLE: His cowardly betrayal insults us all!
O shame we all must suffer!
We have not yet suffered such a misfortune!

MIZGUIR: Your eyes plunged into my eyes' very depths,
All unafraid, you voice was ardent;
And I thought, seeing you thus lack restraint.
Some day some other lover
Might take my place!

KOUPAVA: Ah, my father, ah, my father!
Who will defend me?

CHORUS OF THE PEOPLE: The just protector of all those who suffer
Is our tzar. Go see the tzar, Koupava!

KOUPAVA: Mizguir! O wretched fate! My heart despairs!
(She loses consciousness, Lel supporting her.)

END OF ACT ONE.

ACT II.

An open anteroom in the palace of Berendey. At the back, behind the balustrade of the gallery, treetops as well as towers and wooden balconies, ornamented with carvings, are visible.

SCÈNE I.

Le Tzar Berendey est assis sur une chaise dorée et s'occupe à peindre en couleurs une des colonnes. Un peu plus loin on voit des aveugles joueurs de gousli avec leurs instruments; aux portes de la galerie se tiennent les pages du tzar.

CHOEUR DES AVEUGLES: La voix prophétique et vibrante des guzzlas Chante, ô notre tzar, ta grandeur et ta gloire.
Nos yeux éteints sont baissés vers la terre,
Dans la nuit sans aurore, ils sont clos pour toujours.
Gloire, gloire à jamais au sage tzar,
Au protecteur de la paix!
Nous chanterons sans cesse sur nos guzzlas,
O père et tzar, ta grandeur et ta gloire!
(Le Tzar remercie les aveugles d'un signe, on les emmène.)

SCÈNE II.

LE TZAR, BERMIATE, UN PAGE, puis KOUPAVA.

UN PAGE: (entrant). Une fillette demande
En pleurant qu'on lui
Donne audience.

LE TZAR: Pour les enfants
De mon peuple, ma porte
Jamais n'est fermée!

SCÈNE III.

LE TZAR, BERMIATE, KOUPAVA, DES PAGES.
(Le Page introduit Koupava.)

KOUPAVA: O tzar, mon père.

LE TZAR: (la relevant avec bonté). Parle, j'écoute.

KOUPAVA: Puis-je tout dire?

LE TZAR: Il faut tout dire!

KOUPAVA: Daigne répondre:
Quand un garçon vous regarde et vous parle d'amour,
Quand on croit avec lui vivre heureuse,
Et quand on l'aime enfin, est-on coupable?

LE TZAR: Non, chère fille.

KOUPAVA: C'est mon seul crime!
Puis-je tout dire?

LE TZAR: Il faut tout dire!

KOUPAVA: Pour lui j'avais oublié tout l'univers,
L'amour le plus tendre emplissait ma vie et mon âme.
Dans la forêt profonde nos coeurs étaient heureux,
Les yeux dans les yeux, nous restions en extase.

LE TZAR: Mon coeur est ému de ta peine sincère.

KOUPAVA: Grand tzar, mon père, dis-moi,
Le bonheur n'est-il donc qu'un vain rêve?

LE TZAR: O simple et pauvre enfant!

KOUPAVA: O grand tzar, mon père, dans la prairie . . .

LE TZAR: Parle, j'écoute.

KOUPAVA: J'étais allée, emmenant mes compagnes,
Dès que Mizguir parmi nous aperçoit
La perfide Snégourotchka.

LE TZAR: Achève, achève!

KOUPAVA: Auprès de cette voleuse de coeurs il s'élance;
Il m'oublie, il me raille, il m'insulte;
La force abandonne mon corps, qui se glace;
Soudain comme tombe une gerbe de blé
Je chancelle; ah! regarde, et je tombe,
Je tombe, je tombe sans vie . . .
(Elle veut tomber, le Tzar la soutient.)

LE TZAR: Allez que l'on saisisse dans sa demeure
Ce vil félon, sur l'heure amenez-le Devant son tzar. Et puis que l'on appelle
Du haut des tours mon peuple bien aimé,
Sans plus tarder qu'il vienne au tribunal.
(Il s'en va dans ses appartements.)
(Deux hérauts montent sur les pignons.)

2E HÉRAUT: (d'une voix sonore).
Ecoutez ma parole!
Boyards très vaillants,
Très puissants et très nobles,
Boyards majestueux,
Aux longues barbes fleuries,
Seigneurs de beaux châteaux
Et de serfs aux pieds nus;
Et de meutes rapides!

1ER HÉRAUT: Tous entendez l'appel de votre tzar,
Connaissez sa volonté souveraine!

LES DEUX HÉRAUTS: Venez vers le trône magnifique,
Venez vers le trône sublime
Du palais où votre tzar vous appelle,
Venez à la justice du tzar,
Venez tous au tribunal de sa justice,
A la justice!
(Ils descendent des pignons.)
(Des appartements intérieurs sortent des courtisans, des femmes de boyards, des pages; par la porte

SCENE I.

The Tzar Berendey is seated in a gilded chair, occupied with painting one of the columns in colors. Somewhat further on may be seen blind gusli-players with their instruments; the Tzar's pages stand at the doors opening on the gallery.

CHORUS OF BLIND GUSLI-PLAYERS: The vibrant and prophetic voice of the gusli Sings, O tzar of ours, your grandeur and your glory!
Our sightless eyes are turned toward the earth,
They are closed forever in a night that knows no dawn.
Glory, glory through the ages, to the wise tzar,
To the protector of the peace!
Ceaselessly upon our guslis we will sing,
O sire and tzar, your grandeur and your glory!
(The Tzar thanks the blind men with a gesture, and they are led off.)

SCENE II.

THE TZAR, BERMIATE, A PAGE, later KOUPAVA

A PAGE: (entering).
A young girl prays
In tears, that she
Be given an audience.

THE TZAR: To the children
Of my people, my door
Is never closed!

SCENE III.

THE TZAR, BERMIATE, KOUPAVA, PAGES.
(The Page introduces Koupava.)

KOUPAVA: O tzar, my father!

THE TZAR: (raising her, kindly). Speak, I am listening.

KOUPAVA: May I tell all?

THE TZAR: You must tell all!

KOUPAVA: Condescend to reply:
When a youth looks at one and speaks to one of love,
When one believes that one could live with him happilly,
When, finally, one loves him, is one at fault?

THE TZAR: No, my dear daughter.

KOUPAVA: It is my sole crime.
May I tell all?

THE TZAR: You must tell all!

KOUPAVA: For him I had forgetten all the universe,
The tenderest love possessed me, life and soul.
In the deep forest our two hearts were happy,
Lost in each other's gaze, we were in ecstasy.

THE TZAR: My heart is moved by this your honest grief.

KOUPAVA: Great tzar, my father, tell me,
Happiness, is it nothing but an empty dream?

THE TZAR: O simple, unfortunate child!

KOUPAVA: O great tzar, to the meadow . . . .

THE TZAR: Speak, I am listening.

KOUPAVA: I had gone, taking my comrades with me,
And there no sooner had Mizguir seen among us Treacherous Snegurotchka . . .

THE TZAR: Go on, go on!

KOUPAVA: Than he rushed up to this fair thief of hearts;
Forgets me, mocks me and insults me, too!
All strength forsakes my body, which grows cold;
Suddenly, as falls a sheaf of grain
I totter; ah, look at me, I fall,
I fall, I fall, my senses flee . . . .
(She is about to fall, the Tzar supports her.)

THE TZAR: Go, and straightway seize within his home
This felon vile! Let him be brought at once Before his tzar. And then let there be called
From all the towers my people well-beloved,
That they make haste to come to the tribunal.
(He goes off into his own apartments.)
(Two heralds mount the gables.)

SECOND HERALD: (sonorously.)
Hark to my words!
Most valiant boyars,
Most powerful and noble,
Majestic boyars,
With your long, flowering beards,
Lords of fair castles
And of barefoot serfs!

FIRST HERALD: Hear the summons of your tzar,
Know the expression of his sovereign will!

THE TWO HERALDS: Draw near this magnificent throne,
Draw near that throne sublime
Of the palace where your tzar summons you!
Come to the courtyard of the tzar,
Come all unto his tribunal of justice,
Where he gives judgement!
(They descend from the gables.)
(From the inner rooms of the palace issue forth courtiers, wives of extérieure et l'escalier pénètre le peuple, entre autres Lel. On amène Mizguir. Bermiate place les courtisans. A la fin de la procession paraît le Tzar Berendey lui-même.)

SCÈNE V.

LE TZAR, BERMIATE, LEL, KOUPAVA, MIZGUIR, femmes des boyards, hérauts, pages, peuple.

LE TZAR: Enfants, merci! où donc est le coupable?

BERMIATE: Grand tzar, Mizguir attend ton jugement.

LE TZAR: Son crime est-il connu de tous?

CHOEUR DU PEUPLE: Oui, certes!

LE TZAR: Et toi, reconnais-tu ta faute?

MIZGUIR: Oui, tzar!

LE TZAR: Parlez, à quoi faut-il fixer sa peine?

BERMIATE: Commande-lui de prendre Koupava pour femme!

CHOEUR DU PEUPLE: O tzar, qu'il lui demande sa grâce
Ou bien qu'il soit puni!

LE TZAR: Mizguir, veux-tu lui demander ta grâce?
Veux-tu qu'elle soit ta femme?

MIZGUIR: Mizguir n'a plus qu'un seul amour dans l'âme, Snégourotchka.

KOUPAVA: Sublime tzar,
Mon coeur n'a plus que du mépris pour lui.

LE TZAR: Nous laissons
Aux augustes dieux le soin de la vengeance.
Et c'est pourquoi, moi juge, je condamne
Mizguir à s'exiler de sa patrie,
Qu'il vive dans les bois déserts avec les loups
Aussi cruels que lui; leur coeur sauvage Comprendra ton coeur, Mizguir!

MIZGUIR: Je n'aurai pas un mot pour me défendre.
Pourtant, ô tzar, si tu voyais jamais
Snégourotchka paraître—
(Entrent Snégourotchka, Bobyl et sa femme.)

CHOEUR DU PEUPLE: Voilà Snégourotchka avec Bobyl et Bobylicka!

SCÈNE VI.

LE TZAR, BERMIATE, KOUPAVA, LEL, MIZGUIR, SNÉGOUROTCHKA, BOBYL, sa femme, femmes des boyards, pages, peuple.

the boyars, pages; through the outer door and by way of the staircase the people enter, Lel among them. Mizguir is led in. Bermiate orders the ranks of the Courtiers. At the end of the procession appears Tzar Berendey himself.)

SCENE V.

THE TZAR, BERMIATE, LEL, KOUPAVA, MIZGUIR, wives of the boyards, heralds, pages, the people.

THE TZAR: I thank you, children!
The culprit, where is he?

BERMIATE: Great tzar, Mizguir awaits your judgment.

THE TZAR: And is his crime known unto all?

CHORUS OF THE PEOPLE: Yes, it is known!

THE TZAR: And you, do you admit your fault?

MIZGUIR: Yes, tzar!

THE TZAR: Speak, how shall he be punished?

BERMIATE: Command he take Koupava for his wife!

CHORUS OF THE PEOPLE: O tzar, let him implore her to forgive,
Or else let him be punished!

THE TZAR: Mizguir, would you ask her to forgive you?
Do you wish her for wife?

MIZGUIR: Mizguir has but one love within his soul,
Snegurotchka.

KOUPAVA: O tzar sublime,
There is nothing but scorn for him now in my heart!

THE TZAR: Then we will leave
The task of vengeance to the august gods.
Therefore do I, his judge, condemn
Mizguir to exile from his native land;
Let him live with the wolves in forest wastes,
Wolves cruel as himself; their savage hearts
Will understand your own, Mizguir!

MIZGUIR: I have no word to say in my defense;
And yet, O tzar, if you had ever seen
Snegurotchka appear—
(Enter Snegurotchka, Bobyl and his wfe.)

CHORUS OF THE PEOPLE: There comes Snegurotchka, with Bobyl and Bobylicka!

SCENE VI.

THE TZAR, BERMIATE, KOUPAVA, LEL, MIZGUIR, SNEGUROTCHKA, BOBYL, BOBYLICKA, wives of the boyars, pages, the people.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: (regardant le palais). Quel beau palais! Combien tout est splendide!
Regarde, mère, tout brille, tout rayonne, regarde!
(S'assied par terre et examine la fleur peinte sur une colonne.)

BOBYLICKA: N'ai-je pas la mine d'une dame?
Voit-on mon beau bonnet?

LES FEMMES DES BOYARDS: Bobylicka! voyez-la! regardez son beau bonnet!
Un bonnet avec des cornes de rubans et une perle!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: On t'admire, on te regarde.

LE TZAR: Cette beauté nous peut servir, Bermiate, Pour apaiser Yarilo.

BOBYLICKA: Dis donc bonjour!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Pardon! je vous en prie!
(Elle salue.)
Bonjour, mes bons amis, à tous bonjour!

BOBYLICKA: Les femmes des boyards sont toutes là,
Mais mon bonnet est le plus beau.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Le tien est plus beau!
Qui donc est la? Là-bas
Avec sa robe et sa ceinture d'or,
Et cette longue barbe toute blanche?

BOBYL: Mais c'est le tzar! Vers lui va-t'en sans crainte, Incline-toi, mignonne.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Salut, ô tzar!

LE TZAR: Nature auguste et douce, pouvoir sacré, divin mystère,
Mon coeur joyeux adore les dons charmants que tu nous fais
Et tes secrets desseins et ta bonté.
Loin de tous les yeux
Au fond du bois sauvage pour nous tu fais éclore
Cette humble et fraîche fleur, ce blanc muguet;
Tu fais pleuvoir sur elle les pleurs d'argent de l'aube,
Et la fleur exhale un si subtil et si profond parfum
Qu'il charme tous les sens et trouble l'âme!
Snégourotchka, voici le temps venu,
Choisis l'époux que tu désires!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Qui donc choisir, ô tzar! Je l'ignore!

LE TZAR: Ton coeur te parle!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Mon coeur n'a pas parlé.

SNEGUROTCHKA: (looking about the palace). How fair a palace! How splendid all things are!
Look, mother of mine, all shines and sparkles, look!
(She crouches on the ground to examine a flower painted on a column.)

BOBYLICKA: Do I not look like a lady?
Do they see my handsome bonnet?

WIVES OF THE BOYARS: Bobylicka, see her! Look at her handsome bonnet!
It is one with horns of ribbon and a pearl!

SNEGUROTCHKA: They admire and look at you.

THE TZAR: This beauty could be useful to us, Bermiate,
To appease Yarilo.

BOBYLICKA: Come, say 'good day!'

SNEGUROTCHKA: Forgive me, I beg of you! (She bows.)
Good day, dear friends, good day to all!

BOBYLICKA: The wives of the boyars all are here;
Yet my bonnet is of all the most handsome.

SNEGUROTCHKA: Yours is the handsomest!
Yet who is that? Over there,
In a robe with golden girdle,
And that long beard of white?

BOBYL: Why that's the tzar! Go to him withour fear,
Bow to him, little one!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Greetings, O tzar!

THE TZAR: Solemn and kindly nature, O holy power and mystery divine,
My heart rejoicing worships all the wondrous gifts you give to us;
Your hidden purposes and goodness.
Far from the sight of all,
Deep in the savage woods you bade for us unfold
This fresh and humble flower, this little white mayflower.
You made dawn weep over her his silvery tears of dew;
So subtle and profound a perfume this flower exhales,
It charms each sense and stirs the very soul!
Snegurotchka, the time has come,
So choose the bridegroom whom you may desire!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Whom shall I choose, O tzar! I know not!

THE TZAR: Your heart will tell you!

SNEGUROTCHKA: But my heart has not spoken.

LE TZAR: Sois sans crainte,
Car l'âge enfant, rapproche le vieillard
De la jeune fille. Pourquoi rougiraitelle
Devant des yeux éteint et paternels?
Dis-moi donc tout, quel est celui que tu attends
Le soir, devant le seuil, et frémissante?
Celui qui vient toujours trop tard, celui
Que tu reçois avec un cri de joie,
Avec des rires et des pleurs et des baisers?
Qui donc? dis-moi, ma fille!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Mais personne.

BERMIATE: Son coeur candide ignore encore l'amour.

LE TZAR: Ignorer l'armour alors qu'on est si belle?
C'est une offense au grand Yarilo,
Et c'est pourquoi le dieu s'irrite contre nous.
Celui qui fera naître avant l'aurore
L'amour au coeur glacé de cette enfant—
Je le jure ici—avec un don royal
La prendra pour femme!

BERMIATE: Pas un qui dise mot!

LES FEMMES DES BOYARDS: O notre tzar! Parmi les jeunes hommes
D'ici, il n'en est qu'un qui sache
Troubler, d'un mot un coeur de femme
Et l'émouvoir d'amour, c'est Lel!

LE TZAR: Quel grand honneur pour toi, berger!

LEL: J'embraserai son âme de mes ardeurs,
Et grâce au Dieu Soleil, au maître tout puissant, Elle aimera.

MIZGUIR: Illustre tzar! Surseois à mon exil,
Et, je t'en fais serment, c'est moi
Qui gagnerai l'amour de ce coeur vierge.

LE TZAR: Mizguir et Lel, j'accepte vos promesses;
Je prends espoir et j'attendrai sans crainte
L'arrêt du sort. Dans la forêt sacrée
Allons ce soir tous ensemble; vos chants
Et votre danse charmeront les heures.
La douce nuit de printemps passera comme un songe.
Et demain, quand paraîtra la pâle aurore,
Demain, avec le peuple entier j'irai
A ta rencontre, soleil, ô dieu de flamme!

THE TZAR: Be not afraid,
For age, my child, it brings the old man near
To the young maiden. Why should you blush
Before these faded and paternal eyes?
At night, upon the doorstep, tremblingly,
The one who ever, ever comes too late, the one
Whom your lips welcome with a cry of joy,
With laughter and with kisses and with tears?
Who is it? Tell me, daughter!

SNEGUROTCHKA: There is no one.

BERMIATE: Her candid heart as yet knows nothing of love.

THE TZAR: She knows nothing of love when one is fair as she?
It is an offense to Yarilo the great!
Because of that the god is angry with us.
He who before another dawn will wake
Love in the frozen heart of this fair child
I vow and swear—with a most royal gift
Shall take her for his wife!

BERMIATE: There's no one says a word!

WIVES OF THE BOYARDS: O lord and tzar! Among the youths
Of this place there's only one who knows
With but a word to move a woman's heart,
And waken it to love, it is Lel!

THE TZAR: How great an honor waits you, shepherd!

LEL: My ardent passion shall embrace her soul,
And thanks to the sun-god, our lord omnipotent,
She too shall love!

MIZGUIR: Illustrious tzar! Recall my banishment,
And this I swear to you, I will gain the love of that young virgin heart!

THE TZAR: Mizguir and Lel, your promise I accept; Hopeful am I, and without fear will wait for What fate decrees. Into the sacred wood
This evening we shall all together go; your songs
And dances shall while away the hours.
The sweet spring night will pass as does a dream,
And on the morrow, when the first dawn pales,
Tomorrow, with the people, I myself
Shall go to meet you, O sun-god, lord of flame!

CHOEUR DU PEUPLE: Honneur et gloire à toi,
Très puissant et sage tzar,
O père de ton peuple!
Maître bienfaisant,
O très sage tzar,
Pour nous rendre heureux,
Règne à tout jamais,
Très puissant et sage tzar!

FIN DE L'ACTE DEUXIÈME.

IIIE ACTE.

Vaste clairière dans la forêt; à gauche et à droite, une épaisse futaie qui forme comme un mur derrière les buissons. Au loin, entre les arbustes, on voit de riches tentes. Le soleil achève de se coucher.

SCÈNE I.

Les jeunes Berendeys font des rondes. Les juenes gens et les jeunes filles ont des couronnes de fleurs sur leurs têtes. Les vieux et les vieilles sont assis par groupes sous les buissons, buvant la cervoise et mangeant des pains d'épice. Dans la première ronde se trouve Koupava, au centre de cette ronde Lel et Snégourotchka. Mizguir ne prenant aucune part aux jeux tantôt se montre parmi la foule, tantôt s'en va dans la forêt. Bobyl danse en jouant de la musette. Sa femme et quelques voisins sont assis autour et boivent de la bière. Le Tzar et sa suite regardent de loin le peuple qui s'amuse.

JEUNES GENS ET JEUNES FILLES, SNÉGOUROTCHKA, LEL: Ah, dans la plaine est un tilleul!
Sous le tilleul se dresse une blanche tente,
Et sous la tente est une fille.
Dans la prairie, Ah! la belle
A cueilli des fleurs, en a fait une couronne.
Pour qui la couronne? heureux qui la portera!
La couronne est pour l'aimé!
(Elle met la couronne sur la tête de Lel.)

BOBYL: (danse et imite le castor).
Un castor
Dans l'eau se baigne
Et barbote,
Aï! Loeli, Loeli, Loeli!
Puis hors du ruisseau
Faisant sa toilette,
Monte sur un rocher.
Aï! Loeli, Loeli, Loeli!
Du haut du rocher
Partout il regarde,
S'il ne vient personne.
Aï! Loeli, Loeli, Loeli!
Les chasseurs joyeux
Et leurs chiens rapides

CHORUS OF THE PEOPLE: Honor and glory be yours,
Most mighty and sagacious tzar!
O father of your people!
Master beneficent!
O tzar most wise!
That we may be happy.
O live forever,
Most mighty and sagacious tzar!

END OF ACT SECOND.

ACT III.

A vast glade in the forest; to the left and to the right a thick growth of timber which rises like a wall behind the brush. In the distance, among the bushes, may be seen splendid tents. The sun is about to set.

SCENE I.

The young Berendeys are dancing their rounds. The youths and maidens wear crowns of flowers upon their heads. The old men and women are seated in groups among the bushes, drinking beer and eating gingerbread. Among the first group of dancers is Koupava, in the middle of the group Lel and Snegurotchka, Mizguir, who takes no part in the merriment, now shows himself amid the crowd, now moves off toward the forest. Bobyl plays the shepherd pipe while he dances. Bobylicka and some of her neighbors are seated nearby, drinking beer. The Tzar and his suite watch from a distance as the people amuse themselves.

YOUNG MEN and YOUNG WOMEN, SNEGUROTCHKA, LEL: Ah, a linden tree grows on the plain!
Beneath the linden tree a white tent rises,
Beneath the tent stands a girl.
In the prairie, ah, the fair one
Has gathered flowers and made a crown of them.
For whom is the crown? Happy the youth who wears it!
The crown is for her well-beloved!
(Snegurotchka places the crown on the head of Lel.)

BOBYL: (dancing and imitating a beaver). A beaver Bathes in the water,
And ducks about,
Ai, Loeli, Loeli, Loeli!
Then leaves the stream
And climbs a rock,
And dried himself.
Ai, Loeli, Loeli, Loeli!
From the top of the rock
He looks all around.
To see if anyone is coming.
Ai, Loeli, Loeli, Loeli!
The merry huntsmen
And their swift hounds

Traquent le castor
Aï! Loeli, Loeli, Loeli!
Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah! Loeli, Loeli, Loeli, Aï!

LE TZAR: (entrant avec sa suite dans l'avant-scène). Salut à vous, ô mes enfants. Je dis à tous merci, Merci de vos chansons, merci de votre danse.
Et j'ai le coeur joyeux de votre joie!
Mais nous voulons encore un peu rire,
Bouffons, dansez et faites tous vos tours!
(Les bouffons accourent, ils dansent.)

LEL: (jouant de sa corne). Le nuage a dit un jour au tonnerre:
Gronde! Gronde! Moi je verse la pluie
Et la terre sera rafraîchit;
Et les fleurs seront heureuses par nous.
Les fillettes cueilleront la framboise,
Et les jeunes hommes les suivront.
Lel, mon Lel, mon Loeli, Loeli, Loeli! Lel!
Dans le bois vient à passer un vieillard
Qui voyant les jeunes filles leur dit:
Mes enfants, que faites-vous à tant pleurer?
La méchante qui se cache là-bas
Ne voundra jamais répondre à vos cris?
Voyez-la qui rit de vous dans les buissons!
O mon Lel, mon Lel, Loeli, Loeli, Lel!

LE TZAR: Merci, beau Lel! Enfants, cette histoire,
Je n'en crois rien! Parmi ces jeunes filles
Choisis la plus charmante à ton avis,
Conduis-la-moi, et que sur l'heure même
Elle te donne devant le peuple entier
Par un baiser le prix de ta chanson!
(Lel se dirige vers les jeunes filles. Snégourotchka met sa parure en ordre. En passant devant elle, Lel s'arrête un instant comme indécis.)

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Prends-moi, beau Lel! prends-moi, prends-moi, cher Lel!
(Lel passe et va plus loin vers Koupava. Snégourotchka, en larmes, se sauve dans les buissons. Lel choisit Koupava, la conduit à travers toute la scène vers le Tzar Berendey et s'approchant d'elle l'embrasse.)

LE TZAR: Allons, amis, la nuit s'avance:
Venez prendre place au festin,
Et tous ensemble attendons le dieu Yarilo.
Hâtons-nous.

Are trailing the beaver.
Ai, Loeli, Loeli, Loeli!
Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, Loeli, Loeli, Ai!

THE TZAR: (entering the foreground with his suite). I greet you, O my children! I give thanks to all,
Thanks for your songs, and for your merry dance.
My heart rejoices in the joy you feel!
Yet you would like to laugh a little longer,
Buffoons, now dance and show the tricks you know!
(The Buffoons hurry up, they dance.)

LEL: (blowing his horn). One day the cloud said to the thunder:
Growl, growl. It is I who pour down rain
That the earth may be refreshed;
And the flowers may be happy, thanks to us.
And the young men shall follow them.
Lel, my Lel, my Loeli, Loeli, Loeli, Lel!
Through the woods an old man slowly passes
Who, seeing the young maidens says to them:
My children, tell me why so hard you're weeping?
The naughty girl now hiding from you yonder,
Will she not answer to the calls you utter?
Behold her laughing at you amid the bushes!
O my Lel, my Lel, Loeli, Loeli, Loeli, Lel!

THE TZAR: Thanks, handsome Lel! Children, this story
I disbelieve! Among the fair young maidens
Pick out the one you think most charming,
Lead her before me, and this very moment
Let her, before the people here assembled
Give a kiss to pay you for your song!
(Lel moves toward the young girls. Snegurotchka arranges her hair. In passing before her, Lel stops a moment as though undecided.)

SNEGUROTCHKA: Take me, handsome Lel! Take me, take me, dear Lel!
(Lel passes her by and goes on to Koupava. Snegurotchka, in tears, conceals herself in the bushes. Lel chooses Koupava, and leads her across the entire stage to the Tzar Berendey; then drawing her to him, embraces her.)

THE TZAR: Come, my friends, night closes around us;
Come, take your part now in the festival,
While together we wait for the god Yarilo.

Mes chers enfants, je fais des voeux pour votre joie!
(Il sort avec sa suite.)

CHOEUR DU PEUPLE: Et que la joie emplisse aussi ton âme!
Allons, allons voir le festin du tzar!
(Tous sortent peu à peu. Nuit. La scène est vide.)

SCÈNE II.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA et MIZGUIR, puis le FAUNE.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: (entre). Comment, cher Lel, as-tu le coeur si dur
Pour Snégourotchka, la pauvre orpheline?
N'est-elle pas jolie? Oui, certes!
Et toi, tu prends Koupava, tu la mènes au tzar, Tu l'embrasse! Elle est donc plus belle,
Elle est donc plus belle, hélas! que moi?
Mon gentil Lel, écoute-moi!
Et la fille de neige un jour aussi te chérira!
Viens, donne-moi la main, allons ensemble
Voir le soleil levant surgir de l'ombre!
(Elle ôte sa couronne.)
Et je suis seule et Lel déjà m'oublie,
Il me délaisse, il est auprès d'une autre.
(Commence à chanter, pensive.)
Et ce n'est pas pour me plaire,
Non, ce n'est pas pour me plaire,
Hélas, qu'il chantera ses chansons.

MIZGUIR: (entre). Snégourotchka, je t'ai longtemps cherchée!
(Il la prend par la main.)

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: (avec effroi). Non, non, va-t'en!

MIZGUIR: Ah! dis-moi le mot d'espoir qui fait revivre!
A genoux, tu voi, je t'en supplie encore,
Ah! serai-je un jour aimé de toi? Réponds!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: 'Joyaux et richesses tu peux les garder pour toi,
Mon pauvre coeur ne vaut pas tant de choses,
Mais il n'est pas à vendre, pour lui
Je ne veux rien qu'un peu d'amour,
Mais non le tien, Mizguir!

MIZGUIR: Je suis ton maître!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Pitié, pitié! A moi, à moi, beau Lel!
Accoure me sauver, beau Lel!

MIZGUIR: Si Lel t'entend, qu'il vienne!
Mais il viendra trop tard pour te sauver.
(Snégourotchka s'efforce de se dégager. Le faune apparaît.)

Let us make haste!
My children dear, I pray that joy attend you!
(Off, with his suite.)

CHORUS OF THE PEOPLE: May joy fill your soul as well!
Come, we will see our kind tzar's festival!
(Little by little, they go off. It is night. The stage is empty.)

SCENE II.

SNEGUROTCHKA and MIZGUIR, then the FAUN.

SNEGUROTCHKA: (enters). How is it, dear Lel, your heart is so cold
To Snegurotchka, the poor orphan girl?
Is she not pretty? Yes, indeed!
Yet you, you choose Koupava, lead her to the tzar,
And kiss her. She must be handsomer,
She must be handsomer, alas, than I?
My handsome Lel, listen to me!
The daughter of the snow will love you too, someday!
Come, give me your hand, and let us go together
To see the rising sun break from the shades!
(She takes off her crown.)
But I am alone, by Lel already I'm forgotten,
He abandons me, he is with another.
(She begins to sing, pensively.)
Ah, it is not to please me,
No, it is not to please me,
that he sings his songs.

MIZGUIR: (entering). Snegurotchka, long have I looked for you!
(He seizes her hand.)

SNEGUROTCHKA: (terrified). No, no, go away!

MIZGUIR: Ah, speak the word which will rekindle my hope!
Upon my knees, look at me, I beg that you will say it!
Ah, shall I be loved by you someday? Reply!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Your jewels and your wealth keep for yourself,
For my poor heart is not worth so much treasure;
Yet it is not for sale, my heart,
It only craves a little bit of love,
But not your love, Mizguir!

MIZGUIR: I am your master!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Mercy, mercy!
O save me, my handsome Lel!
Hasten to save me, Handome Lel!

MIZGUIR: If Lel should hear you, let him come!
Yet he would come too late to save you now.
(Snegurotchka struggles to release herself. The Faun appears.)

LE FAUNE: (enserrant Mizguir par derrière). Arrête! arrête! attends un peu, Mizguir!
(Snégourotchka se dégage et court à travers la clairière pour se cacher dans la forêt.)
(Le faune se transforme en une souche desséchée. Mizguir veut courir à la poursuite de Snégourotchka, une forêt surgit de terre et l'arrête. Il s'efforce de traverser l'épaisseur des arbres.)

LE FAUNE: (apparaît de nouveau). Au fond du bois poursuis encor son ombre!
(La vision de Snégourotchka apparaît de l'autre côté et appelle Mizguir.)

MIZGUIR: C'est toi, c'est toi, je t'ai revue,
C'est toi, partout je veux te suivre.

LE FAUNE: Le clair soleil peut seul chasser ton rêve.
(Il disparaît sous terre.)
(La clairière reprend son aspect premier. Lel entre.)

SCÈNE IV.

LEL, puis KOUPAVA, plus tard SNÉGOUROTCHKA.

KOUPAVA: (en voyant Lel se jette vers lui). Enfin je te retrouve, toi que j'aime, Mon doux ami, mon Lel, ma seule joie!
Je sens mon coeur renaître, tu m'as sauvée
Du plus cruel affront et de la honte,
Tu m'as rendu le droit de vivre fière,
Tu m'as faite par ton baiser l'égale des heureuses!

LEL: Je savais bien quel coeur m'allait soumettre
Ce doux baiser, ma belle, bien aimée;
Sur tes doux yeux mes yeux ravis se posent,
Enfin mon âme trouve son refuge!
(Snégourotchka se montre entre les buissons et observe Lel et Koupava.)

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: (avec désespoir). O mère, on m'a trompée!
O mère, Ô Fée Printemps,
Je pleure et je supplie;
Je veux aimer!
O donne-moi, ma mère,
Un coeur comme aux autres filles!
Je veux aimer! Je veux aimer!
O mère, ô Fée Printemps!
Je veux aimer ou bien je veux mourir!
(Elle sort en courant.)

FIN DE L'ACTE TROISIÈME.

THE FAUN: (clasping Mizguir from behind). Wait, wait, now wait a bit, Mizguir!
(Snegurotchka disengages herself, and runs across the glade to hide in the forest.)
(The faun changes himself into a dead tree. Mizguir attempts to pursue Snegurotchka, but a forest springs up from out of the ground and stops him. He endeavors to make his way through the thickset trees.)

THE FAUN: (reappears). In woodland depths pursue her shadow still!
(A vision of Snegurotchka appears beyond the trees, beckoning to Mizguir.)

MIZGUIR: It is you, it is you I see once more!
It is you, whom I will follow everywhere!

THE FAUN: The clear sunlight alone can drive away his dream.
(He disappears underground.)
(The glade resumes its previous aspect. Lel enters.)

SCENE IV.

LEL, then KOUPAVA, later SNEGUROTCHKA.

KOUPAVA: (seeing Lel, she hurries to him). At last once more I find you, whom I love,
My dearest friend, my Lel, my only joy!
My heart once more can feel, for you have saved me
From insult cruel, and from deepest shame.
You have restored to me my pride in life,
And with your kiss made me the equal of the happiest!

LEL: Well did I know which heart would overcome me!
In your sweet eyes my ravished glance is lost;
At last my soul its place of refuge finds!
(Snegurotchka shows herself among the bushes, watching Lel and Koupava.)

SNEGUROTCHKA: (in despair).
O mother, they've deceived me!
O mother, O Fairy Spring,
I weep and I implore you;
I want to love!
O give me, mother,
A heart like other maidens have!
I want to love! I want to love!
O mother, O Fairy Spring!
I want to love, or else I want to die!
(Off, running.)

END OF ACT THIRD.

IVE ACTE

La vallée de Yarilo: au fond, un lac couvert de plantes aquatiques et de fleurs; au bord, des arbustes fleuris dont les branches pendent sur l'eau; à droite du lac, la montagne de Yarilo, nue, au sommet pointu. Le lever du soleil.

SCÈNE I.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA (descendant de la Montagne), puis la FÉE PRINTEMPS suivie des fleurs.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: O mère, mes yeux sont pleins de larmes,
Mon coeur est lourd d'angoisse et de douleur!
A mon appel surgis du fond des ondes,
Entends ma plainte et prends pitié de moi!
(Du fond du lac sort la Fée Printemps entourée de fleurs.)

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS:
Snégourotchka, ô mon enfant, qu'implores-tu de moi?
Dis-moi quelle est ta peine?
Pour l'apaiser un seul instant me reste.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Oh donne moi l'amour! Je veux aimer ou bien mourir!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: O mon enfant, sois exaucée!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS et le CHOEUR DES FLEURS: Fleur de l'aube printanière, Blanc muguet du bois profond,
Illumine son visage
De ton tendre et doux reflet.
Fleur des songes, noir pavot,
Magique fleur,
Endors et charme sa raison;
Houblon d'or, que ton ivresse
Se répande dans son coeur!
(Elle met la couronne sur la tête de Snégourotchka.)

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: (en extase). Ah mère, quel prodige et quel bonheur!
Quel charme sur la terre et dans le ciel!
Quel doux reflect sur l'eau! quelle ombre heureuse Et calme dans les bois! Que l'aube est pure et belle!

LA FÉE PRINTEMPS: Chère fille, dérobe ton amour au dieu Yarilo;
Rentre au logis, ma fille, en toute hâte
Sans t'arrêter à voir au ciel surgir l'aurore.
Adieu, ma fille, et sois fidèle

ACT IV.

The valley of the god Yarilo: at the back a lake covered with aquatic plants and flowers; along its border, flowering shrubs whose branches overhang the water to the right of the lake, with pointed summit. The sun is rising.

SCENE I.

SNEGUROTCHKA (coming down from the mountain), then FAIRY SPRING, followed by FLOWER-SPIRITS.

SNEGUROTCHKA: O mother, my eyes are full of tears,
My heart weighed down with anguish and with sorrow!
You, whom my call brought from beneath the waves,
Listen to my lamentation and take pity on me!
(Fairy Spring rises from the lake, surrounded by Flower-Spirits.)

FAIRY SPRING: Snegurotchka, oh my child, what do you ask of me?
Tell me what sorrow moves you?
I have a single moment only to appease it.

SNEGUROTCHKA: Oh grant me the gift of love, for I would love or die!

FAIRY SPRING: O my child, your wish is granted!

FAIRY SPRING and CHORUS OF FLOWER SPIRITS: Flower of the springtime dawn, White lily of the somber woods,
Her face illumine
With your reflection kind and sweet!
Flower of dreams, black poppy-bloom,
You magic flower,
Lull her, and enchant her thoughts!
Golden flower of the hop, your exaltation
Spread through her heart!
(She places the crown upon Snegurotchka'S forehead.)

SNEGUROTCHKA: (in ecstasy). Ah, mother, what a miracle, how great my joy!
How lovely all on earth and in the skies,
What soft reflections of the waves, what kindly shadows!
How calm the forests! How pure and fair the dawn!

FAIRY SPRING: Dear daughter, hide your love from Yarilo the god;
Back to your dwelling, child, now quickly hasten,
Nor pause to watch the dawn suffuse the sky.
Farewell, my daughter, and be

A cet aveu suprême!
(Elle disparaît dans le lac en même temps que les fleurs).

SCÈNE II.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA et MIZGUIR.

MIZGUIR: (en courant). Attends, attends, Snégourotchka!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Ah! que vois-je?

MIZGUIR: Snégourotchka, en vain je t'ai cherchée
La nuit dans la forêt; te fais-je peur?

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: Non, mon coeur ne sait plus la peur,
Laisse-moi regarder ton visage!
Ce n'est plus l'effroi qui trouble et saisit mon âme,
L'éclair de ton regard, l'accent de ta voix ardente!
Doux ami, je suis à toi,
Prends-moi dans tes bras, emporte-moi!
Je veux t'aimer, n'avoir pour lois
Que tes désirs. Pour toujours je suis à toi!
Sous le bois profond abrite-moi
Des feux mortels du dieu soleil!
(Snégourotchka et Mizguir se mettent à l'ombre d'un buisson. La foule descend de la montagne à travers la forêt; en avant marchent les joueurs de gousli jouant de leurs instruments, et les bergers jouant de leurs cors; derrière eux vient le Tzar avec sa suite. Derrière le Tzar marchent par couples les jeunes gens et les jeunes filles fiancés, en vêtements de fête; plus loin viennent les autres Berendeys; arrivée dans la vallée, la foule se divise en deux parties.)

SCÈNE III.

SNÉGOUROTCHKA, MIZGUIR, le TZAR, LEL et tout le peuple. Tous dans l'attente regardent vers l'Orient; aux premiers rayons du soleil, ils entonnent le choeur.

CHOEUR GÉNÉRAL:

IÈRE PARTIE: Nous avons semé le millet dans la plaine,
Oï did Lado, nous l'avons semé.

IIÈME PARTIE: Nous écraserons le millet sur l'aire,
Oï did Lado, nous l'écraserons.

IÈRE PARTIE: Et comment écraserez-vous le millet?
Oï, did Lado.

IIÈME PARTIE: Les chevaux nous y mettrons,
Oï, did Lado.

faithful now
To your great vow supreme!
(She disappears in the lake, together with the flower spirits.)

SCENE II.

SNEGUROTCHKA and MIZGUIR.

MIZGUIR: (enters running). Wait, wait for me, Snegurotchka!

SNEGUROTCHKA: Ah, who do I see?

MIZGUIR: Snegurotchka, in vain I sought you
Last night in the forest; say, do you fear me?

SNEGUROTCHKA: No, my heart knows fear no longer.
Let me look into your eyes!
No longer terror troubles and vexes my soul,
I see your open glance, I hear your ardent voice!
Dear one, I am your own!
Take me in your arms and carry me away!
I want to love you, know no other law
Than your own wish! Forever I am yours!
Hide me where deepest woodland shadows lie,
From Yarilo, the sun-god's mortal fires!
(Snegurotchka and Mizguir place themselves in the shade of a bush. The crowd descends from the mountain, moving across the forest. In the van come the gusli-players playing upon their instruments, and the shepherds blowing their horns; behind them the Tzar and his suite. Following the Tzar, in pairs, come the young men and young maidens who are betrothed, in holiday attire; further on, the rest of the Berendeys. Reaching the valley, the crowd separates into two groups.)

SCENE III.

SNEGUROTCHKA, MIZGUIR, the TZAR, LEL and the PEOPLE. All in attendance look to the Orient; at the first sparkle of sun, they begin to sing as a chorus.

GENERAL CHORUS:

I: We have sown the millet in the plain.
Oi, did Lado, we have sown it.

II: We will thresh the millet on the floor,
Oi, did Lado, we will thresh it.

I: And how will you thresh the millet?
Oi, did Lado.

II: We will put the horses to it,
Oi, did Lado.

IÈRE PARTIE: Les chevaux, nous les prendrons,
Oï, did Lado.

IIÈME PARTIE: Nous vous en paierons la rançon sans peine,
Oï, did Lado.

IÈRE PARTIE: Quelle est la rançon qui nous est offerte?
Oï, did Lado.

IIÈME PARTIE: Nous vous donnerons une jeune fille,
Oï, did Lado.

IÈRE PARTIE: Et nous serons un de plus,
Oï, did Lado.

IIÈME PARTIE: Et nous serons un de moins.
Oï, did Lado.
(Pendant le chant les deux parties se rapprochent lentement en suivant le rythme de la chanson. Le chant fini les jeunes gens prennent leurs fiancées et saluent le Tzar.)

LE TZAR: Que votre mariage soit béni!
Vivez dans la tendresse, vivez dans la joie
Et l'abondance, achevez
Entourés d'enfants le cours de votre vie!

MIZGUIR: (Amenant Snégourotchka devant le Tzar). Auguste tzar, tu m'as commandé
De gagner ce coeur, j'ai fait selon ton ordre;
Je te demande ici de nous bénir!

LE TZAR: Veux-tu de ton plein gré te confier
A son amour? Avec ta main, ma fille,
Lui donne-tu ton coeur!

SNÉGOUROTCHKA: O notre tzar,
Je te dirai cent fois, si tu le veux,
Qu'il est mon bien aimé. Avant l'aurore,
J'ai fait à mon ami le cher aveu
De mon amour, je lui donne ma vie!
(Un rayon éclatant perce le brouillard et tombe sur Snégourotchka.)
Quel trouble en moi! L'extase ou bien la mort?
Quel feu profond pénètre tous mes sens!
Maman Printemps, je te bénis pour cette ivresse,
Pour ce divin bonheur d'avoir connu l'amour!
Mon coeur, mon sang, mon être tout entier
S'embrase et brûle! Je meurs et me fonds
D'amour et de bonheur. Adieu, vous toutes
Mes compagnes, adieu, adieu mon bien aimé!
O mon ami, je suis à toi,
Dans ce regard reçois mon âme!
(Elle fond.)

I: The horses, we will take them,
Oi, did Lado.

II: We will pay the ransom for them easily,
Oi, did Lado.

I: What is the ransom offered us?
Oi, did Lado.

II: We will give you a young maiden,
Oi, did Lado.

I: And there will be one more of us,
Oi, did Lado.

II: And there will be one less of us,
Oi, did Lado.
(During this song the two groups have slowly drawn nearer each other, moving in cadence to the rhythm of their singing. When the song is ended, the young men take their sweethearts and bow to the Tzar.)

THE TZAR: May your marriage be blessed!
Live lovingly, live happily,
And in abundance. And at last,
Surrounded by your children end your days!

MIZGUIR: (Leading Snegurotchka before the Tzar). O tzar august, you have commanded me
To win this heart, and I have done your bidding;
And now I ask that you will bless us here!

THE TZAR: Is it by your own wish that you confide
In Mizguir's love? My daughter, with your hand
Do you give him your heart?

SNEGUROTCHKA: O Lord tzar,
A hundred times I'll tell you, if you wish
He is my well-beloved! Before the dawn,
I fondly had confessed to him
The love I feel, and given him my life!
(A dazzling ray pierces the clouds and alights on Snegurotchka.)
How I am moved! It is ecstasy or death?
What profound fire penetrates all my being!
O Mother Spring, thanks for this exaltation,
This joy divine given me, to know love!
My heart, my blood, the fiber of my being Takes fire and burns! I die and melt away
In love and happiness! Farewell, all of you Companions! Farewell, farewell, my well-beloved!
Oh love of mine, I am all yours,
In this last glance receive my soul!
(She melts.)

CHOEUR GÉNÉRAL: Ah! quel prodige étrange et quel mystère!
Ainsi que fond la neige au feu du clair soleil,
Elle a péri—Snégourotchka n'est plus!

LEL: O soleil, lumiere et force,
Soleil, splendeur du monde,
Gloire à toi, dieu Yarilo!

CHORUS: Ah, marvel strange and most mysterious!
Thus, as the snow melts in the sun's clear fire,
She has perished—Snegurotchka is no more!

LEL: O sun, radiance and power,
Sun, splendor of the world,
Glory to you, god Yarilo!

CHOEUR GÉNÉRAL: Gloire à toi!
(Sur un signe du Tzar, les serviteurs apportent des boeufs et des moutons aux cornes dorées, des barils d'hydromel, de la vaisselle et tout ce qu'il faut pour un festin.)

FIN.

CHORUS: Glory to you!
(At a sign from the Tzar, servitors lead in cattle and sheep with gilded horns, barrels of hydromel, plates and dishes and all the paraphernalia of a banquet.)

THE END.

Le Coq D'Or (1909)

The Golden Cockerel

MUSIC BY NIKOLAI ANDREEVICH RIMSKY-KORSAKOV ■ LIBRETTO BY VLADIMIR IVANOVICH BIELSKY

Set to a libretto by Vladimir Bielsky (based on Alexander Pushkin's story), this three-act opera premiered at the Solodovnikov Theatre in Moscow on October 7, 1909. A prologue, sung by an astrologer (a counter-tenor), sets the stage for the story. An enemy lies in wait on the borders of Dodon's kingdom; the King and his ministers meet to discuss this dilemma. The astrologer enters with a golden cockerel that he says will crow in warning whenever danger threatens the kingdom. Dodon promises to give the astrologer whatever he asks for in return. The astrologer requests that the King put this in writing so that he may take him up on it at a later date. Dodon goes to sleep with the cockerel, which soon awakens him with crowing. The princes depart with their armies, accompanied by a reluctant Dodon. On a narrow mountain pass, Dodon is beside himself; the princes and many of the soldiers are already dead. General Polkan catches sight of a tent; he is about to open fire when the Queen of Shemakha emerges. She admits that she is responsible for the princes' deaths. She succeeds in seducing the old King, who dances and sings at her will. Back in the capital, the people await the King's return. He arrives in a splendid chariot, accompanied by the Queen. The astrologer asks for the Queen as his reward. The King refuses, killing him with a stroke of his scepter. The golden cockerel attacks the King and pecks him to death. The Queen disappears, and the people are left in mourning. The astrologer sings a brief epilogue which states that the opera is only a fairy tale, and that the only real people in it are the Queen and the astrologer himself.

PROLOGUE

(Devant le rideau apparaît L'Astrologue, une clef à la main.)

L'ASTROLOGUE: (au public). Par mon art cabalistique,
Par les lois que je pratique,
On va voir renaître ici
Le héros d'un vieux récit.
Pour vous d'un conte tous les masques
Revivront, joyeux, fantasques.
Certes ce n'est qu'une fable,
Mais la morale en este louable.
(Il disparaît.)

■ ACTE PREMIER

(Avant le lever du rideau, on present qu'il va se passer quelque chose de grave et de solennel. En effet, on voit une vaste salle, dans le palais du Roi Dodôn, qui fut jadis maître de tous les steppes de la Russie méridionale. Le conseil royal est en séance. La salle est richement ornée de peintures, de sculptures, de dorures. Le vert, le bleu, le jaune, couleurs favorites des sujets du Roi Dodôn, prédominent, sur des bancs recouverts de brocart, siègent des seigneurs graves et barbus. Au milieu, sur un trône richement orné de plumes de paon, est Dodôn, couronne en tête et vétu d'un habit d'apparat, jaune. Près de lui sont assis ses deux fils, Aphrôn et Gvidôn. Parmi les conseillers le général Polkan, vieux soldat brutal.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (qui paraît accablé de soucis). Chers sujets, le coeur troublé, Je vous ai tous rassemblés
Pour vous apprendre, en personne, Combien lourde est ma couronne.
Mon sort est triste! écoutez:
Jeune, j'étais redouté
Sans scrupule l'âme fière,
Je portais au loin la guerre.
Maintenant, je suis bien vieux;
Les combats sont périlleux.
Or, mes ennemis se lèvent.
Ils m'attaquent tous, sans trêve
On dirait qu'ils font exprès!
Sans répit, nous restons prêts
A combattre.
(Avec désespoir.)
Nous veillons au Nord: du tout,
C'est du Sud qu'il fond sur nous!
On est là: tous ces sauvages
Viennent par la mar.
J'enrage: On n'a plus aucun répit,
J'en sanglote de dépit.
A ces maux est-il un remède?
Qu'un de vous me vienne en aide.
Un conseil!

PROLOGUE

(The Astrologer appears before the curtain with a magic key in his hand.)

THE ASTROLOGER: (to the audience). I am a magician. By the occult sciences I am endowed with the extraordinary gift of evoking the shades, and in dead bodies breathing an enchanted life. Here before you will live again the droll masks of an old fairy tale. The tale's not true, but there's a hint in it; a lesson to all of you, good people. (Disappears.)

■ ACT I

(Before the curtain rises there is a feeling that something extraordinarily important and solemn is to be presented. And in fact one sees a vast hall in the palace of the famous King Dodon during the sitting of the Council of Boyars. The hall is richly ornamented with Russian carving, gilded and painted, by which it is clearly evident that green, blue, and yellow are the favorite colors of King Dodon's people. On benches covered with brocade, the Boyars are seated in a semi-circle,—grave and bearded men. Upon a throne in the middle, magnificently decorated with peacock feathers, is seated King Dodon himself, wearing a golden crown and in royal vestments of yellow. On either side of him are the impatient Princes—his sons Afron and Guidon. Amongst the Boyars is the old and rude Voevoda Polkan.)

KING DODON: (appears overwhelmed with cares). I have summoned you here, so that everyone
In the kingdom should know, what a burden it is To the mighty Dodon to wear a crown.
So, listen, my friends!
From my youth up I have been redoubtable,
And time and time again I have daringly affronted
My neighbors.
But now I wish to rest from warlike deeds.
And seek repose.
As if on purpose a neighbor now is disturbing me
By unceasingly doing evil deeds.
In order to defend
The frontiers of my kingdom from attack
I must maintain a large Army.
We expect invasion from the North, and lo!
A force is coming from the South.
We have mastered these, but evil guests
Are coming from the sea,
So that I, Dodon, weep from anger
And cannot sleep.
My life is so anxious. I desire advice and help.
Counsel me!

UN SEIGNEUR: (avec hésitation).
Autrefois une vieille, par les fêves,
Savait expliquer les rêves.

SECONDE SEIGNEUR: Allons donc! Cette autre était
Bien meilleure, qui savait lire,
Dans le marc, et tout prédire.

GVIDÔN: Dans le ciel on peut trouver
Le sens de ce qu'on a rêvé.

TOUS: Par le marc, oui!
On explique par les fêves . . . .
Tous les reves.

AMELFA: (empressée et avec une infinie sollicitude). Mais bien sûr!
Voici les hommes
Qui t'apportent ton grand lit.
(Sur un signe d'elle, les serviteurs se précipitent dans le palais et reparaissent, portant un grand lit d'ivoire, couvert de fourrures; ils le dressent au soleil. Amelfa s'approche de Dodôn; elle apporte un grand plateau chargé de sucreries.)
N'astu pas quelque appetit?
Mange donc ces confitures,
Quelques noix, ou bien des mûres!
Bois le cidre: il est tout frais,
Parfumé, mousseux, sucré.
Ces fruits plein de miel, d'amandes,
Et bien cuits au vin, t'attendent.
Chasse donc tous les soucis,
Tâte des pruneaux farcis.

LE ROI DODÔN: (bâille et s'installe à portée du plateau.)
Hum . . . . J'accepte . . . .
Mais prends garde,
Mon aimable babillarde,
Qu'un pesant sommeil soudain
N'interrompe mon festin.
(Le Roi a fini sa collation, et regarde du côté du lit. Amelfa arrange les oreillers et rabat les couvertures.)

AMELFA: Dors un peu sur cette couche
Viens, je chasserai les mouches
Loin de ton august front.

LA VOIX DU COQ: Cocori! Cocorico!
Règne et dors en ton lit clos!
(Dodôn ne plut plus résister au sommeil. Il se couche et s'endort sans plus, avec autant d'insouciance qu'un enfant. L'intendante, penchée au dessus du lit, chasse les mouches.)
DES GARDIENS: (dans les coulisses). Règne et dors en ton lit clos!
(Les Gardiens, font l'appel, d'une voix somnolente, mais bientôt ils succombent à la douceur enchanteresse du sommeil de midi. Tous dorment profondement, sauf Amelfa. La capitale entiere est possible. Seules les mouchés infatigables bourdonnent autour du lit royal, que le soleil continue d'éclairer d'une lumière égale et douce.)

AMELFA: Tous s'endorment, tous sommeillent.
Cher printemps! paix sans pareille!
(Elle s'accounde au lit du Roi et s'endort à son tour. Dodôn, dans son rêve, sourit comme à une belle inconnue.)

LA VOIX DU COQ: Cocori! Cocoricou!
Ouvrez l'oeil et garde à vous!
(Trompettes dans la coulisse.—Bruit. Des gens courent. Des trompettes sonnent de divers côtés. Des chevaux henissent. La foule se précipite autour du palais. Sur les visages interloqués se lit une terreur profonde.)

LA FOULE: (dans la rue). Le coq a donné l'alarme!
Courez tous, prenez les armes!
Oh! Malheur, calamité!
Le royaume est dévasté.

POLKAN: (accourant). Roi puissant, ma voix t'appelle!
Vois ton général fidèle!
Ah! Réveille toi! Malheur!
(Amelfa va se cacher prèpicitamment.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (encore à moitié endormi). Quel est donc ce bruit, Seigneur!

POLKAN: L'ennemi sur nous s'avance!

LE ROI DODÔN: (se lève en bâillant). Hein? Quoi donc?
Quelle démence . . . .
Est-ce le feu dans mon palais?

POLKAN: Foin du vieux niais!
Notre coq a chanté, il tourne et s'agite . . . .
Tous nos gens ont fui. Viens vite!

LA VOIX DU COQ: Cocori! Cocoricou!
Ouvrez l'oeil et garde â vous.
(Dodôn regarde le Coq.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (au peuple).
Bien! Va pour la guerre, enfants!
Hâtez vous, courez aux camps.
Faites vite, qu'on s'empresse!
Mais d'abord, ouvrez les caisses.

LE PEUPLE: (docilement). Nous serons obéissants!
(Dodôn s'assied sur son trône. Des chambres intérieures du palais sortent précipitamment Aphrôn et les Seigneurs, tous armés. Gvidôn arrive et, tout en courant, boucle le ceinturon de son épée.—Il embrasse trois fois chacun de ses fils, qui partent, maussades, suivis des Seigneurs.—On entend le bruit de l'armée qui s'ébranle:)

ONE BOYAR: (hesitatingly). It is a pity our fortune-teller is dead.
She would have unravelled the question
By means of beans . . . .

SECOND BOYAR: Beans? We had—it's a pity it was some time ago—
A better witch. She divined by dregs.

GUIDON: There was also one who knew
How to foretell things by the stars.

CHORUS OF BOYARS: Dregs are better.
The beans are more to be believed in.

AMELFA: (clasping her hands in boundless devotion). Bàtyushka! If you wish
We shall turn the whole capital into a bed!
(At a sign from her the servants rush to the palace and carry out into the sun a bed of ivory with fur coverings. Amelfa herself comes to him with a large tray filled with delicacies.)
See that you have an empty tummy.
Taste a little of these Turkish pods;
Or some walnuts in honey.
Drink some cold kvass,
With mint, hops, ginger.
Or will it please the royal taste
To have some prunes stuffed with raisins
And dipped in wine?
Try and see if they are tasty.
(Dodon, yawning, sits down before the dishes.)

KING DODON: Oh well! All right!
And while
I dally with the dishes, amuse me
So that I shall not fall asleep.
(Having finished the delicacies, he glances at the bed.)

AMELFA: (Shakes up the pillow and arranges the bed.) Lie down! I shall Drive off the annoying flies from the royal face.

VOICE OF THE BIRD: Cock-a-doodle-do!
Sleep in thy regal bed!
(Dodon lies down, and instantly goes to sleep, as free from care as a child. Amelfa drives away the flies, bending over the bed. At first the guards sleepily call out to one another the words: "Reign, lying at ease." Then the sweet charm of the mid-day nap overcomes them. All except Amelfa indulge in a long, sweet sleep. Silence reigns throughout the capital. The indefatigable flies alone buzz about Dodon, and the everlasting sun shines as before with his steady and welcome light.)

AMELFA: All are asleep! All are weary!
All tired by the breath of Spring!
(She leans her elbows on the royal bed, and falls asleep beside Dodon, who smiles in his sleep, dreaming of some wonderful beauty who never existed.)

VOICE OF THE BIRD: Cock-a-doodle-do!
Beware!
(Uproar, and running to and fro. Horses neigh. Sound of trumpets—sometimes here, sometimes there. People appear on the street. Terrible fear is depicted upon their pitiful faces.)

PEOPLE ON THE STREET: The bird is crowing! Get up!
Saddle your fleet horses!
Quickly! The enemy does not wait.
He will trample down the cornfields
And burn the villages.

POLKAN: (running in). Our King!
Father of the people!
I am your Voevoda.
Sire! Awake! A calamity is upon us.
(The Housekeeper jumps up and hurriedly disappears.)

KING DODON: (not quite awake). What is it?

POLKAN: It must be that a strange foe is advancing.

KING DODON: (getting up and yawning). Eh! What? What calamity?
Is my palace burning?

POLKAN: Devil take him!
The bird is crowing, turning about on the spire.
Noise and hubbub throughout the capital.

VOICE OF THE BIRD: Cock-a-doodle-do!
Open your eyes and beware!
(His own eyes assure Dodon of the restlessness of the bird.)

KING DODON: (to the people).
Well! My children. It is war.
We must have assistance.
No delay! Make haste!
Unlock your coffers quickly.

PEOPLE ON THE STREET: (abasing themselves). We are yours, body and soul.
(Dodon sits on his throne. Afron and the Boyars rush in, armed. Guidon runs in, buckling his sword belt. Dodon kisses each of his sons thrice.)
(The sons much cast down, go out with The Boyars. The noise of the departing army is heard, then all is silent.)

LA VOIX DU COQ: (Lorsque tout s'est calmé on entend la voix du Coq). Cocoricou! Règne et dors en ton lit clos!

LE ROI DODÔN: Joli Coq, je te rends grâce.
(Le Roi Dodôn, Amelfa les gardes s'endorment d'endorment d'un sommeil calme et profond.)

GARDES: (dans la coulisse).
Règne e dors, en ton lit clos!
(Le rêve de Dodôn se précise.)

LA VOIX DU COQ: Cocori! Cocoricou!
Ouvrez l'oeil, et garde à vous!
(De nouveau s'entendent des cris, des pas précipités. Des trampettes sonnent. La foule, en grand désordre, se rassemble dans la rue, devant le palais. Trompettes dans la coulisse.)

LE PEUPLE: (dans la rue). Ah, tout est perdu! Alerte!
(Ils restent tous indécis, n'osant réveiller le roi.—Trompettes dans la coulisse.)
Notre roi qui dort!
Oui, certes! Quel malheur!
Vite à genoux!
Comment faire? Sauvons nous!
Et Polkân reste introuvable!

POLKAN: (se précipite, suivi de seigneurs en armes. Amelfa va se dacher précipitament). Un destin cruel nous accable, Sors enfin, oui, sors de ce doux repos!

LE ROI DODÔN: (réveillé en sursaut). Ah! toujours mal à propos!

POLKAN: Dans la ville tous s'irritent
Et là haut, ton coq s'agite,
Clame à pleine voix son chant
Et regarde le levant.
Nous ne sommes pas en nombre;
L'avenir me parait sombre.
Fais donner les vétérans!

LE ROI DODÔN: (se frotte les yeux et bâille). Oui! Je vais venir, attends.
(Il s'approche de la balustrade et regarde en l'air.)

LA VOIX DU COQ: Cocori! Cocoricou!
Ouvrez l'oeil et garde à vous!

LE ROI DODÔN: (d'un ton plaintif). Le coq d'or nous met en garde.
En avant! Que nul ne tarde.
Chers amis marchons, vaillants.
Au secours de nos enfants!
(Il se prépare sans empressement; les domestiques apportent en hâte son équipement couvert de poussière et de rouille. Amelfa regarde le Roi avec tristesse.)
Mon armet! Puis, ma cuirasse.
Ouf! L'étroite carapace!
Cherchez moi mon bouclier,
Le beau rouge; un baudrier . . . .

LA VOIX DU COQ: Cocoricou! Ouvrez l'oeil et garde à vous!

VOICE OF THE BIRD: Cock-a-doodle-do!
Reign, taking your ease.

KING DODON: (yawning). Dear bird! Many thanks.
(Dodon falls asleep; also Amelfa and the Guards. His dreams about the wonderful beauty become more definite and insistent.)

VOICE OF THE BIRD: Cock-a-doodle-do!
Beware!
(Again noise and running to and fro. Trumpets. A terrified crowd of people assemble at the Palace, not daring to awake Dodon.)

PEOPLE ON THE STREET: O!
What misfortune! O, brothers, what evils!
Our King is fast asleep. All is quiet
In the palace.. It is impossible to wake them.
What shall we do? What will become of us?
Where is Polkan, our Voevoda?
(Polkan rushes in with armed Boyars. Amelfa runs away.)

POLKAN: Sire! Father of your people!
Sire! Another calamity!

KING DODON: (leaping from the bed). Always at the wrong time!

POLKAN: Noise and hubbub in all the capital,
And again the bird high up
On the spire is playing tricks,
Turning towards the East.
It seems the Army has not been successful.
I suppose it would be the thing
To call out the old men!

KING DODON: (rubbing his eyes and yawning). Wait! I shall look for myself.
(Goes to the balustrade and looks up at the roof.)

VOICE OF THE BIRD: Cock-a-doodle-do! Beware!

KING DODON: (plaintively). The golden cock is flapping its wings not in vain;
A dangerous journey is before us.
Now, old man, we shall arise quickly
And go to help our children.
(He gets ready without any animation.)
Where is my helmet? Bring my armour.
(The servants quickly fetch the dusty and rusty arms and invest Dodon.)
My armour is too tight!
Look where my favourite red shield is hanging.
(They fetch the shield.)

VOICE OF THE BIRD: Cock-a-doodle-do! Beware!

DEUXIÈME ACTE

(Nuit obscure. Les troubles rayons de la lune éclairent de lueurs sanglantes un défilé étroit, parsemé de petits buissons, et les roches escarpées. Le brouillard de montagne remplit toutes les cavités d'un voile blanc. Parmi les buissons ou sur les pentes nues des collines, gisent les cadavres des guerriers: on las dirait pétrifiés au milieu de leur dernière bataille. Des aigles et d'autres rapaces, en bandes, se sont abattus sur les corps; à chaque coup de vent, ils s'envolent, effarés. Deux chevaux se tiennent immobiles, la tête inclinée sur les cadavres de leurs maitres, les fils de Dodôn. Tout est calme, silencieux et menaçant.)
(On entend au loin un bruit de pas. C'est l'armée de Dodôn qui avance, craintivement. Des guerriers paraissent, suivant le défilé. Ils vont deux par deux, s'arrêtent, se retournent.)

LES SOLDATS: Nuit épouvantable et sombre!
Tout est calme: seuls, dans l'ombre,
Les vautours veillent nos morts.
La lune pourpre sur leurs corps
Brille comme un cierge funèbre.
Hou! Le vent, dans les ténèbres,
Fait entendre un chant de deuil
Sur les cadavres sans cercueil.
Triste, il pleure; il geint sans trêve . . . .
Sa voix retombe et puis s'élève.
Il agite doucement
Leurs cheveux, leurs vêtements.
(Le Roi Dodôn, tourmente par de sombres pensées, arrive au pas avec son vieux général. Ils trébuchent contre les corps des deux princes.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (se précipitant sur les corps de ses fils). Quel spectacle abominable!
Mes deux fils! . . . . Le sort m'accable . . .
Désarmés, sanglants et froids,
Leurs yeux fixes pleine d'effroi . . . .
Ils se sont tués l'un l'autre!
Leurs vaillants coursiers arpentent
Le gazon souillé, les pentes
Que rougit le sang des nôtres . . . .
Ah, douleur cruelle!
Mes fils! Mon espoir!
Quelle erreur mortelle
Put ainsi vous décevoir?

ACT II

(A dark night. A dim moon casts a ruddy glow over a narrow gorge covered with small bushes and hemmed in by cliffs. The mountain mist, slightly stirred by the wind, fills all the hollows with a milky shroud. In the midst of the bushes, and on the bare hillocks, wherever one looks, lie in heaps the bodies of dead warriors killed in battle. Eagles and other birds of prey sit on the corpses in flocks, flying away in fright at every gust of wind. Two horses stand motionless with heads lowered over the bodies of their masters. All is quiet, silent, and ominous. There is heard in the distance the sound of the unsteady footsteps of the discouraged army of King Dodon. In the gorge, looking about and stopping, the warriors come down in a file, two abreast.)

WARRIORS: The silent night is whispering fearful things.
All is waste; only a flock of birds
Guard the bodies of the fallen.
The pallid disc of the moon
Has risen, and is like a funeral taper.
A mournful and dreary wind
Steals through the darkness;
Stumbling on the bodies,
It blows moaning over the dead.
At times it is silent; and again dejectedly
It presses close to the faces of the fallen,
And plucks at their sleeves.
(Enter, riding their horses at a walk, King Dodon with his old Voevoda, plunged in gloomy thoughts, and stumble against the bodies of both the Princes.)

KING DODON: (throwing himself upon the bodies of his sons). What terrible sight is this?
It is my sons! My own sons!
Without their helmets and their armor.
And both lie dead,—
The sword of each piercing the other.
Their horses wander over the meadows
Upon the grass trampled down
And red with blood,
Oh! Our support! My children!
Woe is me! Caught in a net
Are both my falcons.
O grief! My death is here.

Hélas, je n'ai plus qu'à mourir:
Coulez, coulez mes larmes amères!
Que le steppe solitaire
Nous entende tous gémir.
Les rochers, les bois, la plaine
Compatiront à notre peine.
Ah! Ah! Ah!

CHOEUR: (tous sanglotent). Ah! Ah! Ah!

LE ROI DODÔN: (plaintivement). Désormais
Je vous conduirai moi-même:
C'est pitié que ceux au'on aime
Tombent ainsi, décimés!
Ah!
(Il pleure de nouveau.)

POLKAN: (a Dodôn). Adieu paniers, vendanges sont faites!
(Il se tourne vers l'armée.)
Votre maître est opprime:
Vos epées sont-elles prêtes?

CHOEUR: L'ennemi sera chassé!
Mais où diable est-il passé?
(Rien ne répond. Le jour commence à poindre. Le brouillard se disperse graduellement, et l'on aperçoit, sortant de terre une tente. Les rayons de l'aurore se jouent sur les arabesques de ses parois de brocart bigarré.—Consternation générale.)

LE ROI DODÔN: Voyez donc, la belle tente!
(Les premiers rayons du soleil paraîssent; on voit remuer les parois de la tente.)
(Les canonniers s'enfuient en débandade, abandonnant leur pièce.)
(De la tente sort une belle jeune femme à la démarche legère, mais majestueuse. Elle est suivie de quatre esclaves qui portent des instruments de musique: goussli (psalterions), goudok (viole), chalumeau et tambour. Sa longue robe de soie rouge est richement brodée d'or. Elle porte un turban blanc, orne d'une haute plume. Elle paraît ne rien voir, et, les bras levés comme pour la prière, chante en s'adressant au soleil qui brille.)

LA REINE DE CHÉMAKHA: Salut à toi, soleil de flamme!
Nous reviens-tu de l'Orient,
Du doux pays cher à mon âme,
De ses paysages souriants?
Ah! Parle-moi des fraiches roses
Et des buissons ardents des lys;
Des beaux oiseaux qui se reposent,
Auprès des lacs bordés d'iris!
Qui chantent auprès des lacs bordés d'iris!
Dis moi: le soir, près des fontaines,
Quand chaque belle entonne un chant
D'extase ou d'amoureuse peine
Qui monte au rouge firmament,
Voit-on toujours, sous leurs grands voiles,
Leurs yeux sourire au beau galant,
Qui, dans la nuit semée d'étoiles,

Weep all, as Dodon does.
Let the deepest valleys groan
And the highest mountains shake with Grief.
(All sob.)

KING DODON: (pitifully). From now on I shall lead my army everywhere myself.
The young men enough have been Exposed to the misfortunes of a martial life.
(Renewed sobbing.)

POLKAN: (to Dodon). Whatever has happened, it is past and done.
(To the army.)
Friends! Let us stand up for Dodon;
Let us give the enemy a lesson!

WARRIORS: We shall! That we shall!
If only we can find the enemy.
(No answer. It begins to grow light. The mist rises a little, and the outline of a tent is seen. The rosy reflection of the dawn falls upon the bright, many coloured patterns of the brocade flaps of the tent. All are amazed.)

KING DODON: Good heavens! A tent!
All in patterns.
(The first rays of the rising sun.)
(The flaps of the tent move. The warriors hastily disperse, leaving the cannon. From the tent emerges with an easy but imposing gait a beautiful, bright-eyed woman, accompanied by four female slaves with dulcimer, rebec, reed, and a drum. She wears a long silk garment of raspberry color, plentifully adorned with pearls and gold. On her head a white turban with a high feather. The beautiful woman, as if she had noticed nothing, turns towards the bright sun, raising her hands to it in prayer.)

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: Answer me, bright orb of day!
You come to us from the East—
Have you visited my native land,
The country of fairy dreams?
Are the roses still glowing there
And the bushes of burning lilies?
Do the turquoise dragon-flies
Kiss the gorgeous leaves?
In the evening by the waters,
In the shy songs of the women and the maidens
Is there still that same intoxicating faintness,
The passionate dream of forbidden love?
Is the unexpected guest still welcomed—
Are there gifts prepared for him—
A modest feast—a secret look

Viendra d'un pas furtif et lent?
Vient-on l'attendre à la fenêtre,
L'oeil attentif, le coeur tremblant?
A peine l'a-t-on vu paraître,
Saint-on charmer l'heureux amant?
Le coeur en flamme,
Saint-on charmer l'armant, l'heureux amant?
(Avant fini de chanter, elle se retourne vers le roi, et le regarde longtemps sans rien dire.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (a voix basse, et poussant Polkan du coude.)
Comme elle chante!
Qui peut-elle être?

POLKAN: (de même). Si dès qu'elle nous voit paraître
Son accueil est si charmant,
Allons-y pour un moment!
(Dodôn s'approche gravement ae la reine. Polkan le suit. Les autres n'osent point s'approcher.)

LE ROI DODÔN: N'ais pas peur de nous, ma belle!
Dis moi comment tu t'appelles,
Quel est ton pays.
Dis-moi, Viens-tu seule ici?
Pourquoi?

LA REINE DE CHÉMAKHA: (Timide, et les yeux baissés). Je suis libre, et seule ici.
I Chémakha je suis la reine,
Et je viens de mes domaines
Pour soumettre ton pays!

LE ROI DODÔN: (avec stupéfaction). Nous soumettre, sans vergogne?
Tu vas bien vite en besogne!
Sans armée tu nous vaincras,
Par la force de ton bras?

LA REINE DE CHÉMAKHA: (toujours avec timidité). Ma pensée n'est point si folle:
Mon sourire, mes paroles,
Ma beauté me suffiront
Pour faire courber les fronts.
(Elle frappe dans ses mains. De la tente sortent deux esclaves qui portent des vaisseaux d'argent, et remplissent de vin des coupes.)
Pardonnez à mon audace,
Mes chers hôtes: prenez place:
Par faveur, daignez gouter de ce vin.
(Elle s'incline et offre une coupe pleine au Roi Dodôn, qui recule avec méfiance.)
A vos santés!

LE ROI DODÔN: Bois d'abord, que nul mécompte N'en résulte.

LA REINE DE CHÉMAKHA: N'as tu pas honte?
Tiens, regarde dans mes yeux,
D'un dessein si ténébreux
Peux-tu m'estimer capable?
Suis-je donc si haissable?
(Elle lève les yeux, en souriant. Dodôn, troublé, boit, et Polkan suit son exemple. Les esclaves reviennent; elles étendent un tapis

Through the interfering veils?
When the blue night darkens,
Does the young mistress hasten to him
With a sweet avowal on her lips,
Having forgotten both fear and shame!
(The song being ended The Queen turns towards The King and looks for a long time at him in silence.)

KING DODON: (quietly poking Polkan with his elbow). That's a song for you!

POLKAN: (with a wink). If the young mistress wishes to entertain us
It is possible for us to pass a little time here.
(Dodon gravely goes nearer to the Queen. Polkan follows him. The others remain at a distance, not daring to approach.)

KING DODON: Fair lady! Fear us not.
Be open with us in everything.
What is your name? Who are you?
And where is your land?

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (modestly lowering her eyes). By your leave I am the Virgin Queen of Shemakhan.
I am stealing like a thief
To conquer your city.

KING DODON: (in astonishment, almost roughly). You are an amusing jester, Wilful maiden.
To wage war, an army is necessary;
Without it, it's a sorry business.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: In this you are mistaken.
An army is not needed for a victory.
Beauty alone makes all bend low
Before her.
(Claps her hands. Two more slaves come out of the tent with silver pitchers and pour wine into goblets.)
I am glad of unexpected guests.
The goblets are full of the fiery juice of the vine;
They are frothing to the rim.
(She bows and strikes the face of Dodon who recoils in distrust.)
Your Health!

KING DODON: You shall drink first,—
We after.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: I did not expect this.
Look in my eyes, which glow
Brighter than the dawn itself.
How could I, with such a heavenly look.
Regale the stranger with poison?
(Smilingly she raises her eyelashes. Dodon, in confusion, drinks the wine. Polkan does the au milieu de la scène, et disposent autour trois coussins en guise de sièges. Sur un signe de Polkan, les soldats, au fond de la scène, s'installent commodément. On enlève les cadavres. Dodôn, Polkan et la reine s'assoient. Les deux hommes sont tout décontenancés. La reine a un sourire énigmatique.)

POLKAN: (Reprenant courage, et se penchant brusquement vers la reine, avec l'intention d'être aimable). Avez-vous la nuit dernière Bien dormi?

LA REINE: Merci! Humguère . . . .
Pas trop mal . . . .
Mais, au matin,
Je me réveillai soudain
L'air plus chaud et plus languide
Vint troubler mes sens timides;
Un parfum d'étranges fleurs
Enivra mon pauvre coeur . . . .
A travers la nuit obscure,
J'entendis un lent murmure . . . .
Toi, qu'appelle mon amour,
Viens! oh, viens, oh!

POLKAN: (jovial). Il viendra un de ces jours.

LA REINE: (bondissant de son siège). Sire, chasse ce vieil homme Ses propos grossiers m'assomment.
(Polkan paraît déconcerté.)

LE ROI DODÔN: Tu me pousseras à bout!
Tu es là comme un hibou,
Et tous tes discours stupides
Gênent cette enfant timide.
N'as tu pas compris?
Va-t-en dans un coin, et puis attends!
(Polkan se lève, docile, et va derrière la tente, d'où à chaque moment il sort un peu son nez et sa longue barbe. La reine rapproche son coussin de celui de Dodôn.)

LA REINE: (presque à l'oreille de Dodôn). Viens me dire quelque chose.

LE ROI DODÔN: (plus décontenancé que jamais). Quoi donc? parle!

LA REINE: Mais je n'ose . . . .
Bah! Réponds la vérité:
On me vante ma beauté,
On m'accable de fadaises;
(Elle regarde Dodôn bien dans les yeux.)
Qu'en dis-tu?

LE ROI DODÔN: (bégayant).
Hein. Oui . . . vraiment . . .
Certes . . .

same. The slaves who brought the pitchers again appear, spread out a carpet in their midst, and arrange pillows for them to sit on. At a sign given by the Voevoda, the warriors withdraw to a distance, for a prolonged rest and to gather the bodies of the slain. Dodon, Polkan, and The Queen seat themselves. The first two are perplexed and silent. The Queen smiles enigmatically.)

POLKAN: (making an effort, suddenly bows to The Queen, trying to be easy in manner and agreeable.) How has the Queen been pleased to Pass the night?

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: I thank you I slept not badly.
But at dawn something happened to me;
The air became intoxicating—
Moist, heavy, and spicy—
Like the aroma of night flowers,
Like the play of tangled dreams.
Someone unseen was breathing,
Oppressed by secret passion.
I heard a voice, tender as the air of Spring.
Teasing the ear with the words:
"Dearest! Let me go."
Louder—softer—farther—nearer.

POLKAN: (with a smile). They will come. Do not grieve.
(The Queen arises in great emotion.)

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: King!
Drive away this monster!
I do not love your Voevoda.
(Polkan is put out of countenance.)

KING DODON: Why, indeed, old dotard,
Do you stare like an owl?
You see the damsel is put to shame—
Still fears us men,
Away with you. Go!
Behind the tent.
(Polkan gets up hurriedly and goes behind the tent, from where his long beard is seen sticking out from time to time. The Queen moves her pillow close to Dodon.)

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (almost in Dodon's ear). My business is with you.

KING DODON: (still more confused by the danger of propinquity). Well, what is it?

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: I should like to know for certain
If the virgin beauty of the Queen
Is really so brilliant;
Or is it empty talk.
(Looks straight into Dodon's eyes.)
What sayest thou?

KING DODON: (hesitating).
I . . . . that is . . . . in truth . . . .

LA REINE: Quel beau compliment!
Tu me vois sous mes parures:
Je suis belle, j'en suis sûre,
Par moi même.
Et tous les soirs
Je le vois dans mon miroir,
(Comme éprise d'elle même, et avec une animation croissante.)
Quand j'ai fait tomber ces robes
Dont l'étoffe te dérobe
La splendeur de mes attraits,
Quand mon corps d'argent paraît . . . .
Au milieu de cette tente
Je me vois, resplendissante . . . .
Je dénoue mes longs cheveux,
Dont le flot tumultueux,
Comme un noir torrent, s'eplanche
Sur le marbre de mes hanches,
Et me fait un lourd manteau
Pour rafraîchir la peau
Je m'asperge de rosée,
Dont les perles irisées
Se répandent sur mes seins.
Que n'en vois-tu le pur dessin!
Ils sont frais comme la rose,
Fermes, tendres, blancs et roses.
Si doux, si clairs si transparents . . . .
Tu parais peu souffrant?
Aurais tu mal à la tête?

LE ROI DODÔN: (avec effort).
Non . . . . C'est au foie . . . .
Ca s'arrête!

LA REINE: Ce n'est rien. Je vais chanter:
Tu n'auras qu'à m'écouter.
(Fais silence.)
(D'un coup d' oeil elle ordonne aux esclaves d'accompagner son chant.)
"Viens dans l'ombre, viens l'ombre
De ma tente aux rideaux lourds.
Marche, glisse, marche, glisse
Sur mes ta pis de velours!"
Veux tu venir sous ma tente,
Beau vieillard?

LE ROI DODÔN: Tu ris, méchante!
Beau vieillard?
Je n'ai pourtant
Que tout au plus . . . .

LA REINE: Ah! pourquoi me souvenir?
Mon malheur ne peut finir
Un destin cruel m'accable,
Vivre m'est insupportable.
(A travers ses larmes.)
Où trouver quelqu'un qui ose
Me contredire en toute chose,
(Encore comme en rêve.)
Me soumettre à son désir,
Me dominer?

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: Is that all?
You are to be pitied knowing
The Queen only in her garments.
I am not so bad without them.
When I go to sleep, I look a long time in the mirror.
(Thoughtfully admiring herself. Becomes more and more carried away.)
I throw off my garments,
And as a ray of sunlight in the mist
Falling on a silver statue
I shine within the tent.
I look and see if
There is a mole or any blemish anywhere on my body.
I remove the pearly fastenings, and Wanton masses of hair,
Not embarrassed with any headdress,
Pour forth in black torrent
Over my supple marble thighs . . . .
So that my sleep may be fresh and sweet
For the night, I sprinkle myself with dew.
On my breasts fall drops of liquid fire—
And I have breasts indeed!
They vie with glory of the southern roses—
Magnificent and firm—and they are
As white, light, and transparent as a dream . . . .
What is the matter, my friend? Are you not Yourself? Is your little head turned?

KING DODON: (controlling himself). There is something the matter with my liver.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: Rubbish! I shall sing.
Listen to my song!
(With a look commands her slaves to accompany her.) "Dark and narrow
Is my gaily-decked tent;
Warm and soft is the carpet in it . . . "
Do you wish, old man, to see
What is within?

KING DODON: Why do you wish to offend us? You know
I am not old. These are not wrinkles, but—

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: Ah!
Why do I think of it—
Only to open the wound afresh?
My grief is as boundless
As the wide expanse of the blue sea.
O! Take my life!
(through her tears).
Where shall I find someone who will be able
To contradict me in everything;
(as in a dream.)
Who will place a limit to my desires,
Firmly and masterfully?

LE ROI DODÔN: (solonnel). Que! plaisir de te contenter, ma belle!
Celui que tes voeux appallent
Est ici, devant tes yeux.
Tu auras des jours joyeux.
Je veux être despotique,
Et te tourner en bourrique . . . .
En un mot, je suis tout prêt,
Tu n'auras aucun regret!

LA REINE: (abasourdie.) En bourrique?
Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!
(D'un ton gai.)
Quel délice!
O, le merveilleux service!
(Dans l'excès de sa joie, elle saisit les deux mains de Dodôn.)
Crois a ma reconnaissance!
J'en suis folle! Saute, Danse!

LE ROI DODÔN: (effrayé). Mais je ne sais plus danser!

LA REINE: Danse comme en ton jeune age

LE ROI DODÔN: (fâché). Non! tous ces gens-là m'agacent.

LA REINE: Bien: Polkân prendra ta place.
Hé, Polkân! Danse avec moi!
(Polkan avance la tête, mais n'ose point bouger de sa cachette.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (conciliateur).
Non! pardonne à mon émoi.
Quoique gauche pour la danse,
Je veux bien, par complaisance . . . .

LA REINE: Commençons! Allons, venez!
Dodôn va vous fasciner.
(Timidement, Polkan et les guerriers s'approchent du tapis et forment le cercle; ils s'efforcent de ne point regarder Dodôn. Les esclaves entament un air de danse lente. Un tambourin à la main, la reine avance, gracieuse et legere.)

LA REINE: (Elle danse). Sous mon voile, je m'avance, Je te fais la révérence,
Fort timidement. Puis à toi:
Viens ici, d'un pas courtois,
Mais sans crainte, l'air bravache,
Et retrousse en vainqueur tes moustaches.
Puis, encore trois pas en avant.
(Dodôn danse selon ces indications et arrive auprès de la reine.)
Bien!
Tu viens la, me suivant.
Je m'échappe, vagabonde,
Comme un poisson d'or, sous les ondes,
Fuit le venimeux crapaud
Qui lui court après.
(Dodôn danse de nouveau.—Se fachant.)
Mauvais travail!
Rentre les talons, de grâce!
Cambre-toi, la tête en place!

KING DODON: (solemnly). Cease weeping, and rejoice, Maiden Queen of Shemakhan.
Thou hast sought and found.
Thy life will now be bright.
I shall thwart thee and Contradict thee in everything;
In fine—without unnecessary words—
I am ready to do all for thee.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (in amazement). Me? Thwart?
I am very glad (joyfully.)
Such happiness! Such bliss!
(Takes Dodon by both hands, who is unutterably happy.)
And for this occasion let us dance,
Forgetting our exalted rank.

KING DODON: (in fear). I no longer know how to dance.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: Well! Be a child once more.

KING DODON: (gloomily). I am not going to dance in the presence of people.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: Then, Polkan must be with me.
Here, Polkan! Come here, my friend!
(Polkan sticks his head out from behind the tent, but dares not to approach.)

KING DODON: (seeks a reconciliation). Do not get angry, darling!
Although I do not know how to dance.
I shall not spare myself.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: Well, let us begin. People, come hither!
Our Dodon is going to dance.
(Polkan and the Warriors cautiously draw near to the carpet, stand in a circle and try not to look at Dodon. The female slaves begin a measured and graceful dance; The Queen with a tambourine joins in, slowly and light as air.)

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (dancing). At first I shall dance.
Having lowered my veil,
Modestly, languidly.—Now it is Your turn, Dodon. Come! Step in front
Like a turkey, full of conceit,
And sideways, as if by accident,
Knock up against me.
(Dodon dances as commanded and awkwardly jostles the Queen.)
Good! I, striking my tambourine,
Shall fly away from you,
Silently, supple as a little fish.
And then you, a loathsome old crab,
Must try and catch me.
(Dodon dances again.)
(angrily). Not that way! You have the ways of a camel.
Don't keep your heels out.
(Dance becomes livelier.)
And now, wave your hand,

Agite ton éventail,
Et montre-toi plus dispos!
(La danse devient plus animée.)
Je m'assieds; rien ne te gêne:
Tourne jusqu'à perdre haleine!
(Dodôn, agitant les bras avec désespoir, commence une danse frénétique. La reine s'est assise à un bout du tapis; elle rit aux éclats en voyant les pirouettes de Dodôn.—De petite nègres sortent de la tente et se rangent autour de Dodôn.—Exténué. Dodôn se laisse tomber sur le tapis. Les musiciens cessent de jouer. Les petits nègres s'enfuient.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (se dressant sur les genoux). C'est assez!
Je veux souffler!
(Debout.)
Belle enfant, si je te plais,
Viens régner sur mon empire:
Tous mes biens pour ton sourire!
Prends mon royaume;
Prends, je t'en fais don!

LA REINE: (avec dédain). Bah! mais qu'y ferais je donc?

LE ROI DODÔN: Quoi? Hé bien: manger et boire, Dormir, écouter des histoires,
Obtenir de ton amant
Tout . . . . oui, tout sauf le merle bland!
Tu verras: l'on s'y goberge.

LA REINE: Ça partons, et faisons hâte
Je veux voir des ciels nouveaux.
Vite, en marche!
(De la tente sortent des esclaves qui portent des miroirs, des éventails, des bijoux, des tapis. Ils aident la reine à se préparer pour le voyage. Dans le camp de Dodôn, même agitation.)

LE ROI DODÔN: Mes chevaux!
Mon char doré!
Prenez les rênes!
Viens près de moi, ma souveraine.

LA REINE: (se plaçant à côté de Dodôn). Je suis prête. Avancez!
Chantez ta gloire du fiancé!

LES ESCLAVES DE LA REINE: O, mes soeurs, l'etrange histoire!
Notre reine, qui l'escorte?
Un vieillard aux jambes tortes!
La couronne d'or qu'il porte
Cache mal son front d'esclave.
O, cet air pédant et grave!
Il est tout pareil à l'âne,
Lourd d'esprit, et dur de crâne.
Comme un singe il gesticule.
Mon Dieu, qu'il est ridicule!
Son aspect hideux effare.

Turn around, take mincing steps;
Stamp your feet until you are ready to fall down;
While I sit down here.
(The Queen sits to one side and laughs continually, amused at Dodon. Dodon waves his hand despairingly and starts the mad dance. Black boys run out from the tent and form a circle around Dodon. His strength exhausted, he falls down on the carpet. The dance ends, and the black boys re-enter the tent.)

KING DODON: (on his knees).
Stop! I have no more strength.
(Gets up.)
If I am so dear to you
Take me and all my Kingdom;
For all I have is yours, and likewise I myself.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (disdainfully). What shall I do with you?

KING DODON: What shall you do?
Eat sweetmeats—
Rest, and listen to fairy tales . . . .
Everything will be provided for my little darling;
I shall spare nothing.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: There is no reason to linger;
My preparations are made quickly.
Let us be on our way at once!
(Out of the tent there come in an endless file, every time moving apart the flaps of the tent, the slaves of The Queen, carrying looking-glasses, fans, coffers of precious things, pitchers, carpets, etc. They array The Queen. The army also get ready to move.)

KING DODON: Ho! A horse!
A golden chariot
To carry the Queen!

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (standing beside Dodon). I am ready. Ha, ha!
(To her slaves.)
Sing the praises of the Bridegroom.

SLAVES: Sisters! Who limps beside
The resplendent beauty?
He is a King by rank and dress—
But a slave—by body and soul.
With what shall we compare him
Because of his rolling gait, he is like a camel!
Because of his wry face and odd ways,
He is like a real ape!
He is like a spectre!
(They bring in the chariot.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (ne se contenant plus). Hé, Polkân! Sonnez, fanfares!
Je suis fancé: victoire!
(Fanfares; les soldats crient. Le cortège s'ebranle.)

LES SOLDATS: Hourra! Hourra!
Hourra! Hourra!

RIDEAU.

KING DODON: (beside himself with joy). Ho! Polkan! Sound the trumpets for A victory!
I am going home with a bride!
(Trumpets, and cries of the army.)

SOLDIERS: Hurrah! Hurrah!
Hurrah!

CURTAIN.

TROISIÈME ACTE

(Journée chaude et ensoleillée: mais à l'est, un lours nuage noir avance lentement: l'air est chargé d'orage. De temps en temps arrivent des messagers essoufflés. qui apportent les dernières nouvelles. Ils montent l'escalier et disparaissent a l'intérieur. Tout le monde attend anxieusement l'arrivée du roi.)

LE PEUPLE: J'ai grand peur amis!
Pourquoi?
Je l'ignore! tiens-toi coi!
Nul malheur ne nous menace:
Voyez! Le coq d'or reste en place.
Il se prélasse au soleil.
Il ne donne point l'eveil.
Et le coq est de bon conseil!
Un nuage lourd d'orage
Apparaît à l'orient,
Noir, obscur, terrifiant!
Il pleuvra! A Grêlera!
Voici venir la tempête!
Oui, la tempête!
(Au haut de l'escalier apparaît l'intendante Amelfa; tous se précipitent vers elle.)

LE PEUPLE: (avec de grands saluts). Viens-tu rassurer nos coeurs?
Nos soldats sont ils vainqueurs?
Ont ils chassé les rebelles?
De l'armée quelles nouvelles?

AMELFA: (d'une voix saccadée).
Ca ne vous regarde pas!
Détournez d'ici vos pas.

LE PEUPLE: Grâ! l'attente est cruelle!
(Plusieurs assistants s'approchent D'Amelfa et s'efforcent de baiser le bas de sa robe. Elle les repousse.)

AMELFA: He bien!
(Pour se defaire d'eux.)
Voici les nouvelles:
Quatre rois sont restés sur le carreau:
Trefle, pique, coeur, carreau.
Notre armée triomphe seule.
Dodôn sauva de la gueu le
D'un dragon la jeune reine
Qu'en triomphe il vous ramêne

ACT III

(Stifling heat. Although the sun is shining, a heavy black cloud is creeping from the East and the air is charged with a presentiment of a dreadful thunderstorm. From time to time runners, out of breath, enter, ascend the staircase and disappear within the palace. All await the royal cortege in vague alarm.)

PEOPLE: (amongst themselves).
It is dreadful! What is?
I don't know myself. There's nothing to fear;
Nothing bad will happen to us.
You see the golden cock is not beating his wings,
And is sticking up in the sun!
He warms his back and keeps silent.
If there was any misfortune he would awaken.
Look at that sullen, heavy cloud
Coming up from the East.
It carries evil in its dark depths.
There will be rain in the city;
Yes, and with thunder, even hail as well.
(The Royal Housekeeper, Amelfa, appears on the upper steps of the stairway. All rush towards her.)

PEOPLE: (bowing). Be kind! Honored mother,
And tell us if the Army is safe.
Are we to have peace, or misfortune?
You know. There were runners.

AMELFA: (curtly). There were.
Only it is no affair of yours.
Away with you! That is all I have to say.

PEOPLE: Be merciful! Our hearts are sore.
(Many of them run to Amelfa and try to kiss the hem of her dress. She pushes them away.)

AMELFA: Go away!
(Wishing to get rid of them.)
Here's the news!
You see, there are four Kings—
Hearts, Spades, Clubs, and Diamonds;
Our King has conquered them.
He has saved
A Royal Maiden from the Dragon's jaws.
She will be our Queen!

LE PEUPLE: (sans beaucoup de joie). Allégresse!
Mais les princes?
Il serait temps qu'ils revinssent!

AMELFA: Ils ne vont pas revenir:
Notre roi les fit mourir.

LE PEUPLE: (avec effroi). Sa justice est implacable!
Etaient ils donc bien coupables?

AMELFA: (avec indifférence). Ils sont mal tombés, voilà!
(Sur un ton de menace.)
Votre tour bientôt viendra!

LE PEUPLE: (Ils se grattent la nuque et sourient stupidement). Notre roi est seul le Maître!
Nous devons tous nous soumettre!
(On entend le son des trompettes.)

AMELFA: Ils viennent. Tournoyez, sautez!
Montrez votre loyauté
Par des bonds et des grimaces,
Mais n'espérez point de grâces!
(Les menaçant du doigt, elle rentre dans le palais. Dans la rue commence le cortège triomphal. D'abord, les miliciens du roi, avec des airs importants et fanfarons; puis, la suite de la Reine De Chémakha, bariolé et bizarre, comme sortie d'un conte oriental: certains personnages n'ont qu'un oeil, au milieu du front; d'autres ont des cornes, d'autres des têtes de chiens. Géants, nains. Ethiopiens grands et petits, esclaves voilées portant des cassettes et des vaisseaux precieux. Cette pompe insolite dissipe pour un instant l'anxiété du peuple. Tous s'amusent comme des enfants.—Le cortège de la reine.)
(Le Roi et La Reine apparaissent sur leur char doré. Le Roi parâit vieilli. Il a perdu sa prestance majestueuse. Son air est soucieux. Il regarde continuellement, avec tendresse, La Reine. Celle-ci s'est capricieusement tournée de côté et trahit de temps en temps par ses gestes brusques, un énervement caché. La foule se trémousse, saute, tournoie, pousse de joyeuses acclamations.)

LE PEUPLE: Soyez bienvenus!
Hourra!
Longue vie à notre roi!
Hourra! Hourra!
Vois tes serviteurs fidèles,
Dévoués et pleins de zèle,
Prêts à t'obéir toujours,
Afin d'embellir tes jours.
Nous nous mettrons à quatre pattes
Pour te dilater la rate.
Nous nous flanquerons des coups.
Le spectacle sera doux.
Nous ne sommes sur la terre
Que pour t'obéir, te plaire,

PEOPLE: (without any special joy). Well! We shall have a holiday!
But where are our hope—the Princes?

AMELFA: The King has put them in chains
And has punished them with a cruel death.

PEOPLE: (shuddering). Ah! Heavy is the Royal hand!
What did they do?

AMELFA: (indifferently). They had bad luck.
Something awaits you, too!
(threateningly.)

PEOPLE: (scratching their heads and stupidly smiling). We are yours, body and soul;
If we are beaten we have deserved it.
(A sound of trumpets is heard.)

AMELFA: They are coming! Jump like goats—
Turn somersaults for very joy.
Greet the King loudly—
But do not expect mercy.
(Threatening them once again with her finger, Amelfa enters the palace. The triumphant procession begins to pass by. First come the Royal Warriors, on foot and mounted, with faces puffed up with pride. Then the suite of The Queen of Shemakhan, of as many colors and as fantastic as those in Eastern fairy tales. There are giants and dwarfs, people with one eye in the middle of their forehead, people with horns, with heads like a dog, negros and negro boys, female slaves covered with veils carrying coffers and precious plate. The curious splendour of the procession disperses for a time the weight of expectation. All become as gay as children.)
(The golden chariot appears with the King and Queen. The King has aged somewhat, has become restless, has lost his majestic carriage, and all the time looks fondly into the eyes of the haughty Queen. The Queen capriciously turns away, expressing her secret impatient irritation by jerky movements. The People move about, jump, turn somersaults, and shout a joyful welcome.)

PEOPLE: (shouting). Long life to you! Hurrah!
May you have every good thing!
(Begin to sing.)
We are your faithful servants,
Who kiss the Royal feet.
We are glad to serve you,
To amuse you with our foolishness,
To box for you upon a holiday,
To bark, to crawl on all fours,
So that your hours may flow quickly
And may bring sweet sleep.
Without you we should have no Reason for existing;

Que pour être tes jouets,
Tes esclaves devoués!
(Sur le perron d'une des maisons apparaît L'Astrologue, toujours vêtu de sa robe bleue et la tête couverte de son bonnet.—Ayant aperçu L'Astrologue, La Reine l'examine longuement et avec attention.—Le Roi s'apprête a descendre, mais La Reine le retient, et, designant du doigt L'Astrologue.)

LA REINE: (d'un ton inquiet).
Quel est donc ce personnage?
Il a l'air fort grave et sage.
(La foule reculé devant L'Astrologue et attend, silencieuse. La Reine observe toujours L'Astrologue. Coup de tonnerre lointain.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (joyeux de reconnaître son vieil ami). Hé, bonjour, devin prudent, Mon ami, mon confident!
Dis-nous, en ce jour propice,
Tes désirs, qu'ils s'accomplissent.
(L'Astrologue traverse la foule et s'approche du char royal. Il ne quitte point des yeux La Reine.) L'ASTROLOGUE: Roi sublime, j'obéis!

Liquidons en bons amis.
Hier, en ta reconnaissance,
Tu promis sans réticence
D'exaucer mon premier voeu:
Voici donc ce que je veux:
Sans tarder tiens ta promesse,
Fais moi don de la princesse

LE ROI DODÔN: Par le diable!
C'est ainsi?
Ma réponse, la voici:
L'insolence est par trop grande,
Polisson! je te commande
De vider sans plus ces lieux.
Chassez-moi d'ici ce vieux!
(Les gardes entraînent le vieillard, qui se débat.)

L'ASTROLOGUE: C'est donc la . . . .

LE ROI DODÔN: (furieux.) Quoi, tu discutes?
Tu veux entamer la lutte?
(Il lui applique un coup de sceptre sur la tête. L'Astrologue tombe inanimé et rend l'esprit. Frémissement dans l'assistance. Des nuages voilent le soleil; le tonnerre gronde.)

LA REINE: (à part, éclate de rice).
Hihihi! Hahahaha!
Que c'est drôle, tout celà!
(Dodôn est fort troublé, mais il continue de regarder La Reine en souriant.)

LE ROI DODÔN: (avec une terreur superstitieuse). Juste avant le mariage!
C'est un bien mauvais présage . . . . .
Ce sang . . . Un malheur s'ensuivra . . .

We were born for you
And for you we have had children.
(The Astrologer appears in the portico of one of the houses, in the same blue garment and high hat. Having observed the Astrologer, the Queen looks at him long and steadfastly. The King, wishing to descend, is stopped by the Queen, who points out the Astrologer to him.)

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (uneasily). Who is that standing there in the white hat
And with hair as white as a swan?
(The crowd parts before the Astrologer, and is dumb with expectation. The Queen follows his movements.)

KING DODON: (delighted to see his old acquaintance). Ah! It's you, my wise man,
My benefactor and father!
What have you to say to us on this festal occasion?
Come nearer! What do you ask of us?
(The Astrologer wends his way through the crowd to the chariot, not taking his eyes off the Queen.)

ASTROLOGER: Great King! It is I.
Let us settle matters as friends.
Do you remember that in return for an obligation
You did swear, in transports of delight, to fulfil
My first wish as if it were your own?
Give the maiden to me—
The Queen of Shemakhan.

KING DODON: (trying to bring The Astrologer to his senses).
What! Has the devil got into you?
Or have you lost your senses?
What has got into your head?
Away with you, before I injure you!
Drag the old man away!
(The guards drag The Astrologer away. He resists.)

ASTROLOGER: Is it to be thus?

KING DODON: (raging). Are you going to argue again?
I shall show you how to argue with me!
(Strikes him on the forehead with his sceptre. He falls down dead. All the people shudder. The sun goes behind a cloud and a clap of thunder is heard.)

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (laughing to herself). Ha! Ha! Ha! I am not afraid of sin.
(Dodon very agitated, but still smiles fondly upon The Queen.)

KING DODON: (superstitiously).
I hope it will not bring misfortune
On the eve of marriage!
It is not good to shed blood upon a wedding day!

LA REINE: (sèchement). Hé bien, qui vivra vera, Voilà tout!

LE ROI DODÔN: (tranquillisé et avec ivresse). Par nos caresses Célébrons notre allégresse.
(Il vent embrasser La Reine, mais elle le repousse avec fureur et dégoût).

LA REINE: Disparais, monstre hideux,
Toi et ton peuple odieux!
C'est assez! ton âme immonde
Trop longtemps souilla le monde.
Tu souris, vieux scélérat,
Mais ton châtiment viendra!

LE ROI DODÔN: (avec un sourire contraint). Ma princesse, tu plaisantes . . .

LA REINE: Non, plus à l'heure présente.
(Ils montent l'escalier.)

LA VOIX DU COQ: Cocoricocou!
Je te percerai d'un coup.

CHOEUR: Kchi! Kchi! Kchi! Kchi!
(Subitement, Le Coq s'envole de sa flèche et voltige au-dessus de la foule. Tous, épouvantés, agitent les bras pour le chasser.—Le Coq donne un grand coup de bec sur la tête du Roi, qui tombe mort. Epouvante générale; violent coup de tonnerre.—Une obscurité complète se fait pour un moment, durant lequel on entend le rire tranquille de La Reine).

LA VOIX DE LA REINE: Hihihihi!
Hahahaha!
(Quand la nuit s'est dissipée, on ne voit plus La Reine, ni Le Coq.)

LE PEUPLE: (avec stupéfaction).
Où donc est la reine?
Envolée! Ah! notre âme est affollée . . . .
(avec espoir.)
Mais le roi?
(Tristement.)
Il est bien mort.
Quel invraisemblable sort.
(Ecrasé de douleur, Le Peuple entier entonne une lamentation funèbre.)
Il est mort . . . O peine âmere!
Notre prince! Notre père!
Notre seigneur sans pareil,
Qui brillait comme un soleil!
Il était prudent, sagace,
Parresseux, rêveur, bonasse!
So colère était terrible,
Sa fureur incoercible.
Il nous frappait comme un sourd
Plus souvent qu'à notre tour.
Mais l'orage enfin passé,
L'on pouvait se prélasser
Sous son ombre tutélaire;
Il était pour nous un père.

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: (curtly). There will be a scuffle at the banquet—
That is all.

KING DODON: (tranquilly, in a caressing tone). Let us kiss each other—
To drive away the evil omen!
(Dodon tries to embrace and kiss The Queen. She, with anger and aversion, pushes him away.)

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: May you perish, wicked monster!
And your people!
How can the earth endure such as you?
Wait! Grey-headed babbler!
Your death is not far off!

KING DODON: (smiling pitifully). You are still joking, my dear!

QUEEN OF SHEMAKHAN: No! Already we have had a sorry jest.
(They ascend the staircase. Suddenly the cock begins to fly and circles above their heads. All wave him off with their hands.)

VOICE OF THE BIRD: Cock-a-doodle-do!
I shall peck the old man on the crown of his head!

CHORUS: Sh! Sh! Sh! Sh!
(The Cock pecks Dodon on the head, and he falls dead. A clap of thunder. All struck dumb. For a moment total darkness, in which is heard the quiet laugh of The Queen. When it grows light again neither Queen nor the bird is seen.)

PEOPLE: (to each other, in astonishment). Where is the Queen?
She has vanished
As if she had never been at all!
(Hopefully.)
Is the King groaning?
(Sadly.)
No! He is dead—if it is not all a dream!
(Crushed by despair, the people finally break into mournful sobbing.)
The King is dead! Our dear one is killed!
Our happy, our debonnair, and Never-to-be-forgotten King!
Lord of Lords!
He was most wise,
And ruled the Kingdom with his Hands folded, lying at his ease . . . .
It's true! Our King in anger
Was like a thunderbolt from the heaven,
Which strikes at random,
Carrying destruction right and left,

(avec un profond désespoir.)
Quel terrible désarroi!
Qui va nous donner un roi?
(Ils s'écroulent par terre et sanglotent.)

RIDEAU.

CONCLUSION

(L'Astrologue, écartant le rideau, si présente.)

But when the cloud is passed
The heavy air is fresher,
And the King, like the golden dawn,
Lightens all without distinction.
(In perplexity.)
What will a new dawn bring?
How shall we live without a King?
(They fall on their faces and weep inconsolably.)

CURTAIN.

EPILOGUE

(Moving apart the folds of the curtain, The Astrologer looks out.)

L'ASTROLOGUE: (aux spectateurs). Nobles spectateurs, mes frères,
Ce dénouement sanguinaire
Ne doit point vous émouvoir.
Ceux que vous venez de voir
N'étaient que de vains fantômes.
Sachez que dans le royaume
De Dodon, la reine et moi.
Etions seuls humains . . . voilà!
(Il salue et disparâit.)

FIN

ASTROLOGER: (to the audience).
There! My story's ended;
But the bloody conclusion,
However sad it may be,
Need not disturb you.
Perhaps the Queen and I
Were the only living people in it;
The rest were—a delirium, a dream:
A pale spectre, nothing more . . . .
(Disappears.)

END

Il Barbiere Di Siviglia (1816)

The Barber of Seville

MUSIC BY GIOACCHINO ANTONIO ROSSINI ■ LIBRETTO BY CESARE STERBINI ■ BASED ON THE COMEDY BY PIERRE AUGUSTIN CARON DE BEAUMARCHAIS

This two-act melodramma buffo, set to a libretto by Cesare Sterbini (based on the comedy by Beaumarchais) was first performed at the Teatro Argentina in Rome on February 20, 1816. Count Almaviva is in love with Rosina, Dr. Bartolo's ward, and he serenades her to no reply. Figaro, barber and jack-of-all-trades, promises to assist him. The two men overhear Bartolo's plan to marry Rosina as soon as possible. The count, advised by Figaro, sings another serenade to Rosina disguised as Lindoro—so as to win her love for the man and not the title. This time she replies. Rosina's music teacher, Basilio, enters, telling of Count Almaviva's arrival in Seville. Rosina gives Figaro a note for Lindoro. The count, disguised as a tipsy soldier, tells Rosina that he is actually Lindoro. Bartolo intercepts the note. When he sees that it is a laundry list (!), he demands that the "soldier" be arrested. The soldier presents his card to the arresting officer and is freed at once. Bartolo is now very suspicious; the Count arrives again, disguised as the music teacher Don Alonso. Bartolo mistrusts him, and Don Alonso hands him the note from Rosina, pretending he intercepted it before Count Almaviva received it. While Bartolo naps, Don Alonso and Rosina have a "music lesson." While shaving Bartolo, Figaro takes his key to the balcony window so that the count and Rosina may escape that night. Basilio arrives unexpectedly; the count bribes him to fake an illness. Bartolo realizes that he is being fooled. Berta, the housekeeper, comments on all of the ridiculous goings-on. Bartolo sends Basilio to find a notary to witness his marriage to Rosina. He shows her the note from Lindoro, convincing her that Lindoro is not in love with her but is acting as a go-between for Count Almaviva. She falls for this and confesses her plan to escape. Figaro and Lindoro enter through the balcony window, and Lindoro tells Rosina his true identity. They declare their love and try to escape, but their ladder has been removed. Basilio enters with the notary, and Figaro brings the count and Rosina forward as the intended couple. Bartolo comes in with the police, but the marriage has already taken place. The count reveals his true identity to Bartolo, who is allowed to keep Rosina's dowry. All rejoice, and the opera ends.

■ ATTO I	■ ACT I
SCENA PRIMA	SCENE I
Il momento dell'azione è sul termine della Notte.—La Scena rappresenta una Strada in Siviglia.	A Street in Seville.—Dawn of Morning.
Fiorello, con lanterna nelle mani, introducendo vari Suonatori; indi il Conte Almaviva avvolto in un mantello.	Fiorello, with a lantern in his hand, introducing various Musicians; the Count Almaviva, wrapped up in a mantle.
FIORELLO: Piano, pianissimo, senza parlar Tutti con me venite quà.	FIORELLO: Piano, pianissimo, in tender sound, Let love's light airs now float around.
CORO: Piano, pianissimo, eccoci quà Piano, venite quà.	CHORUS: Piano, pianissimo, Love's music sound.
FIORELLO: Tutto è silenzio, nessun qui c'è; Che i nostri canti possa turbar.	FIORELLO: All wrapped in silence, no soul is near; No wandering footstep falls on the ear.
CONTE: Fiorello—olà! (Sotto voce.)	COUNT: Fiorello—ho! (In a low voice.)
FIORELLO: Signor, son quà.	FIORELLO: Sir, I am here.
CONTE: Ebben; gl'amici?	COUNT: Well; and our friends?
FIORELLO: Son pronti già.	FIORELLO: They are all ready.
CONTE: Bravi, bravissimi; Fate silenzio.	COUNT: All's well; Keep silence.
FIORELLO: Piano, pianissimo! Senza parlar. O, istante d'amor! Felice momento! O, dolce contento Ch'eguale non ha. Ei, Fiorello! (Accordano gl'istrumenti, e il Conte canta accompagnato da essi.)	FIORELLO: Softly, softly! Utter not a word. Oh, moment full of rapture! Oh, bliss almost divine! Such beauty well may capture A heart already yours. Ho, Fiorello! (They tune their instruments, and the Count sings, accompanied by them.)
FIORELLO: Mio signore?	FIORELLO: Sir?
CONTE: Dì, la vedi?	COUNT: Say, have you seen her?
FIORELLO: Signor, nò.	FIORELLO: No, sir.
CONTE: Ah, che è vana ogni speranza!	COUNT: Ah, how vain is every hope!
FIORELLO: Signor Conte, il giorno avanza.	FIORELLO: Behold, sir, the dawn advances.
CONTE: Ah, che penso—che farò? Tutto è vano. Buona gente?	COUNT: Ah, what am I to think—what shall I do? All is vain. Well, my friends?
CORO: Mio signore? (Sotto voce.)	CHORUS: Sir? (Softly.)
CONTE: Avanti, avanti; Più di suoni più di canti Io bisogno ormai non ho. (Dà una borsa a Fiorello, il quale distribuisce devari a tutti.)	COUNT: Retire, retire; I no longer need Your songs or your music. (He gives a purse to Fiorello, who distributes money to all.)
CONTE: Ecco ridente il cielo, Spunta la bella aurora, E tu non sorgiancora E puoi dormir cosi? Ah! Sòrgi mia dolce speme, Vieni bell' I	COUNT: Lo! smiling in the orient sky, Morn in her beauty breaking, Canst thou, my love, inactive lie My life, art thou not waking? Arise, my dol mio, Rendimen crudo, oh Dio! Lo stral, lo stral che mi ferì; lo stral che mi, ferì. Oh, sorte! gia veggo? Quei caro sembiante; Quest' anima amante otten ne pieta?

FIORELLO: Buona notte a tutti quanti;
Più di voi che far non so.
(Gli Suonatori circondano il Conte, ringraziàndolo, e baciandogli la mano. Egli, indispettito per lo strepito che fanno li và cacciando. Lo stesso fa anchè Fiorello.)

CORO: Mille grazie, mio Signore;
Del favore, dell'onore,
Ah! di tanta cortesìa.
Obbligati in verità!
O che incontro fortunato
È un signor di qualità!

CONTE: Basta! basta! non parlate,
Ma non serve, non gridate,
Maledetti, andate via,
Ah, canaglia, via di quà!
Tutto quanto il vicinato
Questo chiasso sveglierà.

FIORELLO: Zitti! zitti! che rumore!
Ma che onore—che favore!
(Con ironia.)
Maledetti, andate via—
Ah, canaglia, via di quà!
Veh, che chiasso indiavolato!
Ah, che rabbia che mi fa?
(Il Coro parte.)

CONTE: Gente indiscreta! Ah quasi,
Con quel chiasso importuno,
Tutto quanto il quartier han risvegliato.
Alfin sono partiti! E non si vede.
(Guardando verso la Ringhiera.)
E inutile sperar; eppur qui voglio
(Passeggia riflettendo.)
Aspettar di vederla. Ogni mattina
Ella su quel balcone
A prender fresco viene in sull' Aurora.
Proviamo.—Olà, tu ancora
Ritirati, Fiorello!

FIORELLO: Vado. Là in fondo
Attenderò suoi ordini.
(si ritira.)

SCENA II

Figaro, con Chitarra appesa al collo, e detti.

FIGARO: Largo al factotum della città largo, La,la, la,la,la,la,la,la, la, la. Presto a botte gache l'albaè già presto, la,la, la,la,la,la,,la,la la, la.

Ah, che bel vivere, che bel pìacere, che bel piacere, Per un barbiere, di qualità, di qualità. Ah, bravo, Figaro; bravo, bravissimo bravo. La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la la; Fortunatissimo, per verità, bravo, la,la, la,la,la,la,la,la la, la; fortunatissimo, per verità, fortunatissimo per verità, la,la,la, la, la,la,la la,la,la,la,la,la, la,la la,la,la,la, la.

FIGARO: La ran la lera,
La ran la la!
Pronto a far tutto
La notte e il giorno—
Sempre d'intorno
In giro stà.
Miglior cuccagna,
Per un barbiere
Vita più nobile,
Nò non si dà.
La ran la lera,
La ran la la!
Rasori, e pettini,
Lancette, e forbici—
Al mio comando
Tutto quì stà! Vi è la risorsa
Poi del mestiere
Colla donnetta,
Col cavaliere.
La ran la lera,
La ran la la!
Tutti mi chiedono,
Tutti mi vogliono—
Donne, ragazze,
Vecchi, fanciulle:
Quà la parucca!
Presto la barba!
Quà la sanguigna:
Figaro! Figaro!
Son quà, son quà.
Figaro sù, Figaro giù!
Figaro quà, Figaro la!
Pronto prontissimo—
Son come un fulmine—
Sono il factotum
Della città.
Ah, bravo, Figaro!
Bravo, bravissimo!
Fortunatissimo
Per verità.
La ran la la!
Ah! ah! che bella vita!
Faticar poco, e divertirsi assai;
È in tasca sempre aver qualche doblone,
Gran frutto della mia reputazione.
Ecco quà: senza Figaro
Non si accasa in Siviglia una ragazza;
A me la vedovella
Ricorre per marito: io, colla scusa
Del pettine di giorno,
Della chitarra col favor la notte,
A tutti onestamente—
Non fo per dir—m'adatto a far piacere,
Oh, che vita, che vita! oh, che mestiere!
Orsù, presto a bottega—heart's own treasure, All that my soul holds dear; Oh! turn my grief to pleasure! Awake, my love, my love, appear; awake, my love, appear. Oh, joy! and do I see thee? My doubts all disappear; Those eyes are heaven to me! What have I now to fear?

FIORELLO: Good night to all;
I have nothing farther for you to do.
(The Musicians surround the Count, thanking him and kissing his hand. Annoyed by the noise they make, he tries to drive them away. Fiorello does the same.)

CHORUS: Many thanks, sir, for this favor;
Better master, nor a braver,
Ever did we sing a stave for.
Pray, good sir, command our throats!
We will ever sing and pray for
One who gives us gold for notes!

COUNT: Silence! silence! cease your bawling,
Nor like cats with caterwauling
Wake the neighbors—stop your squalling,
Rascals, or I'll dust your coats!
If you still keep making this noise,
You'll be waking all the neighbors.

FIORELLO: Silence! silence! what an uproar!
For these favors—for such honor!
(Mocking them.)
Rascals, hence, away—
Scoundrels, quit the spot!
Eh, what a devilish uproar!
Are you mad, or not?
(Exit Chorus.)

COUNT: The indiscreet rabble!
They had nearly,
Awakened the whole neighborhood with their importunate clamors.
At last they're gone! But she does not appear.
(Looking towards the balcony.)
It is in vain to hope; yet I will (He paces pensively up and down.)
Wait here till I behold her. Every morning
She comes into this balcony
To breathe the fresh air at early dawn.
Here will I wait.—Ho, Fiorello!
Do you also retire.

FIORELLO: I go. Yonder
I will await your commands.
(He withdraws.)

SCENE II

Figaro, with his Guitar round his neck, and the preceding.

FIGARO: Room for the city's factotum, here, La,la la,la,la,la,la,la, la, la. I must be off to my shop, for the dawn is near, la,la, la,la,la,la,la,la,la, la, What a merry life, what gay pleasure, what gay pleasure, Awaits a barber of quality, of quality. Ah, bravo, Figaro; bravo, bravissimo bravo. La,la, la,la,la,la,la,la, la, la; You are surely the happiest of men, bravo. la,la, la,la,la,la,la,la la, la; The happiest of men, surely you are. The happiest of men, surely, la,la,la, la, la,la,la, la,la,la,la,la,la, la,la,la,la,la,la, la.

FIGARO: La ran la lera,
La ran la la!
Ready to do everything
Both by night and by day—
Perpetually in bustle
And in motion.
What happier lot,
What nobler life
For a barber,
Than my own!
La ran la lera,
La ran la la!
Razors and combs,
Lancets and scissors—
Everything is Ready at command!
Then there are the snug
Perquisites of business
With gay damsels,
With cavaliers.
La ran la lera,
La ran la la!
All call for me,
All want me—
Dames, maidens,
Old and young:
My peruke! cries one;
Quick, my beard! another;
Here, bleed me! a third:
Figaro! Figaro!
I am here, I am here.
Figaro up, Figaro down!
Figaro here, Figaro there!
I am activity itself—
I'm quick as lightning—
I'm the factotum
Of the city.
Ah, bravo, Figaro!
Bravo, bravissimo!
Most fortunate of men
In every truth.
La ran la lera,
La ran la la!
Ah! ah! what a happy life!
But little fatigue, and abundant amusement;
Always with some doubloons in my pocket,
The noble fruit of my reputation.
So it is: without Figaro
There's not a girl in Seville will marry;
To me the little widows
Have recourse for a husband: I, under excuse
Of my comb by day,
And under favor of my guitar by night,
Endeavor—though I don't do it for the sake of saying so—
To please all in an honest way.
Oh, what a life, what a life! Oh, what business!
Now, away to the shop—

CONTE: (È desso, o pur m'inganno.)	COUNT: (It is he, or I am much deceived.)
FIGARO: (Chi sarà mai costui?)	FIGARO: (Who may this be?)
CONTE: Oh, è lui senz' altro. Figaro!	COUNT: It is no less than himself. Figaro!
FIGARO: Mio padrone! Oh, chi veggo?—Eccellenza—	FIGARO: Good master! Oh, whom do I see?—your Excellency—
CONTE: Zitto! zittoù prudenza: Qui non son conosciuto, Nè vò farmi conoscere—per questo Ho le mie gran ragioni.	COUNT: Hush! hush! be prudent; I am not known here, Nor do I wish to be—for this I have the best of reasons.
FIGARO: Intendo, intendo— La lascio in libertà.	FIGARO: I understand, I understand— I'll not interrupt you.
CONTE: No!	COUNT: Stop!
FIGARO: Che serve?	FIGARO: For what purpose?
CONTE: No, dico—resta quà: Ora mi spiego. Al Prado Vidi un fior di bellezza—una fanciulla, Figlia di un certo medico barbogio, Che quà da pochi dì s'è stabilito. Io di questa invaghito Lasciai patria e parenti; e quà men venni, Col nome di Lindoro; E quà la notte e il giorno, Passo girando a quei balconi intorno.	COUNT: No, I tell you—stop here: I will explain myself. On the Prado I beheld a flower of beauty—a maiden, The daughter of a certain silly old physician, who Has established himself here within these few days. Enamored of this damsel, I have left My country and relatives; and come here, Under the name of Lindor: Night and day, I watch and wander near this balcony.
FIGARO: A quei balconi?—un medico? Oh, cospetto! Siete ben fortunato: Sui maccheroni il cacio v'è cascato.	FIGARO: Near this balcony?—a physician? Zounds! You are very fortunate: And must make hay while the sun shines.
CONTE: Come!	COUNT: Explain!
FIGARO: Certo.—Là dentro Io son barbiere, parucchier, chirurgo, Botanico, spezial, veterinario— Il faccendier di casa.	FIGARO: Certainly.—In this house I am a barber, perruquier, surgeon, Botanist, apothecary, veterinary— The major-domo of the house.
CONTE: Ah, bella sorte!	COUNT: Oh, how fortunate!
FIGARO: Non basta: la ragazza Figlia non è del medico—e soltanto La sua pupilla.	FIGARO: But this is not all: the girl is not The daughter of the physician—she is only his ward.
CONTE: Ah, che consolazione!	COUNT: Oh, what a consolation!
FIGARO: Perciò? zitto!	FIGARO: How so? but hush!
CONTE: Cos'è?	COUNT: What is it?
FIGARO: S'apre il balcone! (Si ritirano sotto il Portico.)	FIGARO: See, the balcony opens. (They retire under the Portico.)

SCENA III

SCENE III

Rosina; e poi Bartolo, sul Balcone; e detti in Strada.	Rosina; afterwards Bartolo, on the Balcony; and the preceding, in the Street.
ROSINA: Non è venuto ancora?—forse—	ROSINA: Has he not come yet? Perhaps—
CONTE: Oh, mia vita! mio nume! mio tesoro! Vi veggo al fine—al fine—	COUNT: Oh, my life! my angel! my treasure! At length do I behold you—at length—
ROSINA: (Ah, che vergogna! Vorrei dargli il biglietto.)	ROSINA: (Oh, how provoking! I wished to give him this note.)
BARTOLO: Ebben, ragazza, Il tempo è buono. cos'è questa carta?	BARTOLO: Well, daughter, It is fine weather. Pray, what letter is that?
ROSINA: Nulla, signore: sono le parole Dell'aria dell' "Inutil Precauzione."	ROSINA: Nothing, sir: only the words Of an air in the "Useless Precaution."
CONTE: Ma brava!—dell' "Inutil Precauzione."	COUNT: Well and good!—of the "Useless Precaution!"
ROSINA: Ah me meschina! l'aria mi è caduta: Raccoglietela presto.	ROSINA: Unfortunate that I am! I have let the air drop. Make haste and pick it up.
BARTOLO: Vado, vado. (Scende.)	BARTOLO: I go, I go. (He goes down.)
ROSINA: Pst! pst!—	ROSINA: Pst! Pst!
CONTE: Ho inteso—	COUNT: I understand—
ROSINA: Presto!	ROSINA: Make haste!
CONTE: Non temete.	COUNT: Never fear.
BARTOLO: Son quà. Dov'è? (Uscendo in Strada.)	BARTOLO: Here I am. What is it? (Coming into the Street.)
ROSINA: Ah, il vento Se l'ha portato via— Guardate.	ROSINA: Oh, the wind Has carried it away— Look again.
BARTOLO: Io non la veggo;—ehi, signorina? Io non vorrei. (Cospetto! Costei m'avesse preso!) In casa! in casa! Animo, sù! A chi dico? In casa, presto!	BARTOLO: I can't see it;—where, young lady? I'll search no more. (Zounds! She may have tricked me!) In! into the house! Come, come! Do you mind what I say? Quick, into the house!
ROSINA: Vado, vado;—che furia!	ROSINA: Well, I am going;—what a fury!
BARTOLO: Quel balcone lo voglio far murare. Dentro, dico!	BARTOLO: I will surely have that balcony walled up. In, I say!
ROSINA: A che vita da crepare! (Entrando.)	ROSINA: Oh, what a scolding life I lead! (Entering.)
CONTE: Povera disgraziata! Il suo stato infelice Sempre più m'interessa.	COUNT: Poor unhappy maid! Her wretched situation Still more interests me in her behalf.
FIGARO: Presto, presto— Vediamo cosa scrive.	FIGARO: Come, come— Let us see what she has written.
CONTE: Appunto, leggi.	COUNT: Well, read.
FIGARO: "Le vostre assidue premure hanno eccitato la mia curiosità. Il mio tutore è per uscir di casa: appena si sarà allontanato, procurate con qualche mezzo ingegnoso di indicarmi il vostro nome, il vostro stato, e le vostre intenzioni. Io non posso giammai comparire al balcone senza l'indivisibile compagnia del mio tiranno. Siate però certo che tutto à disposto a fare per rompere le sue catene, la sventurata Rosina."	FIGARO: "Your assiduous attentions have excited my curiosity. My guardian is shortly going out: as soon as you see him leave the house, devise some ingenious method of acquainting me with your name, circumstances, and intentions. I can never appear at the balcony without being haunted by the inseparable attendance of my tyrant. Be, therefore, assured, that entirely disposed to break her chains, is the unhappy—Rosina."
CONTE: Sì, sì le romperò;—su, dimmi un poco Che razza d'uomo è questo suo tutore?	COUNT: Yes, yes, she shall break them;—but tell me, What kind of fellow is this guardian of hers?
FIGARO: Un vecchio indemoniato! Avaro, sospettoso, brontolone; Ajuto, ajuto!	FIGARO: Oh, a very demon! All avarice and suspicion, a terrible blusterer, But have a care, have a care!
CONTE: Che?	COUNT: Oh what?

FIGARO: S'apre la porta.	FIGARO: The door opens.
BARTOLO: Ehi; fra momenti io torno. (Uscendo dalla porta, e parlando verso le quinte.) Non aprite a nessun. Se Don Basilio Venisse a ricercarmi, che m'aspetti. (Chiude la porta di casa.) Le mie nozze con lei voglio affrettare. Si, dentr'oggi finir vò quest'affare. (Parte.)	BARTOLO: So; I shall return in a few minutes. (Coming out of the door, and speaking towards the side.) Don't let any one in. If Don Basilio Should come to inquire for me, let him wait. (He shuts the door cautiously.) I wish to hurry on my marriage with her. Yes, this very day I am going to conclude the affair. (Exit.)
CONTE: Dentr'oggi le sue nezze con Rosina. Ah vecchio rimbambito! Ma dimmi or tu, chi è questo Don Basilio?	COUNT: This very day conclude his marriage with Rosina? Oh, the foolish old dotard! But tell me, who is this Don Basilio?
FIGARO: È un solenne imbroglion di matrimonj— Un collo torto, un vero disperato. Sempre senza un quattrino. Già è maestro di musica, Insegna alla ragazza.	FIGARO: A famous intriguing matchmaker— A hypocrite, a desperate fellow, With never a farthing in his pocket. He has lately turned music-master. And teaches this girl.
CONTE: Bene, bene! Tutto giova saper; di tue fatiche Largo compenso avrai.	COUNT: Well and good! It is right to know all these things; And you shall be well rewarded for your trouble.
FIGARO: Davver!	FIGARO: Indeed!
CONTE: Parola.	COUNT: On my word.
FIGARO: Dunque oro a discrezione?	FIGARO: Then, shall I touch the gold handsomely?
CONTE: Oro a bizzeffe. Animo, via.	COUNT: To your heart's content. Come, be active.
FIGARO: Son pronto. Ah, non sapete I simpatici effetti prodigiosi; Che ad appagare il mio Signore Lindoro Produce in me la dolce idea dell' oro.	FIGARO: I'm all readiness. You cannot imagine What a prodigious effect the idea of a Reward has produced on me; and what sympathy I feel in the success of Signor Lindor.
FIGARO: All' idea di quel metallo, Portentoso onnipossente, Un vulcano, un vulcano, la mia mente. Già comincia, gia comincia a diventar; Sì all' idea di quel metallo un vulcano, La mia mente già comincia a diventar, Sì, sì, all' idea di quel metallo un vulcano, La mia mente già comincia a diventar, a diventar, a diventar, Un vulcano incomincia a diventar.	FIGARO: Mighty Jove, in golden shower, Once, who fell on Danae's breast, Give to me, oh! give to me gold's dazzling power. Every maid would make me blessed, would make me blessed; Yes, give to me, give to me gold's dazzling power, Every maid would make me blessed, would make me blessed, Yes, yes, give to me, give to me gold's dazzling power, Every maid would make me blessed, would make me blessed would make me blessed, would make me blessed. Every maid would make me blessed.
CONTE: Su vendiamo, su vediam di quel metallo, Qual che effetto, qual che effetto sorprendente: Del vulcan, del vulcan della tua mente, Qual che mostro, qualche mostro, singolar, sì, Del vulcan della tua mente, Qual che mostro, singolar, sì, sì, Del vulcan della tua mente, Qual che mostro singolar, sì, singolar, sì, singolar; Qual che mostro singolar.	COUNT: Hold your pompous, hold your pompous silly railing, Gold but wins, gold but wins the meaner part: True love's song is more prevailing, more prevailing, Dearest, give me, dearest, give me heart for heart; Ah, true love's song is more prevailing, Dearest, give me, dearest, give me heart for heart, True love's song is more prevailing Dearest, give me, dearest, give me heart for heart, oh, give me heart for heart; Dearest, give me heart for heart.
FIGARO: Voi dovreste travestirri, peresempio da soldato	FIGARO: You must disguise yourself— For example, as a soldier.
CONTE: Da soldato?	COUNT: As a soldier?
FIGARO: Sì, signore.	FIGARO: Even so, sir.
CONTE: Da soldato!—e che si fà?	COUNT: As a soldier!—and for what purpose?
FIGARO: Oggi arriva un reggimento.	FIGARO: Today a regiment is expected here.
CONTE: Sì, m'e amico il Colonello.	COUNT: Yes; the Colonel is a friend of mine.
FIGARO: Va benon!	FIGARO: Excellent!
CONTE: Ma, e poi?	COUNT: Why so?
FIGARO: Cospetto! Dell' alloggio col biglietto, Quella porta si aprirà. Che ne dite, mio signore? L'invenzione è naturale.	FIGARO: Zounds! By means of a billet, yonder door Will soon open to you. What say you to this, my good sir? The invention is not amiss.
CONTE: Oh, che testa universale! Bravo! bravo in verità!	COUNT: What an original genius. Excellent! excellent in truth!
FIGARO: Oh, che testa universale! Bella—bella in verità! Piano, piano—un altra idea. Veda l'oro cosa fà! Ubriaco!—si ubriaco, Mio signor, si fingerà.	FIGARO: What a capacious head I have Excellent! excellent, in truth! Softly, softly—another thought. See the power of your gold! Drunk!—yes, my good sir, You must pretend to be drunk.
CONTE: Ubriaco?	COUNT: Drunk?
FIGARO: Sì, signore.	FIGARO: Even so, sir?
CONTE: Ubriaco!—ma perchè?	COUNT: Drunk!—but for what purpose?
FIGARO: Perchè d'un che poco è in se— Che dal vino casca già (Imitando i moti di Ubriaco.) Il tutor credete a me, Il tutor si fiderà.	FIGARO: Because the guardian, believe me— The guardian would less distrust (Imitating the movements of a drunken man.) A man not quite himself But overcome with wine.
ASSIEME: Questa è bella per mia fè. Bravo! bravo! in verità!	BOTH: This is excellent, by my faith. Bravo! bravo! excellent truly!
CONTE: Dunque?	COUNT: Well, then?
FIGARO: All' opra.	FIGARO: To business.
CONTE: Andiam.	COUNT: Let us to it.
FIGARO: Da bravo.	FIGARO: With spirit.
CONTE: Vado.—Oh, il meglio mi scordavo: Dimmi un po, la tua bottega? Per trovarti dove stà.	COUNT: I go.—Oh, I had forgotten the important part of the business: Tell me, where is your shop? That I may not miss finding you.
FIGARO: La bottega?—non si sbaglia. Guardi bene, eccola là. (Additando fra le quinte.) Numero quindici, a mano manca, bianca— Quattro grandini, facciata bianca Cinque parrucche nella vetrina; Sopra un cartello, "Pommata Fina;" Mostra in azzurro alla moderna; V'è per insegna una lanterna. Là senza fallo mi troverà.	FIGARO: My shop?—you cannot mistake it. Look yonder, there it is: (Pointing to the side.) Number fifteen, on the left hand, With four steps, a white front—there, Five wigs in the window; On a placard, "Pomade Divine;" A show-glass, too, of the latest fashion, And my sign is a lantern. There, without fail, you will find me.
CONTE: Ho ben capito.	COUNT: Do you be upon the alert.

FIGARO: Or, vado presto.

CONTE: Tu guarda bene.

FIGARO: Io penso al resto.

CONTE: Di te mi fido.

FIGARO: Cola l'attendo.

CONTE: Mio caro Figaro!

FIGARO: Intendo, intendo.

CONTE: Porterò meco—

FIGARO: La borsa piena?

CONTE: Si quel che vuoi.

FIGARO: Ma il resto poi—
Oh, non si dubiti che bene andrà.

CONTE: Ah, che d'amore, La fiammaio sento, Nunzia di giubilo E di contento! D'ardor insolito, Quest' alma accende E di me stesso, Maggior mi fà. Ah che d'amore. La fiamma sento, Nunzia di giù billo E di contento! Ecco propizia, Che in sen mi scende

FIGARO: Delle monete, Il suon già sento, Delle monete, il suon già sento, Delle monete, Il suon già sento, Il suon già sento, Già viene l'e ro; Già viene l'oro, Viene l'argento, Già viene l'oro, Viene l'argento; Già viene loro Già viene l'oro, eccolo; Eccolo già vien' l'argento, Già' vien' l'argento, eccolo; Eccolo in tasca scende, Eccolo quà; D'ardor insolito, Quest'almaaccende.
(Figaro entra in Casa.—Il Conte parte.)

FIGARO: Leave the rest to me.

COUNT: I perfectly understand.

FIGARO: Haste, no delay!

COUNT: I trust in you.

FIGARO: I shall wait for you yonder.

COUNT: My dear Figaro!

FIGARO: I understand, I understand.

COUNT: I will bring with me—

FIGARO: A purse well filled?

COUNT: Yes, to your heart's content.

FIGARO: And as for the rest—
Oh, doubt not of our complete success.

COUNT: When song is flowing, When love is glowing, Over fancy throwing Her light divine! Thoughts bright and beaming, As sunbeams, streaming, Over maidens dreaming, Then, then, are mine. When song is flowing. When love is glowing, Over fancy throwing Her light, her light divine. Over maidens dreaming, Then, then, are mine.

FIGARO: When cups are clinking, When gold is chinking, Those to my thinking Are more divine! Thoughts bright and beaming, as guineas streaming, Over misers dreaming, Then, then, are mine; Thoughts bright and beaming, As guineas streaming, Over misers dreaming, Then, then, are mine; As guineas streaming, Then, then, are mine, then are mine; Thoughts bright and beaming, As guineas streaming, then are mine; Over misers streaming, Then, then, are mine; Over misers dreaming, Then, then are mine.
(Figaro enters the House.—Exit the Count.)

SCENA IV

Camera nella Casa di Don Bartolo.

Rosina, con lettera in mano.

ROSINA: Una voce poco fà:
Qui' nel cor mi risuonò!
Il mio cor ferito è già;
E Lindor fu che il piagò.
Sì, Lindoro mio sarà!
Lo giurai, la vincerò.
Il tutor ricuserà;
Io l'ingengno aguzzerò:
Alla fin s'accheterà,
E contenta io resterò,
Sì, Lindoro mio sarà!
Lo giurai—la vincerò.
Sì, sì, la vincerò. Potessi almeno
Mandargli questa lettera!—ma come?
Di nessun quì mi fido:
Il tutor ha cent'occhi.—Basta, basta,
Sigilliamo intanto.

SCENE IV

A Chamber in Don Bartolo's House.

Rosina, with a letter in her hand.

ROSINA: I heard a little voice just now:
Oh, it has thrilled my very heart!
I feel that I am wounded sore;
And it was Lindor who hurled the dart.
Yes, Lindor, dearest, shall be mine!
I've sworn it, and we'll never part.
My guardian sure will never consent;
But I must sharpen all my wit:
Content at last, he will relent,
And we, oh, joy! be wedded yet,
Yes, Lindor I have sworn to love!
And, loving, we'll our cares forget.
Yes, yes, he shall triumph. Could I but Send him this letter!—but how?
There is no one here I can trust:

Con Figaro il barbiere dalla finestra
Discorrer l'ho veduto più d'un ora;—

ROSINA: Io sono docile, Sonrispettosa, Sono obbediente Dolceamorosa; Mi lascio reggere, Mi lascio reggere Mi fò guidar, mi fo guidar, Ma se mi toccano doveil mio debole, Saròuna vipera, sarò, E cento trappole Prima dicedere, farò giocar, farò giocar, E cento trappole, Prima dicedere, farò giocar, farò giocar;
Figaro è un galantuomo,
Un giovin di buon cuore:
Chi sà ch'ei non protegga il nostro amore?

SCENA V

Rosina e Figaro.

FIGARO: Oh, buon dì! Signorina.

ROSINA: Buon giorno! signor Figaro.

FIGARO: Ebbene, che si fa?

ROSINA: Si muor di noja.

FIGARO: Oh, diavolo! possibile!
Una ragazza bella e spiritosa.

ROSINA: Ah, ah, mi fate ridere
Che mi serve lo spirito,—
Che giova la bellezza,
Se chiusa io sempre sto fra quattro mura,
Che mi par d'esser proprio in sepoltura?

FIGARO: In sepoltura! oibò!
(Chaimandola a parte.)
Sentite, io voglio—

ROSINA: Ecco il tutor!

FIGARO: Davvero!

ROSINA: Certo, certo! la sua voce!

FIGARO: Salva! salva! fra poco
(Parte.)
Ci rivedremo—ho a dirvi qualche cosa.

ROSINA: E ancor io, Signor Figaro.

FIGARO: Bravissima, vado!

ROSINA: Quanto è garbato.
(Parte.)

SCENA VI

Bartolo e Don Basilio.

My guardian has a hundred eyes.—
Well, well,
At least I will seal it.
From my window I beheld him conversing
For more than an hour with Figaro the barber;—

ROSINA: With mild and docile air, And playful as a lamb, never was gentler fair Than all confess I am; Doves not more meek appear, if none provoke or chide, If none provoke or chide; But if with tyrant sway My mind they seek to fix, My mind they seek to fix, I'd die to have my way: A thousand wayward tricks, and subtle wiles, I'd play, before they should guide my will, Before they should guide my will, Before they should guide my will;
Figaro is an honest fellow,
A good-hearted lad:
Who knows: he may favor our love?

SCENE V

Rosina and Figaro.

FIGARO: Oh, good day! Signorina.

ROSINA: Good day! Signor Figaro.

FIGARO: Well, what are you doing?

ROSINA: I am dying with ennui.

FIGARO: Oh, the deuce! impossible!
For one so handsome, so full of spirit.

ROSINA: You make me smile, Figaro:
Of what use is my spirit,
What avails my beauty,
If forever shut up between four walls,
Which appear as dreary as a sepulchre?

FIGARO: A sepulchre! good Heavens!
(Taking her aside.)
I wish to know—

ROSINA: See! see! my guardian!

FIGARO: Indeed!

ROSINA: Certainly, certainly!
There is his voice!

FIGARO: Adieu! adieu! in a few moments
(Exit.)
I will see you again—I have something to tell you.

ROSINA: And so have I, Signor Figaro.

FIGARO: Adieu, fair lady!

ROSINA: A civil fellow this.
(Exit.)

SCENE VI

Bartolo and Don Basilio.

BARTOLO: Don Basilio,
Venite a tempo. Oh io voglio
Per forza, oh per amor, dentro domani
Sposar la mia Rosina.—Avete inteso?

BASILIO: Eh, voi dite benissimo;
E appunto io quì veniva ad avvisarvi.
(Chiamandola a parte.)
Ma segretezza!—è giunto
Il Conte d'Almaviva.

BARTOLO: Chi! l'incognito amante
Della Rosina?

BASILIO: Appunto quello.

BARTOLO: Oh, diavolo!
Ah quì ci vuol riparo.

BASILIO: Certo; ma, alla sordina—

BARTOLO: Sarebbe a dir—

BASILIO: Così con buona grazia
Bisogna principiare
A inventar qualche favola
Che al pubblico lo metta in mala vista.

BARTOLO: E vorreste?—Ma una calunnia—

BASILIO: Ah, dunque,
La calunnia cos'è voi non sapete?

BARTOLO: No, davvero.

BASILIO: No?—Uditemi, e tacete.
La calunnia è un venticello
Un'auretta assai gentile;
Che insensibile, sottile,
Leggermente, dolcemente
Incomincia a susurrar
Piano piano, terra terra,
Sotto voce sibillando,
Và scorrendo, và ronzando
Nelle orecchie della gente,— S'introduce destramente,
E le teste ed i cervelli,
Fà stordire, e fa gonfiar.
Dalla bocca fuori uscendo,
Lo schiamazzo và crescendo;
Prende forza a poco a poco,
Scorre già di loco in loco,
Sembra il tuono, la tempesta,
Che nel sen della foresta,
Va fischiando, brontolando,
E ti fa d'orror gelar.
Alla fin trabocca, e scoppia,
Si propaga, e si raddoppia,
E produce un esplosione
Come un colpo di cannone.
Un tremoto, un temporale,
Un tremoto generale,
Che fa l'aria rimbombar.
E il meschino, calunniato,
Avvilito, calpestato,
Sotto il pubblico flagello,
Per gran sorte và a crepar.
(Partono.)

BARTOLO: Don Basilio,
You come just in time. I wish
Tomorrow, either by force or love,
To marry my Rosina.—Do you understand?

BASILIO: Ah! you speak wisely;
And I was just coming myself to advise with you.
(Taking him aside.)
But be secret!—The Count Almaviva has arrived.

BARTOLO: What! the unknown lover
Of Rosina?

BASILIO: The very same.

BARTOLO: Oh, the devil
Something must be done here.

BASILIO: Certainly; but, between ourselves—

BARTOLO: That is to say—

BASILIO: We must boldly
Begin by inventing
Some plausible story, that may Disgrace him in the eyes of the public.

BARTOLO: And would you? But a calumny—

BASILIO: Oh, then,
You don't know what a calumny is?

BARTOLO: No, indeed.

BASILIO: No?—Then hear, and be silent.
Oh! calumny is like the sigh
Of gentlest zephyrs breathing by;
How softly sweet, along the ground,
Its first shrill voice is heard around:
So soft, that, sighing amid the bowers,
It scarcely fans the drooping flowers.
Thus will the voice of calumny,
More subtle than the plaintive sigh,
In many a serpent-wreathing, find
Its secret passage to the mind,—
The heart's most inmost feelings gain,
Bedim the sense, and fire the brain.
Then passing on from tongue to tongue,
It gains new strength, it sweeps along
In giddier whirl from place to place,
And gains fresh vigor in its race;
Till, like the sounds of tempests deep,
That sweep through the woods in murmurs
And howl amid their caverns,
It shakes the trembling soul with fear.
At length the fury of the storm
Assumes its wildest, fiercest form,—
In one loud crash of thunder
And, like an earthquake, rocks the shores.
While all the frowning vault of heaven.
Is riven with many a fiery bolt
Thus calumny, a simple breath,
Engenders rain, wreck, and death;
And sinks the wretched man forlorn,
Beneath the lash of slander torn,
The victim of the public scorn.
(Exeunt.)

SCENA VII

Figaro, uscendo con precauzione; indi Rosina.

FIGARO: Ma bravi! ma benone!
Ho inteso tutto. Evviva il buon dottore!
Povero babbuino!
Tua sposa!—eh via. Pulisciti il bocchino
Or che stanno là chiusi,
Procuriam di parlare alla ragazza;
Eccola appunto.

ROSINA: Ebbene, Signor Figaro?

FIGARO: Gran cose Sigorina

ROSINA: Sì, davver!

FIGARO: Mangerem dei confetti.

ROSINA: Come sarebbe a dir?

FIGARO: Sarebbe a dire
Che il vostro bel tutore ha stabilito
Esser dentro doman vostro marito.

ROSINA: Eh, via!

FIGARO: Oh, ve lo giuro;
A stendere il contratto
Col maestro di musica,
Là dentro si è serrato.

ROSINA: Sì! L'ha sbagliata affè!
Povero sciocco! l'avrà da far con me.
Ma dite, Signor Figaro,
Voi poco fa sotto le mie finestre,
Parlavate a un signore—

FIGARO: Ah! un mio cugino—
E' un bravo giovinotto; buona testa,
Ottimo cuor! quì venne
I suoi studj a compire, e il poverino,
Cerca di far fortuna.

ROSINA: Fortuna?—eh, la farà.

FIGARO: Oh, ne dubito assai; in confidenza,
Ha un gran difetto addosso.

ROSINA: Un gran difetto?

FIGARO: Ah, grande;
E' innamorato morto.

ROSINA: Sì, davvero?
Quel giovine, vedete
M'interessa moltissimo.

FIGARO: Per Bacco!

ROSINA: Non ci credete?

FIGARO: Oh sì.

SCENE VII

Figaro, coming forth with precaution; then Rosina.

FIGARO: Bravo! all goes on well!
I have overheard everything.
So, so, good Mr. Doctor!
Your spouse!—a good joke. The grapes are sour.
While they remain shut up yonder,
I will endeavor to speak to the girl;
But here she is, à propos.

ROSINA: Well, Signor Figaro?

FIGARO: I have great things to tell you, Signorina.

ROSINA: Indeed!

FIGARO: We shall eat wedding cake shortly.

ROSINA: What do you mean?

FIGARO: I mean
That this fine guardian of yours has settled
That tomorrow he is to be your husband.

ROSINA: Oh, pooh!

FIGARO: Yes, I swear it:
Even now he is closeted
With your music-master,
Drawing up the contract.

ROSINA: Indeed! In truth he is much mistaken!
Poor fellow! he shall find with whom he has to do.
But tell me, Mr. Figaro,
Just now, below my window,
You were speaking to a gentleman—

FIGARO: Oh, a cousin of mine—
An excellent young man, with a good head,
And the best of hearts; he has come here
To finish his studies, and to try, poor fellow,
To make his fortune.

ROSINA: His fortune?—Oh, he will make it.

FIGARO: Aha, I doubt it much; in confidence,
I tell you he has one great failing.

ROSINA: A great failing, said you?

FIGARO: Yes, a great one;
He is dying in love.

ROSINA: Ah, indeed?
Do you know that this young man
Interests me extremely.

FIGARO: Good Lord!

ROSINA: Don't you believe it?

FIGARO: Oh, certainly.

ROSINA: Ma la sua bella
Dite, abita lontano?

FIGARO: Oh nò!—cioè!
Quì a due passi—

ROSINA: Ma è bella?

FIGARO: Oh, bella assai—eccovi il suo ritratto,
Che vi fo in due parole:
Svelta, gentil, vezzosa,
Capelli neri, guancia porporina,
Occhio che parla, mano che innamora.

ROSINA: E il nome?

FIGARO: Ah, il nome ancora?
Il nome?—Ah, che bel nome!—
Si chiama—

ROSINA: Ebben? si chiama?

FIGARO: Poverina!
Si chiama Ro-ro-ro-si-na—Rosina.

ROSINA: Dunque io son, tu non m'inganni? Dunqeu io son, la fortunata? (Già l'ero immaginata, Lo sapevo pria dite;) Dunque io sono, tu non m'inganni; Già l'éro immaginata, Lo sapevo pria di te, già lo sapevo pria di te; Lo sapevo pria dite.

FIGARO: Di Lindoro il vago oggetto; Siete voi, bella Rosina, siete voi, siete voi, bellà Rosina (Oh che volpe sopraffina, ah! che volpe sopraffina Mà l'a vrà da far con me;) Si, mà l'a vrà da far con me.

ROSINA: Senti, senti, ma a Lindoro,
Per parlar come si fà.

FIGARO: Zitto, zitto, quì Lindoro
Per parlarvi or sarà.

ROSINA: Per parlarmi? bravo! bravo!
Vengo pur, ma con prudenza;
Io già moro d' impazienza!
Ah che tarda? cosa fa?

FIGARO: Egli attende qualche segno
Poverin del vostro affetto
Sol due righe di biglietto,
Gli mandate, e qui verrà.
Che ne dite?

ROSINA: Non saprei.

FIGARO: Su coraggio!

ROSINA: Non vorrei–

FIGARO: Sol due righe.

ROSINA: Mi vergogno.

FIGARO: Ma di che?—di che?—si sa?
Presto, presto, quà un biglietto.
(Andando allo scrittojo.)

ROSINA: Un biglietto! eccolo quà.
(Richiamandolo; cava dal seno il biglietto, e glie lo da.)

ROSINA: But tell me, does this fair one
Live far from this place?

FIGARO: Oh no!—that is—
But two paces from here—

ROSINA: Is she handsome?

FIGARO: Oh, very much so—behold her portrait,
Which I give you in two words:
A handsome, graceful figure,
Jetty locks, a rosy cheek,
An eye that speaks, a hand whose touch thrills one.

ROSINA: And her name?

FIGARO: Ah, her name too?
Her name?—Ah, what a sweet name!—
She's called—

ROSINA: Well, what is she called?

FIGARO: Sweet creature!
She's called Ro-ro-ro-si-na—Rosina.

ROSINA: What am I, or do you mock me? Am I, then, the happy being? (But I foreseeing all the scheme, Knew it, sir, before yourself;) What am I then, or do you mock me? But I, foreseeing all the scheme, Knew it, sir, before you did, I knew it, sir, before you did; Knew it, sir before you did.

FIGARO: Yes, Lindoro loves you, lady; he sighs for his Rosina, softly sighing, softly sighing for his Rosina She seems cunning as a fox ah! She seems cunning as a fox, Ah! by my faith, she sees through all;) Yes, by my faith she sees through all.

ROSINA: Still one word, Sir, to my Lindor.
How shall I contrive to speak.

FIGARO: Patience, patience, and your lover
Soon will seek your presence here

ROSINA: Will seek me here? Oh, joy supreme!
Let him come with caution.
I die to know how he will scheme!
Where can he linger?

FIGARO: Poor man, he awaits some sign
Of your affection and assent:
A little note, a single line,
And he will soon present himself.
To this, what say you?

ROSINA: I do not know.

FIGARO: Take courage, pray you.

ROSINA: I could not so—

FIGARO: A few lines merely.

ROSINA: I blush to write.

FIGARO: At what?—why really—may I indite?
Haste, haste, invite your lover quick.
(Going to the desk.)

ROSINA: A letter! Oh, here it is.
(Calling him; she takes a note from her bosom, which she gives him.)

FIGARO: Già era scritto!—oh ve' che bestia!
(Attonito.)
E il maestro io faccio a lei!
Ah, che in cattedra costei
Di malizia può dettar.
Donne, donne! eterni dei,
Chi vi arriva a indovinar?

ROSINA: Fortunati affetti miei,
Io comincio a respirar;
Ah tu solo, amor tu sei,
Che mi devi consolar.
(Figaro parte.)

SCENA VIII

Rosina, indi Bartolo.

ROSINA: Ora mi sento meglio.
Questo Figaro è un bravo giovinotto!

BARTOLO: In somma, colle buone,
Potrei sapere dalla mia Rosina
Che venne a far colui questa mattina?

ROSINA: Figaro?—Non so nulla.

BARTOLO: Ti parlò?

ROSINA: Mi parlò.

BARTOLO: Che ti diceva?

ROSINA: Oh, mi parlò di certe bagatelle:
Del figurin di Francia,—
Del mal della sua figlia, Marcellina.

BARTOLO: Davvero! ed io scometto
Che protò la risposta al tuo biglietto.

ROSINA: Qual biglietto?

BARTOLO: Che serve! quell'arietta.
Del dramma del' "Inutil Precauzione,"
Che ti cadde staman giù dal balcone.
Vi fate rossa—(l'avrei indovinato!)
Che vuol dir questo dito
Così sporco d'inchiostro?

ROSINA: Sporco!—Oh, nulla:
Io me l'avea scottato,
E con l'inchiostro or l'ho medicato.

BARTOLO: (Diavolo!) E questi fogli?
Or son cinque—eran sei.

ROSINA: Quei fogli? E vero:
D' uno mi son servito
A mandar de' confetti a Marcellina.

BARTOLO: Bravissima! E la penna—
Perchè fu temperata?

ROSINA: (Maledetto!) La penna?
Per disegnare un fiore sul tamburo.

BARTOLO: Un fiore?

FIGARO: Already written!—what a fool I was.
(Astonished.)
To think to be her master!
Much fitter, that she should school me.
Her wits can flow much faster than mine.
Oh, woman, woman! who can find,
Or fathom, all that's in your mind?

ROSINA: Upon my young desires,
See love propitious shine;
It is he, with his soft fires,
Must ease a heart like mine.
(Exit Figaro.)

SCENE VIII

Rosina, then Bartolo.

ROSINA: Now I feel relieved.
This Figaro is a kind creature!

BARTOLO: With fair words,
May I know from my Rosina what this Fellow came to do here this morning?

ROSINA: Who? Figaro?—Oh, I know not.

BARTOLO: Didn't he speak to you?

ROSINA: Yes, he spoke to me.

BARTOLO: What said he?

ROSINA: Oh, he told me a hundred trifles:
Of the fashions of France,—
Of the ill health of the child, Marcellina.

BARTOLO: Indeed! now I would venture to wager
That he brought an answer to your note.

ROSINA: What note?

BARTOLO: Oh, come, come! that air
From the drama of the "Useless Precaution,"
Which you dropped this morning from the balcony.
You blush—(I have guessed it!)
How came that finger
To be so marked with ink?

ROSINA: With ink!—Oh, nothing:
I had hurt myself,
And used this ink by way of a cure.

BARTOLO: (The devil!) But these sheets of paper?
There are now only five—there were six.

ROSINA: Those sheets? Oh, true:
I made use of one of them
To send some sweetmeats to Marcellina.

BARTOLO: Most excellent! And the pen—
For what purpose has that been cut?

ROSINA: (Confound him!) That pen?
To design a flower on my tambour.

BARTOLO: A flower?

ROSINA: Un fiore.

BARTOLO: Un fiore!
Ah, fraschetta!

ROSINA: Davver.

BARTOLO: Zitto!

ROSINA: Credete.

BARTOLO: Basta così

ROSINA: Signor—

BARTOLO: Non più—tacete.
A un dottor della mia sorte,
Queste scuse, Signorina,
Vi consiglio mia carina
Un pò meglio a imposturar.
I confetti alla ragazza!
Il ricamo sul tamburo!
Vi scostate, e via!
Ci vuol altra figlia mia
Per potermi corbellar?
Perchè manca là quel foglio?
Vo' saper cotesto imbroglio.
Sono inutili le smorfie—
Ferma là, non mi toccate.
Signorina, un altra volta
Quando Bartolo andrà fuori,
La consegna ai servitori
A suo modo dar saprà.
Ah, non servono le smorfie,
Faccia pur la gatta morta!
Cospetton per quella porta
Nemmen l'aria entrar potrà
E Rosina, innocentina,
Sconsolata, disperata:
In sua camera serrata,
Fin ch'io voglio star dovrà.
(Partono.)

ROSINA: A flower.

BARTOLO: A flower!
Ah, you cunning minx!

ROSINA: It's true.

BARTOLO: Silence!

ROSINA: Believe me.

BARTOLO: Enough of this.

ROSINA: Sir—

BARTOLO: No more—be silent.
To a doctor of my rank,
These excuses, Signorina,
I advise
That you better should invent another time,
The sweetmeats for the girl!
The embroidery on the tambour!
Out of my sight! begone!
And is it thus my more than daughter
Dares to trifle with me?
Why is the paper missing?
That I would wish to know.
Useless, ma'am, are all your airs—
Be still, nor interrupt me so.
Another time, sweet Signorina,
When the doctor quits his house,
He will carefully provide
For keeping you inside.
Useless now are your grimaces,
No one heeds your affectation!
A vow I make that no one now
Shall come within my habitation.
And poor innocent Rosina,
Disappointed, then may pout:
In her room shall she be locked,
Till I choose to let her out.
(Exeunt.)

SCENA IX

Berta, sola.

BERTA: Finora in questa camera
Mi parve di sentir un mormorio;
Sarà stato il tutor colla pupilla;
Non ha un'ora di ben. queste ragazze
No la voglion capir;—battono.
(Si ode picchiare.)

CONTE: Aprite!
(Di dentro.)

BERTA: Alla fine farà qualche storture?
O anderà dalla noja in sepoltura.
(Apre e parte.)

SCENE IX

Bertha, alone.

BERTHA: I thought just now
I heard a noise within this chamber,
It perhaps was the guardian with his ward;
He never has an hour's peace.
These girls
Will not hear;—some one knocks.
(A knocking is heard.)

COUNT: Open the door!
(Within.)

BERTHA: Poor girl! she will be driven to some rash act,
If she be longer confined in this sepulchral place.
(Bertha opens the door, and exits.)

SCENA X

Il Conte travestito da Soldato contrafucando i moti d'ubriaco; indi Bartolo.

CONTE: Ehi di casa!—buona gente!
Ehi di casa!—niun mi sente!

BARTOLO: Chi è costui?—Che brutta faccia!
E ubriaco, chi sarà!

SCENE X

The Count, disguised as a Soldier, and pretending to be drunk; then Bartolo.

COUNT: Hallo! house here!—Hey! good people!
Hallo! house here!—Faith, you'll sleep ill.

BARTOLO: Who can this be?—
Ugly fellow!
Drunken rascal, thus to bellow!

CONTE: Ehi di casa!—maledetti!

BARTOLO: Cosa vuol, Signor Soldato?

CONTE: Ah! sì, sì!—Ben obbligato?
(Vedendolo, cerca in tasca.)

BARTOLO: Quì costui!—che mai vorrà?

CONTE: Siete voi—aspetta un poco!
Siete voi—Dottor Balordo?

BARTOLO: Che Balordo?

CONTE: Ah, ah! Bertoldo—(Leggendo.)

BARTOLO: Che Bertoldo.
Eh, andate al diavolo!
Dottor Bartolo!

CONTE: Ah, bravissimo!
Dottor Barbaro; benissimo;
Già c'è poca differenza.
(Non si vede! che impazienza!
Quanto tarda!—dove stà?)

BARTOLO: Io già perdo la pazienza.
Qui prudenza ci vorrà.

CONTE: Dunque voi siete Dottore?

BARTOLO: Son Dottore—sì, Signore.

CONTE: Ah, benissimo!
un'abbraccio—
Quà collega.

BARTOLO: Indietro.

CONTE: Quà!
(Lo abbraccia per forza.)
Sono anch' io Dottor perfetto,
Marescalco al reggimento:
Dell' alloggio sul biglietto.
(Presentando il biglietto.)
Osservate, eccolo quà.

BARTOLO: (Dalla rabbia—dal dispetto
Io già crepo in verità;
Ah ch'io fo se mi ci metto
Qualche gran bestialità!
(Legge il biglietto.)

CONTE: (Ah, venisse il caro oggetto—
Della mia felicità;
Vieni, vieni; il tuo diletto,
Pien d'amor, t'attende quà.)

SCENA XI

Rosina, e detti.

ROSINA: D'ascoltar quà m'è sembrato,
Un'insolito rumore.
Un soldato!—ed il tutore!—
Cosa mai faranno quà?
(Si avanza piano piano.)

CONTE: E' Rosina! Or son contento.

COUNT: Hallo! house there!—All are still here!

BARTOLO: Signor Whiskers, what's your will here?

COUNT: Hey! oh, oh!—Pray, how d'ye do, sir?
(Seeing him, he searches in his pocket.)

BARTOLO: Stupid puppy!—Who are you sir?

COUNT: Are not you, sir—but steady—order!
Doctor Balordo?

BARTOLO: What, Balordo?

COUNT: Ah, ah! Bertoldo—(Reading.)

BARTOLO: Pooh! pooh! Bertoldo!
No such person.—Hear me, fool, do!
Doctor Bartolo!

COUNT: Ah, bravissimo!
Doctor Barbaro; well and good;
The difference, after all, is trifling.
(She appears not! what impatience I feel!
How long she delays!—where can she be?)

BARTOLO: I am already out of all patience.
Prudence is necessary here.

COUNT: You, then—are a doctor?

BARTOLO: I am a doctor—yes, sir.

COUNT: Ah, how fortunate! let me embrace—
Here, fellow collegian.

BARTOLO: Stand off.

COUNT: Here!
(Embracing him by force.)
I also am a doctor of full degree,
And marshal of the regiment:
Here on the billet for my lodgings.
(Presenting a billet.)
Look, here it is.

BARTOLO: (With rage and vexation
I'm ready to burst in good earnest;
Ah, let me be cautious
Not to commit some rash act!)
(Reads the billet.)

COUNT: (Ah, would my heart's dear idol come—
Sole object of my love, appear;
Haste, oh, haste; your fond adorer,
Full of love, awaits you here.)

SCENE XI

Rosina, and the preceding.

ROSINA: I thought I overheard just now,
A most unusual clamor here.
A soldier!—and my guardian!—
What can they be doing here?
(She advances softly.)

COUNT: It is Rosina!—I now am content.

ROSINA: Ei mi guarda, e s'avvicina!	ROSINA: He looks at me, he approaches me!
CONTE: Son Lindoro. (Piano, a Rosina.)	COUNT: I am Lindor. (Softly, to Rosina.)
ROSINA: Oh, ciel che sento? Ah, giudizio, per peità!	ROSINA: Heavens! what do I hear? Prudence, for mercy's sake!
BARTOLO: Signorina che cercate? Presto, presto, andate via. (Vedendo Rosina.)	BARTOLO: The Signorina here? Quick, quick, make your exit. (Pushing Rosina.)
ROSINA: Vado, vado, non gridate.	ROSINA: I am going; don't holler so.
BARTOLO: Presto, presto, via di quà.	BARTOLO: Quick, quick, away, I tell you.
CONTE: Ehi ragazza vengo anch'io.	COUNT: Well, sweetheart, and I'll follow you.
BARTOLO: Dove, dove, Signor mio?	BARTOLO: Follow! where sir?
CONTE: In caserma: oh, questa è bella!	COUNT: To my quarters: oh, this is excellent!
BARTOLO: In caserma? bagatella!	BARTOLO: To your quarters? a pretty joke!
CONTE: Cara!	COUNT: Dearest!
ROSINA: Ajuto!	ROSINA: Help!
BARTOLO: Olà! cospetto!	BARTOLO: Hold! zounds!
CONTE: Via, gettate il fazzoletto; Fate presto per pietà! (A Rosina mostrandola furtivamente un biglietto.)	COUNT: Quick, let drop your handkerchief; Quick, for goodness' sake! (To Rosina, showing her a note by stealth.)
ROSINA: Ah, ci guarda! (Al Conte.) Maledetto! Ah, giudizio, per pietà. (Guardando Bartolo.)	ROSINA: Ah, he's looking! (To the Count.) How unlucky! Ah, discretion, for goodness' sake! (Eyeing Bartolo.)
BARTOLO: Ubriaco maledetto! Ah costui crepar mi fa.	BARTOLO: A curse on this drunken fellow! I am ready to burst with vexation
CONTE: Dunque vado—	COUNT: Then I go—
BARTOLO: O no: Signore! (Trattenendolo.) Qui d'alloggio star non può.	BARTOLO: Oh no; stop, sir! (Retaining him.) You can have no lodging here.
CONTE: Come, come?	COUNT: How say you?
BARTOLO: Eh, non v'è replica; Ho il brevetto d'esenzione.	BARTOLO: Oh, it is in vain to remonstrate; I am exempt from lodging troops.
CONTE: Che brevetto? (Adirato.)	COUNT: How are you exempt? (In a rage.)
BARTOLO: Oh mio padrone, Un momento, e il mostrerò. (Và allo scrittojo.)	BARTOLO: Oh, my good sir, A moment, and I will show you. (Goes to his desk.)
CONTE: Ah, se qui restar non posso, Deh, prendete— (Accennandolo di prendere un biglietto.)	COUNT: Ah, if I cannot remain here, Quick, take it— (Making signs to her to take the note.)
ROSINA: Ahimè! ci guarda.	ROSINA: He looks at me again.
ROSINA E CONTE: Cento smanie io sento addosso! Ah, più reggere non so.	ROSINA AND COUNT: Oh, this heart is filled with pain! No more can I contain myself.
BARTOLO: Ah trovarlo ancor non posso, Mà sì, sì, lo troverò. (Cercando nello scrittojo.) Ecco quì. (Legge.) "Colla presente, (Venendo avanti con una pergamena.) Il dottor Bartolo, et cetera. Essentiamo"—	BARTOLO: At present I have searched in vain, But soon I hope to find it. (Searching in the desk.) Oh, here it is. (Reads.) "By these presents, (He comes forward with a parchment.) The Doctor Bartolo, etc., etc. We exempt"—
CONTE: Eh, andate al diavolo! (Con un rovescio di mano manda in aria la pergamena.	COUNT: Oh, go to the devil! (With a dash of his hand he sends the parchment into the air.)
BARTOLO: Cosa fa, Signor mio caro?	BARTOLO: My dear sir, what would you?
CONTE: Zitto là, Dottor Lomaro! Il mio alloggio è quì fissato, E in alloggio quì vo star.	COUNT: Silence, Mr. Doctor Lomaro! My lodging is fixed here, And here will I remain.
BARTOLO: Vuol restar!	BARTOLO: Will remain!
CONTE: Restar, sicuro.	COUNT: Yes, will remain.
BARTOLO: Ah, son stufo, mio padrone: Presto fuori, o un buon bastone Lo farà di quà sloggiar. (Minacciandolo.)	BARTOLO: My good sir, I have something else to do: I beg you will begone, or a cudgel Shall dislodge you. (Threatening him.)
CONTE: Dunque lei—lei vuol battaglia? Ben, battaglia le vuò dar. (Tirandosi indietro.) Bella cosa una battaglia! (Ridendo.) Ve la voglio or quì mostrar. (Avvicinandosi, amichevolmente a Bartolo.) Osservate! questo è il fosso, L'inimico voi sarete. (Gli da una spinta.) Attenzion! (Giù fazzoletto.) (Piano, a Rosina.) E gli amici stan di quà— Attenzione! (Cogli il momento in cui Bartolo l'oserva meno attentamente, e lascia il bigletto, e Rosina vi fa cadere sopra il fazzoletto.)	COUNT: Then you—you wish to fight with me? Well, you shall have your way. (Drawing back.) A battle is a fine thing, truly! (Laughing.) I'll show you a specimen. (Advances, pretending to fight.) This is the trench, observe, And you are the enemy. (Makes a pass at him.) Now, mark! (Drop your handkerchief.) (Aside, to Rosina.) Our friends are stationed here— Now mark! (He seizes the moment when Bartolo is less attentive, and lets fall the note; Rosina drops her handkerchief upon it.)
BARTOLO: Ferma! ferma!	BARTOLO: Hold! hold!
CONTE: Che cos' e?—ah!	COUNT: What is it?—ah!
BARTOLO: Vo' vedere.	BARTOLO: Let me see it.
CONTE: Sì, se fosse una ricetta; Mi dovete perdonar. (Fa una riverenza a Rosina, e le da il biglietto, e il fazzoletto.)	COUNT: Prescriptions only are for you; But letters go where they are due. I ask your pardon. (He bows to Rosina, and gives her the note and the handkerchief.)
ROSINA: Grazie, grazie!	ROSINA: Charming, charming, how delightful!
BARTOLO: Grazie, come! Vo saper cotesto imbroglio!	BARTOLO: Charming, truly! Oh, it is frightful.
CONTE: Qualche intrigo di fanciulla. (Tirandolo a parte; intanto, Rosina cambia la lettera.)	COUNT: Some little girlish love affair. (Drawing him aside; meanwhile, Rosina changes the letter.)
ROSINA: Ah, cambiar potessi il foglio!	ROSINA: Could I but change the letter there!
BARTOLO: Vuò veder.	BARTOLO: I wish to see it.
ROSINA: Ma non è nulla.	ROSINA: There is nothing to see.
BARTOLO: Quì quel foglio, presto quà! (Escono da una parte Basilio; e dall'altra, Berta.)	BARTOLO: Quick, give the paper—give it to me. (Enter Basilio on one side; Bertha on the other.)
BASILIO: Ecco quà!—oh, cosa vedo?	BASILIO: Look here!—what do I see?
BERTA: Il barbiere! Oh, quanta gente!	BERTHA: The barber! Eh, what stir is here!

BARTOLO: Quà quel foglio, impertinente! (A Rosina.) A chi dico?—presto quà!	BARTOLO: Give here the paper, impertinence! (To Rosina.) Do you mind what I say—quick!
ROSINA: Ma quel foglio che chiedete, Per azzardo m'e cascato, E la lista del bucato.	ROSINA: The paper, sir, you wish to have, Which slipped by chance out of my hand, Is just a list of linen.
BARTOLO: Ah, fraschetta presto quà! (Lo strappa con violenza a legge.) Ah, che vedo?—ho preso sbaglio! E la lista, son di stucco! Ah, son proprio un mamalucco! Ah, che gran bestialita!	BARTOLO: Quick, give it here, wench! (He seizes it violently.) What do I see?—I am mistaken! The list I'd taken for a letter. Oh, what a fool, indeed, am I! Oh, what immense stupidity!
ROSINA E CONTE: Bravo! bravo! il mamalucco Che nel sacco entrato e già.	ROSINA AND COUNT: Bravo! bravo! the old fool At last is caught in his own snare.
BASILIO E BERTA: Non capisco, son di stucco: Qualche imbroglio qui ci stà.	BASILIO AND BERTHA: What it means I cannot tell: Confusion here has wrought some work.
ROSINA: Ecco quà sempre un istoria, (Piangendo.) Sempre oppressa, e maltrattata; Ah, che vita disperata— Non la so più sopportar.	ROSINA: It is ever thus you rate and school (Weeping.) Me. And rule me with rod of iron; But I no more this life will lead— I'll be freed from such tyranny.
BARTOLO: Ah, Rosina! poverina!	BARTOLO: Ah, Rosina! poor young lady!
CONTE: Via quà tu! cosa l'hai fatto? (Minacciando, e afferrandolo per un braccio.)	COUNT: Leave her, sir! What have you done? (Threatening him, and pushing him away by the arm.)
BARTOLO: Gente, ajuto! soccorretemi!	BARTOLO: Holloa! help, there!
ROSINA: Ma chetatevi.	ROSINA: No, be quiet.
CONTE: Lasciatemi!	COUNT: Unhand me, sir!
TUTTI: Gente, ajuto per pietà!	ALL: What's all this riot?

SCENA XII

SCENE XII

Figaro, entrando con bacile sotto il braccio; e detti.	Enter Figaro, with a basin under his arm and the preceding.
FIGARO: Alto là! Alto là! Che cosa accadde?—Signori miei. Che chiasso è questo? Eterni Dei! Già sulla piazza a questo strepito S'e radunata mezza città. (Piano, al Conte.) (Signor, prudenza, per carità!)	FIGARO: Holloa here! What has happened?—my good people, What clamor's this? Great gods! This tumult has together drawn Half the city into the street. (Softly to the Count.) (Prudence, sir, in pity!)
BARTOLO: Questo è un birbante! (Additando il Conte.)	BARTOLO: This is a rogue! (Pointing to the Count.)
CONTE: Questo è un briccone!	COUNT: This is a knave!
BARTOLO: Ah disgraziato!—	BARTOLO: Ah, the scoundrel!
CONTE: Ah maledetto! (Minacciandolo con la sciabola.)	COUNT: Ah, the rascal! (Threatening him with his sword.)
FIGARO: Signor Soldato, porti rispetto, (Alzando il bacile, e minacciando il Conte.) O questo fusto, corpo del diavolo, Or le creanze le insegnera.	FIGARO: Mr. Soldier, take care, (Raising his basin and threatening the Count.) Or this basin soon shall teach you Of your manners to beware.
CONTE: Brutto scimiotto— (Al Bartolo.)	COUNT: You ugly savage— (To Bartolo.)
BARTOLO: Birbo malnato—	BARTOLO: You low-born scoundrel—
TUTTI: Zitto, Dottore—	ALL: Peace, Doctor—
BARTOLO: Voglio gridare—	BARTOLO: I'll not hold my peace—
TUTTI: Fermo, signore! (Al Conte.)	ALL: Hold, sir! (To the Count.)
CONTE: Voglio ammazzarlo.	COUNT: I am determined to kill him.
TUTTI: Fate silenzio! Per carità! Si ode bussare con violenza alla porta di strada.) Zitti, che battono? Chi mai sarà?	ALL: Silence, silence! For goodness' sake! (A knocking at the street door.) Silence! Who is it that knocks? Who can it be?
BARTOLO: Chi è?	BARTOLO: Who is it?
CORO: La forza. Aprite quà! (Di dentro.)	CHORUS: Open, and you soon shall see. (Within.)
TUTTI: La forza!—Oh diavolo!	ALL: The police!—Oh, the devil!—
FIGARO: L' avete fatta! (Al Conte, Rosina, e Bartolo.)	FIGARO: You have done it now! (To the Count, Rosina, and Bartolo.)
CONTE: Niente paura.	COUNT: Fear not.
BARTOLO: Vengan pur quà.	BARTOLO: Let them come in.
TUTTI: Questa avventura Ah, come diavolo Mai finirà!	ALL: I wonder How the devil Will terminate this adventure!

SCENA ULTIMA

SCENE THE LAST

Un Uffiziale; con Soldati; e detti.	An Officer, with Soldiers; and the preceding.
UFFIZIALE: Fermi tutti! Niun si muova. Miei Signori che si fa? Questo chiasso donde è nato? La cagione presto quà.	OFFICER: Hold, here! Let no one stir. Good Sirs, what is the matter? What's the cause of this disturbance? What's the reason for this clatter?
CONTE: La cagione—	COUNT: The reason—
BARTOLO: Non è vero.	BARTOLO: It is not true.
CONTE: Si, Signore.	COUNT: Yes, sir.
BARTOLO: Signor nò.	BARTOLO: No, sir.
CONTE: E un birbante.	COUNT: He is a rascal.
BARTOLO: E un impostore.	BARTOLO: He is an impostor.
UFFIZIALE: Un per volta.	OFFICER: One at a time.
BARTOLO: Io parlerò! Questo soldato, M' ha maltrattato.	BARTOLO: But I will speak! Sir, this soldier has abused me, Has used me like a dog.
ROSINA: Il poverino, Cotto è dal vino.	ROSINA: Pray, sir, pity the poor fellow, Wine has made him rather mellow.
BARTOLO: Cava la sciabola! Parla d'uccidere.	BARTOLO: Pity! he drew his sabre! The villain spoke of murder, too.
FIGARO: Io son venuto Quì per dividere.	FIGARO: Sir, I came to hear the clatter, But know nothing of the matter.
UFFIZIALE: Fate silenzio! Che intesi già, (Al Conte.) Siete in arresto,— Fuori di quà! (I Soldati si muovano per circondarlo.)	OFFICER: Silence! silence! Listen, fellow, (To the Count.) You're our prisoner,— Quick, away! (The Soldiers are about to surround him.)

CONTE: Io in arresto?—
Io, fermi, ola?
(Con gesto autorevole trattiene i Soldati; chiama a se l'Uffiziale, gli mostra segretamente l'ordine di Grande di Spagna, che ha sotto l'uniforme, e gli dice all' orecchio suo nome. L'Uffiziale sorpreso, fa cenna ai Soldati che si ritirino, e anch'egli fa lo stesso. Tutti restono attoniti.)

ROSINA: Fredda ed immobile Come una statua, Fiato non estami Da respirar; Fiato non restami Da respirar, Fiato non restami Da respirar; Fiato non restami Da respirar, Fiato non restami Da respirar.

CONTE: Freda ed immobile Come una statua, Fiato non restagli Da respirar, Fiato non restagli Da respirar; Fiato non restagli da respirar.

BARTOLO: Freddaed immobile Come una statua, Fiato non restami Da respirar.

FIGARO: Guarda Don Bartolo
Sembra una statua,
Ah, che dal ridere
Sto per crepar.

BARTOLO: Ma, Signore—
(All' Uffiziale.)

CORO: Zitto tu!

BARTOLO: Ma un dottore—

CORO: Oh non più.

BARTOLO: Ma se lei—

CORO: Non parlar.

BARTOLO: La vorrai—

CORO: Non gridar.

A 3: Ma se noi—

CORO: Zitti voi.

A 3: Ma so poí—

CORO: Pensiam noi.
Vada ognun pe' fatti suoi.
Si finisca d'altercar.

BARTOLO AND CHORUS: Mi par d'esser colla testa! In un orrida facina! Par mi d'esser colla testa! In un orrida facina! Dove crescee mai non resta, e mai non resta, Dell' incudini sonora L'importuno strepitar!

CORO: Alternando questo e quello,
Pesantissimo martello,
Fà con barbara armonìa
Muri e volte rimbombar.
E il cervello poverello.
Già stordito, sbalordito,
Non ragiona, si confonde,
Si riduce ad impazzar!

COUNT: I, your prisoner? hold awhile—
Now what is it you please to say?
(Repulsing the Soldiers with an air of authority, he calls the Officer towards him, privately shows him the order of the Grandees of Spain, which he has under his uniform, and whispers to him his name. The Officer surprised, makes a sign to the Soldiers, who retire, and he does the same. All remain astonished.)

ROSINA: Cold and immovable as sculptured fear, All power has left me to see or hear, All power has left me to see or hear, All power has left me to see or hear; All power has left me to see or hear; All power has left me to see or hear.

COUNT: Cold and immovable as sculptured fear, All power has left him to see or hear, All power has left him to see or hear; All power has left him to see or hear.

BARTOLO: Cold and immovable as sculptured fear, All power has left me to see or hear.

FIGARO: To see the doctor's Frantic fear,
I'm laughing so hard
I scarcely can hear.

BARTOLO: But, sir—
(To the Officer.)

CHORUS: Silence!

BARTOLO: For a doctor—

CHORUS: I have done!

BARTOLO: But if she—

CHORUS: Hold your tongue.

BARTOLO: She wished—

CHORUS: How you bawl.

ALL THREE: But if we—

CHORUS: Silence, all.

ALL THREE: But if—

CHORUS: We'll think of it,
Let every one now quit the house.
Let this altercation cease.

BARTOLO AND CHORUS: What confusion! with the dinning, Round my (his) giddy head is spinning! What confusion with the dinning! Round my (his) giddy head is spinning! No one ending, each beginning, each beginning, What confusion! with the dinning, Round my (his) giddy head is spinning!

CHORUS: Like hammers ringing on the anvil,
Till, echoing with the horrid sound,
The walls and vaulted roofs rebound.
Thus does your outrage stun the brain,
That seeks for quiet here in vain,
Where furious tongues confound the senses,
Till reason's drowned in the clamor,
And madness seems to rage around!

FINE DELL' ATTO PRIMO.

ATTO II

SCENA I

Camera in Casa di Bartolo.

BARTOLO: (Solo.) Ma vedi il mio destino! Quel Soldato
Per quanto abbia cercato,
Niun lo conosce in tutto il reggimento.
Io dubito—oh cospetto!
Che dubitar?—scommetto
Che dal Conte Almaviva,
E stato quà spedito quel Signore,
Ad esplorar della Rosina il core.
Nemmeno in casa propria
Sicura si può star! ma io—
(Battone.)
Chi batte?
Ehi! chì è di la? battono,
Non senitite?
In casa io son, non ho timore?
Aprite.
(Verso le quinte.)

SCENA II

Il Conte, travestito da Maestro di Musica; e detto.

CONTE: Pace e gioja il ciel vi dia!

BARTOLO: Mille grazie! non s'incommoda.

CONTE: Gioja e pace per mille anni!

BARTOLO: Obbligato in verità.
(Questo volto non m' è ignoto;
Non ravviso—non ricordo—
Ma quel volto—ma quell' abito—
Non capisco chi sara.)

CONTE: (Ah, se un colpo è andato a vuoto
A gabbar questo balordo,
La mia nuova metamorfosi
Più propizia a me sarà.)
Gioja, e pace; pace a gioja.

BARTOLO: Ho capito—(oh ciel che noja!)

CONTE: Gioja e pace, ben di cuore.

BARTOLO: Basta, basta! per pietà.
(Ma che perfido destino:
Tutti quanti a me davanti!
Che crudel fatalità.)

END OF ACT I.

ACT II

SCENE I

A Room in Bartolo's Home.

BARTOLO: (Alone.) Do but see my ill-fortune! That soldier,
As far as I can learn,
Is known by no one in the regiment.
I doubt—zounds!
Doubt, did I say?—I would venture to wager
That this fellow was sent here
By the Count Almaviva,
To sound the heart of Rosina.
Not even in one's own house
Can one be secure! but I—
(A knocking is heard.)
Who knocks?
Holloa! who's there? they knock again,
Don't you hear?
I am in my own house, why should I be afraid?
Open the door.
(Speaking to the side.)

SCENE II

The Count, dressed as a Music-master, and the preceding.

COUNT: May heaven send you peace and joy!

BARTOLO: A thousand thanks! no more, good sir.

COUNT: Joy and peace for thousands of years!

BARTOLO: In truth I'm very much obliged.
(That face is not unknown to me,
I don't recollect—I can't remember—
But that countenance—that dress—
I can't recall who it can be.)

COUNT: (Ah, if before I was unsuccessful
In deceiving this simpleton.
My new metamorphosis
May prove more propitious to me.)
Joy and peace; peace and joy.

BARTOLO: Enough—(Heavens! what an annoyance!)

COUNT: Joy and peace from my very heart.

BARTOLO: Enough, enough! for mercy's sake.
(What a wretched fate is mine:
Every knave conspires against me!
What a cruel destiny.)

CONTE: (Il vecchion non mi conosce:
Oh mia sorte fortunata!
Ah! mio ben, fra pochi instanti,
Parlerem con libertà.)

BARTOLO: In somma, mio Signore,
Chi è lei, si può sapere?

CONTE: Don Alonzo,
Professore di Musica, ed allievo
Di Don Basilio.

BARTOLO: Ebbene?

CONTE: Don Basilio,
Sta male il poverino, ed in sua vece—

BARTOLO: Sta mal?—Corro a vederlo.
(In atto di partire.)

CONTE: Piano, piano.
(Trattenendolo.)
Non è un mal così grave.

BARTOLO: (Di costui non mi fido.) Andiamo, andiamo.

CONTE: Ma, signore!

BARTOLO: Che c'è?

CONTE: Voleva dirvi.
(Tirandolo a parte, e sotto voce.)

BARTOLO: Parlate forte.

CONTE: Ma—

BARTOLO: Forte, vi dico.

CONTE: Ebben, come volete.
(Alzando la voce.)
Ma chi sia Don Alonzo apprenderete.
Vo dal Conte Almaviva—
(In atto di partire.)

BARTOLO: Piano, piano—
(Trattenendolo con dolcezza.)
Dite, dite, v'ascolto.

CONTE: Il Conte—
(A voce alta.)

BARTOLO: Piano, per carità.

CONTE: Stamane,
(Calmandosi.)
Nella stesa locanda
Era meco d'alloggio, ed in mie mani
Per caso capitò questo biglietto
Dalla vostra pupilla a lui diretto.

BARTOLO: Che vedo? È sua scrittura!

CONTE: Don Basilio occupato col curiale,
Nulla sà di quel foglio, ed io per lui
Venendo a dar lezione alla ragazza,
Volea farmene un merito con voi;
Perchè, con quel biglietto, si potrebbe—

BARTOLO: Che cosa?

COUNT: (The old fellow knows me not:
How fortunate for me!
A few short moments, my love,
And we shall speak without restraint.)

BARTOLO: In a word, sir,
Who are you? may I know?

COUNT: Don Alonzo,
Professor of music, and pupil
Of Don Basilio.

BARTOLO: Well?

COUNT: Don Basilio,
Poor man, has taken ill; and in his stead—

BARTOLO: Taken ill, say you?—
I'll run and see him.
(About to depart.)

COUNT: Gently, gently,
(Detaining him.)
His illness is not so serious.

BARTOLO: (I do distrust this fellow.) Come, let us go.

COUNT: But, sir!

BARTOLO: Well, what?

COUNT: I wished to say—
(Taking him aside, and in a whisper.)

BARTOLO: Well, speak out.

COUNT: But—

BARTOLO: Speak out, I say!

COUNT: Well, as you wish:
(Raising his voice.)
Then you shall know who Don Alonzo is.
I came from the Count Almaviva—
(Going.)

BARTOLO: Softly, softly—
(Gently restraining him.)
Speak, speak, I can hear you.

COUNT: The Count—
(Raising his voice.)

BARTOLO: Softly, for goodness' sake.

COUNT: This morning he came by chance
To the same inn! and by accident
I took up this note, which I found
Directed to him by your ward.

BARTOLO: What do I see? It is indeed her writing!

COUNT: Don Basilio being engaged with the lawyer,
Knows nothing of this letter, and I, being sent
To give lessons to your ward, in his stead,
Wished to make a merit of the thing with you;
Because, by means of this letter I might—

BARTOLO: You might what?

CONTE: Vi dirò,
S' io potessi parlare alla ragazza,
Io creder, verbigrazia le farei
Che me lo diè del Conte un' altra amante:
Prova significante,
Che il Conte di Rosina si fa gioco,
E perciò—

BARTOLO: Piano un poco;—una calunnia!
Or sì vi riconosco
Bravo e degno scolar di Don Basilio!
Io saprò come merita
(La abbraccia e mette in tasca il biglietto.)
Ricompensar sì bel suggerimento;
Vò a chiamar la ragazza.
Poichè tanto per me v' interessate,
Mi raccommando a voi.
(Entra nella camera di Rosina.)

CONTE: Non dubitate
L'affare del biglietto
Dalla bocca mi è uscito non volendo.
Ma come far? Senza di un tal ripiego
Mi toccava andar via come un bagiano,
Il mio disegno a lei
Ora paleserò: s'ella consente,
Io son felice appieno.
Eccola! Ah, il cor sento balzarmi in seno!

SCENA III

Bartolo, conducendo Rosina; e detti; indi Figaro.

BARTOLO: Venite, Signorina: Don Alonzo, Che quì vedete, or vi darà lezione.

ROSINA: Ah!

BARTOLO: Cos'è stato?

ROSINA: È un granchio al piede.

CONTE: Oh, nulla.
Sedete a me vicin, bella fanciulla;
Se non vi spiace, un poco di lezione
Di Don Basilio invece io vi darò.

ROSINA: Oh! col più gran piacer la prenderò.

CONTE: Che vuol cantare?

ROSINA: Quel che lei aggrada.

BARTOLO: Or ben, dunque sentiamo.

ROSINA: Eccola quì.

CONTE: Da brava incominciamo.
(Rosina canta qualche Aria, scelta, ad libitum, per l occasione.)

COUNT: I will tell you,
If I could just speak a few words with her,
I think, with deference be it said, that I could Make her believe that it was given to me by a mistress of the Count's:
A tolerable good proof to Rosina,
That she is only made a fool of by the Count,
And therefore—

BARTOLO: Softly, softly;—a calumny this!
Oh, I see very well that you are
A scholar worthy of Don Basilio!
I shall know how to reward
(Embraces him and puts the note in his pocket.)
So happy a suggestion;
I will go and call the girl.
And as you interest yourself so much about me,
I recommend myself to your good offices.
(He goes into Rosina's apartment.)

COUNT: Never doubt me.
This affair of the note
Slipped from my tongue against my will.
But what was I to do? Without some strategem
I should have gone away like a simpleton
I must now acquaint her
With my plan: if she consents,
I shall be completely happy.
She comes! How my heart beats in my bosom!

SCENE III

Bartolo, bringing in Rosina; and the preceding then Figaro.

BARTOLO: Come, Signorina; Don Alonzo,
Whom you see here, will give you your lesson.

ROSINA: Ah!
(Starting.)

BARTOLO: What's the matter?

ROSINA: It is a cramp in my foot.

COUNT: Oh, nothing at all.
Seat yourself by my side, fair lady;
And, if not disagreeable, I will give you
A little lesson in place of Don Basilio.

ROSINA: Oh, sir! with the greatest pleasure.

COUNT: What will you sing?

ROSINA: Whatever you please.

BARTOLO: Well, let us hear, then.

ROSINA: Here it is.

COUNT: Now let us begin with spirit.
(Rosina sings an Air, chosen, ad libitum, for the occasion.)

CONTE: Bela voce! bravissma!	COUNT: Bravissimo! a fine voice, truly!
ROSINA: Oh, mille grazie!	ROSINA: A thousand thanks!
BARTOLO: Certo, bella voce; Ma quest' aria, cospetto! è assai nojosa. La musica a miei tempi era altra cosa: Oh! quando, per esempio, cantava Cafariello Quel' aria portentosa—'Là, là, là!'' Sentite, Don Alonzo, eccola quà. Quando mi sei vicina, Amabile Rosina, L' aria dicèa Giannina, Ma io dico Rosina; Il cor mi balza in petto, Mi balla il minuetto. (A Figaro, che entra contra fieccondolo.) Bravo! Signore Barbiere!	BARTOLO: Yes, truly, a fine voice; But, then, good Lord! that air is very tiresome. In my time music was another thing: Oh! when, for instance, Cafariello sung that wondrous air— "La, la, la!'' List, Don Alonzo, I will give it you. With that bewitching mein, ah! Oh, come to me, Rosina! And on my arm, oh, lean, ah! There let me chant my lay; Or, if you more incline, ah! To dancing, so divine, ah! Then thus in grace we'll twine, ah! With minuetto sway. (To Figaro, who enters, mimicking him.) Bravo! Mr. Barber.
FIGARO: Eh niente affatto. Scusi sue debolezze.	FIGARO: Oh! no harm, sir; Excuse my folly.
BARTOLO: Ebben, gridone, Che vieni a far?	BARTOLO: Well, rogue, And what have you come here for?
FIGARO: O bella! Veggo a farvi la barba—oggi vi tocca.	FIGARO: Here for! Why, I have come to shave you—this is your day.
BARTOLO: Oggi non voglio.	BARTOLO: Oh, not today—I don't wish it.
FIGARO: Oggi non vuol? domani Non potrò io.	FIGARO: Not today? but Tomorrow I can't come.
BARTOLO: Perchè?	BARTOLO: And why not?
FIGARO: Perchè ho da fare. E poi—e poi—che serve? Doman non posso.	FIGARO: Because I am otherwise engaged. And then—and then—what does it matter? I cannot come tomorrow.
BARTOLO: Orsù, meno parole: Oggi non vo' far barba.	BARTOLO: Come, less chattering; I'll not be shaved today.
FIGARO: Ma? che mi avete preso Per un qualche barbier da contadino? Chiamate pur un altro;—io me ne vado.	FIGARO: What? Do you treat me As you would some country barber? Then find some other person;—I am off.
BARTOLO: Che serve?—a modo suo— (Vedi che fantasia!) Và in camera a pigliar la biancheria. No; vado io stesso.	BARTOLO: Well, what signifies it?—this is his way— What a whimsical dog! Quick! into my room, and bring the cloth. No; I'll go myself.
FIGARO: (Ah, se mi dava in mano Il mazzo delle chiavi, ero a cavallo.) Dite, non è fra quelle (A Rosina.) La chiave, che apre quella gelosía?	FIGARO: (Oh, if he would hand me That bunch of keys, all would be right.) Tell me, is not the key (To Rosina.) Which opens that lattice among them?
ROSINA: Sì certo; è la più nuova.	ROSINA: Yes; and it is the newest.
BARTOLO: (Ah son per buono A lasciar quì quel diavolo di barbiere!) Animo, va tu stesso: (Dando le chiavi a Figaro.)	BARTOLO: (Oh, I'm mighty wise To leave that devil of a barber here!) Here, go yourself: (Giving the keys to Figaro.)
Passato il corridor, sopra l' armario Il tutto troverai. Bada non toccar nulla.	Pass yonder corridor, and on the shelf You will find everything. Have a care, but touch nothing.
FIGARO: Ah, non son matto. (Allegri!) Vado e torno. (Il colpo è fatto!) (Entra.)	FIGARO: Eh, I am no fool. O be joyful! I'll be back in an instant. (The trick is done!) (He goes in.)
BARTOLO: E quel briccon, che al Conte (Al Conte.) Ha portato il biglietto di Rosina.	BARTOLO: That's the rascal, sir, who brought (To the Count.) The Count's letter to Rosina.
CONTE: Mi sembra un imbroglion di prima sfera.	COUNT: He seems a very adept in intrigue.
BARTOLO: Eh, a me non me la ficca— (Si scente di dentro rumore come di vasellonne che al spezza.) Ah, disgraziato me.	BARTOLO: Ah, he'll not trick me— (A noise within, as of some earthen vessels breaking.) Oh, I'm undone.
ROSINA: Ah, che rumore?	ROSINA: What noise was that?
BARTOLO: Ah, che briccon! me lo diceva il core. (Entra.) Tutto mi ha rotto, tutto; Sei piatti, otto bicchieri, una terrina.	BARTOLO: Oh, the rascal! I felt my heart misgive me. (Goes in.) He has broken everything, Six plates, eight basins, one tureen.
FIGARO: Vedete che gran cosa! ad una chiave Se mai non m'attaccava per fortuna. (Mostrando al Conte la chiave della golosia.) Per qual maledettissimo Corridor, così oscúro, Spezzato mi sarei la testa al muro. Tiene ogni stanza al bujo; e poi—e poi—	FIGARO: A might matter, truly! had I not hit Upon the key by good fortune, (Showing the Count the key of the veranda.) In that same cursed Corridor, I should have broken My head against the wall. He keeps every room so dark; and then—
BARTOLO: Oh, non più.	BARTOLO: No more of this!
FIGARO: Dunque, andiam. (Giudizio.) (Al Conte, e Rosina.)	FIGARO: Come, then. (Be prudent.) (To the Count and Rosina.)
BARTOLO: A noi. (Si siede a farsi radere.—Entra Basilio.)	BARTOLO: Proceed to business. (He seats himself to be shaved; at this moment enter Basilio.)

SCENA IV

SCENE IV

Don Basilio, e detti.	Don Basilio, and the preceding.
ROSINA: (Don Basilio!)	ROSINA: (Don Basilio!)
CONTE: (Cosa veggo?)	COUNT: (What do I see?)
FIGARO: (Quale intoppo!)	FIGARO: (What an unfortunate encounter!)
BARTOLO: Come quà?	BARTOLO: How is this?
BASILIO: Servitor di tutti quanti.	BASILIO: Good day to you all.
BARTOLO: (Che vuol dir tal novità!)	BARTOLO: (What an unexpected visit!)
FIGARO E CONTE: (Qui franchezza ci vorrà.)	FIGARO AND COUNT: (Some courage is necessary here.
ROSINA: (Ah, di noi che mai sarà!)	ROSINA: (Alas! what will become of us!)
BARTOLO: Don Basilio, come state?	BARTOLO: Basilio, how do you find yourself?
BASILIO: Come sto!	BASILIO: Find myself!
FIGARO: Or che s'aspetta? (Interrompendolo.) Questa barba benedetta! La facciamo sì, o nò?	FIGARO: Who is to wait here? (Interrupting him.) That blessed beard of yours! Shall I operate on it or no?

BARTOLO: Ora vengo. (A Figaro.) È là il curiale— (A Basilio.)	BARTOLO: I'll be with you directly. (To Figaro.) And the lawyer— (To Basilio.)
BASILIO: Il curiale!—	BASILIO: The lawyer!—
CONTE: Io gli ho narrato Che già tutto è combinato; Non è ver?	COUNT: I have already told him That everything is arranged; Is it not true?
BARTOLO: Sì; tutto io sò.	BARTOLO: Yes; I know it all
BASILIO: Ma, Don Bartolo spiegatemi—	BASILIO: But, Don Bartolo, explain to me—
CONTE: (Ehi, dottore, una parola—) (Interrorapendolo.) Don Basilio, son da voi. (A Bartolo.) Ascoltate un poco quà. (A Figaro.) (Fate un pò ch'ie vada via, Ch'ei ci scopra ho gran timore.) (Piano, a Bartolo.) (Della lettera, Signore, Ei l'affare ancor non sà.)	COUNT: Doctor, a word with you— (Interrupting him.) Don Basilio, I shall be with you immediately. (To Bartolo.) Listen to me a moment. (To Figaro.) (Try and get him off, Else I fear he will discover us.) (Softly, to Bartolo.) (Of the affair, sir, of the letter, Recollect, he knows nothing.)
BARTOLO: Colla febbre, Don Basilio, Chi v'insegna a passeggiare? (Figaro, ascoltando con attenzione, si prepara a secondare il Conte.)	BARTOLO: With this fever, Don Basilio, Who taught you to walk abroad? (Figaro, listening with attention, prepares to second the Count.)
BASILIO: Colla febbre! (Attonito.)	BASILIO: With a fever! (Astonished.)
FIGARO: E chi vi pare? Siete giallo come un morto.	FIGARO: Why, what think you? You are as yellow as a corpse.
BASILIO: Come un morto?	BASILIO: As a corpse, say what?
FIGARO: Bagatella! (Tastandogli il polso.) Cospetton che tremarella! Questa è febbre scarlatina.	FIGARO: Heavens, man! (Feeling his pulse.) Zounds, what a galloping pulse! It's certainly the scarlet fever.
FIGARO E CONTE: Via, predete medicina. (Il Conte da a Basilio una borsa di soppiatto.)	FIGARO AND COUNT: Go home, take medicine. (The Count secretly gives a purse to Basilio.)
FIGARO: Presto, presto andate a letto—	FIGARO: Quick, quick, home to bed—
CONTE: Voi paura in ver mi fate—	COUNT: I am quite alarmed for you—
BARTOLO E ROSINA: Dice bene, andate a letto—	BARTOLO AND ROSINA: He says well; go home to bed—
TUTTI: Presto andate a riposar.	ALL: Quick, retire, and rest yourself.
BASILIO: (Una borsa!—Andate a letto!— Ma che tutti sian d'accordo.)	BASILIO: (A purse!—Go to bed!— They all seem of the same mind.)
TUTTI: Presto a letto.	ALL: Quick, home to bed.
BASILIO: Eh, non son sordo, Non mi faccio più pregar.	BASILIO: Eh, I'm not deaf; Pray cease your entreaties.
FIGARO: Che color—eh!	FIGARO: What a color—eh!
CONTE: Che brutta cera!	COUNT: Oh! what a rueful visage!
BARTOLO: Brutta cera!	FIGARO: Rueful visage!
FIGARO E CONTE: Oh, brutta assai.	FIGARO AND COUNT: Rueful, truly.
BASILIO: Dunque vado.	BASILIO: Well, I'm going.
TUTTI: Andate, andate.	ALL: Go, go!
ROSINA E CONTE: Buona sera, buona sera; Buona sera, mio Signore; Buona sera, mio Signore; Presto andate via di quà.	ROSINA AND COUNT: Fare you well, then, good Signore; Fare well, then, good Signore; Fare well, then, good Signore; Peace and joy and better health.
ROSINA: (Maledetto seccatore!) Presto, andate via di quà.	ROSINA: (Plague upon you, can't you stir, ah!) Quick, begone, and nurse yourself.
BASILIO: Buona sera—ben di cuore— Obligato—in verità. (An, che in saco va il tutore!) Non gridate, intesi già. (Parte.)	BASILIO: Oh, good night, I quite agree— I really am much obliged. (Guardy's in the trap I see!) Cease your noise, I go, good man. (Exit.)
BARTOLO: Son quà. (Bartolo siede, e Figaro disponesi a fargli la barba; durante l'operazione va comprendo i due amanti.) Stringi bravissimo.	BARTOLO: I am here. (Bartolo seats himself, and Figaro prepares to shave him, during the operation he conceals the two lovers.) Now work away.
CONTE: Rosina, deh ascoltatemi.	COUNT: Rosina, now attend to me.
ROSINA: V'ascolto, eccomi quà. (Siedono fingendo studiar la musica.)	ROSINA: I'm all attention, sir. (They sit down, pretending to be at their musical studies.)
CONTE: (A mezza notte in punto, (A Rosina con cautela.) A prendervi quì siamo; Or che la chiave abbiamo. Non v'e da dubitar.)	COUNT: At midnight precisely, (Cautiously, to Rosina.) We'll wait for you here; For since we've the keys We have nothing to fear.
FIGARO: Ahi! ahi! (Distrando Bartolo.)	FIGARO: Ahi! ahi! (Calling off Bartolo's attention.)
BARTOLO: Che cosa è stato?	BARTOLO: What's the matter?
FIGARO: Un non sò che nell' occhio! Guardate, non toccate— Soffiate per pietà.	FIGARO: Something flew in my eye, Look, but don't touch it: Blow, for pity's sake.
ROSINA: A mezza notte in punto, Anima mia, t'aspetto; Io già l'istante affretto, Che teco m' unirà.	ROSINA: At midnight, precisely, My love, I'll await you; May the moments be fleeting That remain before we are united.
BARTOLO: Ma lasciami vedere!	BARTOLO: No, let me look!
FIGARO: Vedete, chi vi tiene?	FIGARO: Well, look; who hinders you?
ROSINA E CONTE: Do, re, mi, fa, sol, la.	ROSINA AND COUNT: Do, re, mi, fa, sol, la.
CONTE: Ora avveritirvi voglio, (Bartolo si alza. e si avvicina agli amanti.) Cara che il vostro foglio, Perchè non fosse inutile Il mio travestimento.	COUNT: But now I tell you, (Bartolo rises, and draws near the lovers.) That I showed your letter, In order that I might disguise Myself much better.
BARTOLO: Ma bravi, ma bravissimi! Ma bravi, in verità! Bricconi! birbanti! Ah, voi tutti quanti Avete giurato Di farmi crepar. Uscite furfanti! Vi voglio accoppar! Di rabbia, di sdegno Mi sento crepar.	BARTOLO: Oh, excellent, forsooth! Excellent, in very truth! Rascals! scoundrels! I see you've all Conspired this day To haste my fall. Avaunt! Or I shall slay you all! I'm nearly like to die with rage.
CONTE, ROSINA E FIGARO: L' amico delira; La testa gli gira. Dottore, tacete, Vi fate burlar. Tacete, partiamo; Non serve a gridar.	COUNT, ROSINA AND FIGARO: Your friend is delirious: His head is oppressed. Be silent, good doctor, It is only a joke. Peace, peace, let's away; We've been overheard.

Intesi ci siamo—
Non v'è a replicar.
(Partono.)

SCENA V

Berta, sola.

BERTA: Sempre gridi e tumulti in questa casa;
Si litiga, si piange, si minaccia.
Non v'e un'ora di pace
Con questo vecchio avaro e brontolone.
Oh, che casa! oh, che casa di confusione!
Il vecchietto cerca moglie,
Vuol marito la ragazza:
Quello freme questa è pazza—
Tutti e due son da legar.
Ma che cosa è questo amore
Che fà tutti delirar?
Egli è un male, universale,
Una smania, un pizzicore,
Un solletico, un tormento;
Poverina! anch'io lo sento,
Nè so come remediar.
Ah, vecchiaia maledetta!
Son da tutti disprezzata,
E arrabiate—disperata,
Mi convien così crepar!
(Parte.)

SCENA VI

Don Bartolo, introducendo Don Basilio.

BARTOLO: Dunque voi Don Alonzo
Non conoscete affatto?

BASILIO: Affatto.

BARTOLO: Ah, certo
Il Conte lo mandò. Qualche gran trama
Quì si prepara.

BASILIO: Io dico
Che quel garbato amico,
Era il Conte in persona.

BARTOLO: Il Conte?

BASILIO: Il Conte!
(La borsa parla chiaro.)

BARTOLO: Sia che si vuole—amico, al notaro
Vo' in questo punto andare, in questa sera
Stipular di mie nozze io vo' il contratto.

BASILIO: Il notar! siete matto?
Piove a torrenti; e poi,
Questa sera il notaro
E impegnato con Figaro; il barbiere
Marita una nipote.

BARTOLO: Una nipote!
Che nipote?—Il barbiere
Non ha nipoti. Ah, quì v'è qualche imbroglio,
Questa notte i bricconi
Me la voglion far. Presto, il notaro
Quà venga sull' istante;

This clamor is useless—
He'll not hear a word.
(Exeunt.)

SCENE V

Bertha, alone.

BERTHA: There is nothing but noise and clamor in this house;
Nothing but disputing, weeping, and threatening.
There's not an hour's peace
With this avaricious old wrangler.
Oh, what a house! what a house of confusion!
The fond old dotard seeks a wife,
The merest girls for husbands pine
The one a fool, the other mad—
In jacket straight I'd all confine.
What can this love be
That drives the folks mad?
Some all happiness seem,
While other are sad.
It is something that teases,
That plagues and inspires;
Even I am its prey,
And am scorched by Love's fires.
But because I am old.
I am passed by all;—
Ah, I expire with rage!
With vexation I die!
(Exit.)

SCENE VI

Don Bartolo, introducing Don Basilio.

BARTOLO: Then you don't know
Don Alonzo at all?

BASILIO: Not at all.

BARTOLO: Ah, surely
He was sent by the Count! Some great scheme
Is, no doubt, in agitation.

BASILIO: I tell you
That this friend
Was no other than the Count himself.

BARTOLO: The Count himself?

BASILIO: The Count!
(This purse clearly bespeaks it.)

BARTOLO: Let him be what he may—
I will hasten this moment to the notary,
And settle the marriage contract.

BASILIO: To the notary! are you mad?
It rains in torrents; and, besides,
This evening the notary is to be with Figaro: the barber
Gives his niece in marriage.

BARTOLO: His niece?
What niece?—The barber
Has no nieces. Ah, there must be some plot here.
This very night the scoundrels will Lie in wait to betray me. Haste, and call

Ecco la chiave del portone—andate,
Presto, per carità.
(Gli dà una chiave.)

BASILIO: Non temete; in due salti io torno quà.
(Parte.)

SCENA VII

Bartolo, indi Rosina.

BARTOLO: Per forza, o per amore,
Rosina avrà da cedere, cospetto!—
Mi viene un altra idea. Questo biglietto, (Cava dalla tasca il biglietto datogli dal Conte.)
Che scrisse la ragazza al Conte Almaviva,
Potria servir—Che colpo da maestro!
Don Alonzo, il briccone,
Senza volerlo mi diè l' armi in mano.
Ehi, Rosina! Rosina!
(Rosina dalla sue camere esce senza parlare.)
Avanti, avanti;
Del vostro amante io vi vo' dar la novella.
Povera sciagurata in verità,
Collocaste assai bene il vostro affetto!
Del vostro amor, sappiate,
Ch'ei si fa gioco in sen d'un altro amante;
Ecco la prova.
(Le dà il biglietto.)

ROSINA: Oh cielo! il mio biglietto!

BARTOLO: Don Alonzo, e il barbiere
Congiuran contro voi; non vi fidate.
In potere del Conte d' Almaviva
Vi vogliono condurre—

ROSINA: (In braccio a un'altro!—
Che mai sento?—Ah Lindoro!—Ah traditore!
Ah sì!—vendetta! e vegga Quell'empio chi è Rosina.)
Signore, sposarmi,
Voi bramavate?

BARTOLO: E il voglio.

ROSINA: Ebben, si faccia!
Io son contenta—ma all'istante.
Udite:
A mezza notte quì barbier;—con lui fuggire,
Per sposarlo io voleva.

BARTOLO: Ah, scellerati!
Corro a sbarar la porta.

ROSINA: Ah, mio Signore!
Entran par la finestra: hanno la chiave.

BARTOLO: Non mi muovo di quì!
Ma—e se fossero armati?—Figlia mia,
Poichè ti sei si bene illuminata,

The notary, instantly;
Here is the key to the door—go,
Make haste, for goodness' sake.
(Gives him a key.)

BASILIO: Don't be alarmed; in two minutes I will be here again.
(Exit.)

SCENE VII

Bartolo, then Rosina.

BARTOLO: Either by force, or love,
Rosina shall yield, I am determined!—
I have another thought. The note,
(Takes from his pocket the note given him by the Count.)
Which the girl wrote to Almaviva,
May serve—Oh, what a masterly thought!
That rascal, Don Alonzo,
Has undesignedly put weapons into my hands.
Eh, Rosina! Rosina!
(Rosina comes from her room without speaking.)
Come here, come here;
I have some news to give you from your lover
Poor unhappy girl! in truth,
You have placed your affections on a noble object!
Know that, in the arms of another,
He makes a joke of your affections;
Behold the proof.
(He gives her a note.)

ROSINA: Oh, heaven! my note!

BARTOLO: Don Alonzo and the barber
Are conspiring against you: do not trust them.
They wish to give you up
Into the arms of Count Almaviva—

ROSINA: (Into the arms of another!
What do I hear?—Oh, Lindor!—
Oh, betrayer!
Ah, yes!—vengeance—I will teach the wretch,
Who is Rosina,
Tell me, sir, do you
Wish to marry me?

BARTOLO: I do.

ROSINA: Well, let it be done!
I am content—let it be instantly.
Listen:
At midnight the wretch will be here,
With Figaro, the barber;—and it was settled,
That I should fly and marry him.

BARTOLO: Oh, wretches!
I hasten to bar the door.

ROSINA: Oh, my dear sir!
They are to enter by the window: they have the key.

BARTOLO: I will not stir from this spot!
But suppose they should be armed?
My dear child,

Facciam così. Ti chiudi a chiave in camera,
Io vo a chiamar la forza.
Dirò che son due ladri, e come tali,
Corpo di Bacco! l' avremo da vedere!
Figlia, chiuditi presto: io vado via.
(Parte.)

ROSINA: Quanto, quanto è crudel la sorte mia!
(Parte.)
(Un temporale. Si vede aprire le gelosia, ed entrare un dopo l'altro Figaro, ed il Conte avvolti in mantelli.)

SCENA VIII

Conte, Figaro, indi Rosina.

FIGARO: Al fine eccoci quà.

CONTE: Figaro, dammi man. Poter del mondo!
Che tempo indiavolato!

FIGARO: Tempo da innamorati!
(Figaro accendde i lumi spiando.)

CONTE: Ehi, fammi lume,
Dove sarà Rosina?

FIGARO: Ora vedremo—
Eccola appunto.

CONTE: Ah mio tesore—
(Con trasporta.)

ROSINA: Indietro,
(Respingendolo.)
Anima scellerata! Io quì di mia
Stolta credulità venni soltanto
A riparar lo scorno; a dimostrarti
Qual io sono, e quale amante
Perdesti, anima indegna, e sconoscento!

CONTE: Io son di sasso!

FIGARO: Io non capisco niente.

CONTE: Ma per pietà!—

ROSINA: Taci! Fingesti amore,
Sol per sagrificarmi
A quel tuo vil Conte Almaviva—

CONTE: Al Conte?—
Ah, sei delusa. Ah me felice! adunque!
Tu di verace amore.
Ami Lindor!—rispondi—

ROSINA: Ah, sì! t'amai pur troppo!

CONTE: Ah, non è tempo
Di più celarsi: anima mia! ravvisa,
(S'inginocchia, gettando il mantello.)
Colui che sì gran tempo:
Sequì tue traccie; e che per te sospira:

Since you are now so awake to your situation,
Let us act thus. Shut yourself up in your room,
While I go and see for assistance.
I will declare they are two thieves, and as such,
By Bacchus! we shall see what the consequence will be!
Child, shut yourself up immediately: I go.
(Exit.)

ROSINA: How cruel! how cruel is my fate!
(Exit.)
(A storm. The veranda is seen to open, and one after the other, Figaro and the Count enter, wrapped up in mantles.)

SCENE VIII

The Count, Figaro, then Rosina.

FIGARO: At last, here we are.

COUNT: Figaro, your hand. By the powers!
What a tempestuous night!

FIGARO: Truly, a lover's night!
(Figaro lights the candles, and looks around.)

COUNT: Eh, show a light.
Where can Rosina be?

FIGARO: We soon shall see—
There she is.

COUNT: Ah! treasure of my soul—
(With transport.)

ROSINA: Stand off,
(Repulsing him.)
Wretch that you are! I have come here
To repair the fault of my Too foolish credulity; to show you
What I am, and what a mistress
You have lost, unworthy and thoughtless man.

COUNT: I am petrified!

FIGARO: I know not what this can mean.

COUNT: But, for mercy's sake!—

ROSINA: Peace! You have pretended love,
In order to sacrifice me to the wishes
Of the vile Count Almaviva—

COUNT: To the Count?—
Ah, you are deceived. Happy that I am!
Then you return with truth
The affections of Lindor!—answer—

ROSINA: Ah, yes! I loved him but too well!

COUNT: This, then, is the moment
At which to reveal myself. My sweetest life,
(He kneels, throwing aside his mantle.)
Behold one who
Has followed your steps for so long;

Che suo ti vuol. Mirami, o mio tesoro!
Almaviva son io: non son Lindoro.

ROSINA: Ah, qual colpo inaspettato,
Egli stesso! oh ciel! che sento!
Di sorpresa, di contento,
Son vicina a delirar!

CONTE: Qual trionfo inaspettato!
Me felice! oh bel momento!
Ah, d'amore, di contento,
Son vicino a delirar!

FIGARO: Son rimasti senza fiato!
Ora muojon dal contento;
Guarda, guarda il mio talento,
Che bel colpo seppe far!

ROSINA: Mio Signore—ma voi—ma io—

CONTE: Ah, non più, non più, ben mio!
Il bel nome di mia sposa
Idol mio! t'attende già.

ROSINA: Il bel nome di tua sposa;
Ah, qual gioja al cor mi dà.

ROSINA E CONTE: Dolce nodo avventurato,
Che fai paghi i miei desiri!
Alla fin de' miei martiri,
Tu sentisti Amor, pietà.

FIGARO: Presto, andiamo: vi sbrigate,
Via, lasciate quei sospiri;
Se si tarda, i miei raggiri,
Fanno fiasco in verità.

ROSINA E CONTE: Dolce nodo avventurato!
Che fai paghi i miei desiri;
Alla fin de' miei martiri,
Tu sentisti, Amor, pietà.
(Figaro va al balcone.)

FIGARO: Ah, cospetto! che ho veduto?
Alla porta—una lanterna—
Due persone—che si fa?

CONTE, ROSINA E FIGARO: Zitti, zitti, piano, piano, Non faciam più confusione, Per la scala del balcone Presto andiamo via di quà! Non facciamo confusione. Presto, andiamo via di quà! Non facciamo confusione, Presto, andiamo, via di quà! Per la scala dal balcone, Presto andiamo, via di quà! Piano, piano! Per la scala dal balcone, Presto andiamo via di quà!

CONTE: Che avvenne mai?
(Vanno per partire.)

FIGARO: La scala—

CONTE: Ebben—

FIGARO: La scala non v'è più.

who sighs for you:
Who hopes to possess you. See, treasure of my kind
I am Almaviva: I am not Lindor.

ROSINA: What unexpected bliss,
What peace without alloy!
Oh, heavens! It is he indeed,
I'm almost mad with joy!

COUNT: My triumph is complete
No more shall doubt annoy!
This moment all repays,
I'm almost mad with joy!

FIGARO: One moment all was grief!
The next they kiss and toy;
But thanks to my designs,
Their hearts are filled with joy!

ROSINA: Dear sir—but you—but I.

COUNT: No, never fear, my love!
The blessed name of wife!
Awaits you from above.

ROSINA: The blessed name of wife!
What joy it gives my heart.

ROSINA AND COUNT: Oh, happy bond of love, We'll never, never part!
The fates proved propitious,
And gave us heart for heart.

FIGARO: Quick, let us hence: have done with sighs,
All difficulty's passed;
But often, acts too long delayed,
To nothing come at last.

ROSINA AND COUNT: Oh, happy bond of love!
We'll never, never part!
The fates propitious proved,
And gave us heart for heart.
(Figaro runs to the balcony.)

FIGARO: Ah, zounds! what do I see?
At the door—a lantern—
Two persons—what is to be done?

COUNT, ROSINA AND FIGARO: Step as soft as zephyrs dying,
Through the window gently hieing,
Down the ladder quickly flying,
Trip it lightly and away!

COUNT: Through the window gently hieing. Trip it lightly and away! Through the window gently hieing, Trip it lightly, and away! Down the ladder quickly flying, Trip it lightly and away! Piano, piano! Down the ladder quickly flying, Trip it lightly and away!

COUNT: What has happened?
(About to depart.)

FIGARO: The ladder—

COUNT: Well—

FIGARO: The ladder is gone.

CONTE: Che dici?	COUNT: What did you say?
FIGARO: Chi mai l'avrà levata?	FIGARO: Who could have taken it away?
CONTE: Quale inciampo crudel!	COUNT: What a cruel obstacle!
ROSINA: Me sventurata!	ROSINA: I am so unhappy!
FIGARO: Ah, zitti! sento gente, (ora ci siamo.) Signor mio, che si fa?	FIGARO: Ah, hush! somebody is coming, and here we are. What is to be done?
CONTE: Mia Rosina, coraggio. (Si ravvoglie nel mantello.)	COUNT: Courage, my dear Rosina. (Wraps himself in his mantle.)
FIGARO: Eccoli quà. (Si ritirano verso le quinte.)	FIGARO: Here they are. (They retire to the side.)

SCENA IX	SCENE IX
Don Basilio con lanterna, introducendo un Notajo con carta in mano.	Don Basilio with a lantern, introducing a Notary with a paper in his hand.
BASILIO: Entrate qui Don Bartolo.	BASILIO: Come in, Don Bartolo.
FIGARO: Don Basilio! (Chiamando dalla quinta apposta, accennando al Conte.)	FIGARO: Don Basilio! (Calling to the opposite side, beckoning to the Count.)
CONTE: E quell'altro?	COUNT: And that other?
FIGARO: Ve', ve', nostro notajo. Allegramente! Lasciate fare a me. Signor Notajo. (Basilio e il Notajo si rivolgono, e restano sorpresi. Il Notajo si avvicina a Figaro.) Dovevate in mia casa Stipular questa sera Un contratto di nozze Fra il Conte d' lmaviva e mia nipote Gli sposi, eccoli quà! Avete indosso La scrittura? Benissimo! (Il Notajo cava una scrittura.)	FIGARO: Oh, oh, our notary. Delightful! Leave the affair to me. Mr. Notary. (Basilio and the Notary turn round, and remain surprised. The Notary approaches Figaro.) This evening You were to settle in my house, The marriage contract between The Count Almaviva and my niece Here are the parties! Have you indorsed The papers? Oh, very well! (The Notary takes out a paper.)
BASILIO: Ma, piano; Don Bartolo dov'è?	BASILIO: But softly; Where is Don Bartolo?
CONTE: Ehi, Don Basilio, (Chiamande a parte Basilio e cavandosi un'anello dal dito, e gli addita di tacere.) Quest'anello è per voi.	COUNT: Here, Don Basilio, (Calling Basilio aside, and taking a ring from his finger, beckons him to be silent.) This ring is for you.
BASILIO: Ma io—	BASILIO: But I—
CONTE: Per voi Vi sono ancor due palle nel cervello Se v'opponete.	COUNT: You (Taking out a pistol.) Will have two balls in your head If you offer any opposition.
BASILIO: Oibo prendo l'anello. Chi firma?	BASILIO: O Lord! I take the ring. Who signs?
ROSINA E CONTE: Eccoci quà. (Sottescrivone.)	ROSINA AND COUNT: Here we are. (They sign.)
CONTE: Son testimonj Figaro e Don Basilio;—essa è mia sposa.	COUNT: Figaro and Don Basilio Are witnesses;—this is my wife.
FIGARO E BASILIO: Evviva!	FIGARO AND BASILIO: Viva!
CONTE: Oh mio contento!	COUNT: How am I blessed!
ROSINA: Oh, sospirata mia felicità!	ROSINA: Oh, long-sighed-for happiness!
TUTTI: Evviva! (Nell' atto che il Conte bacia la mano a Rosina. e Figaro abbraccia Basilio, entra Bartolo come appresso.)	ALL: Viva! (While the Count is kissing the hand of Rosina, and Figaro is embracing Basilio, enter Bartolo in haste.)

SCENA ULTIMA	SCENE THE LAST
Don Bartolo, un Alcalde, Alguazils, Soldati, e detti.	Don Bartolo; an Alcalde, Alguazils, Soldiers; and the preceding.
BARTOLO: Fermi tutti. Eccoli quà. (Additando Figaro e il Conte all' Alcade, e slanciandosi contro Figaro.)	BARTOLO: Hold, all of you. There they are. (Pointing out Figaro and the Count to the Alcalde, and rushing towards Figaro.)
FIGARO: Colle buone, Signor.	FIGARO: Softly, sir, softly.
BARTOLO: Signor, son ladri; Arrestate, arrestate!	BARTOLO: Sir, they are thieves; Arrest them, arrest them.
UFFIZIALE: Signore, (Al Conte.) Il suo nome.	OFFICER: Sir, your name. (To the Count.)
CONTE: Il mio nome? Egli è quel d'un nom d'onore; Lo sposo io son di questa—	COUNT: My name? It is that of a man of honor; I am husband to this lady—
BARTOLO: Eh, andate al diavolo! Rosina esser dève mia sposa, non e vero?	BARTOLO: Eh! go to the devil! Rosina is to be mine;—is it not true?
ROSINA: Come debbo esser sua? Oh nemmen per pensiero.	ROSINA: How! yours! No; not even in thought.
BARTOLO: Come, come, fraschetta! ah, son tradito. Arrestate, vi dico: E un ladro!	BARTOLO: How now, wench! Ah, I have been betrayed! Arrest him, I tell you: He is a thief! (Pointing to the Count.)
FIGARO: Or, or l'accoppo.	FIGARO: I shall be the death of him.
BARTOLO: E un birbante, è un briccone.	BARTOLO: He is a rogue—a scoundrel!
UFFIZIALE: Signore? (Al Conte.)	OFFICER: Sir? (To the Count.)
CONTE: Indietro!	COUNT: Stand off!
UFFIZIALE: Il nome—	OFFICER: Your name—
CONTE: Indietro, dico; indietro!	COUNT: Stand off, I say; stand off.
UFFIZIALE: Ehi, mio Signor, abbassi quel tuono;— E chi è lei?	OFFICER: Eh, my good sir, lower that tone;— Who are you?
CONTE: D' Almaviva il Conte io sono. (Scoprendosi.)	COUNT: I am the Count Almaviva! (Discovering himself.)
BARTOLO: Insomma, io ho tutti i torti.	BARTOLO: The fact is, I bear all the blame.
FIGARO: Pur troppo è così.	FIGARO: Ay, and justly, too.
BARTOLO: Ma tu briccone— Tu pur tradirmi, e far da testimonio!	BARTOLO: But you, you rascal— Even you to betray me, and turn witness!
BASILIO: Ah Dottore Bartolo mio, Quei Signor Conte certe ragioni Ha in tasca; certi argomenti A cui non si risponde.	BASILIO: Ah, doctor, The Count has certain persuasives And certain arguments in his pocket, Which there is no withstanding.
BARTOLO: Sì, sì, ho capito tutto.	BARTOLO: Ay, ay! I understand you.
CONTE: Ebben, Dottore?	COUNT: Well, Doctor?
BARTOLO: Sì, sì, che serve? quel ch'è fatto è fatto. Andate pur; che il Ciel vi benedica!	BARTOLO: Well, well, what matters it? what's done is done. Go, and may Heaven bless you!
FIGARO: Bravo, bravo, un'abbraccio! Venite quà, Dottore.	FIGARO: Bravo, bravo, Doctor! Let me embrace you.
ROSINA: Ah, noi felici!	ROSINA: Oh, how happy we are!
CONTE: Oh, fortunato amore!	COUNT: Oh, propitious love!

FIGARO: Di sì felice innesto,
Serbiam memoria eterna,
Io smorzo la lanterna,
Quì più non ho che far!

BARTOLO: Amore e fede eterna,
Si vegga in voi regnar.

ROSINA: Costò sospiri e pene,
Un sì felice istante
Alfin quest'alma amante,
Comincia a respirar!

FIGARO: Young Love, triumphant smiling,
All harsher thoughts exiling,
All quarrels reconciling.
Now waves his torch on high!

BARTOLO: Young Love, our hearts beguiling,
Bids care and sorrow fly.

ROSINA: May all our lot now viewing,
Find every hour renewing
The joys of youth's first wooing,
And happy prove as I.

CONTE: Dell' umile Lindoro,
La fiamma a te fu accetta
Più bel destin t'aspetta,
Sù, vieni a giubilar.

CORO: Amore e fede eterna,
Si vegga in voi regnar!

END OF THE OPERA.

COUNT: The humble Lindor wooed you,
And kind was your reply;
A brighter fate pursued you—
No more, then, heave a sigh.

CHORUS: May love, our hearts beguiling,
Bid care and sorrow fly!

END OF THE OPERA.

William Tell (1829)

MUSIC BY GIOVACCHINO ROSSINI ■ LIBRETTO BY ÉTIENNE DE JOUY & HIPPOLYTE BIS ■ BASED ON FRIEDRICH SCHILLER

This four-act opera premiered at the Paris Opéra on August 3, 1829. It is set to a libretto by Etienne de Jouy and Hippolyte Bis (from Friedrich Schiller). In an Alpine village, William Tell is thinking about Austria's domination over Switzerland. Edwidge, Tell's wife, and Jemmy, his son, are working. Melchthal berates his son, Arnold, because he is not married. Arnold tells him that he is in love with Mathilde, the daughter of the Austrian governor Gessler. Tell helps a shepherd, Leuthold, escape from Gessler's troops after he killed a soldier who tried to kidnap his daughter. The soldiers set the village on fire and take Melchthal hostage. In a valley near Lake Lucerne, Arnold and Mathilde tell each other of their love. Mathilde implores Arnold to join the Austrians so that he may gain glory so that they can wed. Tell then arrives with the news of Melchthal's death. Arnold swears to fight on the side of the Swiss patriots, and Tell rouses them with a call to arms. Arnold tells Mathilde of his intentions and she promises to be loyal to him. Near Gessler's castle, the governor calls upon the people to bow before a pole which he has erected, bearing his hat on top. Tell and his son refuse to do this and are accused of assisting in Leuthold's escape. Tell is ordered to shoot an apple off Jemmy's head, which he hesitates to do. Jemmy assures him that he will stand still, and Tell shoots his arrow straight at the target. He tells the cheering crowd that he would have shot Gessler if he had missed the apple and injured his son. Gessler arrests them, but Jemmy is spared and placed in Mathilde's custody. Arnold and the Swiss patriots prepare for war. Mathilde and Jemmy arrive with news that Tell has escaped. Jemmy gives the signal for battle to begin. A storm breaks out; Gessler manages to reach safety in his boat, but is killed by an arrow shot by Tell. The patriots celebrate Switzerland's freedom from tyranny.

■ ATTO I	■ ACT I
SCENA I	SCENE I
Il Teatro representa una specie di Villaggio in mezzo alle Montagne—A destra dell' attore un Torrente, che va a perdersi sulla sinistra in mezzo alle Recce—In lontano le alte Montagne della Svizzera—Sopra una Roccia a sinistra la Casa di Guglielmo Tell—Sul davanti altre tre capanne.	The scene represents a Village in the midst of Mountains—From the right descends a Torrent, which disappears among the Rocks below—The high Mountains of Switzerland bound the distance—On a Rock to the left is seen the House of William Tell—In the foreground are three Huts.
Guglielmo Tell, pensoso, appoggiato alla sua vanga—Eduige e Jemmy intenti a vari lavori rustici—Un Pescatore nella sua barca sul torrente.	At the rising of the curtain, William Tell is discovered, leaning on his hoe—Edwidge and Jemmy engaged in rural occupations—A Fisherman seated in his boat, which is fastened to the shore.
CHORUS: E il ciel seren, sereno e il giorno, Tutto d'intorno parla d'amor, L'ecogiuliva di questa riva ripeta il giubbilo de nostri cor, di nostri cor, ripeta il giubbilo de nostri cor! Coll'opre ognuno, poi presti omaggio. del mondo ognor, del mondo ognor, Al Creator! E il ciel seren, sereno e il giorno, Tutto d'intorno parla d'amor! Coll'opre ognuno poi presti omaggio, del mondo ognor al Creator!	CHORUS: Fair is the morning, shining upon the mountains, Light from the eastern skies, joy from above, From cliffs rebounding, sweet echo sounding, Joyful repeats our song; fervent and pure and strong, Praising the Maker of day and of night! The Great Creator, Loudly we praise you, Father of all, Maker of all, Maker of all! Fair is the morning, shining on the mountains, Light from the eastern skies, joy from above! All things we're praising anthems upraising, singing to praise the God of love!
PESCATORE: Deh vieni, o mia diletta, In sen di mia barchetta; Deh! vieni, ove t' aspetta Il tenero mio cor. Io lascio il lido, o Lisa, Non sii da me divisa;— Il ciel sereno ê pegno A noi d'un grato dì.	FISHERMAN: Come here, my dearest love! In my little boat embark; Ah! come here and rejoice My loving heart with your smile. Though I must leave, Eliza dear, Do not let me depart alone. See how the shining sky above predicts A brilliant day
GUG: (Dolce è per lui la cura Del foco ond' arde in seno, Nè prova il rio veleno Che mi divora il cor. Perchè vivere ancora Or che il destin ci umilia? Ei canta; e Elvezia intanto Ahi quanto-piangerà!).	WIL: (Of love he lightly sings, In his heart so lately kindled; For the cares he hath no feeling Which now my heart oppress. For me what blandishments has life While my country thus is humbled? He sings; and yet Switzerland In lamentation languishes!)
PES: Gentil come la rosa D' un bel mattin nascente, Potrai d' un ciel fremente Plascar, ben mio, l' orror. Ed al tuo fianco assiso Novella vita io spero. Proteggerà il mistero Le gioie dell' amor.	FISH: Gentle as the bending rosebud, Born in the morning's early dew, Heaven's threatened tempests wild Will love, appease your presence; When I'm seated by your side, What new life my soul receives! There's a Providence above us that will protect Our hearts' affections
EDU. E JEM: Felice nell' orgoglio D' un tenero abbandono, Delle tempeste il suono Non desta in lui timor. Ma se al temuto scoglio Lo tragge avversa sorte, L'inno unirà di morte A' canti dell' amor. (Odonsi in poca distanza suoni e grida di gioja.)	EDW & JEM: In the full conviction happy, Of affection fond requited, The sound of the tempest raging Awakens no fear in him. But if on the treacherous rock Should adverse fate propel him, With hymns of death he'll mingle His present songs of love. (Sounds of rejoicing heard in the distance)
TATTI: Oh! quale altra d'intorno Dolce armonia risuna! Di festa il lieto giorno Ne viene ad annunziar. Del sol siccome il raggio	ALL: Oh! what harmony enchanting All around salutes us! Of a coming festival It is the glad announcement.

Risplende a' flor' sereno,
La gioja in ogui seno
Rivive, e sente amor.

Entre Melchtal, dalla collina, seguite da altri suizzeri, Arnoldo e detti.

TUTTI: Salute, onore, omaggio
Al saggio-tra i pastor'.

EDU: Il rito si rinnovi
Di tempi men funesti,
E premio alfin ritrovi
La fedeltà, l' amor.

ARN: (L' amore—oh, Dio!—l'amore!—
Oh, qual pensier!—io gelo!)

EDU: (Pregandolo a voler celebrare le nozze de' Pastors.) Per te fien lieti.

MEL: (Oh, cielo!)

EDU: E ognuno il fia per te.

GUG: Della virtù, degli anni
Il privilegio è questo
Cedi, e giammai funesto
Il ciel per noi sarà.

MEL: (Cedendo alle istanze che gli vengano fatte.) Alzate insieme il canto,
E celebrate in sì bel giorno
Le pure gioje d' imene e amor.

TUTTI: Alziamo, alziamo insieme il canto,
Celebriamo in sì bel giorno
Le pure gioje d' imene e amor.
Al fremer del torrente
S' alzi di gioja il grido,
E l eco-dolcemente
Da questo ameno lido
A' monti, al bosco, al piano
Il suon ripeterà.
(Il Coro parte.)

GUG: Contro l' ardor del giorno
Il solingo mio tetto
V' offre sicuro ed ospital ricetto.
Ivi, nel sen di pace,
Vissero gli avi miei;
Ivi io fuggo i nemici,
E a' sguardi loro ascondo
Che, padre essendo, io son felice al mondo.
(Abbracciando il figlio.)

MEL: Egli è padre, e felice—
(Ad Arnoldo.)
Udisti, figlio mio?
Questo è il maggior de' beni. E vorrai sempre
Della mia lunga età schernire i voti?
La festa de pastori
Con un duplice nodo
Consacra in questo giorno di contento
I giuri dell' imen—ma il tuo non sento
(Partono tutti fuorchè Arnoldo.)

As do the sun's bright rays
The budding flowers expand;
So joy revives the heart
And ignites the bosom with love!

Enter Melchtal, descending the hill, followed by Arnold and Swiss Peasants.

ALL: Health, honor, and happiness
To the wisest of our shepherds.

EDW: Let us renew the rites
Of less unhappy times;
And may meet reward attend
On fidelity and love.

ARN: (Love!—Oh, heavens!—who speaks of love?
I shudder at the painful thought.)

EDW: (To Melchtal, requesting him to complete the nuptials of the Peasants.) Their happiness complete.

MEL: (Oh, great Heaven!)

EDW: Let all be made happy by you.

WIL: Such is the privilege of virtue and old age;
Comply with their wishes,
And Heaven will smile on us.

MEL: (Yielding to the solicitations of the Shepherds.) Now raise on high your voices,
And celebrate, this festive day,
The joys of Hymen and of love!

ALL: We'll raise on high our voices and celebrate, this festive day,
The joys of Hymen and of love.
Above the torrent's crashing roar
Let our joyous songs be heard,
And Echo, in her sweetest tones,
From these shores, over the mountains,
Through the forests, through the plains,
Will the glad sound repeat.
(Exeunt Chorus.)

WIL: Against the meridian heat
My lonely habitation
Offers you a shelter safe and hospitable.
There, in peaceful serenity,
Have my ancestors long lived;
I fly from my foes,
And there I conceal from them
The happiness I have in being a father.
(Embracing his Son.)

MEL: A father, and a happy one, is he!
(To Arnold)
Did you not hear him, my son?
Of all the blessings the greatest!
And will you neglect
The hopes of my old age—
The festival of the shepherds
On this day consecrates
A double Hymeneal vow;
But I have not heart of your's!
(Exeunt all but Arnold.)

ARN: (Solo.) Il mio giuro, egli disse!
Il mio giuro!—Giammai. Perchè a me stesso
Tacer non posso in qual fatale oggetto
Son rapiti i miei sensi?
O tu, di Gessler auora, eppur si umana,
O mia Matilde, io t' amo,
T' adoro, e l' onor mio
Per te il dover, l' Elvezia, il padre obblio.
Contro la micidial valanga io fui
Di scudo a' giorni tuoi;
Illustre donna, io te salvai da morte,
Te che destina altroi l' empia mia sorte.
(Odesi un suono di caccia.)
Ma quel suon!—Del superbo i rei seguaci
Scendon dal monte—Oh, Dio!
Ivi è Gessler, e seco è l' idol mio!—
Veder, udire io voglio
Colei che m' innamora—
Se reo son io, sia almen, felice ancora.
(Per partire.)

Entra Guglielmo.

GUG: Non fuggire! qual mai dolor ti preme?
D' amico l' appressar
A fermarti non vale?

ARN: No, no!

GUG: Perchè tremar?

ARN: (Ah, che finger tento invano.)
Mentre opprime il fiero strano
Ogni cor or prova il duol.

GUG: Io provo un duol più ch' altri vero
(Arnoldo il suo non svela già.)

ARN: Altra sciagura v' ha!

GUG: Che dì tu? qual mister? perchè tacer?

ARN: Che speri tu?

GUG: Il tuo dover membrarti, e tua virtù, Arnoldo.

ARN: Ah, Matilde, io t' amo, e amore
Spegner debbo nel mio core,
Ma se il chiede il patrio onore
In me tregua abbia il dolor.

GUG: Leggo appieno nel suo core,
Della colpa ei sente orror,
Serve è vero all' oppressore
Ma se pur fu traditore,
Mostra almeno il suo dolore
Che detesta un tanto error.
Per noi dubbio, taccia, e tema
Se v' è ardir si vincerà.

ARN: In noi possa tanta v' ha?

ARN: (Solus.) My promise, said he?
My promise!—Ah, never!—Why can't I conceal
The fatal object from myself
Which my whole soul enthrals?
O you, of Gessler the sister, and yet so fair!
O, my Matilda, how I love you!
I adore you!—and for you I neglect
My honor, my country, and my father!
With this arm I snatched you from the deadly avalanche.
Ah! noble lady, from death I saved you
And cruel fate yields you to another
(The sound of a horn heard.)
What sound is that!—The minions of the tyrant Descend the mountain heights!—
Oh, God!
Gessler is there, and with him comes my idol.
I must see her, and once more hear
The voice that my soul enchants!
And, if it is a crime, still there's bliss in it!
(Going.)

Enter William.

WIL: Fly not! what trouble ails you?
Can a friend's approach detain you
For a while?

ARN: No, no!

WIL: Why do you tremble?

ARN: (Ah! vain is all dissembling.)
While the tyrant's yoke continues,
My heart is overwhelmed with grief.

WIL: My grief surpasses all other
(The cause of his Arnold tells not.)

ARN: Other miseries await us!

WIL: What did you say? What mystery? Why are you silent?

ARN: What do you desire?

WIL: To recall you, Arnold, to your duty
And honor.

ARN: Ah! Matilda, dearly do I love you;
But from my heart the passion I must root,—
If my country and my honor so demand
The sacrifice I must cease to mourn.

WIL: The remorse of his heart I clearly read
In the blanched aspect of his countenance;
That the tyrant he has served is true,
But if he has been unfaithful to us,
His grief attests to his repentance
And that his error he now regrets.
We have no need for doubt or fear—
If true to ourselves, we shall conquer.

ARN: What power do we possess?

GUG: Possa immensa ha chi non trema.	WIL: Strength enough has he who does not doubt
ARN: Contro all' armi, l' oppressor, In voi forza ov' è?	ARN: What force have we to meet the army of the tyrant?
GUG: Nel cor Se non manca in noi valor. Si cadrà l' empio stranier.	WIL: In our hearts. If our doesn't valor fail us, The tyrant will surely fall.
ARN: Quanto perdi ohimè!	ARN: Think, should defeat await you?—
GUG: Non calmi.	WIL: I care not.
ARN: Gloria speri trarne or tu?	ARN: Do you hope for glory to win?
GUG: Ancor non so che sia cotesta gloria, Ma ben io so che sia la schiavitu.	WIL: What this glory is I know not— But too much I know of bondage.
ARN: La tua speranza?	ARN: Then what do you hope for?
GUG: E la vittoria! In te giova sperarla.	WIL: Victory!—and victory I hope to win through you!
ARN: Si vincerà.	ARN: You expect to conquer.
GUG: Dubbio non v' ha.	WIL: I have no doubt of it.
ARN: Vinti, qual è il nostro asil?	ARN: But, if conquered, where our refuge?
GUG: Las tomba.	WIL: In the tomb.
ARN: E il nostro gran vendicator?	ARN: And who will avenge our fall?
GUG: Il ciel.	WIL: Heaven!
ARN: Quando è l' ora del periglio, Io son presto fido amico.	ARN: When the hour of danger comes, Faithfully I will stand by you.
GUG: Attendi. (Odesi un suono di caccia.)	WIL: Listen! (The sound of a horn heard)
ARN: Oh, momento fatal!	ARN: Oh, perilous moment!
GUG: Melchtal, Melchtal! che sento, è Gessler, come? Mentre ei ne sprezza Vorresti tu piegar l' umil cervice Il bene a mendicar d' un bieco sguardo?	WIL: Melchtal, Melchtal! what do I hear? 'Tis Gessler While we are condemned by him, Would you, coward like, bend to him, And supplicate his scornful favour?
ARN: Ah! quei severi accenti Per me son duro oltraggio. Io volo al suo passaggio, Gessler a minacciar.	ARN: Ah! these words sarcastic and unkind Put an insult on my honor;— On his passing, I will cross him, And bid defiance to this Gessler.
GUG: Lungi da noi precipitata impresa: Pensa al padre ed il proteggi; Della patria alla vendetta.	WIL: Let us do nothing rashly: First let your father be made safe, And then let us free our country.
ARN: Mio padre!	ARN: O, my father!
GUG: (Ei dubita.)	WIL: (He hesitates.)
ARN: La patria!	ARN: And my country!
GUG: (E pallido.)	WIL: (He turns pale.)
ARN: E l' amor mio.	ARN: And my love!
GUG: (E qual è il suo mistero?)	WIL: (He has thoughts that he will not reveal.)
ARN: Che penso? Ciel pietoso tu lo sai, Se Matilde è a me diletta, Ma virtù mi chiama e aspetta, Odio e morte all' oppressor.	ARN: What shall I do? Heaven, you know my thoughts. How dear to me Matilda is! But to my country I yield my love, Till death the oppressor shall lay low.
GUG: Delle nozze da lungi odo il canto. Non s' attristi la gioja ai pastor, Il piacer non sia misto col pianto, Ed un sol di non segni il dolor.	WIL: Afar I hear the nuptial hymns. Let us not abridge the shepherds' joy, Let not their mirth be mingled with grief, Let this one day be free from care.
Entrano Jemmy, Eduige, Il Pescatore, Melchtal, Svizzeri, due Fidanzante, ed i loro Sposi.	Enter Jemmy, Edwidge, Fisherman, Melchtal, and Peasants, ushering two Brides and Bridegrooms.
ARN: (Oh, smania!)	ARN: (Oh, vengeance!)
MEL: (Agli sposi.) Allor che il cielo La vostra fede accoglie, Bendirvi degg' io.	MEL: (To the Brides and Bridegrooms.) Now that your vows are recorded, in heaven, I must give you my blessing.
GUG: Chi d' onorar s'assume La molta età, suol riverire il Nume.	WIL: He who reveres old age Will himself be blessed in heaven.
ARN: (Il lor contento m' è al cor velen. Oh, mio tormento!—fatale amore!)	ARN: (Their merriment to my heart but sorrow brings.) Oh, agony!—oh! love most fatal!
CORO: Ciel, che del mondo sei l' ornamento, Splendi secondo, al lor contento. Puio è l' affetto nel loro petto, Come la luce d' un dì seren. (A' due sposi.)	CHORUS: Oh, Heaven! of earthly bliss the source, On their loves propitious deign to look;— Pure as the celestial light above Are the affections which unite them. (To the Bridegrooms)
MEL: Delle antiche virtudi L' esempio rinnovate; O figli miei, pensate Che il suolo ove nasceste, al vostro imene Domanda degli appoggi e de' custodi. E voi, gentili a lor fide compagne, Chiusa e nel vostro petto La lor posteritarde. I figli vostri, Degli avi lor fian degni: Da voi l' Elvezia attende i suoi sostegni. (Odesi il suono della caccia.)	MEL: You'll now endeavor to emulate the bright example of your ancestors; Remember, O my children dear, That your country, from this your union, For guardians and protectors looks; And you, their companions, gentle and fair, On whose fond care our early youth depends will imbue, The minds of their offspring With sentiments worthy of their ancestors;— On you Helvetia rests for succour. (The sound of the chase heard.)
GUG: (Gessler di nuovi!)	WIL: (Gessler is here again!)
ARN: Andiamo. (Partono.)	ARN: Let us begone. (Exit.)
GUG: (Gessler proscrive i voti!)	WIL: Gessler will thwart your wishes.
EDU: Quai t' agitan trasporti? (A Guglielmo.) Perchè liberamente sian palesi IL dì sorgea—	EDW: What is it that agitates you? (To William.) Already your anger dawns the day To give vent to.
GUG: Lo spero; Ma più Arnoldo non vedo.	WIL: I hope so; But I no longer see Arnold.
EDU: E ne lascia.	EDW: He has left us.
GUG: Ei mi fugge. Pur cela indarno il turbamento suo. Volo ad interrogarlo; E tu ravvia i giuochi. (A Eduge.)	WIL: He avoids me. But the troubles he ill conceals which afflict him. I will go, and interrogate him, While you keep up the merriment. (To Edw.)
EDU: M' agghiaccia di spavento, E mi parli di festa?	EDW: Your words alarm me, And yet of merriment you speak!
GUG: Cela il fragore a' rei della tempesta, Può soffocarla della gioja il canto. Fia chi l' odano i erudi Quando le prische avrem nostre virtudi. (Parte.)	WIL: Thus may the roar of the coming tempest Be masked in sounds of revelry;— Such sounds shall assail our tyrant's ears, When we have regained our liberties! (Exit.)
CORO: Cinto il crine—di bei fiori, Tra gli amori—scendi Imen. Teco alfine—pace scenda E ne renda—lieti appien.	CHORUS: Your brow adorned with sweet flowers. Descend, O Hymen, by Cupids guarded;

Per te solo—tace il duolo;
Per te lieto vive il cor,
Muta resta—la tempesta
Nelle gioje dell' amor.

JEM: Ecco colà, tremante,
E reggendosi appena,
Madre; un pastor s' inoltra—

PES: Egli è il buon Leutoldo.
Qual frangente lo guida?

Entra Leutoldo

LEU: Salvatemi!
(Appoggiandosi sopra una scure insanguinata.)

EDU: Che temi?

LEU: Il loro sdegno.

EDU: Parla.—Chi ti minnaccia?

LEU: Quell' empio, che giammai
Perdona; il più crudele,
Di tutti il più funesto—
Deh! mi salvate, o tro voi spento io resto.

MEL: Che festi?

LEU: Il mio dovere!
Solo di mia famiglia
Lasciammi il cielo un' adorata figlia
Un vil seguaco del governatore
Rapirla osava al mio paterno amore—
Quest' arma mia l'oppresse—
Ah! lo vedete voi: quest' è il suo sangue.

MEL: Cielo!—chi lo sostiene?
Tutto pe' giorni suori temer conviene.

LEU: Sopra l' opposta sponda
Un certo asil m' avrei—Deh! mi vi guida.
(Pregando il Pescatore.)

PES: Il torrente e la rocca
Vietano avvicinarsi ove tu brami,
E l' affrontarli, o misero,
E darsi a certa morte.

LEU: Oh, quanto ingiuste
Sei meco! all' ultim' ora
Non oda i tuoi rimorsi il sommo nume.

Entra Guglielmo.

GUG: (Egli spar), nè a rinvenirlo io giunsi.)
Sciagurato Leutoldo!
(Voci di dentro.)

LEU: Gran Dio! tu sol mi puoi salvar.

Joyous Plenty bring here with you;
And happy henceforth render us.
Through you alone our sorrows cease;
Through you alone our hearts rejoice;
In silence hushed, the tempest sleeps
Amid the sweet delights of love.

JEM: See! a trembling shepherd advances,
Who scarcely can sustain himself,
Mother, behold—he comes this way.

FISHERMAN: It surely is the worthy Leuthold!
What sad event can bring him here?

Enter Leuthold.

LEU: O, pray save me! (Supporting himself upon a hatchet still reeking with blood.)

EDW: What fear you?

LEU: Their vengeance.

EDW: Speak—Who has threatened you?

LEU: That monster impious and cruel,—
Who never pardons—shows no mercy—
Amongst the most unrelenting tyrants;—
Save me;—or on this spot they'll slay me!

MEL: What have you done!

LEU: My duty!
Of all my once large family Heaven left me;
An only daughter
One of the minions of the governor dared to steal her
From her father's bosom;—
And by this weapon he has fallen!—
Ah! behold—here streams the wretch's blood!

MEL: O, heavens! who will dare protect him!
His life is now in direst peril!

LEU: To the opposite shore bear me;
There a safe asylum I shall find.
(Soliciting the Fisherman.)

FISH: Between the torrent and the rocks,
That shore to reach would be impossible;—
The mere attempt, unhappy man,
Would certain death be to us both.

LEU: Oh! can you refuse me?
In your last moments may the Almighty
Your prayers reject.

Enter William.

WIL: (He escaped, and I could no where find him.)
O, unhappy Leuthold!
(Voices within)

LEU: Great God! you alone can save me now.

GUG: Io sento minacciar e dolersi—

LEU: Oh mio Guglielmo!
Crudo destin m' opprime—
Mi si persegue: non son reo, mel credi,
E per sottrarmi al mio crudel destino,
Quello mi resta solo arduo cammino.

GUG: Tu l' doi, pescator? salvarlo.

LEU: E vano:
Come il tristo Gessler egli è crudele.

GUG: Sventurato!—che apprendo?
Ma s' ei lo nega, io di salvarti intendo.

VOCI DI DENTRO: Chiede sangue l' assassinio,
E Leutoldo il verserà!

GUG: Vieni, vieni, t' affretta—
(A Leutoldo.)

EDU: A morte vai.

GUG: Non temer, Eduige;
Trova sicura guida
L' nom che nel cielo interamente affido.
(Scende in un battello, e vogando parte con Leutoldo.)

Entrano Rodolfo e Coro di Soldati.

CORO DI SVIZZERI: Nume pietoso, Dio di bontà!
Salvar clemente tu puoi, Signor,
Dell innocente il difensor.

ROD E SOL: Di morte e scempio e giuta l' ora.
Sciagura all' empio! convien che mora.

JEM: Egli è salvo.

ROD: Oh, mio furor!

SVIZ: Superato ha il rischio omai.

EDU: (Non invano il ciel pregai.)

JEM. E MEL: (Ah! perchè, perchè, l' etade Non risponde al mio desir!)

ROD: (M' è d' oltraggio il lor goder.)

SVIZ: (Mugge il tuon sul nostro capo:
Di tempesta egli è forier.
Fuggiam—fuggiam.)

ROD: Restate,
E tosto a me svelate
Chi l' assassino ha salvo,
Chi l' trasse in securità.
Tosto obbedite.
O, chi tace cadrà.
(I Soldati circondano gli Svizzeri.)

SOL: (Treman tutti di già.)

JEM: (Che sento?—oimè!)

WIL: Threats and wailing my ears, assail.

LEU: Oh, my dear William,
A fearful fate awaits me;
I am pursued—but I am not guilty,
Believe me!—From danger free me:
This dreadful passage alone remains.
(Pointing to the opposite shore.)

WIL: You hear him, fisherman;—you'll save him?

LEU: It is in vain;—
He is cruel as Gessler is wicked.

WIL: Poltroon! what do I hear?
But if he denies you, I will yet save you.

VOICES WITHIN: Murder must be expiated by blood,
And that of Leuthold shall be shed!

WIL: Come—quickly come—delay not.

EDW: On death you rush.

WIL: Fear not, Edwidge;—
A sure protection will he find
Who puts his trust in Heaven.
(He springs into the boat and rows off with Leuthold.)

Enter Rodolf, and a Chorus of Soldiers

CHORUS OF SWISS PEASANTS: Pitying Heaven, God of mercy,
You alone, in your clemency,
Can now preserve the innocent.

ROD & SOL: For death and vengeance the hour is come;
Seize the murderer—he must die!

JEM: He is safe!

ROD: Oh, I'm furious!

SWISS: He is beyond the reach of danger.

EDW: (Not in vain have I prayed to heaven.)

JEM E MEL: (Ah! why—oh, why does my strength not respond now
To my wishes!)

ROD: (Their joy is an insult to my pride.)

SWISS: (The thunder roars above our heads;
